TO THE READER OF NETS

The use of the term “Septuagint” in the title of A New English Translation of the Septuagint (NETS) requires some justification. According to legend it was seventy(-two) Jerusalem elders who at the behest of King Ptolemy II (285–246 BCE) and with the consent of High Priest Eleazaros translated the Scriptures of Egyptian Jewry into Greek from a Jerusalem manuscript inscribed in gold. The event is said to have occurred on the island of Pharos in the Mediterranean Sea off the coast of Alexandria and to have taken seventy-two days. “Scripture,” however, comprised only the so-called five books of Moses, also known as the Pentateuch. Other books were translated in subsequent centuries and also in other locations. In time the entire anthology became popularly known as “the translation of the seventy,” irrespective of the precise origin of individual books.

Not surprisingly then, though the various parts of “the translation of the seventy” have many features in common, it is also true that, as modern scholarship has increasingly shown, there is wide-ranging diversity and heterogeneity within the collection—to the point that some scholars now question the continued use of the term “Septuagint,” which to the unwary reader might suggest a greater degree of uniformity than can be demonstrated. Though “Old Greek” would undoubtedly be a more suitable term to refer, in the case of each individual book or unit of translation, to the earliest rendition into Greek, NETS has bowed to the weight of tradition and has thus continued the use of the term “Septuagint.”

WHY A NEW ENGLISH TRANSLATION OF THE SEPTUAGINT?

Only two English translations of the entire Septuagint, albeit in modified form, have ever been published. The first was by the American businessman-scholar Charles Thomson and published together with his translation of the New Testament in 1808 and the second by the British cleric Sir Lancelot Charles Lee Brenton.2 Thomson’s rendition excludes the so-called deutero-canonical books, but does feature Ps 151. The order of books is that of the Hebrew canon. His translation was based indirectly—via J. Field’s edition of 1665 and the Sixtine edition of 1587—on a single manuscript, namely, the well-known fourth century CE manuscript Codex Vaticanus (B). No preface or notes of any kind were appended.

Brenton’s work, though it appeared some thirty-five years later than Thomson’s, acknowledges only cursory and indirect acquaintance with it. As the title indicates, it too is (indirectly) based on Codex Vaticanus. In the Preface (xi) Brenton gives the Valpy edition of 1819 as his immediate source, which in turn was based on the Sixtine edition. Like Thomson, Brenton translated only the books of the Hebrew canon, plus Psalm 151, and ordered them accordingly. For Esther, however, he did not excise the Additions, as Thomson had done. Notes of various kinds, embedded in the text, include variants from the fifth century Codex Alexandrinus (A), as well as comments on the Hebrew and Greek texts.

Of the two translations, Brenton’s has easily been the more influential and, though not originally published with facing Greek and English texts, has long been made available as a diglot with both versions in parallel columns.

Since the publication of these two translations, now more than one hundred and fifty years ago, significant advances have been made in Greek lexicography, numerous ancient manuscripts have come to light, and important steps have been taken in recovering the pristine text of each Septuagint book. By way of comparison it may be noted that whereas both Thomson and Brenton were based on (essentially) diplomatic editions of a single manuscript, the critical edition of the Göttingen Septuagint for the book of Genesis rests on a foundation of some one hundred and forty manuscripts (nine pre-dating the fourth century CE), ten daughter-versions, plus biblical citations in Greek literature. A new translation of the Septuagint into English is, consequently, not only much needed for biblical studies but is in fact long overdue.

NETS AND THE NEW REVISED STANDARD VERSION

Ancient texts, including biblical texts, have been translated from time immemorial, and the need for such work continues. What is often less clear is the precise reading-public a translation should target. Because of its widely varied audience, this is perhaps especially true for biblical literature. Writing specifically on the topic of Bible translations, Nida and Taber3 envisaged no fewer than three such audiences.

It is usually necessary to have three types of Scriptures: (1) a translation which will reflect the traditional usage and be used in the churches, largely for liturgical purposes (this may be called an “ecclesiastical translation”), (2) a translation in the present-day literary language, so as to communicate to the well-educated constituency, and (3) a translation in the “common” or “popular” language, which is known to and used by the common people, and which is at the same time acceptable as a standard for published materials.

NETS is aimed primarily at the reading public identified in Nida and Taber’s second grouping, namely, a biblically well-educated audience, on the assumption that it is most probably this audience that has a more than passing interest in traditions of biblical literature other than their own. Since NETS has been based, however, on the New Revised Standard Version (1989), its character can be said to derive, in part at least, from the NRSV.

That an existing English translation of the Hebrew Bible should have been used as a base for NETS perhaps needs some justification. Why not, it might be suggested, simply translate the Septuagint in the tradition of Thomson or Brenton, without any overt dependence on an English translation of the Hebrew? The answer to this question is based, in the editors’ view, on considerations of both principle and practicality. First, the considerations of principle.

While it is obvious that the so-called Septuagint in time achieved its independence from its Semitic parent, and that it at some stage in its reception history sheds its subservience to its source, it is equally true that it was, at its stage of production, a Greek translation of a Hebrew (or Aramaic) original. That is to say, the Greek had a dependent and subservient linguistic relationship to its Semitic parent. Or again, although the Septuagint was a translation of the Bible, it did not thereby automatically become a biblical translation. More particularly, for the vast majority of books the linguistic relationship of the Greek to its Semitic parent can best be conceptualized as a Greek interlinear translation of a Hebrew original within a Hebrew-Greek diglot. Be it noted immediately, however, that the terms “interlinear” and “diglot” are intended to be nothing more than (or less than) visual aids to help the reader conceptualize the linguistic relationship that is deemed to exist between the Hebrew original and the Greek translation. In other words, “interlinear” is a metaphor, and as such it points not to the surface meaning of its own components but to a deeper, less visual, linguistic relationship of dependence and subservience. As Max Black aptly states, a memorable metaphor has the power to bring two separate domains into cognitive and emotional relation by using language directly appropriate for the one as a lens for seeing the other . . .4

Be it noted further that the deeper linguistic reality, which the metaphor attempts to make more tangible, is in no way contingent on the existence of a physical, interlinear entity at any point during the third to the first centuries BCE. What precise physical format the translation took we may never know. A variety of possibilities is not difficult to imagine.

Looked at from a different perspective, NETS is presupposing a Greek translation which aimed at bringing the Greek reader to the Hebrew original rather than bringing the Hebrew original to the Greek reader.5 Consequently, the Greek’s subservience to the Hebrew may be seen as indicative of its aim.

NETS has been based on the interlinear paradigm for essentially three reasons. First, the concept of interlinearity has superior explanatory power for the “translationese” character of Septuagint Greek, with its strict, often rigid, quantitative equivalence to the Hebrew. As Conybeare and Stock6 (and others) noted nearly a century ago, Septuagintal Greek is at times “hardly Greek at all, but rather Hebrew in disguise,” especially in its syntax and word order. Secondly, interlinearity not only legitimates the use of the Hebrew parent as arbiter of established meanings in the target language but as well absolves the reader of positing new meanings derived solely from translation equivalency. Differently put, the interlinear paradigm recognizes that unintelligibility of the Greek text qua text is one of its inherent characteristics. Thirdly, and perhaps paradoxically, the interlinear paradigm safeguards the Greekness of the Septuagint by emphasizing that its linguistic strangeness, rather than reflecting a form of the living language at odds with its Hellenistic environment, was made to serve a specific (possibly pedagogical) purpose.

Thus whatever else one might consider the LXX to be—a repository of textual variants to the Masoretic Text, the oldest “commentary” on the Hebrew Bible, Holy Writ for Egyptian Jewry (at least from the time of Aristeas) and, later, for Christianity—the Committee decided to focus on the most original character of this collection, namely, that of interlinearity with and dependence on the Hebrew, or, from a slightly different angle, the Septuagint as produced rather than as received. Or yet again, NETS aims to focus on the translated corpus in its Hebrew-Greek context.

Once the aim and focus of NETS had been decided upon, a methodological directive seemed compelling. If NETS was to render into English the Greek half of a Hebrew-Greek interlinear diglot posited as paradigm, its English text might then be made “interlinear to” a modern English translation of the current Hebrew text. Put another way, since NETS was to echo the original dependent relationship of the Greek upon the Hebrew, one could seemingly do no better than to base NETS on an existing English translation of the Hebrew and to modify that base as dictated by the Greek.

But if the linguistic makeup of the Septuagint can best be conceptualized in terms of interlinearity, it follows that, characteristically for interliners, one should read the Septuagint as produced with one eye on the parent member of the diglot, namely, the Hebrew. Thus what this Septuagint says, and how it says it, can only be understood in its entirety with the help of the Hebrew. This interlinearity with and dependence on the Hebrew may be termed the constitutive character of the Septuagint, in contradistinction to its history of interpretation, or better, its reception history. From the NETS perspective these two aspects of the Septuagint are not only distinct but might in fact be termed the apples and oranges of its history.

In the light of what has been argued, it is thus appropriate to think of NETS along the lines of the Göttingen Septuagint: as the Göttingen editors attempt to establish the original form of the Greek text and in so doing draw on the Hebrew for text-critical leverage, so NETS has availed itself of what leverage the Hebrew can provide in arbitrating between competing meanings of the Greek. Moreover, just as the form of the original text differed from its later textual descendants, so what the original translator thought his text to mean differed from what later interpreters thought the text to mean.

But in addition to the dictum of principle, there emerged also an intensely practical consideration for basing NETS on an existing English translation of the Hebrew. In the Committee’s view, important to the raison d’être of a new translation of the (original) Septuagint—i.e., a translation of a translation—is its synthetic potential. That is to say, users of such a translation, especially in light of the diglot paradigm, should be able to utilize it to the greatest degree achievable (within set parameters) in a comparative study of the Hebrew and Greek texts, albeit in English translation. This aim could best be realized, the Committee believed, if English translations of the Hebrew and the Greek were as closely interrelated as the two texts themselves dictate or warrant, both quantitatively and qualitatively. In other words, ideally the user of NETS would be able to determine not only matters of longer or shorter text and major transpositions of material, but also questions of more detailed textual, interpretational, and stylistic difference. Needless to say, the Committee harbors no illusions about this goal having been fully reached.

Given the above decision, essentially two options were open: (1) one could first translate the MT into English and then use this translation as the point of departure for an English translation of the Greek, or (2) one could use an existing English translation of the MT as base. Clearly the latter route recommended itself as being the more practical and economical one. It was, furthermore, difficult for the Committee to see how the work of the committees of scholars that have produced the major English translations of the Hebrew could be greatly improved upon even though they are admittedly translations of a presumed original rather than being translations of a translation, like NETS.

NETS AS MODIFIED NRSV
Two considerations have guided the Committee in choosing an English version as the base text for NETS: (1) general compatibility of translational approach with that of the LXX itself and (2) widespread use among readers of the Bible. The New Revised Standard Version, based as it is on the maxim “as literal as possible, as free as necessary” (Preface), was thought to be reasonably well suited to NETS’ purposes on both counts. Consequently, throughout those Septuagint books which have extant counterparts in Hebrew (or Aramaic), NETS translators have sought to retain the NRSV to the extent that the Greek text, in their understanding of it, directs or permits. NETS’ synoptic aim, however, has not been allowed to interfere with faithfulness to the Greek text.

When NETS differs from the NRSV, the reason is typically one of the following: (1) the lexical choice of the NRSV to represent the Hebrew differs significantly from that of the Greek translator’s, even though either rendering, independently, might be regarded as an adequate translation of the same Hebrew; (2) differences in translational approach between the translators of the NRSV and the ancient Greek translators has occasioned noteworthy differences between the two versions (for example, in any given passage, the Greek might be hyper-literalistic, where the NRSV is not, or again it might be very free, which the NRSV is not); (3) an attempt to reflect linguistic features in the Greek, such as word echoes or paratactic style, at times has required that the NRSV wording be modified; (4) the Greek translator has apparently rendered a text at variance with MT, due to textual difference; (5) the NRSV has opted for gender-inclusive or explicit language, eschewed by NETS; (6) the NRSV has not translated MT, but opted instead for some other reading. Naturally, where, in such instances, the NRSV has adopted the reading of the Septuagint, NETS and NRSV agree. As a rule such cases have been annotated in the NRSV, but the reader should not take for granted that the precise English word used by the NRSV has been adopted by NETS.

The Committee’s desire to enable the reader to make use of NETS in synoptic manner with the NRSV has been second only to its commitment to giving a faithful rendering of the Greek original. In fact, NETS may be said to have two competing aims: (1) to give as faithful a translation of the Greek as is possible, both in terms of its meaning and in terms of its mode of expression and (2) to create a tool in English for the synoptic study of the Hebrew and Greek texts of the Bible. Since these are competing aims, the translator often, especially on the expression side, has been called upon to do a balancing act.

TRANSLATING A TRANSLATION

Translating an ancient text can only be described as a profoundly difficult undertaking. Not only do translators have to contend with the natural gulf that exists between languages and with the absence of the authors who wrote the pieces in question, but they also suffer from the lack of native speakers of the ancient languages, who might be cajoled into giving some much needed help. Consequently, what the modern translator of an ancient text is trying to do is something like starting up a one-way conversation, or a monologue that passes for a dialogue. Translation, as someone has aptly noted, is an act of hubris.

The difficulties of the undertaking are certainly not decreased when one attempts to translate an ancient translation into a modern language. If translating is an act of interpreting, as linguists suggest it is, rather than a simple transfer of meaning, a Greek interpretation of a Hebrew original can be expected to reflect what the translator understood the Hebrew text to mean. The end result is therefore inevitably to some degree a commentary written at a specific historical time and place by an individual person, whose understanding of the Hebrew will often have been at variance with our own, though at times perhaps equally viable.

But as has already been suggested by the interlinear paradigm, much of the Septuagint is a translation of a special kind. Thus whereas a translation that replaces the original can be counted on to “solve” the problems of the original, in an interlinear rendition these may simply be passed on to the reader. In fact new problems might often be created because of its inherent preoccupation with representing as much of the linguistic detail of the original as possible. All of this is not to say that the interlinear type of translators of the LXX had no concern for making sense, but simply that the interlinear language-game of the ancient translator has added an extra dimension to the problems faced by the modern translator. The notion of constitutive character, introduced earlier, comprises inter alia certain realities of the source language, Hebrew (or Aramaic). Just as inappropriate as accusing the interlinear translator of lacking concern for making sense would be to saddle him with inadequate knowledge of Greek, since his use of Greek is determined by the aim he wishes to achieve, whatever that be.

The paradigm of the Septuagint as an interlinear text within a Hebrew-Greek diglot, in contradistinction to the Septuagint as a free-standing, independent text now calls for a further distinction alluded to earlier, namely, that between the text as produced, on the one hand, and the text as received, on the other. The distinction is important because it demarcates two distinct approaches to the Greek text. That is to say, one can either seek to uncover the meaning of the Greek text in terms of its interlinear dependence on the Hebrew, or one can aim at rendering the meaning of the text from the perspective of its reception history, i.e., in terms of its autonomy. The difference between the two may be simply illustrated. Though the entire Greek language community of third to the first centuries BCE would agree that Greek κύριος sometimes means “host/army” but at other times means “power/might,” which component of meaning was right for which context might well be a matter of dispute. From the perspective of the Septuagint text as an independent, self-sufficient entity, context is recognized as the sole arbiter of meaning. That is to say, should the context speak of military might, δυνάμεις would be translated by "army," but if the (Greek) context be about bodily might instead, δύναμις would be rendered by "power/might." On the other hand, from the perspective of the Septuagint as a dependent, subservient entity, one could not agree that context is the sole arbiter of meaning. What if context should admit either reading and thus fail to steer the reader into one direction or the other? In that case, based on our diglot model, the Hebrew parent text would be the arbiter in the dispute. Should the underlying Hebrew have ἡλισθήμα ("host/army"), Greek δύναμις should be understood as "host/army," but if the Hebrew be דָּעַת ("strength, might") instead, δύναμις would have to be understood as meaning "might/strength." An even simpler example is the distinction between the Greek pronouns "us" and "you" (pl) (e.g., ἡμῶν and ὑμῶν) which, due to their identical pronunciation in post-Classical Greek, are frequently confused in Greek manuscripts. Which of the two is to be regarded as original LXX can often be determined only by using the Hebrew as arbiter. The latter example underscores the analogy between NETS and the Göttingen Septuagint.

Perhaps the most obvious examples of Septuagintal dependence (as opposed to independence) are cases in which, due to the ambiguity inherent in Greek grammar, only the syntactic relationships (e.g., subject or object role) of the Hebrew can guide the English translator to what the Greek text means. Thus a sentence such as τὸ παιδίου ἵδεν might mean either "the child saw" or "(s)he saw the child."

The distinction between the text as an independent entity or the text as a dependent entity is, therefore, not only a valid one in terms of the NETS paradigm, but in the Committee’s view, it is an important methodological stance for translators of the Septuagint as produced, with frequent practical consequences for NETS. Differently put, one can either treat the LXX as though it were an original (as Charles Thomson did) or one can treat it as a translation of an original in a non-Greek language. Though both are worthy undertakings in their own right, NETS perceives them as fundamentally different.

Constitutive character or Sitz im Leben is a figure for socio-linguistic realities. As such it includes not only what, judging from the language used, the text overtly means but also what at times resulted covertly from the model that informed the translator’s work. Again, inherent in the model of the LXX as an interlinear rendition is the word-by-word method of translating, including the so-called structural words (articles, prepositions, conjunctions). Also to be expected from an interlinear perspective are standard and stereotypical equations between Hebrew and Greek words, again often including structural words. For these reasons and more, though the LXX is in Greek, there is also much that is decidedly un-Greek. "The voice is Iakob's, but the hands are Esau's" (Gen 27.22) is a statement aptly applied to much of the Septuagint.

How NETS Determines What the Greek Means

Simply put NETS has been governed by five lexical guidelines, which can be made to apply as well, mutatis mutandis, to the grammar of Septuagint Greek, and all of them are implicit in or concordant with the interlinear paradigm: (1) Greek words in the LXX normally mean what they meant in the Greek of that period (statistically the vast majority of the lexical stock belongs here); (2) the precise nuance of Greek words is sometimes arbitrated by the Hebrew parent text (see the δύναμις and ἡμῶν/ὑμῶν illustrations above); (3) some Greek words, when they are used rigidly as uniform renderings of the corresponding Hebrew words, fit poorly into some of the contexts in which they stand—these may be dubbed stereotypes (see e.g., "will" [ἡλισθήμα] for NRSV’s “desire" in Ps 1.2); (4) some Greek words in the LXX have been selected by the translator solely because of their perceived connection with (a) Hebrew morpheme(s)—these may be called isolates (see e.g., ἐν ἐμοί = "in/with me" in 1Rgns 1.26 et al.); (5) some Greek words in the LXX have Hebrew meanings, i.e., the chief meaning of the Hebrew counterpart has been transferred to the Greek, which has then become part of the living language—these may be labeled calques (see e.g., Διαθήκη = "covenant" throughout the LXX, but "will, testament" in extra-biblical Greek). Calques may be expected to predate the Septuagint. Graphically these guidelines may be represented as follows:

The vertical line on the scale represents a semantic demarcation, since words or lexemes placed to the left are governed by their normal Greek semantic range, while those to the right may in part be governed by their Hebrew counterparts, though, when such is the case, not by their full semantic range. NETS translators have ordered the linguistic information of the Greek in terms of this scale and have translated accordingly.

Though the full extent of the scale may be represented in all books or units of translation of the Septuagint, not all may show the same translation profile. Two factors that may have exercised a direct influence on a given book’s profile are its degree of literalness and its relative chronological placement within the corpus. By literalness is here understood the degree of consistency of Hebrew-Greek verbal equations, as well as the relative number of such one-to-one equations a given book or translation unit features. Potentially a book’s chronological place within the corpus determines the number of calques it contains. That is to say, the later the book the more calques may have been part of its translator’s everyday, living lexicon.

Even though, in deference to long-standing usage, the title of the NETS project speaks of the literature as a body, namely, the Septuagint, it has already been noted that the members of this anthology show considerable diversity, the interlinear model notwithstanding. Thus, Greek translations within it range all the way from highly literal to very free. Moreover, on a scale extending from what might be called the prototypical translator, who acts as a mere conduit for his author, to the prototypical author, who composes everything from scratch, Septuagintal writers would be seen scattered along most of its baseline. One finds not only full-fledged authors (e.g., 2 Makkabee and Wisdom of Salomon) who composed their works in Greek, but also bona fide translators who in varying degrees attempted to approximate our prototypical translator. Thus one might note, for example, Ecclesiast (Qoheleth) as the most prototypical translator (being very literal) and Job as the least prototypical (being very free). Needless to say, a Joban translator must be labeled part author. NETS introductions to individual books or units are designed to give some detail on the nature of individual translations.

What has been noted in the preceding paragraph draws attention to a number of facts. First, though the paradigm basic to NETS is that of the Septuagint as an interlinear text, it does not follow that all interlinear texts are equally literalistic. Second, there are within the translated corpus exceptions that prove the rule, such as Job, Proverbs, Esaias (?) and Esther in part. Third, those books originally composed in Greek, such as 2–4 Makkabee and Wisdom of Salomon, by virtue of not being translations are not governed by the NETS paradigm.

NETS: its Character and Extent
Though NETS is based on the NRSV, it is not intended to be the-NRSV-once-over-lightly but rather a genuine representation of the Greek, reflecting not only its perceived meaning but also, to the extent possible in an English translation, its literary nuggets as well as its infelicities, pleonasms, problems and co-nundra.

One scarcely expects literary beauty and rhetorical flourish from an interlinear text, since that was clearly not its purpose. In fact, it would make little sense to accuse an interlinear translator of lack of literary sense. When literary beauty occurs it is the exception that proves the rule. Consequently, NETS readers would be remiss in expecting literary elegance in the English. That would have required, from the NETS perspective, a different Greek. Since the Septuagint, with a few exceptions, was not originally composed in Greek and often used unidiomatic Greek, a fully idiomatic translation into English can scarcely be justified. Consequently NETS is perforce more a translation of formal correspondence than one of dynamic equivalence. All in all, what readers can expect is a reasonable facsimile of the (original) Septuagint such as it is, including many of its warts. For commentary, one may consult the forthcoming series, the Society of Biblical Literature Commentary on the Septuagint (SBLCS).

The reason for the NETS approach is integral to the NETS aim: that of reflecting the Septuagint’s constitutive character and of attempting to capture the incipit of the history of interpretation of what in time became the Greek Bible. Implicit in this aim has been a concerted effort not to make the Greek text say more than is strictly warranted, but to leave such elaboration to later stages of exegesis or eisegesis, as the case may be.

Names have been treated in essentially two ways: (1) as translations of Hebrew (or Aramaic), i.e., names in general use in the Hellenistic world apart from the LXX, and (2) as transcriptions of Hebrew (or Aramaic), i.e., names produced de novo from the source language. The former have been given their standard equivalent in English (e.g., Egypt and Syria), while the latter appear in English transcription (e.g., Davud and Salomon).

Since the Septuagint collection includes translations from extant Hebrew (Aramaic) sources and translations of lost Semitic works, as well as books originally composed in Greek, the Committee has decided to be inclusive. To cite the NETS Statement of Principles (art. 3): “For the purposes of NETS, the term

One “book” not included in NETS, however, is Odes since it has dubious integrity as a literary unit, and, in any case, almost all of the individual Septuagint odes have already been included in their native setting in other books. The sole exception is Ode 12 in Rahlfs’ edition, the Prayer of Manasses, which for that reason has been separately appended to the Psalter.

The one major addition to Rahlfs has been the so-called Alpha-Text of Esther. Here and elsewhere the Committee has been guided by the Göttingen Septuagint, which has presented two Greek texts of Esther in parallel. While it is true that in Esther and in certain other books (Judges and Tobit, for example) it is most unlikely that both texts, qua texts, can lay equal claim to originality, the texts that have been transmitted clearly defy conflation. Furthermore, even though the Committee aims to present the original Septuagint or Old Greek in English translation, here too it has not been oblivious to the weight of tradition. Thus, though in Job the Septuagint has been presented as the main text of NETS, the asterisked materials, sanctioned solely by ecclesiastical usage, have been included, albeit conspicuously marked off. For the same reason, the so-called Greek II text of Sirach, added in small print in Ziegler’s edition, has been included. Similar procedures have been followed in other books (see Introductions to individual books).

A special effort has been made in the case of books with parallel Greek texts to reflect their interrelationships in English.

Clearly where no parent texts are extant, whether because they have been lost or because they never existed, no comparison can be attempted between (Semitic) original and (Greek) translation. Thus, whether a book has been composed originally in Greek or is based on a lost original, it has been treated as an original, even though an effort has been made to reflect its style. Similarly, since the synoptic aim of NETS is not applicable in these cases, the NRSV has functioned only optionally as the base text for the NETS translator, though certain basic NETS practices and procedures have been carried through, especially in terms of translation style and names.

Greek Text

Since NETS claims to be a translation of the Greek text as it left the hands of its respective translators—or a "Göttingen Septuagint in English form"—it stands to reason that NETS has been based on the best available critical editions. That is to say, where available, NETS has used the Göttingen Septuagint, and Rahlfs’ manual edition has been used for the remainder of the books. In the event that new and improved critical editions appear during the life of the project, the Committee is committed to using these, if at all possible. But since no edition, no matter how carefully and judiciously executed, can lay claim to being the definitive text of the Greek translator, NETS translators have from time to time sought to improve on their respective base texts. Just how much will have been changed varies with the quality of the edition used. All such deviations, however, have been meticulously noted.

Since NETS has used the NRSV as its base text, it stands to reason that some of the latter’s editorial policy has been continued.

More specifically the NRSV for its so-called Old Testament segment has maintained the traditional distinction between shall (should) and will (would), and NETS has followed suit.

Though the NRSV adopted the practice of distinguishing between the Hebrew divine names Yahweh and Adonai by means of printing "LORD" and "Lord" as respective equivalents, NETS has felt committed to this practice only where it can be shown that the Greek translator made a comparable distinction between Yahweh and Adonai. Otherwise Greek kúrios has been routinely represented by English "Lord."

The footnoting of the NRSV has been largely followed in NETS, though the specific content is often of a different kind. In NETS footnotes are generally of five kinds: (1) deviations from the Greek text used as base; (2) linguistic items in the English but lacking in the Greek; (3) graded (in terms of preference) alternative translations to the lemma text; (4) elucidations of various kind; (5) indications of a very obscure Greek text.

Deviations from the Greek text have been further divided into additions, omissions and transpositions. All three kinds of deviations from the Greek edition used are followed by an equal sign (=) in order to indicate the source of the variation without implying exact equivalence. Substitutions for obvious reasons have not been tagged as such.

Items in the English that are explicitly lacking in the Greek have been included when the information is judged to be implicit. When, however, added items may have some possible bearing on the interpretation of the text, they have been tagged. Hence the employment of this category is one of several ways in which NETS has sought to present the reader with the maximum of interpretational openness the Greek translator’s text offers.

The category of other translations comprises alternative renderings of the Greek that are deemed to have varying degrees of warrant in the Greek. These degrees, in descending order of acceptability, have been marked as (a) alternative rendering (to the NETS text) marked by “or,” (b) alternative rendering preceded by “possibly,” (c) alternative rendering preceded by “perhaps.” Again, the intent here is to present translation options supported by the Greek.

Clarifications are intended to communicate useful information to the reader. They are preceded by “i.e.” or are phrased more explicitly.

The flagging of uncertainty in the Greek text has been a measure of last resort and has been used very sparingly, since it is of very limited help to the reader. Items so marked are typically clear from a textual point of view but very obscure as to their coherent sense.

Chapter and verse numbers in NETS follow those of the particular Greek text edition that has been used as base. The numbering of the NRSV, which often though not always follows MT, has been supplied in parentheses when different.

Since the NT regularly cites the Septuagint and synoptic use of the Bible is an important aim of NETS, translators have made an effort to align NETS and the NRSV NT in such cases, using similar principles to those outlined above.

A NEW ENGLISH TRANSLATION OF THE SEPTUAGINT
EDITION OF THE GREEK TEXT

The New English Translation of the Septuagint (NETS) version of the book of Genesis is based on the standard critical edition prepared by John William Wevers (Septuaginta: Vetus Testamentum Graecum Authoritate Academiae Scientiarum Gottingensis editum 1: Genesis [Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1974]). In addition, I have incorporated changes to the critical text proposed by the editor in his Notes on the Greek Text of Genesis (SBLSCS 35; Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1993) wherever alteration of the Septuaginta edition has implications for the English translation. In such cases, the difference between the edition and the emended text of Notes is duly recorded in the NETS footnotes. For example, in Gen 17.3 antino = Weed in the footnote reflects the text of the critical edition.

TRANSLATION PROFILE OF THE GREEK

General Character
The overall assessment of Greek Genesis is that, lexically and syntactically, it is a strict, quantitative representation of its source text. Thus the concept proposed in NETS discussions of the Septuagint (LXX) as an interlinear translation is an apt metaphor for this book because of the significant degree of dependence on the Hebrew that it exhibits. However, this general characterization of LXX Genesis as being slavishly subservient to the Hebrew needs to be nuanced somewhat in the light of the Greek translator's periodic departures from his typical patterns to produce renderings that reflect Greek usage rather than Hebrew idiom, or that, in one way or another, contextualize a given passage for the benefit of the Greek reader.

Semantic Leveling
Several observations can be made about the set of Hebrew-Greek equivalences that exist in the book of Genesis. For example, a Greek term often will serve as the counterpart to several different Hebrew terms throughout the book, a practice called semantic leveling. There are more than 75 cases in Genesis of one Greek word being used to gloss three or more Hebrew words. Some of these, like ἄδικηω “be wronged, do injustice, injure” (טומא, תעה, טעפ) and ἄδικαια “wrongdoing, injustice” (טומא, תעה, טעפ, טעפ), are cognates. Others belong to the same semantic domain, like the preceding, but are not cognates: e.g., γῆ “earth, land, ground, country, world” (אוד, אוד, נתח) and γῆρα “country, territory” (אוד, אוד, נתח).

Where possible this leveling has been reproduced in the NETS translation. One does not, of course, automatically translate a Greek term the same way each time it appears, because any lexeme typically has a range of denotations. Yet the likelihood of translation uniformity in English is increased when a single Greek term is used to render several Hebrew ones. In such cases, the NRSV often has a different English term for each Hebrew one. Consequently the NRSV rendering may well have been altered for NETS to reflect the semantic leveling that occurs in the Greek vis-à-vis the Hebrew. A case in point involves γῆ as the equivalent for several terms in the standard Hebrew Masoretic Text (MT).

TO THE READER OF GENESIS

In the preceding examples, decisions as to which English terms to use for NETS are based on factors such as their suitability in context as equivalents for γιά, and the way in which, in a given chapter or pericope, those terms reflect the Greek translator’s uniformity of word choice in rendering a variety of Hebrew terms.

Semantic Differentiation

Although there is a good deal of evidence for semantic leveling in LXX Genesis, a significant amount of semantic differentiation also takes place. Such situations often showcase the translator’s skill or creativity in employing a variety of Greek equivalents for individual Hebrew terms or expressions in accordance with the demands of each context.

Hebrew verbs tend to generate greater numbers of Greek counterparts than nouns or adjectives do. One such verb is נָשַׁל, which occurs 113 times in the Qal stem, and for which the LXX translator has used sixteen verbal roots as well as the adverbial forms δύναμαι (3) “come” and δύναται (2) “come.” In the majority of cases (58%), πορεύομαι (61) “go, proceed, walk, walk on, journey, travel” and its compound forms προπορεύομαι (2) “go on, go on before,” and συμπορεύομαι (3) “journey together, go along” serve as equivalents. ἐρχομαι (3) “go, come” and its compounds απέρχομαι (21) “go away, go off, depart,” διέρχομαι (1) “go through” and ἔξερχομαι (1) “go forth” account for another 23%. The other Greek verbal roots that have been selected to render the Qal of נָשַׁל are: ἀποδιδόσακο (1) “escape,” ἀποστέλλω (2) “depart,” ἀπολύομαι (1) “go away,” ἀποτρέπω (2) “hurry off, leave quickly,” βαδίζω (1) “go,” ἐπιπέμπω (1) “be carried along,” ὀιχόμαι (3) “leave, go away,” προβαίνω (1) . . . γίνομαι (1) “keep getting (greater).”

The three remaining cases of Qal נָשַׁל are not represented quantitatively in the Greek. Three additional Greek verbal roots serve as counterparts to the Hiphil stem of נָשַׁל in the eight places that it occurs in Genesis: διοδεύω (1) “pass through,” ἐυαρεστέω “be well pleasing (to / before God)” (6) in a dynamic equivalent rendering of διοδεύω / ἐυαρεστέω “walk (with / before God)” and περιπατέω (1) “walk about.”

The Hebrew noun אל is the first from which to describe the ones whom Abram rescued from the coalition of kings who had invaded the cities of the plain (14.21) and the plural of ἀνήμα “slaves” to depict members of Esau’s household (36.6).

Neologisms

The LXX of Genesis features approximately 50 terms that do not appear in extant Greek literature that dates prior to the creation of this translation. Most of these, of course, are based on existing stems, and so some whose cognates do pre-date, or are contemporaneous with, the LXX may well already have been in use. The fact that they are previously unattested is no doubt accidental. Examples of this sort include compounds with the ἀρχι- prefix, a good number of which apparently made their first appearance in the Hellenistic period. Thus in Genesis one encounters forms like ἀρχιδεσμοφύλακας / ἀρχιδεσμοφύλαξ “chief jailer,” ἀρχιμάγειρος “chief butcher,” and ἀρχιστοιχιος “chief baker,” whose unprefixed forms δεσμοφύλαξ / δεσμωτής “jailer,” μάγειρος “baker,” and ὑπότοιχος “baker” are attested by the time of the translation of the Pentateuch into Greek. Similarly, terms like διασαφέως “explanation” and ὑπάρξις “rise/start early” are likely to have been in use, since cognates (e.g., διασαφέω “make quite clear,” ὑπάρξις “dawn”) were well known.

The Greek translator follows various conventions of word formation. A term like βαρυστεία “be heavy-sighted” (48.10), for example, combines the adjective βαρύς “heavy” with the noun ων “eye,” and to the resulting compound is attached the verbal suffix -τεω which typically denotes either a condition or an activity (in this case it is the former). For γαμβρέω, the translator has begun with the noun γάμβρος, whose semantic domain has to do with a connection by marriage and which, in a given context, can be applied to any one of a number of different kinds of male in-laws and has added the verbal suffix -τεω, which has the force of “acting the part of,” hence, “act the part of a brother-in-law” (38.8). The noun ἐνταφίω “shroud, winding-sheet” is the basis for ἐνταφίζω, the form that the LXX translator creates by adding the verbal suffix -τεω denoting action, i.e., “prepare for burial” (50.2). The new cognate noun ἐνταφιαστής “undertaker,” which appears in the same verse, exhibits the nominal suffix -τής signifying the agent or doer of an action. The technical term θυσιαστήριον “altar” is the product of the addition of the suffix -τήριον, signifying place, to θυσία (noun) / θυσιάσω (verb) “sacrifice.” A puzzling development is the Genesis translator’s invention of the term ὀκροβυστία “foreskin” (17.11 passim), given that ὀκροποσθία “tip of the foreskin” (cf. ποσθία “foreskin”) was already in use. Some have speculated that the translator combined ἀκροφός “at the farthest point/end” with a Semitic root signifying pudenda (ḥī), but whatever the process it seems likely that ἀκροβυστία is derived from ἀκροποσθία.

Stereotypes

While the translation style of the LXX of Genesis is literalistic in nature, the meanings of the Greek words are usually ones that are attested in other non-translation Greek literature. This is true even in situations when rigid adherence to an established Hebrew-Greek equivalence gives rise to a reading that is in tension with its context. Examples of such stereotypes in Genesis include

- euca/nw “to increase” (for the Hebrew counterpart hrp signifying “to be fruitful”),
- eu9ri/skw “to find” (note especially 26.12 where Hebrew cm connotes “reap,” as the NRSV indicates),
- qa/lassa “sea” (particularly in the places where My signifies the westward direction),
- o1roj “mountain” (where rh refers generally to hill country),
- xeιλοj “lip, edge” (where ἡξίλω denotes “language”).

Calques

A number of calques (see “TO THE READER OF NETS”) make their appearance in the Greek Genesis. They include terms such as diaqh/kh “covenant” = ἱδρα, eu)loge/w “to bless” = χρά, Piel, kibwto/j “ark” = δύναμις, γύρος “(the) LORD” = Ἰσραήλ, παρακαλέω “to comfort / be comforted” = Θεοπλήνθη, παροίκεω “to reside as an alien” = ἑλληνικός, παροικίς “living as an alien” = ἑλληνικός, and στερέωμα “firmament” = στερεός.

Isolates

Examples of isolates (see “TO THE READER OF NETS”) may be found in LXX Gen 7.4 and 7.23, where the use of εξανάστασις “a rising up” and ἄναστημα “something that rises” as equivalents for ἔμετρον “living thing” (NRSV) is apparently occasioned by the desire to reflect the root ἔμετρον “arise, stand up, stand” by means of cognates of its Greek semantic counterpart, ἔριστημι. Similarly, the rationale for περατής “emigrant” in Gen 14.13 as a rendering of הָעַר “Hebrew” in reference to Abram would undoubtedly be that both have etymological links to verbs denoting “to traverse” and cognates connoting “on the other side.”

Loan Words and Transcriptions

The most literal of translation strategies in the LXX involves simply the transcription of the letters of a Hebrew word into Greek characters. This happens frequently when it comes to the rendering of names in Genesis, though other terms are handled in the same fashion. χερουβίμ “cherubim” (3.24) is the transcription of כְּרַבִּים, an equivalence that obtains throughout the LXX. As Jews conversant with the Hebrew Bible, LXX translators must have had some familiarity with the traditions concerning the identity of these creatures, though they apparently knew of no Greek counterparts that could serve as suitable equivalents. In another case involving σαβέκ = כַּבֵּס (22.13), however, the transcription seems to have come about because the Genesis translator was not sure about the meaning of the Hebrew term. That the translator understood it was some kind of plant is evident from the fact that it is paired attributively with φυτόν, i.e., “a sabek plant.” A term like ἁρφοβόν “pledge” (Hebrew כְּבֵס [Gen 38.17, 18, 20]), on the other hand, is not just a transcription but a true loan word, derived from a Semitic root, that was in use already in pre-LXX Greek.

Hebraisms

The Genesis translator’s dependence on the underlying Hebrew text is exemplified not only by recurring semantic equivalences in the book but also by the number of cases of rigid adherence to Hebrew idiom resulting in quantitative equivalences. The latter can be divided into two broad categories: (1) Hebrew idiommatic constructions that have no precedent in Greek and (2) constructions in Greek for which there is some precedent in pre-LXX literature but which are attested in the LXX much more frequently than they are elsewhere.

In Genesis, examples of the first category include constructions that are reproduced as literally in NETS as they have been in the LXX (English translations of the Hebrew are taken from the NRSV).

- 4.2: καὶ πρόσεβηκεν τεκείν “And she proceeded to bear” = γυνὴ πρὸσεβηκεν “Next she bore”
- 4.8: καὶ ἔγενετο ἐν τῷ ἔδαφῳ τῶν γυναικῶν τῷ πεδίῳ καὶ ἄνεστιν Καίης “And it came about when they were in the plain, then Kain rose up” = γῆ πρὸς ἐπάθη ἔγενετο καὶ ἔστη Καίης “And when they were in the field, Cain rose up”
- 9.5: εἰς χεῖλας τῶν θηρίων “from the hand of all the animals” = γῆ πρὸς ἐπάθη “from every animal”

11.10: υἱὸς ἑκατὸν ἵψαυν “a son of one hundred years” = ἥν ἐγεραρκεῖ “one hundred years old”
12.19: καὶ ἐλαβὼν αὐτὴν ἐμαυτῷ εἷς γυναῖκα “And I took her to myself for a wife” = ἅλιλ ἵλ ἐμαυτῷ “so that I took her for my wife”
24.12: καὶ ποιήσατο ἑλέος μετὰ τοῦ κυρίου μου “and do mercy with my lord” = ἄλωθ ηῶς ἄλωθ ἴκε “and show steadfast love to my master”
33.19: τὴν μερίδα τοῦ ἀγροῦ, οὐ ἐσπάνην ἄυτοῦ “the portion of the field, there where he had set up his tent” = ἀπὸ τῆς ἀρχῆς ἡ ἄρχη ἱππαλῆ “the plot of land on which he had pitched his tent”

Constructions of the second category (those for which there is some pre-LXX precedent though not with the frequency attested in the LXX) are translated for NETS with varying degrees of literalness, depending on the degree to which they reflect standard Greek idiom and meet the NETS requirement for grammatical English. A case in point involves the use of the particle ἐί in questions. In addition to its interjunctival and conditional uses, ἐί is employed in pre-LXX Greek in indirect and alternative questions, but in LXX Genesis it can appear as a counterpart to the Hebrew conditional/interrogative particle ו in direct questions: e.g., [ἐί = ו] Σάρα χαίνηκοντα ἵψαυν οὐδα τεξεταί; “shall Sarra who is ninety years of age give birth?” (17.17). The use of the ἐν τῷ + infinitive construction (= ἐν + infinitive construct) in circumstantial clauses likewise predates the LXX, though the frequency of its occurrence in Genesis and elsewhere in the biblical corpus is greater. One of the 18 examples of this equivalence in Genesis is found in 34.22: ἐν τῷ περιτίμενοι ἣμῶν πᾶν ἀποσκοποῦν “when every male of ours is circumcised”, ἐν τῷ περιτίμενοι ἢμῶν πᾶν ἀποσκοποῦν “that every male among us be circumcised” (NRSV).

The Greek default for the ubiquitous Hebrew conjunction ג is καί. Its usual NETS equivalent when Hebrew parataxis is replicated is “and,” though this may mean departure from the NRSV when the latter glosses with inferential, adversative or other kinds of counterparts. Alternatives to “and” in NETS include “with” and “along with.” “Then” is sometimes employed when καί marks continuing narrative sequence and the subject of the conjoined clauses/sentences remains the same: e.g., “And when Abraam looked up with his eyes he saw the place far away. Then Abraam said . . . ” (22.4–5). Typically “then” is the NETS gloss when the LXX reproduces Hebrew idiom by introducing apodotic clauses by means of καί (= ג): e.g., ἐγένετο δὲ ἡμῖν ἐξηγηγεῖ, ὥστε τὸν θεοῦ ἐκ τοῦ οἴκου τοῦ πατρὸς μου, καὶ εἶπα Ἔκαν ἤμων οὐ πάντα τὸν θεοῦ ἔργα “Now it came about when God brought me forth from my father’s house, that then I said . . . ” (20.13). Wherever possible, the presence in the LXX of something other than the default rendering of the Hebrew ג conjunction (δὲ for example) is indicated in NETS by modification of the NRSV: e.g., Ρέβεκκα δὲ ἦπαρσα τὸν ἰακώβ “Rebekka, however, loved Jacob”; ἔπειτα ἔστη ἐν ἀστήρι “but Rebekah loved Jacob” (NRSV [25.28]).

Other Translation Issues

In the matter of tense-aspect equations, the Genesis translator’s default for Hebrew preterites and perfects is the aorist and for imperfects it is the future indicative. Thus where these patterns are not maintained, I endeavor to indicate that with modifications to the NRSV.

7.19: “The waters swelled (Hebrew perfect) so mightily on the earth that all the high mountains under the whole heaven were covered (Hebrew preterite) . . . ”; “So the water was prevailing (Greek imperfect) very greatly on the earth, and it covered (Greek aorist) all the high mountains that were under heaven . . . ”
31.39: “That which was torn by wild beasts I did not bring (Hebrew perfect) to you; I bore the loss of it myself (Hebrew prefix conjugation / imperfect); of my hand you required it, whether stolen by day or stolen by night.” “. . . that which was caught by wild beasts I have not brought back (Greek perfect) to you; I would exact (Greek imperfect) from myself what was stolen by day and what was stolen by night . . . ”
38.23: “. . . you see, I sent (Hebrew perfect) this kid, and you could not find (Hebrew perfect) her.” “I, for my part, have sent (Greek perfect) this kid, whereas you have not found (Greek perfect) her.”
42.38: “My son shall not go down (Hebrew imperfect) with you, for his brother is dead (Hebrew perfect), and he alone is left (Hebrew participle). If harm should come (Hebrew perfect) to him on the journey that you are to make (Hebrew imperfect), you would bring down (Hebrew imperfect) my gray hairs with sorrow to Sheol.” “My son shall not go down (Greek future) with you, because his brother died (Greek aorist) and he alone has been left (Greek perfect). And it will turn out (Greek future) that he becomes sick (Greek aorist infinitive) on the journey that you travel (Greek present), and you will bring down (Greek future) my old age with sorrow to Hades.”
45.8: “So it was not you who sent (Hebrew perfect) me here, but God; he has made (Hebrew preterite) me a father to Pharaoh . . . ”; “Now therefore it is not you who have sent (Greek perfect) me here, but rather God, and he made (Greek aorist) me as a father to Pharaoh . . . ”

With regard to word order, where the MT and the LXX agree, I try to follow the NRSV in order to preserve the synoptic value of NETS vis-à-vis the NRSV. For example, NRSV Genesis typically reverses the Hebrew sequence of name with attributive phrase, and in NETS I follow suit. In Genesis 4.1, the NRSV has, “Now the man knew his wife Eve” (דר ישנה בה, וּלְכָל תָּלְתָּדְתָּא), and NETS reads, “Now Adam knew his wife Heua” (פָּדָא אָדָא, וּלְכָל תָּלְתָּדְתָּא). Another pattern exhibited in the NRSV is the reversal of the sequence of Hebrew first person and second or third person pronouns—especially following the preposition יִתְּבַּע “between”—when the antecedent of the first person is human, but the retention of the Hebrew sequence when the first person is divine. Thus in 9.15, where (the LORD) God speaks, both the NRSV and NETS read, “I will remember my covenant that is between me and you,” following the order of the pronouns in both the MT and the LXX. In 13.8, however, Abram expresses his wish to Lot that there not be strife “between you and me” (NRSV, NETS), though in both the MT and the LXX the pronouns are reversed.

NETS follows the gender language policy adopted by the NRSV in reference to human beings. Departures from the NRSV in this regard take place when it is evident that the LXX translator has deliberately chosen to move in the direction of either greater specificity or inclusivity in comparison to what the Hebrew has. LXX Gen14.21 provides an example of the former progression, inasmuch as the king of Sodoma demands the return of “the men” (τους ἀνδρας) whom Abram has rescued from the invading kings, whereas in the MT he wants נח, which the NRSV renders as “the persons.” In 24.13, the LXX translator has ensured that the Hebrew phrase בַּפֶּה אִישׁי “men/people of the city” is not construed in a gender-specific fashion by rendering it as των οἰκονομων τοιν πολιν “those who live in the city.” The NRSV’s “townspeople” likewise preserves the gender-neutral sense inherent in the Hebrew term for “people,” though, unlike the LXX, without venturing beyond its normal semantic domain.

EDITORIAL DETAIL
With respect to punctuation, I have attempted to conform where possible to Wevers’ edition, though I have felt free to depart from it (without acknowledging it in the notes) when that seems warranted. I have sometimes consulted the edition of Alfred Rahlfs (1935) in this regard. The following comparison of punctuation patterns in Gen 2.4–7 provides an indication of the kinds of variations that are possible.

NRSV:
4 These are the generations of the heavens and the earth when they were created.
5 In the day that the LORD God made the earth and the heavens, when no plant of the field was yet in the earth and no herb of the field had yet sprung up—for the LORD God had not caused it to rain upon the earth, and there was no one to till the ground; 6 but a stream would rise from the earth, and water the whole face of the ground—7 then the LORD God formed man from the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and the man became a living being.

My translation of Wevers’ edition:
4 This is the book of the origin of heaven and earth, when it originated. On the day that God made the heaven and the earth, 5 and all verdure of the field before it came to be upon the earth and all herbage of the field before it sprang up; for God had not sent rain upon the earth, and there was not a human to till the earth, 6 yet a spring was rising from the earth and watering the whole face of the earth. 7 And God formed man dust from the earth and breathed into his face the breath of life, and the man became a living being.

4 This is the book of the origin of heaven and earth, when it originated, on the day that God made the heaven and the earth 5 and all verdure of the field before it came to be upon the earth and all herbage of the field before it sprang up, for God had not sent rain upon the earth, and there was not a human to till the earth, 6 yet a spring would rise from the earth and water the whole face of the earth. 7 And God formed man, dust from the earth, and breathed into his face a breath of life, and the man became a living being.
In the beginning God made the heaven and the earth. Yet the earth was invisible and unformed, and darkness was over the abyss, and a divine wind was being carried along over the water. And God said, “Let light come into being.” And light came into being. And God saw the light, that it was good. And God separated between the light and between the darkness. And God called the light Day and the darkness he called Night. And it came to be evening, and it came to be morning, a day one.

And God said, “Let a firmament come into being in the midst of the water, and let it be a separator between water and water.” And it became so. And God made the firmament, and God separated between the water that was under the firmament and between the water that was above the firmament. And God called the firmament Sky. And God saw that it was good. And it came to be evening, and it came to be morning, a second day.

And God said, “Let the water that is under the sky be gathered into one gathering, and let the dry land appear.” And it became so. And God called the dry land Earth, and the systems of the waters he called Seas. And God saw that it was good. Then God said, “Let the earth put forth pasture land vegetation, seed propagating according to kind and according to likeness, and fruit-bearing tree producing fruit of which the seed is in it according to kind, on the earth. And God saw that it was good. And it came to be evening, and it came to be morning, a third day.

And God said, “Let luminaries come into being in the firmament of the sky for illumination of the earth, to separate between the day and between the night, and let them be for signs and for seasons and for days and for years, and let them be for illumination in the firmament of the sky so as to give light upon the earth.” And it became so. And God made the two great luminaries, the great luminary for rulership of the day and the lesser luminary for rulership of the night, and the stars. And God set them in the firmament of the sky so as to give light upon the earth and to rule the day and the night and to separate between the light and between the darkness. And God saw that it was good. And it came to be evening, and it came to be morning, a fourth day.

And God said, “Let the waters bring forth creeping things among living creatures and birds flying on the earth against the firmament of the sky.” And it became so. And God made the great sea monsters and every creature among creeping animals, which the waters brought forth according to their kinds, and every winged bird according to kind. And God saw that they were good. And God blessed them, saying, “Increase, and multiply, and fill the waters in the seas, and let birds multiply on the earth.” And it came to be evening, and it came to be morning, a fifth day.

And God said, “Let the earth bring forth the living creature according to kind: quadrupeds and creeping things and wild animals of the earth according to kind.” And it became so. And God made the wild animals of the earth according to kind and the cattle according to kind and all the creeping things of the earth according to their kind. And God saw that they were good.

Then God said, “Let us make humankind according to our image and according to likeness, and let them rule the fish of the sea and the birds of the sky and the cattle and all the earth and all the creeping things that creep upon the earth.”
And God made humankind; according to divine image he made it; male and female he made them.

And God blessed them, saying, “Increase, and multiply, and fill the earth, and subdue it, and rule the fish of the sea and the birds of the sky and all the cattle and all the earth and all the creeping things that creep upon the earth.” And God said, “See, I have given to you all sowable herbage, propagating seed that is atop the whole earth, and every tree that has in itself fruit of sowable seed—you shall have it for food, and to all the wild animals of the earth and to all the birds of the sky and to every creeping thing that creeps on the earth that has in itself the animating force of life, even all green herbage for food.” And it became so.

And God saw all the things that he had made, and see, they were exceedingly good. And it came to be a sixth day.

And the Lord God commanded Adam, saying, “You shall eat of every tree that is in the orchard, but of the fruit of the tree of the orchard, you shall not eat; on the day that you eat of it, you shall die by death.”

And the woman said to the snake, “We shall eat of the tree, for we shall be like gods knowing good and evil.” And the snake said to the woman, “You shall not eat from any tree that is in the orchard’?” And the woman said to the snake, “We shall eat of the fruit of the tree of the orchard, but of the fruit of the tree that is in the middle of the orchard, God said, ‘You shall not eat of it nor shall you even touch it, lest you die.’ ” And the snake said to the woman, “You will not die by death, for God knew that on the day you eat of it, your eyes would be opened, and you would be like gods knowing good and evil.” And the woman saw that the tree was good for food and that it was pleasing for the eyes to look at and it was beautiful to contemplate, and when she had taken of its fruit she ate, and she also gave some to her husband with her, and they ate. And the eyes of the two were opened, and they knew that they were naked, and they sewed fig leaves together and made loincloths for themselves. And they heard the sound of the Lord God walking about in the orchard in the evening, and both Adam and his wife hid themselves from the presence of the Lord God in the midst of the timber of the orchard. And the Lord God called Adam and said to him, “Adam, where are you?” And he said to him, “I heard the sound of you walking about in the orchard, and I was afraid, because I am naked, and I hid myself.” And he said to him, “Who told you that you are naked, unless you have eaten from the tree of which I commanded you, of this one alone, not to eat from it?” And Adam said, “The woman, whom you gave to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I ate.” And God said to the woman, “What is this you have eaten?” And the woman said, “The snake deceived me, and I ate.”

And God said to the snake, “Because you have done this, you shall eat wormwood all the days of your life. And you shall go and you shall seek fruit, and you shall eat no food; you shall drink water, and you shall thirst all the days of your life. And I will put enmity between you and the woman, and between your seed and her seed; He shall strike his head, and you shall strike his heel.”

And God said to Adam, “Because you have done this, curse you; you shall toil and sweat your body all the days of your life; and you shall eat bread by the sweat of your face, until you return to the ground, from which you were taken, for dust you are; and to dust you shall return.”

And Adam named all the animals of the field and all the birds of the sky. And Adam said, “This one is my helper whom I shall call Woman.”
have done?” And the woman said, “The snake tricked me, and I ate.” 14 And the Lord God said to the snake, “Because you have done this, cursed are you from all the domestic animals and from all the wild animals of the earth; upon your chest and belly you shall go, and earth you shall eat all the days of your life.

15 And I will put enmity between you and between the woman and between your offspring and between her offspring; he will watch your head, and you will watch his heel.”

16 And to the woman he said, “I will increasingly increase your pains and your groaning; with pains you will bring forth children. And your recourse will be to your husband, and he will dominate you.”

17 Then to Adam he said, “Because you have listened to the voice of your wife and have eaten from the tree of which I commanded you, of this one alone, not to eat from it, cursed is the earth in your labors; with pains you will eat it all the days of your life;

18 thorns and thistles it shall cause to grow up for you, and you will eat the herbage of the field.

19 By the sweat of your face you will eat your bread until you return to the earth from which you were taken, for you are earth and to earth you will depart.”

20 And Adam called the name of his wife Life, because she is the mother of all the living. 21 And the Lord God made leather tunics for Adam and for his wife and clothed them. 22 Then God said, “See, Adam has become like one of us, knowing good and evil, and now perhaps he might reach out his hand and take of the tree of life and eat, and he will live forever.” 23 And the Lord God sent him forth from the orchard of delight to till the earth from which he was taken. 24 And he drove Adam out and caused him to dwell between the cherubim and the flaming sword that turns, to guard the way of the tree of life.

4 Now Adam knew his wife Heua, and after she had conceived she bore Kain and said, “I have acquired a man through God.” 2 And she proceeded to bear his brother Habel. And Habel became a herder of sheep, but Kain was tilling the earth. 3 And it came about after some days that Kain brought to the Lord an offering of the fruits of the earth, 4 and Habel, he also brought of the firstlings of his sheep and of their fat portions. And God looked upon Habel and upon his gifts, 5 but on Kain and on his offerings he was not intent. And it distressed Kain exceedingly, and he collapsed in countenance. 6 And the Lord God said to Kain, “Why have you become deeply grieved, and why has your countenance collapsed? 7 If you offer correctly but do not divide correctly, have you not sinned? Be still; his recourse is to you, and you will rule over him.”

8 And Kain said to his brother Habel, “Let us go through into the plain.” And it came about when they were in the plain, that then Kain rose up against his brother Habel and killed him. 9 And God said to Kain, “Where is your brother Habel?” And he said, “I do not know; surely I am not my brother’s keeper?” 10 And God said, “What have you done? The voice of your brother’s blood is crying out to me from the earth! 11 And now you are cursed from the earth, which has opened wide its mouth to receive your brother’s blood from your hand. 12 For you will till the earth, and it will not continue to yield its strength to you; you will be groaning and trembling on the earth.” 13 And Kain said to the Lord, “My guilt is too great for me to be forgiven! 14 If today you are driving me out from off the earth and I shall be hidden from your face, then I shall be groaning and trembling on the earth, and it will be that anyone who finds me will kill me.” 15 And the Lord God said to him, “Not so! Anyone who kills Kain will let loose seven acts of vengeance.” And the Lord God allocated a sign to Kain so that no one who found him would do away with him. 16 Then Kain went away from the presence of God and lived in the land of Naid over against Edem.

17 And Kain knew his wife, and after she had conceived she bore Henoch, and he was building a city and named the city after the name of his son Henoch. 18 Then to Henoch was born Gaidad, and the father of Mathousala, and Mathousala the father of Lamech. 19 And Lamech took for himself two wives; the name of the one was Ada, and the name of the second was Sella. 20 And Ada bore Iobel; he was the ancestor of cattle-raisers living in tents. 21 And his brother’s name was Ioubal; he was the one who introduced the harp and lyre. 22 As for Sella, she also bore Thobel, and he was a smith, a forger of bronze and iron, and the sister of Thobel was Noema.

23 Now Lamech said to his own wives: “Ada and Sella, hear my voice; you wives of Lamech, listen to my words, because I have killed a man for a wound to me, and a young man for a welt to me, because seven times vengeance has been exacted by Kain, but by Lamech seventy times seven.” 24 Now Adam knew his wife Heua, and after she had conceived she bore a son and named his
This is the book of the origin of human beings. On the day that God made Adam, he made him according to divine image; male and female he made them, and he blessed them. And he named their name "Adam" on the day that he made them.

3 Now Adam lived two hundred thirty years and became a father, according to his form and according to his image and named his name Seth. 4 And the days of Adam after he became the father of Seth amounted to seven hundred years, and he had sons and daughters. 5 And all the days of Adam, that he lived, amounted to nine hundred thirty years, and he died.

6 Now Seth lived two hundred five years and became the father of Enos. 7 And Seth lived after he became the father of Enos seven hundred seven years and had sons and daughters. 8 And all the days of Seth amounted to nine hundred twelve years, and he died.

9 And Enos lived one hundred ninety years and became the father of Kainan. 10 And Enos lived after he became the father of Kainan seven hundred fifteen years and had sons and daughters. 11 And all the days of Enos amounted to nine hundred forty-five years, and he died.

12 And Kainan lived one hundred seventy years and became the father of Maleleel. 13 And Kainan lived after he became the father of Maleleel seven hundred forty years and had sons and daughters. 14 And all the days of Kainan amounted to nine hundred ten years, and he died.

15 And Maleleel lived one hundred sixty-five years and became the father of Iared. 16 And Maleleel lived after he became the father of Iared seven hundred thirty years and had sons and daughters. 17 And all the days of Maleleel amounted to eight hundred ninety-five years, and he died.

18 And Iared lived one hundred sixty-two years and became the father of Henoch. 19 And Iared lived after he became the father of Henoch eight hundred years and had sons and daughters. 20 And all the days of Iared amounted to nine hundred sixty-two years, and he died.

21 And Henoch lived one hundred sixty-eight years and became the father of Mathousala. 22 Now Henoch was well pleasing to God after he became the father of Mathousala, for two hundred years, and had sons and daughters. 23 And all the days of Henoch amounted to three hundred sixty-five years. 24 And Henoch was well pleasing to God, and he was not found, because God transferred him.

25 And Mathousala lived one hundred sixty-seven years and became the father of Lamech. 26 And Mathousala lived after he became the father of Lamech eight hundred two years and had sons and daughters. 27 And all the days of Mathousala, which he lived, amounted to nine hundred sixty-nine years, and he died.

28 And Lamech lived one hundred eighty-eight years and became the father of a son 29 and named his name Noe, saying, "This one shall give us respite from our labors and from the pains of our hands and from the earth that the Lord God has cursed." 30 And Lamech lived after he became the father of Noe five hundred sixty-five years and had sons and daughters. 31 And all the days of Lamech amounted to seven hundred fifty-three years, and he died.

6 (5.32) And Noe was five hundred years of age, and Noe became the father of three sons: Sem, Cham, Japheth.

(6.1) And it came about when humans began to become numerous on the earth, that daughters also were born to them. 2 Now when the sons of God saw the daughters of humans, that they were fair, they took wives for themselves of all that they chose. 3 And the Lord God said, "My spirit shall not abide in these humans forever, because they are flesh, but their days shall be one hundred twenty years." 4 Now the giants were on the earth in those days and afterward. When the sons of God used to go in to the daughters of humans, then they produced offspring for themselves. Those were the giants that were of old, the renowned humans.

5 And when the Lord God saw that the wicked deeds of humans were multiplied on the earth and that all think attentively in their hearts on evil things all the days, 6 then God considered that he had made humankind on the earth, and he thought it over. 7 And God said, "I will wipe out from off the earth humankind which I have made, from human to domestic animal and from creeping things to birds of the sky, for I have become angry that I have made them." 8 Yet Noe found favor before the Lord God.

9 Now these are the generations of Noe. Noe was a righteous man, being perfect in his era; Noe was well pleasing to God. 10 And Noe had three sons: Sem, Cham, Japheth.

11 Now the earth was corrupt before God, and the earth was full of wrongdoing. 12 And the Lord God saw the earth, and it was ruined, for all flesh had ruined his way upon the earth. 13 And God said to Noe, "The time of all humankind has come before me, for the earth has become full of wrongdoing by reason of them, and see, I am going to ruin them and the earth. 14 Therefore make yourself an ark of squared lumber; you shall make the ark with nests and shall bituminize it within and without with bitumen. 15 And thus you shall make the ark: the length of the ark three hundred cubits and the width fifty cubits and its height thirty cubits. 16 You shall make the ark, bringing it together, and shall finish it to a cubit above, and the door you shall make in the side; you shall make it with ground floor, second story and third story chambers. 17 And for my part, look, I am going to bring the flood, water on the earth, to destroy under heaven all flesh in which is a spirit of life, and as many as there are on the earth shall perish. 18And I will establish my covenant with you, and you shall come into the ark, you and your sons and your wife and your sons' wives together with you. 19And of all the domestic animals and of all the creeping things and of all the wild animals and of all flesh, you shall bring some of them all two by two into the ark in order to sustain them together with yourself; they shall be male and female. 20Of all the winged birds according to kind and of all the domestic animals according to kind and of all the creeping things that creep upon the ground according to their kind, two by two of some of them all shall come in to you, to be sustained together with you, male and female. 21And you shall take for yourself some of all the provisions, which you will eat, and shall gather them to yourself, and they shall be for you and for them to eat." 22And Noe did all things that the Lord God commanded him; so he did.

7 And the Lord God said to Noe, "Go into the ark, you and all your household, for I have seen you as righteous before me in this generation. 2And bring in to you seven by seven some of the clean domestic animals, male and female, but two by two some of the domestic animals that are not clean, male and female, 3and seven by seven some of the clean birds of the sky, male and female, and two by two some of the birds that are not clean, male and female, to sustain offspring upon all the earth. 4For within seven more days I am going to bring rain on the earth for forty days and forty nights, and every thing that rises up, which I have made, I will wipe out from the face of the earth." 5And Noe did all that the Lord God had commanded him.

6 Now Noe was six hundred years of age, and the flood of water came on the earth. 7And Noe and his sons and his wife and his sons' wives went with him into the ark because of the water of the flood. 8And some of the birds and of the clean domestic animals and of the domestic animals that are not clean and of all the creeping things that are on the earth, 9two by two, male and female, went into the ark to Noe, as God had commanded him. 10And it came about after the seven days, that then the water of the flood came on the earth.

11 In the six hundredth year in Noe's life, the second month, on the twenty-seventh of the month, on this day all the fountains of the abyss burst forth, and the cataracts of heaven were opened, 12and the rain came on the earth for forty days and forty nights. 13On this day Noe, Sem, Cham, Japheth, Noe's sons, and Noe's wife and the three wives of his sons with him, entered into the ark. 14And all the wild animals according to kind and all the domestic animals according to kind and every creeping thing that moves on the earth according to kind and every bird according to kind entered into the ark to Noe, two by two of all flesh in which there is a spirit of life. 16And those that were coming in, male and female of all flesh, entered as God had commanded Noe. And the Lord God closed the ark apart from him.a

17 And the flood came for forty days and forty nights on the earth, and the water increased and bore up the ark, and it was raised up from the earth. 18And the water was prevailing and increasing greatly on the earth, and the ark was being carried along over the water. 19So the water was prevailing very greatly on the earth, and it covered all the high mountains that were under heaven; 20the water was raised up fifteen cubits above, and it covered all the high mountains. 21And all flesh that moves on the earth—of birds and of domestic animals and of wild animals—died, and every creeping thing that moves on the earth and every human being. 22And all things that have a breath of life, and everyone who was on the dry land, 23And he wiped out every thing that rises, which was on the face of the whole earth, from human being to domestic animal and creeping things and the birds of the sky, and they were wiped out from the earth. And only Noe was left, and those with him in the ark. 24And the water was raised up on the earth one hundred fifty days.

8 And God remembered Noe and all the wild animals and all the domestic animals and all the birds and all the creeping things that were with him in the ark, and God brought a wind upon the earth, and the water subsided, 2and the fountains of the abyss and the cataracts of heaven were covered over, and the rain from heaven was restrained. 3And the water, as it was proceeding from the earth, was giving way; after fifty and one hundred days the water was giving way and diminishing. 4And in the seventh month, on the twenty-seventh of the month, the ark settled on the mountains of Ararat. 5Now the water, as it was proceeding, was diminishing until the tenth month; then in the eleventh month, on the first of the month, the tops of the mountains appeared.

6 And it came about after forty days that Noe opened the window of the ark that he had made and sent out the raven to see if the water had subsided, and after it had gone out it did not return until the water was dried up from the earth. 8And he sent out the dove after it to see if the water had subsided from the face of the earth. 9And the dove, because it could not find a resting place for its feet, returned to him into the ark, for water was on the whole face of the whole earth, and extending his hand he took it and brought it into the ark to himself. 10And when he had waited yet another seven days, again he sent forth the dove from the ark, 11and the dove went back to him toward evening, and it had an olive leaf, a dry twig, in its mouth, and Noe knew that the water had subsided from the earth. 12And when he had waited yet another seven days, again he sent forth the dove, and it did not continue to turn back to him any more.

13 And it came about in the six hundred first year in the life of Noe, the first month, on the first of the month, that the water disappeared from the earth, and Noe uncovered the roof of the ark that he had made, and he saw that the water had disappeared from the face of the earth. Then in the second month, on the twenty-seventh of the month, the earth was dry. And the Lord God spoke to Noe, saying, “Go out of the ark, you and your wife and your sons and your sons’ wives with you, and bring out with yourself all the wild animals that are with you, and all flesh from birds to domestic animals and every creeping thing that moves on the earth, and increase, and multiply on the earth.” And Noe went out, and his wife and his sons and his sons’ wives with him, and all the wild animals and all the domestic animals and every bird and every creeping thing that moves on the earth went out of the ark according to their kind.

And Noe built an altar to God and took of all the clean domestic animals and of all the clean birds and offered whole burnt offerings on the altar. And the Lord God smelled an odor of fragrance, and the Lord God, when he had given it thought, said, “I will not proceed hereafter to curse the earth because of the deeds of humans, for the mind of humankind applies itself attentively to evil things from youth; so I will not proceed hereafter to smite all living flesh, as I have done. During all the days of the earth, seed and harvest, cold and heat, summer and spring shall not cease—during day and night.”

And God blessed Noe and his sons and said to them, “Increase, and multiply, and fill the earth, and subdue it. And the trembling and fear of you shall be on all the animals of the earth and on all the birds of the sky and on all the things that move on the earth and on all the fish of the sea; I have given them under authority to you. And every creeping thing that is alive you shall have for food; like the pasture land herbs, I have given you all things. Only you shall not eat meat with the blood of life. For truly, your blood of your lives I have given it to every animal of the earth, to nourish from it; so if any animal of the earth devours you, and you die, it shall give its life for your life; and if a beast of the earth devours you, and you die, it shall give its life for your life. As for the one who sheds a human’s blood, for truly, your blood of your lives I have given it to every animal of the earth, to nourish from it; so if any animal of the earth devours you, and you die, it shall give its life for your life; and if a beast of the earth devours you, and you die, it shall give its life for your life. But you, increase, and multiply, and fill the earth, and subdue it, and multiply on it.”

And God spoke to Noe and to his sons with him, saying, “As for me, see, I am instituting my covenant for you and your offspring after you, and for every creature that lives with you, from birds and from domestic animals, and for all the animals of the earth, from all those that came out of the ark. And I will establish my covenant with you, and no more shall all flesh die by the water of the flood, and no more shall there be a flood of water to destroy all the earth.” And the Lord God said to Noe, “This is the sign of the covenant, which I give, between me and you and between every living creature that is with you, for everlasting generations: I set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be for a covenant sign between me and the earth. And it shall be that when I gather clouds over the earth, my bow shall be seen in the cloud, and I will see it to remember the everlasting covenant between me and between every living creature among all flesh that is on the earth.” And God said to Noe, “This is the sign of the covenant that I have made between me and between all flesh that is on the earth.”

Now the sons of Noe who went out of the ark were Sem, Cham, Iapheth; Cham was the father of Chanaan. These three are the sons of Noe; from these they were scattered abroad over the whole earth.

And Noe was the first soil-tilling person, and he planted a vineyard. And he drank some of the wine and became drunk, and he was stripped naked in his house. And Cham, the father of Chanaan, saw the nakedness of his father, and after he had gone out he told his two brothers outside. And Sem and Iapheth, when they had taken the garment, laid it on their two backs and walked backward and covered the nakedness of their father, and their face was looking backward, and they did not see their father’s nakedness. Then Noe sobered up from the wine, and he knew what his younger son had done to him, and he said, “Cursed be Chanaan; a slave, a domestic, shall he be to his brothers.”

He also said, “Blessed be the Lord, the God of Sem, and Chanaan shall be his slave. May God make space for Iapheth, and let him live in the houses of Sem, and let Chanaan become their slave.”

Now after the flood Noe lived three hundred fifty years. And all the days of Noe amounted to nine hundred fifty years, and he died.

Now these are the generations of Noe’s sons, Sem, Cham, Iapheth, and sons were born to them after the flood.

The sons of Iapheth: Gamer and Magog and Madai and Ioyan and Elisa and Thobel and Mosoch and Thiras. And the sons of Gamer: Aschanaz and Riphath and Thorgama. And the sons of Ioyan: Elisa and Tharsis, Kittians, Rhodians. From these the islands of the nations were separated in their land, each according to language, in their tribes and in their nations.

And the sons of Cham: Chous and Mesraim, Phoud and Chanaan. And the sons of Chous: Saba and the sons of Regma: Saba and Dadan. 8 Now Chous became the father of Nebrod. He was the first on earth to be a giant. 9 He was a giant hunter before the Lord God; therefore they will say, “Like Nebrod a giant hunter before the Lord.” 10 And the beginning of his kingdom came to be Babylon, Orec and Archad and Chalanne in the land of Sennaar. 11 From that land he went forth to Assour and built Nineue and Rooboth-city and Kalach, 12 and Dasem between Nineue and between Kalach; this is the great city. 13 And Mesraim became the father of the Loudieim and the Enemetieim and the Labieim and the Nephthalieim 14 and the Patrosonieim and the Chaslonieim, there where Phylisteim came from, and the Kaphthorieim.

15 Now Chanaan became the father of Sidon as his firstborn and the Chettite 16 and the lebouite and the Amorrite and the Gergeseit 17 and the Heuite and the Aroukite and the Hasen-nite 18 and the Aradian and the Samarite and Hamathi. And afterward the tribes of the Chananites were scattered abroad. 19 And the boundaries of the Chananites extended from Sidon until one came to Gerara and Gaza, until one came as far as Sodoma and Gomer, Adama and Seboim, as far as Lasa. 20 These are the sons of Cham, in their tribes, according to their languages, in their countries and in their nations.

21 And to Sem, also to him as father of all the sons of Eber, brother of laphet the Greater, there was procreation. 22 The sons of Sem: Ailam and Assour and Arphaxad and Loud and Aram and Kainan. 23 And the sons of Aram: Os and Houl and Gather and Mosoch. 24 And Arphaxad became the father of Kainan, and Kainan became the father of Sala; then Sala became the father of Eber. 25 And to Eber were born two sons: the name of the one was Phalek, for in his days the earth was divided, and his brother’s name was lektan. 26 Now lektan became the father of Elmodad and Saleph and Hasarmoth and Iarach 27 and Hodorra and Aizel and Dekla 28 and Abimeel and Sabeu 29 and Ouphir and Heuila and Iobab. All these were the sons of lektan. 30 And their abode extended from Masse until one came to Sophera, a mountain of the east. 31 These are the sons of Sem, in their tribes, according to their languages, in their countries and in their nations.

32 These are the tribes of Noe’s sons, according to their generations, according to their nations; from these the islands of the nations were scattered abroad on the earth after the flood.

11 And the whole earth was one lip, and there was one speech for all. 2 And it came about as they moved from the east that they found a plain in the land of Sennaar and settled there. 3 And one person said to the next, “Come, let us make bricks and bake them with fire.” And the brick became stone for them, and the clay for them was bitumen. 4 And they said, “Come, let us build ourselves a city and a tower whose top shall be as far as heaven, and let us make a name for ourselves before we are scattered abroad upon the face of the whole earth.” 5 And the Lord came down to see the city and the tower, which the sons of men had built. 6 And the Lord said, “Look, one race and one lip of all, and this they have begun to do, and nothing that they undertake to do will now be wanting from them. 7 Come, and let us go down, and confuse their tongue there so that they will not hear, each one the speech of the next.” 8 And the Lord scattered them abroad from there over the face of all the earth, and they left off building the city and the tower. 9 Therefore its name was called Confusion, because there the Lord confused the lips of all the earth, and from there the Lord God scattered them abroad over the face of all the earth.

10 And these are the generations of Sem: Sem was a son of one hundred years when he became the father of Arphaxad, in the second year after the flood. 11 And Sem lived after he became the father of Arphaxad five hundred years and had sons and daughters and died.

12 And Arphaxad lived one hundred thirty-five years and became the father of Kainan. 13 And Arphaxad lived after he became the father of Kainan four hundred thirty years and had sons and daughters and died.

And Kainan lived one hundred thirty years and became the father of Sala. And Kainan lived after he became the father of Sala three hundred thirty years and had sons and daughters and died.

14 And Sala lived one hundred thirty years and became the father of Eber. 15 And Sala lived after he became the father of Eber three hundred thirty years and had sons and daughters and died.

16 And Eber lived one hundred thirty-four years and became the father of Phalek. 17 And Eber lived after he became the father of Phalek three hundred seventy years and had sons and daughters and died.

18 And Phalek lived one hundred thirty years and became the father of Ragau. 19 And Phalek lived after he became the father of Ragau two hundred nine years and had sons and daughters and died.

20 And Ragau lived one hundred thirty-two years and became the father of Serouch. 21 And Ragau lived after he became the father of Serouch two hundred seven years and had sons and daughters and died.

22 And Serouch lived one hundred thirty years and became the father of Nachor. 23 And Serouch lived after he became the father of Nachor two hundred nine years and had sons and daughters and died.

24 And Nachor lived seventy-nine years and became the father of Thara. 25 And Nachor lived after he became the father of Thara one hundred twenty-nine years and had sons and daughters and died.

26 And Thara lived seventy years and became the father of Abram and Nachor and Harran.

27 These then are the generations of Thara: Thara was the father of Abram and Nachor and Harran, and Harran was the father of Lot. 28 And Harran died before his father Thara in the land in which he was born, in the country of the Chal-deans. 29 And Abram and Nachor took wives for themselves; Abram’s wife’s name was Sara, and Nachor’s wife’s name was Melcha, the daughter of Harran, the father of Melcha and the father of lescha. 30 And Sara was barren, and she was not bearing children.

31 And Thara took his son Abram and his son’s son, Lot son of Harran, and his daughter-in-law Sara, his son Abram’s wife, and he brought them out of the country of the Chaldeans to go into the land of Chanaan, and he came as far as Charran and settled there. 32 And the days of Thara in Charran amounted to two hundred five years, and Thara died in Charran.

12 And the Lord said to Abram, “Go forth from your country and from your kindred and from your father’s house to the land that I will show you. 2And I will make you into a great nation, and I will bless you and make your name great, and you shall be one blessed. 3And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse, and in you all the tribes of the earth shall be blessed.”

4 And Abram went, as the Lord had told him to, and Lot left with him. Now Abram was seventy-five years of age when he departed from Charran. 5And Abram took his wife Sara and his brother’s son Lot and all their possessions that they had acquired and every person whom they had acquired in Charran, and they departed to go to the land of Chanaan, and they came to the land of Chanaan. 6And Abram passed through the land in its length as far as the place Sychem, at the high oak. Now at that time the Chananites used to inhabit the land. 7And the Lord appeared to Abram and said to him, “To your offspring I will give this land.” And Abram built there an altar to the Lord who had appeared to him. 8And from there he withdrew to the mountain to the east of Baithel and set up his tent there—Baithel towards the sea and Haggai to the east, and there he built an altar to the Lord and called on the name of the Lord. 9And Abram set out, and as he traveled he encamped in the wilderness.

10 And a famine occurred upon the land, and Abram went down to Egypt to reside there as an alien, for the famine prevailed upon the land. 11And it came about when Abram drew near to enter into Egypt that Abram said to his wife Sara, “I do know that you are a woman beautiful in countenance; 12it will be, therefore, that should the Egyptians see you, they will say, ‘This is his wife,’ and they will kill me, but you they will keep for themselves. 13Say, therefore, ‘I am his sister,’ so that it may go well with me because of you, and my soul will live on your account.” 14And it came about when Abram entered into Egypt—as the Egyptians saw the woman, that she was very beautiful—that then the rulers of Pharao saw her and praised her to Pharao and brought her into Pharao’s house. 16And for her sake they dealt well with Abram, and he had sheep and calves and donkeys, male and female slaves, mules and camels.

17 And God tried Pharao and his house with great and grievous trials because of Sara, Abram’s wife. 18Now when Pharao had called Abram he said, “What is this you have done to me, that you did not tell me that she is your wife? 19Why did you say, ‘She is my sister’? And I took her to myself for a wife. And now here is your wife before you; take her; hurry off.” 20And Pharao commanded men concerning Abram to join in escorting him and his wife and all that he had and Lot with him.

13 Then Abram went up from Egypt, he and his wife and all that was his and Lot with him, into the wilderness.

2 Now Abram was very rich in livestock and in silver and in gold. 3And he journeyed whence he had come into the wilderness as far as Baithel, to the place where formerly his tent had been, between Baithel and between Haggai, 4to the place of the altar that he had made there at first, and there Abram invoked the name of the Lord. 5And Lot, who was journeying together with Abram, had sheep and cattle and tents. 6And the land did not have room for them to live together, for their possessions were many, and they could not live together. 7And strife occurred between the herders of Abram’s livestock and between the herders of Lot’s livestock. Now at that time the Chananites and the Pherezites used to inhabit the land.

8 So then Abram said to Lot, “Let there not be strife between you and me and between your herders and my herders, for we are kindred. 9See, is not the whole land before you? Separate yourself from me. If you go to the left, I will go to the right, but if you go to the right, I will go to the left.” 10And Lot, lifting up his eyes, saw all the region round about the Jordan, that all was watered—before God had overthrown Sodoma and Gomorra—like the orchard of God and like the land of Egypt until one came to Zogora. 11And Lot chose for himself all the region round about the Jordan, and Lot set out from the east, and they separated, each one from his kinsman. 12So then Abram settled in the land of Chanaan, but Lot settled in a city of the regions round about and tented in Sodoma.

13Now the people who were in Sodoma were wicked and exceedingly sinful before God.

14 And God said to Abram after Lot had separated from him, “Look up with your eyes; look from the place where you are now, toward the north and southwest and east and sea. 15For all the land that you see, I will give it to you and to your offspring forever. 16And I will make your offspring like the sand of the earth; if anyone can count the sand of the earth, your offspring also shall be counted. 17Rise up, pass through the land, both in the length of it and in the breadth, for I will give it to you.” 18And moving his tent, Abram came and settled by the oak of Mambre, which was in Chebron, and there he built an altar to the Lord.
Now it came about in the kingship of Amraphel king of Sennaar, that Arioch king of Ellasar and Chodollogomor king of Ailam and Thargal king of nations made war with Bara king of Sodoma and with Barsa king of Gomorra and Sennaar king of Adama and Symobor king of Seboim and the king of Bala (this is Segor). All these made an agreement at the salt ravine (this is the sea of salt). Twelve years they were subject to Chodollogomor, but in the thirteenth year they rebelled. Then in the fourteenth year Chodollogomor and the kings who were with him came and cut down the giants who were in Astraho Karnain and strong nations together with them and the Ommites who were in the mountains of Seir, as far as the terebinth of Pharan which is in the wilderness. And after they had turned back they came to the spring of judgment (this is Kades) and cut down all the rulers of Amalek and the Amorrites who live in Hasasan Thamar. Then the king of Sodoma and the king of Gomorra and the king of Adama and the king of Seboim and the king of Bala (this is Segor) went out, and they drew up in battle array with them for war in the salt valley, against Chodollogomor king of Ailam and Thargal king of nations and Amarpal king of Sennaar and Arioch king of Ellasar, four kings against five. Now the salt valley was pits, pits of bitumen, and the king of Sodoma and the king of Gomorra fled and fell in there, but those who were left fled to the hill country. Then they took all the cavalry of Sodoma and Gomorra and all their provisions and went away. And they also took Lot, the son of Abram's brother, and his chattels and departed, for he was living in Sodoma. And one of those who had been rescued, when he arrived, told Abram the emigrant. Now he, Amoris, used to live near the oak of Mambre, the brother of Eschol and brother of Aunan, who were confederates of Abram. And when Abram heard that his kinsman Lot had been taken captive, he counted his own homebreds, three hundred and eighteen, and chased after them as far as Dan. And he fell upon them during the night, he and his servants, and smote them and chased them away to Choba, which is on the left of Damascus. Then he brought back all the cavalry of Sodoma, and he brought back his kinsman Lot and his possessions and the women and the people. Now after he had returned from the slaughter of Chodollogomor and the kings who were with him, the king of Sodoma went out to meet him at the valley of Saue (this was the plain of a king). And Melchisedek king of Salem brought out bread loaves and wine; now he was priest of God Most High. And he blessed Abram and said, “Blessed be Abram to God Most High, who created the heaven and the earth, and blessed be God Most High, who has delivered up your enemies as subjects to you!” And he gave him one tenth of everything. Then the king of Sodoma said to Abram, “Give me the men, but take the cavalry for yourself.” But Abram said to the king of Sodoma, “I will extend my hand to God Most High, who created the heaven and the earth; if I shall take from a small cord to a sandal-thong of all the things that are yours—lest you say, ‘I have made Abram rich,’ except the things that the young men have eaten and the share of the men who went along with me—Eschol, Aunan, Mambre—these shall take a share.”

Now after these matters the Lord’s word came to Abram in a vision, saying, “Do not be afraid, Abram; I am shielding you; your reward shall be very great.” But Abram was saying, “O Master, what will you give me? And I, I am going away childless; as for the son of Masek, my female homebred, he is Damascus Eliezer.” And Abram said, “Since you have given me no offspring, my male homebred will be my heir.” And immediately a divine voice came to him, saying, “This one shall not be your heir, but one who shall come out of you, he shall be your heir.” Then he brought him outside and said to him, “Look up to heaven, and number the stars, if you will be able to count them.” And he said, “So shall your offspring be.” And Abram believed God, and it was reckoned to him as righteousness.

Then he said to him, “I am the God who brought you out of the country of the Chaldeans so as to give you this land to possess.” But he said, “O Master, Lord, how shall I know that I shall possess it?” And he said to him, “Take for me a heifer three years old and a female goat three years old and a ram three years old and a turtledove and a dove.” And he took for him all these and divided them in the middle and placed them facing one another, but he did not divide the birds. And birds came down on the carcasses, their cut halves, and Abram sat together with them. Then about sunset a trance fell upon Abram, and look, a great dark fear was falling upon him. And it was said to Abram, “Knowledgeably you shall know that your offspring shall be alien in a land not its own, and they shall enslave them and maltreat them and humble them for four hundred years. But I will judge the nation that they are subject to; then afterward they shall come out here with much baggage. Now as for yourself, you shall depart to your fathers in peace, buried in a good old age. Then in the fourth generation they shall be brought back here, for the sins of the Amorrites are not yet, to the present, filled up.”

Now after the sun began to appear in the west, a flame appeared, and look, a smoking oven and torches of fire that passed through between these cut halves. On that day the Lord made a covenant with Abram, saying, “To your offspring I will give this land from the river of Egypt to the great river, the river Euphrates: the Kenites and the Kenezites and the Redmonites and the Chettites and the Pherezites and the Riphaim; and... the Amorrites and the Chananites and the Heuites and the Gergesites and the lebousites.”

16 Now Sara, Abram’s wife, was not giving birth for him. She, however, had an Egyptian slave-girl whose name was Hagar. 2And Sara said to Abram, “See, the Lord has shut me off from giving birth; so go in to my slave-girl in order that you may beget children by her.” And Abram listened to the voice of Sara. 3And after ten years of Abram’s living in the land of Chanaan, Sara, Abram’s wife, took Hagar the Egyptian, her own slave-girl, and gave her to her husband Abram as a wife for him. 4And he went in to Hagar, and she conceived. And she saw that she was pregnant, and her mistress was dishonored before her. 5Then Sara said to Abram, “I am being wronged due to you! I have given my slave-girl into your bosom, but when she saw that she was pregnant, I was dishonored before her. May God judge between you and me!” 6But Abram said to Sara, “See, your slave-girl is in your hands; treat her as it may please you.” And Sara maltreated her, and she ran from her presence.

7 But the Lord God’s angel found her by the spring of water in the wilderness, by the spring on the way to Sour. 8And the angel of the Lord said to her, “Hagar, slave-girl of Sara, where are you coming from, and where are you going?” And she said, “I am running from the presence of my mistress Sara.” 9But the angel of the Lord said to her, “Return to your mistress, and humble yourself under her hands.” 10The angel of the Lord also said to her, “I will multitudinously multiply your offspring, and it will not be counted for multitude.” 11And the angel of the Lord said to her, “See, you are pregnant and shall bear a son and shall call his name Ismael. For the Lord has given heed to your humiliation.

12 He shall be a rustic man; his hands shall be against all, and the hands of all against him, and he shall live facing all his kinfolk.” 13And Hagar called the name of the Lord who was speaking to her, “You-are-the-God-who-looks-upon-me,” because she said, “For truly I saw him face to face when he appeared to me.” 14Therefore she called the well, “Well-of-the-one-whom-I-saw-face-to-face”; see, it is between Kades and between Barad.

15 And Hagar bore Abram a son, and Abram called the name of his son, whom Hagar bore him, Ismael. 16And Abram was eighty-six years of age when Hagar bore Abram Ismael.

17 Now Abram came to be ninety-nine years of age, and the Lord appeared to Abram and said to him, “I am your God; be well pleasing before me, and become blameless, and I will set my covenant between me and between you and will make you very numerous.” 3And Abram fell face down, and God spoke to him, saying, 4And as for me, see, my covenant is with you, and you shall be an ancestor of a multitude of nations. 5And no longer shall your name be called Abram, but your name shall be Abraam, for I have made you an ancestor of many nations. 6And I will increase you very, very much, and I will make you into nations, and kings shall come from you. 7And I will establish my covenant between me and between you and between your offspring after you throughout their generations for an everlasting covenant, to be your god and your offspring’s after you. 8And I will give to you and to your offspring after you the land that you inhabit as a resident alien, all the land of Chanaan, for a perpetual holding, and I will be a god to them.”

9 And God said to Abram, “Now as for you, you shall keep my covenant, you and your offspring after you throughout their generations. 10And this is the covenant, which you shall keep, between me and you and between your offspring after you throughout their generations: Every male of yours shall be circumcised, 11and you shall be circumcised in the flesh of your foreskins, and it shall exist as a covenant sign between me and you. 12And a youngster of eight days shall be circumcised among you—every male—throughout your generations, the homebreds of your household and the one bought with money from any son of a foreigner, who is not of your offspring. 13The homebred of your household and the one bought with money shall be circumcised with circumcision, and my covenant shall be on your flesh for an everlasting covenant. 14And as for an uncircumcised male who shall not be circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin on the eighth day, that soul shall be destroyed from his kin, for he has scattered my covenant.”

15 And God said to Abraam, “As for Sara your wife, her name shall not be called Sara, but Sarra shall be her name. 16And I will bless her, and I will give you a child by her. And I will bless her, and she shall become nations, and kings of nations shall be from her.” 17And Abraam fell face down and laughed and spoke in his mind, saying, “Shall a son be born to a hundred-year-old, and shall Sarra who is ninety years of age give birth?” 18And Abraam said to God, “As for Ismael, let him live before you!” 19But God said to Abraam, “Indeed; see, your wife Sarra shall bear you a son, and you shall call his name Isaak, and I will establish my covenant with him as an everlasting covenant and for his offspring after him. 20Now concerning Ismael, see, I heard you; see, I have blessed him and will make him increase and will make him very numerous; he shall be the father of twelve nations, and I will appoint him as a great nation. 21But my covenant I will establish with Isaak, whom Sarra shall bear to you at this season in another year.” 22And he finished talking to him, and God went up from Abraam.

house, and he circumcised their foreskins at the opportune time of that day, as God had said to him. 24Now Abraam was ninety-nine years of age when he circumcised the flesh of his foreskin. 25And his son Ismael was thirteen years of age when he was circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin. 26At the opportune time of that day Abraam and his son Ismael were circumcised, 27and as for all the men of his house and the homebreds and the ones bought with money from alien nations, he circumcised them.

18 Now God appeared to him near the oak of Mamre, while he was sitting at the door of his tent at midday. 2And looking up with his eyes he saw, and see, three men stood over him. And when he saw them, he ran forward from his tent door to meet them and did obeisance upon the ground 3and said, “Lord, if perchance I have found favor before you, do not pass by your servant. 4Do let water be taken, and let them wash your feet, and you cool off under the tree. 5And I shall take bread, and you will eat, and after that you will pass by on your way—inasmuch as you have turned aside to your servant.” And they said, “So do, as you have said.” 6And Abraam hurried over to the tent to Sarra and said to her, “Hurry, and mix three measures of fine flour, and make loaves baked in ashes.” 7And Abraam ran to the cows and took a little calf, tender and good, and gave it to the servant, and he hastened to prepare it. 8Then he took butter and milk and the little calf that he had prepared and set it before them, and they ate, and he stood by them under the tree.

9 And he said to him, “Where is your wife Sarra?” And he said in reply, “There, in the tent.” 10And he said, “I will come to you, when I return, during this season next year, and Sarra your wife shall have a son.” And Sarra, who was behind him, listened at the tent door. 11Now Abraam and Sarra were old, advanced in days, and menstruation had ceased to happen to Sarra. 12And Sarra laughed within herself, saying, “It has not yet happened to me up to the present, and my lord is rather old.” 13And the Lord said to Abraam, “Why is it that Sarra laughed within herself, saying, ‘Shall I then indeed give birth? But I have grown old.’ 14Can it be that a matter is impossible with God? In this season I will come back to you next year, and Sarra shall have a son.” 15But Sarra denied, saying, “I did not laugh,” for she was afraid. And he said, “No, but you did laugh.”

16 And when the men had set out from there, they looked down upon the face of Sodoma and Gomorra, and Abraam was going along with them as he joined in escorting them. 17And the Lord said, “Surely I shall not hide from my servant Abraam what I am about to do? 18As for Abraam, he shall come to be a great and populous nation, and all the nations of the earth shall be blessed in him. 19For I knew that he will instruct his sons and his household after him, and they will keep the ways of the Lord by doing righteousness and justice so that the Lord may bring upon Abraam all the things that he has talked about to him.”

20Then the Lord said, “The outcry concerning Sodoma and Gomorra has been increased, and their sins are very great! 21So when I go down I shall see whether they are perpetrating according to the outcry concerning them that is coming to me, but if not—that I may know.”

22 And after the men had turned away from there, they went to Sodoma, but Abraam was still standing before the Lord. 23Then when Abraam had come near, he said, “Surely you will not destroy the righteous with the ungodly, and the righteous will be as the ungodly? 24If there should be fifty righteous in the city, will you destroy them? Will you not let the whole place go free on account of the fifty righteous, if they should be in it? 25By no means will you do anything like this thing, to slay the righteous with the ungodly, and the righteous will be like the ungodly! By no means! Shall not you, the one who judges all the earth, do what is just?” 26Then the Lord said, “If I find in Sodoma fifty righteous in the city, I will forgive the whole place for their sake.” 27And Abraam said in reply, “Now I have begun to speak to the Lord, though I am earth and ashes. 28But if the fifty righteous should be diminished by five, will you destroy the whole city on account of the five? And he said, “I will not destroy it, if I find forty-five there.” 29And he continued still to speak to him and said, “But if forty should be found there?” And he said, “On account of the forty I will not destroy it.” 30And he said, “Pardon, Lord, if I should speak. But if thirty should be found there?” And he said, “I will not destroy it, if I find thirty there.” 31And he said, “Since I am compelled to speak to the Lord—and if twenty should be found there?” And he said, “On account of the twenty I will not destroy it.” 32And he said, “Pardon, Lord, if I should speak once more. But if ten should be found there?” And he said, “On account of the ten I will not destroy it.” 33Then the Lord went away, when he had left off speaking to Abraam, and Abraam returned to his place.

19 Now the two angels came to Sodoma at evening, and Lot was sitting beside the gate of Sodoma. And when Lot saw them he rose to meet them and did obeisance with his face upon the ground 2and said, “Here, lords, turn aside to your servant’s house, and find lodging, and wash your feet, and when you have risen early you will depart on your way.” They, however, said, “No, but we will find lodging in the street.” 3And he kept constraining them, and they turned aside to him and entered into his dwelling. And he made them a feast and baked them unleavened loaves, and they ate 4before they lay down. 4And the men of the city, the Sodomites, from young man to elder, all the people together, encircled the dwelling, 5and they were summoning Lot and were saying to him, “Where are the men who came in to you tonight? Bring them out to us in order that we may have relations with them.” 6And Lot went out to the doorway to them, but he shut the door after him. 7And he said to them, “By no means, brothers, do not act wickedly. 8Now I have two daughters who have not known a man. I shall bring them out to you, and use them as it may please you; only do not do anything unjust to these men, inasmuch as they have come in under the shelter of my beams.” 9But they said, “Stand away from here! As one, you came to reside as an alien. Surely not also to pass judgment? So now we will maltreat you rather than them.” And they were pressing the man Lot very hard and came near to smash the door. 10But the men, extending their hands, drew Lot into the house to themselves and shut the door of the house. 11And they struck with blindness the men who were at the door of the house, from small to great, and they became exhausted searching for the door.

12 Then the men said to Lot, “Have you anyone here, sons-in-law or sons or daughters? Or if you have anyone else in the city, bring that one out of this place. 13For we are about to destroy this place, because the outcry concerning them has been raised before the Lord, and the Lord has sent us to annihilate it.” 14Then Lot went out and spoke to his sons-in-law who had married his daughters and said, “Rise, and get out of this place, for the Lord is about to annihilate the city.” But he seemed before his sons-in-law to be jesting.

15 Now when dawn was breaking, the angels were urging Lot, saying, “Rise, take your wife and the two daughters whom you have, and get out, lest you also be destroyed together with the lawlessness of the city.” 16And they were confounded, and the angels seized his hand and his wife’s hand and his two daughters’ hands, as the Lord spared him. 17And it came about when they had brought them outside, that then they said, “In saving, save your own soul; do not look around backwards or stop in the whole region round about; get safely to the mountain, that you not be included.” 18But Lot said to them, “I pray, Lord, 19since your servant has found mercy before you and you have magnified your righteousness—that which you bring about with regard to me—to quicken my soul, but I shall not be able to proceed safely to the mountain, for fear the disasters overtake me and I die; 20look, this city, which is small, is near enough for me to flee for refuge there; I shall escape there. Is it not small? And my soul will live!” 21And he said to him, “Look, I have indulged your person also in reference to this matter, not to overthrow the city concerning which you have spoken. 22So hurry to escape there, for I shall not be able to do a thing until you enter there.” Therefore he called the name of the city Segor. 23The sun came out on the earth, and Lot entered into Segor, 24and the Lord rained on Sodoma and Gomorra sulfur and fire from the Lord out of heaven, 25and he overthrew these cities and all the neighboring region and all the inhabitants in the cities and all the things that grow up out of the earth. 26And his wife gazed backwards, and she became a stele of salt.

27 And Abraam started early in the morning for the place where he had stood before the Lord, 28and he gazed upon the face of Sodoma and Gomorra and upon the face of the land of the region round about and saw, and see, the flame of the land was going up like the vapor of a furnace.

29 And it came about when God annihilated all the cities of the neighboring region that God remembered Abraam and sent Lot out of the midst of the overthrow when the Lord overthrew the cities which Lot used to dwell in.

30 Now Lot went up out of Segor and settled in the mountain, and his two daughters with him, for he was afraid to dwell in Segor. And he lived in the cave, he and his two daughters with him. 31Now the elder said to the younger, “Our father is elderly, and there is no one on the earth who will come in to us, as is fitting in all the world. 32Come, and let us give our father wine to drink, and let us lie with him and raise up offspring from our father.” 33And they gave their father wine to drink on that night, and the elder, when she had gone in, lay with her father that night, and he did not know when she lay down and got up. 34And it came about on the next day that then the elder said to the younger, “Look, I lay yesterday with our father; let us give him wine to drink this night also, and when you have gone in, lie with him, and let us raise up offspring from our father.” 35And they gave their father wine to drink on that night also, and the younger, when she had gone in, lay with her father, and he did not know when she lay down and got up. 36And the two daughters of Lot became pregnant by their father. 37And the elder bore a son and called his name Moab: “From my father”; he is the ancestor of the Moabites to the present day. 38And the younger bore a son too and called his name Amman: “Son of my race”; he is the ancestor of the Ammanites to the present day.

20 And from there Abraam moved to the land toward the southwest and lived between Kades and between Sour and resided in Gerara as an alien. 2And Abraam said of his wife Sarra, “She is my sister,” for he was afraid to say, “She is my wife,” lest perhaps the men of the city kill him on her account. Then Abimelech king of Gerara sent and took Sarra. 3And God came in to Abimelech in his sleep during the night and said, “Look, you are about to die by reason of the woman whom you have taken, whereas she is married to a man.” 4Now Abimelech had not touched her, and he said, “Lord, will you destroy an unwitting and righteous nation? 5Did not he himself say to me, ‘She is my sister’? And she herself said to me, ‘He is my brother.’ I did this with a pure heart and righteousness of hands.” 6Then God said to him during his sleep, “I too knew that you did this with a pure heart, and I was the one who spared you so that you did not sin in regard to me. Therefore I did not allow you to touch her. 7And now return the woman to the man, for he is a prophet, and he will pray for you, and you will live. If, however, you do

8 And Abimelech rose early in the morning and called all his servants and spoke of all these matters in their hearing; then all the men were very much afraid. 9 And Abimelech called Abraam and said to him, "What is this you have done to us? Surely we have not committed some sin in regard to you, that you have brought great sin on me and on my kingdom? You have done a deed to me that no one shall do." 10 And Abimelech said to Abraam, "What did you observe that you did this?"

11 And Abraam said, "Because I said, It appears very hard in the sight of Abraam on account of his son who was born to him, whom Sarra bore to you for the honor of your person and to all his brothers. 12 For indeed, she is truly my sister by my father, but not by my mother, and she became a wife to me. 13 Now it came about when God brought me forth from my father's house, that then I said to her, 'This righteousness you shall do for me: in every place where we enter, say about me, He is my brother.' " 14 Then Abimelech took a thousand didrachmas, sheep and calves and male and female slaves and gave them to Abraam and restored his wife Sarra to him. 15 And Abimelech said to Abraam, "Look, my land is before you; settle where it may please you."

16 And to Sarra he said, "Look, I have given your brother a thousand didrachmas; these shall be to you for the honor of your person and to all those with you, and tell the whole truth." 17 Then Abraam prayed to God, and God healed Abimelech and his wife and his female slaves, and they gave birth. 18 For the Lord had, in shutting off, shut off from the outside every womb in the house of Abimelech because of Sarra, Abraam's wife.

21 And the Lord visited Sarra as he had said, and the Lord did for Sarra as he had spoken, and Sarra bore him a son in his old age at the appointed time, as the Lord had spoken to him. 3 And Abraam called the name of his son who was born to him, whom Sarra bore him, Isaak. 4 And Abraam circumcised Isaak on the eighth day, as God had commanded him. 5 Now Abraam was a hundred years of age when his son Isaak was born to him. 6 And Sarra said, "The Lord has made laughter for me, for anyone who hears will congratulate me." 7 And she said, "Who will report to Abraam that Sarra is nursing a child? For I have borne a son in my old age."

8 And the child grew and was weaned, and Abraam made a great banquet on the day his son Isaak was weaned. 9 But when Sarra saw the son of Hagar the Egyptian, who had been born to Abraam, playing with her son Isaak, 10 then she said to Abraam, "Cast out this slave-girl and her son; for the son of this slave-girl shall not inherit with my son Isaak."

11 Now the matter seemed very hard in the sight of Abraam on account of his son. 12 But God said to Abraam, "Do not let the matter be hard in your sight on account of the child and on account of the slave-girl; whatever Sarra says to you, obey her voice, for in Isaak offspring shall be named for you. 13 And as for the son of the slave-girl, I will make him also into a great nation, because he is your offspring." 14 Then Abraam rose in the morning and took bread loaves and a skin of water and gave them to Hagar and put them on her shoulder, along with the child and sent her away. And when she departed she began wandering about the wilderness over against the well of the oath.

15 Then the water from the skin gave out, and she cast the child under a silver fir. 16 And after departing she sat down opposite him a good way off, about a bowshot, for she said, "I will not look upon the death of my child." And she was seated opposite him, and the child cried out and wept.

17 And God listened to the voice of the child from the place where he was, and God's angel called Hagar from heaven and said to her, "What is it, Hagar? Do not be afraid, for God has given ear to the voice of your child from the place where he is. 18 Rise, take the child, and hold it fast with your hand, for I will make him into a great nation." 19 And God opened her eyes, and she saw a well of living water. And she went and filled the skin with water and gave the child a drink.

20 And God was with the child, and he grew up. And he dwelt in the wilderness and became an archer. 21 And he dwelt in the wilderness of Pharan, and his mother got a wife for him from the land of Egypt.

22 And it came about at that time that then Abimelech, with Ochozath his groomsmen and Phichol the commander-in-chief of his army, spoke to Abraam, saying, "God is with you in everything that you do; 23 now then swear to me by God that you will not injure me nor my offspring nor my name, but according to the righteousness with which I have dealt with you, you will deal with me and the land that you have resided in as an alien." 24 And Abraam said, "I will swear."

25 And Abraam rebuked Abimelech on account of the wells of water that Abimelech's servants had taken away. 26 And Abimelech said to him, "I did not know who did this deed, neither did you tell me, nor did I hear, except today."

27 And Abraam took sheep and calves and gave them to Abimelech, and both made a covenant. 28 And Abraam made seven ewe lambs of the sheep stand alone. 29 And Abimelech said to Abraam, "Why are there the seven ewe lambs of these sheep that you have made stand alone?"

30 And Abraam said, "Because these seven ewe lambs you shall receive from me in order that they may become a witness for me that I am the one who dug this well." Therefore he named the name of that place Well-of-adjuration, because there both swore an oath. 31 And they made a covenant at the well of the adjuration. Then Abimelech, with Ochozath his groomsmen and Phichol the commander-in-chief of his army, rose and returned to the land of the Phylistieim.
Abraam planted a ploughed field by the well of the oath and there invoked the name of the Lord: Everlasting-god. And Abraam resided as an alien many days in the land of the Phylisitieim.

22 And it came about after these matters that God tested Abraam and said to him, “Abraam, Abraam!” And he said, “Here I am.” And he said, “Take your beloved son Isaaq, whom you love, and go into the high land, and offer him as a whole burnt offering on one of the mountains, whichever I mention to you.” And when Abraam had risen in the morning, he saddled his donkey. Now he took along with himself two servants and his son Isaaq, and after he had split wood for a whole burnt offering and risen, he went and came to the place that God had mentioned to him, on the third day. And when Abraam looked up with his eyes, he saw the place far away. Then Abraam said to his servants, “Sit right here with the donkey, and the youngster and I will go through hither, and after we have done obeisance, we will come back to you.” And Abraam took the wood of the whole burnt offering and laid it on his son Isaaq; then he took both the fire and the knife in hand, and the two walked on together. And Isaaq spoke to his father Abraam when he had said, “Father!” and he had said, “What is it, child?”), saying, “Look, the fire and the wood! Where is the sheep for a whole burnt offering?” And Abraam said, “God will see to a sheep as a whole burnt offering for himself, child.”

And as both walked on together they came to the place that God had mentioned to him. And Abraam built the altar there and laid on the wood, and when he had bound his son Isaaq hand and foot, he laid him on the altar atop the wood. Then Abraam reached out his hand to take the knife to slay his son. And the Lord’s angel called him from heaven and said to him, “Abraam, Abraam!” And he said, “Here I am.” And he said, “Do not lay your hand on the youngster nor do anything to him. For now I know that you do fear God, and for my sake you have not spared your beloved son.” And as Abraam looked up with his eyes he saw, and see, a ram held fast in a sabek plant by the horns. And Abraam went and took the ram and offered it up as a whole burnt offering instead of his son Isaaq. And Abraam called the name of that place “The-Lord-saw,” that they might say today, “On the mountain the Lord appeared.”

15 And the Lord’s angel called Abraam a second time from heaven, saying, “By myself I have sworn, says the Lord: Inasmuch as you have carried out this matter and for my sake have not spared your beloved son, I will indeed bless you with blessings, and I will make your offspring as numerously numerous as the stars of heaven and as the sand that is by the seashore, and your offspring shall possess the cities of their adversaries, and in your offspring shall all the nations of the earth be blessed, because you have obeyed my voice.”

19 Then Abraam returned to his servants, and when they had risen, they went together to the well of the oath. And Abraam lived at the well of the oath.

20 Now it came about after these matters, that then it was told Abraam—they were saying—“See, Melcha, she too has borne sons to your brother Nachor. Ox the firstborn and Baux his brother and Kamouel the ancestor of the Syrians and Chasad and Hazau and Phaldas and Iedlaph and Bathouel.” And Bathouel became the father of Rebekka. These were eight sons whom Melcha bore to Nachor, Abraam’s brother. And as for his concubine, whose name was Reema, she too bore Gaam and Tabech and Tochos and Mocha.

23 Now the life of Sarra amounted to one hundred twenty-seven years. And Sarra died in the city of Arbok that is in the lowland (this is Chebron) in the land of Chanaan. And Abraam went to mourn for Sarra and to grieve. And Abraam rose up from his dead and spoke to the sons of Chet, saying, “I am a resident alien and a sojourner among you; therefore give me possession of a burying place among you, and I shall bury my dead away from me.” And the sons of Chet replied to Abraam, saying, “Not so, lord; but hear us. You are a king from a god among us. Bury your dead in our choice tombs, for not one of us shall withhold from you any tomb to bury your dead there.” And when he had risen Abraam did obeisance to the sons of Chet, the people of the land, and Abraam spoke to them, saying, “If you have it in your heart that I bury my dead away from my presence, hear me, and speak on my behalf to Ephron the son of Saar, and let him give me the double cave that he has, which is in part of his field. For the money it is worth let him give it to me among you for possession of a tomb.” Now Ephron was sitting among the sons of Chet, and in reply Ephron the Chettite spoke to Abraam, as the sons of Chet and all who were going into the city were listening, saying, “Be attentive to me, lord, and hear me. I give you the field and the cave that is in it; before all my fellow citizens I have given it to you; bury your dead.” And Abraam did obeisance before the people of the land, and he said to Ephron in the hearing of the people of the land, “Since you are in my presence, listen to me! Accept from me the money for the field, and I shall bury my dead there.” Then Ephron answered Abraam, saying, “No, lord, for I have heard of four hundred didrachmas of silver—what would this be between you and me? But as for you, bury your dead.” And Abraam listened to Ephron, and Abraam handed over to Ephron the money that he had talked about in the hearing of the sons of Chet, four hundred didrachmas of silver certified by merchants.

And Abraam was elderly, advanced in days, and the Lord blessed Abraam in regard to all things. And Abraam said to his servant, the elder of his household, the ruler of all that was his, “Put your hand under my thigh, and I will make you swear by the Lord, the God of heaven and the God of earth, who took me from the house of my father and from my tribe, and get a wife for my son Isaak from there.” And the servant said to him, “Perhaps the woman is not willing to go with me, back to this land. Shall I bring your son back to the land which you came from?” But Abraam said to him, “Take heed to yourself; do not bring my son back there. The Lord, the God of heaven and the God of earth, who took me from the house of my father and from my tribe, and get a wife for my son Isaak from there.”

Then the servant took ten camels from his lord’s camels and some of all his lord’s goods with himself, and when he had risen, he went to Meso- potamia to the city of Nachor. And he allowed the camels to rest outside the city beside the well of water toward evening, when the women who fetch water go out. And he said, “O Lord, God of my lord Abraam, prosper the way before me today, and water go out. And he said, “I will call the Lord, the God of my lord Abraam, who has not given up his mercy to my master Abraam, I will not eat until I have spoken my word.” And they said, “Speak on.” And he said, “I am Abraam’s servant. Now Rebekka had a brother whose name was Laban, and Laban ran out to the man at the spring. And it came about as soon as he saw the earrings and the bracelets on his sister’s arms, and when he heard the words of his sister Rebekka as she was saying, “Thus the man has spoken to me,” that then he went to the man as he stood by the camels at the spring and said to him, “Here, come in. Blessed be the Lord. Why do you stand outside? As for me, I have prepared the dwelling and a place for the camels.” Then the man came into the dwelling and unloaded the camels. And he gave him straw and fodder for the camels and water for his feet and the feet of the men who were with him. And he set bread loaves before them to eat. And he said, “I will not eat until I have spoken my piece.” And they said, “Speak on.” And he said, “I am Abraam’s servant. Now the Lord has greatly blessed my lord, and he has been exalted, and he has given him sheep and calves and silver and gold and male and female slaves, camels and donkeys. And Sarra my lord’s wife bore one son to my lord after he had grown old, and he gave him as much as he had. And my lord administered an oath to me, saying, ‘You shall not take a wife for my son from the daughters of the Chananites, whom I am living among in their land, but you shall go to my father’s house and to my tribe and get a wife for my son from there.’ Then I said to my lord, ‘Perhaps the woman will not go with me.’ And he said to me, ‘The Lord, whom I have been well pleasing before, he will send his angel with you and prosper your journey, and you shall get a wife for my son from my tribe and from my father’s house. Then you will be free from my curse; indeed, when perchance you come to my tribe and they do not give her to you, then you will be free from my adjuration.

42 "And on coming today to the spring I said, 'O Lord, the God of my lord Abraam, if only you prosper my journey that I am now going on! 43 Here I stand near the spring of water, and the daughters of the people of the city will come out to fetch water, and it shall be that the maiden to whom I should say, 'Give me a little water from your jar to drink,' and she should say to me, 'You drink, and I will fetch water for your camels too,' may this be the woman whom the Lord prepared for his own attendant Isak, and by this I shall know that you have done mercy toward my lord Abraam.'

45 "And it came about before I finished speaking in my mind, that at once Rebekka was coming out with the water jar on her shoulders, and she went down to the spring and fetched water. Then I said to her, 'Give me a drink.' And hurriedly she let down the jar from herself and said, 'You drink, and I will water your camels.' And I drank, and she watered my camels. 47 And I asked her and said, 'Whose daughter are you?' I am a daughter of Bathouel, Nachor's son,' said she, 'whom Melcha bore to him.' And I put the earrings on her and the bracelets around her arms. 48 Then, being content, she bore to him. 'And I put the earrings on her and the bracelets around her arms. 48 Then, being content, she bore to him. 'And I put the earrings on her and the bracelets around her arms.

52 Now it came about when the servant of Abraam heard their words that he did obeisance upon the ground to the Lord. 53 And when the servant had brought out articles of silver and gold and clothing, he gave them to Rebekka, and he gave gifts to her brother and mother. 54 And he and the men who were with him ate and drank, and they went to bed. And when he rose in the morning, he said, 'Send me away in order that I may depart to my lord.' 55 And her brothers and mother said, 'Let the maiden remain with us about ten days, and after that she shall depart.' 56 But he said to them, 'Do not detain me, and the Lord has prospered my journey; send me away in order that I may depart to my lord.' 57 Then they said, 'Let us call the girl and ask her mouth.' 58 And they called Rebekka and said to her, 'Will you go with this man?' And she said, 'I will go.' 59 And they sent away their sister Rebekka and her possessions and Abraam's servant and those with him. 60 And they blessed their sister Rebekka and said to her, "You are our sister; become thousands of myriads, and let your offspring gain possession of the cities of their adversaries."

61 Then Rebekka and her maids, when they had risen, mounted the camels and went with the man, and taking along Rebekka, the servant departed.

62 Now Isak used to go through the wilderness over against the well of the appearance, but he was dwelling in the land that is toward the south-west. 63 And Isak went out toward evening to meditate in the plain, and looking up with his eyes he saw camels coming. 64 And Rebekka, looking up with her eyes, saw Isak and leaped down from the camel 65 and said to the servant, "Who is that man who is walking on the plain to meet us?" And the servant said, "This is my lord." Then taking her light summer garment she threw it around herself.

25 Now Abraam again took a wife, whose name was Chettoura. 2And she bore him Zembran and Iexan and Madan and Madiam and Iesbok and Soye. 3And Iexan was the father of Saba and Thaiman and Daidan. And the sons of Daidan were Ragouel and Nabeel and Assourieim and La-tousieim and Loomieim. 4 And the sons of Madiam: Gaiphar and Apher and Henoch and Abira and Elraga. These all were the sons of Chettoura. 5 And Abraam gave all his possessions to his son Isak, 6 and to the sons of his concubines Abraam gave gifts, and while he was still living he sent them away from his son Isak, eastward to the east country.

7 Now these are the years of the days of the life of Abraam that he lived: one hundred seventy-five years. 8 And breathing his last, Abraam died at a good old age, an old man and full of days, and was added to his people. 9 And his sons Isak and Ismael buried him in the double cave in the field of Ephron the son of Saar the Chettite, which is opposite Mamre, 10 the field and the cave that Abraam acquired from the sons of Chet; there they buried Abraam and his wife Sarra. 11 And it came about after Abraam died that God blessed his son Isak. And Isak settled by the well of the appearance.

12 Now these are the generations of Ismael, Abraam's son, whom Hagar, Sarra's slave-girl, bore to Abraam. 13 And these are the names of the sons of Ismael, by the name of his clans: Nabaioth, the firstborn of Ismael, and Kedar and Nabdeel and Massam 14 and Masma and Idouma and Masse and Choddad and Thaiman and Ietour and Naphes and Kedma. 15 These are the sons of Ismael, and these are their names in their tents and in their encampments, twelve rulers according to their nations. 16 And these are the years of the life of Ismael: one hundred thirty-seven years, and breathing his last he died and was added to his kin. 18 Now he settled from Heuilat to Sour, which is facing Egypt, until one comes to the Assyrians; he settled facing all his kinfolk.

19 And these are the generations of Isaaq, Abraam’s son: Abraam was the father of Isaaq.

20 Now Isaaq was forty years of age when he took Rebekka, daughter of Bathouel the Syrian of Mesopotamia, sister of Laban the Syrian, as a wife for himself. 21 And Isaaq petitioned the Lord concerning his wife Rebekka, because she was barren; and God heard him, and his wife Rebekka became pregnant. 22 And the children were cavorting within in her, and she said, “If it is thus going to be with me, why do I have this?” Then she went to inquire of the Lord, 23 and the Lord said to her, “Two nations are in your womb, and two peoples from your uterus shall be divided, and a people shall excel over a people, and the greater shall be subject to the lesser.”

24 And the days for her to give birth were completed, and she had twins in her uterus. 25 And the firstborn son came out red all over like a hairy hide; then she named his name Esau. 26 And afterward his brother came out, with his hand gripping Esau’s heel, and she called his name Iakob. Now Isaaq was sixty years of age when Rebekka bore them.

27 So the boys grew up, and Esau was a man who knew how to hunt, a rustic, while Iakob was a simple man, living at home. 28 And Isaaq loved Esau, because his game was food for him; Rebekka, however, loved Iakob.

29 Now Iakob cooked a stew, and Esau came from the plain languishing. 30 And Esau said to Iakob, “Give me a taste of this red stew, for I am languishing!” Therefore his name was called Edom. 31 And Iakob said to Esau, “Sell to me today your rights of primogeniture.” 32 And Esau said, “Look, I am going to perish, and why do I have these rights of primogeniture?” 33 And Iakob said to him, “Swear to me today.” And he swore to him, and Esau sold the rights of primogeniture to Iakob. 34 And Iakob gave Esau bread and lentil stew, and he ate and drank, and getting up he went away. And Esau trivialized the rights of primogeniture.

26 Now a famine occurred upon the land, besides the former famine that had occurred in the time of Abraam. Then Isaaq went to Gerara, to Abimelech, king of Physleistieim. 2 And the Lord appeared to him and said, “Do not go down to Egypt, but settle in the land about which I speak to you. 3 And reside in this land as an alien, and I will be with you and will bless you. For to you and to your offspring I will give all this land, and I will establish my oath that I swore to your father Abraam. 4 And I will make your offspring as numerous as the stars of heaven and will give to your offspring all this land, and all the nations of the earth shall be blessed in your offspring. 5 Since your father Abraam obeyed my voice and kept my ordinances and my commandments and my statutes and my precepts.”

6 And Isaaq settled in Gerara. 7 Then the men of the place asked about his wife Rebekka, and he said, “She is my sister,” for he was afraid to say, “She is my wife,” lest perhaps the men of the place kill him for the sake of Rebekka, because she was attractive in appearance. 8 And he stayed on there quite some time. Now Abimelech the king of Gerara, when he peered through the window, saw Isaaq playing around with his wife Rebekka. 9 Then Abimelech summoned Isaaq and said to him, “So then she is your wife! Why is it that you said, ‘She is my sister?’ And Isaaq said to him, “Because I said, ‘Lest perhaps I die because of her.’ ” 10 And Abimelech said to him, “What is this you have done to us? Very nearly did someone of my kin lie with your wife, and you had brought ignorance upon us.” 11 Then Abimelech instructed all his people, saying, “Anyone who touches this man or his wife shall be liable to the death penalty.”

12 And Isaaq sowed seed in that land and in that year found barley bearing a hundredfold. And the Lord blessed him, 13 and the man was exalted, and he kept getting greater until he became very great. 14 And he had flocks of sheep and herds of cattle and many tilled fields. And the Phylistieim envied him, 15 and all the wells that his father’s servants had dug in the time of his father—the Phylistieim stopped them up and filled them with earth. 16 And Abimelech said to Isaaq, “Go away from us, for you have become much more powerful than we.”

17 And Isaaq departed from there and lodged in the ravine of Gerara and settled there. 18 And again Isaaq dug the wells of water that the servants of his father Abraam had dug, and the Phylistieim had stopped them up after his father Abraam had died, and he gave them names in accordance with the names that his father had named. 19 And Isaaq’s servants dug in the ravine of Gerara and found there a well of living water. 20 And the herders of Gerara quarreled with Isaaq’s herders, asserting that the water was theirs. And he called the name of the well Injustice, for they did him injustice. 21 Then setting out from there he dug another well, but they were disputing over that one also, and he named it’s name Enmity. 22 Then setting out from there he dug another well, and they did not quarrel over it, and he named its name Open-space, saying, “Inasmuch as now the Lord has made room for us and increased us on the land.”

23 And from there he went up to the well of the oath. 24 And on that night the Lord appeared to him and said, “I am the God of your father Abraam; do not be afraid, for I am with you and have blessed you and will make your offspring numerous for your father Abraam’s sake.” 25 And he built an altar there and invoked the name of the Lord and pitched his tent there. And there Isaaq’s servants dug a well.

26 And Abimelech went to him from Gerara with Ochozath his groomsmen and Phichol the commander-in-chief of his army. 27 And Isaak said to them, “Why did you come to me? You are the ones who hated me and sent me away from you.” 28 And they said, “Seeing, we have seen that the Lord was with you, and we said, Let there come to be an oath between you and between us, and we will make a covenant with you so that you will not do us harm, just as we did not loathe you, and as we treated you well and sent you away in peace. And now you are blessed by the Lord.” 29 And he made them a banquet, and they ate and drank. 30 And when they had risen in the morning, they swore an oath, one person to the next, and Isaak sent them off, and they departed from him in safety. 31 And it came about on that day that then Isaak’s servants, when they arrived, told him about the well that they had dug and said, “We did not find water.” 32 And he called it Oath; therefore he called the city’s name Well-of-oath, to the present day.

34 Now Esau was forty years of age, and he took as a wife Huden the daughter of Beer the Chettite and Basemmath daughter of Ailon the Heuite. 35 And they were contending with Isaak, because of his son Iakob.

27 Now it came about after Isaak had grown old and his eyes had become too dim to see, that then he called his elder son Esau and said to him, “My son,” and he said, “Here I am.” 2 And he said, “See, I have grown old, and I do not know the day of my death. 3 Now therefore take your equipment, both quiver and bow, and go out into the plain, and hunt game for me, and prepare for me victuals, such as I like, and bring them to me in order that I may eat, so that my soul may bless you before I die.” 4 Now Rebekka heard Isaak speaking to his son Esau. And Esau went into the plain to hunt game for his father. 5 Then Rebekka said to her lesser son Iakob, “Look, I heard your father speaking to your brother Esau, saying, ‘Bring me game, and prepare for me victuals in order that when I have eaten I may bless you in the presence of the Lord before I die.’ 6 Now then, son, listen to me, as I command you, and go to the flocks; get me two kids from there, tender and good, and I shall prepare them as victuals for your father, such as he likes, and you shall bring them in to your father, and he will eat, so that your father may bless you before he dies.” 7 But Iakob said to his mother Rebekka, “My brother Esau is a hairy man, while I am a smooth man. 8 Perhaps my father will feel me, and I shall be before him like a scorner and bring a curse on myself and not a blessing.” 9 But his mother said to him, “Your curse be on me, child; only obey my voice, and go, bring them to me.” 10 And he went, got them and brought them to his mother, and his mother prepared victuals, just as his father used to love them. 11 And Rebekka, when she had taken the fine garment of her elder son Esau, which was with her in the house, then she put it on her younger son Iakob, and she placed the skins of the kids on his arms and on the bare parts of his neck, and she gave the victuals and the bread loaves that she had prepared into the hands of her son Iakob.

18 And he brought them in to his father. And he said, “Father.” And he said, “Here I am; who are you, child?” 19 And Iakob said to his father, “I am Esau your firstborn; I have done according to what you talked about to me; rise, sit, and eat of my game, so that your soul may bless me.” 20 But Isaak said to his son, “What is this that you have quickly found, O child?” 21 And he said, “That which the Lord your God delivered up before me.” 22 Then Isaak said to Iakob, “Come near to me, and I shall feel you, child, whether you are my son Esau or not.” 23 And Iakob drew near to his father Isaak, and he felt him and said, “The voice is Iakob’s voice, yet the hands are the hands of Esau.” 24 And he did not recognize him, for his hands were hairy like his brother Esau’s hands, and he blessed him. 25 And he said, “Are you my son Esau?” And he said, “I am.” 26 And he said, “Bring it to me, and I shall eat of your game, child, in order that my soul may bless you.” And he presented it to him, and he ate, and he brought wine in to him, and he drank. 27 And coming near he kissed him, and he smelled the scent of his clothes and blessed him and said, “See, my son’s scent is like the scent of a full field that the Lord has blessed.

28 And may God give you of the dew of heaven and of the fatness of the earth and an abundance of grain and wine. 29 And let nations be subject to you, and rulers shall do obeisance to you, and become lord over your brother, and your father’s sons shall do obeisance to you. Accursed is the one who curses you, but blessed is the one who blesses you!” 30 And it came about after Isaak had left off blessing his son Iakob, and it came about when Iakob had gone out from the presence of his father Isaak, that then his brother Esau came from the hunt. 31 And he too prepared victuals and presented them to his father and said to his father, “Let my father rise and eat of his son’s game, so that your soul may bless me.” 32 And his father Isaak said to him, “Who are you?” And he said, “I am your firstborn son, Esau.” 33 Then Isaak was astonished with very great astonishment and said, “So who was the one who hunted game for me and brought it in to me? And I ate of everything before you came, and I blessed him, and let him be blessed!” 34 Now it came about when Esau heard his father Isaak’s words, that then he uttered an avery great and bittera cry and said, “Do bless me also, father!” 35 But he said to him, “Your brother, coming with deceit, took away your blessing.”

36 And he said, “His name was rightly called Iakob, for he has supplanted me now this second time. He has both taken away my rights of primogeniture, and now he has taken away my blessing.” Then Esau said to his father, “Did you not leave a blessing for me, father?” 37 And in reply Isaak said to Esau, “If I made him your lord, and I made all his brothers his domestics, with grain and wine I sustained him, then what shall I do for you, child?” 38 And Esau said to his father, “Surely you do not have only one blessing, father? Do bless me also, father!” And with Isaak cut to the quick, Esau uttered a cry and wept.

39 Then in reply his father Isaak said to him: “See, away from the fatness of the earth shall your dwelling be, and away from the dew of heaven on high.

40 And by your dagger you shall live, and you shall be subject to your brother, but it shall be that when perchance you bring him down, then you shall loose his yoke from your neck.”

41 And Esau was indignant at Iakob because of the blessing with which his father had blessed him. Then Esau said in his mind, “Let the days of mourning for my father come near in order that I may kill my brother Iakob.” 42 But the words of her mourning for my father come near in order that I

43 Now then, child, listen to my voice, and do not have only a one blessing, father? Do bless me also, father!” And with Isaak cut to the quick, Esau uttered a cry and wept.

44 And Esau was indignant at Iakob because of the blessing with which his father had blessed him. Then Esau said in his mind, “Let the days of mourning for my father come near in order that I may kill my brother Iakob.” 42 But the words of her mourning for my father come near in order that I.

45 Until your brother’s wrath and anger turn away from you, and he forgets what you have done to him, and I will send for and summon you from there—lest perhaps I be bereaved of you two children in one day.”

46 Then Rebekka said to Isaak, “I have become irritated with my life because of the daughters of the sons of Chet. If Iakob will take a wife from the daughters of this land, why shall I live?”

28 Then Isaak, having called for Iakob, blessed him and commanded him, saying, “You shall not take a wife from the daughters of Chanaan. 2 Rise, escape to Mesopotamia to the house of Bathouel, your mother’s father, and take a wife for yourself from there from the daughters of Laban, your mother’s brother. 3 And may my God bless you and make you increase and make you numerous, and you shall become gatherings of nations. 4 And may he give to you the blessing of my father Abraam, to you and to your offspring after you, to possess the land of your living as an alien, which God gave to Abraam. 5 And Isaak sent Iakob away, and he went to Mesopotamia to Laban the son of Bathouel the Syrian and brother of Rebekka the mother of Iakob and Esau.

6 Now Esau saw that Isaak blessed Iakob and that he was on his way to Mesopotamia of Syria to take a wife from there for himself, that as he was blessing him he also commanded him, saying, “You shall not take a wife from the daughters of Chanaan,” 7 and that Iakob obeyed his father and mother and went to Mesopotamia, 8 and Esau saw that the daughters of Chanaan were evil in the sight of his father Isaak, 9 and Esau went to Ismael and took Maeloth daughter of Abraam’s son Ismael, sister of Nabaioth, as a wife in addition to his wives.

10 And Iakob departed from the well of the oath and went to Charran. 11 And he came upon a place and laid down there, for the sun had set. And he took one of the stones of the place and put it at his head and lay down in that place. 12 And he dreamed, and see, a ladder set firmly in the earth, whose top was reaching into heaven, and the angels of God were ascending and descending on it.

13 And the Lord leaned on it and said, “I am the Lord, the God of Abraam your father and the God of Isaak; do not be afraid; as for the land which you are sleeping on, I will give it to you and to your offspring. 14 And your offspring shall be like the sand of the earth, and it shall widen out to the sea and to the southwest and to the north and to the east, and all the tribes of the earth shall be blessed in you and in your offspring. 15 And see, I am with you, carefully guarding you in every way where you might go, and I will bring you back to this land, for I will not leave you until I have done all the things that I talked about to you.” 16 And Iakob woke from his sleep and said, “The Lord is in this place—yet I did not know it!” 17 And he was afraid and said, “How awesome is this place! This is nothing other than a divine house, and this is the gate of heaven.”

18 And Iakob rose in the morning, and he took the stone that he had put down there at his head and set it up for a stele and poured oil on the top of it. 19 And Iakob called the name of that place Divine-house, and the city’s name was formerly Oulamolouz. 20 And Iakob made a vow, saying, “If the Lord God should be with me and should carefully guard me in this way that I go and should give me bread to eat and clothing to put on 21 and should bring me back to my father’s house in safety, then the Lord shall become god to me, 22 and this stone, which I have set up for a stele, shall be a divine house to me, and of all things that you might give me, as a tithe I will tithe them to you.”

29 And Iakob, lifting up his feet, went to the land of the east, to Laban the son of Bathouel the Syrian and brother of Rebekka, mother of Iakob and Esau. 2 And he was looking, and there was a well in the plain, and three flocks of sheep were resting there near it, for out of that well they would water the flocks. Now a large stone was on the well’s mouth, 3 and all the flocks would be gathered there, and they 4 would roll the stone from the mouth of the well and water the sheep.

4 And Jakob said to them, “Brothers, where are you from?” And they said, “We are from Charran.”

5Then he said to them, “Do you know Laban the son of Nachor?” And they said, “We know him.”

6And he said to them, “Is he well?” And they said, “He is well.” And see, his daughter Rachel was coming with the sheep. 7And Jakob said, “There is still much daylight; it is not yet time for the livestock to be gathered together. Water the sheep; go off, and pasture them.” 8But they said, “We shall not be able to until all the shepherds have been gathered together, and they roll the stone from the mouth of the well, and we shall water the sheep.”

9 While he was still speaking with them, then Laban’s daughter Rachel was coming with her father’s sheep, for she was tending her father’s sheep.

10Now it came about when Jakob saw Rachel, daughter of his mother’s brother Laban, and the sheep of his mother’s brother Laban, that then Jakob, drawing near, rolled the stone from the well’s mouth and watered the sheep of his mother’s brother Laban. 11And Jakob kissed Rachel, and crying out with his voice he wept. 12And he told Rachel that he was her father’s kinsman and that he was Rebekka’s son, and running off, she reported to her father concerning these matters.

13 And it came about when Laban heard the name of his sister’s son Jakob, that he ran to meet him and, embracing him, kissed him and brought him into his house. And he related to Laban all these particulars. 14And Jakob said to him, “You are of my bones and of my flesh!” And he was with him a month of days.

15 Then Jakob said to Laban, “Indeed, because you are my kinsman, you shall not be subject to me for nothing. Tell me what your wage is.” 16Now Laban had two daughters; the name of the bigger was Leia, and the name of the younger was Rachel.

17And Leia’s eyes were weak, but Rachel was shape- ly in figure and lovely in appearance. 18Now Jakob loved Rachel, and he said, “I will be subject to you seven years for your younger daughter Rachel.” 19And Laban said to him, “It is better that I give her to you than that I give her to another man; dwell with me.” 20And Jakob was subject seven years for Rachel, and they were in his sight like a few days because he loved her.

21 Then Jakob said to Laban, “Give up my wife, that I may go in to her, for my days have been completed.” 22And Laban gathered together all the men of the place and made a wedding feast. 23And evening came, and Laban, taking his daughter Leia, brought her in to Jakob, and Jakob went in to her. 24Now Laban gave to his daughter Leia his maid Zelpha as a maid for her. 25Then morning came, and there was Leia! And Jakob said to Laban, “What is this you have done to me? Was I not subject to you for Rachel? And why have you deceived me?” 26And Laban said, “It is not possible thus in our locality to give the younger before the elder.

27Therefore finish the heptad of this one, and I will give you this one also in return for work that you shall do at my place for yet another seven years.” 28And Jakob did so and fulfilled her heptad, and Laban gave him his daughter Rachel as a wife for him. 29Now Laban gave his maid Balla to his daughter Rachel as a maid for her. 30And he went in to Rachel, and he loved Rachel more than Leia. And he was subject to him another seven years.

31 Now when the Lord saw that Leia was hated, he opened her womb, but Rachel was barren.

32And Leia conceived and bore a son to Jakob, and she called his name Rouben, saying, “Inasmuch as the Lord has seen my humiliation, now it is me my husband will love.” 33And Leia conceived again and bore a second son to Jakob and said, “Because the Lord has heard that I am hated, he has also in addition given me this one too,” and she called his name Symeon. 34And yet again she conceived and bore a son and said, “At the present time my husband will be on my side, for I have borne him three sons”; therefore she called his name Leui.

35And after she had conceived yet again, she bore a son and said, “Now yet again with respect to this I will acknowledge the Lord”; therefore she called his name Loudas; then she ceased to bear.

30 Now when Rachel saw that she had not given birth for Jakob, then Rachel envied her sister, and she said to Jakob, “Give me children; otherwise, I shall die!” 2And Jakob became angry with Rachel and said, “Surely I am not in the place of a god who has deprived you with respect to the fruit of the womb?” 3Then she said to Jakob, “Here is my female slave Balla; go in to her, and she shall bear upon my knees, and I too shall have children by her.” 4And she gave him her female slave Balla as a wife for him, and Jakob went in to her. 5And Rachel’s female slave Balla conceived and bore Jakob a son. 6And Rachel said, “God has judged me and heard my voice and given me a son”; therefore she called his name Dan. 7And Rachel’s female slave Balla conceived yet again, and she bore Jakob a second son. 8And Rachel said, “God has assisted me, and I have lived together with my sister and have been strong enough,” and she called his name Nephthali.

9 Now Leia saw that she had ceased to bear, and she took her female slave Zelpha and gave her to Jakob as a wife. 10Then Jakob went in to her, and Leia’s female slave Zelpha conceived and bore Jakob a son. 11And Leia said, “By fortune!” and she named his name Gad. 12And Leia’s female slave Zelpha conceived and bore Jakob a second son as well. 13And Leia said, “Happy am I! For the women pronounce me happy,” and she called his name Aser.

14 Now in the days of wheat harvest Rouben went and found mandrake apples in the field and brought them to his mother Leia. Then Rachel said to Leia, “Give me some of your son’s mandrakes.”
15 But Leia said, “Is it not enough for you that you have taken away my husband? Surely you will not also take away my son’s mandrakes?” Then Rachel said, “Not so; let him lie with you through this night in exchange for your son’s mandrakes.”

16 And Jakob came in from a field at evening, and Leia went out to meet him and said, “You shall come in to me today, for I have hired you in exchange for your son’s mandrakes.” And he lay with her through that night. 17 And God heard Leia, and after she had conceived she bore Jakob a fifth son.

18 And Leia said, “God has given me my hire, since I gave my female slave to my husband,” and she called his name Issachar, which is Hire. 19 And Leia conceived yet again, and she bore Jakob a sixth son.

20 Then Leia said, “God has given a good gift to me; at the present time my husband will choose me, for I have borne him six sons,” and she called his name Zabouelon. 21 And afterwards she bore a daughter and called her name Dinah.

22 Then God remembered Rachel, and God heard her and opened her uterus, 23 and after she had conceived she bore Jakob a son. And Rachel said, “God has taken away my reproach.” 24 And she called his name Joseph, saying, “Let God add to me another son!”

25 Now it came about when Rachel had borne Joseph, that Jakob said to Laban, “Send me away in order that I may depart to my region and to my country.” 26 Give up my wives and children, on account of whom I was subject to you, in order that I may depart, for you know very well the servitude I was subjected to your father’s face, that it is not in favor of me as in the past.

27 But Laban said to him, “If I had found favor before you, I would have learned it by ornithomancy. Indeed, God blessed me by your coming. 28 Specify your wage to me, and I will give it.” 29 Then Jakob said to him, “You do know in what things I was subject to you and how numerous your cattle have been with me. 30 For what you had before me was little, and it increased to a multitude, and the Lord blessed you at my foot. Now then when shall I too prepare a household for myself?” 31 And Laban said to him, “What shall I give to you?” And Jakob said to him, “You shall not give me anything; if you carry out this matter for me, I will again shepherd your sheep, and I will keep them. 32 Let your sheep pass by today, and separate thence every grey sheep among the lambs and every pure white and spotted one among the goats; such shall be my wage. 33 And my righteousness will hearken to me tomorrow, because my wage is before you. Any one that is not spotted and pure white among the goats and grey among the lambs shall, in my judgment, have been stolen.” 34 Then Laban said to him, “Let it be according to your word.” 35 And on that day he set apart the male goats that were spotted and pure white and all the female goats that were spotted and pure white and every one that was white among them and every one that was grey among the lambs and gave them into the control of his sons. 36 And he put a distance of three days’ journey between them and between Jakob. Now Jakob was shepherding Laban’s remaining sheep.

37 And Jakob took for himself a green rod of styrax and walnut and one of a plane tree, and Jakob stripped white stripes in them, tearing away the green. And the white that he had stripped appeared variegated on the rods. 38 And he set the rods that he had stripped in the channels of the watering troughs of water in order that, when the sheep would come to drink in front of the rods, as they came for drinking, (39) the sheep would come into heat at the rods, 39 and the sheep would produce pure white and variegated and ash-colored spotted young. 40 And Jakob set apart the lambs and set before the sheep a pure white ram and every variegated one among the lambs, and he separated flocks for himself on his own and did not mix them with Laban’s sheep. 41 Now it came about in the season in which the sheep came into heat, as they were conceiving, that Jakob placed the rods in the channels before the sheep that they might come into heat opposite the rods, 42 but when the sheep would give birth, he would not place them; so then the unmarked were Laban’s, and the marked Jakob’s. 43 And the man became very, very rich and had large herds and cattle and male slaves and female slaves and camels and donkeys.

31 Now Jakob heard the words of the sons of Laban, saying, “Jakob has taken all that was our father’s, and he has made all this glory from what was our father’s.” 2 And Jakob saw Laban’s face, and see, it was not towards him as it was yesterday and the third day. 3 Then the Lord said to Jakob, “Return to the land of your father and to your kindred, and I will be with you.” 4 And Jakob sent and called Leia and Rachel into the plain where his flocks were 5 and said to them, “I see your father’s face, that it is not in favor of me as yesterday and the third day, but the God of my father has been with me. 6 Now you yourselves too know that I was subject to your father with all my strength. 7 Yet your father cheated me, and exchanged my wage for ten lambs, and God did not give him leave to harm me. 8 If he should say thus, ‘The variegated shall be your wage,’ then all the sheep will bear variegated, but if he should say, ‘The white shall be your wage,’ then all the sheep will bear white. 9 And God took away all the livestock of your father and gave them to me.

10 “And it came about when the sheep were coming into heat, that then I saw them with my eyes in my sleep, and see, the male goats and the rams—pure white and variegated and ash-colored spotted—were mounting the sheep and the female goats. 11 And the angel of God said to me during sleep, ‘Jakob!’ And I said, ‘What is it?’ 12 And he said, ‘Look up with your eyes, and see the male goats and the rams—pure white and variegated and ash-colored spotted—mounting the sheep and the female goats, for I have seen how much

Laban is doing to you. 13I am the God who appeared to you at a divine place, there where you anointed a stele to me and made a vow to me there. Now therefore rise, and go forth from this land, and depart to the land of your origin, and I will be with you." 14And Rachel and Leïa said to him in reply, "Surely there is no longer a portion or an inheritance in our father's house? 15Have we not been regarded by him as foreigners? For he has sold our possessions, and he consumed our money by a devouring. 16All the wealth and the glory that God took away from our father shall belong to us and to our children. Now therefore do what God has said to you."

17 Then Jakob, when he had arisen, took his wives and his youngest sons on the camels, 18and he carried off all his possessions and all his chattels that he had procured in Mesopotamia and all that was his, to go off to his father Isaak in the land of Chanaan.

19 Now Laban went away to shear his sheep, and Rachel stole her father's idols. 20And Jakob concealed 4his intention from 4Laban the Syrian so as not to tell him that he was fleeing, 21and he fled with all that was his and crossed the river and set out for the mountain of Galaad.

22 Then on the third day it was told to Laban the Syrian that Jakob had fled, 23and taking along all his kinsfolk with himself he followed hard after him a seven days' journey, and he caught up with him at the mountain of Galaad. 24But God came to Laban the Syrian in his sleep during the night and said to him, "Watch yourself, that you not speak evil with Jakob."

25 And Laban caught up with Jakob. Now Jakob pitched his tent on the mountain, and Laban stationed his kinsfolk on the mountain of Galaad. 26And Laban said to Jakob, "What have you done? (27)Why did you flee secretly and rob me (26)and carry off my daughters like those captured by dagger? (27)And if you had told me, I would have sent you away with mirth and with music, drums and lyre. 28I was not deemed worthy to kiss aLacking in Gk her fathers who have been regarded by me as foreigners. For he has sold our possessions, and he consumed our money by a devouring. 29And now my hand is strong to hand over all my kinsfolk with myself he followed hard after him, to go off to his father Isaak in the land of Chanaan.

30 So now you have gone, for with longing you longed to go off to your father's house. Why did you steal my gods? (31)And Jakob said to Laban in reply, "Because I said, 'Lest perhaps you take away your daughters from me, and all that is mine.' (32)Discover what I have of yours, and take it." And he did not discover anything with him. And Jakob said, "Anyone with whom you should find your gods shall not live in the presence of our kinsfolk." Now Jakob did not know that his wife Rachel had stolen them.

33 And Laban, when he had gone in, searched in Leïa's house and found nothing. And he went out of Leïa's house and searched in Jakob's house and in the house of the two maids and found nothing. Then he also entered into Rachel's house.

34 Now Rachel had taken the idols and put them into the camel's pack saddles and sat on them. 35And she said to her father, "Do not take it ill, lord; I cannot rise before you, for I have what is customary with women." And Laban searched in the whole house and did not find the idols.

36 Then Jakob became angry and quarreled with Laban. And Jakob said to Laban in reply, "What is my crime, and what is my fault, that you have followed hard after me 37and that you have searched all my effects? What have you found of all the effects of your house? Set it here before your kinsfolk and my kinsfolk, and let them decide between us two. 38These twenty years of mine I was with you; your sheep and your female goats were not barren; I did not consume the rams of your sheep; 39that which was caught by wild beasts I have not brought back to you; I would exact from myself what was stolen by day and what was stolen by night; 40by day I would become inflamed by heat and by frost by night, and sleep would withdraw from my eyes. 41These twenty years of mine I was in your household; I was subject to you fourteen years in exchange for your two daughters and six years among your sheep, and you falsified my wage with ten ewe lambs. 42If the God of my father Abraam had not been with me—even the Fear of Isaak—you would now have sent me away empty-handed; God saw my humiliation and the labor of my hands and rebuked you yesterday."

43 Then in reply Laban said to Jakob, "The daughters are my daughters, and the sons are my sons, and the livestock are my livestock, and all things that you see are mine and my daughters'. What shall I do today for these or for their children whom they have borne? 44Now therefore, come, let us make a covenant, you and I, and it shall become an attestation between you and me." And he said to him, "Look, no one is with us; see, God is a witness between you and me."

45 Then Jakob, taking a stone, set it up as a stele. 46And Jakob said to his kinsfolk, "Gather stones." And they gathered stones and made a mound, and they ate and drank there by the mound. 47And Laban said to him, "This mound bears witness between you and me today." 48And Laban called it Mound-of-the-witness, but Jakob called it Mound-witness.

49(51) Then Laban said to Jakob, "Here is this mound and the stele that I have set up between you and me; (52)I this mound bears witness, and this stele bears witness." (48b)Therefore its name was called Mound-bears-witness, 49and The-act-of-seeing, about which he said, "May God oversee between you and me, that we shall withdraw one from the other. 50If you shall humiliate my daughters, if you shall take wives in addition to my daughters, beware, no one is with us. 52For whether I do not cross over to you, or you do not cross over this mound and this stele to me for harm, 53the God of Abraam and the God of NaChor will judge between us." 54And Jakob swore by the Fear of his father Isaak. (54)And Jakob offered a sacrifice on the mountain and called his kinsfolk, and they ate and drank and slept on the mountain.

55(32.1) Then in the morning when Laban had risen, he kissed his sons and his daughters and blessed them, and Laban, turning back, departed to his region.

32 (2) And Jakob departed on his own way. And looking up he saw a divine camp encamped, and the angels of God met him. 2(3) Now Jakob, when he saw them, said, “This is a divine camp!” And he called the name of that place CAMPS.

3(4) And Jakob sent messengers ahead of him to his brother Esau in the land of Seir in the territory of Edom, 4(5) and he commanded them, saying, “Thus you shall say to my lord Esau: Thus says your servant Jakob, ‘I have lived with Laban as an alien and stayed until now, 5(6) and cattle and donkeys and sheep and male and female slaves have come into my possession, and I have sent to tell my lord Esau in order that your servant may find favor before you.’ ”

6(7) And the messengers returned to Jakob, saying, “We came to your brother Esau, and he is coming to meet you, and four hundred men are with him.” 7(8) Then Jakob was greatly afraid and perplexed. And he divided the people that were with him and the cattle and the sheep into two companies, 8(9) and Jakob said, “If Esau should come to one company and eradicate it, then there will be the second company to save itself.”

9(10) And Jakob said, “God of my father Abraam and God of my father Isaak, O Lord who said to me, ‘Hurry off to the country of your origin, and I will do you good,’ 10(11) it is sufficient for me because of all the righteousness and because of all the truth that you have brought about for your servant, for with my staff I crossed this Jordan, but now I have become two companies. 11(12) Deliver me from the hand of my brother Esau—because I am afraid of him—that he not come smite me and my mother with children. 12(13) Yet you said, ‘I will do you great good and make your offspring as the sand of the sea, which shall not be counted for multitude.’ ”

13(14) And he slept there that night. And from what he was bringing he took presents and sent them off to his brother Esau, 14(15) two hundred female goats, twenty male goats, two hundred sheep, twenty rams, 15(16) thirty milch camels and their young, forty cows, ten bulls, twenty donkeys and ten foals. 16(17) And he gave them under control to his servants, a flock separately. And he said to his servants, “Go on ahead of me, and put a space between drove and drove.” 17(18) And he commanded the first, saying, “If Esau my brother should meet you and ask you, saying, ‘Whose are you and where are you going, and whose are these going on ahead of you?’ 18(19) you shall say, ‘Your servant Jakob’s; he has sent presents to my lord Esau, and there he is behind us.’ ” 19(20) And he commanded the first and the second and the third and all who were going on behind these flocks, saying, “Speak in accordance with this word to Esau when you find him. 20(21) And you shall say, ‘There is your servant Jakob coming behind us.’ ” For he said, “I shall propitiate his face with the presents that go on before him, and afterwards I shall see his face, for perhaps he will accept my face.” 21(22) And the presents passed by opposite his face, but he himself slept that night in the camp.

22(23) And that night, after he had gotten up, he took his two wives and his two maids and his eleven youngers and crossed the ford of the labok. 23(24) And he took them and crossed the wadi and carried over all that was his. 24(25) And Jakob was left alone, and a man was wrestling with him until morning. 25(26) And he saw that he was not powerful against him, and he touched the flat part of his thigh, and the flat part of Jakob’s thigh became numb as he wrestled with him. 26(27) And he said to him, “Send me away, for the dawn has come up.” But he said, “I will not send you away, unless you bless me.” 27(28) And he said to him, “What is your name?” And he said, “Jakob.” 28(29) Then he said to him, “Your name shall no longer be called Jakob, but Israel shall be your name, because you have prevailed with a god, and with humans you are powerful.” 29(30) Then Jakob asked and said, “Tell me your name.” And he said, “Why do you ask this, my name?” And there he blessed him. 30(31) And Jakob called the name of that place Divine-form, “For I have seen a god face to face, and my life has been preserved.” 31(32) And the sun rose upon him when he passed by Form-of-God; now he was limping upon his thigh. 32(33) Therefore to this day the sons of Israel shall not eat the sinew that became numb, that is on the flat part of the thigh, because he touched the flat part of Jakob’s thigh, the sinew, and it became numb.

33 Now when Jakob looked up he saw, and see, his brother Esau was coming, and four hundred men with him. And Jakob distributed the youngers to Leia and Rachel and the two maids 2 and put the two maids with their sons out front, and Leia with her youngers behind, and Rachel and Joseph last. 3 But he himself advanced ahead of them and did obeisance upon the ground seven times until he came near his brother.

4 And Esau ran forward to meet him, and embracing him he kissed him and fell upon his neck, and they both wept. 5 And looking up he saw the women and youngers and said, “What are these to you?” And he said, “The youngers by which God has shown mercy to your servant.” 6 And the maids and their children drew near and bowed down, 7 and Leia and her children drew near and did obeisance, and afterwards Rachel and Joseph drew near, and they did obeisance. 8 And he said, “What are these to you, all these companies that I have met?” And he said, “That your servant may find favor before you, lord.” 9 But Esau said, “I have much, brother; let your property be yours.” 10 But Jakob said, “If I have found favor before you, accept my presents through my hands; with regard to this I saw your face, as someone might see a divine face, and you will be pleased with me. Receive my blessings that I have brought to you, because God has shown mercy to me and I have everything." And he urged him, and he received them.

12 And he said, "When we depart, we shall go a direct route." 13 But he said to him, "My lord knows that the youngsters are rather delicate, and the sheep and cows are giving birth for me; so if I should drive them hard for one day, all the cattle will die. 14 Let my lord advance ahead of his servant, whereas I will regain strength on the way in accordance with the leisure of the journey that is before me and in accordance with the pace of the young children until I come to my lord in Seir."

15 Then Esau said, "I shall leave behind with you some of the people who are with me." But he said, "Why is this? It is enough that I have found favor before you, lord." 16 Then Esau turned back on that day to his way to Seir. 17 And Jakob was setting out for Tents, and he made himself dwellings there and made tents for his cattle; therefore he called the name of that place Tents.

18 And Jakob came to Salem, a city of Sikima, which is in the land of Chanaan, when he came from Mesopotamia of Syria, and he encamped facing the city. 19 And from Hemmora, Sychem's father, he acquired for one hundred lambs the portion of the field, there where he had set up his tent, 20 and there he set up an altar and invoked the God of Israel.

Now Dina the daughter of Leah, whom he had borne to Jakob, went out to observe the daughters of the inhabitants. 2 And Sychem the son of Hemmora the Chorrite, the ruler of the land, saw her, and seizing her he lay with her and humbled her. 3 And he attended to the person of Dina the daughter of Jakob, and he loved the maiden and spoke with her according to the maiden's mind. 4 And Sychem spoke to his father Hemmora, saying, "Get me this girl for a wife."

5 Now Jakob heard that the son of Hemmora had defiled his daughter Dina, but his sons were with his livestock in the plain, and Jakob kept silent until they came. 6 And Hemmora the father of Sychem went out to Jakob to speak with him. 7 And the sons of Jakob came from the plain. And when they heard, the men were cut to the quick, and it was very painful to them because he had done an unseemly thing in Israel by lying with Jakob's daughter, and it shall not be thus.

8 And Hemmora spoke with them, saying, "My son Sychem has selected your daughter with his soul; give her to him as a wife. 9 Make marriages with us; give your daughters to us, and take our daughters for your sons. 10 And settle among us, and as for the land, see, it is broad before you; settle, and travel for business in it, and acquire property in it." 11 Then Sychem said to her father and to her brothers, "May I find favor before you, and whatever you say, we will give. 12 Increase the bride price very much, and I will give it, just as you tell me, and you shall give me this girl for a wife."

13 But the sons of Jakob answered Sychem and his father Hemmora with deceit and spoke with them, because they had defiled their sister Dina, 14 and Sychem and Levi, Dina's brothers, Levi's sons, said to them, "We will not be able to carry out this matter, to give our sister to a man who has a foreskin, for it is a disgrace to us. 15 In this we will become like you and settle among you, if you, even you, become like us when every male of yours has been circumcised, 16 and we will give our daughters to you, and we will take some of your daughters as wives for us, and we will live beside you, and we will be as one clan. 17 But if you do not listen to us to be circumcised, we will depart, taking our daughters."

18 And their words were pleasing before Hemmora and before Sychem, the son of Hemmora. 19 And the young man did not delay to carry out this matter, for he was devoted to Jakob's daughter. Now he was the most honored of all those in his father's house. 20 So then Hemmora and his son Sychem came to the gate of their city and spoke to the men of their city, saying, 21 These people are peaceable with us; let them live on the land and travel for business, and as for the land, see, it is broad before them. We will take their daughters as wives for us, and we will give them our daughters. 22 Only in this will the people become like us to live with us so as to be one people, when every male of ours is circumcised, as they also have been circumcised. 23 And will not their livestock and their possessions and their quadrupeds be ours? Only in this let us become like them, and they will live with us." 24 And all those going out the gate of their city listened to Hemmora and his son Sychem, and they had the flesh of their foreskin circumcised, every male.

25 Now it came about on the third day, when they were in pain, that the two sons of Jakob, Symeon and Levi, Dina's brothers, took each one his dagger and entered into the city safely and killed every male. 26 They killed both Hemmora and his son Sychem with a dagger's edge and took Dina out of Sychem's house and went away. 27 Then the sons of Jakob came upon the casualties and plundered the city in which they had defiled their sister Dina, 28 and they took their sheep and their cattle and their donkeys, both as many as were in the city and as many as were in the plain. 29 And all their slaves and all their chattels and their wives they captured, and they plundered both as many things as were in the city and as many things as were in the dwellings. 30 Then Jakob said to Symeon and Levi, "You have made me hateful so that I am evil to all those inhabiting the land, both among the Chananites and the Pherezites. But as for me, I am few in number, and they, gathering together against me, will chop me up, and I shall be annihilated, I and my house-

35 Now God said to Iakob, "Arise, go up to the place Baithel, and reside there, and make an altar there to the God who appeared to you when you were fleeing from the presence of your brother Esau." 2Then Iakob said to his household and to all those who were with him, "Remove from your midst the foreign gods that are with you, and purify yourselves, and change your garments, and arise, let us go up to Baithel, and let us make an altar there to the God who hearkened to me in a day of distress, who was with me and preserved me on the road that I traveled." 4And they gave to Iakob the foreign gods that were in their hands and the earrings in their ears, and Iakob hid them under the terebinth in Sikima, and he destroyed them to the present day.

5 And Israel rose up from Sikima, and a divine fear came upon the cities all around them, and they did not go in pursuit after the sons of Israel. 6Then Iakob came to Louza, which is Baithel, which is in the land of Chanaan, he and all the people who were with him. 7And there he built an altar and called the name of the place Baithel, for there God had revealed himself to him when he was fleeing from the presence of his brother Esau. 8Now Debora, Rebekka's nurse, died under the acorn tree below Baithel, and he called its name Acorn-tree-of-mourning.

9 And God appeared to Iakob again in Louza, when he arrived from Mesopotamia of Syria, and God blessed him. 10And God said to him, "Your name is Iakob; no longer shall it be called Iakob, but Israel shall be your name." 11And God said to him, "I am your God: increase, and multiply; nations and gatherings of nations shall be from you, and kings shall come from your loins. 12And the land that I have given to Abraam and Isaak, I have given it to you; it shall be yours, and I will give this land to your offspring after you." 13Then God went up from him out of the place where he had spoken with him. 14And Iakob set up a stele in the place in which he had spoken with him, a stone stele, and he poured out a libation on it and poured oil on it. 15And Iakob called the name of the place, where at which God had spoken with him, Baithel.

16(21) Then after Iakob had set out from Baithel, he pitched his tent beyond the tower of Gader. (16)Now it came about when he drew near Chabratha to go to the land of Ephratha, that Rachel gave birth, and she experienced severe birth pangs in the birth. 17And it came about while she was giving birth with difficulty that the midwife said to her, "Take courage, for this one also is a son for you." 18And it came about as she was giving up her soul, for she was dying, that she called his name Son-of-my-pain, but his father called him Beniamin. 19So then Rachel died, and she was buried on the way to Ephratha (this is Bethlehem). 20And Iakob set up a stele at her tomb; this is the stele of Rachel's tomb to the present day.

21(22) And it came about when Israel dwelt in that land that Rouben went and lay with Balla his father's concubine, and Israel heard, and it seemed evil in his sight.

22 Now the sons of Iakob were twelve. 23The sons of Leia: Rouben (Iakob's firstborn), Symeon, Levi, Ioudas, Issachar, Zaboulon. 24And the sons of Rachel: Joseph and Beniamin. 25And the sons of Balla, Rachel's maid: Dan and Nephthali. 26And the sons of Zelpha, Leia's maid: Gad and Aser. These were the sons of Iakob who were born to him in Mesopotamia of Syria.

27 Now Iakob came to his father Isaak at Mamre, at a city of the plain (this is Chebron) in the land of Chanaan, where Abraam and Isaak had resided as aliens. 28And the days of Isaak that he lived amounted to one hundred eighty years. 29And breathing his last he died and was added to his kin, old and full of days, and his sons Esau and Iakob buried him.

36 And these are the generations of Esau (he is Edom). 2Now Esau took wives for himself from the daughters of the Chananites: Ada daughter of Ailon the Chettite and Olibema daughter of Ana the son of Sebegon; Ada the wife of Esau, and Ragouel son of Basemmath, Isaiael's daughter, sister of Nabai and Ioseph son of Basemmath. 3And Ada bore Eliphas to Esau, and Basemmath bore Ragouel, and Olibema bore Ieous and Ieglom and Kore; these are the sons of Esau who were born to him in the land of Chanaan.

6 Then Esau took his wives and his sons and his daughters and all the slaves of his household and all his possessions and all his livestock and all that he had acquired and that he had procured in the land of Chanaan, and he went out of the land of Chanaan away from the presence of his brother Iakob. 7For their possessions were many so as to live together, and the land of their sojourning could not bear them because of the multitude of their possessions. 8And Esau lived on the mountain of Seir (as for Esau, he is Edom).

9 Now these are the generations of Esau, ancestor of Edom, on the mountain of Seir, and these are the names of the sons of Esau: Eliphas son of Ada the wife of Esau, and Ragouel son of Basemmath the wife of Esau. 10And the sons of Eliphas were: Thaiman, Omar, Sophar, Gothom and Kenez. 11Now Thamna was a concubine of Eliphas the son of Esau, and she bore Amalek to Eliphas; these were the sons of Ada, Esau's wife. 12And these were the sons of Ragouel: Nachoth, Zare, Some and Moze; these were the sons of Esau's wife, Basemmath. 13And these were the sons of Esau's wife Olibema daughter of Ana the son of Sebegon: now she bore to Esau Ieous and Ieglom and Kore. 14These are the chieftains, the sons of Esau. The sons of Eliphas the firstborn of Esau: chieftain Thaiman, chieftain Omar, chieftain Sophar, chieftain Kenez, chieftain Kore, chieftain Gothom, chieftain Amalek; these are the chieftains of Eliphas in the land of Idumea; they are the sons of Ada. 15These are the sons of Esau's son Ragouel: chieftain Nachoth, chieftain Zare, chieftain Some, chieftain Moze; these are the chieftains of of Ragouel in the land of Edom; they are the sons of Esau's wife Basemmath. 18And these are the sons of Esau's wife Olibema: chieftain Ieous, chieftain Kore; these are the chieftains of Olibema. 19These are the sons of Esau, and these are their chieftains. These are the sons of Edom. 20And these are the sons of Seir the Chorrite who inhabits the land: Lotan, Sobal, Sebegon, Ana and Deson and Asar and Rison; these are the chieftains of the Chorrite the son of Seir in the land of Edom. 22And the sons of Lotan were: Chorri and Haiman; now Lotan's sister was Thamna. 23And these are the sons of Sobal: Golon and Manachath and Gaibel, Soph and Onam. 24And these are the sons of Sebegon: Aie and Onan; this is the Onas who found Iamin in the wilderness, when he was pasturing the draft animals of his father Sebegon. 25And these are the sons of Ana: Deson and Olibema daughter of Ana. 26And these are the sons of Deson: Hamada and Asban and Iethran and Charran. 27And these are the sons of Asar: Balaan and Zoukam and Ioykam and Ouken. 28And these are the sons of Rison: Os and Aram. 29These are the chieftains of Chorri: chieftain Lotan, chieftain Sobal, chieftain Sebegon, chieftain Ana, 30chieftain Deson, chieftain Asar, chieftain Rison. These are the chieftains of Chorri by their chieftainships in the land of Edom. 31And these are the kings who reigned in Edom before a king reigned in Israel. 32And Bala son of Beor reigned in Edom, and his city's name was Dennaba. 33Then Bala died, and Iobab son of Zara of Bosorra reigned in his stead. 34Then Iobab died, and Hasom of the land of the Thaimanites reigned in his stead. 35Then Hasom died, and Hadad son of Barad, who eradicated Madiam in the plain of Moab, reigned in his stead, and his city's name was Geththaim. 36Then Hadad died, and Samala of Masekka reigned in his stead. 37Then Samala died, and Saoul of Rooboth which is beside a river reigned in his stead. 38Then Saoul died, and Balaennon son of Achobor reigned in his stead. 39Then Balaennon son of Achobor died, and Hadad son of Barad reigned in his stead, and his city's name was Phogor; now his wife's name was Metebeel daughter of Matraiith son of Maizoob. 40These are the names of the chieftains of Esau, in their tribes according to their locality, in their countries and in their nations: chieftain Thamna, chieftain Gola, chieftain Iether, 41chieftain Olibemas, chieftain Elas, chieftain Phinon, 42chieftain Kenez, chieftain Thaiman, chieftain Mazar, 43chieftain Megediel, chieftain Zaphoin. These are the chieftains of Edom in the built places in the land of their possession. This is Esau, the father of Edom.

Now Jakob settled in the land where his father had resided as an alien, in the land of Chanaan. 2And these are the generations of Jakob. Joseph, seventeen years of age, used to shepherd the sheep with his brothers, when he was young, with the sons of Balla and with the sons of Zelpha, his father's wives. And Joseph brought back grievous censure to their father Israel. 3Now Jakob loved Joseph more than all his sons, because he was a son of old age to him, and he made him a variegated tunic. 4But when his brothers saw that their father was cherishing him above all his sons, they hated him and could not speak anything peaceable to him. 5And when Joseph had dreamed a dream, he told it to his brothers, 6and he said to them, "Hear this dream that I dreamed. 7I imagined we were binding sheaves in the middle of the plain, and my sheaf rose and stood upright; then your sheaves, turning around, did obeisance to my sheaf." 8And his brothers said to him, "Surely you will not, when reigning, reign over us, or, when exercising dominion, exercise dominion over us?" And they proceeded to hate him more because of his dreams and because of his words. 9And he saw another dream and related it to his father and to his brothers and said, "See, I have dreamed another dream, as though the sun and the moon and eleven stars were doing obeisance to me." 10And his father rebuked him and said to him, "What is this dream that you have dreamed? Shall we indeed, I and your mother and your brothers, when we come, come to do obeisance upon the ground to you?" 11And his brothers were jealous of him, but his father closely watched the matter. 12Now his brothers went to Sychem to pasture their father's sheep. 13And Israel said to Joseph, "Are not your brothers herding sheep at Sychem? Come, let me send you to them." And he said to him, "Here I am." 14And Israel said to him, "Go, see if your brothers and the sheep are well, and tell me." And he sent him from the valley of Chebron, and he came to Sychem. 15And a man found him wandering in the plain, and the man asked him, saying, "What are you seeking?" 16And he said, "I seek my brothers; tell me where they are pasturing." 17And the man said to him, "They have departed from here, for I heard them say, 'Let us go to Dothaim.'" And Joseph went after his brothers and found them at Dothaim. 18Now they saw him beforehand from a distance before he came near to them, and they intended to act wickedly to kill him. 19And they said, each one to his brother, "Here comes that dreamer. 20So come now, let us kill him and cast him into one of the pits, and we shall say, 'An evil animal has devoured him,' and we shall see what his dreams will be." 21But when Ruben heard it, he delivered him out of their hands and said, "We shall not smite him in regard to life." 22And Ruben said to them, "Shed no blood; throw him into this pit in the wilderness, but lay no hand on him"—that he might rescue him out of their hands and restore him to his father. 23Now it came about when Joseph came to his brothers, that they stripped Joseph of the variegated tunic that was around him, 24and, taking him, they cast him into the pit. Now the pit was empty; it had no water. 25Then they sat down to eat bread, and looking up with their eyes, they saw, and see, Ismaelite wayfarers were coming from Galaad, and their camels were laden with fragrant substances and a pine resin and oil of myrrh. Now they were traveling to bring them down to Egypt. 26 Then Ioudas said to his brothers, “What advantage is it if we kill our brother and conceal his blood?” 27 Come, let us sell him to these Ismaelites, but let our hands not be upon him, because he is our brother and our flesh.” And his brothers listened. 28 And some Madienite traders were passing by, and they drew out and brought up Ioseph from the pit and sold Ioseph to the Ismaelites for twenty gold pieces, and they brought Joseph down to Egypt.

29 Then Rouben returned to the pit, and he did not see Joseph in the pit, and he tore his clothes.

30 And he returned to his brothers and said, “The youngster is not there, and I, where shall I yet go?” 31 Then taking Joseph’s tunic, they slaughtered a kid of the goats and stained the tunic with the blood. And they sent the variegated tunic, and they brought it in to their father and said, “This we have found; observe whether it is your son’s tunic or not.” 33 And he recognized it and said, “It is my son’s tunic! An evil animal has devoured him, an animal has seized Joseph.” 34 Then Iakob tore his clothes and put sackcloth on his loins, and he was mourning for his son many days.

35 And all his brothers listened. 28 And some Madienite traders were passing by, and they drew out and brought up Ioseph from the pit and sold Ioseph to the Ismaelites for twenty gold pieces, and they brought Joseph down to Egypt.

32 And they sent the variegated tunic, and they brought it in to their father and said, “This we have found; observe whether it is your son’s tunic or not.” 33 And he recognized it and said, “It is my son’s tunic! An evil animal has devoured him, an animal has seized Joseph.” 34 Then Iakob tore his clothes and put sackcloth on his loins, and he was mourning for his son many days.

35 And all his brothers listened. 28 And some Madienite traders were passing by, and they drew out and brought up Ioseph from the pit and sold Ioseph to the Ismaelites for twenty gold pieces, and they brought Joseph down to Egypt.

38 Now it came about at that time that Ioudas went down from his brothers and came as far as to a certain Odollamite man whose name was Hiras. 2 And there Ioudas saw a Chananite man’s daughter whose name was Saua, and he took her and went in to her. 3 And after she had conceived she bore a son and called his name Er. 4 And after she had conceived again she bore a son and called his name Aunan. 5 And yet again she bore a son, and she called his name Selom. Now she was in Chasbi when she bore them. 6 And Ioudas took for Er his firstborn a wife whose name was Thamar. 7 But Er, Ioudas’ firstborn, became wicked in the sight of the Lord, and God killed him. 8 Then Ioudas said to Aunan, “Go in to your brother’s wife, and act the part of a brother-in-law, and raise up offspring for your brother.” 9 But because Aunan knew that the offspring would not be his, it would come about that he would pour out his semen upon the ground when he would go in to his brother’s wife so that he would not give offspring to his brother. 10 Now it seemed evil in the sight of God that he did this, and he put him to death also. 11 Then Ioudas said to his daughter-in-law Thamar, “Stay as a widow in the house of your father until my son Selom becomes full-grown”—for he said, “Lest perhaps he too should die just like his brothers.” And Thamar, after she had departed, stayed in the house of her father.

12 Now the days were multiplied, and the wife of Ioudas, Saua, died, and after Ioudas had been comforted, he went up to Thamna to those shearing his sheep, and he and his shepherd Hiras the Odollamite. 13 And it was reported to his daughter-in-law Thamar—they were saying—“See, your father-in-law is going up to Thamna to shear his sheep.” 14 And taking off from herself the garments of her widowhood, she clothed herself with a light summer garment and adorned herself and sat down near the gates of Ainan, which is on the way past Thamna, for she saw that Selom had become full-grown, yet he did not give her to him as a wife.

15 And when Ioudas saw her he thought she was a prostitute, for she had covered her face, and he did not recognize her. 16 Then he turned aside to her from the way and said to her, “Allow me to come in to you,” for he did not know that she was his daughter-in-law. And she said, “What will you give me, if you come in to me?” 17 And he said, “I will send to you a kid of the goats from the flocks.” And she said, “If you give a pledge until you send it.” 18 And he said, “What pledge shall I give to you?” And she said, “Your ring and your small necklace and the staff that is in your hand.” And he gave them to her and went in to her, and she became pregnant by him. 19 And getting up she went away and took off from herself her light summer garment and put on the garments of her widowhood.

20 Now Ioudas sent the kid from the goats by the hand of his shepherd the Odollamite, to recover the pledge from the woman, and he did not find her. 21 Then he asked the men of the place, “Where is the prostitute who was at Ainan by the road?” And they said, “There was no prostitute here.” 22 And he returned to Ioudas and said, “I did not find her, and the people of the place say that there was no prostitute there.” 23 And Ioudas said, “Let her have them, but let us not be laughed at; I, for my part, have sent this kid, whereas you have not found her.”

24 Now it came about after a period of three months that it was reported to Ioudas—they were saying—“Your daughter-in-law Thamar has played the whore, and see, she is with child by whoredom.” Then Ioudas said, “Bring her out, and let her be burned.” 25 But as she was being brought she sent to her father-in-law, saying, “By the man whose things these are, I am with child.” And she said, “Take note whose is the ring and the small necklace and this staff.” 26 Then Ioudas recognized them and said, “Thamar has been justified rather than I, inasmuch as I did not give her to my son Selom.” And he did not continue to know her any more.

27 Now it came about at the time she was giving birth, that then she had twins in her womb. 28 And it came about as she was giving birth that the one put forth his hand, and taking it, the mid-wife bound scarlet material on his hand, saying, "This one will come out earlier." 29But when he retracted his hand, then immediately out came his brother. And she said, "Why has a barrier been cut through because of you?" And she called his name Phares. 30And afterward his brother came out, upon whom was the scarlet material upon his hand, and she called his name Zara.

Now Joseph was brought down to Egypt, and Potipher, the eunuch of Pharaoh, a chief butcher, an Egyptian, acquired him from the hand of the Israelites, who had brought him down there. 2And the Lord was with Joseph, and he was a successful man, and he was in the house with his Egyptian lord. 3And his lord knew that the Lord was with him and the Lord was prospering whatever he did. 4And Joseph found favor before his lord, and 4he was well pleased with him and appointed him over his house and gave everything that he had into Joseph's control. 5Now it came about after he had been appointed over his house and over everything that he had, that then the Lord blessed the Egyptian's house for Joseph's sake, and the Lord's blessing was on all that belonged to him in the house and in the field. 6And he entrusted everything that he had into Joseph's hands, and he had no knowledge of any of his own affairs except the bread that he would eat.

And Joseph was handsome in physique and very pleasing in appearance. 7And it came about after these matters, that then his lord's wife cast her eyes upon Joseph and said, "Lie with me." 8But he would not, and he said to his lord's wife, "If, because of me, my lord has no knowledge of anything in his house and he gave everything that he has into my hands and nothing in this household is above me and he has not excluded anything from me except you, because you are his wife, then how shall I carry out this evil matter and sin against God?" 9And when she would speak to him, he would not submit to her to sleep with her in order to have relations with her. 10Now some such day came: Joseph went into the house to perform his tasks, and no one of those in the household was inside, 11and she drew him by his garments, saying, "Lie with me!" And leaving his garments behind in her hands he fled and went outside. 12Now it came about when she saw that he had left his garments behind in her hands and had fled and gone outside, 13that then she called those who were in her household and spoke to them, saying, "See, he has brought among us a Hebrew servant to mock us! He came in to me, saying, "Lie with me,' and I cried out with a loud voice. 14And as soon as he heard that I raised my voice and cried out, he fled and went outside, leaving his garments behind with me." 15And she left his garments with herself until the lord came into his house. 16And she spoke with him according to these words, saying, "The Hebrew servant, whom you brought in to us, came in to me to mock me and said to me, 'I will lie with you.' 17But when he heard that I raised my voice and cried out, he left his garments behind with me and fled and went outside."

Now it came about when his lord heard the words of his wife that she spoke to him, saying, "Thus your servant did to me," that then he was incensed with anger. 20And Joseph's lord, taking him, put him into the stronghold, into the place in which the king's prisoners are confined, there in the stronghold. 21And the Lord was with Joseph and poured down mercy upon him, and he gave him favor before the chief jailer, 22and the chief jailer gave the prison into Joseph's control, and all who had been led away, who were in the prison, and everything that they were doing there. 23The chief jailer of the prison had no knowledge of anything because of him, for everything was under Joseph's control, because the Lord was with him, and whatever he would do, the Lord would prosper in his hands.

Now it came about after these matters that the chief cupbearer of the king of Egypt and the chief baker transgressed against their lord the king of Egypt. 2And Pharaoh became angry with his two eunuchs—with the chief cupbearer and with the chief baker—3and he put them in custody at the chief butcher's place in the prison, in the place, there where Joseph had been led away. 4And the chief jailer put them together with Joseph, and he came to their aid, and they were in the jail for some days. 5And both saw a dream—the chief cupbearer and the chief baker, who belonged to the king of Egypt, who were in the prison—each one a dream, in a single night was the appearance of his dream. 6And Joseph came in to them in the morning, and he saw them, and they were troubled. 7And he was asking Pharaoh's eunuchs, who were with him in the jail at his lord's place, saying, "Why is it that your faces are gloomy today?" 8And they said to him, "We have seen a dream, and there is no one to interpret it." Then Joseph said to them, "Is not the clarification of them through God? So relate them to me."

And the chief cupbearer related his dream to Joseph and said, "In my sleep a vine was before me. 10And on the vine were three stems, and it was flourishing, having produced shoots; the grapes of a bunch of grapes were ripe. 11And Pharaoh's cup was in my hand, and I took the bunch of grapes and squeezed it out into the cup and gave the cup into Pharaoh's hands." 12And Joseph said to him, "This is its interpretation: the three stems are three days; 13yet three days and Pharaoh will remember your office and restore you to your chief cupbearership, and you shall give Pharaoh's cup into his hand in accordance with your former office, when you used to pour wine. 14But remember me through yourself, when it should go well with you, and you shall do mercy with me and make mention of me to Pharaoh and bring me out of this stronghold. 15 For by stealth I was stolen out of the land of the Hebrews, and here I did nothing, but they put me into this pit."

16 And the chief baker saw that he interpreted rightly, and he said to Ioseph, "I also saw a dream, and I imagined I was taking up on my head three baskets of coarse meal loaves. 17 Now in the topmost basket was baker's work of all sorts, which the king, Pharao, eats, and the fowl of the sky were devouring them from the basket that was atop my head." 18 Then Ioseph said to him in reply, "This is its interpretation: the three baskets are three days; 19 within three more days Pharao will take away your head from you and hang you on a pole, and the birds of the sky will eat your pieces of flesh from you."

20 Now it came about on the third day that Pharao had a birthday, and he was making a feast for all his servants. And he remembered the office of the chief cupbearer and the office of the chief baker among his servants. 21 And he restored the chief cupbearer to his office, and he gave the cup into Pharaoh's hand, but the chief baker he hanged, just as Joseph had interpreted to them. 22 But the chief cupbearer did not remember Joseph; rather, he forgot him.

41 Now it came about after two years of days that Pharao saw a dream. He imagined he was standing by the river, and look, coming up out of the river were seven cows, fair in form and choice in flesh, and they were grazing in the reed grass. 2 And seven other cows, ugly and scrawny in flesh, were coming up out of the river after them and were feeding by the cows by the bank of the river. 3 And seven other cows, ugly in form and choice in flesh, and they were grazing in the reed grass. 4 And the seven cows that were out of the river were seven cows, fair in form and choice in flesh, and they were feeding by the cows by the bank of the river. 5 And the seven cows that were ugly and scrawny in flesh ate up the seven cows that were fair in form and choice. Then Pharao awoke. 6 And he dreamed for the second time, and look, seven ears of grain, choice and fair, were coming up out of the river after them and were feeding by the cows by the bank of the river. 7 And the seven ears of grain, scrawny and wind-blasted, were growing up after them. 8 And the seven ears of grain, scrawny and wind-blasted, swallowed up the seven choice and full ears of grain. Then Pharao awoke, and it was a dream.

8 Now morning came, and his soul was troubled, and he sent for and called all the expounders of Egypt and all its wise men, and Pharao related his dream to them, and there was no one to tell it to Pharao. 9 And the chief cupbearer spoke to Pharao, saying, "I recall my fault today. 10 Pharao became angry with his servants and put us in custody in the house of the chief butcher, both me and the chief baker. 11 And we saw a dream in one night, he and I; we saw, each one, in accordance with his own dream. 12 Now a young man was there with us, a Hebrew servant of the chief butcher, and we related them to him, and he interpreted them to us. 13 And it came about that just as he interpreted to us, so also it happened, and thus I was restored to my office, but he was hanged."

14 Then Pharao sent for and called Joseph, and they brought him out of the stronghold and shaved him and changed his apparel, and he came to Pharao. 15 And Pharao said to Joseph, "I have seen a dream, and there is no one to interpret it. But I have heard them saying of you that you, on hearing dreams, interpret them." 16 And Joseph said to Pharao in reply, "Without God the safety of Pharao will not be answered." 17 Then Pharao spoke to Joseph, saying, "In my dream I imagined I was standing by the bank of the river, and seven cows, choice in flesh and fair in form, were coming up as it were out of the river and were feeding in the reed grass. 18 And look, seven other cows were coming up after them out of the river, worthless and ugly in form and scrawny in flesh, such that I had not seen uglier in the whole land of Egypt. 19 And the seven scrawny and ugly cows ate up the first seven fair and choice cows, and they entered into their bellies, and they did not become distinguishable considering that they entered into their bellies, and their appearances were ugly as also at first. And after I awoke, I fell asleep. 20 And I saw again in my sleep, and as it were seven ears of grain, full and fair, were coming up on one stalk; 21 then seven other ears of grain, scrawny and wind-blasted, were growing up in proximity to them, and the seven scrawny and wind-blasted ears of grain swallowed up the seven fair and full ears of grain. So I spoke to the expounders, and there was no one to tell me."

25 And Joseph said to Pharao, "Pharao's dream is one; God has shown to Pharao what he is about to do. 26 The seven fair cows are seven years, and the seven fair ears of grain are seven years; Pharao's dream is one. 27 And the seven scrawny cows that were coming up after them are seven years, and the seven scrawny and wind-blasted ears of grain shall be seven years of famine. 28 Now as for the word that I have spoken to Pharao, 'God showed to Pharao what he is about to do,' 29 look, seven years are coming, great plenty in all the land of Egypt. 30 Then afterwards will come seven years of famine, and they will forget the abundance in the whole land of Egypt, and the famine will consume the land, and the plenty will not be observed on the land because of the famine that will be afterwards, for it will be very severe. 31 And as for Pharao's dream being repeated twice: because the matter that is from God will be real, and God will hasten to do it. 32 Now then search out a man, sensible and intelligent, and appoint him over the land of Egypt. 33 And let Pharao make and appoint district governors over the land, and let them take one-fifth of all the produce of the land of Egypt in the seven years of plenty, and let them gather all the provisions of these seven good years that are coming, and let the grain be gathered under the authority of Pharao; let provisions be kept in the cities. 34 And the provisions shall be kept for the land in regard to the seven years of famine that will be in the land of Egypt, and the land will not be annihilated by the famine."
37 And the words were pleasing before Pharaoh and before all his servants, 38 and Pharaoh said to all his servants, “Surely we shall not find such a person, who has a divine spirit within?” 39 Then Pharaoh said to Joseph, “Seeing that God has shown you all these things, there is no person more sensible and intelligent than you. 40 You shall be over my house, and all my people shall comply with your mouth; only with regard to the throne will I be above you.” 41 And Pharaoh said to Joseph, “Look, I am appointing you today over all the land of Egypt.” 42 And removing his ring from his hand, Pharaoh placed it on Joseph’s hand and arrayed him in fine linen apparel and placed a gold collar around his neck. 43 And he mounted him on the second chariot of those that were his, and a crier cried out in front of him. And he appointed him over the whole land of Egypt. 44 And Pharaoh said to Joseph, “I am Pharaoh; without you no one shall lift up a hand in reference to all the land of Egypt.” 45 And Pharaoh called Joseph’s name Psomthophanesch, and he gave him Asenneth daughter of Petephres, priest of Heliopolis, as a wife for him.

46 Now Joseph was thirty years of age when he stood before Pharaoh king of Egypt. And Joseph went out from the presence of Pharaoh and went through all the land of Egypt. 47 And in the seven years of plenty that occurred in the land of Egypt, Joseph gathered up very much grain—like the sand of the sea—until they were unable to count, for there was no counting.

50 Now before the seven years of famine came, Joseph had two sons, whom Asenneth daughter of Petephres, priest of Heliopolis, bore to him. 51 And Joseph called the name of the firstborn Manasse, because “God has caused me to forget all my hardships and all my father’s affairs.” 52 And the name of the second he called Ephraim, because “God has made me increase in the land of my humiliation.”

53 So the seven years of plenty that occurred in the land of Egypt passed, and the seven years of famine began to come, just as Joseph had said. And famine occurred in all the earth, yet in all the land of Egypt there were bread loaves. 55 And all the land of Egypt was hungry, and the people cried to Pharaoh for bread loaves. Then Pharaoh said to all the Egyptians, “Go to Joseph, and whatever he says to you, do.” 56 And the famine was over the face of all the land, and Joseph opened all the granaries and was selling to all the Egyptians. 57 And all the countries came into Egypt to Joseph to buy, for the famine prevailed in all the earth.

42 Now Jakob, when he saw that there was a sale in Egypt, said to his sons, “Why are you idle? 2 See, I have heard that there is grain in Egypt; go down there, and purchase a few provisions for us in order that we may live and not die.” 3 And the ten brothers of Joseph went down to purchase grain from Egypt. 4 But he did not send Joseph’s brother Benjamin with his brothers, for he said, “Lest perhaps sickness befall him.” 5 And the sons of Israel came to buy with those who were coming, for the famine was in the land of Chanaan.

6 Now Joseph was ruler of the land; he was selling to all the people of the land. And when Joseph’s brothers came, they did obeisance to him face down on the ground. 7 And Joseph, when he saw his brothers, recognized them, and he was keeping himself estranged from them and spoke harshly to them and said to them, “Where have you come from?” And they said, “From the land of Chanaan to buy provisions.” 8 Now Joseph recognized his brothers, but they did not recognize him. 9 And Joseph remembered the dreams that he himself had seen, and he said to them, “You are spies; you have come to scrutinize the tracks of the country!”

10 But they said, “No, lord, your servants came to purchase provisions. 11 We are all sons of one man. We are peaceable; your servants are not spies.” 12 Nevertheless he said to them, “No, but you came to see the tracks of the land!”

13 Then they said, “We, your servants, are twelve brothers in the land of Chanaan, and see, the younger is with our father today, and the other is no more.” 14 But Joseph said to them, “This is what I have said to you, saying, ‘You are spies!’ 15 In this you shall manifest yourselves: by the health of Pharaoh, you shall not depart from this place unless your younger brother comes here! 16 Send one of you, and take your brother, but as for you, be led away until your words become manifest, whether you are telling the truth or not; otherwise, by the health of Pharaoh, surely you are spies.”

18 Then on the third day he said to them, “Do this, and you will live, for I fear God. 19 If you are peaceable, let one brother of you be confined in the jail, but you yourselves go, and carry away the purchase of your grain allowance, 20 and bring your younger brother to me, and your words will be believed; otherwise, you shall die.” And they did so.

21 And each one said to his brother, “Indeed, for we are at fault concerning our brother, because we disregarded the affliction of his soul, when he pleaded with us, and we did not listen to him. This is why this affliction has come upon us.” 22 Then Rouben said to them in reply, “Did I not speak to you, saying, ‘Do not injure the youngster?’ And you did not listen to me. And see, his blood is being sought out.” 23 Now they did not know that Joseph was listening, for the interpreter was between them. 24 And turning away from them Joseph wept. And again he came to them and spoke to them, and he took Symeon from them and bound him before them. 25 Then Joseph commanded that they fill their containers with grain and to return the money to each one in his sack and to give them a stock of provisions for the journey. And thus it happened to them.

26 And after they had put their grain upon their donkeys, they departed from there. 27Now when one loosened his bag to give the donkeys fodder where they had lodged, he saw his bundle of money, and it was atop the mouth of the bag. 28And he said to his brothers, “The money has been returned to me, and, look, this is in my bag!” And their heart was confounded, saying, “What is this that God has done to us?”

29 And they came to their father Jakob in the land of Chanaan, and they told him all that had befallen them, saying, 30 “The man, the lord of the land, has spoken harshly to us, and he put us in custody as ones spying out the land. 31 But we said to him, ‘We are peaceable, we are not spies. 32 We are twelve brothers, sons of our father; the one is no more, and the smaller one is with our father today in the land of Chanaan.’ 33 Then the man, the lord of the land, said to us, ‘By this I shall know that you are peaceable: leave one brother here with me, and go off, taking the purchase of your household’s grain allowance, 34 and bring your younger brother to me—and I shall know that you are not spies, but that you are peaceable, and I will return your brother to you—and travel in the land for business.’ ”

35 Now it came about as they were emptying their sacks that then each one’s bundle of money was in their sack. And they saw their bundles of money, they and their father, and they were afraid. 36 And their father Jakob said to them, “I am the one who is bereaved of children: Ioseph is not, and you will take Beniamin. All one you have bereaved of children: Ioseph is not, and you will take Beniamin. All this has come upon me!” 37 Then Rouben spoke to his father, saying, “Kill my two sons, if I do not bring him to you. Give him into my hand, and I will bring him back to you.” 38 But he said, “My son shall not go down with you, because his brother died and he alone has been left. And it will turn out that he becomes sick on the journey that you travel, and you will bring down my old age with sorrow to Hades.”

43 Now the famine prevailed upon the land. 2 And it came about when they had finished eating up the grain that they had brought from Egypt, that then their father said to them, “Again go purchase a few provisions for us.” 3 But Ioudas spoke to him, saying, “With a solemn declaration the man has solemnly declared to us, saying, ‘You shall not see my face unless your younger brother be with you.’ ” 4 If, therefore, you send our brother with us, we will go down and buy you provisions, 5 but if you do not send our brother with us, we will not go, for the man spoke to us, saying, ‘You shall not see my face unless your younger brother be with you.’ ” 6 And Israel said, “Why did you treat me badly by telling the man whether you have a brother?” 7 And they said, “As he was inquiring, the man asked questions about us and our kindness, saying, ‘Is your father still alive? Have you a brother?’ And we reported to him in accordance with this questioning. Surely we did not know whether he would say to us, ‘Bring your brother.’ ”

8 Then Ioudas said to his father Israel, “Send the youngster with me, and rising, we will go in order that we may live and not die—both you and we and our dependants. 9 And I am the one who is surety for him; demand him from my hand. If I do not bring him to you and set him before you, I will have failed in regard to you for all days. 10 For if we had not delayed, we would already have returned twice.”

11 Then their father Israel said to them, “If it is so, do this: take some of the fruits of the land in your containers, and bring down presents to the man, some pine resin and some honey, incense and oil of myrrh and terebinth and nuts. 12 And take twice the money in your hands; bring back with you the money that was returned in your bags; perhaps it is a mistake. 13 Take your brother also and rise, go down to the man. 14 And may my God grant you favor before the man, and may he send off your one brother and Beniamin. For indeed, as for me, just as I have been bereaved of children, I have been bereaved of children.” 15 Now when the men took these presents they also took double the money in their hands, and a Beniamin, and rising, they went down into Egypt and stood before Joseph.

16 And Joseph saw them and his brother Beniamin, and he said to the one in charge of his household, “Bring the men in to the house, and slaughter animals, and make ready, for the men shall eat bread loaves with me during the noon hour.” 17 And the man did just as Joseph said, and he brought the men in to the house of Joseph. 18 Now when the men saw that they had been brought in to Joseph’s house, they said, “Because of the money that was returned in our bags at first we are being brought in so that he may accuse us falsely and set upon us, to take us as slaves with our donkeys.” 19 And going to the man who was in charge of Joseph’s house, they spoke with him in the gateway of the house, 20 saying, “We plead, lord; we came down at first to purchase provisions. 21 Now it came about when we came to the lodging and opened our bags, that then there was the money of each one in his bag! Our money by weight we have now brought back in our hands, 22 and we have brought with ourselves other money to buy provisions. We do not know who put our money into our bags.” 23 But he said to them, “May he be gracious to you; do not be afraid; your God and the God of your fathers gave you treasures in your bags, but I have your good money in full.” And he brought Symeon out to them. 24 And he brought water to wash their feet and gave their donkeys fodder. 25 And they made the presents ready until Joseph came at noon, for they had heard that he was going to have lunch there.

26 And Joseph came into the dwelling, and they brought to him the presents that they had in their hands—into the house—and did obeisance to him face down on the ground. 27 And he asked them, “How are you?” And he said to them, “Is your father well, the old man of whom you spoke? Is he still alive?” 28 And they said, “Your servant our father is well: he is still alive.” And he said, “Blessed be that man to God.” And bending forward they did obeisance to him. 29 Then looking up with his eyes, he saw his brother Benjamin, born of the same mother, and said, “Is this your younger brother, whom you said you would bring to me?” And he said, “May God show mercy to you, child!” 30 And Joseph was troubled, for his insides were twisting up over his brother, and he was seeking to weep. And going into the chamber he wept there. 31 Then washing his face and coming out he controlled himself and said, “Serve bread loaves.” 32 And they served him alone and them by themselves and the Egyptians who were dining with him by themselves, for the Egyptians could not eat bread loaves together with the Hebrews, for it is an abomination to the Egyptians. 33 And they were seated before him, the firstborn according to his seniority and the younger according to his youth, and the men were amazed, each one to his brother. 34 And they carried portions to them from him, but Benjamin’s portion was magnified beyond the portions of all, five-fold in comparison to the ones of those. And they drank and became intoxicated with him.

And Joseph commanded the one who was in charge of his household, saying, “Fill the men’s bags with provisions, as much as they can carry, and put each one’s money at the mouth of his bag. 2 And put my silver cup into the bag of the younger one, with the price of his grain.” And it happened according to the word of Joseph, just as he said. 3 The morning dawned, and the men were sent off, their and their donkeys. 4 Now when they had gone from the city, they were not far off, and Joseph said to the one in charge of his household, “Rise, pursue after the men, and you shall overtake them and say to them, ‘Why is it that you returned evil for good? Why did you steal my silver cup? 5 Is it not this with which my lord drinks? And by orithomancy he practices orithomancy with it. You have perpetrated evil in what you have done.’”

6 And when he found them, he spoke to them according to these words. 7 Then they said to him, “Why does our lord speak according to these words? Heaven forbid for your servants to do according to this word! 8 If indeed the money that we found in our bags we brought back to you from the land of Chanaan, how would we steal silver or gold from your lord’s house? 9 As for the one among your servants with whom the cup should be found, let him die, but as for us, we will be slaves to our lord.” 10 And he said, “Even now, as you say thus it shall be: the one with whom the cup should be found shall be my slave, but as for you, you shall be clear.” 11 And each one hurried and lowered his bag to the ground, and each opened his bag. 12 And he was searching, beginning from the elder until he came to the younger, and he found the cup in the bag of Benjamin. 13 And they tore their clothes, and each one put his bag on his donkey, and they returned to the city.

14 Then Lóudas and his brothers came in to Joseph while he was still there, and they fell on the ground before him. 15 And Joseph said to them, “What is this deed that you have done? Do you not know that a person such as I will practice orithomancy by orithomancy?” 16 And Joseph said, “What shall we say in answer to our lord or what should we speak or how should we justify ourselves? But God has found out the injustice of your servants. Here we are, our lord’s domestics, both we and the one with whom the cup has been found.” 17 But Joseph said, “Heaven forbid for me to carry out this matter! The person with whom the cup was found, he shall be my slave, but as for you, go up in safety to your father.”

18 Then Lóudas, drawing near to him, said, “I plead, lord, let your servant speak a word before you, and do not become angry with your servant, because you are after Pharao. 19 Lord, it was you who asked your servants, saying, ‘Do you have a father or a brother?’ 20 And we said to our lord, ‘We have an elderly father, and he has a younger child of his old age, and his brother died, and he alone was left to his mother, and his father loved him.’

21 Then you said to your servants, ‘Bring him down to me, and I am going to take care of him.’ 22 And we said to our lord, ‘The youngster will not be able to leave his father behind, and if he should leave his father behind, he will die.’ 23 Then it was you who said to your servants, ‘Unless your younger brother comes down with you, you shall not continue still to see my face.’ 24 And it came about when we went up to your servant, our father, that we told him the words of our lord. 25 Then our father said to us, ‘Go again; buy us a few provisions.’ 26 But we said, ‘We shall not be able to go down; yet if indeed our younger brother goes down with us, we will go down, for we shall not be able to see the man’s face, if our younger brother is not with us.’

27 Then your servant our father said to us, ‘You know that my wife bore me two. 28 And the one went away from me, and you said that he had come to be eaten by wild beasts, and I have not seen him ever since. 29 So if you take this one also from my presence and sickness befall him on the way, then you will bring down my old age with sorrow to Hades.’ 30 So now if I go in to your servant, our father, and the youngster be not with us (now his soul depends upon the soul of this one), 31 then it shall be that when he sees the youngster is not with us, he will perish, and your servants will bring down the old age of your servant, our father, with grief to Hades. 32 For your servant has become surety for the child with my father, saying, ‘If I do not bring him to you and set him before you, I will have failed towards my father for all days.’

33 So now I will remain with you as a slave, my lord’s domestic, in place of the child, but let the child go up with his brothers. 34 For how shall I go up to my father, if the child is not with us?—lest I see the evils that will find my father!”

45 And Joseph could not bear with all those who were standing by him, but said, “Send all away from me.” And no one stood by Joseph any longer when he was making himself known to his brothers. 2And he let go his voice with weeping; now all the Egyptians heard it, and it came to be heard in the household of Pharao. 3And Joseph said to his brothers, “I am Joseph. Is my father still alive?” And his brothers could not answer him, for they were troubled.

4 Then Joseph said to his brothers, “Come near to me.” And they came near. And he said, “I am your brother Joseph, whom you sold into Egypt. 5Now therefore do not be distressed nor let it seem hard to you that you sold me here, for God sent me before you for life. 6For famine is on the earth this second year, and there are still five years remaining in which there will be neither plowing nor harvest. 7For God sent me before you, to leave behind a remnant of you on the earth and to nourish a great posterity of you. 8Now therefore it is not you who have sent me here, but rather God, and he made me as a father to Pharao and lord of all his house and ruler over all the land of Egypt. 9So hurry, go up to my father, and say to him, ‘This is what your son Joseph says, God made me lord of all the land of Egypt; so come down to me, and do not remain. 10And you shall settle in the land of Gezem of Arabia, and you shall be near me, you and your sons and your son’s sons, your sheep and your cattle and as much as you have, 11and I will nourish you there—for there is famine for five more years—lest you be annihilated, you and your sons and all your possessions.’ 12Look, your eyes and the eyes of Benjamin my brother see that it is my mouth that speaks to you. 13So report to my father all my glory and the utterance he sent me from the land of Chanaan, which he sent thus: ‘I am Ioseph. Is my father still alive?’ And they came near. And he said, “I am Ioseph. Is my father still alive?” And his brothers could not answer him, for they were troubled.

5 And they went up out of Egypt and came into the land of Chanaan to their father Iakob, 2and they told him, saying, “Your son Ioseph is alive, and he rules over all the land of Egypt!” And Iakob’s mind was confounded, for he did not believe them. 27And they spoke to him all the things said by Joseph, as many as he had said to them. And when he saw the wagons that Joseph had sent as a present to take him up, the spirit of their father Iakob was rekindled. 28Then Israel said, “It is a great thing for me if my son Ioseph is still alive. I will go see him before I die.”

46 Now after Israel had set out, he and all that was his, he came to the well of the oath and offered a sacrifice to the God of his father Isaak. 2Then God said to Israel in a vision of the night (when he had said, “Iakob, Iakob,” and he had said, “What is it?”), 3saying, “I am the God of your fathers; do not be afraid to go down to Egypt, for I will make you into a great nation there, 4and it is I who will go down with you to Egypt, and it is I who will bring you up totally, and Joseph shall lay his hands on your eyes.”

5 Then Iakob rose up from the well of the oath, and the sons of Iakob took up their father Israel and their chattels and their wives on the wagons that Joseph had sent to carry him, 6and when they had taken up their possessions and every acquisition that they had acquired in the land of Chanaan, then he came into Egypt, Iakob and all his offspring with him, 7sons and his sons’ sons with him, daughters and his sons’ daughters, and all his offspring he brought into Egypt.

8 Now these are the names of the sons of Irael who came into Egypt. Saunis and Thasoban and Aedis and Aroedis and Arielis. 17 And the sons of Aser: Lemna and Lesoua and Leoul and Baria and their sister Sara. And the sons of Baria: Chobor and Melchiel. 18 These are the sons of Zelpha, whom Laban gave to his daughter Leia, who bore these to Jakob, sixteen persons. 19 And the sons of Jakob’s wife Rachel: Joseph and Benjamin. 20 And to Joseph in the land of Egypt were born sons a, Manasse and Ephraim, whom Asenneth daughter of Petephres, priest of Heliopolis, bore to him. And b to Manasse were born sons b, whom the Syrian concubine bore to him: Machir, and Machir became the father of Galaad. And the sons of Manasse’s brother Ephraim: Southalaam and Taam. And the sons of Southalaam: Edem. 21 And the sons of Benjamin: Bala and Chobor and Asbel. And c to Bala were born sons: Gera and Noeman and Anchi and Ros and Mamphin and Hophim, and Gera became the father of Arad. 22 These are the sons of Rachel, whom she bore to Jakob—all eighteen persons. 23 And the sons of Dan: Hasom. 24 And the sons of Nephthali: Iasiel and Goyni and Issaar d and Sylem. 25 These are the sons of Balla, whom Laban gave to his daughter Rachel, who bore these to Jakob—all seven persons. 26 And all the persons who came with Jakob into Egypt, who came out from his thighs, not including the wives of Jakob’s sons, all the persons were sixty-six. 27 And the sons of Joseph who were born to him in the land of Egypt were nine persons. All the persons of Jakob’s house who came into Egypt were seventy-five.

28 And he sent loudas ahead of him to Joseph in order to meet him over against Heroonpolis in the land of Ramesses. 29 And when Joseph had hitched up his chariots, he went up to meet his father Israel over against Heroonpolis. And when he appeared to him, he fell upon his neck and wept with much weeping. 30 And Israel said to Joseph, “Henceforth I shall die, since I have seen your face, for you are still alive.” 31 And Joseph said to his brothers, “When I go up, I will tell Pharao and will say to him, ‘My brothers and my father’s household, who were in the land of Chanaan, have come to me. 32 Now the men are shepherds, for they have been stockmen, and they have brought their livestock and their cattle and all that is theirs.’ 33 So if Pharao should call you and say to you, ‘What is your occupation?’ you shall say, ‘We your servants are stockmen from childhood until now, both we and our fathers—in order that you may settle in the land of Gesem of Arabia, for every shepherd of sheep is an abomination to Egyptians.’”

47 And Joseph went and told Pharao, saying, “My father and my brothers with their livestock and cattle and all that is theirs have come from the land of Chanaan, and see, they are in the land of Gesem.” 2 And of his brothers he took along five men and set them before Pharao. 3 And Pharao said to Joseph’s brothers, “What is your occupation?” And they said to Pharao, “Your servants are shepherds of sheep, both we and our fathers.” 4 And they said to Pharao, “We have come to reside as aliens in the land, for there is no pasture for the livestock of your servants, because the famine has prevailed in the land of Chanaan. Now therefore your servants will settle in the land of Gesem.” 5 Then Pharao said to Joseph, (6) “Let them settle in the land of Gesem, and if you know that there are capable men among them, appoint them as rulers of my livestock.” And Jakob and his sons came into Egypt to Joseph, and Pharao king of Egypt heard. (5) And Pharao spoke to Joseph, saying, “Your father and your brothers have come to you. 6 See, the land of Egypt is before you; settle your father and your brothers in the best land.”

7 Then Joseph brought in his father Jakob and set him before Pharao, and Jakob blessed Pharao. 8 And Pharao said to Jakob, “How many are the days of the years of your life?” 9 And Jakob said to Pharao, “The days of the years of my life during which I am sojourning are one hundred thirty years. Few and grievous have been the days of the years of my life; they did not attain to the days of the life of my fathers, during which days they sojourned.” 10 And when Jakob had blessed Pharao, he departed from him. 11 And Joseph settled his father and brothers and granted them a holding in the land of Egypt, in the best land, in the land of Ramesses, as Pharao had ordered. 12 And Joseph would measure out grain to his father and brothers and all his father’s household, grain per person.

13 Now there was no grain in all the land, for the famine prevailed greatly, and the land of Egypt and the land of Chanaan failed because of the famine. 14 Then Joseph collected all the money that was found in the land of Egypt and in the land of Chanaan for the grain that they would buy, and he would measure out grain to them, and Joseph brought all the money into Pharao’s house. 15 And the money from the land of Egypt and from the land of Chanaan failed. Then all the Egyptians came to Joseph, saying, “Give us bread loaves, and why are we dying in your presence? For our money has failed.” 16 And Joseph said to them, “Bring your livestock, and I will give you bread loaves in exchange for your livestock, if the money has failed.” 17 Then they brought their livestock to Joseph, and Joseph gave them bread loaves in exchange for the horses and in exchange for the sheep and in exchange for the cattle and in exchange for the donkeys, and in that year he nourished them with bread loaves in exchange for all their livestock. 18 And that year came to an end, and they came to him in the second year and said to him, “Let us not be wiped out by our lord, for if the money has failed and the possessions and the livestock are with you, our lord, then there is nothing left to us in the presence of our lord except our own body and our land. 19 So lest we die in your presence and the land be desolate, acquire us and our land in exchange for bread loaves, and we with our land will be Pharaoh’s slaves; grant seed in order that we may sow and live and not die, and the land will not be desolated.”

20 And Joseph acquired all the land of the Egyptians for Pharaoh. For the Egyptians sold their land to Pharaoh, because the famine gained mastery over them. And the land became Pharaoh’s—21 and the people he subjugated to him as slaves from the furthest boundaries of Egypt to the furthest—except for the land of the priests alone. Joseph did not acquire it, for by a grant Pharaoh gave a gift to the priests, and they would eat the grant that Pharaoh gave them; therefore they did not sell their land. 22So then Joseph said to all the Egyptians, “See, I have acquired you and your land today for Pharaoh. Take seed for yourselves, and sow the land, and there will be produce from it; you shall give the fifth part to Pharaoh, but the four parts shall be your very own as seed for the land and as food for you and all those in your households.”

23And they said, “You have saved us; we found favor before you, put your hand under my lord, and we will be slaves to Pharaoh.” 24And Joseph imposed it for them as an ordinance upon the land of Egypt, to this day, to give one-fifth to Pharaoh, except for the land of the priests alone; it was not Pharaoh’s.

25 Now the days for Israel to die drew near, and he called his son Joseph and said to him, “If I have found favor before you, put your hand under my thigh, and you shall bring about mercy and truth for me so as not to bury me in Egypt, but I will lie down with my fathers, and you shall carry me out of Egypt and bury me in their burial place.” And he said, “I will do according to your word.” 31 Then he said, “Swear to me.” And he swore to him. And Israel did obeisance upon the top of his staff.

48 Now it came about after these matters that then it was told to Joseph, “Your father is ill.” And taking along his two sons, Manasse and Ephraim, he went to Jakob. 2 And it was reported to Jakob—they were saying—“See, your son Joseph is coming to you.” And summoning his strength, Israel sat upon the bed. 3And Jakob said to Joseph, “My God appeared to me in Louza in the land of Chanaan, and he blessed me and said, ‘See, I will make you increase and will multiply you and will make you into gatherings of nations and will give to you this land, and to your offspring after you, for a perpetual holding.’ 4Now therefore your two sons, who were born to you in Egypt before I came into Egypt to you, are mine, Ephraim and Manasse; like Rouben and Symeon they shall be mine. 5 But the descendants that you may produce hereafter shall be yours; they shall be called after the name of their brothers in their allotments.

7 Now as for me, when I was coming from Mesopotamia of Syria, your mother Rachel died in the land of Chanaan, while I was drawing near, by the hippodrome of Chabratha, of the land, to go to Ephratha, and I buried her on the way to the hippodrome,” this is Bethlehem.

8 And Israel, when he saw Joseph’s sons, said, “Who are these to you?” 9 And Joseph said to his father, “They are my sons, whom God has given me here.” And Jakob said, “Bring them to me in order that I may bless them.” 10Now his eyes were heavy-sighted because of old age, and they could not see. And he brought them near to him, and he kissed them and embraced them. 11 And Israel said to Joseph, “See, I was not deprived of your face, and see, God has shown me your offspring also.”

12 And Joseph brought them from his knees, and they did obeisance to him face down upon the earth. 13 Then when Joseph had taken his two sons, both Ephraim in his right hand but on Israel’s left, and Manasse in his left hand but on Israel’s right, he brought them near him. 14 But Israel, stretching out his right hand, laid it on the head of Ephraim—now he was the younger—and his left on the head of Manasse, his hands crosswise. 15 And he blessed them and said, “The God whom my fathers Abraam and Isaak were well pleasing before, and they shall be multiplied into a great multitude upon the earth.”

16 And Israel blessed them on that day, saying, “The God who sustains me from my youth to this day, the angel who rescues me from all evils, bless these youngsters, and in them my name will be invoked, and the name of my fathers Abraam and Isaak, and may they be multiplied into a great multitude upon the earth.”

17 Now when Joseph saw that his father laid his right hand on the head of Ephraim, it seemed grievous to him, and Joseph took hold of his father’s hand to remove it from Ephraim’s head to Manasse’s head. 18 And Joseph said to his father, “Not so, father; for this one is the firstborn. Put your right hand on his head.” 19 And he would not, but said, “I know, child, I know; this one also shall become a people, and this one shall be exalted, but his younger brother shall be greater than he, and his offspring shall become a multitude of nations.”

20 And he blessed them on that day, saying, “In you Israel will be blessed when they say, ‘God make you like Ephraim and like Manasse.”

And he put Ephraim ahead of Manasse. 21 Then Israel said to Joseph, “Look, I am about to die, and God will be with you, and God will bring you back from this land to the land of your fathers. 22 Now I am giving you Sikima, as something special beyond your brothers, which I took from the hand of the Amorrites with my dagger and bow.”

Then Jakob summoned his sons and said: "Gather together in order that I may tell you what will happen to you at the last of the days.

Assemble, and hear, O sons of Jakob; hear Israel your father.

Rouben, you are my firstborn, my might and beginning of my children, hard to bear and hard, self-centered.

You became wanton like water; do not boil over. For you went up upon your father's bed; then you defiled the couch where you went up!

Symeon and Leui are brothers; they perpetrated injustice by their choice.

May my soul not come into their council, and may my inward parts not press in on their company, because in their anger they killed men and in their passion they hamstrung a bull.

Cursed be their anger, because it is self-centered, and their wrath, because it has grown hard! I will divide them in Jakob and scatter them in Israel.

Ioudas, may your brothers praise you; your hands be on the back of your enemies; your father's sons shall do obeisance to you.

A lion's whelp 'you are', Ioudas; from a shoot, my son, you went up. When you reclined, you slept like a lion and like a whelp. Who will rouse him?

A ruler shall not be wanting from Ioudas and a leader from his thighs until the things stored up for him come, and he is the expectation of nations.

Binding his foal to a vine and his donkey's foal to the tendril, he shall wash his robe in wine and his garment in the blood of a bunch of grapes;

his eyes are gladdening from wine, and his teeth are more white than milk.

Zaboulon by the sea shall settle, and he shall be near a haven of ships, and he shall extend as far as Sidon.

Issachar desired the good, resting between the allotments; and when he saw the resting place—that it was good, and the land—that it was rich, he subjected his shoulder to toil and became a tiller of the ground.

Dan shall judge his own people, as also one tribe in Israel.

And let Dan become a snake on the road lying in ambush on the path, biting a horse's heel, and the rider shall fall backwards, awaiting the deliverance of the Lord.

Gad, a raider gang shall raid him, but he shall raid close on their heels.

Aser, his bread is rich, and he shall give delight to rulers.

Nephthali is a stem let loose, bestowing beauty by the produce.

Josef is a grown son, an enviable grown son, my youngest son; return to me;

one at whom, while deliberating, they would rail, and masters of arrows would have it in for him.

And their bows were crushed with force, and the sinews of the arms of their hands gave way because of the hand of a mighty one of Jakob; thenceforward 'he was' the one who strengthened Israel on the part of your father's god, and my God helped you, and he blessed you with a blessing of heaven above and a blessing of earth containing everything, for the sake of a blessing of breasts and of womb, a blessing of your father and of your mother; it has prevailed, in blessings, over stable mountains, and, in blessings, over everlasting dunes; they shall be upon the head of Josef and on the crown of the brothers whom he led.

Benjamin is a rapacious wolf; in the early morning he shall still be devouring, and at evening he shall distribute food."

All these are the twelve sons of Jakob, and these things their father spoke to them, and he blessed them; each one according to his blessing he blessed them.

And he said to them, "I am about to be added to my people. Bury me with my fathers in the cave which is in the field of Ephron the Chettite, in the double cave that is opposite Mambre in the land of Chanaan, which cave Abraam acquired from Ephron the Chettite in acquisition of a tomb. There they buried Abraam and his wife Sarra, and there they buried Isaak and his wife Rebekka, and there they buried Leia, in the acquisition of the field and the cave that is in it from the sons of Chet. And Jakob ceased issuing orders to his sons, and lifting his feet onto the bed he breathed his last and was added to his people.

And Josep, falling on his father’s face, wept over him and kissed him. And Josep ordered his servants, the undertakers, to prepare his father for burial, and the undertakers prepared Israel for burial. And they completed his forty days, for so the days of burial are reckoned. And Egypt mourned for him seventy days. Then after the days of mourning had passed, Josep spoke to the chief men of Pharao, saying, "If I have found favor before you, speak into the ears of Pharao, saying: My father made me swear an oath, saying, 'In the tomb that I dug out for myself in the land of Chanaan, there you shall bury me.' Now then I will go up and bury my father, and I will return." And Pharao said, "Go up; bury your father, as he made you swear."

And Josep went up to bury his father, and together with him went up all the servants of Pharao and the elders of his house and all the elders of the land of Egypt and the whole entire household of Josep and his brothers and all his paternal household. And their kindred and their sheep and their cattle they left behind in the land of Gesem. And both chariots and horsemen went up together with him, and the company was very great. And they arrived at the threshing floor of Atad, which is beyond the Jordan, and they lamented him with a very great and strong lamentation, and he made mourning for his father seven days. And the inhabitants of the land of Chanaan saw the mourning on the threshing floor of Atad and said, "This is a great mourning to the Egyptians." Therefore one called the name of the place Mourning-of-Egypt, which is beyond the Jordan.

And his sons did thus for him just as he had commanded them, and they buried him there. And his sons took him up into the land of Chanaan and buried him in the double cave over against Mambre, which cave Abraam acquired in acquisition of a tomb from Ephron the Chettite. And Josep returned to Egypt, he and his brothers and those who had gone up together to bury his father.

And Josep’s brothers said that their father had died, they said, "Perhaps Josep may bear a grudge against us and requite us a requital for all the evils that we showed him." And approaching Josep they said, "Your father administered an oath before he expired, saying, 'Say thus to Josep: Forgive them their injustice and fault, seeing that they showed you painful things.' And now accept the injustice of the attendants of the God of your father." And Josep wept as they were speaking to him. And coming to him they said, "We here are your domestics." And Josep said to them, "Do not be afraid, for I am God’s. You deliberated against me for painful things, but God deliberated concerning me for good things in order that a numerous people might be sustained, so that it might come to be as today." And he said to them, "Have no fear; it is I who will sustain you and your households," And he reassured them and spoke to their heart.

And Josep dwelt in Egypt, he and his brothers and his father’s whole entire household. And Josep lived one hundred ten years. And Josep saw the children of Ephraim to the third generation, and the sons of Machir the son of Manasse were born on Josep’s thighs.

And Josep spoke to his brothers, saying, "I am about to die, but with a visitation God will visit you and bring you up out of this land to the land that God swore to our fathers Abraam and Isaak and Jakob." And Josep made the sons of Israel swear, saying, "In the time of the visitation with which God will visit you, you shall also carry up my bones from here together with you." And Josep expired at one hundred ten years of age, and they honored him with funeral rites and placed him in the coffin in Egypt.

This English translation has not altered Wevers’ edited Greek text of Exodus, except infrequently in relation to punctuation. Whereas one might argue for modifications in selected texts, it seemed prudent to adhere to the Göttingen edition and to postpone discussion of possible changes to Wevers’ edition and treat them in the commentary on the NETS translation of Exodus under preparation.

In the account of the tabernacle (Hebrew [MT] 28.23–28; 36.8–34; 37.10b–15, 17–27), in those contexts where the Greek translation omits material in the Hebrew as we know it, Wevers inserted the Greek text as Origen constructed it. However, because these insertions are not part of the original translation, an English translation of Origen’s text appears indented and in smaller typeface in the appropriate places.

General Character
The material found in Exodus consists of narrative, poetry, legal formulation and instructions for building and operating the tabernacle. The Greek translator generally adhered closely to a form of the Hebrew text similar to the MT. From time to time, however, the Greek is longer, shorter or ordered differently. Reasons for such variation are not always clear, and each context requires careful evaluation. For the most part, however, the translator sought to provide a word-for-word rendering. The terms “interlinearity” or “isomorphism” appropriately describe how the translator seems to have proceeded.

While the Greek is often stilted, it normally conveys the sense of the Hebrew text well, and the translator uses various approaches to bring liveliness to the text. For example, in some contexts where the same Hebrew term is used repeatedly, the translator selected different Greek terms as glosses for the same Hebrew. An interesting example is found in the genealogies of chapter 6.

In this case the translator, presumably because he has already used a preferred term to represent one Hebrew lexeme, then selected a second Greek term to represent ἐν ἀλλήλοις. So within the space of ten verses

1 Some examples of apparent expansions:

10.22 καὶ ἦγεν τὸ σκότος γνώμος θύελλα and there was darkness, gloom, hurricane ἡ ἱλαρία τοῦ ἐναλίου

25.16(17) ἱλαστήριον ἐπίθεμα χρυσοῦ καθαροῦ a propitiatory as a cover of pure gold υἱὸς τῆς βραδείας τῆς ἐν καθαιρέσει

2 32.9 in the MT text is not represented in the Greek translation. NRSV renders the MT as "The Lord said to Moses, ‘I have seen this people, how stiff-necked they are.”

3 The order of the commandments in MT 20.13–15 is different from that in the Greek translation:

MT: Murder Greek: Adultery
Adultery Theft
Theft Murder

4 Pietersma, "Paradigm."
we find three different terms rendering הֲנִיתָן. Another example would be in 2.7 where the MT reads נִיתָן ("nurse") and נִיתָן ("to nurse"), using the same Hebrew root. The translator chose the participle תִּרְפָּאֲוֹתָן ("a nursing woman") and פָּשַׁת ("she shall suckle"), two distinct terms, to gloss the same Hebrew root. This kind of lexical variation in the Greek translation occurs quite regularly, even as the translator is careful to preserve general, interlinear correspondence in his translation.

In the Hebrew narrative of Exodus the waw-conjunctive occurs frequently. The translator of Exodus normally used καί as the Greek equivalent. However, where a change in subject occurs or some other emphasis may be warranted, he selected δέ. Aejmelaeus observes that in the case of the translation of Exodus "[c]oordination of clauses by 1 has been rendered by the use of various literal and free renderings, but total omission of 1—disregarding the apodotic cases—is found in less than 3% of the cases, of which 3% some cases may even depend upon a difference in the Vorlage." So the places where the translator failed to render the conjunction are rather infrequent. The translator was equally careful to render pronouns in his Hebrew text.

In the case of word order the translator tended to follow his Hebrew text, but not always slavishly. For example, in Hebrew the pronominal formations normally are attached to nouns as suffixes. We should expect the translator to place the pronoun in Greek following the noun, imitating the Hebrew order, if adherence to Hebrew word order was a significant issue. Non-translation Greek tends to place them in front. In Greek Exodus we discover that about 30 (out of approximately 350) cases are pre-posed, a proportion that is unusually high among the various Septuagint translators.

The aorist form of the verb is the most common rendering chosen by the translator for the Hebrew verb, reflecting the large number of suffixed forms or waw (ו) + prefixed forms (in narrative). However, he does not hesitate to employ other Greek tense forms should that convey more adequately his understanding of the sense of his Hebrew text. An interesting example of this is found in 1.12–14. In the comparative clause structure of v. 12 the translator rendered the imperfect aspect of the Hebrew verbs well by the Greek imperfect form ("But as much as they were humbling them, by so much the more they kept becoming more numerous and stronger"). Each of the verbs that follow (vv. 12b–14) continues to use Greek imperfect forms. This tense form fits the context well, because at this point in the story the narrative reports the worsening condition of the Israelite people as they were oppressed. We also observe in this same context the translator’s use of lexical variation for the same Hebrew term:

v. 13 כָּל הָעֵינִים ... וְקָרָבוֹת הַשָּׁמִיִּים ... בַּיָּסָא (imperfect tense)

v. 14 כָּל הָעֵינִים ... וְקָרָמוֹת הַשָּׁמִיִּים ... מִטָּא בַּיָּסָא (imperfect tense)

And further his repeated use of similar formations (in this case κατά- compounds), presumably for literary effect, may be noted:

v. 13–14 κατεδυνάστευον ... κατωδύκου ... καταδουλούντο.

After his extensive study of the Septuagint of Exodus, Wevers comments that “the dominant characteristic of Exod as a translation document is its expansionist character. On the whole Exod expands far more than contracts.” This tendency appears in many different forms. For example, the translator is careful to define Aaron as Moyses’ brother even when this is not present in the source text (cf. 7.7, 9, 19; 8.5). At 25.6(17) the translator defined the כְּלֵי (יָכִין), the gold plate placed at the top of the ark, as a “cover” (ἐπίθεμα), a term that has no equivalent in the Hebrew text.

Others examples could be added, but the tendency is clear. There is no indication that such clarifications are based on a different Hebrew text. Rather, these additions probably represent the translator’s efforts to ensure that his understanding of the source text would be communicated clearly and explicitly in Greek to the reader.

Of Stereotypes, Calques and Isolates
As the translator proceeded in his work, choosing appropriate terms in the target language to render adequately and contextually the sense of the source text taxed his ability. In Exodus the translator was sensitive to the Hebrew context and so did not hesitate to choose different Greek terms so that the brew sense, as he understood it, would be conveyed adequately. Once he connected a Greek term semantically with a Hebrew term, he tended to continue with this equivalency, unless the context led him to gloss the source text in a different way. For example, the usual rendering of רבד in Exodus is λαλείν, whereas λέγειν normally renders מַלְאָכָּה. However, in one case (31.12, where there is no textual variant in the Septuagint tradition) λαλείν renders מַלְאָכָּה, and out of the three hundred occurrences of λέγειν, it translates רבד about seventeen times. λαλείν would seem to constitute the default rendering of רבד. It is not clear why variation from the default occurs, but it indicates that the translator exercised some freedom. As we have noted previously, we discover lexical variation in contexts where we would expect the usual Greek equivalent because the same Hebrew term is repeated.

Sometimes a Hebrew term will have several distinctive meanings, but the translator will use one Greek term whose semantic content only covers one of the meanings expressed by the Hebrew term. In such cases if the translator sticks with the usual equivalent, then it may create some tension in the context. An examination of the use of ἁμαρτία as the usual equivalent for תְּפֶן (eleven times) and מַלְאָכָּה (three times) provides an interesting example. תְּפֶן indicates both sin and the ritual associated with removing sin (i.e., sin offering). NRSV, for instance, renders it as “sin offering” at 29.14, 36; 30.10, but in all other contexts it uses “sin” (10.17; 32.21, 30, 31, 32, 34; 34.7, 9). The standard sense of ἁμαρτία is “failure, fault or sin.” It does not carry the sense of “sin offering.” When the translator uses ἁμαρτία as the stereotypical gloss for תְּפֶן, the Greek term no longer makes sense in those contexts where תְּפֶן signifies “sin offering.” In 29.36 where Moyses is instructed every day to “offer a bull as a sin offering for atonement” (NRSV), the Septuagint reads καὶ τὸ μισσάριον τῆς ἁμαρτίας ποιήσεις τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τοῦ καθάρισμοῦ (“and the young calf for the sin you shall do on the day of the purification” [NETS]). In these contexts ἁμαρτία becomes an isolate, i.e., being the default rendering for תְּפֶן but not rendering the contextualized meaning of this Hebrew term in the context of the source language, leading to semantic tension in the Greek context (on isolates, see “TO THE READER OF NETS”).

If we move further along this lexical continuum, the calque represents the point on the semantic scale where the semantic range of the Hebrew term dominates that of the chosen Greek gloss. The use of διακοφή (27.21; 31.7; 39.15) as the standard equivalent for תְּפֶן is a well-known example. Others commonly found in the Septuagint also occur in Exodus—יוֹדְעָה for חֹנֶה, κύριος for הָיְהָ and δόξα for דָּבָכָּה.

At times the translator has recourse to transliteration as his only viable strategy. Some of these become standard Greek terms. These would include σαββάτα (Sabbata), πάσχα (passover), μων (Man), χερουβ/cheroubim (cherub/cheroubim) and terms of measurement such as γόμορ and ν.

The NETS Translation of Exodus

Selected Words and Phrases

1. The Bread of Presentation

The translator rendered variously the bread that God commands to be placed on the table outside the most holy part of the tent of witness, the bread of the presence. In the first three Exodus contexts where these ritual loaves are discussed, as God gives instructions to Moyses for the construction of the tent of witness and Moyses has it built, the MT has מַן פַּלֶת (25.30) or מַן פַּלֶת תּוֹעַב (35.13; 39.36). The Septuagint renderings are various:

25.29(30) ἁρτοὺς ἐνωπίους ἐναντίον μου (facing loaves in front of me, NETS)
35.13 (no equivalent in Septuagint)
39.18 (39.36) καὶ τοὺς ἁρτοὺς τοὺς προκειμένους (and the presentation loaves, NETS)

In Ex 40.23 (LXX 40.21) as the writer describes the placement of the table in the constructed tent of witness, the bread is placed on it but defined as δούλος (lit. “an arrangement of bread”). NRSV renders the sentence “and set the bread in order on it.” This clause is rendered by the translator:

Καὶ προέθηκεν ἐπὶ αὐτῶν ἁρτοὺς τῆς προθέσεως ἐναντίον κυρίου (בַּגֵּד) (MT)
and he presented on it loaves of presentation before the Lord (NETS)
(and he set the bread in order on it before the LORD) (NRSV)

The translator did not consider the Hebrew expression to be a technical, cultic phrase, or if he did, either he felt no compulsion to render it consistently or he did not have readily to hand a Greek equivalent that had become normative for Greek-speaking Jews in Alexandria. The rendering that becomes somewhat standard (used in Supplements [Chronicles] for example), i.e., ἄρτος ὁ τῆς προθήκης, only occurs in the Pentateuch at Exodus at 40.21(23) and possibly 39.18(36). We do not know for sure whether the original translator devised the phrase that comes to represent the “loaves of presentation” in Greek, since it is not clear if the same person translated Ex 1–34 and 35–40. What the translator does present consistently is that these loaves were placed “before the Lord.”

2. Divine Name and General Term for Deity

The usual rendering of the tetragrammaton (יהוה) in Exodus is כּוּריֹ אֵ, as in the other sections of the Septuagint. Four times (3.4; 13.19; 18.1; 20.1), however, the translator uses כּוּריֹ אֵ to render רְשׁוֹת. Why the translator glossed רְשׁוֹת with כּוּריֹ אֵ is not altogether clear, but the variation does not seem to be textually based. כּוּריֹ אֵ as a translation of the tetragrammaton renders the qere of the Hebrew text (i.e., what the vowel marks indicate, יָהוּ), not the kethibh (i.e., what the consonants indicate).

Several times (4.10, 13; 5.22; 15.17; 32.22) when the author addresses God as לְוָדָנוֹ ("Lord" or "Master"), the translator renders it as כּוּריֹ אֵ. In these cases כּוּריֹ אֵ renders the Hebrew term appropriately. In ten contexts the translation has כּוּריֹ אֵ with no equivalent in the MT. Sometimes the addition seems to be for clarification (8.28; 17.15; 24.1, 16; 32.31; 34.10; 35.3; 39.12), and in the other instance the translator has apparently chosen to represent the meaning of the Hebrew text in a different way (16.32).

In 4.24 the translator has opted for γάγελος κυρίου to render לְוָדָנוֹ. Perhaps the translator did not want to attribute directly to “the Lord” this attempt on Moyses’ life. Several times the double term לְוָדָנוֹ כּוּריֹ אֵ was rendered by כּוּריֹ אֵ alone (8.10; 9.30), and לְוָדָנוֹ alone was rendered by כּוּריֹ אֵ ό Θεός ύστερον / αὐτού (12.31; 13.5, 11). Whether these anomalies were textually based or occurred for some other reason is uncertain.

In the Septuagint of Exodus כּוּריֹ אֵ normally lacks a definite article (about 354 times in Wevers’ edition), which would indicate that the translator considered it primarily a proper name.7 There are fifteen occasions when the translator used the definite article with כּוּריֹ אֵ to represent לְוָדָנוֹ. There does not appear to be any specific pattern.

Θέος usually translates רְשׁוֹת (about 129 times in Exodus). However, in 41 contexts it rendered לְוָדָנוֹ (almost a quarter of the occurrences of Θέος). The only occurrence of רְשׁוֹת (6.3, preposed by the preposition αὐτόν) is rendered as Θέος ό Θεός ώστεν (“being their God,” NETS). Several times (3.18 [2x]; 5.3b) the translator rendered the combined רְשׁוֹת לְוָדָנוֹ by Θεός alone. Perhaps the translator thought that the use of כּוּריֹ אֵ would not be appropriate because of the way God’s personal name was being revealed to Israel (3.18), or perhaps, because Moyses was making his first appeal to Pharao (5.3b), the more generic term seemed appropriate. There are also several contexts where the Hebrew text has רְשׁוֹת as the reference to God, and the translator normally used Θέος as his gloss. In a number of contexts Θέος apparently has no Hebrew equivalent, usually in conjunction with cases of כּוּריֹ אֵ to render לְוָדָנוֹ.

The translator’s use of Θέος, the general term for deity (including non-Israelite deities), was more diverse than his use of his equivalent for the proper name of Israel’s God. In NETS Exodus Θέος is rendered as ‘G/god’ and כּוּריֹ אֵ as ‘L/lord.’ The capitalized forms refer to Israel’s deity.

In Ex 3.13–14, when God appears to Moyses through the burning bush, Moyses asks God to tell him his name. The translator rendered the difficult Hebrew as Ἐγώ εἰμι ὁ σωτήρ ("I AM The One Who Is," NETS8). The translator repeated (14b) this expression (ὁ σωτήρ = רְשׁוֹת) as the name for the God of Israel, who has sent Moyses. The similar form of רְשׁוֹת (proper name) and רְשׁוֹת (first person singular, prefix form of the Qal stem of רְשׁוֹת = "to be") and the corresponding etymology cannot be duplicated in Greek. The translator opted to translate the expression, not to transliterate it in this context.

3. Pharao’s “Hardness of Heart”

In Exodus one of the most provocative issues is the way in which Israel’s God interacts with Pharao. As God acts to extricate Israel from her bondage in Egypt, he influences Pharao’s behavior. His motive is 7 Normally in Greek a proper name does not require the definite article. Sometimes, if the name is indeclinable, the definite article will be used to remove any ambiguity about the function of its noun in the clause. When the Hebrew text uses רְשׁוֹת to refer to a human “lord, owner, master,” the translator consistently uses an article with the noun to indicate that it is not being used as a proper name (21.4 [2x], 5, 6 [2x], 8, 32). This same convention is used to represent רְשׁוֹת (21.28, 29 [2x], 34 [2x]; 22.8, 11, 12, 14, 15). There is no Hebrew equivalent to the usage at 21.36 but the Greek text uses the definite article (τῷ κυρίῳ σωτῆρ).

8 NRSV glosses the Hebrew as “I AM WHO I AM,” with several options mentioned in the footnote, namely “I AM WHAT I AM” or “I WILL BE WHAT I WILL BE.” explained in 14.4: “I will harden Pharaoh’s heart... so that I will gain glory for myself over Pharaoh and all his army; and the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord” (NRSV). Three Hebrew verbs are used to express this concept and the translator is quite consistent, if not stereotyped, in his renderings, with the exception of 7.13.

In these choices the translator sought to reflect the different emphases in the Hebrew terms—heaviness or weightiness in the equivalence of ḫārā’ō for בָּרָע, and hardness in the equivalence of ṣklhrū’ā for קָדָם. However, the equivalence of ṣklhrū’ā and κατισχόω for πίπτω ("make strong, strengthen") is notable, but for different reasons. In the case of ṣklhrū’ā, the semantic overlap in Exodus with πίπτω focuses on the idea of firmness = stubbornness. The Hebrew term generally means, “to be strong or firm” and in the Piel form “to make strong or firm.” When related to the noun ḥwr ("heart"), it signifies positively devotion (a firm conviction), but negatively stubbornness. ṣklhrū’ā represents the latter in Exodus as it defines Pharao’s response to God’s activities through the plagues or the catastrophe at the Red Sea. If the evidence in LSJ is correct and complete, this usage of the verb ṣklhrū’ā to signify stubbornness may have emerged initially in the Septuagint of Exodus.11

The singular use of κατισχύω at 7.13 as the rendering of πίπτω with the sense of “prevail” is also interesting (“and the heart of Pharao prevailed, and he did not listen to them” [NETS]). Wevers suggests that “presumably Exod here used κατίσχυεν to set the scene of the struggle between the divine signs and the stubborn heart of Pharaoh.”12 In other words the translator purposely changed the stereotypical rendering of πίπτω by ṣklhrū’ā to κατισχύειν, probably to emphasize this aspect of contest. In this context God performs the first sign through Moyses and Aaron to convince Pharao to release Israel (the rod becoming a dragon) (7.8–13), and it follows the explanation that God provides to Moyses concerning the series of events that is about to unfold and result in Israel’s release. Only in this context (7.1–13) do we find all three terms (ḇārū’ō, ṣklhrū’ā, κατισχύω) used to define God’s influence on Pharao and Pharao’s response to Moyses’ demands as God’s representative.

4. “Seeing God”

Exodus is unusual in the narratives of the Old Testament with respect to the number of times when people, either individually or as a group, ask to "see God" or are permitted by God’s initiative to see him. In addition to the times that Moyses is invited up onto Mount Sina in order to meet with God (Moyses’ face is shining after he meets with God), the pillar of cloud and fire or the cloud that descended over the newly erected tabernacle signify the presence of God with Israel, all of which reflect this emphasis upon seeing, meeting, or in some other way directly interacting with God.

Where the Hebrew text states that people “see God,” the translator employs various means to express a theologically sensitive rendering, presumably preserving the theological principle that no person can see God and live. At 3.6 the comparative texts and translations read:

9 Significant manuscripts in the tradition read ἴδονται, and Rahlfs opted for this as the original text. Wevers disagrees, arguing that the variation occurs because of homonymity, which only occurs between these verbs in the perfect form. Because ἴδονται does not occur elsewhere in Exodus (nor in the Septuagint other than as a variant at 2 Makk 13.9) and ἴδονται is the usual rendering for ἴδον in Exodus, when it has this sense, Wevers opts for ἴδον as the original reading.

10 In 10.1 there are significant Greek texts that have the alternative reading ἴσκληρον. Rahlfs chose this reading, presumably because it had the support of B. However, I think Wevers’ judgment is correct that the translator’s consistent use of ἴδονται for ἴδον in reference to Pharao’s stubbornness would urge us to accept ἴδον as the original text.

11 The adjective ἴσκληρος does signify stubbornness as early as Plato’s writings, and so the extension of the cognate verb to signify this would not be exceptional, if this is in fact what the translation of Exodus initiated. See LSJ, 10612.

TO THE READER OF EXODUS

And Moses hid his face, for he was afraid to look at God.

MT: רבסהפקת שלשה פנים כי ירא מתרפה אלהים
NRSV: And Moses hid his face, for he was afraid to look at God.
LXX: ἀπετρεψεν δὲ Μωυσῆς τὸ πρόσωπον αὐτοῦ ἐυλαβεῖτο γὰρ κατεμβλέψαι ἐνώπιον τοῦ θεοῦ.
NETS: And Moyses turned his face away, for he was afraid to look down before God.

This singular use of κατεμβλέψαι in Exodus as the rendering of יָבֹהַמ here indicates that the translator was avoiding the implication that Moyses actually "looked at," i.e., saw, God. Wevers also notes that the preposition "enhances the avoidance of directly looking at God."13

After God completes his revelation of Israel’s covenantal obligations, he invites the Israelite leadership to ascend Sinai and worship (24.1–2). The narrative describes this encounter (24.9–11) as an occasion when the chief men of Israel "saw the God of Israel . . . they beheld God" (NRSV). In fact they celebrated by eating a sacred meal in God’s presence. The comparative texts and translations read:

MT: יִרְאֶה אֵת אָלָהִים יִשְׂרָאֵל (11) . . . (10)
NRSV: and they saw the God of Israel . . . also they beheld God
LXX: καὶ ἐίδον τὸν τόπον, οὐ εἰστικεί ἐκεί ὁ θεός τοῦ Ἰσραήλ . . . καὶ ὄρθισαν ἐν τῷ τόπῳ τοῦ θεοῦ.
NETS: And they saw the place, there where the God of Israel stood . . . And they appeared in the place of God

The Septuagint translator would only admit that Israel’s leaders saw "the place . . . where the God of Israel stood," but not that human beings saw God. He described this place in the following manner: "that which was beneath his feet, like something made from lapis lazuli brick and like the appearance of the firmament of heaven in purity." This note in the narrative may have influenced his choice to emphasize the "place" of God. The Hebrew text (v. 11) notes the expectation that seeing God should result in calamity, but God graciously restrains himself. No one is harmed through this experience. “Not even one . . . perished,” the Septuagint notes.

The other primary context comes in Ex 33–34 as Moyses intercedes with God, seeking Israel’s preservation from God’s threatened judgment after the golden calf episode. When God promises to relent and to continue with his program to bring Israel to the land of Chanaan, Moyses asks for some visible sign that God will stand by his word. Moyses boldly asks to see God. “Show me your glory!” he demands (33.18). The risk in his demand becomes explicit as the narrator records God’s warning that “you cannot see my face; for no one shall see me and live” (33.20). Yet God makes an accommodation for Moyses’ sake. While many things in this narrative context deserve comment, I will focus on 33.23.

MT: יִתְנָה אִתָךְ אֵת אָלָהִים יִשְׁרָאֵל יִנָּה לְךָ
NRSV: then I will take away my hand, and you shall see my back; but my face shall not be seen.
LXX: καὶ ὀφελῶ τὴν χείρα, καὶ τὸτε ὄψιν τὰ ὅπισώ μου, τὸ δὲ πρόσωπόν μου οὐκ ὄρθισεται σοι.
NETS: And I will take my hand away, and then you shall see my hind parts, but my face will not appear to you.

The translator removes any suggestion that Moyses might see any significant part of God, only his "hind parts."

The translator’s handling of these contexts would suggest that his theological framework governed his rendering, as he sought to follow the principle (33.20) that “no one shall see me [God] and live,” at the same time dealing with segments in the narrative of Exodus that affirmed that some in Israel did see God and continued to live.

Perhaps connected with this phenomenon is the way in which the translator renders the Hebrew root בָּדַד, which means "to appoint, meet." When it occurs in the description of the ark and the use of the propitiatory or the tabernacle itself, God affirms to Israel that “there I will meet with you” (25.21; 29.42, 43; 30.36). However, in each of these settings the translator "quite intentionally"14 understood this root as the verb בָּדַד, which means "to know."

14 Wevers, Notes, 401.
It is improbable that in all four instances the translator misread his source text or that he read a source at variance with MT. More likely, they bespeak theological sensitivity about divine involvement in human agency. The translator emphasized that God revealed himself, and this is how a "meeting" was to be understood between God and human beings. The use of ταχζμαι in 29.43 reinforces this idea that God’s meeting was the occasion when his commands were communicated.

5. The Ten Commandments
The translator’s rendering of the traditionally named “ten commandments” (Ex 20.1–17) was very close to the Hebrew text as we have it today. However, characteristically the Greek text is expansionist:

20.10 ὦ βοῦς σου καὶ τὸ ὑποξύγιον σου (“your ox and your draft animal”)
20.12 ἵνα εὖ σοι γένηται (“so that it may be well with you”) 20.12 (ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς τῆς ἀγαθῆς (“[on] the good [land”).

Further, there are several texts in which the order of materials is different:

Whether the different order is due to textual or other reasons is not possible to determine at this point. One other word order change worth noting occurs in 20.17. The Septuagint places the neighbor’s house first before the neighbor’s wife, in contrast to the Hebrew text that places the house first, followed by the wife. Why such a reordering occurs remains a matter of speculation.

The terminology referring to the various commands that God gives to Israel tends to be stereotyped in translation. The exceptions are the term ἔγραψα, which is rendered by four different terms, and δει λησθαι, which was translated primarily by ἐντόλῃ, but once by πρόσταγμα. What nuance πρόσταγμα carried that made it the right choice for the translator in 20.6 is uncertain.

15 The addition is included in the citation of this command in Ephesians 6.2–3.
The use of the adjective νόμιμος in the singular as a substantive τὸ νόμιμον, although infrequently documented in the third century BCE, became the stereotyped rendering for (יִשְׂרָאֵל) in Exodus, reflecting the singular form of the Hebrew terms.

6. The Peoples of Chanaan
When God talks about fulfilling his promise to Abraam, Isaak and Iakob in Exodus, the land to which he will lead them is defined as belonging to specific people. In the Greek Pentateuch seven different groups are specified consistently:

εἰς τὸν τόπον τῶν Χαναναίων καὶ Χετταίων καὶ Ἀμορραίων καὶ Φερεξαίων καὶ Εύαίων καὶ Γέργασιών καὶ Ἰεβούσιων (into the place of the Chananites and Chettites and Amorrites and Pherezites and Heuites and Gergesites and lebousites. [NETS 3.8, 17; 23.23; 34.11; in different order at 13.5; partial list at 23.28; 33.2])

Consistently (apart from 23.28) Γέργασιών has been added at some point (position 4, 5 or 6) in the list, although it does not occur in the translator’s Hebrew text.

7. Specific Texts
In Ex 25–31 Moyses receives instructions for building the tabernacle. After the event of the Golden Calf (32–34), Moyses proceeds with the construction of the “tent of witness” (35–40). Undoubtedly the account describing the construction of the tabernacle (κατασκευάζειν τὸ τεμένος του μαρτυρίου, “tent of witness,” or διοικεῖν καὶ κατασκευάζειν “tent,” presents the greatest problem in Exodus to understanding the translation process. The Greek text, when compared to the MT, is much shorter and puts various materials in a different order. Further, some indicators suggest that either the translator responsible for at least part of chapters 35–40 was different from the translator of chapters 1–34 or a later editor has substantially altered the initial translation for some reason.

Generally speaking the Greek translation describes the production of the priestly vestments (36.8–40) and then the construction of the tabernacle and its equipment (37.1–39.11), whereas the Hebrew text begins with the construction of the tabernacle and its equipment (36.8–38.31) and then describes the priestly vestments (39). But the alterations in the translation are sometimes surprising. The Greek text does not describe the making of the incense altar, for example. It abbreviates significantly passages related to the lampstand and the table of the presence. Detailed charts comparing the Hebrew and Greek texts can be found in various treatments of this problem. Midrashic explanation that is not found in the Hebrew text occurs at one point. The bronze for the bronze altar is said to be taken “from the bronze firepans that belonged to the men who revolted with the gathering of Kore” (38.22).

18 The material seems to be taken from the account in Num 16.37–39 (MT: 17.2–4).
Various hypotheses have been proposed to explain why these major differences emerged in the tradition:

1. The translator had a Hebrew text different from that which we have today, and this accounts for the variation in the Greek text. However, no Hebrew text yet discovered seems to match the Greek translation.

2. For some reason the translator of chapters 1–34 did not complete the translation and another person finished the task, who used a different translation process, while consulting the earlier material. Detailed studies of translation technique expressed in these respective sections, however, indicate only minor variations in translation techniques between these sections of Exodus, apart from chapter 38.

3. One person did the original translation of Exodus following the order of the Hebrew text as we know it, but because he misunderstood the text, or for some other reasons, he created inconsistencies in his translation. A later reviser has edited this original work, adding some materials particularly in chapter 38 and being responsible for a major rearrangement of the Greek text.

4. The original translator is responsible for the current Greek text and used specific principles as the basis for his unique account, which is a “well-planned, well-constructed account which when read by itself and without prejudice usually makes good sense.”¹⁹

At this point we might suggest that the most recent comprehensive studies (1) see no need to postulate a different Hebrew text throughout chapters 35–40, (2) discern a large degree of consistency in the fundamental translation technique used throughout Greek Exodus, but (3) detect enough difference between 1–34 and 35–40 to indicate another hand may be at work in some way in the final chapters of the translation, and (4) proceed from the assumption that the original translation of 35–40 was created to make sense to the translator and his presumed audience. We have little data to inform us about the sociological aspects of translation in antiquity and in particular biblical translation. Whether it was acceptable to abbreviate portions of sacred text and make major rearrangements in the structure of the narrative remains debated. However, the fact remains, whether we postulate one translator for Ex 1–40 or several translators or editors, we have a Greek translation for this section that is quite different, being much shorter and ordered differently, from the Hebrew text that we possess today.

EDITORIAL DETAIL
NETS Exodus normally has followed the punctuation proposed in Wevers’ edited text. In terms of versification, where the Septuagint differs from that of the NRSV, the NRSV versification is noted in parenthesis (cf. 18.18; 21.16, 17).

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE
In addition to the standard grammars and lexica, I have received considerable assistance from the works by John William Wevers, particularly his Notes on the Greek Text of Exodus (1990) and his Text History of the Greek Exodus (1992). The translation and commentary by Alain le Boulluec and Pierre Sandevoir in L’Exode BA (1989) has been helpful in many instances. The earlier translation by Brenton has also provided assistance from time to time.

Wevers’ discussion of the Tabernacle section, as well as those by David Gooding in The Account of the Tabernacle: Translation and Textual Problem of the Greek Exodus (1959) and Martha Wade in Consistency of Translation Techniques in the Tabernacle Accounts of Exodus in the Old Greek (2003), have provided significant methodological and textual suggestions.

I must also acknowledge the assistance of Albert Pietersma, who provided editorial guidance and helped to resolve many translation issues.

¹⁹ Wevers, Notes, 144.
These are the names of the sons of Israel who had entered into Egypt with Jakob their father. Each with their whole household went in: 2 Rouben, Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, Zaboulon and Benjamin. 4 Dan and Nephtali, Gad and Aser. 5 But Joseph was in Egypt. Now all souls from Jakob were seventy-five. 6 Then Joseph died, and all his brothers and all that generation. 7 But the sons of Israel increased and multiplied and became common and were growing very, very strong. Now the land kept multiplying them.

8 Now another king arose over Egypt, who did not know Joseph. 9 Now he said to his nation, “Look, the race of the sons of Israel is a great multitude and is becoming stronger than we. 10 Come then, let us deal shrewdly with them, lest it be multiplied, and, whenever war happens to us, these also shall be added to the opponents, and after going to war against us, they shall depart from the land.” 11 And he set over them overseers of tasks in order to afflict them in the tasks. And they built fortified cities for Pharaoh, both Pithom and Ramesses and On, which is Heliopolis. 12 But as much as they were humbling them, by so much the more they kept becoming more numerous and stronger, and the Egyptians were disgusted with the sons of Israel. 13 And the Egyptians were oppressing the sons of Israel forcefully and were grievously afflicting their life by the hard tasks in clay and brick making and all the tasks in the plains, according to all the tasks in which they were enslaving them with force.

15 And the king of the Egyptians spoke to the Hebrews’ midwives, to one of them whose name was Sepphora, and the name of the second was Phoua. 16 And he said, “Whenever you act as midwives to the Hebrew women and they should be at the birthing stage, if then it be male, kill it, but if female, preserve it alive.” 17 But the midwives feared God, and they did not do as the king of Egypt instructed them and tried to keep the males alive. 18 Then the king of Egypt summoned the midwives and said to them, “Why is it that you have done this thing and tried to keep the males alive?” 19 The midwives then said to Pharaoh, “The Hebrew women are not like the women of Egypt, for they give birth before the midwives go in to them,” and they were already giving birth.

20 Now God was dealing well with the midwives, and the people kept on multiplying and becoming very strong. 21 Because the midwives were fearing God, they made families for themselves. 22 Then Pharaoh instructed all his people, saying, “Every male that might be born to the Hebrews, throw into the river, and every female, keep it alive.”

Now there was a certain man from the tribe of Levi who took one of the daughters of Levi and married her. 2 And she conceived and bore a male child. Now when they saw it was handsome, they sheltered it for three months. 3 But when they could hide it no longer, its mother took a basket and plastered it with a mixture of pitch and tar, and she put the child in it and placed it in the marsh beside the river. 4 And his sister was watching from a distance to learn what would happen to him.

5 Now Pharaoh’s daughter came down to the river to bathe, and her attendants were walking beside the river. And when she saw the basket in the marsh, she sent her attendant, and she picked it up. 6 Now when she opened it, she saw a child crying in the basket, and Pharaoh’s daughter spared it and said, “This is one of the Hebrew’s children.” 7 And his sister said to Pharaoh’s daughter, “Do you wish that I summon for you a nursing woman from the Hebrews, and she shall suckle the child for you?” 8 Then she, Pharaoh’s daughter, said to her, “Go!” But the girl went and summoned the child’s mother. 9 And Pharaoh’s daughter said to her, “Take care of this child for me, and suckle it for me, and I will give you your pay.” Then the woman took the child and kept suckling it. 10 Now when the child grew up, she brought it to Pharaoh’s daughter, and it became to her for a son. And she named his name Moyses, saying, “I drew him out of the water.”

11 Now it came to pass in the course of those many days, when he had fully grown, Moyses went out to his brothers, the sons of Israel. And as he observed their toil, he saw an Egyptian man beating some Hebrew from his own brothers, the sons of Israel. 12 Now when he looked around this way and that, he saw no one, and he struck the Egyptian and hid him in the sand. 13 Now when he went out on the next day, he saw two Hebrew men fighting, and he said to the one who was in the wrong, “Why do you beat your fellow?” 14 But he said, “Who appointed you ruler and judge over us? You do not intend to kill me, do you, in the same way you killed the Egyptian yesterday?” Then Moyses was afraid and said, “Has this matter perhaps become so well known?” 15 Now Pharaoh heard about this matter, and he was seeking to kill Moyses.

Then Moyses withdrew from Pharaoh’s presence and settled in the land of Madian. Now when he came into the land of Madian, he sat upon the well. 16 Now the priest of Madian had seven daughters who were tending their father’s sheep. So when they arrived, they were drawing water until they filled the receptacles in order to water their father’s sheep. 17 But when the shepherds arrived, they were driving them away. But Moyses got up and rescued them and drew water for them and watered their sheep. 18 Now they arrived back to Ragouel, their father, and he said to them, “Why is it that you were quick to arrive today?” 19 And they said, “An Egyptian man rescued us from the shepherds and drew water for us and watered the sheep.” 20 And he said to his daughters, “And where is he? And for what reason have you left this man behind like this? Invite him then in order that he might eat bread.” 21 Now Moyses stayed with the man, and he gave Sepphora, his daughter, to Moys-
Now an angel of the Lord led the sheep beyond the wilderness and came to standing is holy ground.” And he said to him, “I stand from your feet! For the place on which you are shall say to the sons of Israel, ‘The Lord, the God to them. The Lord, the God of your fathers, has appeared to me, God of Abraam and God of Isaak and God of Iakob, saying, ‘With concern I have God remembered his covenant with Israel, out of the land of Egypt.’ But God spoke to God, ‘Who am I that I should go to Pharao, king of Egypt, and that I should bring the sons of times for a wife. Now when she became pregnant, the woman bore a son, and Moyses called his name Gersam, saying, “Because I am a resident alien in a foreign land.”

And Moyses was tending the sheep of Iothor, his father-in-law, the priest of Madian, and he led the sheep beyond the wilderness and came to the mountain, Choreb. Now an angel of the Lord appeared to him in a fire of flame out of the bush, and he saw that the bush was burning with fire, but the bush was not burning up. Then Moyses said, “When I pass by, I will look at this great sight, why it is that the bush is not burning up.” Now when the Lord saw that he was drawing near to see, the Lord called him from the bush, saying, “Moyses, Moyses.” And he said, “What is it?” And he said, “Do not come near here! Loose the sandal from your feet! For the place on which you are standing is holy ground.” “And he said to him, “I am the Lord, the God of your father, God of Abraam and God of Isaak and God of Iakob.” And Moyses turned his face away, for he was afraid to look down before God.

Then the Lord said to Moyses, “When I looked, I saw the affliction of my people in Egypt, and I have heard their cry on account of the taskmasters. For I know their pain. And I came down to deliver them from the hand of the Egyptians and to bring them out of that land and to bring them into a good and spacious land, into a land flowing with milk and honey, into the place of the Chananites and Chettites and Amorrites and Pherezites and Heuites and Gergesites and lebousites. And now, look, the cry of the sons of Israel has come to me, and I have seen the oppression with which the Egyptians oppress them. And now come, let me send you to Pharao, king of Egypt, and you will bring my people, the sons of Israel, out of the land of Egypt. And Moyses said to God, “Who am I that I should go to Pharao, king of Egypt, and that I should bring the sons of Israel out of the land of Egypt?” But God spoke to Moyses, saying, “I will be with you, and this shall be the sign for you that I am sending you: when you have brought my people out of Egypt, you shall also serve God at this mountain.”

And Moyses said to God, “Look, I shall come to the sons of Israel and shall say to them, ‘The God of your fathers has sent me to you; they will ask me, ‘What is his name?’ What shall I say to them?” And God said to Moyses, “I am The One Who Is.” And he said, “Thus shall you say to the sons of Israel, ‘The One Who Is has sent me to you.’” And God said again to Moyses, “Thus you shall say to the sons of Israel, ‘The Lord, the God of your fathers, God of Abraam and God of Isaak and God of Iakob, has sent me to you.’ This is an everlasting name of mine and a memorial of generations to generations.

Therefore, go, and assemble the elders’ council of the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them, ‘The Lord, the God of your fathers, has appeared to me, God of Abraam and God of Isaak and God of Iakob, saying, ‘With concern I have concerned myself with you and what has happened to you in Egypt.’ And I said, “I will bring you up from the affliction of the Egyptians into the land of the Chananites and Chettites and Heuites and Amorrites and Pherezites and Gergesites and lebousites, into a land flowing with milk and honey.” And they will listen to your voice, and you and the elders’ council of Israel shall go in to Pharao, king of Egypt, and you shall say to him, ‘The God of the Hebrews has summoned us. Therefore, let us go a three days’ journey into the wilderness so that we may sacrifice to our God.’ Now I know that Pharao, king of Egypt, will not permit you to go, except with a mighty hand. And when I stretch out my hand, I will strike the Egyptians with all my wonders that I will perform among them, and after these things he will send you away. And I will give favor to this people before the Egyptians. Now whenever you depart, you will not go away empty-handed. But a woman will ask from a neighbor and tent mate of hers silver and gold articles and clothing, and you shall put them on your sons and on your daughters, and you shall plunder the Egyptians.”

Then Moyses answered and said, “If then they should not believe me or listen to my voice, for they will say, ‘God has not appeared to you!’ what shall I say to them?” Then the Lord said to him, “What is this in your hand?” And he said, “A rod.” And he said, “Throw it on the ground!” And he threw it on the ground, and it became a snake, and Moyses fled from it. And the Lord said to Moyses, “Stretch out your hand, and seize the tail! (then he stretched out his hand and seized the tail, and it became a rod in his hand) —so that they may believe you, that the Lord, the God of their fathers, God of Abraam and God of Isaak and God of Iakob, has appeared to you.”

Now the Lord said to him again, “Put your hand into your bosom!” And he put the hand into his bosom, and he brought his hand out of his bosom, and his hand became as snow. And he said, “Again put your hand into your bosom!” And he put the hand into his bosom and brought it out of his bosom, and again it was restored to the color of his flesh. “Now if they should not believe you or listen to the voice of the first sign, they will believe you because of the voice of the last sign. And it will be if they should not believe you for these two signs or listen to your voice, you shall take some of the river’s water and pour it on the dry ground, and the water, whatever you take from the river, will be blood on the dry ground.”
But Moyses said to the Lord, “Please, Lord, I am incompetent—before yesterday or the third day or since you began to speak to your attendant. I am weak-voiced and slow-tongued.” 11 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “Who gave a mouth to a person, and who made him deaf and mute, seeing and blind? Is it not I, the Lord God? 12 And now go, and I will open your mouth and teach you what you are going to speak.” 13 And Moyses said, “Please, Lord, appoint another capable person, whom you will send.” 14 And enraged with anger towards Moyses the Lord said, “Look, is not Aaron your brother, the Leuite? I know that when he speaks, he will speak for you. And look, he will come out to meet you, and when he sees you, he will be glad in himself. 15 And you shall speak to him and put my words in his mouth. And I will open your mouth and teach you what you shall do. 16 And he shall speak for you to the people, and he shall be your mouth, but you shall be to him the things pertaining to God. 17 And this rod, which was turned into a snake, you shall take in your hand, with which you shall perform the signs with it.”

18 Now Moyses went and returned to Iothor, his father-in-law, and said, “I shall go and return to my brothers in Egypt and see whether they are still living.” And Iothor said to Moyses, “Go in health.” Now after those many days the king of Egypt had died. 19 And the Lord said to Moyses in Madian, “Go! Return to Egypt! For all those who were seeking your soul are dead.” 20 Then Moyses took his wife and children and put them on draft animals, and he went back to Egypt. And Moyses took the rod from God in his hand.

21 And the Lord said to Moyses, “As you go and return to Egypt, see, all the wonders which I put in your hands, you shall perform them before Pharao. But I will harden his heart, and he will not send the people away. 22 Then you shall say to Pharao, ‘This is what the Lord says, “My firstborn son is Israel.” ’ 23 And I said to you, ‘Send my people away so that they might serve me.’ Now then, if you are unwilling to send them away, see then, I will kill your firstborn son.’ ”

24 Now it happened on the way at the lodging, an angel of the Lord met him and was seeking to kill him. 25 And Sephora took a pebble and circumcised the foreskin of her son, and she fell at his feet and said, “The blood of the circumcision of my child is staunched.” 26 And he went away from him, because she said, “The blood of the circumcision of my child is staunched.”

27 And the Lord said to Aaron, “Go into the wilderness for a meeting with Moyses.” And he went and met him at the mountain of God, and they kissed one another. 28 And Moyses reported to Aaron all the words of the Lord that he sent and all the signs that he commanded him. 29 Then Moyses and Aaron went and assembled the elders’ council of the sons of Israel. 30 And Aaron spoke all these words that God had spoken to Moyses and performed the signs before the people. 31 And the people believed and were glad because God had ob-20Now they met Moyses and Aaron coming to meet them, as they were going out from Pharaoh, 21and they said to them, "May God see you and judge, because you have made our smell loath-some before Pharaoh and before his attendants, to put a sword into his hands to kill us."

22 Then Moyses turned to the Lord and said, "Lord, why did you harm this people? And why have you sent me? 23Even from the time when I have gone in to Pharao to speak in your name, he has harmed this people, and you have not delivered your people."

6 And the Lord said to Moyses, "Now you shall see what I will do to Pharaoh. For by a mighty hand he will send them away, and by a raised arm he will drive them out of his land."

2 Then God spoke to Moyses and said to him, "I am the Lord, 3and I appeared to Abraam and Isaak and Iakob, being their God, and my name, Lord, I did not make known to them. 4Also, I es-slaves, and I remembered your covenant. 5Go! Tell Israel, those whom the Egyptians are making into
"I am the Lord, 3and I appeared to Abraam and he will drive them out of his land."

7And I will take you for myself, as my people, and I will be your God, and you shall know that I am the Lord, your God, who brought you out from the oppression of the Egyptians. 8And I will bring you into the land for which I stretched out my hand to give it to Abraam and Isaak and Iakob, and I will give it to you by allotment. I am the Lord. ' " 9Then Moyses spoke in this way to the sons of Israel, and they did not listen to Moyses because of discouragement and the hard tasks.

10 Then the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, 11 "Go in, tell Pharao, king of Egypt, to send away the sons of Israel from his land." 12Then Moyses spoke before the Lord, saying, "Look, the sons of Israel did not listen to me, and how will Pharaos listen to me? Now, I am without eloquence." 13But the Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron and gave them instructions for Pharaoh, king of Egypt, that he send the sons of Israel away from the land of Egypt.

14 And these are the chiefs of the households of their ancestral lineages: sons of Ruben, firstborn of Israel: Henoch and Phallous, Hasron and Char-

16And these are the names of the sons of Leui according to their families: Gedson and Kaath and Merari. And the years of Leui's life were one hundred thirty-seven. 17And these are sons of Gedson: Lobeni and Semei, households of their paternal lineage. 18And sons of Kaath: Amram and Issar, Chebron and Oziel. And the years of Kaath's life were one hundred thirty years. 19And sons of Merari: Mooli and Omousi. These are the households of Leui's ancestral lineages according to their families. 20And Amram took Iochabed, the daughter of his father's brother, for his own wife, and she bore him both Aaron and Moyses and Mariam, their sister. 21And the years of Amram's life were one hundred thirty-six years. 22And sons of Isaar: Kore and Napheg and Zechri. 22And sons of Oziel: Misael and Elisaphan and Setri. 23Now Aaron took Elisabe, daughter of Aminadab, sister of Naasson, for his wife, and she bore him Nadab and Abioud and Eleazar and Ithamar. 24And sons of Kore: Asir and Elkana and Abiasaph. These are the generations of Kore. 25And Eleazar, Aaron's son, took one of the daughters of Phoutiel for his wife, and she bore him Phinees. These are the heads of the ancestral lineage of the Leuites, according to their generations. 26 This is Aaron and Moyses whom God told to bring the sons of Israel out of Egypt with their host. 27These are the ones negotiating with Pharaos, king of Egypt, and they brought the sons of Israel out of Egypt—Aaron himself and Moyses. 28 On the day in which the Lord spoke to Moyses in the land, Egypt, 29the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, "I am the Lord. Say to Pharaoh, king of Egypt, what I am saying to you." 30And Moyses said before the Lord, "Look, I am weak-voiced, and how will Pharaos listen to me?"

7 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, "Look, I have given you as a god to Pharaoh, and Aaron, your brother, shall be your prophet. 2Now you shall speak to him all things that I command you, and Aaron, your brother, shall tell Pharaoh so that he sends the sons of Israel away from his land. 3But I will harden Pharaos heart, and I will multiply my signs and wonders in the land, Egypt. 4And Pharaoh shall not listen to you, and I will lay my hand upon Egypt, and I will bring out with my host my people, the sons of Israel, from the land of Egypt with great vengeance. 5And all the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord, when I stretch out the hand against Egypt, and I shall bring the sons of Israel out from their midst." 6And Moyses and Aaron did just as the Lord commanded them; so they did. 7Now Moyses was eighty years old, but Aaron, his brother, was eighty-three years old, when he spoke to Pharaoh.

8 And the Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron, saying, "And if Pharaos should speak to you, saying, 'Give us a sign or wonder,' you also shall say to Aaron, your brother, 'Take the rod, and throw it upon the ground before Pharaoh and before his attendants, and it will be a dragon.' " 10Now Moyses and Aaron went in before Pharaos and his attendants and did so just as the Lord commanded them. And Aaron threw down the rod before Pharaos and before his attendants, and it became a dragon. 11And Pharaos summoned the experts of Egypt and the sorcerers, and they also, the enchanters of the Egyptians, did likewise by their magical potions. 12And each one threw down his rod, and they became dragons, and the rod of Aaron swallowed the rods of those people. 13 And the heart of Pharao prevailed, and he did not listen to them, just as the Lord spoke to them.

14 Now the Lord said to Moyses, "The heart of Pharao is weighed down so as not to send away the people. 15 Go to Pharao in the morning. Look, he himself is going out to the water, and you shall stand, meeting him on the bank of the river, and the rod that was turned into a snake you shall take in your hand. 16 And you shall say to him, 'The Lord, the God of the Hebrews, has sent me to you, saying, ‘Send away my people so that they may serve me in the wilderness.’ And look, you did not listen up to this point. 17 This is what the Lord says, ‘By this you shall know that I am the Lord. Look, with the rod that is in my hand I am about to strike upon the water that is in the river, and it shall turn to blood. 18 And the fish that are in the river shall die, and the river shall stink, and the Egyptians shall be unable to drink water from the river.’ "

19 Now the Lord said to Moyses, "Say to Aaron, your brother, 'Take your rod, and stretch out the hand over the waters of Egypt and over their rivers and over their canals and over their marshes and over all their accumulated water, and they shall be blood.' " And blood occurred in all the land of Egypt, both in things made from wood and things made from stone.

20 And Moyses and Aaron did so just as the Lord commanded them, and Aaron lifted it up and with his rod struck the water that was in the river before Pharao and before his attendants, and all the water in the river turned into blood. 21 And the fish in the river died, and the river stank, and the Egyptians could not drink water from the river, and there was blood in the whole land of Egypt.

22 But also the Egyptians’ enchanters did likewise with their magical potions. And Pharao’s heart was hardened, and he did not listen to them, just as the Lord said. 23 And Pharao turned and went into his house, and he did not put his mind even to this.

24 Now all the Egyptians dug around the river so that they might drink water, and they could not drink water from the river.

25 And seven days were completed after the Lord struck the river.

8 Then the Lord said to Moyses, "Go in to Pharao, and you will say to him, 'This is what the Lord says: Send away my people so that they may serve me. 2 But if you are unwilling to send them away, look, I am going to strike all your borders with frogs. 3 And the river shall vomit frogs, and when they come up, they shall enter into your houses and into the secret places of your bedrooms and upon your beds and into the houses of your attendants and your people and in your bread dough and in your ovens. 4 And upon you and upon your attendants and upon your people the frogs shall come up.' "

5 Then the Lord said to Moyses, "Say to Aaron, your brother, 'Stretch out by hand your rod over the rivers and over the canals and over the marshes, and bring up the frogs' "

6 And Aaron stretched out the hand over the waters of Egypt and brought up the frogs. And the frog was made to come up and covered the land of Egypt. 7 But also the Egyptians’ enchanters did likewise with their magical potions, and they brought up frogs on the land of Egypt.

8 Then Pharao called Moyses and Aaron and said, "Pray on my behalf to the Lord, and let him take away the frogs from me and from my people, and I will send away the people, and they may sacrifice to the Lord." 9 Then Moyses said to Pharao, "Arrange for me when I should pray for you and for your attendants and your people, to remove the frogs from you and from your people and out of your houses—only in the river shall they remain." 10 And he said, "Tomorrow." He said, therefore, "As you have said so that you may know that there is no other except the Lord. 11 And the frogs shall be taken away from you and out of your houses and out of your villages and from your attendants and from your people—only in the river shall they remain." 12 Then Moyses and Aaron went out from Pharao, and Moyses cried to the Lord about the curtailing of the frogs, as he had arranged with Pharao. 13 And the Lord did just as Moyses said, and the frogs died from the houses and from the villages and from the fields. 14 And they gathered them in heaps and heaps, and the land stank.

15 But when Pharao saw that respite had occurred, his heart was weighed down, and he did not listen to them, just as the Lord said.

16 Then the Lord said to Moyses, "Say to Aaron: 'Stretch out by hand your rod, and strike the levees of earth, and there shall be gnats both on people and on quadrupeds and on the whole land of Egypt.' " 17 Aaron, therefore, stretched out by hand the rod and struck the levees of the earth, and the gnats were both on people and on quadrupeds, and in every levee of the earth, the gnats were in all the land of Egypt. 18 But also the enchanters did likewise with their magical potions to produce the gnats, and they could not. And the gnats were both on people and on quadrupeds. 19 The enchanters, therefore, said to Pharao, "This is the finger of God!" And Pharao’s heart was hardened, and he did not listen to them, just as the Lord said.

20 Then the Lord said to Moyses, "Rise early in the morning, and stand before Pharao. Look, he himself will go out to the water, and you will say to him, 'This is what the Lord says: Send away my people so that they may serve me. 21 But if you should be unwilling to send away my people, look, I am going to send against you and against your attendants and against your people and against your houses the dog-fly, and the Egyptians’ houses shall be filled with the dog-fly, even into the land which they are on. 22 And I will distinguish gloriously on that day the land of Gesem, which my people are on, whereas the dog-fly shall not be, so that you may know that I am the Lord, the Lord of all the land. 23 And I will put a distinction between my people and between your people. Now on the morrow this sign shall be upon the land." 24And the Lord did so, and the dog-fly came in great numbers into the houses of Pharaoh and into the houses of his attendants and into the whole land of Egypt, and the land was ruined as a result of the dog-fly.

25 Then Pharaoh summoned Moses and Aaron, saying, "Go, and sacrifice to your God in the land!" 26And Moses said, "It cannot be so! For we would sacrifice to the Lord our God the abominations of the Egyptians. For if we should sacrifice the abominations of the Egyptians before them, we will be stoned. 27A three days' journey we will go into the wilderness, and we will sacrifice to the Lord, our God, according as he told us." 28And Pharaoh said, "I will send you away—and sacrifice to the Lord, your God, in the wilderness, but not far shall you proceed to go. Pray, therefore, for me to the Lord." 29Then Moses said, "Right now I will go out from you, and I will pray to God, and the dog-fly will depart from you and from your attendants and your people tomorrow. Do not add anymore, Pharaoh, to deceiving, so as not to send away the people to sacrifice to the Lord." 30 Then Moses went out from Pharaoh and prayed to God. 31Now the Lord did as Moses said, and he took away the dog-fly from Pharaoh and from his attendants and from his people, and not one remained. 32And Pharaoh made his heart heavy also on this occasion, and he was unwilling to send away the people.

9 Then the Lord said to Moses, "Go in to Pharaoh, and you shall say to him, 'This is what the Lord, the God of the Hebrews, says: Send away my people so that they may serve me. 2Yet if you are unwilling to send away my people, but still hold on to them, 3look, the hand of the Lord will be on your animals on the plains, both on the horses and on the draft animals and on the camels and cattle and sheep—a very great death. 4And I will distinguish gloriously between the animals of the Egyptians and between the animals of the sons of Israel. Not a thing from all the sons of Israel shall die.' " 5And God gave a limit, saying, "Tomorrow the Lord will do this thing on the land." 6And the Lord did this thing on the next day, and all the Egyptian's animals died, but from the animals of the sons of Israel nothing died. 7But when Pharaoh saw that nothing from the animals of the sons of Israel died, Pharaoh's heart became heavy, and he did not send away the people.
8 Then the Lord spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying, "You take handfuls of furnace soot, and let Moses scatter it toward heaven before Pharaoh and before his attendants. 9And let it become a dust cloud over all the land of Egypt, and there shall be upon humans and quadrupeds festering sores, oozing blisters, both on humans and on quadrupeds and in all the land of Egypt." 10And he took the furnace soot before Pharaoh, and Moses scattered it toward heaven, and festering sores, tendants—I know that you have not yet come to fear the Lord.” 31 Now the flax and the barley were ruined. For the barley was ripe, and the flax was going to seed. 32 But the wheat and the spelt were not ruined, for they were late. 33 Then Moyses went out from Pharao outside of the city, and he spread out hands to the Lord, and the sounds ceased, and the hail, and the rain no longer dripped on the land. 34 Now when Pharao saw that the rain had ceased, and the hail and the sounds, he continued to sin and made his heart and that of his attendants heavy. 35 And the heart of Pharao was hardened, and he did not send away the sons of Israel, according as the Lord said to Moyses.

10 Then the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, “Go in to Pharao. For I made his heart and that of his attendants heavy in order that one after another these signs might come upon them, 2 that you may recount in the ears of your children and to the children of your children how I mocked the Egyptians, and my signs that I did among them, and you will know that I am Lord.”

3 Then Moyses and Aaron went in before Pharao and said to him, “This is what the Lord, the God of the Hebrews, says, ‘For how long are you unwilling to respect me? Send away my people so that they may serve the Lord your God. Or do you wish to know that Egypt lies in ruins?’ 4 But if you are not willing to send away my people, look, I am bringing during this hour tomorrow a grasshopper swarm upon all your borders. 5 And it shall cover the face of the land, and you will not be able to see the land, and it shall devour all the rest that remains that the hail left for you, and it shall devour every tree that grows for you on the land. 6 And your houses and the houses of your attendants and all the houses in all the land of Egypt shall be filled, something that your fathers or their grandfathers have never seen, from the day when they came on the land 7 until this day.” And Moyses turned away and went out from Pharao.

7 Then the attendants of Pharao say to him, “For how long will this be a stumbling-block for us? Send away the people so that they may serve the Lord their God. Or do you wish to know that Egypt lies in ruins?” 8 And they brought back both Moyses and Aaron to Pharao, and he said to them, “Go! Serve the Lord your God. But who and who are those that are going?” 9 And Moyses says, “With the young and old men we will go, with our sons and daughters and sheep and cattle, for it is the Lord our God’s feast.” 10 And he said to them, “Let the Lord so be with you. According as I send you, I should not also send your chattels, should I? Take note that wickedness lies before you. 11 Not so! But let the men go, and you serve God! For this you yourselves are asking.” Then they thrust them out from the presence of Pharao.

12 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “Stretch out the hand on the land of Egypt, and let the grasshopper come up on the land, and it will devour all the herbage of the land and all the fruit of the trees, which the hail left behind.” 13 And Moyses lifted up the rod towards heaven, and the Lord brought up a south wind upon the land that whole day and whole night. The morning came, and the south wind took up the grasshopper and brought it up on all the land of Egypt, and a great many settled on all the borders of Egypt. A grasshopper such as this had not occurred before it, and after it there shall not be such. 15 And it covered the face of the land, and the land was ruined. And it devoured all the herbage of the land and all the fruit of the trees, which was left from the hail. Nothing green was left on the trees and on all the herbage of the plain in the whole land of Egypt. 16 Then Pharao hastened to summon Moyses and Aaron, saying, “I have sinned before the Lord your God and against you. 17 Therefore bear with my sin now again, and pray to the Lord your God, and let him take away from me this death.” 18 So Moyses went out from Pharao and prayed to God. 19 And the Lord turned a violent wind from the sea, and it took up the grasshopper and threw it into the Red Sea, and not one grasshopper was left in the whole land of Egypt. 20 And the Lord hardened Pharao’s heart, and he did not send away the sons of Israel.

21 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “Stretch out the hand towards heaven, and let there be darkness over the land of Egypt, palpable darkness.” 22 So Moyses stretched out the hand toward heaven, and there was darkness, gloom, hurricane, on all the land of Egypt for three days. 23 And no one saw his brother, and no one rose up from his bed for three days. But for all the sons of Israel there was light in all places where they were dwelling. 24 And Pharao summoned Moyses and Aaron, saying, “Go! Serve the Lord your God. Only leave behind the sheep and cattle. And let your chattels depart with you.” 25 And Moyses said, “But you also will give us whole burnt offerings and sacrifices that we shall make to the Lord our God, 26 and our animals will go with us, and we shall not leave behind a hoof. For from them we shall take to serve the Lord our God. But we do not know how we should worship the Lord our God until we go there.” 27 But the Lord hardened Pharao’s heart, and he was unwilling to send them away. 28 And Pharao says, “Depart from me; watch out that yet again you see my face. Now on whatever day you should appear to me, you shall die!” 29 Then Moyses says, “You have spoken! I shall no longer appear to you in person.”

11 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “Still one plague I will bring upon Pharao and upon Egypt, and after these things he will send you away from here. Now whenever he sends you away, with everything he will expel you with expulsion. 2 Speak then secretly to the ears of the people, and let each one ask from his neighbor and a woman from her neighbor silver and gold articles and clothing.” 3 Now the Lord gave favor to his people before the Egyptians, and they supplied them. And the man Moyses became very great before the
Then the Lord spoke to Moyses, “Pharao will not listen to you in order that I may multiply my signs and wonders in the land, Egypt.”

Then Moyses went out from Pharao with wrath. 9 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “Pharao will harden his heart, and he will be unwilling to send the sons of Israel from the land of Egypt.

Then the Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron in the land, Egypt, saying: 2 This month shall be for you the beginning of months; it is first for you among the months of the year. 3 Speak to the whole congregation of the sons of Israel, saying, “On the tenth of this month let them take, each person, a sheep according to the paternal houses, a sheep for each household. 4 But if those in the household are too few so that they are not enough for a sheep, he shall join with himself his nearby neighbor according to the number of souls; you, each one, shall number together that which is sufficient for a sheep. 5 You shall have a perfect sufficiency for a sheep. 6 And it shall be kept for you until the fourteenth day of this month, and all the multitude of the congregation of the sons of Israel shall slay it towards evening. 7 And they shall take some of the blood and shall put it on the two doorposts and on the lintel in the houses whichever they eat them in. 8 And they shall eat the meat this night, roasted in fire, and they shall eat unleavened bread with bitter herbs. 9 You shall not eat from it raw or boiled in water but rather roasted in fire, head with the feet and inner organs. 10 You shall not leave any of it until morning, and you shall not break a bone of it. But that which remains from it until morning, you shall burn with fire. 11 Now in this way you shall eat it: your loins girded and your sandals on your feet and your staves in your hands. And you shall eat it with haste—it is the Lord’s pascha.

And I will pass through in the land, Egypt, on this night, and I will strike down every firstborn in the land, Egypt, from human being to animal, and on all the gods of the Egyptians I will execute vengeance. I am the Lord. And the blood shall be for you as a sign on the houses, there where you are, and I will see the blood, and I will protect you, and there shall not be a plague among you to destroy, whenever I strike in the land, Egypt.

And this day shall be a memorial for you, and you shall celebrate it as a feast to the Lord throughout your generations. You shall celebrate it as a perpetual precept. 15 For seven days you shall eat unleavened bread, but from the first day you shall remove leaven from your houses. Everyone, whoever eats leaven, that soul shall be destroyed from Israel, from the first day until the seventh day. 16 And the first day shall be called holy, and the seventh day shall be designated holy for you. No work of service shall be done on them, except what shall be done for every soul; this only shall be done for you. 17 And you shall keep this commandment. For on this day I will bring your host out of the land of Egypt, and you shall make this day throughout your generations a perpetual precept. 18 When the first month begins, on the fourteenth day, from the evening you shall eat unleavened bread until the twenty-first day of the month until the evening. 19 For seven days leaven shall not be found in your houses. Everyone, whoever eats something leavened, that soul shall be destroyed from the congregation of Israel both among the gioras and the natives of the land. 20 Anything leavened you shall not eat; in every habitation of yours you shall eat unleavened bread.”

Then Moyses summoned the entire elders’ council of Israel and said to them, “When you go away, take for yourselves a sheep according to your families and sacrifice the pascha. 22 And you shall take a bunch of hyssop, and dipping from the blood by the door, you shall also touch the lintel and on both doorposts, from the blood that is by the door. But you, each one, shall not go out the door of his house until morning. 23 And the Lord will pass by the door, and he will see the blood upon the lintel and on both doorposts, and the Lord will pass by the door, and he will not allow the destroyer to enter into your houses to strike. 24 And you shall keep this word as a precept for yourself and your sons forever. 25 Now when you come into the land whichever the Lord gives you, according as he said, you shall observe this service. 26 And it shall be if your sons shall say to you, ‘What is this service?’ 27 then you shall say to them, ‘This pascha is a sacrifice to the Lord who protected the houses of the sons of Israel in Egypt when he struck the Egyptians, but our houses he preserved.’” And the people bent down and did obeisance.

And when they went away, the sons of Israel did as the Lord commanded Moyses and Aaron; so they did.

Now it happened during the middle of the night that the Lord struck every firstborn in the land, Egypt, from the firstborn of Pharao who sits upon the throne, to the firstborn of the female captive who is in the pit, even to the firstborn of every animal. 30 And Pharaoh arose during the night and all his attendants and all the Egyptians, and there was a great cry in all the land of Egypt. For there was not a house which had no dead person in it. 31 And Pharaoh summoned Moses and Aaron during the night and he said to them, “Arise, and go out from my people, both you and the sons of Israel. Go! Serve the Lord your God according as you say. 32 Take both your sheep and cattle, and get going, but bless me too.”

33 And the Egyptians were forcing the people, to throw them out of the land quickly. For they said, “We are all dying!” 34 Now the people took the dough before it was leavened, their kneaded mixtures wrapped in their clothes on their shoulders. 35 And the sons of Israel did as Moses instructed them and asked from the Egyptians silver and gold articles and clothing. 36 And the Lord gave favor to his people before the Egyptians, and they supplied them, and they plundered the Egyptians.

37 Now the sons of Israel marched from Ramesses to Sokchotha; the men were about six hundred thousand foot soldiers, apart from the chattels. 38 And a great, mixed crowd went up with them, and sheep and oxen, even a great many animals. 39 And they baked the dough that they brought from Egypt, unleavened bread baked in ashes, for it was not leavened. For the Egyptians had thrown them out, and they were unable to remain, nor did they make provision for themselves for the journey.

40 Now the residence of the sons of Israel during which they dwelt in the land, Egypt, and in the land of Canaan was four hundred and thirty years. 41 And it happened after four hundred and thirty years that all the host of the Lord went out from the land of Egypt during the night. 42 It is a vigil for the Lord so that he might bring them out of the land of Egypt. That night is this vigil for the Lord so that it might be for all the sons of Israel throughout their generations.

33 And the Egyptians were forcing the people, to throw them out of the land quickly. For they said, “We are all dying!” 34 Now the people took the dough before it was leavened, their kneaded mixtures wrapped in their clothes on their shoulders. 35 And the sons of Israel did as Moses instructed them and asked from the Egyptians silver and gold articles and clothing. 36 And the Lord gave favor to his people before the Egyptians, and they supplied them, and they plundered the Egyptians.

That night is this vigil for the Lord so that it might be for all the sons of Israel throughout their generations.

43 Then the Lord spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying: This is the law of the passover. No alien shall eat of it. 44 And every domestic of anyone or purchased slave you shall circumcise him, and then he shall eat of it. 45 A resident alien or hired person shall not eat of it. 46 In one house it shall be eaten; you shall not take any of the meat outside of the house, and you shall not break a bone of it. 47 The entire congregation of the sons of Israel shall do this. 48 But if any guest should draw near to you to keep the passcha to the Lord, you shall circumcise every male of his, and then he shall draw near to keep it, and he shall be like a native of the land. No uncircumcised person shall eat of it. 49 There shall be one law for the local inhabitant and for the guest among you who has drawn near.

50 And the sons of Israel did just as the Lord commanded Moses and Aaron for them; so they did. 51 And it happened on that day the Lord brought the sons of Israel out of the land of Egypt together with their host.
For Joseph made the sons of Israel swear an oath, saying, “With a concern the Lord will concern himself with you, and you shall bring my bones there with you.” 20 Then the sons of Israel, when they departed from Sokchoth, camped at Othom on the edge of the wilderness. 21 Now God was leading them, by day by a pillar of cloud to show them the way but during the night by a pillar of fire. 22 The pillar of cloud during the day and the pillar of fire by night did not depart from before all the people.

Speak to the sons of Israel, and when they turn back, let them camp opposite the village between Magdolos and between the sea, opposite Beelsepphon. Before them you shall camp by the sea. 2 And Pharaoh will say to his people, “These sons of Israel are wandering in the land. For the wilderness has closed in on them.” 3 Now I will harden Pharaoh’s heart, and he will pursue after them. And I will be glorified in Pharaoh and in all his army, and all the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord. And they did so.

5 And it was reported to the king of the Egyptians that the people had escaped. And the heart of Pharaoh and his attendants was turned against the people, and they said, “What is this we have done, sending away the sons of Israel so they are not subject to us?” 6 Then Pharaoh hitched up his chariots and led away all his people together with him, and he took six hundred choice chariots and all the cavalry of the Egyptians and the third-ranked officers over all of them. 7 And the Lord hardened the heart of Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and he pursued after the sons of Israel. Now the sons of Israel were leaving with a high hand. 8 And the Egyptians pursued after them and found them encamped by the sea, and all the cavalry and chariots of Pharaoh and the horsemen and his army were opposite the village, opposite Beelsepphon.

10 And Pharaoh advanced. And when they looked up, the sons of Israel saw with their eyes, and the Egyptians encamped behind them, and they were very afraid. Then the sons of Israel cried out to the Lord. 11 And they said to Moyses, “Because there were not graves in the land of Egypt did you bring us out to put us to death in this wilderness? What is this we have done to us, bringing us out of Egypt?” 12 Was this not the matter that we told you in Egypt, saying, “Leave us alone in order that we might be subject to the Egyptians?” For it was better for us to be subject to the Egyptians than to die in this wilderness.”

13 But Moyses said to the people, “Take courage! Stand, and see the deliverance from God that he will perform for you today. For as you have seen the Egyptians today, you shall not ever again see them time without end. 14 The Lord will fight for you, and you will be quiet.”

Then Moyses and the sons of Israel sang this song to God and spoke, saying, “Let us sing to the Lord, for gloriously he has glorified himself; horse and rider he threw into the sea.

2 Helper and defender he has become to me, for deliverance; this is my God, and I will glorify him; my father’s God, and I will exalt him.

3 The Lord, when he shatters wars, the Lord is his name.
4 “The chariots of Pharao and his host he threw into the sea; choice riders, third-ranked officers, he drowned in the Red Sea.

5 With open sea he covered them; they sank down into the deep like stone.

6 Your right hand, O Lord, has been glorified in power; your right hand, O Lord, crushed enemies.

7 And in the abundance of your glory you shattered the adversaries; you sent your anger, and it consumed them like stubble.

8 And through the breath of your wrath the water separated; the waters were congealed like a wall; the waves were congealed in the midst of the sea.

9 The enemy said, ‘In pursuit I will overtake; I will divide spoils; I will satisfy my soul; I will destroy with my dagger; my hand shall dominate.’

10 You sent your breath; the sea covered them; they sank like lead in violent water.

11 Who is like you among the gods, O Lord? Who is like you, glorified among holy ones, awesome in glorious deeds, doing wonders?

12 You extended your right hand; the earth swallowed them.

13 “You led by your righteousness this people of yours whom you redeemed; you summoned by your power into your holy abode.

14 Nations heard and became angry; pangs seized those dwelling among the Philistim.

15 Then leaders of Edom made haste. And rulers of the Moabites, trembling seized them; all those inhabiting Chanaan melted away.

16 May fear and trembling fall upon them; by the greatness of your arm let them be turned into stone until your people should pass by, O Lord, until this people of yours, whom you acquired, should pass by.

17 Lead them in, and plant them in the mountain of your inheritance, in your prepared dwelling place that you made, O Lord, a holy precinct, O Lord, that your hands prepared.

18 The Lord, ruling forever and ever and beyond.”

19 Because the cavalry of Pharao together with chariots and riders went into the sea, the Lord also brought the water of the sea upon them, but the sons of Israel walked through dry land in the midst of the sea.

20 Then Mariam, the prophetess, the sister of Aaron, took the tambourine in her hand, and all the women went out after her with tambourines and dances. And Mariam took their lead, saying: “Let us sing to the Lord, for gloriously he has glorified himself. Horse and rider he threw into the sea.”

21 Then Moyses removed the sons of Israel from the Red Sea and led them into the wilderness of Sour. And they were journeying for three days in the wilderness and were not finding water to drink.

22 Then they came to Merra and could not drink water from Merra, for it was bitter. Therefore the name of that place was called Bitterness. And the people were complaining against Moyses, saying, “What shall we drink?” Then Moyses cried to the Lord, and the Lord showed him wood, and he threw it into the water, and the water became sweet. There he set for him statutes and judgments, and there he tested him.

23 And he said, “If you by paying attention listen to the voice of the Lord, your God, and do before him pleasing things, and give ear to his commandments, and keep all his statutes, every disease which I brought upon the Egyptians, I will not bring upon you. For I am the Lord who heals you.”

24 And they came to Ailim, and twelve springs of water and seventy date palm trunks were there. And they camped there by the waters.

16 And they set out from Ailim, and the entire congregation of the sons of Israel came to the wilderness of Sin, which is between Ailim and between Sina. And on the fifteenth day, in the second month, after they had gone out from the land of Egypt, the entire congregation of the sons of Israel was complaining against Moyses and Aaron, and the sons of Israel said to them, “If only we had died, struck by the Lord, in the land, Egypt, when we sat at the cauldrons of meat and were eating bread to the full, because you led us out into this wilderness to kill all this congregation by famine.”

4 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “Look, I am going to rain bread from heaven for you, and the people shall go out, and they shall collect the day’s portion for a day so that I might test them whether they will walk by my law or not. And it shall be on the sixth day, and they shall prepare whatever they bring in, and it shall be double whatever they gather together daily for a day.” Then Moyses and Aaron said to the entire congregation of the sons of Israel, “At evening you shall know that the Lord brought you out of the land of Egypt, and in the morning you shall see the glory of the Lord, when he heard your complaining against God. But we, what are we that you complain against us?” And Moyses said, “When the Lord gives you meat in the evening to eat and bread in the morning to the full, because the Lord heard your complaining which you complain against us, then we, what are we? For not against us is your complaining, but rather against God.”

9 And Moyses said to Aaron, “Say to the entire congregation of the sons of Israel: Draw near before God. For he has heard your complaining.”

10 And when Aaron was speaking to the entire congregation of the sons of Israel, they also turned about towards the wilderness, and the glory of the Lord appeared in a cloud.

11 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, 12“I have heard the complaining of the sons of Israel. Speak to them, saying: Towards evening you shall eat meat, and in the morning you shall be filled with bread. And you shall know that I am the Lord, your God.”

13 So evening came, and quails came up and covered the camp. Then morning came, when the dew was lifting around the camp, 14 and look, upon the surface of the wilderness was something fine like coriander, white like frost on the ground.

15 And when they saw it, the sons of Israel said one to the other, “What is this?” For they did not know what it was. Then Moyses said to them, “This is the bread that the Lord has given you to eat. This is the word that the Lord instructed: Fill the gomorbs for deposit for your generations. This is the word that the Lord instructed: Fill the gomorbs for deposit for your generations. Each person, gather from it for those appropriate; a gomorb per head, according to the number of your souls, each of you with your tent mates collect.”

17 And the sons of Israel did so, and they collected, the one much and the other less. 18 And they measured by the gomorbs. The one with much did not have excess, and the one with less did not have too little. Each person collected for those appropriate at his own home. 19 Then Moyses said to them, “Let no one leave any of it to the morning.”

20 And they did not listen to Moyses, but certain ones left some of it to the morning. And it bred worms and stank, and Moyses was irritated with them. 21 And they collected it morning by morning, each person that which was appropriate for him. But when the sun grew hot, it melted.

22 But it happened on the sixth day, they collected double what was required, two gomorbs for one person. And all the leaders of the congregation went in and reported to Moyses.

23 And Moyses said to them, “This is the word that the Lord spoke: Tomorrow is Sabbath, a rest holy to the Lord. Whatever you bake, bake, and whatever you boil, boil. And all the excess, leave it in storage until the morning.”

24 And they left some of it until the morning, according as Moyses instructed them. And it did not stink, nor was there a worm in it.

25 And Moyses said, “Eat today! For today is Sabbath to the Lord. It will not be found on the plain.

26 Six days you will collect, but on the seventh day is Sabbath. There will be none in it.”

27 And it happened on the seventh day, certain of the people went out to collect, and they found none. 28 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “For how long are you unwilling to listen to my commandments and my law? 29 See! For the Lord has given you this day, the sabbaths. Therefore he gave you on the sixth day bread for two days. Sit, each person, in your houses; let no one go out from his place on the seventh day.”

30 And the people sabbatized on the seventh day.

31 And the sons of Israel called its name Man. Now it was white like coriander seed, but its taste was like cake with honey.

32 Then Moyses said, “This is the word that the Lord instructed: Fill the gomorbs with Man for deposit for your generations in order that they might see the bread that you ate in the wilderness, how the Lord brought you out from the land of Egypt.”

33 And Moyses said to Aaron, “Take one golden jar, and place in it the gomorbs full of Man, and you will put it away before God for preservation for your generations.”

34 As the Lord instructed Moyses, Aaron also put it away before the witness for preservation. 35 Now the sons of Israel ate Man for forty years until they came into inhabited land. They ate Man until they came near to the region of Phoenicia.

36 Now the gomorbs was a tenth of three measures.

17 And the entire congregation of the sons of Israel set out from the wilderness of Sin according to their encampments by the word of the Lord, and they camped at Raphidin. But there was not water for the people to drink. 2 And the people were railing against Moyses, saying, “Give us water so that we may drink!”

3 But the people thirsted there for water, and the people kept complaining against Moyses, saying, “Why are you railing at me, and why are you testing the Lord?”

4 But the people thirsted there for water, and the people kept complaining against Moyses, saying, “Why is it that you brought us up from Egypt to kill us and our children and animals with thirst?”

5 Then Moyses cried out to the Lord, saying, “What shall I do with this people? A little while yet and they will stone me!”

6 And the Lord said to Moyses, “Go on ahead of this people, but take with you some of the elders of the people and the rod with which you struck the river take in your hand, and go. 7 Here have taken my stand, before you came, on the rock at Choreb. And you shall strike the rock, and water will come out of it, and the people will drink.”

8 And Moyses did so before the sons of Israel. 9 And he called the name of that place Testing and Raillery because of the railing of the sons of Israel and because they tested the Lord, saying, “Is the Lord among us or not?”

9 Then Amalek came and was fighting Israel at Raphidin. 9 And Moyses said to Iesous, “Choose for yourself capable men, and go forth, and set up in battle array with Amalek tomorrow. And look, I stand on top of the hill, and the rod of God is in my hand.”

10 And Iesous did as Moyses said to him and set up in battle array with Amalek, and Moyses and Aaron and Hor went up onto the top of the hill.

11 And it happened whenever Moyses held up his hands, Israel was prevailing, and whenever he lowered his hands, Amalek was prevailing. 12 But Moyses’ hands were heavy. And they took a stone and put it under him, and he sat on it. And Aaron and Hor kept supporting his hands, here one and there one. And the hands of Moyses were supported until the setting of the sun. 13 And Iesous routed Amalek and all his people by slaughter of dagger.

14 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “Write this down for a memorial in a book, and put into the ears of Iesous that with a wipe out I will wipe out the memorial of Amalek from beneath heaven. 15 And Moyses built an altar to the Lord and called its name “The Lord is my refuge,” 16 because by a secret hand the Lord fights against Amalek from generations to generations.

18 Now Iothor, the priest of Madian, Moyses’ father-in-law, heard all that the Lord did to Israel, his own people. For the Lord brought Israel out from Egypt. 2 Now Iothor, Moyses’ father-in-law, took Sepphora, Moyses’ wife, after her dismissal, 3 and his two sons. The name of one of them was Gersam (saying, “I was a resident alien in a foreign land”), 4 and the name of the second, Eliezer (“for the God of my father was my help, and he delivered me from the hand of Pharao”). 5 And Iothor, Moyses’ father-in-law, and the sons and wife came to Moyses in the wilderness, where he encamped at the mountain of God. 6 And it was reported to Moyses, saying, “Look, Iothor, your father-in-law, is coming to you, and your wife and two sons with him.” 7 And Moyses went out for a meeting with his father-in-law, and he did obeisance before him and kissed him, and they greeted one another. And he led him into the tent. 8 And Moyses recounted to his father-in-law all that the Lord did to Pharao and the Egyptians for the sake of Israel and all the hardship that happened to them in the way and that the Lord delivered them from the hand of Pharao and from the hand of the Egyptians. 9 Now Iothor was amazed at all the good things that the Lord did to them, that he delivered them from the hand of Pharao and from the hand of the Egyptians. 10 And Iothor said, “Blessed be the Lord, because he delivered his people from the hand of the Egyptians and from the hand of Pharao. 11 Now I know that the Lord is great beyond all the gods, on account of this that he attacked them.” 12 And Iothor, Moyses’ father-in-law, took whole burnt offerings and sacrifices to God. And Aaron and all the elders of Israel came to eat bread together with Moyses’ father-in-law before God.

13 And it happened after the morrow Moyses sat down to judge the people. Now all the people who had stood near Moyses from morning to evening. 14 And when Iothor saw all that he was doing for the people, he says, “What is this that you are doing to the people? Why do you sit alone, but all the people stand near you from morning to evening?” 15 And Moyses says to his father-in-law, “Because the people come to me to seek judgment from God. 16 For whenever a dispute happens to them and they come to me, I decide for each person, and I teach them the ordinances of God and his law.” 17 Then Moyses’ father-in-law said to him, “You are dealing with this thing incorrectly! 18 You will be destroyed with unbearable destruction, both you and all this people who are with you. This matter is too heavy for you—you will be unable to do it alone. 19 Now then listen to me, and I will advise you, and God will be with you. You be for the people the things pertaining to God, and you shall bring their cases to God, 20 and you shall attest to them the ordinances of God and his law, and you shall show them the ways that they shall walk in and the works that they shall do. 21 And you, search for yourself from all the people capable, god-fearing men, righteous men, who hate arrogance, and you shall set them over them as officers of thousands and officers of hundreds and officers of fifties and officers of tens, 22 and they shall judge the people every season. Now the burdensome matter they shall bring to you, but the smaller matters of judgment they themselves shall judge, and they will make it easier for you, and they will help you. 23 If you do this thing, God will strengthen you, and you will be able to stand, and all this people will go to their own place with peace.”

24 Now Moyses listened to the voice of his father-in-law and did what he said to him. 25 And Moyses chose capable men from all Israel and made them over them officers of thousands and officers of hundreds and officers of fifties and officers of tens. 26 And they were judging the people every season. Now the burdensome matter they were bringing to Moyses, but every smaller matter they themselves were judging. 27 Then Moyses sent away his own father-in-law, and he went away to his country.

19 Now in the third month of the departure of the sons of Israel from the land of Egypt on this day they came into the wilderness of Sinai. 2 And they departed from Raphidin and came into the wilderness of Sinai, and Israel camped there opposite the mountain. 3 And Moyses went onto the mountain of God, and God called him from the mountain, saying, “This is what you shall say to the house of Iakob and report to the sons of Israel: 4 You yourselves have seen what I have done to the Egyptians, and I took you up as though on eagles’ wings, and I brought you to myself. 5 And now if by paying attention you listen to my voice and keep my covenant, you shall be for me a people special above all nations. For all the earth is mine. 6 And you shall be for me a royal priesthood and a holy nation. These words you shall say to the sons of Israel.”

7 And Moyses went and called the elders of the people and set before them all these words that God instructed him. 8 And all the people with one accord answered and said, “All that God said we will do and heed.” Then Moyses carried the words of the people up to God. 9 Now the Lord said to —or My Lord is a refuge  —Perhaps because Moyes, “Look, I am coming to you in a pillar of cloud in order that the people may listen while I speak to you and they may trust you forever.”

And Moyes reported the words of the people to the Lord. 10 And the Lord said to Moyes, “When you go down, testify solemnly to the people, and purify them today and tomorrow, and let them wash their clothes, 11 and be prepared for the third day. For on the third day the Lord will come down upon the mountain Sina before all the people. 12 And you shall set limits for the people round about, saying, ‘Be on your guard against going onto the mountain and grazing it at all. Everyone who touches the mountain shall die by death. 13 A hand shall not touch it. For he shall be stoned with stones or shot with an arrow. Whether animal or whether human, it shall not live.’ Whenever the sounds and the trumpets and the cloud leave the mountain, they shall come up on the mountain.”

14 And Moyes went down from the mountain to the people and consecrated them, and they washed their clothes. 15 And he said to the people, “Prepare for three days. Do not go near a woman.”

16 And it happened on the third day, when it was toward dawn, sounds and lightninging and dark cloud were occurring upon the mountain Sina; the sound of the trumpet was ringing loudly, and all the people in the camp were terrified. 17 And Moyes went down from the mountain to the people and spoke to them.

18 Now the mountain Sina was smoking in its entirety, because God had come down upon it in fire, and the smoke was rising up like the smoke of a furnace. And all the people were very astonished.

19 Now the sounds of the trumpet, increasing, became much stronger. Moyes was speaking, and God answered him with sound. 20 And the Lord came down upon the mountain Sina onto the top of the mountain, and the Lord called Moyes onto the top of the mountain, and Moyes went up.

21 And God spoke to Moyes, saying, “Go down, testify solemnly to the people lest they come near to God to observe and a multitude of them should fall. 22 And let the priests who approach God be consecrated, lest the Lord destroy some of them.” 23 And Moyes said to God, “The people will be unable to climb up to the mountain Sina. For you have testified solemnly to us, saying, ‘Set a limit to the mountain, and keep it holy.’” 24 Then the Lord said to him, “Go; descend, and you and Aaron with you come up. But do not let the priests and people use force to come up to God, lest the Lord destroy some of them.” 25 So Moyes went down to the people and spoke to them.

20 And the Lord spoke all these words, saying:

21 I am the Lord your God who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of a house of slavery. 22 You shall not have other gods besides me.

23 You shall not make for yourself an idol or likeness of anything which is in heaven above and whatever is in the earth beneath and whatever is in the waters beneath the earth. 24 You shall not do obeisance to them, nor are you to serve them, for I am the Lord your God, a jealous god, repaying sins of fathers upon children up to the third and fourth generation to those who hate me, and doing mercy unto thousands, for those who love me and keep my ordinances.

25 You shall not take the name of the Lord your God in vain. For the Lord will never acquit the one who takes his name in vain.

26 Remember the day of the sabbaths to consecrate it. 27 For six days you shall labor and do all your labor, 28 but on the seventh day there is Sabbath to the Lord your God. You shall not do in it any labor, you and your son and your daughter, your male slave and your female slave, your ox and your draft animal and any animal of yours and the guest who resides among you. 29 For in six days the Lord made the heaven and the earth and the sea and all things in them, and he rested on the seventh day. For this reason the Lord blessed the seventh day and consecrated it.

30 Honor your father and mother so that it may be well with you and so that you may be long-lived on the good land that the Lord your God is giving you.

31 You shall not commit adultery.

32 You shall not steal.

34 You shall not testify falsely against your neighbor with false witness.

35 You shall not covet your neighbor’s wife; you shall not covet your neighbor’s house or his field or his male slave or his female slave or his ox or his draft animal or any animal of his or whatever belongs to your neighbor.

36 And all the people were perceiving the sound and the flashes and the sound of the trumpet and the mountain smoking. Now all the people were afraid and stood at a distance. 37 And they said to Moyes, “You speak to us, and do not let God speak to us, lest we die.” 38 And Moyes says to them, “Take courage! For in order to test you God has come to you in order that his fear might be in you so that you do not sin.” 39 Now the people were standing at a distance, but Moyes went into the darkness where God was.

40 And the Lord said to Moyes: This is what you shall say to the house of Iakob and report to the sons of Israel, “You have seen what I have spoken from heaven to you. 41 You shall not make for yourselves silver gods, and gold gods you shall not make for yourselves. 42 An altar of earth you shall make for me, and you shall sacrifice on it your whole burnt offerings and deliverance offerings, your sheep and your bull calves in every place, there where I pronounce my name, and I will come to you and bless you.

42 But if you make an altar of stones for me, you shall not build them cut. For you have placed the tool upon it, and it has been defiled. 43 You shall not go up by steps onto my altar so that you do not reveal your shame upon it.
21 And these are the statutes that you shall set before them:

2 If you buy a Hebrew servant, for six years he shall be subject to you. But in the seventh year he shall go away in the same way as slave women depart. 3 If he comes in single, he shall also go out single. But if a wife enters together with him, the wife also shall go out with him. 4 But if the master gives him a wife and she bears him sons or daughters, the wife and children shall be his master’s, but he shall go out single. 5 Now if the servant says in response, “I have come to love my master and wife and children; I am not departing a free person,” 6 his master shall pierce his ear with a small awl, and he shall lead him to the door at the doorpost, and his master shall pierce his ear with a small awl, and he shall be subject to him forever.

7 Now if someone sells his own daughter as a domestic slave, she shall not go away in the same way as slave women depart. 8 If she, whom he betrothed to himself, does not please her master, he shall cause her to be redeemed. But to a foreign nation the master is not to sell her, because he has broken faith with her. 9 Now if he betroths her to his son, he shall deal with her according to the statute of daughters. 10 And if he takes another to him, he shall not withhold her necessities and clothing and marital rights. 11 But if he does not do for her these three things, she shall go out without obligation, without silver.

12 Now if someone strikes someone and he dies, let him be put to death with death. 13 But the one who acts unwittingly, but God delivered him into his hands—I will give you a place, there where the killer shall flee. 14 Now if someone attacks his neighbor with a stone or fist and he strikes his neighbor with a stone or fist and he dies under his hands, let him justly be punished. 15 But if he is his silver.

16(17) Let the one who insults his father or his mother end with death.

17(16) Whoever steals any of the sons of Israel and, having gained control over him, sells him, and he be found with him, let him end with death.

18 Now if two men rail at one another and one strikes his neighbor with a stone or fist and he does not die but he be laid upon his bed, 19 if the person arises and walks around outside on a rod, the striker shall not be liable, except for his loss of employment he shall pay compensation and for medical treatment.

20 Now if someone strikes his male slave or his female slave with a rod and he dies under his hands, let him justly be punished. 21 But if he survives one day or two, he shall not be punished, for he is his silver.

22 Now if two men fight and strike a pregnant woman and her child comes forth not fully formed, he shall be punished with a fine. According as the husband of the woman might impose, he shall pay with judicial assessment. 23 But if it is fully formed, he shall pay life for life, 24 eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot, 25 burn for burn, wound for wound, stripe for stripe.

26 Now if someone strikes the eye of his male domestic or the eye of his female attendant and cause blindness, he shall send them away free in exchange for their eye. 27 Now if he knocks out the tooth of a male domestic or the tooth of his female attendant, he shall send them away free in exchange for their tooth.

28 Now if a bull gores a man or a woman and he dies, the bull shall be stoned with stones, and its meat shall not be eaten, but the owner of the bull shall not be liable. 29 But if the bull was prone to gore before yesterday and before the third day and they warn its owner and he does not restrain it and it kills a man or a woman, the bull shall be stoned, and its owner shall die as well. 30 And if a ransom is imposed upon him, he shall pay a ransom for his life, whatever they impose upon him. 31 But if it gorges a son or a daughter, according to this statute they shall deal with him. 32 And if the bull gorges a male servant or female servant, he shall give to their master thirty didrachmas of silver, and the bull shall be stoned.

33 Now if someone opens a pit or hews a pit and does not cover it and a calf or donkey falls in there, the owner of the pit shall pay compensation. He shall give silver to their owner, but that which is dead shall be his.

34 Now if someone’s bull gorges the neighbor’s bull and it dies, they shall sell the living bull and divide its silver, and the dead bull they shall divide. 35 But if it is known that the bull was prone to gore before yesterday and before the third day and they warn its owner and he does not restrain it, he shall pay compensation, bull for bull, but the one that died shall be his.

36 Now if anyone steals a calf or sheep and slaughters or sells it, he shall pay five calves in compensation for the bull calf and four sheep for the sheep.

2 Now if the thief is found at the point of break-in and, being beaten, dies, it is not homicide in his case. 3 Now if the sun has risen upon him, he is guilty. He shall die in exchange. Now if he does not have anything let him be sold for the theft. 4 Now if he is caught and the stolen item from donkey to sheep is found in his hand alive, he shall compensate them double.

5 Now if someone grazes a field or vineyard and leaves his animal to graze another field, he shall pay compensation from his field according to its yield. But if he should graze all the field, the best of his field or the best of his vineyard he shall pay in compensation.

6 Now if fire breaks out and finds thorns and burns a threshing floor or ears of corn or a plain, the one who started the fire shall pay compensation.

7 Now if someone gives to a neighbor silver or goods to guard and it is stolen from the person’s house, if the thief be found, he shall pay double in compensation. But if the thief is not found, the owner of the house shall draw near before God and swear that surely he himself has not acted wickedly against the entire deposit of the neighbor.

9 With regard to any specific injustice concerning calf and draft animal and sheep and garment and any loss which is alleged, whatever in fact it might be, the trial of both parties shall come before God, and the one convicted by God shall pay double in compensation to his neighbor.

10 Now if someone gives the neighbor a draft animal or sheep or calf or any animal to guard and it breaks a limb or dies or becomes captive and no one knows, 11 there shall be an oath of God between both parties that surely he has not acted wickedly against the entire deposit of the neighbor, and so his owner shall accept, and he shall not at all make compensation. 12 But if it is stolen from him, he shall pay compensation to the owner. 13 And if it becomes prey to wild beasts, he shall take him to the prey and shall not pay compensation.

14 Now if someone asks from the neighbor and it breaks a limb or dies and the owner is not with it, he shall pay compensation. 15 But if the owner is with it, he shall not pay compensation. But if he be one who hired it, it shall be his in lieu of his hire.

16 Now if someone lends astray an unbetrothed virgin and lies with her, with a bride price he shall pay the bridal price for her as a wife for him. 17 But if her father by refusing refuses and does not wish to give her to him as a wife, he shall pay silver as compensation to the father, as much as the bride price for virgins is.

18 You shall not keep sorcerers alive.
19 Everything lying with an animal, you shall with death kill them.
20 The one who sacrifices to the gods, except to the Lord alone, shall be destroyed.
21 And you shall not harm a guest, nor shall you oppress him, for you were guests in the land, Egypt. 22 Every widow and orphan you shall not harm. 23 But if you harm them with harm, and crying out, they call out to me, I will by paying attention listen to their voice, I will listen to him, for I am merciful.

24 And I will be enraged iniquity; they call out to me, I will by paying attention listen to their voice, I will listen to him, for I am merciful.

25 Now if you lend silver to a poor brother near you, you shall not press him; you shall not apply interest to him. 26 And if, as pledge, you take in pledge the neighbor’s garment, before the setting of the sun you shall restore it. 27 For this is his cloak; this alone is the garment for his shame. In what shall he sleep? If then he should cry out to me, I will listen to him, for I am merciful.

28 You shall not revile gods, and you shall not speak ill of your people’s rulers.
29 First fruits of your threshing floor and press you shall not hold back.
30 You shall do the same with your bull calf and your sheep and your draft animal. For seven days it shall be under its mother, but on the eighth day you shall restore it to me.
31 And you shall be my holy men, and meat torn by animals you shall not eat. Throw it to the dog!

23 You shall not accept a groundless report. You shall not consent with the unjust person to be an unjust witness. 2 You shall not be with the majority for wrongdoing. You shall not associate with a crowd to turn side with the majority so as to turn aside a trial. 3 And a poor person you shall not pity in a trial.

4 Now if you meet your enemy’s ox or his draft animal when they go astray, you shall turn back and restore them to him.

5 Now if you see your enemy’s draft animal fallen under its load, you shall not pass it by, but you shall raise it together with him.

6 You shall not pervert judgment of a poor man in his trial. 7 From every unjust thing said you shall keep away. An innocent and just person you shall not kill, and you shall not acquit the impious person for the sake of bribes. 8 And you shall not take bribes. For bribes blind the eyes of those who see and corrupt just matters.

9 And you shall not oppress a guest. For you know the life of a guest. For you yourselves were guests in the land, Egypt.

10 For six years you shall sow your land and gather its produce. 11 But in the seventh year you shall make it rest and leave it, and the poor of your nation shall eat, and that which is left over the wild animals shall eat. So shall you do with your vineyard and your olive grove.

12 Six days you shall do your tasks, but on the seventh day you shall rest in order that your ox and your draft animal might rest and that the son of your female servant and the guest might be refreshed. 13 All that I have spoken to you, observe. And you shall not recall a name of other gods; neither shall it be heard from your mouth.

14 Three times during the year hold a feast for me. 15 Take heed to keep the feast of unleavened bread. Seven days you shall eat unleavened bread, just as I commanded you according to the time of the month of the new things. For in it you came out of Egypt.

You shall not appear before me empty-handed.

16 And you shall make a feast of the harvest of first products of your labors, whichever you sowed in your field, and a feast of completion at the end of the year at the gathering of your labors that are from your field. 17 Three times during the year every male of yours shall appear before the Lord your God.

18 For whenever I cast out nations from before you and enlarge your borders, you shall not offer the blood of my sacrifice near leaven, nor shall the fat of my feast lie until morning.

19 The first fruits of the first products of your land you shall bring into the house of the Lord your God.
You shall not boil a lamb in its mother’s milk. 20 And look, I am sending my angel in front of you in order to guard you on the way in order to bring you into the land that I prepared for you. 21 Mind yourself, and listen to him, and do not disobey him. For he shall not hold you in undue awe, for my name is upon him. 22 If by paying attention you listen to my voice and do all that I tell you, I will be an enemy to your enemies and will resist those who resist you.

23 For my angel will go, leading you, and will bring you in to the Amorrite and Chettite and Pherezite and Chananite and Gergesite and Heuite and lebousite, and I will destroy them. 24 You shall not do obeisance to their gods nor serve them. You shall not act according to their practices, but with demolition shall demolish and by smashing shall smash their steles. 25 And you shall serve the Lord your God, and I will bless your bread and your wine and your water, and I will turn away sickness from you. 26 There shall not be a childless or barren woman in your land. I will fulfill the number of your days. 27 And I will send fear, leading you, and I will confound all the nations, those into which you are entering, and I will make all your adversaries fugitives. 28 And I will send hornets before you, and it shall drive out the Amorrites and the Heuites and the Chananites and the Chettites from you. 29 I will not drive them out in one year, lest the land become desolate and the wild animals of the land become many against you. 30 Little by little I will drive them out from you until you are increased and inherit the land. 31 And I will set your boundaries from the Red Sea until the Sea of the Phylistiim and from the wilderness until the great river Euphrates. And I will surrender into your hands those dwelling in the land, and I will drive them out from you. 32 You shall not make a covenant with them and their gods. 33 And they shall not dwell in your land, lest they make you sin against me. For if you are subject to their gods, these people shall be an obstacle for you.

24 And he said to Moyses, “Come up to the Lord, you and Aaron and Nadab and Abioud and seventy of Israel’s elders, and they shall do obeisance to the Lord from afar. 2 And Moyses alone shall come near to God, but they themselves shall not come near. And the people shall not come up together with them.”

3 And Moyses went in and recounted to the people all God’s words and statutes. And all the people answered with one voice, saying, “All the words that the Lord has spoken we will do and heed.” 4 And Moyses wrote all the words of the Lord. Now, early in the morning, Moyses constructed an altar at the foot of the mountain and twelve stones for the twelve tribes of Israel. 5 And he sent the young men of the sons of Israel, and they offered whole burnt offerings and sacrificed a sacrifice of deliverance to God, bull-calves. 6 Now, taking half of the blood, Moyses poured it into bowls, and half of the blood he poured out towards the altar. 7 And taking the book of the covenant, he read in the ears of the people, and they said, “All that the Lord has said we will do and heed.” 8 Then Moyses, taking the blood, scattered it over the people and said, “Look, the blood of the covenant that the Lord made with you concerning all these words.”

9 And Moyses and Aaron and Nadab and Abioud and seventy of the elders’ council of Israel went up. 10 And they saw the place, there where the God of Israel stood, and that which was beneath his feet, like something made from lapis lazuli brick and like the appearance of the firmament of heaven in purity. 11 And not even one of the chosen of Israel perished. And they appeared in the place of God and were eating and drinking.

12 And the Lord said to Moyses, “Come up to me into the mountain, and be there. And I will give you the stone tablets, the law and the commandments that I wrote to legislate for them.” 13 And Moyses rose up, and Iesous who assisted him, and went up into the mountain of God. 14 And they said to the elders, “Wait quietly here until we return to you. And look, Aaron and Hor are with you. If a case arises for someone, let them go to them.”

15 And Moyses and Iesous went up into the mountain, and the cloud covered the mountain. 16 And God’s glory descended upon the mountain, Sina, and the cloud covered it for six days, and the Lord called Moyses on the seventh day from the midst of the cloud. 17 Now the appearance of the Lord’s glory was like a flaming fire on the top of the mountain before the sons of Israel. 18 And Moyses entered into the midst of the cloud and went up into the mountain, and he was there on the mountain for forty days and forty nights.

25 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 2 Speak to the sons of Israel, and take for me first fruits from all those to whom it seems good in their heart, and you shall receive my first fruits. 3 And this is the first fruits that you shall take from them: gold, silver, bronze, 4 blue, purple, double scarlet and twisted linen and goat’s hair and red-dyed rams’ skins and blue skins and decay-resistant wood and stones of sardius and stones for engraving for the shoulder-strap and the full-length robe. 7 And you shall make a holy precinct for me, and I shall appear among you. 8 And you shall make for me according to all that I show you on the mountain—the pattern of the tent and the pattern of all its furnishings. So you shall make.

9 And you shall make an ark of witness from decay-resistant wood, the length two and a half cubits and the width a cubit and a half and the height a cubit and a half. And you shall gold-plate it with pure gold. Outside and inside you shall gold plate it, and you shall make for it twisted gold moldings around. 11 And you shall cast four gold rings for it and put them on the four sides, two rings on the one side and two rings on the second side. 12(13)And you shall make carrying-poles from decay-resistant wood and gold-plate them with gold. 13(14)And you shall put the carrying-poles into the rings on the sides of the ark to lift the ark with them. 14(15)In the rings of the ark the carrying-poles shall be fixed. 15(16)And you shall deposit in the ark the witnesses, whichever I give you.

This is a perpetual precept for your descendants from the sons of Israel.

39 And Aaron and his sons shall wear them, whenever they enter the tent of witness or whenever they come near to the altar of the holy place to minister, and they shall not bring onto themselves sin, lest they die: a perpetual precept for him and his seed after him.

29 And these are things that you shall make for them to consecrate them so that they serve me as priests. You shall take one young calf from the cattle and two rams without blemish and unleavened loaves kneaded with oil and unleavened cakes coated with oil. You shall make them with fine flour from wheat. 3And you shall place them upon one reed basket and bring them near on the reed basket, and the young bull and the two rams. 4And Aaron and his sons you shall bring near to the doors of the tent of witness and wash them with water. 5And taking the vestments, you shall clothe Aaron, your brother, with both the full-length robe and the shoulder-strap and the oracle, and you shall join together the oracle to the shoulder-strap for him. 6And you shall place the headdress on his head and place the thin plate “Holiness” on the headdress. 7And you shall take some of the oil of anointing and pour it upon his head and anoint him. 8And his sons you shall bring near and clothe them with tunics and gird them with the sashes and put on them the turbans, and they shall have a priesthood to me forever. And you shall validate the hands of Aaron and the hands of his sons.

10 And you shall bring near the calf to the doors of the tent of witness, and Aaron and his sons shall place their hands on the head of the calf before the Lord by the doors of the tent of witness. 11And you shall slaughter the calf before the Lord by the doors of the tent of witness. 12And you shall take from the blood of the calf and place on the horns of the altar with your finger. Then all the remaining blood you shall pour beside the base of the horns of the altar with your finger. Then all the residues of the altar you shall burn with fire outside the camp, for it is of sin.

15 And the one ram you shall take, and Aaron and his sons shall place their hands on the head of the ram. 16And you shall slaughter it, and taking the blood, you shall pour it against the altar round about.

26 And you shall take the breast from the ram of validation, which is for Aaron, and set it apart as something set apart before the Lord, and it shall be for you for a share. 27And you shall consecrate the breast as something set apart, and the shoulder of the advance deduction, which has been set apart and which has been deducted in advance from the ram of validation from Aaron and from his sons. 28And it shall be for Aaron and his sons a perpetual precept from the sons of Israel. For this is an advance deduction, and it shall be an advance deduction from the sons of Israel from the victims of deliverance, an advance deduction for the Lord.

29 And the vestment of the holy place that is for Aaron shall be for his sons after him, for them to be anointed in them and to validate their hands. 30For seven days the priest who replaces him from his sons shall wear these things, who shall enter into the tent of witness to minister in the holy things.

31 And you shall take the ram of validation and boil the flesh in a holy place. 32And Aaron and his sons shall eat the flesh of the ram and the loaves in the reed basket beside the doors of the tent of witness. 33They shall eat these things that they have been consecrated by, to validate their hands, and an alien shall not eat from these things, for they are holy. 34But if there should remain any of the flesh of the sacrifice of validation and of the loaves until morning, you shall burn the leftovers with fire. It shall not be eaten, for it is something made holy.

35 And you shall do to Aaron and his sons thus according to all things that I commanded you. For seven days you shall validate their hands. 36And the young calf for the sin you shall do on the day of the purification, and you shall purify the altar when you perform consecration for it, and you shall anoint it so that you consecrate it. 37For seven days you shall purify the altar and consecrate it, and the altar shall be holy of the holy. Everyone who touches the altar shall be consecrated.
And these are things that you shall do on the altar: two yearling lambs without blemish each day upon the altar perpetually, an offering in perpetuity. The one lamb you shall do in the morning, and the second lamb you shall do in the evening. And a tenth of fine flour mixed with beaten oil, the fourth of a hin, and a libation, the fourth of a hin of wine, with the one lamb. And the second lamb you shall do in the evening. In accordance with the morning sacrifice and in accordance with its libation you shall do, an odor of fragrance, an offering for the Lord, a sacrifice in perpetuity throughout your generations, at the doors of the tent of witness before the Lord, by which I will be known to you there so as to speak to you. I will there prescribe for the sons of Israel, and I will be regarded as holy by my glory. And I will consecrate the tent of witness and the altar, and Aaron and his sons I will consecrate to serve me as priests. And I will be invoked among the sons of Israel and will be their god. And they will know that I am the Lord their God who brought them from the land of Egypt, to be invoked by them and to be their God.

And you shall make an altar of incense from decay-resistant wood. And you shall make it a cubit long and a cubit wide. It shall be square and two cubits high. Its horns shall be part of it. And you shall gold-plate them with pure gold, its hearth and its sides round about and its horns, and you shall make for it a twisted gold molding round about. And two pure gold rings you shall make for it below its twisted molding: on the two sides you shall make them at the two flanks. And they shall be housings for the sticks to carry it by them. And you shall make sticks from decay-resistant wood and gold-plate them with gold. And you shall place it in front of the veil that is over the ark of witnesses by which I will be known to you there. And Aaron will burn on it mixed, finely ground incense. Morning by morning, whenever he prepares the lamps, he will burn incense on it. And whenever Aaron lights the lamps in the evening, he will burn incense on it—incense of perpetuity always before the Lord for their generations. And you shall not offer on it other incense, offering, sacrifice, and a libation you shall not pour on it. And Aaron will make atonement for its horns once in the year. By means of the blood of the purification of sins, the atonement, once in the year he will purify it for their generations. It is a holy of holies for the Lord.

And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: If you take the count of the sons of Israel in their review, they each shall also give a ransom for his soul to the Lord, and there shall not be damage among them in their review. And this is what they shall give, as many as pass along the review: the half of the didrachma, which is according to the holy didrachma. The didrachma is twenty obols. Now the half of the didrachma is a tax for the Lord.

Everyone who passes along for the review from twenty years and upward shall give the tax to the Lord. The wealthy person will not increase, and the poor person will not decrease the half of the didrachma when giving the tax to the Lord to make atonement for your souls. And you shall take the silver of the tax from the sons of Israel and give it for the labor cost of the tent of witness, and for the sons of Israel it shall be a remembrance before the Lord to make atonement for your souls.

And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: Make a bronze washbasin and a bronze base for it for washing. And you shall put it between the altar, and you shall pour water into it. And Aaron and his sons will wash from it their hands and their feet with water. Whenever they enter into the tent of witness, they will wash with water and will not die, or whenever they come near to the altar to minister and to offer the whole burnt offerings to the Lord, they will wash their hands and their feet with water, lest they die. And it will be for them a perpetual precept, for him and his generations after him.

And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: And you, take spices, the flower of choice myrrh, five hundred shekels and sweet-smelling cinnamon, half of this, two hundred and fifty and sweet-smelling cane, two hundred and fifty and five hundred sanctuary shekels of iris and a hin of oil from olives. And you shall make it a holy anointing oil, aromatic perfume by the craft of a perfumer; it shall be a holy anointing oil. And you shall anoint from it the tent of witness and the altar of incense 28and the altar of the whole burnt offerings and all its utensils, and the table and all its utensils, and the washbasin and its base. And you shall consecrate them, and they shall be holy of holies. Everyone who touches them shall be consecrated. And Aaron and his sons you shall anoint and shall consecrate them to serve me as priests. And to the sons of Israel you shall speak, saying, "Oil, holy unguent of anointing, shall this be for you throughout your generations.

On the flesh of a person it shall not be poured, and according to this mixture there shall not be made for yourselves such as this. It is holy, and it shall be to you something made holy. Whoever makes such as this and whoever gives of it to an alien shall be destroyed from his people."

And the Lord said to Moses: Take for yourself spices—oil of myrrh, onycha, galbanum that is sweet and translucent frankincense, each shall be in equal proportion. And they will make it incense, perfumed work of a perfumer, mixed, pure, holy work. And you shall beat some of it small and place it before the witnesses in the tent of witness, there where I shall be known to you. It shall be a holy of holies for you. Incense according to this mixture you shall not make for yourselves. It is to you something made holy to the Lord. Who-
And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

2 "Look, I have summoned by name Beseleel the son of Ouri son of Hor of the tribe of Ioudas, 3 and I have filled him with a divine spirit of skill and intelligence and knowledge in every work, 4 to be designing and to construct, to fashion the gold and the silver and the bronze and the blue and the purple and the spun scarlet and the twisted linen 5 and the stone works and for the works crafted from wood, to fashion according to all the works. 6 And I have appointed him and Eliab the son of Achisamach from the tribe of Dan, and to everyone intelligent at heart I have given intelligence, and they shall make all things that I instructed you— 7 the tent of witness and the ark of the covenant and the propitiatory that is on it and the furnishings of the tent 8 and the altars and the table and all its utensils and the pure lampstand and all its utensils 9 and the washbasin and its base 10 and Aaron’s ministry vestments and the vestments of his sons to serve me as priests 11 and the oil of anointing and the incense of the mixture for the sanctuary—according to all that I commanded you, they shall do.

12 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

13 And you, instruct the sons of Israel, saying, "Observe and keep my sabbaths! For it is a sign with me and among you for your generations in order that you may know that I am the Lord who consecrates you. 14 And you shall keep the sabbaths, because this is holy for you. The one who profanes it shall with death be put to death. Everyone who will do work in it, that soul shall be destroyed from among his people. 15 For six days you shall do works, but on the seventh day there is Sabbata, a rest holy to the Lord. Everyone who does work on the seventh day shall be put to death. 16 And the sons of Israel will keep the sabbaths to observe them throughout their generations, an everlasting covenant 17 with me and the sons of Israel. ” It is an everlasting sign because in six days the Lord made the heaven and the earth, and on the seventh day he stopped and rested.

18 And he gave Moyses, when he stopped speaking to him on the mountain, Sina, the two tablets of witness, stone tablets written by the finger of God.

And when the people saw that Moyses delayed to come down from the mountain, the people gathered together before a Aaron and say to him, “Get up, and make us gods who will go before us. For this Moyses, the man who brought us out from the land of Egypt, we do not know what has happened to him.” 2 And Aaron says to them, “Remove the gold earrings in the ears of your wives and daughters, and bring them to me.” 3 And all the people removed the gold earrings in their ears and brought them to Aaron. 4 And he received from their hands and formed them with an engraving tool and made them a molten calf and said, “These are your gods, Israel, who brought you up from the land of Egypt.” 5 And when Aaron saw, he built an altar before it, and Aaron proclaimed, saying, “The Lord’s feast tomorrow!” 6 And early the next day, he brought up whole burnt offerings and offered a sacrifice of deliverance, and the people sat down to eat and drink, and they arose to play.

7 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, “Go! Descend quickly from here, for your people have acted lawlessly, whom you brought out of the land of Egypt. 8 They have deviated quickly from the way that you commanded them. They made for themselves a calf and did obeisance to it and offered sacrifices to it, and they said, 9 ‘These are your gods, Israel, who brought you up from the land of Egypt.’ 10 And now allow me, and, enraged with anger against them, I will destroy them and make you into a great nation.”

11 And Moyses prayed before the Lord his God and said, “Why, Lord, are you enraged with anger against your people whom you brought out of the land of Egypt with great power and an uplifted arm? 12 Lest the Egyptians should speak, saying, ‘With evil intent he led them out to kill them in the mountains and to destroy them utterly from the earth,’ stop the anger of your rage, and be propitious at the wickedness of your people, 13 remembering Abraam and Isaak and Iakob, your domestics, to whom you swore by yourself and spoke to them, saying, ‘I will greatly multiply your seed as the stars of the sky in number,’ and all this land that you said you would give to their seed, and they will possess it forever.” 14 And the Lord was propitiated concerning the harm that he said he would do to his people.

15 And Moyses turned and went down from the mountain, and the two tablets of witness were in his hands, stone tablets written on both their sides; on this side and that side they were written. 16 And the tablets were God’s work, and the writing, God’s writing, was engraved in the tablets. 17 And when Iesous heard the sound of the people, he stopped from coming to the mountain. 18 And he says, “It is not the sound of those taking the lead by force, or the sound of those taking the lead in a rout, but the sound of those taking the lead in wine I hear.”

19 Now when he was drawing near to the camp, he sees the calf and the dancing, and being enraged with anger, Moyses threw from his hands the two tablets and shattered them beneath the mountain. 20 And taking the calf that they made, he burnt it with fire and ground it small and scattered it on the water and made the sons of Israel drink it.

21 And Moyses said to Aaron, “What did this people do to you that you brought upon them my angel will go before your face. But on lead this people to the place that I told you. Look, the people on that day about three thousand men. According as Moyses said to them, and there fell from the people on that day about three thousand men. 5And they mourned in mournful ways. 5And according to Moyses said to them, ‘This is what the Lord, the God of Israel, says, ‘Each one put his own sword on his thigh, and go through, and return from gate to gate through the camp, and each one kill his brother, and each one his neighbor, and each one the one nearest to him.’ ” 28And the sons of Leui did according as Moyses said to them, and there fell from the people on that day about three thousand men. 29And Moyses said to them, “You filled your hands today for the Lord, each one by the son or by the brother, for a blessing to be bestowed upon you.” 30 And it happened on the next day that Moyses said to the people, “You have sinned a great sin, and now I will go up to God in order that I might make atonement for your sin.” 31 Then Moyses turned to the Lord and said, “I beg, O Lord. This people has sinned a great sin and made for themselves gold gods. 32 And now, if you shall forgive their sin.” 33 And the Lord said to Moyses, “If anyone has sinned before me, I will erase him from my book. 34 But now go, and I will go before you. And I will have mercy on whomever I have mercy, and I will call by my name “Lord” before you. And I will have mercy on whomever I have mercy, and I will have compassion on whomsoever I have compassion.” 35 And the Lord struck the people for the making of the calf that Aaron made. 33 And the Lord said to Moyses, “Go, ascend from here, you and your people, whom you brought out of the land of Egypt, into the land that I swore to Abraam, Isaak and Iakob, saying, ‘To your seed I will give it. ’ 2And I will send along to you two stone tablets, just like the first, and I will show you what I will do to you.” 6 And the sons of Israel removed their ornamentation and finery from the mountain of Choreb. 7 And Moyses took his tent and pitched it outside the camp, far from the camp, and it was called “tent of witness.” And it happened that everyone who was seeking the Lord would go out to the tent outside the camp. 8And when Moyses would go into the tent, all the people stood, watching, each one at the doors of his tent, and they would pay attention as Moyses went away until he entered into the tent. 9 And whenever Moyses entered into the tent, the pillar of cloud would descend and stand at the doors of the tent and would speak to Moyses. 10 And all the people would see the pillar of cloud standing at the doors of the tent, and all the people stood and did obeisance each one at the door of his tent. 11 And the Lord spoke to Moyses face to face, as if someone should speak to his own friend. And he would return to the camp, but his attendant, lesous son of Naue, a young man, would not go out of the tent. 12 And Moyses said to the Lord, “Look, you say to me, ‘Lead up this people!’ but you did not disclose to me whom you would send along with me. And you said to me, ‘I have known you above all others, and you have favor with me.’ 13 If then I have found favor before you, disclose yourself to me. Let me see you recognizably in order that I might find favor before you and in order that I might know that this nation is your people.” 14 And he says, “I myself will go before you, and I will give you rest.” 15 And he says to him, “If you yourself do not go, do not lead me up from here. 16 And how shall it be truly known that I have found favor with you, both I and your people, other than if you go along with us? And we shall be glorified, both I and your people, above all the nations that are on the earth.” 17 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “Even this word that you have spoken, I will do for you. For you have found favor before me, and I know you above all others.” 18 And he says, “Show me your own glory!” 19 And he said, “I will pass by before you in my glory, and I will call by my name “Lord” before you. And I will have mercy on whomever I have mercy, and I will have compassion on whomever I have compassion.” 20 And he said, “You shall not be able to see my face. For a person shall never see my face and live.” 21 And the Lord said, “Look, a place is near me. You shall stand on the rock. 22Now, whenever my glory passes by, then I will put you in a hole of the rock, and I will cover you with my hand until I pass by. 23 And I will take my hand away, and then you shall see my hind parts, but my face will not appear to you.” 34 And the Lord said to Moyses, “Cut for yourself two stone tablets, just like the first ones, and ascend to me onto the mountain, and I will write upon the tablets the words that were on the first tablets that you shattered. 2 And be pre-paried for the morning, and you shall come up onto the mountain, Sina, and shall stand there for me on the top of the mountain. 3And let no one come up with you or be seen in all the mountain. And do not let the sheep and the cattle graze near that mountain.” 4And he cut two stone tablets, just like the first ones. And when it was early in the morning, Moyses went up onto the mountain, Sina, just as the Lord instructed him. And Moyses took with him the two stone tablets. 5And the Lord descended in a cloud, and he stood beside him there, and he called in the name of the Lord. 6And the Lord passed by before his face, and he called, “The Lord, the Lord God is compassionate and merciful, 7 patient and very merciful and truthful and preserving righteousness and doing mercy for thousands, 8 taking away acts of lawlessness and of injustice and sins, and he will not acquit the guilty person, bringing lawless acts of fathers upon children and upon children of children, upon the third and fourth generation.” 9And quickly, bowing down to the earth, Moyses did obeisance 10 and said, “If I have found favor before you, let my Lord go together with us. For the people are stiff-necked, and you shall take away our sins and lawless acts, and we will be yours.” 10 And the Lord said to Moyses: Look, I am making a covenant with you. Before all your people I shall do glorious things that have not happened in all the earth and in any nation. And all the people among whom you are will see the works of the Lord because the things that I will do for you are awesome. 11 Mind all the things that I command you. Look, I am casting out from before you the Amorite and Chananite and Chettite and Pherezite and Heuite and Gergeseite and Iebousite. 12Mind yourself, lest you make a covenant with those dwelling on the land that you are entering into, lest it become a stumbling block for you. 13Their altars you shall tear down, and their steles you shall break, and their groves you shall cut down, and the cast images of their gods you shall burn with fire. 14For you shall not do obeisance before another god. For the Lord God, a jealous name, is a jealous God, 15lest you make a covenant with those dwelling on the land and they go fornicating after their gods and they sacrifice to their gods and invite you and you should eat their sacrifices 16 and you should take from their daughters for your sons and from your daughters you should give to their sons and your daughters go fornicating after their gods and they lead your sons to fornicate after their gods. 17 And you shall not make for yourself molten gods. 18 And the feast of unleavened bread you shall keep. Seven days you shall eat unleavened bread, according as I have commanded you, during the time in the month of the new things. For in the month of the new things you came out of Egypt. 19 All that opens the womb, the males are mine, firstborn of a cow and firstborn of a sheep. 20 And you shall redeem the firstborn of a draft animal with a sheep. Now if you do not redeem it, you shall give a price. Every firstborn of your sons you shall redeem. 21 You shall not appear before me empty-handed. 22 Six days you shall work, but on the seventh day you shall rest. In seadime and harvest you shall rest. 22AAnd a feast of weeks you shall make for me during the beginning of the wheat harvest, and a feast of gathering in the middle of the year. 23 Three times per year every male of yours shall appear before the Lord, the God of Israel. 24 For whenever I cast out the nations from before you and enlarge your borders, no one shall desire your land whenever you go up to appear before the Lord your God three times per year. 25 You shall not slaughter the blood of my sacrifices near leaven, and sacrifices of a feast of pascha shall not lie until morning. 26 The first products of your land you shall bring into the house of the Lord your God. 27 You shall not boil a lamb in its mother’s milk. 27AAnd the Lord said to Moyses: Write for yourself these words. For on the basis of these words I have made a covenant with you and Israel. 28 And Moyses was there before the Lord for forty days and forty nights. He did not eat bread and he did not drink water. And he wrote these words on the tablets of the covenant, the Ten Words. 29 And as Moyses was descending from the mountain, the two tablets also were in Moyses’ hands. Now as he was descending from the mountain, Moyses did not know that the appearance of the skin of his face was charged with glory while he was speaking to him. 30 And Aaron and all the elders of Israel saw Moyses, and the appearance of the skin of his face was charged with glory, and they were afraid to come near to him. 31 And Moyses called them, and Aaron and all the rulers of the congregation turned to him, and Moyses spoke to them. 32 And after these things all the sons of Israel drew near to him, and he commanded them all the things that the Lord said to him on the mountain, Sina. 33 And when he stopped speaking to them, he placed a covering over his face. 34 But whenever Moyses would enter in before the Lord to speak with him, he would remove the covering until coming out. And when he came out, he would tell all the sons of Israel what the Lord commanded him. 35 And the sons of Israel saw the face of Moyses that it was charged with glory, and Moyses put a covering over his face until he went in to converse with him. 35 And Moyses assembled the entire congregation of the sons of Israel and said to them: These are the words that the Lord said to do them:
2 Six days you shall do works, but on the seventh day there is a rest, something holy, Sabbath, a repose for the Lord. Let everyone who does work in it die! 3 You shall not burn a fire in any settlement of yours on the day of the sabbaths. I am the Lord.

4 And Moyses spoke to the entire congregation of the sons of Israel, saying: This is the matter that the Lord instructed, saying: 5 Take from among yourselves an advance deduction for the Lord. Everyone who is disposed in heart will bring the first fruits to the Lord, gold, silver, bronze, 6 blue, purple, double spun scarlet and twisted linen and goats' hair and red-dyed rams' skins and blue skins and decay-resistant wood 8 and stones of sardius and stones for engraving for the shoulder-strap and the full-length robe.

9(10) And let everyone among you skilled in mind come and fashion all the things that the Lord instructed—10 the tent and the wrappings and the coverings and the hooks and the bars and the pillars 11 and the ark of witness and its carrying-poles and its propitiatory and the veil 12 and the hangings of the court and its pillars 13 and the stones of emerald 14 and the incense of the anointing and the mixture of the incense. 29 And the blue and the purple and the scarlet and the linen. 27 And the women to whose mind it seemed good, they brought spun things, the skins and decay-resistant wood 8 and stones of sardius and stones for engraving for the shoulder-strap and the full-length robe. 26 And all the women to whose mind it seemed good, they brought spun things, the skins and decay-resistant wood 8 and stones of sardius and stones for engraving for the shoulder-strap and the full-length robe.

30 And Moyses said to the sons of Israel: Look, God has called by name Beseleel the son of Ouri son of Hor from the tribe of loudas 31 and has filled him with a divine spirit of skill and intelligence and knowledge of all things 32 to construct according to all the works of construction, to form the gold and the silver and the bronze 33 and to work the stone and to fashion the wood and to make by every work of skill 34 and to instruct as well he gave him in his mind, both to him and to Eliab the son of Achisamach from the tribe of Dan.

36 And Beseleel and Eliab and everyone skilled in mind, to whom were given skill and knowledge in them to know how to make all the works according to the holy things that are fitting, did according to all that the Lord instructed.

2 And Moyses called Beseleel and Eliab and all those having the skill, to whom God gave knowledge in their heart, and all those who freely desired, to make a start on the works so as to complete them, 3 and they received from Moyses all the advance deductions that the sons of Israel brought for all the works of the holy place to make them, and they were still receiving the things being offered from those who were bringing morning by morning. 4 And all the skilled who were making the works of the holy place, each one according to his work that they were fashioning, were drawing near and said to Moyses, “The people are bringing much beyond the works that the Lord has instructed to do.” 6 And Moyses ordered and proclaimed in the camp, saying, “Let man and woman no longer work for the first fruits of the holy place.” And the people were prevented from offering any more. 7 And the works were sufficient for the equipment, to make it, and they had a surplus.

8 And every skilled person among those working made the vestments of the holy places that belonged to Aaron, the priest, according as the Lord instructed Moyses.

9 And they made the shoulder-strap from gold and blue and purple and spun scarlet and twisted linen. 10 And the leaves of gold were cut up as hairs so as to weave together with the blue and the purple and with the spun scarlet and with the twisted linen. They made it a woven work, shoulder pieces joined from both sides, (5) a work woven into one another by mutual twisting of each part. 12 From it they made in accord with its making, from gold and blue and purple and spun scarlet and twisted linen, according as the Lord instructed Moyses.
stones of remembrance of the sons of Israel, according as the Lord instructed Moyses.

15(8) And they made an oracle, a work woven with embroidery, like the work of the shoulder-strap, from gold and blue and purple and spun scarlet and twisted linen. 16(9) They made the oracle square, doubled: the length of a span and the width of a span, doubled. 17(10) And there was interwoven in it a woven piece, set with stones, with four rows. A row of stones—sardius and topaz and emerald—was the one row. 18(11) And the second row—ruby and lazuli and jasper. 19(12) And the third row—ligurion and agate and amethyst. 20(13) And the fourth row—chrysolite and beryl and onyx, set in gold and bound in gold. 21(14) And the stones were of the names of the sons of Israel, twelve corresponding to their names, engraved seals, each with its own name for the twelve tribes. 22(15) And they made on the oracle plaited tassels, a work of braiding, from pure gold. 23(16) And they made two small gold shields and two gold rings. 24(17) And they put the two gold rings on both corners of the oracle. 25(18) And they put the braids of gold on the rings on both sides of the oracle and onto the two couplings, the two braids. 26(19) And they put them on the two small shields and put them on the shoulders of the shoulder-strap opposite in front. 27(20) And they made two gold rings and put them on the two wings, at the extremity of the shoulder-strap inward. 28(21) And they made two gold rings and put them on both shoulders of the shoulder-strap below it, in front beneath the coupling, above the woven strap of the shoulder-strap. 29(22) And he fastened the oracle by the rings on it to the rings of the shoulder-strap, being held together by the blue, having been interwoven into the woven work of the shoulder-strap, lest the oracle be loosened from the shoulder-strap, according as the Lord instructed Moyses.

30(22) And they made the undergarment beneath the shoulder-strap, a woven work entirely blue. 31(23) Now the collar of the undergarment was in the middle interwoven, plaited together, having an indestructible border around the collar. 32(24) And they made on the hem of the undergarment below little pomegranates as of a flowering pomegranate tree, from blue and purple and spun scarlet and twisted linen. 33(25) And they made gold bells and put the bells on the hem of the undergarment all around between the little pomegranates. 34(26) A gold bell and a little pomegranate were on the hem of the undergarment all around in order to minister, according as the Lord instructed Moyses.

35(27) And they made linen tunics, a woven work, for Aaron and his sons. 36(28) And the turbans from linen and the headdress from linen and the underpants from twisted linen. 37(29) And their sashes from linen and blue and purple and spun scarlet, a work of an embroiderer, in the same manner as the Lord instructed Moyses.

38(30) And they made the thin gold plate, something set apart of the holy place, of pure gold. 39(31) And he wrote letters on it, put in relief like a seal, “Holiness to the Lord.” 40(32) And they put on the border something blue so that it lay on the head-dress above, in the same manner as the Lord instructed Moyses.

37 (36.8b) And they made for the tent ten curtains. 2(9) Twenty-eight cubits was the length of the one curtain. All were the same. And the width of the one curtain was four cubits.

[36.8b] The work of the tent of ten curtains from twisted linen and blue and purple and twisted scarlet; he made them with cherubim, by the work of a weaver. 9(10) A length of the one curtain was twenty-eight cubits, and a width of four cubits was the one curtain; the measurement was the same for all the curtains and the five curtains joining one from the other and five curtains joining one from the other. 11(11) And he made blue loops on the edge of the one curtain from the side for the coupling. And thus he did on the edge of the outer curtain for the second coupling. 12(12) Now fifty loops he made for the one curtain, and fifty loops he made from the side of the curtain according to the coupling of the second. The loops were opposite to one another for each one. 13(13) And he made fifty gold clasps, and he joined together the curtains, one to the other with the clasps. And the tent became one. 14(14) And he made hairy skins as a cover over the tent. Eleven skins he made them. 15(15) The length of the one skin was thirty cubits and the width of the one skin was four cubits; the measurement was the same for the eleven skins. 16(16) And he joined the five skins together and the six skins together. 17(17) And he made fifty loops on the edge of the skin in between as a coupling, and fifty loops he made on the edge of the adjoining second skin. 18(18) And he made fifty bronze clasps, and he joined the tent to be one. 19(19) And he made red-dyed skins of rams as a covering for the tent and blue skins above as an outer covering. 20(20) And he made the pillars for the tent from decay-resistant wood, standing. 21(21) The length of the pillar was ten cubits, and the width of the one pillar was a cubit and half a cubit. 22(22) Two hooks for the one pillar opposite one to the other; thus he made all the pillars of the tent. 23(23) And he made the pillars of the tent twenty pillars on the side towards the south southward. 24(24) And forty silver bases he made for the twenty pillars, two bases for the one pillar for both its parts and two bases for the one pillar for both its parts. 25(25) Now for the second side of the tent towards the north he made twenty pillars and their forty silver bases, two bases for the one pillar and two bases for the one pillar. 26(26) And on the back parts of the tent seaward he made six pillars. 27(27) And two pillars he made on the corners of the tent on the backsides. 28(28) And they were even beneath, and in the same way they were even at their capitals for one connection. Thus he did for the two, for both corners. 29(29) And there were eight pillars and their silver bases, sixteen bases, two bases for the one pillar and two

bases for the one pillar. And he made five bars from decay-resistant wood for the pillar on the one side of the tent. And five bars for the pillar on the second side of the tent and five bars for the rear pillar of the tent towards the sea. And he made the middle bar reaching between the pillars from side to side. And the pillars he gold-plated with gold, and their rings he made of gold into which he inserted the bars, and he gold-plated the bars with gold.

And they made the veil from blue and purple and spun scarlet and twisted linen; a woven work with cherubim. And they put it on four decay-resistant pillars gold-plated with gold, and their capitals were gold, and their four bases silver.

And its five pillars and their clasps and their capitals and their bands they gold-plated with gold, and their five bases were bronze.

And they made the veil of the door of the tent of witness, as it was instructed to Moyses, for the ministry of the Leuites through Ithamar the son of Aaron, the priest. And Beseleel the son of Ouri from the tribe of Ioudas made according as it was instructed to Moyses; he made and gold-plated them with gold.

Now the remaining gold of the advance deduction they made into utensils to minister with them before the Lord. [13] And the remaining blue and purple and scarlet they made into ministry vestments for Aaron, so as to minister with them in the holy place.

And they brought the vestments to Moyses and the tent and its utensils and the bases and the poles and the pillars and the ark of the covenant and its staves and all its utensils and the oil of the anointing and the incense of the mixture and all the pure lampstand and lamps for burning, and the oil for the light and the table of presentation and all its utensils and the presentation loaves and the vestments of Aaron and the vests and the vestments of his sons for the priesthood, and the hangings of the courtyard and its pillars and bases and the veil of the door of the tent and of the gate of the courtyard and all the utensils of the tent and all its equipment and the prepared hides, the red-dyed rams’ skins and the coverings, blue skins and the covers for the rest and the pegs and all the equipment for the works of the tent of witness. [22] As the Lord instructed Moyses, so the sons of Israel made all the preparation. [23] And Moyses saw all the works, and they had made them in the way the Lord instructed Moyses; so they made them. And Moyses blessed them.

And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: [2] In day one of the first month at the new moon, you shall set up the tent of witness, and you shall position the ark of witness and all its equipment, and shall position the ark of witness near the doors of the tent of witness and shall set the courtyard around it. [7] And you shall take the oil of the anointing and shall anoint the tent and all the things in it and shall consecrate it and all its utensils, and they shall be holy. 8(10) And you shall anoint the altar of the offerings and all its utensils, 9 and you shall consecrate the altar, and the altar shall be a holy of holies. 10(12) And you shall bring Aaron and his sons near to the doors of the tent of witness and wash them with water. 11(13) And you shall put the holy vestments on Aaron and shall anoint him and consecrate him, and he shall serve me as priest. 12(14) And his sons you shall bring near and shall put tunics on them, 13(15) and you shall anoint them in the same way you anointed their father, and they shall serve me as priests, and it shall be so that their anointing for priesthood is forever for their generations. 14(16) And Moyses did all the things that the Lord commanded him; so he did.

15(17) And it happened in the first month in the second year when they came out from Egypt, at the new moon, the tent was set up, 16(18) and Moyses set up the tent and put on the capitals and inserted the bars and set up the pillars, 17(19) and he stretched out the curtains over the tent and put on the covering of the tent over it above, according as the Lord instructed Moyses. 18(20) And taking the witnesses, he put them into the ark and put the staves under the ark, 19(21) and he brought the ark into the tent and put on the covering of the veil and protected the ark of witness, just as the Lord instructed Moyses. 20(22) And he positioned the table in the tent of witness on the side of the tent of witness towards the north, outside the veil of the tent, 21(23) and he presented on it loaves of presentation before the Lord, just as the Lord instructed Moyses. 22(24) And he positioned the lampstand in the tent of witness, towards the side of the tent towards the south, 23(25) and he put on its lamps before the Lord, just as the Lord instructed Moyses. 24(26) And he positioned the gold altar in the tent of witness in front of the veil, 25(27) and he burnt on it the incense of the mixture, according as the Lord instructed Moyses. 26(29) And the altar of the offerings he placed near the doors of the tent of witness, 27(33) and he set up the courtyard around the tent and the altar, and Moyses finished all the works.

28(34) And the cloud covered the tent of witness, and the tent was filled with the glory of the Lord. 29(35) And Moyses was unable to enter into the tent of witness, because the cloud was overshadowing it, and the tent was filled with the glory of the Lord. 30(36) Now whenever the cloud lifted from the tent, the sons of Israel moved camp with their household stuff. 31(37) But if the cloud did not lift, they did not move camp until the day in which the cloud lifted. 32(38) For cloud was over the tent by day and fire was over it by night before all Israel in all their journeyings.
THE NETS translation of Leviticus has been based on the edition of John William Wevers (Septuaginta: Vetus Testamentum Graecum Auctoritate Academiae Scientiarum Gottingensis editum II.2: Leviticus [Gottingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1986]). Wevers’ edition is accompanied by two supplemental volumes: The Text History of the Greek Leviticus (Gottingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1986) and Notes on the Greek Text of Leviticus (SBLSCS 44; SBL: Atlanta, 1997). The Greek text of Leviticus from which I made the NETS translation includes the emendations to the Gottingen text suggested by Wevers in his Notes, p. 483. I record differences between the Gottingen edition and the emended text in Notes (WeN) in the NETS footnotes by the designation Weed.

THIS TRANSLATION

On Method

What I attempt in this translation is to reflect, by way of English, the translational convention at work in the mind of the Greek translator as indicated by the text he produced. The Greek Leviticus is a text that the translator constructed on the basis of how he understood his Hebrew parent text to function, in combination with what he thought that Hebrew text meant. In other words, he was accounting as best he could for Hebrew words and syntactical units while toeing the line of a peculiar translational convention. His is not a freestanding idiomatic translation based on an understanding of the idiom of Hebrew syntactical units. Rather, his strange Greek is first and foremost a reflection of his attitude to his parent text and the force his parent text exerted on his choice of equivalents.

In the first place, then, NETS Leuitikon tries to be an English translation of a Greek translation. As the general introduction, “TO THE READER OF NETS,” points out, this is the approach of NETS: to present to the English reader the two-dimensionality of the Septuagint. This text has a horizontal dimension in terms of the relation of Greek words and phrases to each other, and it has a vertical dimension in terms of its subservience to the Hebrew text(s) from which it was translated.

Meaning of Greek words

My point of departure is that Greek words are taken to mean what they meant in standard Greek of the time. Such a method helps to avoid two lexicographical pitfalls. The first is the practice of reading Hebrew meanings into Greek words on the basis of their occurrence in the LXX. The second is partially to allow the context within the LXX to determine the meaning of a Greek word/phrase used in an abnormal way. Consequently, for example, it was not possible to translate κοίτη σπέρματος with “sexual intercourse” as the Hebrew אוּר הָעִזָּה or the Greek context implies. Instead the reader will find “bed of semen.” Although κοίτη alone can mean “sexual intercourse” in non-translation Greek, the phrase as we find it in Leuitikon is not so attested. The same applies to προσήλυτος, which cannot be assumed to mean “stranger” on the basis of its pairing with Hebrew או or its use in context. I have rather tried by the gloss “guest” to convey something of the sense of “come over as stranger.” In other words, a προσήλυτος was deemed an outsider to the group but nonetheless accorded special treatment, not unlike the Mediterranean hospitality lavished on guests. Some Greek words are transcriptions of the source language; others were constructed from Semitic roots, e.g., πάσχα from פָּסָחָה and σαββατίζω from סָבָּט יָזָה, which have been rendered as “pascha” and “sabbatize,” respectively. Leuitikon contains no obvious calques (see “TO THE READER OF NETS”).

nature of the Greek translation

General Remarks

Enough detailed information on the characteristics of the language employed in the Greek Leviticus and the individual quirks of the translator can be found in Wevers’ Notes. Further comment may be found in the introduction of Paul Harlé and Didier Pralon's Le Levitique BA (1988). As a result, I will focus on the semantic aspects of a few of the translator's choice of words.

In general it may be said that the translator of Leuitikon, to use Albert Pietersma's words, is not "performing his translator's duty to the reader, namely, to convey the total meaning of the source text." Rather, instead of trying to convey meaning in idiomatic Greek from larger Hebrew phrases, he works mostly from the individual Hebrew syntactical units and what individual Greek equivalents he has chosen for them. This fact is further borne out by the lack of connecting particles found in the Septuagint.

Pleonasm

The preceding description is witnessed most clearly by what are known as relative pleonasms found in the Greek rendering of the resumption of the pronoun found in Hebrew syntax. A typical Hebrew relative sentence such as Lev 15.20b שָׁם כָּלָה יָדוֹ וְיָדוֹתָהּ לְכֹלָהּ may be translated literally: "and everything that she sits on . . . shall be unclean." The Greek translator renders the Hebrew more or less word for word as follows: καὶ πᾶν ἐφ’ ὃ ἐπικαθίση ἐπ’ αὐτό, ἀκαθαρτόν ἔσται. I have endeavored to pass this on to the reader as follows, using the colloquial English sentence with the preposition separated from its object: "everything also which she sits down on shall be unclean."

Distributives

Among the translators of the Pentateuch it was especially the Leuitikon translator who insisted on rendering the Hebrew distributive כָּלָה כָּלָה literally, and therefore woodenly, with resultant negative transfer from the source language. Thus, for example, on six occasions (17.3, 8, 10, 13; 18.6; 22.18) he translated it by ἄνθρωπος ἄνθρωπος ("person by person"), once (15.2) by ἄνδρα ἁνήρ ("man by man"), twice (22.4; 24.15) by ἄνθρωπος ("a person") and once (20.2) by τῶν ("any one").

Some Individual Words

On the level of individual words one finds this one-to-one dependence also to be true, in most cases. For example, the Hebrew word translated as "grain offering" in the NRSV will appear in NETS simply as "offering" because the Greek translator has chosen a general Greek term for offering as his counterpart for every occurrence of that Hebrew word. The same thing applies to the Hebrew use of "hand" in combination with other words to produce idioms. Someone whose "hand reaches" is someone who has financial means. There is a good Greek word for this, εὐπορεῖα, which by itself would have accounted for the Hebrew. It does indeed appear in 25.26, but the Greek translator is constrained to account in Greek for the Hebrew "hand" and therefore adds to his idiom an unnecessary item. Fortunately the English of NETS can come to the rescue with "has plenty in hand." When in 25.35 a person becomes poor, the result is that in Hebrew one "has a shaky or slippery hand." The Greek translator rendered this phrase by the singular and well chosen Greek term ἀδυνάτωσα, "to lack strength," which would have sufficed to account for the Hebrew, but once again the translator's attitude toward his parent text demanded at this point that he account also for "hands." This same situation holds true for the Hebrew formula "to ordain," which is "to fill the hands." In Leuitikon (8.33; 16.32; 21.10), as also in Numbers and Exodus, the Greek translator chooses the verb τελειῶσα, "to complete, validate" plus "hand." This phrase comes into NETS as "whose hand has been validated," compared to the phrase "who has been ordained" in the NRSV, signaling that the Greek translator worked in a word-for-word manner rather than choosing an idiomatic option. Similar examples are θρόνωσα, which NETS renders "rupture" for הָרִים, whereas NRSV has "itch," and ἀφίη, which NETS translates "attack" for ὀξύς, while NRSV has "disease."

Cultic Terminology

In rendering Hebrew cultic terminology into Greek, there seems to be certainty about some kinds of sacrifices but not about others. For instance we find that for the Hebrew words כָּלָה כָּלָה “sin/sin offering” and כָּלָה כָּלָה "guilt/guilt offering," the Greek counterparts are always the same, i.e., ἁμαρτία and πλημμελεία. They are rendered in NETS by "sin" and "error," respectively. But for the Hebrew "wave offering," לְזֹא, there are four different Greek equivalents: δῶμα, ἀφάρεμα (also used for the Hebrew ἄφαρεμ), NRSV “offering”), ἐπιθέμα and ἀφόρσις. Its cognate verb ἔστημι (Hiphil) also has four different Greek equivalents: ἐπιτίθημι, ἀφάρεμα, ἀφορίζομαι and ἀναφέρεσις. In these instances the Greek equivalents do not approximate the meaning of the Hebrew. It could be that by the time this translation was made, all but certain kinds of sacrifices had lost their meaning to the translator.
Consistency
The words “mostly” and “in most cases” used above for the translator’s modus operandi are important, because the Leuitikon translator is not consistent in the way he goes about things. Even though in most cases he works atomistically, ignoring Greek idiom, the odd exception occurs. In this he is quite distinct from the translators of Deuteronomy and Exodus, for example. This circumstance can be illustrated by the comparative “than,” which in Hebrew is expressed by the word “from” (תָּמִּי). Commonly the translator will choose his standard preposition for the Hebrew “from” and construct a barely intelligible Greek sentence, e.g., 13.3 ταπείνη από τό δέρματός NETS: “low in the skin,” cf. NRSV “deeper than the skin.” But occasionally he decides instead to employ the standard Greek idiomatic expression for the same Hebrew, e.g., 13.30, 31 ἐγκοιλοτέρα τοῦ δέρματος NETS: “more hollow than the skin.”

The standard explanations that try to account for the inconsistency in Leuitikon do not do justice to the complexity of this book. If it appears that his poor Greek usage may provide one clue, one could put forward equal evidence of his grammar and choice of translation equivalents being of a decent standard. Variation for the sake of creativity also does not satisfy as an explanation because there are enough instances of blatant un-creativity to persuade one otherwise. Leuitikon may thus be said to have many faces.

The interlinear model developed by Albert Pietersma does offer a plausible explanation in that it points to the two-dimensionality of the text.¹ The translator worked in small bits at a time. His Greek syntactic units, at any given instance, were subject to interference from the parent text, but this interference happens to a greater or lesser degree from moment to moment. There is therefore a lack of semantic coherence at times but also a lack of systematization. The result is that we have a disordered text and a text that is episodic in its nature. The lack of semantic coherence is attributable to the interference from the parent text, but not in all instances. Other factors that produce inconsistency such as changes in number and person are difficult to explain due to our ignorance of the exact form of the translator’s source text and whether the translator ever made changes on his own initiative.

The procedure followed in my translation was always to start with the NRSV and then to alter it insofar as it did not represent the Greek or the differences between the Hebrew and the Greek. So the reader should as a rule of thumb expect NETS to reveal the differences between the Greek and the Hebrew from a synoptic point of view. Occasionally this will be overridden by the need to point out the force of the Hebrew upon the Greek, as in the occurrence of “and” or other particles that are the equivalent of Hebrewַ. Thus the appearance of “and” in NETS without a corresponding equivalent in NRSV will not always signal that there is an addition in the Greek. Deviations from the NRSV may therefore occur both for reasons of meaning and of style.

In NETS the actions at the altar will appear quite different from the NRSV. Often the verbs in the Greek are unrelated to the action expressed in Hebrew. Also the verbs in Hebrew would frequently have a verbal suffix or the object marker plus suffix, whereas the Greek would have none. Although an assumed objective pronoun might be standard practice in Greek, this absence of “it” or “them” will appear in NETS to distinguish these cases from the times when the objective pronoun does appear in the Greek. Thus one would find in NETS “the priest shall do the presenting” (1.15). But when neither the Hebrew nor the Greek have the objective pronoun, but NRSV does include it for the sake of style, then it will appear in NETS, e.g., “he will lay it” (2.9).

Sometimes the English of NETS unavoidably misrepresents the Greek. For example in chapter 4 and 7.10, where I have rendered ψυχή (f) by “soul,” the personal pronouns “she” or “her” that follow will be rendered by “him” or “his” in NETS.

Acknowledgments

Albert Pietersma, who is the driving force behind the NETS project, has given much of his time to devote personal attention to me and the problems raised by this difficult book. I am pleased to acknowledge his valuable advice and criticism. Leonora Jackson was a great help in the more difficult chapters.

And the Lord summoned Moyses and spoke to him from the tent of witness, saying: 2Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: When a person of you brings gifts of livestock to the Lord, you shall bring your gifts from the cattle and from the sheep.

3 If his gift is a whole burnt offering from the cattle, he shall present a male without blemish; he shall bring it to the door of the tent of witness, acceptable before the Lord. 4And he shall lay his hand on the head of the offering, a thing acceptable to him to atone for him. 5And they shall slaughter the bull calf before the Lord, and the sons of Aaron the priests shall offer the blood, and they shall pour out the blood against all sides of the altar that is at the entrance of the tent of witness. 6And when they flay the whole burnt offering, they shall cut it up limb by limb. 7And the sons of Aaron the priests shall put fire on the altar and pile wood onto the fire. 8And the sons of Aaron the priests shall put the divided parts and the head and the suet onto the wood that is on the fire on the altar, 9but the entrails and the legs they shall wash with water, and the priests shall lay everything on the altar. It is an offering, a sacrifice, an odor of fragrance to the Lord.

10 But if his gift for a whole burnt offering to the Lord is from the small cattle, both from the lambs and the kids, he shall present a male without blemish, and he shall lay his hand on its head. 11And they shall slaughter it on the north side of the altar before the Lord, and the sons of Aaron the priests shall pour out its blood against all sides of the altar. 12And they shall divide it up limb by limb with its head and its suet, and the priests shall pile them on the wood that is on the fire on the altar, 13and its entrails and its legs they shall wash with water. And the priest shall present everything and lay it on the altar. It is an offering, a sacrifice, an odor of fragrance to the Lord.

14 But if the gift he brings to the Lord is an offering from the birds, then he shall bring his gift from the turtledoves or from the doves. 15And the priest shall do the presenting at the altar and snip off the head. And the priest shall do the placing on the altar and squeeze out the blood against the base of the altar. 16And he shall remove the crop with the feathers and throw it at the east side of the altar, in the place for ashes. 17And he shall break it open by feathers and throw it at the east side of the altar, in the place for ashes. And the priest shall lay its memorial portion on the altar; it is a sacrifice, an odor of fragrance to the Lord. 18And what remains from the sacrifice is for Aaron and his sons, a holy of holies from the Lord’s sacrifices.
without blemish (he shall remove it with the loin muscles) and the fat that covers the entrails and the fat that is on the entrails, and both the kidneys and the fat that is on them at the thighs, having also removed the appendage which is on the liver with the kidneys, the priest shall make an offering on the altar, an odor of fragrance, an offering to the Lord.

12 But if his gift is from the goats, he shall both do the presenting before the Lord, and he shall lay his hands on its head, and they shall slaughter it before the Lord at the entrance of the tent of witness, and the sons of Aaron the priests shall pour out the blood against all sides of the altar. And he shall offer up of it as an offering to the Lord: the fat that covers the entrails and all the fat that is on the entrails and both the kidneys and all the fat that is on them at the thighs, and he shall remove the appendage of the liver with the kidneys. And the priest shall offer on the altar an offering, an odor of fragrance to the Lord.

All the fat is the Lord’s. It shall be a precept forever throughout your generations, in all your settlement; you shall not eat any fat and any blood.

4 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: Speak to the sons of Israel, saying: If a soul sins unintentionally before the Lord regarding the Lord’s ordinances, which one must not do, and does any one of them:

3 If it is the anointed high priest who sins, so that the people sin, then he shall bring for his sin that he has committed a calf from the cattle without blemish to the Lord for his sin. And he shall bring the bull calf to the door of the tent of witness before the Lord and lay his hand on the head of the bull calf before the Lord, and he shall slaughter the bull calf in front of the Lord. And the anointed priest, who has had his hands validated, after taking some of the blood of the bull calf, shall then bring it into the tent of witness. And the priest shall dip his finger in the blood and sprinkle some of the blood seven times with his finger before the Lord in front of the holy veil. And the priest shall put some of the blood onto the horns of the altar of the incense of the combination that is before the Lord, which is in the tent of witness, and he shall pour out all the blood at the base of the altar of offerings that is near the door of the tent of witness. And he shall do with the bull calf just as he did with the bull calf for sin; thus it shall be done. And the priest shall make atonement for them, and the sin shall be forgiven them. And they shall carry the whole bull calf outside the camp and burn up the bull calf as they completely burned the first bull calf. It is for a sin of the congregation.

22 But if the ruler sins and does unintentionally one of any of the commandments of the Lord their God, which shall not be done, and sins and is in error and the sin wherein he has sinned becomes known to him, then he shall bring his gift: a young billy goat, a male without blemish. And he shall lay his hand on the head of the young goat, and they shall slaughter it at the spot where they slaughtered the whole burnt offerings before the Lord. It is for sin. And the priest shall put some of the blood of the one for sin with his finger on the horns of the altar of whole burnt offerings, and he shall pour out all its blood at the base of the altar of whole burnt offerings. And all its fat he shall offer up on the altar, like the fat of the sacrifice of deliverance. And the priest shall make atonement for him because of his sin, and it shall be forgiven him.

27 But if any one soul of the people of the land sins unintentionally in doing one of any of the Lord’s commandments that shall not be done and he is in error and the sin wherein he sins becomes known to him, then he shall bring a young nanny goat; he shall bring a female without blemish for the sin that he has committed, and he shall lay his hand on the head of his mistake, and they shall slaughter the nanny goat for sin at the place where they slaughtered the whole burnt offer-

And the priest shall take some of its blood with his finger and put it onto the horns of the altar of whole burnt offerings, and he shall pour out all its blood at the base of the altar. And he shall remove all the fat in the same way that he removes from the sacrifice of deliverance, and the priest shall offer it up on the altar for an odor of fragrance to the Lord. And the priest shall make atonement for him, and it shall be forgiven him.

But if his hand does not find a brace of turtledoves or two young doves, then he shall bring his gift for that in which he sinned: one-tenth of an ephah of fine flour for sin. He shall not pour oil on it; neither shall he place frankincense on it, because it is for sin. And he shall bring it to the priest, and after gripping from it a handful, the priest shall lay its memorial portion on the altar on the whole burnt offerings to the Lord. It is for sin. And the priest shall make atonement for him, for his sin that he has committed in respect of one of these things, and it will be forgiven him. But what is left shall be for the priest like the offering of fine flour.

And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: If a soul forgets obliquely and sins unintentionally regarding any of the holy things of the Lord, he shall then bring to the Lord for his error a ram without blemish from the sheep, of the value of silver shekels, according to the shekel of holy things for what he has done amiss. And he shall make restitution for some of the holy things in which he was remiss and add a fifth to it and give it to the priest. And the priest shall make atonement for him with the ram for error, and it will be forgiven him.

And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: If a soul sins and does one of any of the Lord's commandments, which he ought not to do, and does not know and is in error and assumes the sin shall then bring a ram, without blemish from the sheep of the value of silver, for error to the priest. And the priest shall make atonement for him concerning his ignorance of which he was ignorant and did not know himself, and it shall be forgiven him, because he has committed an error before the Lord.

Now if a soul sins and hears a sound of oath-taking and he is a witness or has seen it or knows of it, if he does not report the matter, he will assume the guilt. Or a soul who touches any unclean thing, whether a carcass or the kill of an unclean animal or unclean carcasses of abominations or the unclean carcasses of cattle or touches some uncleanness of a person, any of his uncleanness in which he be defiled by touching, and it escaped his notice, but later on comes to know it, and should be in error, for a soul who swears, determining with his lips to do evil or to do good, in any way that the person may speak forcefully by an oath, and if it escapes the notice of his eyes and if he comes to know it and should sin in any one of these, then he shall declare his sin concerning the things in which he has sinned. And he shall bring to the Lord for whatever he has done amiss, for the sin that he has committed, a female from the sheep—a lamb, or a young nanny goat for sin. And the priest shall make atonement for him, for his sin that he has committed, and the sin will be forgiven him.

But if his hand does not have the capability for what is sufficient for a sheep, he shall bring for his sin which he has committed two turtledoves or two young doves to the Lord, one for sin and one for a whole burnt offering. And he shall bring them to the priest, and the priest shall bring the one for sin first. And the priest shall snip off its head at the neck, and he shall not divide it. And he shall sprinkle some blood of the one for sin against the wall of the altar, but what remains of the blood he shall squeeze out against the base of the altar, for it is for sin. And the second he shall prepare as a whole burnt offering, as is customary. And the priest shall make atonement for him for his sin that he has committed, and it shall be forgiven him.

But if his hand does not find a brace of turtledoves or two young doves, then he shall bring his gift for that in which he sinned: one-tenth of an ephah of fine flour for sin. He shall not pour oil on it; neither shall he place frankincense on it, because it is for sin. And he shall bring it to the priest, and after gripping from it a handful, the priest shall lay its memorial portion on the altar on the whole burnt offerings to the Lord. It is for sin. And the priest shall make atonement for him, for his sin that he has committed in respect of one of these things, and it will be forgiven him. But what is left shall be for the priest like the offering of fine flour.

And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: If a soul forgets obliquely and sins unintentionally regarding any of the holy things of the Lord, he shall then bring to the Lord for his error a ram without blemish from the sheep, of the value of silver shekels, according to the shekel of holy things for what he has done amiss. And he shall make restitution for some of the holy things in which he was remiss and add a fifth to it and give it to the priest. And the priest shall make atonement for him with the ram for error, and it will be forgiven him.

And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: If a soul sins and does one of any of the Lord's commandments, which he ought not to do, and does not know and is in error and assumes the sin shall then bring a ram, without blemish from the sheep of the value of silver, for error to the priest. And the priest shall make atonement for him concerning his ignorance of which he was ignorant and did not know himself, and it shall be forgiven him, because he has committed an error before the Lord.

And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: If a soul sins and by overlooking disregards the commandments of the Lord and falsifies matters pertaining to his neighbor—in a deposit or regarding joint ownership or regarding plunder or did his neighbor some wrong or has found a loss and lied about it—and he swears falsely about one of all which a man may do in order to sin by these, then it shall be whenever he sins and is in error and restores the booty which he seized or the injustice he committed or the deposit which was deposited with him or the loss which he found because of every matter about that which he swore about unjustly, he shall also repay the capital itself, and he shall add to it one fifth. Whosoever it is, he shall restore to him on the day he should be convicted. And for his error he shall bring to the Lord: a ram from the sheep without blemish, of the value for that which he offended. And the priest shall make atonement for him before the Lord, and he shall be forgiven for one of all that he did and offended by it.

9 Command Aaron and his sons, saying: This is the law of the whole burnt offering. The whole burnt offering itself in its burning shall be on the altar all night until the morning, and the fire of the altar shall burn on it; it shall not be put out. 10 And the priest shall put on a linen tunic, and he shall put on linen undergarments around his body, and he shall remove from the altar the sacrificial remains to which the fire has reduced the whole burnt offering, and he shall deposit it nearby the altar. 11 And he shall take off his vestment and put on another vestment and carry the sacrificial remains out to a clean place outside the camp. 12 And fire on the altar shall burn on it and shall not be put out. And the priest shall burn wood on it morning by morning and pile on it the whole burnt offering and place on it the fat of the deliverance. 13 And a fire shall burn perpetually on the altar. It shall not be put out.

14 This is the law of the sacrifice, that which the sons of Aaron shall offer before the Lord in front of the altar. 15 And he shall remove from it with a handful some of the fine flour of the sacrifice with its oil and with its frankincense that are on the sacrifice, and he shall offer its memorial portion on the altar: an offering, an odor of fragrance to the Lord. 16 But what remains of it Aaron and his sons shall eat. It shall be consumed unleavened in a holy place. In the court of the tent of witness they shall eat it. 17 It shall not be baked as leavened. I have given it as a portion to them from the offerings of the Lord. They are holy of holies. 18 Everything male of the priests shall eat it. It is a perpetual precept for your generations from the Lord’s offerings; any one who touches them shall become holy.

19 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 20 This is the gift of Aaron and his sons, which they shall present to the Lord on the day you shall anoint him: one tenth of an ephah of fine flour as an offering to the Lord; it is for error. 21 The priest who is anointed shall present it. If he brings it as a sacrifice of praise cakes of fine flour made up with oil and unleavened wafers spread with oil and fine flour mixed with oil. 22 In addition to leavened cakes he shall bring his gifts for a sacrifice of praise for deliverance. 23 Each priest shall take one out of the altar and shall deposit it nearby the altar. They are holy of holies like the one for sin and like the one for error. 24 And every sacrifice of a priest shall be wholly burned and shall not be eaten.

25 Speak to Aaron and his sons, saying: This is the law for the sin. They shall slaughter the one for sin before the Lord at the spot where they slaughter the whole burnt offering. They are holy of holies. 26 The priest who offers it up shall eat it. It shall be eaten in a holy place, in the court of the tent of witness. 27 Whoever touches any of its flesh shall become holy. And for whomever some of its blood is sprinkled on a garment, that on which it is sprinkled shall be washed in a holy place. 28 And an earthen vessel wherein it was boiled shall be smashed. But if it is boiled in a bronze vessel, he shall scour it and wash it out with water. 29 Every male among the priests shall eat them. They are holy of holies to the Lord. 30 And none of the ones for sin, some of whose blood is brought into the tent of witness to make atonement in the holy place, shall be eaten. It shall be burned up by fire.

31(7.1) And this is the law of the ram for error. They are holy of holies. 32 At a spot where they slaughter the whole burnt offering they shall slaughter the ram for error before the Lord, and he shall pour out the blood against all sides of the base of the altar. 33 And he shall present from it all its fat from it and the lower back and all the fat that covers the innards and all the fat that is on the innards and the two kidneys and the fat that is on them at the thighs and the appendage that is on the liver—he shall remove them with the kidneys. 35(5) And the priest shall offer them up on the altar as an offering to the Lord; it is for error. 36(6) Every male among the priests shall eat them; in a holy place they shall eat them; they are holy of holies. 37(7) As is the one for sin, so is the one for error. For them there is one law. The priest who makes atonement with it shall have it. 38(8) And the priest who offers a person’s whole burnt offering: the skin of the whole burnt offering that he offers shall be his. 39(9) And every sacrifice that is prepared in the oven and everything that is prepared on a hearth or in a pan is for the priest who offers it; it shall be his. 40(10) And every sacrifice made up with oil or not made up shall belong to all the sons of Aaron, to each the same.

7(7.1) This is the law of the sacrifice of deliverance that they shall offer to the Lord. 2 If he brings it for praise, then he shall bring for the sacrifice of praise cakes of fine flour made up with oil and unleavened wafers spread with oil and fine flour mixed with oil. 3 In addition to leavened cakes he shall bring his gifts for a sacrifice of praise for deliverance. 4 And he shall present one out of all his gifts as an advance deduction for the Lord. It shall belong to the priest who pours out the blood of the deliverance. It shall be his. 5 And the flesh of the sacrifice of praise for deliverance shall belong to him, and on the day it is given it shall be eaten. They shall not leave any of it until the morning. 6 And if it is a vow or if he sacrifices his gift voluntarily, it shall be eaten on the same day that he brought his sacrifice and on the next day. 7 And what is left of the flesh of the sacrifice until the third day shall be burned up by fire. 8 But if when eating, he should eat some of the meat on the third day, it will not be accepted for him who offers it, nor shall it be credited to him. It is a defilement, and the soul who eats any of it shall assume the guilt.

9(19) And meat that touches any unclean thing shall not be eaten; it shall be burned up by fire. Anyone clean shall eat meat.
delicacy, which belongs to the Lord, and his uncleanness is on him—that soul shall be utterly destroyed from his people. 11(21)And a soul who touches any unclean thing whether of human uncleanness or of unclean quadrupeds or any unclean abomination and eats of the meat of the sacrifice of delicacy, which is the Lord’s, that soul shall be utterly destroyed from his people.

12(22) And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 13(23)Speak to the sons of Israel, saying: You shall eat no fat of cows and of sheep and of goats.

14(24)And the fat of carcasses and of things caught by wild animals may be put to any use but shall not be eaten for food. 15(25)Anyone who eats the fat of animals, of which he may bring some of them as an offering to the Lord—that soul shall be utterly destroyed from his people. 16(26)You shall not eat any blood, either of birds or of animals, in any of your settlements.

17(27)Any soul who eats blood—that soul shall be utterly destroyed from his people.

18(28) And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 19(29)And you shall speak to the sons of Israel, saying: He who brings to the Lord a sacrifice of delicacy shall bring his gift to the Lord from the sacrifice of delicacy. 20(30)His hands shall bring the offerings to the Lord. The fat that is on the breast and the appendage of the liver—he shall offer them to add to a gift before the Lord.

21(31)And the priest shall offer up the fat on the altar, and the breast shall belong to Aaron and his sons.

22(32)And the right shoulder from your sacrifices of delicacy you shall give as an advance deduction for the priest.

23(33)The one among the sons of Aaron who brings the blood and the fat of the delicacy shall have the right shoulder as a share.

24(34)For I have taken the breast of the addition and the shoulder of the advance deduction from the sons of Israel, from your sacrifices of delicacy, and I have given them to Aaron the priest and to his sons as a perpetual precept from the sons of Israel.

25(35)This is the anointing of Aaron and the anointing of his sons from the offerings of the Lord on the day he procured them to serve the Lord as priests, just as the Lord commanded to give to them on the day he anointed them out of the sons of Israel. It is a perpetual precept throughout their generations.

26(37) This is the law of the whole burnt offerings and of sacrifice and for sin and for error and for validation, and of the sacrifice of delicacy.

28(38)As the Lord commanded Moyses on the mountain of Sinai on the day he commanded the sons of Israel to bring their gifts before the Lord in the wilderness of Sinai.

8 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 2Take Aaron and his sons and his vestments and the anointing oil and the bull calf for sin and the two rams and the basket of unleavened bread, and assemble the whole congregation at the door of the tent of witness. 4And Moyses did as the Lord instructed him, and he assembled the congregation at the door of the tent of witness. 5And Moyses said to the congregation: This is the thing that the Lord commanded to do.

6 And Moyses brought Aaron and his sons forward and washed them with water. 7And he put the tunic on him and fastened the girdle about him and put the undergarment on him, and he placed on him the shoulder-strap and girded him about according to the procedure of the shoulder-strap, and he bound him fast with it. 8And he put on him the oracle, and he put on the oracle the explanation and the truth. 9And he put the head-band on his head, and on the headband, in front, he put the golden leaf, the devoted holy object, as the Lord instructed Moyses.

10 And Moyses took some of the anointing oil and sprinkled some of it on the altar seven times and anointed the altar and consecrated it and all its utensils and the washbasin and its base and consecrated them. And he anointed the tent and all the things in it and consecrated it. 12And Moyses poured out some of the anointing oil on Aaron’s head and anointed him and consecrated him.

13And Moyses brought forward the sons of Aaron and clothed them with tunics and fastened belts around them and tied turbans on them just as the Lord instructed Moyses.

14 And Moyses led forward the bull calf for sin, and Aaron and his sons laid their hands on the head of the bull calf for sin. 15And he slaughtered it, and Moyses took some of the blood and with his finger put it on the horns of the altar round about, and he purified the altar. And he poured out the blood at the base of the altar, and he consecrated it to make atonement on it. 16And Moyses took all the fat that was on the innards and the appendage on the liver and both kidneys and the fat on them, and Moyses performed the offering on the altar. 17And the bull calf and its hide and its flesh and its dung—he burned them with fire outside the camp as the Lord instructed Moyses.

18 And Moyses brought forward the ram that was for the whole burnt offering, and Aaron and his sons laid their hands on the head of the ram.

19And Moyses slaughtered the ram, and Moyses poured out the blood against all sides of the altar. 20And he divided up the ram limb by limb, and Moyses offered up the head and the limbs and the fat. 21And the entrails and the legs he washed with water, and Moyses offered up the whole ram on the altar. It is a whole burnt offering, for an odor of fragrance; it is an offering to the Lord, as the Lord commanded Moyses.

22 And Moyses brought forward the second ram, the ram of validation. And Aaron and his sons laid their hands on the head of the ram.

of the altar. And he took the fat and the lower back and the fat that was on the entrails and the appendage of the liver and the two kidneys and the fat on them and the right shoulder. And out of the basket of validation that is before the Lord he took one unleavened cake and one oil bread and one wafer and placed them on the fat and the right shoulder. He placed all these onto the hands of Aaron and on the hands of his sons, and he offered them up as an advance deduction before the Lord. Then Moyses took them from their hands, and Moyses offered them up on the altar on the whole burnt offering of validation, which is an odor of fragrance; it is an offering to the Lord. And after Moyses took the breast, he separated it as an addition before the Lord, from the ram of validation, and it was Moyses’ portion as the Lord commanded Moyses.

And Moyses took some of the anointing oil and some of the blood that was on the altar and sprinkled them onto Aaron and his vestments and onto his sons and the vestments of his sons with him, and he consecrated Aaron and his vestments and his sons and vestments of his sons with him.

And Moyses said to Aaron and his sons, "Boil the meat in the court of the tent of witness in a holy place, and there eat it and the cakes that are in the basket of validation as I was instructed, saying, 'Aaron and his sons shall eat them.' And what remains of the flesh and the cakes shall be burned up by fire. And you shall not go outside the door of the tent of witness seven days until the day of your validation is completed. For for seven days he will validate your hands. And you shall sit at the door of the tent of witness for seven days, day and night. And you shall keep the Lord’s charges so that you do not die, for so the Lord God commanded me." And Aaron and his sons did all the things that the Lord instructed Moyses.

And it happened on the eighth day that Moyses called Aaron and his sons and the council of elders of Israel. And Moyses said to Aaron, "Take for yourself a calf from the cows for sin and a ram for a whole burnt offering, without blemish, and offer them before the Lord. And speak to the council of elders of Israel, saying, 'Take one billy goat from the goats for sin, a calf and a yearling lamb without blemish for a whole offering and a calf and a ram for a sacrifice of deliverance before the Lord and fine flour mixed with oil. For today the Lord will be shown holy, and make atonement for them, as the Lord has commanded Moyses.'"

And Aaron drew near to the altar and slaughtered the calf for sin. And the sons of Aaron presented the blood to him, and he dipped his finger in the blood, and he put it on the horns of the altar, and he poured out the blood onto the base of the altar. But the fat and the kidneys and the appendage of the liver of the one for sin he offered on the altar as the Lord commanded Moyses. And the flesh and the hide—he burned them with fire outside the camp.

And he slaughtered the whole burnt offering. And the sons of Aaron brought him the blood, and he poured it out against all sides of the altar. And they brought him the whole burnt offering limb by limb, them and the head, and he placed them on the altar. And he washed the entrails and the legs with water, and he placed them on the whole burnt offering on the altar.

And he presented the people’s gift. And he took the goat for the sin of the people, and he slaughtered it and purified it like the first time. And he presented the whole burnt offering and performed it as was proper. And he presented the sacrifice, and he filled his hands with some of it and placed it on the altar apart from the morning whole burnt offering.

And he slaughtered the bull calf and the ram of the sacrifice of deliverance that was of the people. And the sons of Aaron brought the blood to him—and he poured it out against all sides of the altar—and the fat of the bull calf and of the ram, the lower back and the fat that covers over the entrails and the two kidneys and the fat on them and the appendage on the liver. And he placed the fat pieces on the breasts, and he offered up the fat pieces on the altar, and the breast and the right shoulder Aaron removed as an advance deduction before the Lord, as the Lord had instructed Moyses.

And after Aaron raised his hands towards the people, he blessed them. And he came down after performing the one for sin and the whole burnt offerings and those pertaining to deliverance. Moyses and Aaron entered the tent of witness, and when they came out, they blessed all the people, and the glory of the Lord became visible to all the people. And fire came out from the Lord and consumed what was on the altar, both the whole burnt offerings and the fat pieces, and all the people saw it and were amazed and fell face down.

And when the two sons of Aaron, Nadab and Abioud, each took his fire-pan, they placed fire on it and threw incense on it and offered before the Lord strange fire such as the Lord had not ordered them. And fire came out from the Lord and consumed them, and they died before the Lord. And Moyses said to Aaron, "This is what the Lord spoke, saying, 'Among those who are near me I will be shown holy,'"
And Aaron was shocked.

4 And Moyses summoned Misael and Elisaphan sons of Oziel, sons of the brother of Aaron’s father, and said to them, “Come forward, and carry your brothers away from the holy things, outside the camp.” 5And they came forward and carried them by their tunics outside the camp as Moyses had said. 6And Moyses said to Aaron and Eleazar and Ithamar, his sons who remained, “You shall not unbind your head, and you shall not tear your vestments so that you do not die, and wrath will come over the whole congregation, but your kindred, the whole house of Israel, shall bewail the burning with which they were set on fire by the Lord. 7And you shall not go out of the door of the tent of witness so that you do not die, for the anointing oil from the Lord is on you.” And they did according to the word of Moyses.

8 And the Lord spoke to Aaron, saying: 9You shall not drink wine nor sikera, neither you nor your sons with you, whenever you enter into the tent of witness or when you approach the altar, and you will not die; it is a perpetual precept throughout your generations 10to distinguish between the holy and the profane and between the unclean and the clean, 11and you shall teach the sons of Israel all the precepts that the Lord has spoken to them by the hand of Moyses.

12 And Moyses said to Aaron and Eleazar and Ithamar the sons of Aaron who remained: Take the sacrifices of the fat pieces, to set apart what was brought their items for sin and their whole burnt offerings before the Lord, and these things have befallen me, and if I shall eat the items for sin today, will it not be pleasing to the Lord?” 20And Moyses heard this, and it pleased him.

11 And he Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron, saying: 2Speak to the sons of Israel, saying:

From all the land animals, these are the animals that you shall eat. 3Any animal that divides the hoof and splits the hooves into two parts and brings up the cud among the animals—these you shall eat. 4But among those that bring up the cud and divide the hoof and split the hoof, you shall not eat any of them: the camel, because it brings up the cud but does not split the hoof—this one is unclean for you. 5And the hare, because this animal brings up the cud but does not split the hoof—this one is unclean for you. 6And the coney, because this animal divides the hoof and cleaves the claws of the hoof, but this animal does not bring up the cud—this one is unclean for you. 7And the pig, because this animal divides the hoof and cleaves the claws of the hoof, but this animal does not bring up the cud—this one is unclean for you. 8Of their flesh you shall not eat, and their carcasses you shall not touch; these things are unclean for you.

9 And these you shall eat of all that are in the waters. All those that have fins and scales in the waters and in the seas and in the wadis—these you shall eat. 10And all those in the waters or in the seas and in the wadis that do not have fins or scales, of all those things that the waters disgorge and of every living being which is in the water are an abomination. 11And they shall be abominations to you. Of their flesh you shall not eat, and you shall feel loathing for their carcasses. 12And all things without fins and scales, of those in the water—this is an abomination to you.

13 And these you shall regard with loathing among the birds. And they shall not be eaten; they are an abomination: the eagle and the bearded vulture and the osprey 14and the vulture and the kite and those like it 15and a raven and those like it 16and ostrich and little owl and sea gull and those like it and a hawk and those similar to it 17and long-eared owl and diving petrel and ibis 18and water hen and pelican and swan 19and heron and water plover and those like it and hoopoe and bat. 20And all creeping things that can fly, that walk upon on all fours, shall be abominations to you. 21But among the winged creeping things that walk on all fours, these you shall eat: they that have upper legs above their feet with which to leap on the ground. 22And of them, these you shall eat: the locust larva and those similar to it and the bald locust and those similar to it and the grasshopper and those similar to it and the snake-fighting grasshopper and those similar to it. 23All winged creeping things that have four feet are an abomination to you.

anyone who touches any of their carcasses shall be unclean until the evening. 25 And anyone who carries any of their carcasses shall wash his clothes and shall be unclean until the evening. 26 And among all the animals the one that is a divider of the hoof and has a cloven hoof but does not chew the cud—they shall be unclean to you. Everyone who touches any of their carcasses shall be unclean until the evening. 27 And every one that walks on paws among any animals that walk on all fours shall be unclean to you. Anyone who touches any of their carcasses shall be unclean until the evening. 28 And the one who carries any of their carcasses shall wash his clothes and shall be unclean until the evening. These things shall be unclean for you.

29 And these are unclean for you among the creeping things that creep on the earth: the weasel and the mouse and the dry-land crocodile, 30 field mouse and chameleon and gecko and lizard and blind rat. 31 These are unclean to you among all the creeping things that are on the earth. Anyone that touches them when they are dead shall be unclean until the evening. 32 And anything onto which any of them falls upon, when they are dead, shall be unclean, whether any article of wood or cloth or skin or sacking, any article, when work is done with it; it shall be dipped into water, and it shall be unclean until the evening, and then it shall be clean. 33 And any earthen vessel into which some of them fall inside, whatever is in it shall be unclean, and it shall be smashed. 34 And any food that could be eaten, which water comes onto, shall be unclean. And any liquid that could be drunk shall be unclean in any such vessel. 35 Anything that any of their carcasses falls onto shall be unclean. Bread-ovens and pot-stands shall be demolished. These are unclean, and these shall remain unclean for you, 36 with the exception of springs of water and a cistern and a gathering of water—it shall be clean, but whoever touches carcasses in them shall be unclean. 37 But if any of their carcasses fall on any sowing seed that could be sown, it shall be clean. 38 But if water is poured onto any seed and any of their carcasses fall onto it, it shall be unclean for you.

39 Now if an animal dies, that which it is permitted for you to eat—anyone who touches their carcasses shall be unclean until the evening. 40 And he who eats of any of these carcasses shall wash his clothing and shall be unclean until the evening. And he who carries any of their carcasses shall wash his clothing and shall be bathed in water and shall be unclean until the evening.

41 And every creeping thing that creeps on the earth: this shall be an abomination to you; it shall not be eaten. 42 And whatever moves on its belly and whatever moves on four legs at all times, whatever has many feet among all the creeping things that creep upon the earth, you shall not eat it, for it is an abomination to you. 43 And you shall not make your souls detestable with any that creep, those that creep on the earth, and you shall not defile yourselves with them, and you shall not become unclean by them. 44 For it is I who am the Lord your God, and you shall be sanctified, and you shall be holy, for I am holy, I the Lord your God. And you shall not defile your souls with any of the creeping things that stir on the earth. 45 For it is I who am the Lord who brought you up from the land of Egypt to be your God; you shall be holy, for I am holy, I, the Lord.

46 This is the law pertaining to land animals and birds and every being that moves through the water and every being that crawls upon the earth, 47 to make a distinction between the unclean and between the clean and between breeding things that may be eaten and between breeding things that may not be eaten.

Any woman, if she is fertilized and bears a male child, shall also be unclean seven days; as at the days of the separation of her period, she shall be unclean. 3 And on the eighth day she shall circumcise the flesh of his foreskin. 4 And thirty-three days shall she remain in her unclean blood; she shall not touch anything holy or come into the holy place until the days of her purification are completed. 5 But if she bears a female child, she shall be unclean twice seven days, as in her sitting apart, and sixty-six days shall she remain in her unclean blood.

6 And when the days of her purification are completed, for a son or for a daughter, she shall bring to the priest at the door of the tent of witness a lamb in its first year without blemish, for a whole burnt offering, and a young of the doves or a turtle dove for sin. 7 And he shall offer it before the Lord, and the priest shall make atonement for her, and he shall purify her from the source of her blood. This is the law for her who bears a male or female child. 8 But if her hand does not find what is enough for a lamb, then she shall take two turtle doves or two young of doves, one for a whole burnt offering and one for sin, and the priest shall make atonement for her, and she shall be clean.

13 And the Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron, saying:

2 When any person has on the skin of his body a conspicuous lesion indicating disease, and if there is an attack of leprous disease on the skin of his body, then he shall be brought to Aaron the priest or to one of his sons the priests. 3 And the priest shall look at the attack on the skin of his body, and if the hair in the attacked area has turned white and the appearance of the attack is low in the skin of the body, it is an attack of a leprous disease, and the priest shall look and declare him defiled. 4 But if the conspicuous spot is white in the skin of his body and its appearance is not low in the skin and its hair has not changed to white hair but it is hardly visible, the priest shall isolate the attack for seven days. 5 And the priest shall look at the attack on the seventh day, and look, the attack remains before him, the attack has not undergone change in the skin, then the priest shall isolate him seven days for the second time.

And the priest shall look at him a second time on the seventh day, and look, the attack is not apparent, the attack has not changed in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him clean, for it is a mark, and after he has washed his clothes he shall be clean. 7 But if the mark in the skin by altering changes after the priest has looked at him for his cleansing, then he shall appear a second time before the priest. 8 And the priest shall look at him, and look, the mark has changed on his skin, then the priest shall declare him defiled; it is a leprous disease.

9 And as for an attack of a leprous disease—if it happens to a person, then he shall come to the priest. 10 And the priest shall see, and look, there is a white lesion in the skin, and it has turned the hair white, and some of the healthy part of the living flesh is in the lesion; 11 it is a leprous disease of long standing; it is in the skin of the body. And the priest shall pronounce him defiled and isolate him, for he is unclean. 12 But if in breaking out, the leprous disease breaks out in the skin, and the leprous disease covers all the skin of the attacked area, from head to foot, so far as the priest can see, then the priest shall see, and look, the leprous disease has covered all the skin of the body. And the priest shall declare him clean of the attack; since it has all turned white, he is clean. 14 And on the day when living tissue appears in it, he shall be declared defiled, and the priest shall look at the healthy tissue, and the healthy tissue will render him defiled because it is unclean. It is a leprous disease. 16 But if the healthy tissue restores itself and changes to white, then he shall come to the priest, and the priest shall see, and look, the attack has changed to white, and the priest shall pronounce the attacked area clean. It is clean.

18 And if the flesh in its skin becomes a festering sore and if it heals and in the place of the festering sore there is a white lesion or a shiny one that turns white or reddens, then he shall appear before the priest. 20 And the priest shall see, and look, its appearance is deeper than the skin, and its hair has turned white, and the priest shall pronounce him unclean; it is a leprous disease; it broke out in the festering sore. 21 But if the priest sees, and look, the hair on it is not white, and it is not low in the skin of the flesh but is hardly visible, then the priest shall isolate him seven days. 22 And if in spreading out it spreads in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean; it is an attack of leprous disease. It has broken out in the festering sore. 23 But if the bright spot remains in one place and does not spread, it is the scar of the festering sore, and the priest shall pronounce him clean.

24 And if the flesh on his skin has a burn by fire and the healthy part of the burn on his skin becomes bright, shiny reddish-white or white, then the priest shall see, and look, the hair in the bright spot has turned white, and its appearance is low in the skin, it is a leprous disease; it has broken out in the burn, and the priest shall pronounce him unclean. It is an attack of leprous disease. 26 But if the priest sees, and look, the hair in the bright spot is not white, and it is not low in the skin but is inconspicuous, then the priest shall isolate him seven days. 27 And the priest shall examine him on the seventh day, and if in spreading out it spreads in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean. It is an attack of leprous disease. It has broken out in the festering sore. 28 But if the bright spot remains in one place and does not spread in the skin but is inconspicuous, it is a lesion from the burn, and the priest shall pronounce him clean, for it is the style of the burn.

29 And as for man or woman—if there is on them an attack of leprous disease on the head or in the beard, then the priest shall examine the attack. And look, its appearance is more hollow than the skin and the hair in turning yellow is thin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean; it is a rupture, a leprous disease of the head or a leprous disease of the beard. 31 And if the priest examines the attack of the rupture, and look, its appearance is no more hollow than the skin and there is no yellow hair in it, then the priest shall isolate the attack of the rupture for seven days. 32 And on the seventh day the priest shall examine the attack, and look, the rupture has not spread and there is no yellow hair in it and the appearance of the rupture is not hollow in the skin, then the skin shall be shaven, but the rupture shall not be shaven. And the priest shall isolate the rupture for a second seven days. 34 And on the seventh day the priest shall examine the rupture, and look, the rupture has not spread in the skin after he has been shaven and the appearance of the rupture is not hollow in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him clean. And he shall wash his clothes and be clean. 35 But if in spreading, the rupture spreads in the skin after he was pronounced clean, then the priest shall look. And look, the rupture has spread in the skin; the priest shall not inspect for yellow hair because he is unclean. 37 But if the rupture remains in place, visibly, and black hair has grown in it, the rupture has healed; he is clean, and the priest shall pronounce him clean.

38 And as for man or woman—if there are bright spots on the skin of their flesh, appearing white, then the priest shall make an examination, and look, the bright spots on the skin of his flesh appear white, it is a scaly condition; he is clean. It broke out in the skin of his flesh; he is clean.

40 Now if anyone’s head becomes bald, he is bald-headed; he is clean. But if his head becomes bald from the front, he has baldness of the forehead; he is clean. But if there is on his baldness or on the baldness of his forehead a white attack that reddens, it is a leprous disease breaking out on his bald head or his bald forehead. And the priest shall examine him, and look, the appearance of the attack is white, becoming red on his baldness or on the baldness of his forehead, like the appearance of a leprous disease in the skin of his flesh. 44 He is a leprous person. With defilement the priest shall pronounce him defiled; his attack is on his head.

45 And the leprous person on whom is the attack—let his clothes be loosened and his head be uncovered, and let him put on something around his mouth, and he will have been called unclean.

47 As for clothing: if an attack of leprous disease appears in it, in woolen cloth or cloth made of tow, 48 whether in the warp or in the woof, or in linen clothes or in woolen clothes or in a skin or in any article made of skin, 49 and the attack becomes greenish or reddish in the skin or in the garment, whether in warp or woof, or in any article made of skin, it is an attack of leprous disease, and one shall show it to the priest. 50 And the priest shall examine the attack, and the priest shall isolate the attack for seven days. 51 And the priest shall examine the attack on the seventh day. And if the attack has spread in the cloth, whether in the warp or in the woof, or in the skin, in the case of anything whereby skin is made into a product, the attack is a lasting leprous disease; it is unclean. 52 He shall burn the clothing, whether the warp or the woof, in woolen things or in linen things, or any article of skin which the attack is in, for it is a lasting leprous disease; it shall be burned with fire.

53 Now if the priest looks, and the attack has not spread in the clothing, whether in the warp or in the woof or in any article of skin, 54 then the priest shall give orders, and he shall wash the article which the disease appears in, and the priest shall isolate the attack for a second seven days. 55 And the priest shall examine the attack after it has been washed, and this attack has not changed its appearance, and the attack is not spreading: it is something unclean; it shall be burned with fire, it has been firmly set in the garment, whether in the warp or in the woof.

56 And if the priest looks and the attack has become inconsiderable after it is washed, he shall tear it out of the cloth, whether out of the warp or out of the woof or out of the skin. 57 But if it still appears in the cloth, whether in the warp or in the woof or in any article of skin, it is leprous disease that has broken out; that in which the attack occurs shall be burned with fire. 58 But the cloth, whether warp or woof, or any article of skin that shall be washed and the attack shall leave it, shall then be washed a second time, and it shall be clean.

And he shall be brought to the priest, 3 and the priest shall go out, outside of the camp, and the priest shall see, and look, the attack of leprous disease is healed from the leprous person, 4 and the priest shall give orders, and they shall take for the one who has been cleansed two living clean fowl and cedar wood and scarlet spun thread and hyssop. 5 And the priest shall give orders, and they shall slaughter the one fowl over living water in an earthen vessel. 6 And as for the living fowl: he shall take it and the cedar wood and the scarlet spun thread and the hyssop and dip them and the living fowl in the blood of the fowl that was slaughtered over living water. 7 And he shall sprinkle it about, seven times upon the one who was cleansed of the leprous disease, and he shall be clean, and he shall send forth the living bird into the plain. 8 And the one who was cleansed shall wash his clothes and have all his hair shaved and bathe in water, and he shall be clean. And after that he shall come into the camp and shall spend time outside his dwelling seven days. 9 And it shall be on the seventh day that he shall have all his hair shaved: his head and his beard and his eyebrows, and he shall have all his hair shaved. And he shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water, and he shall be clean.

10 And on the eighth day he shall take two lambs of a year old without blemish and one sheep in its first year without blemish and three-tenths of choice flour as an offering mixed with oil and one cup of oil. 11 And the priest who cleanses shall set the person who is being cleansed, along with these things, before the Lord, at the door of the tent of witness. 12 And the priest shall take the one lamb and offer it for error, along with the cup of oil, and set it apart as something set apart before the Lord. 13 And they shall slaughter the lamb in the place where they slaughter the whole burnt offerings and the ones for sin, in a holy place, for the one for sin, like the one for error, belongs to the priest; they are holy of holies. 14 And the priest shall take some of the blood of the one for error, and the priest shall put it onto the lobe of the right ear of the one who is being cleansed and on the tip of his right hand and on the tip of his right foot. 15 And the priest, after taking some of the cup of oil, shall pour it into the left hand of the priest and wet his right finger with the oil that is in his left hand and sprinkle seven times with his finger before the Lord. 16 But the remaining oil that is in his hand the priest shall put on the lobe of the right ear of the one being cleansed and on the tip of his right hand and on the tip of his right foot, on the place of the blood of the one for error. 17 Now the oil that is left in the priest’s hand the priest shall put on the head of the one who was cleansed. And the priest shall make atonement for him before the Lord; 19 the priest shall perform the one for sin, and the priest shall make atonement for the one being cleansed from his sin. And afterward the priest shall slaughter the whole burnt offering, \(^{20}\) and the priest shall offer the whole burnt offering and the sacrifice on the altar before the Lord. And the priest shall make atonement for him, and he shall be clean.

21 But if he is poor and his hand does not find, he shall take one lamb for what he has done in error as an advance deduction, to make atonement for him, and one-tenth of fine flour mixed with oil for a sacrifice and one cup of oil, \(^{22}\) also two turtledoves or two young doves, such as his hand finds, and one shall be for sin and one for a whole burnt offering. \(^{23}\) And on the eighth day he shall bring them to render him clean, to the priest, to the door of the tent of witness, before the Lord, \(^{24}\) and the priest shall take the lamb for error and the cup of oil and shall place them as an addition before the Lord. \(^{25}\) And he shall slaughter the lamb for error and the priest shall take some of the blood of the one for error and put it on the lobe of the right ear of the one being cleansed and on the tip of his right hand and on the tip of his right foot. \(^{26}\) And the priest shall pour out some of the oil into the left hand of the priest, \(^{27}\) and the priest shall sprinkle with the right finger some of the oil that is in his left hand seven times before the Lord. \(^{28}\) And the priest shall put some of the oil that is in his hand onto the lobe of the right ear of the one being cleansed and on the tip of his right hand and the tip of his right foot, on the place of the blood of the one for error. \(^{29}\) Now the oil that is remaining in the priest’s hand he shall put onto the head of the one who was cleansed, and the priest shall make atonement for him before the Lord. \(^{30}\) And he shall do one of the turtledoves or of the young doves, as his hand found, \(^{31}\) one for sin and one for a whole burnt offering, along with the sacrifice, and the priest shall make atonement before the Lord for the one being cleansed. \(^{32}\) This is the law in which is the attack of leprous disease and of the one who cannot find with his hand for his cleansing.

34 When you come into the land of the Chananites, which I give you in possession, and I shall give a leprous disease in the houses in the land acquired by you, \(^{35}\) then he whose house it is shall come and report to the priest, saying, “Something like an attack has been seen in my house” \(^{36}\) And the priest shall give orders to strip the house before the priest goes in to look at the attack, and whatever is in the house will not become unclean, and afterward the priest shall go in to examine the house. \(^{37}\) And he shall look at the attack in the walls of the house, hollow, greenish or reddish, and their appearance is lower than the walls, \(^{38}\) and the priest, after going out of the house at the door of the house, the priest shall then isolate the house seven days. \(^{39}\) And the priest shall return on the seventh day and look at the house, and look, the attack has spread in the walls of the house. \(^{40}\) And the priest shall give orders, and they shall take out the stones in which is the attack and throw them into an unclean place outside the city. \(^{41}\) And they shall scrape off the inside of the house round about and pour out the soil in an unclean place outside the city. \(^{42}\) And they shall take other scraped stones and place them in return, instead of the stones, and take other soil and re-plaster the house.

43 But if the attack returns again and arises in the house, after he has taken out the stones and after the house has been scraped out and after it has been plastered over, \(^{44}\) then the priest shall go in and look; if the attack has spread in the house, it is a lasting leprous disease in the house; it is unclean. \(^{45}\) And they shall demolish the house, both its timber and its stones, and all the soil they shall take outside the city to an unclean place. \(^{46}\) And he who enters the house all the days that it is isolated shall be unclean until the evening, \(^{47}\) and he who sleeps in the house shall wash his garments and shall be unclean until the evening, and he who eats in the house shall wash his garments and be unclean until the evening.

48 But if the priest after coming near, enters and sees, the attack, by spreading, has not spread in the house after the house was plastered over, then the priest shall declare the house clean, because the attack is healed. \(^{49}\) And to purify the house he shall take two living, clean fowl and cedar wood and scarlet spun yarn and hyssop \(^{50}\) and shall slaughter the one fowl over living water in an earthen vessel \(^{51}\) and shall take the cedar wood and the scarlet spun yarn and the hyssop and the living fowl and dip them in the blood of the slaughtered fowl over living water and sprinkle with them on the house seven times. \(^{52}\) And he shall purify the house with the blood of the fowl and with the living water and with the living fowl and with the cedar wood and with the hyssop and with the scarlet spun yarn, \(^{53}\) and he shall send forth the living fowl away from the city into the plain, and he shall make atonement for the house, and it shall be clean.

54 This is the law concerning every attack of a leprous disease and of a rupture \(^{55}\) and of leprous disease of clothing and of a house \(^{56}\) and of a scar and of a mark and of a bright spot \(^{57}\) and to determine on which day something is unclean and on which day it will be declared clean. This is the law for leprous disease.

15 And the Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron, saying: \(^{2}\) Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them:

Man by man, whoever has a flow out of his body, his flow is unclean. \(^{3}\) And this is the law of his uncleanness: when he flows seed out of his body from the flow or if his body has become compacted through the flow, this is his uncleanness because of it. All the days of the flow of his body or if his body has become compacted through the flow, this is his uncleanness. \(^{4}\) Every bed that the one suffering from spermatorrhoea lies on shall be unclean, and every thing that the one suffering from spermatorrhoea sits on shall be unclean. \(^{5}\) And a person who touches his bed shall wash his clothes and bathe in water and be unclean until the evening. 6 And he who sits on the object that the one suffering from spermatorrhoea has sat on shall wash his clothes and bathe in water and be unclean until the evening. 7 And he who touches the flesh of the one suffering from spermatorrhoea shall wash his clothes and bathe in water and be unclean until the evening.
8 But if the one suffering from spermatorrhoea spits on one who is clean, he shall wash his clothes and bathe in water and be unclean until the evening. 9 And any packsaddle of a donkey that the one suffering from spermatorrhoea mounts on shall be unclean until evening. 10 And everyone who touches anything that was under him shall be unclean until the evening, and he who carries these things shall wash his clothes and bathe in water and be unclean until the evening. 11 And as many as the one suffering from spermatorrhoea touches without his having rinsed his hands shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water and be unclean until the evening. 12 And as for an earthen vessel that the one suffering from spermatorrhoea touches—it shall be shattered, and a vessel of wood shall be rinsed in water and shall be clean.

13 But if the one suffering from spermatorrhoea is cleansed of his flow, then there shall be counted off for him seven days for his cleansing, and he shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water, and he shall be clean. 14 And on the eighth day he shall take for himself two turtledoves or two young doves and shall bring them before the Lord to the entrance of the tent of witness and give them to the priest. 15 And the priest shall prepare them, one for sin and one for a whole burnt offering, and the priest shall make atonement for him before the Lord for his flow.

16 And as for a person whose bed of semen issues forth from him, he shall then bathe his whole body in water and shall be unclean until the evening. 17 And all clothing and all skin which a bed of semen comes upon shall then be washed with water and be unclean until the evening. 18 In the case of a woman, if a man lies with her in a bed of semen, then they shall bathe in water and be unclean until the evening.

19 And a woman who is flowing with blood, her flow shall be in her body; she shall be in her period for seven days. Any one who touches her shall be unclean until the evening. 20 And everything which she sleeps on during her period shall be unclean; everything also which she sits down on shall be unclean. 21 And anyone who touches her bed shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water and be unclean until the evening. 22 And anyone who touches any object that she sits on shall wash his clothes and bathe in water and be unclean until the evening. 23 But if while she is in her bed or on the object where she sits on—when he touches her he shall be unclean until the evening. 24 But if anyone sleeps with her in bed and her impurity be on him, then he shall be unclean seven days, and every bed that he lies on shall be unclean.

25 And a woman, if she flows with a flow of blood for rather many days, not at the time of her period, even if she flows after her period, all the days of the flow of her impurity are like the days of her period; she shall be unclean. 26 And every bed that she lies on during all the days of the flow shall be for her as in the case of the bed of her period, and every object which she sits on shall be unclean, as in the uncleanness of her period. 27 Anyone who touches her shall be unclean and shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water and be unclean until the evening. 28 But if she is cleansed of the flow, there shall then be counted off for her seven days, and after that she shall be cleansed. 29 And on the eighth day she shall take for herself two turtledoves or two young doves and bring them to the priest to the door of the tent of witness. 30 And the priest shall perform one for sin and one for a whole burnt offering, and the priest shall make atonement for her before the Lord because of the flow of her uncleanness.

31 And you shall make the sons of Israel cautious about their uncleanness, and they shall not die on account of their uncleanness when they defile my tent that is among them.

32 This is the law of the one suffering from spermatorrhoea, and if for someone a bed of semen issues forth from him so that he becomes unclean thereby, 33 and for her who flows with blood in her period: the one suffering from spermatorrhoea in his flow, whether for a male or for a female—and for the man who sits with one who sits apart.

16 And the Lord spoke to Moyses after the two sons of Aaron died, when they brought near strange fire before the Lord, and they died. 2 And the Lord said to Moyses:

Speak to Aaron your brother, and let him not enter at any time into the sanctuary inside the veil facing the propitiatory that is on the ark of witness, and he will not die, for I will be seen in the cloud upon the propitiatory. 3 Thus shall Aaron come into the holy place: with a calf from the cattle for sin and a ram for a whole burnt offering. 4 And he shall put on the consecrated linen tunic, and linen pants shall be on his flesh, and he shall gird himself with a linen girdle and wrap around a linen turban; they are holy vestments. And he shall bathe his entire body in water and then put them on. 5 And he shall take from the congregation of the sons of Israel two billy goats for sin and one ram for a whole burnt offering.

6 And Aaron shall offer the bull calf for sin, which is his own, and shall make atonement for himself and for his house. 7 And he shall take the two goats and set them before the Lord at the door of the tent of witness, 8 and Aaron shall place lots on the two goats, one lot for the Lord and one lot 11 And Aaron shall offer the bull calf for sin, which is his, and shall make atonement for himself and for his house, and he shall slaughter the bull calf for sin, which is his own. And he shall take the fire-pan full of coals of fire from the altar that is before the Lord and shall fill his hands with a fine incense-compound, and he shall bring it inside the veil and put the incense on the fire before the Lord, and the vapor of the incense shall cover the propitiatory that is upon the witnesses, and he will not die. And he shall take some of the blood of the bull calf and sprinkle with his finger onto the propitiatory towards the east. In front of the propitiatory he shall sprinkle some of the blood with his finger seven times.

15 And he shall slaughter the goat for sin that is for the people before the Lord and bring in its blood inside the veil and do with its blood as he did with the blood of the bull calf, and he shall sprinkle its blood on the propitiatory in front of the propitiatory. And he shall make the holy place ritually acceptable because of the unclean things of the sons of Israel and because of their wrongs—concerning all their sins, and so he shall do for the tent of witness, which has been established among them in the midst of their uncleanness. And no person shall be in the tent of witness, when he enters to make atonement in the holy place, until he comes out. And he shall make atonement for himself and for his house and for all the congregation of the sons of Israel. And he shall go out to the altar which is before the Lord and make atonement on it and shall take some of the blood of the bull calf and some of the blood of the goat and put it on the horns of the altar, round about. And he shall sprinkle some of the blood on it with his finger seven times and pronounce it clean and hallow it from the uncleanness of the sons of Israel.

20 And he shall finish making the holy place and the tent of witness and the altar ritually acceptable, and he shall pronounce clean the things that pertain to the priests. And he shall bring near the live goat. And Aaron shall lay his hands on the head of the live goat and confess over it all the lawless acts of the sons of Israel and all their offences and all their sins and shall put them on the head of the live goat and shall send it away into the wilderness by the hand of a ready person. And the goat shall bear on itself their offences to an untrodden region, and he shall send off the goat into the wilderness.

23 And Aaron shall enter the tent of witness and shall take off the linen garment that he put on when he went into the holy place and shall deposit it there. And he shall bathe his body in water in a holy place and put on his garment; then he shall come out and perform his sacrifice and the sacrifice of the people and shall make atonement for himself and his house and for the people as for the priests. And the fat for sins he shall offer up on the altar. And the one who sends off the goat set apart for release shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water and afterward shall come into the camp. And the bull calf for sin and the goat for sin, of whom their blood was brought in to make atonement in the holy place—they shall take them outside the camp and burn them up with fire, and their skins and their flesh and their dung. Now the one who burns them shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water and afterward shall come into the camp. And this shall be a perpetual precept to you: In the seventh month, on the tenth of the month, you shall humble your souls and shall do no work, neither the native nor the guest among you who adheres. For on this day he shall make atonement for you, to cleanse you from all your sins before the Lord, and you shall be clean. This rest shall be Sabbath of Sabbaths to you, and you shall humble your souls; it is a perpetual precept. The priest, whom they anoint and he whose hands they shall validate to serve as priest in his father's place, shall make atonement and shall put on the linen garment, the holy vestment. And he shall make the holy of the holy ritually acceptable, and he shall make ritually acceptable the tent of meeting and the altar, and he shall make atonement for the priests and for the entire congregation. And this shall be a perpetual precept for you, to make atonement for the sons of Israel for all their sins. It shall be done once a year as the Lord instructed Moyses.

2 Speak to Aaron and his sons and to all the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: This is the word that the Lord has commanded, saying:

3 Person by person of the sons of Israel, whoever slaughters a calf or a sheep or a goat in the camp, or who slaughters it outside the camp and does not bring it to the door of the tent of witness, to perform it as a whole burnt offering or as a delivrance to the Lord, acceptable for an odor of fragrance, and who slaughters outside and does not bring it to the door of the tent of witness in order to bring a gift to the Lord before the tent of the Lord, then bloodshed shall be reckoned to that person. He has shed blood; that soul shall be exterminated from its people in order that the sons of Israel may bring their sacrifices, whatever they shall slaughter in the plains, and they shall bring them to the Lord, to the priest at the entrance of the tent of witness, and they shall offer them as a sacrifice of delivrance to the Lord. And the priest shall dash the blood against all sides of the altar, before the Lord at the entrance of the tent of witness and offer up the fat as an odor of fragrance to the Lord, 7and they shall no longer offer their sacrifices to useless things, to whom they go out to commit fornication after them. It shall be a perpetual precept to you throughout your generations.

8 And you shall say to them: Person by person of the sons of Israel and from the sons of the guests among you who adhere, whoever performs a whole burnt offering or sacrifice 9and does not bring it to the door of the tent of witness, to perform it to the Lord, that person shall be exterminated from his people.

10 Person by person of the sons of Israel or of the guests among you who adhere, whoever eats any blood—and I will set my face against the soul who eats blood and will utterly destroy it from its people. 11For the life of all flesh is its blood, and I give it to you for making atonement for your souls on the altar, for it is its blood that makes atonement for the soul. 12Therefore I have said to the sons of Israel: No soul among you shall eat blood, and no guest among you who adheres shall eat blood. 13And person by person of the sons of Israel and of the guests among you who adhere, whoever hunts as prey a wild animal or bird that may be eaten, shall pour out the blood and cover it with earth.

14 For the life of all flesh is its blood, and I have said to the sons of Israel: You shall not eat the blood of any flesh. For the life of all flesh is its blood; anyone who eats it shall be exterminated.
15And any soul, among the natives or among the guests who eats a carcass or what has been torn by wild animals shall wash his clothes and bathe in water and be unclean until the evening; then he shall be clean. 16But if he does not wash his clothes and bathe his body in water, he shall assume his transgression of the law.

18 And the Lord said to Moyses, saying:
2 Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: I am the Lord your God. 3You shall not act according to the practices of the land of Egypt, wherein you lived, and you shall not act according to the practices of the land of Chanaan, there where I am bringing you, and you shall not live by their precepts. 4My judgments you shall perform, and my ordinances you shall keep, to walk by them; I am the Lord your God. 5And you shall keep all my ordinances and all my judgments, and you shall do them; as for the things a person does, he shall live by them; I am the Lord your God.

6 Person by person shall not approach any of the household of his flesh to uncover shame; I am the Lord. 7You shall not uncover the shame of your father and the shame of your mother, for she is your mother; you shall not uncover her shame.
8You shall not uncover the shame of your father's wife; it is the shame of your father. 9You shall not uncover her shame—the shame of your sister, from your father or from your mother, whether born at home or born abroad. 10You shall not uncover their shame—the shame of your son's daughter or of your daughter's son, for it is your own shame. 11You shall not uncover the shame of your father's wife's daughter; she is your sister by the same father. You shall not uncover her shame.
12You shall not uncover the shame of your father's sister, for she is of your father's own household.
13You shall not uncover the shame of your moth-

19 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:
2 Speak to the congregation of the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: You shall be holy, for I am holy, the Lord your God. 3Let each fear his father and his mother, and you shall keep my sabbaths; I am the Lord your God. 4You shall not follow after idols, and you shall not make gods of cast metal for yourselves; I am the Lord your God.

5 And if you offer a sacrifice of deliverance to the Lord, offer it acceptable on your behalf. 6It shall be eaten on the day you offer it and on the next day, and if it is left over until the third day, it shall be burned up by fire. 7But if in eating it is eaten on the third day, it is not fit to be offered; it will not be accepted. 8And he who eats it shall assume guilt because he has profaned what is holy to the Lord, and the souls who eat it shall be exterminated from their people.

9 And when you reap the harvest of your land, you shall not make a thorough job of your harvest, to harvest your field altogether, and you shall not gather what falls down of your harvest. 10And you shall not harvest your vineyard over again or gather the grapes of your vineyard; you shall leave them for the poor and the guest; it is I who am the Lord your God.

11 You shall not steal; you shall not deal falsely; each of you shall not falsely accuse his neighbor. 12And you shall not swear by my name in an unjust matter, and you shall not profane the name of your God; it is I who am the Lord your God.

13 You shall not act unjustly towards your neighbor, and you shall not plunder, and the wages of a day laborer shall not rest overnight with you until morning. 14You shall not speak badly of the deaf and put an obstacle before the blind, and you shall fear the Lord your God; it is I who am the Lord your God.

15 You shall not do something unjust in judgment; you shall not accept the person of the poor or admire the person of a high official; with justice you shall judge your neighbor. 16You shall not go around in deceit among your nation; you shall not conspire against the blood of your neighbor; it is I who am the Lord your God.

17 You shall not hate in your mind your kin; in reproof you shall reprove your neighbor, and you shall not assume guilt because of him. 18And your own hand shall not take vengeance, and you shall not be angry against the sons of your people, and you shall love your neighbor as yourself; it is I who am the Lord.

19 You shall keep my law. You shall not breed your animals to those of a different kind, and you shall not sow your vineyard with something different, and you shall not put on yourself an adulterated garment woven with two materials.

20 And if one lies with a woman in a bed of semen and she is a domestic carefully guarded for a man but she by means of release had not been ransomed neither had freedom been given her, they shall get an inquiry. They shall not die, since she had not been freed, 21and he shall bring for his error to the Lord, at the door of the tent of meeting, a ram for error. 22And the priest shall make atonement for him with the ram for error before the Lord for the sin that he committed, and the sin he committed shall be forgiven him.

23 Now when you enter into the land that the Lord your God is giving you and plant any kind of tree for food, then you shall thoroughly purify its uncleanness; three years its fruit shall be impure to you; it shall not be eaten. 24And in the fourth year all its fruit shall be holy, laudable to the Lord.

25 But in the fifth year you shall eat the fruit, its yield is an increase for you; it is I who am the Lord your God.

26 Do not eat on the mountains. And you shall not practice ornithomancy or divination by means of birds. 27You shall not make a hair roll out of the hair on your head or spoil the appearance of your beard. 28And you shall not make any incisions in your body for a soul 8 and make any tattooed characters upon you; it is I who am the Lord your God.

29 Do not profane your daughter by making her commit fornication, and the land will not fornicate, and the land shall be full of lawlessness. 30You shall keep my sabbaths and be respectful of my sanctuaries; it is I who am the Lord.

31 You shall not follow after ventriloquists, and you shall not attach yourselves to enchanters, to be thoroughly polluted by them; it is I who am the Lord your God.

32 You shall rise before a grey-haired person and honor the person of the old, and you shall fear your God; it is I who am the Lord your God.

33 Now if some guest approaches you in your land, you shall not oppress him. 34The guest who comes over to you shall be to you as the native among you, and you shall love him as yourself, for you were guests in the land of Egypt; it is I who am the Lord your God.

35 You shall not do what is unjust in judgment in measures and in standard weights and in balances. 36You shall have just balances and just standard weights and an honest half-peck; it is I who am the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt. 37And you shall keep my entire law and all my ordinances, and you shall do them; it is I who am the Lord your God.

And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

2You shall also speak to the sons of Israel: If any of the sons of Israel or of the guests who have come in Israel—whatever gives any of his offspring to a ruler, by death let him be put to death; the nation in the land shall stone them with their eyes away from that person when he gives his offspring to a ruler in order not to kill him, 4then I will set my face against that person and will utterly destroy him from his people, because he has given of his offspring to a ruler, to defile my holy things and to profane the name of those consecrated to me. 5But if the natives of the land should by an oversight overlook with their eyes away from that person when he gives of his offspring to a ruler in order not to kill him, 6then I will set my face against that person and his family and will utterly destroy him from among his people, him and all who are like-mind-

8L.e. departed soul tantamount to corpse
ed in going out to commit fornication with the rulers.

6 And a soul that follows after ventriloquists or enchanters so as to commit fornication after them, I will set my face against that soul and will utterly destroy him from among his people. 7 And you shall be holy, for I, the Lord your God, am holy. 8 And you shall keep my ordinances and observe them; I am the Lord that sanctifies you. 9 A person, a person who speaks severely with his father or his mother— with death let him be put to death; he has spoken severely with his father or his mother—he shall be liable.

10 A person who commits adultery with the wife of a man or who commits adultery with the wife of his neighbor—let both the adulterer and the adulteress by death be put to death. 11 And if anyone lies with his father's wife, he has uncovered his father's shame; let both of them by death be put to death; they are liable. 12 And if anyone lies with his daughter-in-law, let both of them by death be put to death, for they have behaved impiously; they are liable. 13 And he who lies with a male in a bed for a woman, both have committed an abomination; by death let them be put to death; they are liable. 14 He who takes a wife and her mother—it is impurity; he has uncovered his brother's shame; he shall bear guilt. 15 And he who gives his sleeping with to a quadruped, by death let him be put to death, and you shall kill the quadruped. 16 And a woman who shall approach any animal for her to be mounted by it—you shall kill the woman and the animal; by death they shall be put to death; they are liable.

22 And you shall keep all my ordinances and all my judgments and do them, and the land to which I bring you there to settle in it will never be angry with you. 23 And you shall not walk by the precepts of the nations that I am sending out away from you. Because they did all these things, I also abhorred them. 24 And I have said to you: You shall inherit their land, and it is I who will give it to you in possession, a land that is flowing with milk and honey. I am the Lord your God who has separated you from all the nations. 25 And you shall separate them: between the clean animals and between the unclean animals and between the clean birds and between the unclean; you shall not cause your souls to be loathsome by the animals and by the birds and by any of the creeping things of the earth, which I have set apart for you by uncleanness. 26 And you shall be holy to me, for I the Lord your God am holy, who has separated you from all the nations to be mine.

27 And a man or a woman—whoever among them becomes a ventriloquist or an enchanter, let both by death be put to death; with stones you shall stone them; they are liable.

21 And the Lord said to Moyses: Address the priests, the sons of Aaron, and you shall say to them:

They shall not be defiled by souls among their nation except by their nearest kin: for father and mother and sons and daughters, for a brother and for a virgin sister, who approaches him, who had not been given in marriage to a husband—he shall be defiled for these. 4 He shall not be defiled suddenly among his people to his own desecration. 5 And you shall not have a bald spot shaven upon your head for the dead, nor shall they shave the appearance of their beard, and they shall not cut incisions into their flesh. 6 They shall be holy to their God and not profane the name of their God. For it is they that offer the sacrifices of the Lord as gifts of their God, and they shall be holy. 7 They shall not marry a woman who is a prostitute and one who has been profaned and a woman rejected by her husband. For he is holy to the Lord his God, and he will sanctify him—it is he that offers the gifts of the Lord your God; he shall be holy, for I the Lord, who sanctifies them, am holy. 9 And if the daughter of a person who is a priest profanes herself through going out to commit fornication, she profanes the name of her father; she shall be burned on fire.

10 And the priest who is great among his brothers, when the anointing oil has been poured on his head and when he has been validated to wear the vestments, shall not unbind his head and shall not tear his vestments. 11 And he shall not enter for any dead soul; he shall not be defiled for his father or even for his mother. 12 And he shall not depart from the holy things, and he shall not profane what is consecrated, belonging to his God, for God's holy oil of anointing is upon him; I am the Lord. 13 He shall marry a wife who is a virgin of his own kin. 14 A widow and one rejected and profaned and a prostitute—the she shall not marry. Rather, he shall marry a wife who is a virgin of his own kin, and he shall not profane his offspring among his kin; I am the Lord that sanctifies him.

16 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 17 Say to Aaron: A person from your kin among your families—if any such person has a blemish on him, he shall not approach to offer the gifts of his
God. 18 Any person who has a blemish on him shall not draw near—a person who is lame or blind or having a mutilated nose or who has a cut ear 19 or a person who has a crushed hand or a crushed foot 20 or a hunchback or one with white spots on the eye or one that has inflammation in his eyes or a person who has on him a severe itch or lichen-like growth or one with a single testicle. 21 Anyone of the offspring of Aaron the priest who has on him a blemish shall not come near to offer sacrifices to your God; since he has a blemish, he shall not come near to offer the gifts of God. 22 He shall eat the gifts of God, the holy of holies, and of the holy things. 23 Only he shall not draw near to the veil and not come near the altar, because he has a blemish, and he shall not profane the sanctuary of his God, for it is I who am the Lord who sanctify them. 24 And Moyses spoke to Aaron and his sons and to all the sons of Israel.

22 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 2Speak to Aaron and his sons, and let them give heed because of the sacred things of the sons of Israel, which they dedicate to me, and they shall not profane my holy name; I am the Lord. 3 Say to them: Any person from all your offspring throughout your generations who comes near the sacred things, which the sons of Israel dedicate to the Lord, and his uncleanness is upon him—that soul shall be exterminated from my presence; I am the Lord your God. 4 And a man of the offspring of Aaron the priest—and he is a sufferer from a leprous disease or spermatorrhoea—shall not eat of the sacred things until he has been cleansed. And he who touches anything of the uncleanness of a soul 5 or a person whose bed of semen issues forth from him 6 or whoever touches any unclean creeping thing that defiles him or by any human being by whom he defiles him, according to all his uncleanness—a soul who touches them shall be unclean until evening. He shall not eat of the sacred things unless he has washed his body in water. 7 And should the sun set, he shall then be clean, and then he shall eat of the sacred things, for it is his bread. 8 A carcass and what was torn by wild animals he shall not eat, to be defiled by them; I am the Lord. 9 And they shall keep my charges so that they may not through them assume guilt and die because of them, if they profane them; I am the Lord who sanctify them.

10 And no alien shall eat sacred things. No resident alien of a priest or a hireling shall eat sacred things, 11 but if a priest procures a soul by acquisition of money, he shall eat of his bread, and those that are homebred, they too shall eat of his bread. 12 If a daughter of a person who is a priest belongs to a foreign husband, she shall not eat of the first fruits of the sacred things, 13 and if a priest’s daughter becomes a widow or is rejected, though without having offspring, she shall return to her paternal home, as in her youth; she shall eat of her father’s food. And no alien shall eat of them. 14 If a person eats sacred things out of ignorance, he shall then add one-fifth to it and give the sacred thing to the priest. 15 And they shall not profane the sacred things of the sons of Israel, which they separate for the Lord, 16 and bring upon themselves lawless conduct of error, by eating their sacred things, for I am the Lord who sanctify them.

17 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 18 Speak to Aaron and his sons and the whole congregation of Israel, and you shall say to them: Person by person of the sons of Israel or of the guests who adhere to them in Israel, whoever presents his gifts according to any agreement of theirs or according to any choice of theirs, whatever they may bring to the Lord as a whole burnt offering, 19 these shall be acceptable to you—a male without blemish of the cattle-herds and of the sheep and of the goats. 20 They shall not offer to the Lord anything that has on it a blemish, for it shall not be acceptable to you.

21 And a person who offers a sacrifice of deliverance to the Lord, expressly uttering a vow according to a choice, or at your feasts, from the cattle-herds or from the sheep, to be acceptable it shall be without blemish; there shall be no blemish in it. 22 Anything blind or broken-limbed or with its tongue cut or having warts or acute itching or having lichen-like growth—these you shall not offer to the Lord and you shall not give of them as an offering on the altar to the Lord. 23 And a calf or a sheep that has a cut on its ear or one with a stunted tail, you shall make a slaughtering of them for yourself, but it will not be accepted for your vow. 24 A gelding and one bruised and one castrated and one whose testicles were torn off—you shall not offer these to the Lord, and you shall not do them in your land. 25 And from an alien’s hand you shall not offer any of these as gifts to your God, since there are corruptions in them; there is a blemish in them; they shall not be acceptable to you.

26 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 27 When a calf or a sheep or a goat is born, then it shall remain seven days under its mother, but on the eighth day and beyond it shall be accepted as a gift, an offering to the Lord. 28 And as for a calf or a sheep—you shall not slaughter her and her young on one day. 29 But if you sacrifice a sacrifice, a vow of joyfulfulness, to the Lord, you shall sacrifice it as something acceptable to you. 30 It shall be eaten on the same day; you shall not leave any of the meat until morning; I am the Lord.

31 And you shall keep my commandments and do them. 32 And you shall not profane the name of the holy one, and I shall be sanctified among the sons of Israel; I am the Lord who sanctifies you, 33 who brought you out of the land of Egypt to be your God; I am the Lord.
3 Six days you shall do acts of work, and on the seventh day there is Sabbata, a rest, designated, holy to the Lord; you shall do no work; it is Sabbata to the Lord in your every settlement.

4 These are the feasts for the Lord, and they are designated, holy, those that you shall call out at their appointed time. 5 In the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month, in the middle of the time approaching evening, is a pascha to the Lord.

6 And on the fifteenth day of the same month is the feast of unleavened bread to the Lord; seven days you shall eat unleavened things. 7 And the first day shall be a designated, holy one to you; you shall not do any work of service. 8 And for seven days you shall present whole burnt offerings to the Lord, and the seventh day shall be a designated holy one to you; you shall not do any work of service.

9 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 10 Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: When you enter into the land that I give you and you reap its harvest, you shall also bring a sheaf as the first fruit of your harvest to the priest.

11 And he shall raise up the sheaf before the Lord, acceptable for you; on the day after the first the priest shall raise it up. 12And on the day when you bring the sheaf, you shall do a sheep a year old, without blemish, as a whole burnt offering to the Lord, 13 and its sacrifice—two-tenths of choice flour prepared with oil; a sacrifice to the Lord it is, an odor of fragrance to the Lord, and its libation, one-fourth of a hin of wine. 14 And you shall eat no bread or parched fresh kernels until this very day, until you yourselves offer the gifts to your God; it is a perpetual precept throughout your generations in your every settlement.

15 And from the day after the sabbaths, from the day on which you bring the sheaf of the addition, you shall count off seven whole weeks. 16 You shall count until the day after the last week, fifty days, and you shall present a new sacrifice to the Lord. 17 You shall offer bread as an addition from your settlement: two loaves of bread. They shall consist of two-tenths of fine flour, baked with leaven, of first products to the Lord. 18 And you shall offer with the bread seven lambs, a year old without blemish, and one calf from the cattle-herd and two rams without blemish; they shall be a whole burnt offering to the Lord, along with their sacrifices and their libations: a sacrifice, an odor of fragrance to the Lord. 19 You shall also prepare one young billy goat from the goats for sin and two lambs a year old as a sacrifice of deliverance with the bread of the first products. 20 And the priest shall place them with the bread of the first products—an addition before the Lord, together with the two lambs; they shall be holy to the Lord for the priest who offers them; they shall be his. 21 And this day you shall call designated; it shall be holy to you; you shall not do any work of service on it—a perpetual precept throughout your generations in your every settlement.

22 And when you reap the harvest of your land, you shall not in your harvesting thereafter make a thorough job of the harvest of your field, and you shall not gather the gleanings of your harvest; you shall leave them remaining for the poor and for the guest; I am the Lord your God.

23 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 24 Speak to the sons of Israel, saying: In the seventh month, on the first of the month, you shall have a rest, a memorial with trumpets; it shall be designated, holy to you. 25 You shall do no work of service, and you shall present a whole burnt offering to the Lord.

26 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 27 Also on the tenth of this seventh month there is a day of atonement; it shall be designated, holy to you, and you shall humble your souls and present a whole burnt offering to the Lord; 28 you shall do no work on this particular day; for this is a day of atonement for you, to make atonement for you before the Lord your God. 29 Any soul who does not humble himself on that particular day shall be exterminated from his people. 30 And any soul that shall do work on that particular day—that soul shall be utterly destroyed from his people. 31 You shall do no work; it is a perpetual precept throughout your generations in all your settlements. 32 It shall be to you Sabbata of sabbaths, and you shall humble your souls; from the ninth of the month, from evening to evening you shall sabbatize on your sabbaths.

33 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 34 Speak to the sons of Israel, saying: On the fifteenth day of this seventh month and lasting seven days is the feast of tents to the Lord. 35 And the first day is designated, holy; you shall not do any work of service. 36 Seven days you shall present whole burnt offerings to the Lord, and the eighth day shall be designated, holy to you, and you shall present a whole burnt offering to the Lord; it is a finale; you shall not do any work of service.

37 These are the feasts to the Lord, which you shall call designated, holy, for presenting to the Lord offerings—whole burnt offerings and their sacrifices and their libations, each on its proper day—apart from the sabbaths of the Lord and apart from your gifts and apart from all your vows and apart from your voluntary gifts, which you give to the Lord.

38 Also on the fifteenth day of this seventh month, when you finish the produce of the land, you shall keep a feast to the Lord for seven days, a rest on the first day and a rest on the eighth day. 39 And on the first day you shall take ripe fruit of a tree, both brushes of palm trees and bushy branches of a tree and branches of willow and of chaste-tree from a wadi, to rejoice before the Lord your God for seven days in the year. 40 It is a perpetual precept throughout your generations. You shall keep it as a feast in the seventh month. 42 You shall live in tents for seven days; everyone who is a native in Israel shall live in tents, so that your generations may know that I made the sons of Israel settle in tents when I brought them out of the land of Egypt; I am the Lord your God.

44 And Moyses declared to the sons of Israel the feasts of the Lord.

24 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

2 Command the sons of Israel, and let them take for you oil, pure olive, beaten, for light, to burn a lamp continually outside the veil in the tent of witness. And Aaron and his sons shall burn it from evening to morning before the Lord perpetually; it is a perpetual precept throughout your generations. 3You shall burn the lamps on the pure lampstand before the Lord until morning.

5 And you shall take fine flour and make it twelve loaves; two-tenths shall be the one loaf. 6And you shall lay them in two piles, six loaves per one pile, on the pure table before the Lord. 7You shall put on the pile pure frankincense and salt, and they shall be as loaves for remembrance, set before the Lord. 8On the day of the sabbaths he shall set them out before the Lord continually as an everlasting covenant from the sons of Israel. 9And they shall be for Aaron and his sons, and they shall eat them in a holy place, for they are holy of holies; this is for him from the things sacrificed to the Lord, a perpetual precept.

10 And a son of an Israelite woman (and he was the son of an Egyptian) came out among the sons of Israel, and the Israelite woman's son and the Israelite person began fighting in the camp. 11And the Israelite woman's son called down a curse while naming the Name. And they brought him to Moyses—now his mother's name was Salomith daughter of Dabri of the tribe of Dan—12and they put him away in custody, to decide about him by the ordinance of the Lord.

13 And the Lord said to Moyses, saying: 14Take the one who called down the curse outside the camp, and all who heard shall lay their hands on his head, and the whole congregation shall stone him. 15And speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: If a person, a person should curse God, he shall assume guilt. 16Whoever names the name of the Lord—by death let him be put to death; let the whole congregation of Israel stone him with stones. Whether a guest or a native, when he names the name, let him die. 17And a person who strikes a person's soul and he dies, by death let him be put to death. 18And whoever strikes an animal and it dies—let him repay soul for soul. 19And if anyone should give a blemish to a person, so shall it be given to him. 20Fracture for fracture, eye for eye, tooth for tooth; as one gives a blemish to a person, so shall it be given to him. 21Whoever strikes a person, and he dies, by death let him be put to death. 22There shall be one judgment for the guest and for the inhabitant of the country; for it is I who am the Lord your God. 23And Moyses spoke to the sons of Israel, and they brought the one who had called down the curse outside the camp and stoned him with stones. And the sons of Israel did as the Lord had instructed Moyses.

25 And the Lord spoke to Moyses on the mountain Sina, saying: 2Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: If you enter the land that I give you, the land which I give you, shall also rest—Sabbata to the Lord. 3Six years you shall sow your field, and six years you shall prune your vine and gather in its fruit, 4but in the seventh year there shall be Sabbata—a rest for the land, Sabbata for the Lord; you shall not sow your field, and you shall not prune your vine. 5You shall not reap completely that which sprouts by itself of your field or gather in the grapes of what is something made holy for you; it shall be a year of rest for the land. 6And the sabbaths of the land shall be for food for you and for your male slave and your female slave and your hired laborer and for the resident alien who adheres to you, 7for your livestock also and for the wild animals which are in your land all its yield shall be for food.

8 And you shall count off for yourself seven rests of years, seven times seven years, and they shall be for you seven weeks of years—forty-nine years. 9And you shall proclaim with the sound of the trumpet throughout all your land, in the seventh month, on the tenth of the month. On the day of atonement you shall proclaim with the trumpet throughout all your land. 10And you shall hallow the year, the fiftieth year, and you shall proclaim release on the land to all its inhabitants. It shall be a year of release; a signal this shall be for you, and each one shall depart to his possession, and each shall depart to his clan. 11This is a signal of release: the fiftieth year. It shall be a year for you; you shall not sow or gather itsa consecrated things. 12For it is a signal of release; it shall be a holy thing to you; from the plains you shall eat itsa produce.

13 In the year of release, by its signal, each one shall return to his possession. 14But if you make a sale to your neighbor, even if you make an acquisition from your neighbor, let a person not oppress his neighbor. 15You shall acquire from your neighbor according to the number of years since the signal; he shall sell to you according to the number of years of produce. 16Insofar as there be an increase in years, you shall increase his tenure, and insofar as there be a decrease in years, you shall decrease his tenure, for he shall sell to you a number of yields. 17Let not a person oppress his neighbor, and you shall fear the Lord your God; it is I who am the Lord your God.

18 And you shall observe all my statutes and all my judgments, and you shall guard yourselves and do them, and you shall dwell on the land feeling confident. 19And the land will yield its produce, and you will eat to satiety and dwell on it feeling confident. 20But if you say, What shall we eat in this seventh year, if we do not sow or gather in our...
crop? 21 I will also send my blessing to you in the sixth year, and it will yield its crop for three years. 22 And you shall sow in the eighth year, and you will be eating from the old crop until the ninth year. When its produce comes in, you shall eat old of old things. 23 And the land shall not be sold irrevocably, for the land is mine, because before me you are guests and resident aliens. 24 And on the basis of all the land of your holding, you shall provide ransom for the land.

25 But if your brother who is with you should become poor and should sell some of what he holds and the next of kin who is nearest should come, then he shall redeem the sale of his brother. 26 But if someone does not have one who is next of kin and has plenty in hand and finds for himself what is sufficient for his ransom, then he shall compute the years of his sale and give back what he has over to the person who sold it to him, and he shall depart to his holding. 28 But if his hand does not find what is sufficient to give it back to him, then the sale shall belong to the one who acquired them until the year of release, and at the release it shall expire, and he shall depart to his holding.

29 But if anyone sells a dwelling house in a walled city, then its redemption shall stand; until a year of days has elapsed, its redemption shall stand. 30 But if it is not redeemed until a full year has elapsed, the house that is in a city that has a wall shall be confirmed irrevocably to belong to its purchaser, throughout his generations, and it shall not expire in the release. 31 But houses in farmsteads, those that have no wall around them, let them be classed as the field of the earth; these shall always be redeemed, and they shall expire in the release. 32 And as for the cities of the Levites, the houses of the cities of their holding shall always be redeemed for the Levites. 33 And he who redeems from the Levites, then the sale of their houses of a city of their holding shall expire in the release, because the dwellings in the cities of the Levites are their holding among the sons of Israel. 34 And the fields bordering on their cities shall not be sold; for this is their holding for all time.

35 Now if your brother is needy and with you becomes weak in his hands, you shall help him as a guest and a resident alien, and your brother shall live with you. 36 You shall not take interest from him, not even in any amount, and you shall fear your God; I am the Lord. And your brother shall live with you. 37 You shall not give him your food in excess. 38 I am the Lord your God, the one who brought you out from the land of Egypt, to give you the land Chanaan in order to be your God.

39 Now if your brother with you is humbled and is sold to you, he shall not be subject to you with the subjection of a domestic. 40 He shall be to you as a hired laborer or a resident alien. He shall work with you until the year of the release. 41 And he and his children with him shall go forth at the release, and he shall go away to his kin; he shall depart to his ancestral holding. 42 For they are my domestics, whom I brought out of the land of Egypt; he shall not be sold in a sale of a domestic. 43 You shall not abuse him with toil, and you shall fear the Lord your God. 44 And as for a male and female servant whom you may have from the nations that are around you—from them you shall acquire a male and female slave. 45 Also from the sons of the resident aliens residing among you—from these and from their families who have been born in your land you shall acquire; let them be to you as a possession. 46 And you shall distribute them to your children after you, and they shall be held in possession by you forever. But of your brothers the sons of Israel, each shall not abuse his brother with toil.

47 If the hand of the guest or the resident alien with you finds, and if your brother, having fallen in difficulty, is sold to the guest or to the resident alien with you or to a guest by descent, after he has been sold to him he shall have redemption; one of his brothers shall redeem him; 49 a brother of his father or a son of his father’s brother shall redeem him, or some of his relatives who are of his own flesh, of his own tribe, shall redeem him, but if he prospers with his hands he shall redeem himself. 50 He shall compute with his purchaser from the year when he sold himself to him until the year of the release, and the amount of the sale shall be as for a hired laborer. Year by year he shall be with him. 51 But if more years remain to someone, for these he shall pay his ransom from the money of his sale, but if few years remain until the year of the release, then he shall compute for him according to his years, and he shall pay his ransom. 52 As a hired laborer he shall be with him year by year. You shall not abuse him with toil in your sight. 53 But if he has not been redeemed in any of these ways, he and his young children with him shall go forth in the year of release. 55 For to me the sons of Israel are domestics; these are my servants whom I brought out from the land of Egypt.

26 I am the Lord your God. You shall make for yourselves nothing made by hand nor carved, neither erect a stèle of your own, nor shall you place a stone as a look-out in your land, to do obeisance to it; it is I who am the Lord your God. 2 You shall keep my sabbaths and be respectful of my sanctuaries; I am the Lord.

3 If you walk by my ordinances and observe my commandments and do them, I will then give you the rain in its season, and the land shall yield its produce, and the trees of the plains shall yield their fruit. 5 And for you the harvest shall overtake the vintage, and the vintage shall overtake the sowing, and you shall eat your bread to satiety and dwell in safety on your land, and war shall not go through your land. 6 And I will grant peace in your land, and you shall fall asleep, and there shall be no one making you afraid, and I will destroy bad animals from your land. 7 And you shall give chase to your enemies, and they shall fall before you by slaughter. 8 And five of you shall give chase to a and a hundred of you shall give chase to tens of thousands, and your enemies shall fall before you by dagger. 9And I will look attentively upon you and increase you and multiply you, and I will establish my covenant with you. 10And you shall eat the old and the old things of the old, and you shall bring out the old out of the new. 11And I will place my tent among you, and my soul shall not abhor you. 12And I will walk about among you and will be your God, and you shall be 4for me a nation. 13It is I who am the Lord your God who brought you out of the land of Egypt since you were slaves, and I have shattered the bond of your yoke and led you with boldness.

14 But if you do not obey me, neither do these ordinances of mine, 15but refuse to comply with them, and your soul be angered by my judgments so that you do not carry out all my commandments so that you scatter my covenant to the wind, then I in turn will do thus to you, and I will gather difficulty upon you, both itch and jaundice, and your eyes as being purulent and your life as pining away. And you shall sow your seed in vain, and your eyes as being purulent and your life as gather difficulty upon you, both itch and jaundice, and your enemies shall melt away.

15 And they shall confess their sins and the sins of their fathers, because they transgressed and disdained me and because they walked sideways with me, 16then I will walk among you in skewed anger, and it is I who will walk with you in skewed anger, and I myself will strike you sevenfold for your sins. 17And I will smash the insolence of your arrogance, and I will make your sky iron and your earth like copper. 18And your strength shall be to no purpose, and your land shall not yield its fruit.

21 If after this you walk sideways and are not willing to obey me, I will add to you seven blows in accordance with your sins. 22And I will send the wild animals of the land against you, and they shall devour you and utterly destroy your livestock, and they shall make you very few in number, and your roads shall be deserted.

23 And if by these things you are not disciplined but walk sideways with me, 24then I too will walk with you in skewed anger, and I myself will strike you sevenfold for your sins. 25And I will bring against you a dagger avenging the cause of the covenant, and you will flee for refuge to your cities. And I will send death among you, and you shall be delivered into enemy hands. 26When you are hard pressed for want of bread, then ten women shall bake your bread in a single oven, and they shall make you very few in number, and your roads shall be deserted.

27 Now if by these things you do not obey me but walk sideways with me, 28I myself too will walk with you in skewed anger, and it is I who will discipline you sevenfold in accordance with your sins. 29And you shall eat the flesh of your sons, and you shall eat the flesh of your daughters.
30And I will strip bare your steles and utterly destroy your wooden handcrafted objects, and I will place your limbs on the limbs of your idols. And my soul will be very angry with you. 31And I will lay your cities waste, will make your sanctuaries quite desolate, and I will not smell the odor of your sacrifices anymore. 32And I will devastate your land, and your enemies who inhabit it shall be astonished at it. 33And you I will scatter into the nations, and the dagger, coming by surprise, will utterly destroy you, and your land shall be desolate, and your cities shall be desolate.

34 Then the land shall enjoy its sabbaths all the days of its desolation. And you shall be in the land of your enemies; then the land shall sabbatize and enjoy its sabbaths. 35All the days of its desolation, it shall sabbatize what it did not sabbatize on your sabbaths while it was made desolate by them, and your land, and your enemies who inhabit it shall be astonished at it. 33And you I will scatter into the nations, and the dagger, coming by surprise, will utterly destroy you, and your land shall be desolate, and your cities shall be desolate.

34 Then the land shall enjoy its sabbaths all the days of its desolation. And you shall be in the land of your enemies; then the land shall sabbatize and enjoy its sabbaths. 35All the days of its desolation,
it shall sabbatize what it did not sabbatize on your sabbaths while it was living on it. 36And onto those of you who are left, I will send faintness into their heart in the land of their enemies, and the sound of a driven leaf shall put them to flight, and they shall flee as those who flee from battle, and they shall fall though no one pursues. 37And brother shall disdain brother as in a war, though no one is running away, and you shall not be able to withstand your enemies. 38And you shall perish among the nations, and the land of your enemies shall devour you. 39And those of you who are left shall be corrupted because of their sins. In the land of their enemies they shall melt away.

40 And they shall confess their sins and the sins of their fathers, because they transgressed and
disdained me and because they walked sideways before me, 41and I, in turn, walked in skewed anger with them, and I shall destroy them in the land of their enemies. Then their uncircumcised heart will feel ashamed, and then they will be content with their iniquities. 42And I will remember the covenant of Lakob, and I will remember the covenant of Isaak and the covenant of Abraam, and I will remember the land. 43And the land shall be abandonied by them. Then the land shall accept its sabbaths while it was made desolate by them, and they themselves shall accept their lawlessness on account of which they disdained my judgments and were vexed in their soul by my ordinances.
44And not even when they were in the land of their enemies did I ever disdain them or was angered by them so as to destroy them utterly, to scatter to the wind my covenant with them; for it is I who am the Lord their God, 45and I will remember their former covenant when I brought them out of the land of Egypt, out of a house of slavery in the sight of the nations, to be their God; I am the Lord.

46 These are the judgments and the ordinances and the law that the Lord established between him and between the sons of Israel on the mountain Sina by the hand of Moyses.

27 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:
2Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: A person who vows a vow to the Lord, for instance the value of his life, 3the value for a male shall be: from twenty to sixty years of age the value shall be fifty didrachmas\(^a\) of silver by the sanctuary standard. 4 But for a female the valuation shall be thirty didrachmas. 5 Now if it is from five to twenty years of age, the value of a male shall be twenty didrachmas and of a female, ten didrachmas. 6 And from one month to five years, the value of a male shall be five didrachmas of silver, but of a female, three didrachmas. 7 But if from sixty years and over, if the person is a male—the value shall be fifteen didrachmas of silver, but in the case of a female ten didrachmas. 8 And if he is base with regard to the value, he shall stand before the priest, and the priest shall assess him; in accordance with the strength of the hand of the one making the vow, the priest shall assess him.

9 But if a gift to the Lord be from the animals, from those that are being offered, if he gives from these to the Lord, it shall be holy. 10 He shall not exchange it, either good for bad or bad for good. But if by exchanging he exchanges it, animal for animal, both that one and its substitute shall be holy. 11 But if a gift to the Lord is any unclean animal, from those that are not brought, he shall set the animal before the priest. 12 And the priest shall assess it; between good and between bad, as the priest sets the value, so it shall stand. 13 But if by redeeming, he redeems it, he shall add one-fifth to its value.

14 If a person consecrates his house holy to the Lord, then the priest shall assess it: whether between good and between bad; as the priest values it, so it shall be fixed. 15 But if the one who consecrates it redeems his house, he shall add to it one-fifth of the money of its value, and it shall be his.

16 Now if a person consecrates to the Lord some of the field of his holding, then its value shall be in accordance with its seed: fifty didrachmas of silver to a kör\(^b\) of barley seed. 17 But if he consecrates his field from the year of release, according to its assessment it shall stand, 18 but if he consecrates his field later, after the release, the priest shall compute the price for it according to the years that remain until the year of release, and there shall be a deduction made from its assessment. 19 Now if the one who consecrates it redeems the field, then he shall add one-fifth of the money to its value, and it shall be his, 20 but should he not redeem the field and should sell the field to another person, he shall no longer redeem it. 21 But when the release has expired, the field shall be holy to the Lord as the land that has been set aside; it shall be the priest's holding. 22 Now if someone consecrates to the Lord part of the field that he has purchased, which is not a part of the field of his holding, 23 the priest shall assign to it the full amount of the value from the year of release, and he shall pay the value on that day, something sacred to the Lord. 24 And in the year of release the field shall be given back to the person from whom he bought it, whose land-holding it had been. 25 And every assessment shall be by holy weights: twenty obols shall make a didrachma.

26 And every firstling that may be born among your animals shall belong to the Lord, and no one shall consecrate it; whether calf or sheep, it is the Lord's. 27 But if it is of unclean quadrupeds, he shall make an alteration according to its assessment and add one-fifth to it. And it shall be his. But if he does not redeem, it shall be sold at its assessed value.

28 But nothing dedicated that a person may dedicate to the Lord, which he owns, from human to animal and from his field of holding, shall be sold or redeemed; every devoted thing shall be holy of holies to the Lord. 29 And nothing that has been dedicated of human beings shall be redeemed, but by death it shall be put to death.

30 Every tithe of the land from the seed of the ground and of tree-fruit is the Lord's; it is holy to the Lord. 31 But if a person should by redeeming redeem his tithe, he shall add one-fifth to it, and it shall be his. 32 And every tithe of cows and sheep, and everything that may come into the count under the rod—the tithe shall be holy to the Lord. 33 You shall not exchange good for bad. But if by exchanging you exchange it, then its substitute shall be holy; it shall not be redeemed.

34 These are the commandments that the Lord commanded Moyses for the sons of Israel on the mountain Sina.

Edition of the Greek Text

The New English Translation of the Septuagint (NETS) version of Numbers is based on the critical edition prepared by John William Wevers (Septuaginta: Vetus Testamentum Graecum Aucttirate Academiarum Scientiarum Gottingensis edition III.1: Numeri [Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1982]). In addition, several of the thirty-five changes to the critical text later proposed by Wevers in his Notes on the Greek Text of Numbers ([SBLSCS 46; Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1998] 608–609) have been incorporated into NETS Numbers where these alterations affect the English translation. In such cases, differences between the critical edition (Weed) and the emended text of Wevers’ Notes (WeN) are evident in the footnotes to NETS. For example, in Num 21.11 the translation reads “and camped in ἄχελ Γαί,” although the edition has “and camped in Achelgai.” The correction of the Notes is cited at the foot of the page as follows: ἄχελ Γαί = Weed.

Character of the Translation

LXX Numbers may be described as quite a literal reproduction of the Hebrew that is often wooden. The translator is at times careless or inaccurate, but he can also be skillful in carrying out his task, with successful attempts to achieve consistency and to harmonize passages he is rendering.

In his 1851 analysis of LXX Numbers as a translation,1 Zacharias Frankel came to the conclusion that it is a chance amalgam without an overall plan or purpose. However, in his Notes on the Greek Text of Numbers, which constitutes the most thorough study of LXX Numbers in modern times, Wevers offers a more balanced assessment.

On the one hand, Wevers considers the Greek translation of Numbers as “without a doubt by far the weakest volume in the Greek Pentateuch” (Notes, p. ix), with numerous examples of incompetence evidenced by gross failures to follow the rules of grammar. On the other, he also views LXX Numbers as the product of “a mind at work, making judgments at times quite astute in its approach to the task of translating holy writ” (Notes, p. xv). Despite his flaws, the translator is actively engaged in the interpretation of Scripture, making strong efforts to clarify obscure passages and sometimes even to correct what he perceives as factual errors or contradictions in the parent text.

Carelessness and Grammatical Inconsistencies

There are many apparent careless renditions and grammatical inconsistencies on the part of the translator.

A striking example of carelessness on the translator’s part is at Num 9.22–23, where he omitted two pieces of the text due to homoioteleuton (i.e., his eye skipping from one Hebrew word to the same word later in the text, resulting in the omission of the words in between). In the MT, 9.22 ends with “[the Israelites] would not set out; but when it [i.e., the cloud] lifted they would set out,” (וָשָׁבַת וַיָּשָׁבַת וַיְעַרֵּף יָרְדֵּן בַּעַל), and v. 23 continues: “At the command of the LORD (וְעַל פֶּן לַפְupoֹנַת) they would camp, and at the command of the LORD (וְעַל פֶּן לַפְupoֹנַת) they would set out.” LXX Numbers, however, simply reads “[the sons of Israel] . . . shall certainly not set out (καὶ οὐ μὴ ἀπαράσσων). (23) For at the ordinance of the Lord they shall set out” (ὅτι δὲ προστάμωσας κυρίου ἀπαράσσων). In these two verses, the translator’s eye most likely skipped from the first “[they] would set out” to the second, resulting in loss of the intervening text (“but when it lifted” in the MT). In similar fashion, his eye seems to have skipped from the first “at the command of the LORD” to the second, resulting in loss of the intervening text (“they would camp” in the MT).

Another example of carelessness is at Num 3.25, where the translator unfortunately uses σκηνή for both וָשָׁבַת and וָשָׁבַת, which gives rise to confusion, since the Hebrew here uses them coordinately: "And the guard duty of the sons of Gedson in the tent (τῆς κσκηνῆς) of witness is the tent (i.e., the tabernacle) (ἡ κσκηνή) and the screen.”

Several grammatical inconsistencies are also evident. For example, we find cases where no grammatically fitting antecedent can be found in the context. Thus at 11.10 we read “and before Moyses it was evil,” although there is no neuter singular word nearby. We can only presume that Moyses found it evil to hear the people weeping in their divisions, each one at his door. At 22.5 Balak sent ambassadors to Balaam son of Beor “of Pathoura, which is on the river.” The translator presumably regards Pathoura as the name of a city, which would normally be feminine. However, he then refers to this noun with a relative neuter pronoun (ὁ ἔστιν, “which is”).

Formulaic Patterns

A more positive view of the translator arises when other aspects of his technique are taken into account. In Num 1.2–46, for example, he shows his preference for rigidly following formulaic patterns, regardless of changes in the parent text: “according to their families, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, according to the number of their names, according to their head, every male from twenty years and above, everyone who goes out in the force.”

On occasion, a mini-pattern emerges when the translator’s work is compared with the Hebrew of the MT. Num 4.41, for example, ends with a phrase: “(whom Moyses and Aaron enrolled by the voice of the Lord) by the hand of Moyses.” Although not found in the MT, “by the hand of Moyses” has apparently been added in conformity to formulas found elsewhere in this chapter (cf. vv. 37, 45, 49).

On numerous occasions, the translator’s attempts to achieve consistency are evident. At Num 21.3, for example, he makes the account consistent with v. 2, which read: “And Israel vowed a vow to the Lord and said: ‘If you deliver to me this people as subject, I will anathematize it and its towns.’” In the MT, however, v. 3 reads: “and they utterly destroyed them and their towns.” LXX Numbers makes this verse consistent with the vow in v. 2 by stating: “and he anathematized him and his cities to destruction.” The translator also tries to level the text by the use of harmonizations. In Num 27.18, for example, Moyses is ordered to take Iesous as his successor, “and you shall lay your hands (τὰς χεῖρας σου) upon him”—the Hebrew here has the singular “your hand” (יָד). A few verses later, this command is carried out when Moyses “laid his hands (יוֹדִים) upon him.” In the earlier verse the translator used the plural “your hands” in order to harmonize the readings in vv. 18 and 23. Thus, while attempting to translate the Hebrew parent text faithfully, the Greek translator did not hesitate to change specific details in order to achieve consistency and harmonization.

Standard Equivalents and Calques

As is the case for many other books of the Septuagint, LXX Numbers presents several standard equivalents for Hebrew terms. Some examples evident in LXX Numbers are found elsewhere in the Pentateuch; for example: διαθήκη (“covenant”) for בְּרִית and ψυχή (“soul/ spirit”) for πνεῦμα. More specific to Numbers are προσκυνέω (“bow down/worship”) for λατρεύω Hithpael; παραβολή (“illustration”) for λόγος, υἱοὶ (“sons”) for בֶּן (construct state in chapter 26); χίμαιρον ἦς σιγών (“male goat from the goats”) for κριθὰρ θινά; οἰκονομία (“chattel”) for πλῆθος; and δυνάμεις (“army/force”) for ὁπλαὶ.

Another feature of LXX Numbers is the translator’s use of calques, i.e., Greek words with Hebrew meanings, or which at least incorporate meanings from the Hebrew parent text (see “TO THE READER OF NETS”). One prominent example of a calque is κύριος (“Lord”) for the Hebrew בְּרִית. Another is διαθήκη (“covenant”) for בְּרִית, which is also classified as a standard equivalent (see above).

Translation of Difficult Terms

In several cases, the translator of LXX Numbers was faced with difficult or baffling Hebrew terms, and he did his best to render them in an intelligible manner. Five examples are presented here.

Even today there is some disagreement among scholars as to the precise meaning of בְּרִית in Num 11.8; our translator simply contextualized by rendering ἐγκρίσις (“cake”).

The puzzling words בְּרִית נָקָם—possibly meaning “my displeasure”—are found in Num 14.34 (see also Iob 33.10). Here LXX Numbers gives a contextualized translation, τὸν θυμὸν τῆυς ὀργῆς μου (“the wrath of my anger”), which makes good contextual sense.

The Hebrew term 고מל (“high places”) was apparently not understood as an idolatrous place of worship at Alexandria when the translator did his work. In Numbers it is rendered by στήλαι ("steles") at 21.28; 22.41; 33.52 (thus also Leu 26.20).

In Num 23.14 the Hebrew text tells us that Balak brought Balaam "to the field of Zophim". Since בְּנֵים literally means "watchers," the translator rendered the phrase by εἰς ἄγρον οκοπήβην ("to a look-out or watchtower of a field").

In Num 32.33 the land of Og is called by βῆθις Κρ)ν η) θαλαττ eius ἡμέρας ὅροις τοις, πόλεως τής γῆς κύκλῳ ("the land and the cities, together with its borders, cities of the land round about"). The Greek translator made reasonable sense of the Hebrew by rendering τήν γῆν καὶ τὰς πόλεις σων τοις ὀρίοις αὐτής, πόλεις τῆς γῆς κύκλῳ ("the land and the cities, together with its borders, cities of the land round about").

Major Differences in Arrangement or Structure

When LXX Numbers is compared with the MT, several variations in arrangement or structure are evident. Besides affecting verse numbering, which complicates a synoptic reading with the MT, such differences affect exegesis of the sections in which they are found, and in some cases they might affect our understanding of the textual development of the book of Numbers.

First, in the pedigree (MT "census") of Israel found in Numbers 1, vv. 20–37 deal with the descendants of Iacob's twelve sons in the following order: Rouben, Symeon, Ioudas, Issachar, Zaboulon, Ephraim (Ioseph's son), Manasse (Ioseph's son), Gad, Dan, Aser, and Naphtali. In contrast, the MT covers them in the order of: Reuben, Simeon, Gad, Judah, Issachar, Zebulun, Ephraim (Joseph's son), Manasseh (Joseph's son), Benjamin, Dan, Asher, and Naphtali. The effect of the sequence in the LXX is to bring Gad into proximity with Aser (ninth and eleventh, respectively), whereas in the MT they are far apart (third and eleventh). This phenomenon is even more striking in the pedigree detailed in Num 26.5–50, where in the MT Gad is third and Asher seventh. In LXX Numbers, however, Gad is sixth and Asher seventh. An explanation or motivation for the close proximity of Gad and Asher in the two LXX pedigrees is to be found in the list of Num 1.5–15, where Asher is tenth and Gad is eleventh (in both the MT and LXX).

Second, the arrangement of the Priestly Benediction in Num 6.22–27 differs from that in the MT: (22) And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: (23) Speak to Aaron and his sons, saying: Thus you shall bless the sons of Israel, saying to them—(27 MT) and they shall put my name on the sons of Israel, and I the Lord will bless them—(25 MT) May the Lord bless you and keep you; (26 MT) May the Lord make his face shine upon you and show mercy to you; (27 MT) May the Lord lift up his face upon you and give you peace.

The final passage involves another pedigree (MT "census"), this time of the new generation who will live on to conquer the Promised Land. In the Greek, 26.15–47 mention the following descendants of nine of Iacob's sons: Ioudas, Issachar, Zaboulon, Gad, Aser, Manasse (Ioseph's son), Ephraim (Joseph's son), Benjamin, and Dan. In the MT, however, the order is somewhat different (equivalent to 26.19–27, 15–18, 44–47, 28–43 in the LXX): Gad, Judah, Issachar, Zebulun, Manasseh (Joseph's son), Ephraim (Joseph's son), Benjamin, Dan, and Asher.

The NETS Translation of Numbers

Policy on Gender Language and Translating in a Literal Manner

NETS generally follows the gender language policy adopted by the NRSV with respect to human beings. However, departures from the NRSV in this regard are quite common in NETS Numbers, for two main reasons. First, the translation presented here is quite literal, in an attempt to reflect the Greek relationship to its source. Second, in accordance with its stated goal with respect to gender, the NRSV sometimes avoids terms that are clearly masculine in the Hebrew, substituting instead ones that are more neutral. This course has generally not been followed in the NETS translation.

The challenges presented and decisions made are illustrated in Num 1.2. Here NETS reads: "Take a sum total of the whole congregation of the sons of Israel (NRSV: "of Israelites"), according to their families, according to their paternal houses (NRSV: "by ancestral houses")." The Greek translator rendered ἄνθρωποι Ἰσραήλ with υἱοὶ Ἰσραήλ ("the sons of Israel") and ἑαυτὰ ὑπὲρ τῶν ἵππων ἅμα ("according the houses of their paternal families"). While the more literal renderings given here do not accord with the NRSV's policy with respect to gender neutral language, for this verse and many like it the NETS Numbers is based on the overriding principle of translating what the Greek actually says.
BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

As indicated above, the New English Translation of the Septuagint (NETS) version of Numbers is based on John W. Wevers’ critical edition with frequent reference to his Notes on the Greek Text of Numbers. I have also consulted the earlier edition by Alfred Rahlfs (1935). A most helpful research tool has been the Accordance Software for Biblical Studies program (produced by OakTree Software, Inc.). The standard English translation by Brenton has provided many valuable insights. Various scholarly articles in the BIOSCS and some chapters in the Congress volumes of the IOSCS have also provided relevant information and cogent insights.

Personal discussions and interactions with other NETS translators—especially those translating the other four books of the Pentateuch—have been instructive and illuminating.

I especially acknowledge the expert help and input of Albert Pietersma, co-editor (with Benjamin Wright) of the NETS project. By publishing the first translation in the NETS project (The Psalms) as well as the NETS Manual, Professor Pietersma has produced a paradigm and a roadmap for the other translators to follow, each, of course, with his or her own adaptations. Above all, I am most grateful to this leader and mentor in our field for providing detailed communications with me and the other translators as we worked and for helping me avoid several pitfalls by checking this translation with care and in detail.

1 And the Lord spoke to Moyses in the wilderness of Sina, in the tent of witness, on the first of the second month of the second year after they had come out of the land of Egypt, saying: 2 Take a sum total of the whole congregation of the sons of Israel, according to their families, according to their paternal houses, according to number by their names, according to their head—3 every male from twenty years and above, everyone who goes out in Israel’s force. Enroll them with their force; you and Aaron are to enroll them. 4 And with you shall be each of the rulers, according to the tribe of each. They shall be according to paternal houses. 5 And these are the names of the men who shall be present with you:

From those of Ruben, Elisour son of Sedouir.

6 From those of Simeon, Salamiel son of Soursadai.
7 From those of Judah, Naasson son of Aminadab.

16 These were the ones designated from the congregation, rulers of the tribes according to their paternal family; they were officers of thousands of Israel.

17 And Moyses and Aaron took these men who had been designated by name, and on the first of the month of the second year they assembled the whole congregation. And they tabulated accord- ing to their birth, according to their paternal family, according to the number of their names from twenty years and above, every male, according to their head, in the manner the Lord had instructed Moyses. And they were numbered in the wilderness of Sina.

20 And there were the sons of Ruben, Israel’s firstborn, according to their families, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, according to the number of their names, according to their head, every male from twenty years and above, everyone who goes out in the force; their numbering from the tribe of Ruben was forty-six thousand and five hundred.

22 For the sons of Simeon, according to their families, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, according to the number of their names, according to their head, every male from twenty years and above, everyone who goes out in the force; their enrollment from the tribe of Simeon was fifty-nine thousand and three hundred.

24(26) For the sons of Judah, according to their families, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, according to the number of their names, according to their head, every male from twenty years and above, everyone who goes out in the force; their enrollment from the tribe of loudas was seventy-four thousand and six hundred.

26 For the sons of Issachar, according to their families, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, according to the number of their names, according to their head, every male from twenty years and above, everyone who goes out in the force: thirty-seven their enrollment from the tribe of Issachar was fifty-four thousand and four hundred.

28 For the sons of Zaboulon, according to their families, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, according to the number of their names, according to their head, every male from twenty years and above, everyone who goes out in the force: twenty-nine their enrollment from the tribe of Zaboulon was fifty-seven thousand and four hundred.

30 For the sons of Joseph: the sons of Ephraim, according to their families, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, according to the number of their names, according to their head, every male from twenty years and above, everyone who goes out in the force: thirty-three their enrollment from the tribe of Ephraim was forty-five thousand and five hundred; thirty-two for the sons of Manasse, according to their families, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, according to the number of their names, according to their head, every male from twenty years and above, everyone who goes out in the force: thirty-four their enrollment from the tribe of Manasse was thirty-two thousand and two hundred.

34 For the sons of Benjamin, according to their families, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, according to the number of their names, according to their head, every male from twenty years and above, everyone who goes out in the force: thirty-six their enrollment from the tribe of Benjamin was thirty-five thousand and four hundred.

36 For the sons of Gad, according to their families, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, according to the number of their names, according to their head, every male from twenty years and above, everyone who goes out in the force: thirty-seven their enrollment from the tribe of Gad was forty-five thousand and six hundred and fifty.

38 For the sons of Dan, according to their families, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, according to the number of their names, according to their head, every male from twenty years and above, everyone who goes out in the force: thirty-nine their enrollment from the tribe of Dan was sixty-two thousand and seven hundred.

40 For the sons of Aser, according to their families, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, according to the number of their names, according to their head, every male from twenty years and above, everyone who goes out in the force: forty-one their enrollment from the tribe of Aser was forty-one thousand and five hundred.

42 For the sons of Naphthali, according to their families, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, according to the number of their names, according to their head, every male from twenty years and above, everyone who goes out in the force: forty-three their enrollment from the tribe of Naphthali was fifty-three thousand and four hundred.

44 This is the enrollment which Moyses and Aaron and the rulers of Israel, twelve men, enrolled—one man for one tribe, according to the tribe of their paternal houses. And the whole enrollment of the sons of Israel with their force from twenty years and above, everyone who would go out to do battle in Israel was six hundred three thousand and five hundred fifty. But the Levites from their paternal tribe were not enrolled among the sons of Israel.

48 And the Lord had spoken to Moyses, saying: See to it that you do not enroll the tribe of Levi and that you do not take their number amidst the sons of Israel. And you shall appoint the Levites over the tent of witness and over all its furnishings and over all the things that are in it; they shall carry the tent and all its furnishings, and they shall minister in it, and they shall encamp around the tent. And when the tent sets out, the Levites shall take it down, and when the tent encamps, they shall erect it. And let the alien who comes near die. And the sons of Levi shall encamp, a man in his own unit and a man according to his own rank, together with their force; but let the Levites encamp opposite, around the tent of witness, and there shall be no offense among the sons of Israel. And the Levites themselves shall keep guard duty over the tent of witness. And the sons of Israel did according to all that the Lord commanded Moyses and Aaron; so they did.

And the Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron, saying: Let the sons of Israel encamp—a person next to him, according to unit, according to ensigns, according to their paternal houses—opposite round about the tent of witness let the sons of Israel encamp. And those who encamp first towards the east: the unit of the camp of loudas with their force. And the ruler of the sons of loudas: Naasson son of Aminadab; his force, those enrolled: seventy-four thousand and six hundred. And those who encamp next: the tribe of Issachar. And the ruler of the sons of Issachar: Nathanael son of Sogar; his force, those enrolled: fifty-four thousand and four hundred. And those who encamp next: the tribe of Zaboulon. And the ruler of the sons of Zaboulon: Eliab son of Chailon; his force, those enrolled: fifty-seven thousand and four hundred. All those enrolled from the camp of loudas: one hundred eighty-six thousand and four hundred with their force. They shall set out first.

And the ruler of the sons of Rouben: Elisour son of Sediour; 11 his force, those enrolled: forty-six thousand and five hundred. 12 And those who encamp next to him: the tribe of Symeon. And the ruler of the sons of Symeon: Salamiel son of Soursadai; 13 his force, those enrolled: fifty-nine thousand and three hundred. 14 And those who encamp next to him: the tribe of Gad. And the ruler of the sons of Gad: Elisaph son of Ragouel; 15 his force, those enrolled: forty-five thousand, six hundred fifty. 16 All those enrolled of the camp of Rouben: one hundred fifty-one thousand, one hundred forty and seven hundred with their force. 34 And the sons of Israel did everything that the Lord had instructed Moyses. So they encamped according to their unit, and so they set out, each in order according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses.

3 And these are the generations of Aaron and Moyses in the day when the Lord spoke to Moyses in Mount Sina. 2 And these are the names of the sons of Aaron: the firstborn Nadab and Abioud, Eleazar and Ithamar. 3 These are the names of the sons of Aaron, the anointed priests, whose hands they had validated to serve as priests. 4 And Nadab and Abioud died before the Lord, when they offered strange fire before the Lord in the wilderness of Sina. But they had no children, and Eleazar and Ithamar served as priests with Aaron their father.

5 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 6 Take the tribe of Leui, and you shall place them before Aaron the priest, and they shall minister to him, 7 and they shall keep his guard duties and the guard duties of the sons of Israel before the tent of witness to perform the works of the tent. 8 And they shall keep all the furnishings of the tent of witness, and the guard duties of the sons of Israel according to all the works of the tent. 9 And you shall give the Leuites to Aaron and to his sons the priests; these have been given as a gift to me from the sons of Israel. 10 And you shall appoint Aaron and his sons over the tent of witness, and they shall keep guard of their priesthood and all the things pertaining to the base-altar and within the veil, but the alien who touches them shall die.

11 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 12 And, behold, I have taken the Leuites from the midst of the sons of Israel in place of every firstborn that opens the womb among the sons of Israel. They shall be their ransom, and the Leuites shall be mine. 13 For every firstborn is mine; in the day when I struck every firstborn in the land of Egypt, I consecrated to me every firstborn in Israel from human to animal; they shall be mine. I am the Lord.

14 And the Lord spoke to Moyses in the wilderness of Sina, saying: 15 Enroll the sons of Leui according to their paternal houses, according to their divisions, according to their families; every male from a month and above, you shall enroll them. 16 And Moyses and Aaron enrolled them by the voice of the Lord, in which manner the Lord had instructed them. 17 And these were the sons of Leui, by their names: Gedson, Kaath and Merari. 18 And these are the names of the sons of Gedson according to their divisions: Lobeni and Simei. 19 And the sons of Kaath according to their divisions: Amram and Issaar, Chebron and Oziel. 20 And the sons of Merari according to their divisions: Mooli and Mousi. These are the divisions of the Leuites according to their paternal houses.

21 For Gedson, the division of Lobeni and the division of Semei; these are the divisions of Gedson. 22 Their enrollment according to the number of every male from a month and above; their enrollment is seven thousand and five hundred. 23 And these sons of Gedson shall encamp behind the tent by the sea. 24 And the ruler of the paternal house of the division of Gedson is Elisaph son of Lael. 25 And the guard duty of the sons of Gedson in the tent of witness is the tent and the screen and the covering of the door of the tent of witness and the curtains of the court and the veil for the gate of the court, which is by the tent, and the rest of all its tasks.
27 For Kaath, the Amramis division and the Isaaaris division and the Chebronis division and the Ozielis division; these were the divisions of Kaath. 28 According to number, every male from a month and above were eight thousand and six hundred, keeping guard duty over the holy things. 29 The divisions of the sons of Kaath shall encamp to the side of the tent towards the southwest. 30 And the ruler of the paternal house of the divisions of Kaath is Elisaphan son of Oziel. 31 And their guard duty is the ark and the table and the lampstand and the altars and the furnishings of the holy place with which they shall minister and the covering and all their tasks. 32 And the ruler over the rulers of the Leuites is Eleazar son of Aaron the priest, having been appointed to keep guard duties over the holy things.

33 For Merarì, the Mooli division and the Mousi division; these are the divisions of Merarì.

34 Their enrollment according to number, every male from a month old and above, is six thousand and fifty. 35 And the ruler of the paternal house of the division of Merarì is Zouriel son of Abichail; they shall encamp to the side of the tent towards the north. 36 The oversight, the guard duty of the sons of Merarì, is the capitals of the tent and its bars and its pillars and its bases and all their furniture and their works 37 and the pillars of the court all around and their bases and their pegs and their cords.

40 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: Enroll every firstborn male of the sons of Israel from a month old and above, and take their number by name. 41 But you shall take the Leuites for me—I am the Lord—in place of all the firstborn of the sons of Israel, and the flocks of the Leuites in place of all the firstborn in the flocks of the sons of Israel. 42 And Moyses enrolled, in which manner the Lord had commanded, every firstborn among the sons of Israel. 43 And all the firstborn males from a month and above, according to number by name, from a month old and above, are by their enrollment twenty-two thousand, two hundred seventy-three.

44 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 45 Take the Leuites in place of all the firstborn of the sons of Israel, and the flocks of the Leuites in place of their flocks, and the Leuites shall be mine. I am the Lord. 46 And as the ransom of the two hundred seventy-three from the firstborn of the sons of Israel, who exceed the Leuites in number, 47 you shall also take five shekels per head. You shall take according to the holy didrachma, twenty obols to the shekel. 48 And you shall give the money to Aaron and his sons—ransom of those who exceed in number among them. 49 And Moyses took the money, the ransom of those who exceeded in number, for the redemption of the Leuites; 50 from the firstborn of the sons of Israel, he took the money, one thousand three hundred sixty-five shekels, according to the holy shekel. 51 And Moyses gave the ransom of those who exceeded Aaron and his sons in number, by the voice of the Lord, in which manner the Lord had instructed Moyses.

4 And the Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron, saying: 2 Take the sum total of the sons of Kaath from amidst the sons of Leui, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses. 3 from twenty-five years and above until fifty years, everyone who enters in to minister, to perform all the tasks in the tent of witness. 4 And these are the tasks of the sons of Kaath in the tent of witness, the holy of holies.

5 And Aaron and his sons shall go in, whenever the camp sets out, and shall take down the shadowing veil and cover with it the ark of witness, and they shall put it on it a covering of blue leather and throw on it a wholly blue cloth above and insert the carrying-poles. 7 And over the presentation table they shall throw over it a wholly purple cloth, and the bowls and the censers and the ladles and the libation cups, with which he libates, and the perpetual loaves shall be on it. 8 And they shall put over it a scarf cloth and cover it with a covering of blue leather and insert the carrying-poles through it. 9 And they shall take a blue cloth and cover the lampstand, which gives light, and its lamps and its snuffers and its pouring vessels and all the vessels of oil with which they minister, 10 and they shall put it and all of its implements into a covering of blue leather and place it upon carrying-poles. 11 And over the golden altar they shall cover a blue cloth and cover it with a covering of blue leather and insert its carrying-poles. 12 And they shall take all the ministry implements with which they minister in the sanctuary and put them into a blue cloth and cover them with a covering of blue leather and put them on carrying-poles, 13 and he shall put the cover upon the altar, and they shall cover it with a wholly purple cloth. 14 And they shall put on it all the implements, with as many as they minister with them, and the firepans and the meat hooks and the saucers and the cover and all the implements of the altar, and they shall put on it a covering of blue leather and insert its carrying-poles. And they shall take purple cloth and cover the w RBasin and its base, and they shall put them into a covering of blue leather and place them on poles. 15 And Aaron and his sons shall finish covering the sanctuary and all the holy implements, when the camp sets out, and after this the sons of Kaath shall enter to carry them, but they shall not touch the holy things, lest... they die. These things in the tent of witness the sons of Kaath shall carry.

16 The overseer is Eleazar son of Aaron the priest—the oil of the light and the incense of the mixture and the daily sacrifice and the anointing oil—the oversight of the entire tent and as many things that are in it in the holy place, in all the works.

17 And the Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron, saying: 18You shall not destroy from the tribe the division of Kaath from the midst of the Leuites. 19You shall do this for them, and they will live and surely not die, when they approach the holy of holies: let Aaron and his sons come forward, and they shall appoint them, each according to his office of bearing—20and they shall by no means enter in suddenly to see the holy things and die.

21 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 22Take the sum total of the sons of Gedson and those according to their paternal houses, according to their divisions; 23from twenty-five years and above to fifty years enroll them, everyone who goes out to minister and perform his tasks in the tent of witness. 24This is the ministry of the division of Gedson, to minister and to carry, 25and it shall carry the skins of the tent, both the tent of witness and its veil and the blue veil which is upon it above and the veil of the door of the tent of witness 26and the curtains of the court, as many as were upon the tent of witness, and the remaining items and all the ministry implements, and they shall handle as many as those with which they minister. 27According to the mouth of Aaron and his sons shall be the ministry of the sons of Gedson, in all their services and in all the things borne through them, and you shall enroll them by name with respect to all the things borne by them. 28This is the ministry of the sons of Gedson in the tent of witness, and their guard duty shall be in the hand of Ithamar son of Aaron the priest.

29 As for the sons of Merari, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, enroll them; 30from twenty-five years and above to fifty years, enroll them—everyone going in to minister in the tasks of the tent of witness. 31And these are the requirements of the things borne by them according to all their tasks in the tent of witness: the capitals of the tent and its bars and its pillars and its bases 32and the pillars of the court all around and their bases and the pillars of the veil for the gate of the court and their bases and their pegs and their cords and all their implements and all their objects used in worship—enroll them by name, and all the implements of the guard duty of the things borne by them. 33This is the ministry of the division of Merari’s sons in all their tasks in the tent of witness, by the hand of Ithamar son of Aaron the priest.

34 And Moyses and Aaron and the rulers of Israel enrolled the sons of Kaath according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, 35from twenty-five years and above to fifty years—everyone going in to minister and to perform tasks in the tent of witness, 36and their enrollment, according to their divisions, was two thousand seven hundred fifty. 37This was the enrollment of the division of Kaath, everyone who was ministering in the tent of witness, just as Moyses and Aaron enrolled by the voice of the Lord by the hand of Moyses.

38 And the sons of Gedson were enrolled according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, 39from twenty-five years and above to fifty years, everyone going in to minister and perform the tasks in the tent of witness. 40And their enrollment, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, was two thousand six hundred thirty. 41This was the enrollment of the division of the sons of Gedson, everyone who was ministering in the tent of witness, whom Moyses and Aaron enrolled by the voice of the Lord by the hand of Moyses.

46 All those who were enrolled, whom Moyses and Aaron and the rulers of Israel enrolled—the Leuites according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, 47from twenty-five years and above to fifty years—everyone who was going in for the task of the works and for the tasks that were borne in the tent of witness. 48And those enrolled were eight thousand five hundred eighty. 49He enrolled them by the voice of the Lord by the hand of Moyses, man by man with regard to their tasks and with regard to the things they were bearing. And they were enrolled, in which manner the Lord had instructed Moyses.

5 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 2Order the sons of Israel, and let them send away from the camp everyone who is leprous and everyone who has a discharge and everyone who is an unclean person regarding a soulb. 3From male to female you shall send away outside the camp, and they shall not defile their camps in which I dwell among them. 4And the sons of Israel did so and sent them away outside the camp; just as the Lord spoke to Moyses, so the sons of Israel did.

5 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 6Speak to the sons of Israel, saying: Man or woman, if anyone commits one of the human sins and in disregarding disregards and that individual commits an offense, 7he shall confess the sin which he has committed, and he shall pay back the full sum for the error, and a fifth part of it shall he add to it, and he shall pay the one whom he wronged. 8 But if the person has no near relative to compensate him for the error to him, the error compensated to the Lord shall be for the priest, except for the ram of atonement through which he shall make atonement by it for him. 9 And every first fruit with respect to all the sanctified things among the sons of Israel, whatever they offer to the Lord for the priest shall be his. 10 And the sanctified things of each shall be his, and if a man gives to the priest, it shall belong to him.

11 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 12 Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: a Man by man—if his wife goes astray and disregards him, despising him, b if anyone sleeps with her in a union of seed and escapes the notice of her husband’s eyes and she conceals it—even though she is defiled—and there is no witness with her and she has not been caught and if a spirit of jealousy comes upon him, and he becomes jealous of his wife but she has defiled herself or if a spirit of jealousy comes upon him and he becomes jealous of his wife but she is not defiled, then the man shall bring his wife to the priest, and he shall offer the gift concerning her: one-tenth of an ophi of barley flour. He shall pour no oil upon it, nor shall he put frankincense upon it, for it is a sacrifice of jealousy, a sacrifice of remembrance, recalling an offense.

16 And the priest shall bring her forward and place her before the Lord. And the priest shall take pure, living water in an earthen vessel and bring the woman before the Lord and uncover the woman’s hands the sacrifice of remembrance, the sacrifice of jealousy—but in the priest’s hand shall be the water of this reproof that brings the curse. And the priest shall make her take an oath and say to the woman, “If no one has slept with you, if you have not gone astray to become defiled while under your own husband, be innocent from the waters of this reproof that brings the curse. But if you have gone astray being under your husband or if you have defiled yourself and someone besides your husband has made his bed with you,” then the priest shall make the woman take an oath by the oaths of the curse and the priest shall say to the woman, “May the Lord make you as a curse and bound by oath in the midst of your people, when the Lord makes your thigh fall to pieces and your womb swell, and this water that brings the curse shall enter your belly, to swell the belly and make your thigh fall to pieces.” And the woman shall say, “May it be; may it be!”

23 And the priest shall write these curses on a scroll and shall wipe them out into the water of reproof that brings the curse, and the curse-bringing water of reproof shall enter her. 25 And the priest shall take from the woman’s hand the sacrifice of jealousy, and he shall place the sacrifice before the Lord and bring it to the altar. 26 And from the sacrifice the priest shall take a handful as its memorial and offer it upon the altar, and afterwards shall have the woman drink the water. 27 And it shall be, if she is defiled and has escaped her husband’s notice by stealth, then the water of reproof that brings the curse shall enter her, and she shall be swelled up in her belly, and her thigh shall fall to pieces, and the woman shall become a curse among her people. 28 But if the woman was not defiled and is pure, then she shall be innocent and shall cease seed.

29 This is the law of jealousy, in case a woman who is under her husband goes astray and is defiled or in case a man on whom a spirit of jealousy comes and he becomes jealous of his wife. And he shall place his wife before the Lord, and the priest shall apply this entire law to her. And the man shall be innocent of sin, but that woman shall bear her sin.

6 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 2 Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: Man or woman, whoever especially vows a pure vow to the Lord to purify himself from wine and vinegar, he shall be purified from wine, and vinegar from wine and vinegar from sikera he shall not drink. And whatever is prepared from the grape he shall not drink, and he shall not eat fresh grapes and raisins. All the days of his vow, of all the things that come from the vine, wine from pressed grapes to grape-stone seed he shall not consume.

5 All the days of his vow of purification a razor shall not come upon his head until the days be fulfilled, as many as he vowed to the Lord; he shall be holy, letting the hair of his head grow into a mane.

6 All the days of the vow to the Lord, he shall not enter for any dead soul, for father and for mother and for brother and for sister; he shall not be defiled for them when they have died, because a vow of his god is upon him, upon his head. For all the days of his vow, he shall be holy to the Lord.

9 Now if someone dies suddenly nearby him, at once the head of his vow shall be defiled, and he shall shave his head on whatever day he be cleansed; on the seventh day he shall be shaven. And on the eighth day he shall bring two turtle-doves or two young doves to the priest at the entrance of the tent of witness. And the priest shall offer one for sin and one for a whole burnt offering and the priest shall make atonement on his behalf for the things in which he sinned concerning the soul, and he shall sanctify his head on that day on which he was consecrated to the Lord for the days of the vow, and he shall bring a year-old male lamb for error, and the previous days shall...

13 And this is the rule for the one who has taken a vow. On whatever day he fulfills the days of his vow, he shall personally bring an offering to the entrance of the tent of witness. 14 and he shall bring his gift to the Lord: one year-old male lamb without blemish for a whole burnt offering and one year-old ewe lamb without blemish for sin and one ram without blemish for deliverance and a basket of unleavened bread of fine flour, loaves mixed with oil and unleavened cakes anointed with oil and their sacrifice and their libation. 16 And the priest shall bring an offering before the Lord, and he shall do his victim for sin and his whole burnt offering. 17 And he shall make the ram an offering for deliverance to the Lord, along with the basket of unleavened bread, and the priest shall do his sacrifice and his libation. 18 And the one who made a vow shall shave the head of his vow at the entrance of the tent of witness, and he shall place the hair upon the fire, which is under the sacrifice of deliverance. 19 And the priest shall take the boiled shoulder from the ram and one unleavened loaf from the basket and one unleavened cake, and he shall place them upon the hands of the one who had made a vow, after he has his vow shaved. 20 And the priest shall offer them as an addition before the Lord; it shall be holy for the priest beside the breast of the addition and beside the shoulder of the advance dedication; after this, the one who has made a vow shall drink wine.

21 This is the rule for the one who makes a vow, whoever vows his gift to the Lord, concerning his vow, apart from what his hand might find, according to the strength of his vow, which he vows according to the law of purity.

22 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

23 Speak to Aaron and his sons, saying: Thus you shall bless the sons of Israel, saying to them—

24 (27) and they shall put my name on the sons of Israel, and I the Lord will bless them—

25 (24) May the Lord bless you and keep you;

26 (25) may the Lord make his face shine upon you and show mercy to you;

27 (26) may the Lord lift up his face upon you and give you peace.

7 And it came to pass on the day in which Moyses finished so as to set up the tent, and he anointed it and consecrated it and all its furnishings and the altar and all its utensils, and he anointed them and consecrated them. 2 And the rulers of Israel, twelve rulers of their paternal houses, offered. These were rulers of the tribes; these were the ones who presided over the overseeing. 3 And they brought their gift before the Lord: six covered wagons and twelve cattle, a wagon from two rulers and a calf from each, and they advanced before the tent. 4 And the Lord said to Moyses, saying: Take from them, and they shall be for the ministry tasks of the tent of witness, and you shall give them to the Levites, to each one according to his service. 6 And Moyses took the wagons and the cattle and gave them to the Levites.

7 Two wagons and four cattle he gave to the sons of Gedson according to their ministries, 8 and four wagons and eight cattle he gave to the sons of Merari according to their ministries, through Ithamar son of Aaron the priest. 9 And to the sons of Kaath he did not give, because they have the objects used in worship of the holy place; they shall carry them upon their shoulders.

This was the gift of Achiezer son of Amisadai.

72 On the eleventh day, as ruler of the sons of Asher, Phagaiel son of Echran. 73 His gift: one silver bowl, its weight one hundred and thirty, one silver saucer, seventy shekels according to the holy shekel, both full of fine flour mixed with oil, for a sacrifice, 74 one censer of ten gold pieces, full of incense, 75 one bull calf from the cattle, one ram, one year-old male lamb for a whole burnt offering and one male goat from the goats for sin, and for an offering of deliverance two heifers, five rams, five male goats, five year-old ewe lambs. This was the gift of Phagaiel son of Echran.

78 On the twelfth day, as ruler of the sons of Nephthali, Achire son of Ainan. 79 His gift: one silver bowl, its weight one hundred and thirty, one silver saucer, seventy shekels according to the holy shekel, both full of fine flour mixed with oil, for a sacrifice, 80 one censer of ten gold pieces, full of incense, 81 one bull calf from the cattle, one ram, one year-old male lamb for a whole burnt offering and one male goat from the goats for sin, and for an offering of deliverance two heifers, five rams, five male goats, five year-old ewe lambs. This was the gift of Achire son of Ainan.

84 This was the dedication of the altar, on the day on which he anointed it, from the rulers of the sons of Israel: twelve silver bowls, twelve silver saucers, twelve golden censers, 85 each bowl a hundred thirty shekels and each saucer seventy shekels—all the silver of the vessels two thousand and four hundred shekels by the shekel of the holy things, 86 twelve golden censers full of incense—all the gold of the censers, a hundred twenty gold pieces, 87 all the cattle for a whole burnt offering, twelve calves, twelve rams, twelve year-old male lambs, their sacrifices and their libations and twelve male goats from the goats for sin, 88 all the cattle for the offering of deliverance, heifers twenty-four, rams sixty, male goats sixty, year-old ewe lambs without blemish sixty. This was the dedication of the altar, after he filled his hands and after he anointed him.

89 When Moyses went into the tent of witness to speak with him, then he heard the voice of the Lord speaking to him from above the propitiatory, which is upon the ark of witness, between the two cherubim, and he was speaking to him.

8 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 2 Speak to Aaron, and you shall say to him: When you set up the lamps, the seven lamps shall give light from the side in front of the lamp-stand. 3And Aaron did so; from the one side facing the lampstand he lit its lamps, just as the Lord instructed Moyses. 4And this is the construction of the lampstand: solid golden, its stem and its lilies, totally solid; according to the pattern that the Lord showed Moyses, so he made the lampstand.

5 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 6Take the Leuites from amidst the sons of Israel, and you shall purify them. 7And thus you shall carry out for them their purification; you shall sprinkle them with water of purification, and a razor shall come upon all of their body, and they shall wash their clothes, and they shall be clean. 8And they shall take one calf from the cattle and its sacrifice of fine flour mixed with oil, and you shall take a year-old bull calf from the cattle for sin. 9And you shall bring the Leuites before the tent of witness, and you shall gather all the congregation of Israel’s sons, 10and you shall bring the Leuites before the Lord, and the sons of Israel shall place their hands on the Leuites. 11And Aaron shall set apart the Leuites as a restitution before the Lord from the sons of Israel, and they shall be so as to perform the works of the Lord. 12Now the Leuites shall lay their hands on the heads of the calves, and he shall do the one for sin and the one as a whole burnt offering to the Lord in order to make atonement for them. 13And you shall stand the Leuites before the Lord and before Aaron and before his sons, and you shall give them back as a restitution before the Lord.

14 And you shall separate the Leuites from amidst the sons of Israel, and they shall be mine. 15And afterwards the Leuites shall enter to perform the tasks of the tent of witness, and you shall cleanse them and give them back before the Lord, for these have been given back to me as a restitution from amidst Israel’s sons. In place of all the firstborn of the sons of Israel that open every womb, I have taken them for myself. 16And I took the Leuites in place of every firstborn among Israel’s sons, from human to animal; on the day when I struck every firstborn in the land of Egypt, I consecrated them to me, and I took the Leuites in place of every firstborn among Israel’s sons. 17And I gave back the Leuites to Israel’s sons, to perform the tasks of the sons of Israel in the tent of witness and to make atonement for the sons of Israel, and there shall be none among the sons of Israel who draws near to the holy things.

18 And Moyses and Aaron and all the congregation of Israel’s sons did to the Leuites just as the Lord commanded Moyses concerning the Leuites; thus the sons of Israel did to them. 21And the Leuites purified themselves and washed their clothes, and Aaron delivered them up as a restitution before the Lord, and Aaron made atonement for them to purify them. 22And afterwards the Leuites entered to minister in their ministry in the tent of witness before Aaron and before his sons; just as the Lord instructed Moyses concerning the Leuites, so they did to them.

9 And the Lord spoke to Moyses in the wilderness of Sina, in the second year after they went out of the land of Egypt, in the first month, saying: 2Speak, and let the sons of Israel keep the pascha according to its season. 3On the fourteenth day of the first month towards evening, you shall keep it according to appointed times; according to its law and according to its interpretation you shall keep it. 4And Moyses told the sons of Israel to keep the pascha. 5When the month began, on the fourteenth day, in the wilderness of Sina, just as the Lord instructed Moyses, so the sons of Israel did. 6And the men came near, who were unclean regarding a human soul, and they were not able to keep the pascha in that day, and they came before Moyses and Aaron in that day. 7And those men said to him, "We are unclean regarding a human soul. Surely, then, we are not to fail to offer the gift to the Lord according to its appointed time in the midst of Israel’s sons?" 8And Moyses spoke to them, "Stand here, and I shall hear what the Lord shall command concerning you."

9 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 10Speak to the sons of Israel, saying: 11Any person—whoever is unclean regarding a human soul or is on a journey far off to you or among your families shall also keep the pascha to the Lord. 11In the second month, on the fourteenth day, towards evening they shall keep it; with unleavened bread and bitter herbs they shall eat it. 12They shall leave none of it until morning, and they shall not break a bone from it; according to the law of the pascha they shall keep it. 13And a person who is pure and is not on a journey far off and fails to keep the pascha, that soul shall be totally destroyed from his people; because he did not offer his gift to the Lord according to its appointed time, that person shall receive his sin. 14Now if a guest comes to you in your land, he also shall keep the pascha to the Lord; according to the law of the pascha and according to its organization, so shall he keep it; there shall be one law for you and for the guest and for the native of the land.

15 And on the day on which the tent was set up, the cloud covered the tent, the house of witness, and in the evening upon the tent it was like the appearance of fire until morning. 16So it was all the time; the cloud covered it by day, and the appearance of fire during the night. 17And when the cloud rose up from the tent, after that also the... sons of Israel departed, and in the place where the cloud stood, there the sons of Israel encamped. 18 At the ordinance of the Lord the sons of Israel shall encamp, and at the ordinance of the Lord they shall set out; all the days in which the cloud casts a shadow over the tent, the sons of Israel shall encamp. 19 And when the cloud is drawn over the tent for rather many days, also the sons of Israel shall keep the guard duty of God, and they shall certainly not set out. 20 And it shall be, when the cloud casts a shadow over the tent for days in number, at the voice of the Lord they shall encamp, and at the ordinance of the Lord they shall set out. 21 And it shall be, when the cloud occurs from evening until morning and the cloud rises up in the morning, then they shall set out by day or by night, and when the cloud rises up, they shall set out. 22 In a day or a month—as a day prolongs while the cloud keeps casting a shadow over it, the sons of Israel shall encamp and shall certainly not set out. 23 For at the ordinance of the Lord they shall set out. They kept the guard duty of the Lord at the ordinance of the Lord by the hand of Moyses.

10 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 2 Make for yourself two silver trumpets; you shall make them beaten, and they shall be for you to summon the congregation and to remove the camps. 3 And you shall trumpet with them, and all the congregation shall be gathered together at the door of the tent of witness. 4 But if they trumpet with one, all the rulers shall come to you, chiefs of Israel. 5 And you shall trumpet a signal, and the camps encamping on the east shall set out. 6 And you shall trumpet a second signal, and the camps encamping on the southwest shall set out. And you shall trumpet a third signal, and the camps encamping towards the north shall set out. 7 And when you gather the congregation, you shall trumpet a signal at their departure. 7 And whenever you gather the congregation, you shall trumpet, but not with a signal. 8 And the sons of Aaron, the priests, shall trumpet with the trumpets, and it shall be to you a perpetual precept for your generations. 9 And if you go out to war in your land against the adversaries who oppose you, you shall also give a signal with the trumpets, and you shall be remembered before the Lord, and you shall escape to safety from your enemies. 10 And in the days of your gladness and at your feasts and at your new moons, you shall trumpet with the trumpets over the whole burnt offerings and over your sacrifices of deliverance, and it shall be for you a reminder before your God. I am the Lord your God.

11 And it happened in the second year, in the second month, on the twentieth of the month, the cloud rose up from the tent of witness. 12 And the sons of Israel set out with their equipment in the wilderness of Sina, and the cloud stood in the wilderness of Pharan. 13 And the first ones set out by the voice of the Lord, by the hand of Moyses. 14 And a camp unit of Loudas’ sons were the first to set out together with their force, and over their force was Naasson son of Aminadab, 15 and over the force of the tribe of Issachar’s sons was Nathanael son of Sogar, 16 and over the force of the tribe of Zaboulon’s sons was Eliab son of Chailon. 17 And they shall take down the tent, and the sons of Gedson and the sons of Merari shall set out, carrying the tent. 18 And a camp unit of Rouben set out together with their force, and over their force was Elisour son of Sedior, 19 and over the force of the tribe of Symeon’s sons was Salamiel son of Sourisadai, 20 and over the force of the tribe of Gad’s sons was Elisaph the son of Ragouel.

21 And the sons of Kaath shall set out, carrying the holy things, and they shall set up the tent before they arrive. 22 And a camp unit of Ephraim shall set out together with their force and over their force, Achizeer the son of Amisadai, 23 and over the force of the tribe of Aser’s sons, Phagaiel son of Echran, 27 and over the force of the tribe of Nephtali’s sons, Achire son of Ainan. 28 These are the armies of the sons of Israel, and they set out together with their force.

29 And Moyses said to Hobab son of Ragouel the Madianite, Moyses’ brother-in-law, “We are setting out for the place of which the Lord said, ‘This I will give to you.’ Come with us, and we will treat you well, for the Lord has spoken fine things concerning Israel.” 30 But he said to him, “I will not go; rather, I will go to my land and to my kindred.” 31 And he said, “Do not leave us, on account of the fact that you were with us in the wilderness, and you will be an elder among us. 32 And it shall be, if you go with us and those good things shall occur with which the Lord benefits us, we will also treat you well.”

33 And they set out from the mountain of the Lord on a journey of three days, and the ark of the covenant of the Lord went ahead before them on a three days’ journey, to seek out for them rest.

34(35) And it happened when the ark set out, then Moyses said, “Be aroused, O Lord, let your enemies be scattered; let all those who hate you flee!”

35(36) And when it came to rest he said, “Turn, O Lord, the thousands, the myriads in Israel.”

36(34) And the cloud came, overshadowing them by day, when they set out from the camp.

11 And the people were muttering wicked things before the Lord, and the Lord heard and was angered with wrath. And fire was kindled among them from the Lord, and it devoured a certain part of the camp. 2And the people cried out to Moyses, and Moyses prayed to the Lord, and the fire abated. 3And the name of that place was called Burning, because fire was kindled among them from the Lord.

4 And the rabble among them craved with desire, and after they sat down, they wept—also the sons of Israel—and said, "Who shall feed us with meat? 5We remembered the fish that we used to eat in Egypt, for nothing, and the cucumbers and the melons and the leeks and the onions and the garlic. 6But now our soul is parched; our eyes are towards nothing except the manna."

7 Now the manna was like coriander seed, and its appearance was the appearance of rock-crystal. 8And the people would go through and collect and grind it in the mill or crush it in the mortar, and they would boil it in the pot and make it into cakes, and its flavor was like the taste of a cake made with oil. 9And when the dew descended in the night, the manna would descend on the camp by night, the manna would come down on it. 10And Moyses heard them weeping in their divisions, each one at his door. And the Lord was greatly angered with wrath, and before Moyses it was evil. 11And Moyses said to the Lord, "Why have you mistreated your attendant, and why have I not found favor before you, to lay the onslaught of this people upon me? 12Was it I who carried in the womb all this people, or was it I who gave birth to them, that you are saying to me, 'Take them to your womb all this people, or was it I who gave birth to them?"

13From where do I get meat to give to all this people? 14I shall not be able to bear this people alone, because this thing is too heavy for me. 15But if this is how you are going to treat me, kill me by slaying if I have found mercy with you so that I may not see my suffering."

16 And the Lord said to Moyses, "Gather for me seventy men from the elders of Israel, whom you personally know that they are elders of the people and are their scribes, and you shall lead them to the tent of witness, and they shall stand there with you. 17And I will come down and speak with them, and they shall assist you with the onslaught of the people, and you will not bear them alone. 18And you shall say to the people: Purify yourselves for tomorrow, and you shall eat meat; for you wept before the Lord, saying, 'Who shall feed us with meat? For it was well for us in Egypt,' and the Lord will give you meat to eat, and you shall eat meat. 19You shall not eat one day, nor two, nor five days, nor ten days, nor twenty days—up to a month of days you shall eat until it comes out of your nostrils and shall become as choler to you, because you disobeyed the Lord who is among you and you wept before him, saying, 'What did we do, to come out of Egypt?' " 21And Moyses said, "The people whom I am among are six hundred thousand on foot—and you said, 'Meat I will give them, and they will eat for a month of days! 22Shall sheep and cattle really be slain for them, and will this be enough for them? Or shall all the food of the sea be gathered together for them, and will this be enough for them?" 23And the Lord said to Moyses, "Will the Lord's hand not be sufficient? Now you shall know whether my word will overtake you or not."

24 And Moyses went out and spoke to the people the words of the Lord, and he gathered seventy men from the elders of the people, and he placed them around the tent. 25And the Lord came down in a cloud and spoke to him and took away some of the spirit that was upon him and put it upon the seventy men who were elders. Now as the spirit rested upon them, they also prophesied, and they no longer added.

26 And two men were left in the camp, the name of the one Eldad and the name of the second Modad, and the spirit rested upon them. And these were among the ones who had been registered, and they did not go to the tent, and they prophesied in the camp. 27And the young man ran out and reported to Moyses and spoke, saying, "Eldad and Modad are prophesying in the camp." 28And Iesous the son of Naue, the one who stood by Moyses, the chosen one, said, "O Sir Moyses—stop them!" 29And Moyses said to him, "Are you really jealous for me? And who might grant that all the Lord's people be prophets, when the Lord grants his spirit upon them?" 30And Moyses departed into the camp, he and the elders of Israel.

31 And a wind went out from the Lord, and it brought quail over from the sea, and it cast them upon the camp, a day's journey on this side and a day's journey on the other side, all around the camp, about two cubits in height from the ground. 32And the people rose up all the day and all the night and all the next day and gathered the quail. He who gathered little gathered ten kors, and they dried them for themselves with dryings around the camp. 33The meat was still between their teeth before it expired, and the Lord became angry against the people, and the Lord struck among the people with a very great plague. 34And the name of that place was called Tombs of Craving, because there they buried the people that craved. 35From Tombs of Craving the people set out for Haseroth, and the people were in Haseroth.

12 And Mariam and Aaron spoke against Moyses on account of the Ethiopian woman whom Moyses had taken, because he had taken an Ethiopian woman. 2And they said, "The Lord has not spoken only to Moyses, has he? Did he not also speak to us?" And the Lord listened.
3 And the man Moyses was very meek, more than all the people who were upon the earth. 4 And the Lord said at once to Moyses and Mariam and Aaron, "Come out, you three, to the tent of witness." 5 And the three came out to the tent of witness. And the Lord descended in a pillar of cloud and stood at the door of the tent of witness. And Aaron and Mariam were called, and they both came out. 6 And he said to them, "Hear my words: If there is a prophet of you for the Lord, in a vision I will be known to him, and in sleep I will speak to him. 7 Not so my attendant Moyses; in my whole house he is faithful. 8 Mouth to mouth I will speak to him, in visible form and not through riddles. And he has seen the glory of the Lord. And why were you not afraid to speak against my attendant Moyses?" 9 And the anger of the Lord's wrath was against them, and he departed.

10 And the cloud withdrew from the tent, and behold, Mariam was leprous like snow, and Aaron looked upon Mariam, and look, she was leprous. 11 And Aaron said to Moyses, "I beg you, Sir, do not lay extra sin upon us, because we were ignorant in that we sinned. 12 Do not let her be like unto death, like a miscarriage coming out of a mother's womb, and it devours half her flesh." 13 And Moyses cried out to the Lord, saying, "O God, I beg you, heal her!" 14 And the Lord said to Moyses, "If there is a prophet of you for the Lord, in a vision I will be known to him, in visible form and not through riddles. And he has seen the glory of the Lord. And why were you not afraid to speak against my attendant Moyses?" 9 And the anger of the Lord's wrath was against them, and he departed.

10 And the cloud withdrew from the tent, and behold, Mariam was leprous like snow, and Aaron looked upon Mariam, and look, she was leprous. 11 And Aaron said to Moyses, "I beg you, Sir, do not lay extra sin upon us, because we were ignorant in that we sinned. 12 Do not let her be like unto death, like a miscarriage coming out of a mother's womb, and it devours half her flesh." 13 And Moyses cried out to the Lord, saying, "O God, I beg you, heal her!" 14 And the Lord said to Moyses, "If her father when spitting had spat in her face, would she not be put to shame for seven days? Let her be separated for seven days outside the camp, and afterwards she shall enter." 15 And Mariam was kept apart outside the camp for seven days, and the people did not set out until Mariam was cleansed.

2(1) And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, 2(2) "Send out for yourself men, and let them spy out the land of the Chananites, which I am giving to the sons of Israel as a possession: one man per tribe, according to their paternal divisions you shall send them off, everyone of them a chief." 3(3) And Moyses sent them out from the wilderness of Pharans by the voice of the Lord; all these men were chiefs of Israel. 4(4) And these are their names: Of the tribe of Ruben, Samou son of Zaccour; 5(5) of the tribe of Simeon, Saphat son of Houri; 6(6) of the tribe of Issachar, Igael son of Joseph; 7(7) of the tribe of Ioudas, Chaleb son of Lephonne; 8(7) of the tribe of Issachar, Igael son of Joseph; 9(8) of the tribe of Ephraim, Hause son of Naue; 10(9) of the tribe of Benjamin, Phalti son of Rapahu; 11(10) of the tribe of Zaboulon, Goudiel son of Soudi; 12(11) of the tribe of Joseph (of the sons of Manasse), Gaddi son of Souss; 13(12) of the tribe of Dan, Amiel son of Gamali; 14(13) of the tribe of Aser, Sathour son of Michael; 15(14) of the tribe of Nephthali, Nabi son of labi; 16(15) of the tribe of Gad, Goudiel son of Macchi. 17(16) These are the names of the men whom Moyses sent to spy out the land. And Moyses named Hause son of Naue, Jesous.

18(17) And Moyses sent them to spy out the land of Chanaan and said to them, "Go up by this wilderness, and you shall go up to the mountain. 19(18) And you shall see the land, what it is and the people who dwell upon it, if they are rather strong or weak, if they are few or many, 20(19) and what the land is, which they dwell on, whether it is good or bad, and what the cities are which they live in, whether they are walled or unwalled, 21(20) and what the land is, if it is rich or untended, if there are trees in it or not. And you shall persevere and take some of the fruit of the land." And the days were days of spring, forerunners of the grape.

22(21) And they went up and spied out the land from the wilderness of Sin as far as Raab, as people enter Hemath. 23(22) And they went up by the wilderness and came as far as Chebron, and Achiman and Sesi and Thelamin were there, generations of Enak, and Chebron was built seven years before Tanin of Egypt. 24(23) And they came as far as Cluster Ravine, and they spied it out, and they cut down from there a branch and one cluster of grapes upon it, and they lifted it up on carrying-poles, and some of the pomegranates and some of the figs. 25(24) That place they named Cluster Ravine, because of the cluster that the sons of Israel cut down from there.

26(25) And they turned back from there, having spied out the land, after forty days. 27(26) And they went and came to Moyses and Aaron and to all the congregation of Israel’s sons, to the wilderness of Pharan Kades, and they brought back word to them and to all the congregation, and they showed the fruit of the land. 28(27) And they explained to him and said, "We came into the land, into which you sent us, a land flowing with milk and honey—and this is its fruit. 29(28) Except that the nation that is inhabiting the land is bold, and the cities are strong, walled and very large, and we have seen the generation of Enak there. 30(29) And Amalek lives in the land that is towards the south, and the Chettite and the Heuite and the lebousite and the Amorrite are living in the hill country, and the Chananite lives by the sea and by the Jordan river."

31(30) And Chaleb silenced the people towards Moyses and said to him, "No, but when we go up we shall go up, and we shall obtain it as an inheritance, because being powerful we shall prevail against them." 32(31) But the men who went up together with him said, "We are not going up, because by no means will we be able to go up against the nation, because they are much stronger than we." 33(32) And they brought about consternation among the nation, because they are much stronger than we. 34(33) And they went up by the wilderness of Sin as far as Raab, as people enter Hemath. 35(34) And they went up by the wilderness and came as far as Chebron, and Achiman and Sesi and Thelamin were there, generations of Enak, and Chebron was built seven years before Tanin of Egypt. 36(35) And they came as far as Cluster Ravine, and they spied it out, and they cut down from there a branch and one cluster of grapes upon it, and they lifted it up on carrying-poles, and some of the pomegranates and some of the figs. 37(36) That place they named Cluster Ravine, because of the cluster that the sons of Israel cut down from there.

38(37) And they turned back from there, having spied out the land, after forty days. 39(38) And they went and came to Moyses and Aaron and to all the congregation of Israel’s sons, to the wilderness of Pharan Kades, and they brought back word to them and to all the congregation, and they showed the fruit of the land. 40(39) And they explained to him and said, "We came into the land, into which you sent us, a land flowing with milk and honey—and this is its fruit. 41(40) Except that the nation that is inhabiting the land is bold, and the cities are strong, walled and very large, and we have seen the generation of Enak there. 42(41) And Amalek lives in the land that is towards the south, and the Chettite and the Heuite and the lebousite and the Amorrite are living in the hill country, and the Chananite lives by the sea and by the Jordan river."

31(30) And Chaleb silenced the people towards Moyses and said to him, "No, but when we go up we shall go up, and we shall obtain it as an inheritance, because being powerful we shall prevail against them." 32(31) But the men who went up together with him said, "We are not going up, because by no means will we be able to go up against the nation, because they are much stronger than we." 33(32) And they brought about consternation for the land that they had spied out, to the sons of Israel, saying, "The land that we passed through to spy it out—it is a land that devours those who live upon it. All the people that we saw in it are very tall men, and we have seen the giants there, and we were before them like grasshoppers—indeed even so we were before them.”

14 And all the congregation lifted up and gave voice, the people also kept weeping that whole night. 2And all the sons of Israel were complaining against Moyses and Aaron, and all the congregation said to them, “Would that we had died in the land of Egypt! Or if we had died in this wilderness! 3And why is the Lord bringing us into this land to fall in war? Our wives and children will become plunder! Now then, it is better for us to turn back into Egypt.” 4And they said one to the other, “Let us assign a chief and turn back into Egypt.”

5 And Moyses and Aaron fell face down before all the congregation of Israel’s sons. 6But Iesous son of Naue and Chaleb son of Iephonne, of those who had spied out the land, ripped their clothes, 7and they said to all the congregation of Israel’s sons, saying, “The land, that which we spied out, is very, very good. 8If the Lord is choosing us, he will bring us into this land and give it to us: a land that is flowing with milk and honey. 9Only do not become deserters from the Lord. But as for you, do not fear the people of the land, since they are food for us; for the right time has departed from them, but the Lord is among us. Do not fear them.”

10 And all the congregation said that they would stone them with stones. And the glory of the Lord appeared in a cloud upon the tent of witness among all the sons of Israel. 11And the Lord said to Moyses, “How long is this people going to provoke me, and how long are they not going to believe me amidst all the signs that I have performed among them? 12I will strike them with death, and I will destroy them, and I will make you and your father’s house into a great nation and more numerous than this.”

13 And Moyses said to the Lord, “And Egypt will hear that you brought up this people by your might from them. 14But also, all those who dwell upon this land have heard that you are Lord among all the people—you who are seen with eyes by eyes, O Lord, and your cloud has stood over them, and you go in front of them in a pillar of cloud during the day and in a pillar of fire during the night. 15And you shall wipe out this people as one person, and the nations, as many as have heard your name, shall speak, saying, “Because the Lord was not able to bring this people into the land, which he swore to them, he strewed them in the wilderness.” 16And now let your strength be exalted, O Lord, in the manner that you spoke, saying, 17The Lord is longsuffering and very merciful and true, removing acts of lawlessness and injustice and sin.

20 And the Lord said to Moyses, “I am merciful to them according to your word. 21But I live, and my name is living; the glory of the Lord shall also fill all the earth. 22For all the men who saw my glory and the signs that I performed in Egypt and in this wilderness and tested me this tenth time and did not listen to my voice, 23surely they shall not see the land that I swore to their fathers. Instead, their children who are with me here, as many as do not know good nor evil, every inexperienced younger person—to these I will give the land, but all those who provoked me shall not see it. 24But as for my servant Chaleb, because there was another spirit in him and he followed me, I too will bring him into the land, there where he entered, and his offspring shall inherit it. 25But Amalek and the Chananite are living in the valley; tomorrow, as for you, return, and set out for the wilderness, by way of the Red Sea.”

26 And the Lord said to Moyses and Aaron, saying: 27How long—this wicked congregation? I have heard what they themselves are complaining against me, the complaint of the sons of Israel, which they have complained concerning you. 28Say to them, “I live,” says the Lord, “surely in the way you have spoken in my ears, so I will do to you. 29In this wilderness your limbs shall fall, even your entire tally, and those of you who were enumerated from twenty years and above, as many as complained against me. 30If you shall enter into the land upon which I stretched out my hand to make you encamp upon it—except for Chaleb son of Iephonne and Iesous the son of Naue. 31And as for the children who you said would be as plunder—I will lead them into the land, and they shall inherit the land, that which you turned away from. 32And your limbs shall fall in this wilderness. 33But your sons shall be feeding in the wilderness for forty years, and they shall bear your fornication until your limbs are wasted in the wilderness. 34According to the number of the days, as many as you spied out the land—forty days, a day per year—you shall bear your sins for forty years, and you shall know the wrath of my anger.” 35I the Lord have spoken; surely I will do thus to this evil congregation that has banded together against me. In this wilderness they shall be utterly consumed, and there they shall die.

36 And as for the men whom Moyses sent to spy out the land and when they arrived complained against it to the congregation in order to bring about evil words concerning the land— 37the men who were saying bad things against the land also died by a plague before the Lord. 38And Iesous son of Naue and Chaleb son of Iephonne lived on of those men who had gone to spy out the land.

39 And Moyses spoke these words to all sons of Israel, and the people mourned very much. 40 And early in the morning they went up to the top of the mountain, saying, “Behold, we here will go up to the place which the Lord has said, because we have sinned.” 41 And Moyses said, “Why are you transgressing the word of the Lord? It will not be easy going for you. 42 Do not go up, for the Lord is not with you, and you will fall before your enemies.

43 For Amalek and the Chananite are there before you, and you shall fall by dagger; because you have turned away by disobeying the Lord, the Lord will also not be among you.” 44 And they acted forcefully and went up to the top of the mountain, but the ark of the covenant of the Lord and Moyses did not move from the camp. 45 And Amalek came down and the Chananite, who was lying in ambush in that mountain, and they routed them and cut them down as far as Herma, and they turned back to the camp.

15 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

2 Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: When you come into the land of your dwelling, which I am giving you, 3 and you shall make an offering to the Lord: a whole burnt offering or a sacrifice to magnify a vow or voluntarily or to make an odor of fragrance to the Lord at your feasts, whether from the cattle or from the sheep,

5 And you shall do wine as a libation, the fourth part of a hin c, as a libation or a sacrifice to magnify a vow or voluntarily or an offering to the Lord: a whole burnt offering or as a sacrifice, you shall make so much as an offering, an odor of fragrance to the Lord. 6 And for the ram, when you do it as a whole burnt offering or upon the sacrifice; for the one lamb you shall make as much as an offering, an odor of fragrance to the Lord. 7 And for the ram, when you do it as a whole burnt offering or as a sacrifice, you shall make a sacrifice of two-tenths of fine flour, mixed in oil, the third part of a hin c.

8 But if you offer one of the cattle as a whole burnt offering or as a sacrifice to magnify a vow or for deliverance to the Lord, 9 he shall also present upon the bull calf a sacrifice of fine flour, three-tenths mixed in oil, half a hin c, 10 and wine as a libation, half a hin c, as an offering, an odor of fragrance to the Lord.

11 Thus you shall do to the one bull calf or to the one ram or to the one lamb from the cattle or from the goats; 12 according to the number of what you might offer, so you shall do to the one, according to their number. 13 Every native shall do such things so, to present offerings as an odor of fragrance to the Lord. 14 But if there is a guest among you in your land or one who is born among you in your generations and he makes an offering, an odor of fragrance to the Lord—in the manner you yourselves do, so (15) the congregation shall do for the Lord. 15 One law shall be for you and for the guests who associate themselves among you, an everlasting law for your generations; as you are, also the guest shall be before the Lord. 16 There shall be one law and one statute for you and for the guest who attaches himself to you.

17 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

18 Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: When you enter into the land, there where I am bringing you into, 19 and it shall be, when you eat from the loaves of the land, you shall remove an advance deduction as something set apart for the Lord, 20 as the first fruit of your dough, a loaf. As an advance deduction you shall set it apart; as an advance deduction from the threshing floor, so you shall remove it, 21 as the first fruit of your dough, and you shall give to the Lord an advance deduction for your generations.

22 But when you fail utterly and do not perform all these commandments that the Lord spoke to Moyses—23 just as the Lord instructed you by the hand of Moyses, from the day on which the Lord instructed you, and beyond throughout your generations—24 and it shall be, if it happens unintentionally outside the eyes of the congregation, all the congregation shall also do one unblemished calf from the cattle as a whole burnt offering, as an odor of fragrance to the Lord, and the sacrifice of this and its libation according to instruction and one male goat from the goats for sin. 25 And the priest shall make atonement for all the congregation of Israel’s sons, and it shall be forgiven them because it is unintentional. And they themselves have brought their gift as an offering to the Lord for their sin before the Lord, for their unintentional sins. 26 And it shall be forgiven with respect to all the congregation of Israel’s sons and for the guest who attaches himself to you, because for all the people it is unintentional.

27 Now if one soul sins unintentionally, he shall bring forward one year-old female goat for sin. 28 And the priest shall make atonement concerning the soul that acts unintentionally and sins unintentionally before the Lord, to make atonement for him. 29 For the local inhabitant among Israel’s sons and for the guest who associates himself among them, there shall be one law for them, whoever might have acted unintentionally. 30 And a soul that shall act with a hand of arrogance, from the natives or from the guests, this one provokes God; that soul shall be completely destroyed from his people, 31 because he despised the word of the Lord and scattered his commandments. That soul shall be wiped out with a wiping: his sin is in him.

32 And the sons of Israel were in the wilderness, and they found a man gathering sticks on the day of the sabbaths. 33 And those who found him gathering sticks brought him to Moyses and Aaron and to all the congregation of Israel’s sons. 34 And they placed him in custody, for they did not decide what they should do to him. 35 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, “Let the man by death be put to death; stone him with stones—all the congregation." 36And all the congregation brought him forth outside the camp, and all the congregation stoned him with stones outside the camp, just as the Lord instructed Moyses.

37And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

38Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall speak to them. And let them make for themselves fringes on the flaps of their garments throughout their generations, and you shall put on the fringes of the flaps a blue thread. 39And it shall be for you on the fringes, and you shall see them and remember all the commandments of the Lord, and you will do them. And you shall not turn aside after your thoughts and after your eyes, in the things after which you whored, 40so that you shall remember and do all my commandments, and you shall be holy to your God. 41I am the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, to be your god; I am the Lord your God.

16 And Kore son of Isaac son of Kaath son of Levi spoke, and Dathan and Abiron sons of Eliab and Aun son of Phaleth son of Rouben, 2and they rose up against Moyses, and two hundred fifty men of the sons of Israel, chiefs of the congregation, summoned for council and renowned men, 3stood together against Moyses and Aaron and said, "Enough with you, because the whole congregation—all are holy, and the Lord is among them. And why do you rise up against the congregation of the Lord?" 4And when Moyses heard it, he fell face down, 5and he spoke to Kore and to all his congregation, saying, "God has enrolled, and he recognized the ones who are his and who are holy, and he brought them to himself, and those whom he chose for himself he brought to himself. 6This do: Take for yourselves fire-pans, Kore and all his congregation, 7and put fire on them, and put incense on them before the Lord tomorrow. And it shall be, the man whom the Lord chooses, he shall be holy; let it be sufficient for you, sons of Levi!" 8And Moyses said to Kore, "Listen to me, sons of Levi! 9This is not a small thing for you, is it, that the God of Israel has separated you from the congregation of Israel and brought you to himself to minister in the services of the tent of the Lord and to stand by before the congregation to serve them? 10And he brought you forward, and all your brothers, the sons of Levi with you—are you also seeking to serve as priests? 11Thus are you and all your congregation that has gathered together against God. And as for Aaron—who is he that you are complaining against him?"

12 And Moyses sent to call Dathan and Abiron, sons of Eliab. And they said, "We are not coming up. 13This is not a small thing, is it, that you brought us up from a land flowing with milk and honey to kill us in the wilderness, since you rule over us as a ruler? 14Even if you had led us into a land flowing with milk and honey and had given us an allotment of land and vineyards, you would have cut out the eyes of those men. We are not coming up!"

15 And Moyses was extremely indignant and said to the Lord, "Pay no attention to their sacrifice; I have not taken what was desired from any one of them, nor did I harm any one of them." 16And Moyses said to Kore, "Sanctify your congregation, and be ready before the Lord, you and they and Aaron, tomorrow. 17And take, each one, his fire-pan, and you shall put incense upon them, and you shall bring forward, each one, his fire-pan before the Lord, two hundred and fifty fire-pans; you also and Aaron, each his fire-pan." 18And each man took his fire-pan, and they placed upon them fire, and they laid upon them incense, and they stood near the entrance of the tent of witness, Moyses and Aaron. 19And Kore banded together against them all his congregation by the door of the tent of witness, and the glory of the Lord appeared to all the congregation.

20 And the Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron, saying: 21Be separated from the midst of this congregation, and I will utterly destroy them once and for all. 22And they fell upon their face and said, "O God, God of the spirits and of all flesh, if one person sinned, is the anger of the Lord upon all the congregation?"

23 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 24Speak to the congregation, saying: Depart from around the congregation of Kore. 25And Moyses arose and went to Dathan and Abiron, and all the elders of Israel went together with him. 26And he spoke to the congregation, saying, "Be separated from the tents of these stubborn men, and do not touch anything of all that is theirs, lest you too perish in all their sin." 27And they departed from around the tent of Kore, and Dathan and Abiron came out, and they stood by the doors of their tents, and their wives and their children and their chattel. 28And Moyses said, "By this you shall know that the Lord has sent me to do all these works, because it is not of my own accord. 29If these are to die according to death of all people, if also their visitation is to be according to the visitation of all people, the Lord has not sent me. 30But if the Lord will show forth by an omen and the earth opens its mouth and swallows them down and their households and their tents and all that belongs to them and they go down alive into Hades, then you shall know that these men provoked the Lord."

31 Now as he stopped speaking all these words, the earth underneath them was split apart. 32And the earth was opened and swallowed them down, and their households and all the men who were with Kore and their cattle. 33And they went down, they and as much as was theirs, alive into Hades, and the earth covered them, and they perished from the midst of the congregation. 34And all Israel who were around them fled from the sound of them, for they were saying, "Lest the earth swallow us down!" 35And fire went out from the Lord and consumed the two hundred and fifty men who were offering the incense.
And the Lord spoke to Moyses and to Eleazar the priest the son of Aaron: Take away the bronze fire-pans from the midst of those who have been burned up, and scatter this strange fire there, for they sanctified the fire-pans of these sinners with their lives. And make them into hampered plates, a covering for the altar, because they were brought forward before the Lord and were sanctified and became a sign to the sons of Israel. And Eleazar son of Aaron the priest took the bronze fire-pans, as many as those who had been burned up brought forward, and they added them as a covering for the altar; a reminder to the sons of Israel so that not one alien should draw near who is not of the offspring of Aaron, to place incense before the Lord. And it shall not be like Kore and his insurrection, just as the Lord spoke by the hand of Moyses.

And on the next day the sons of Israel complained against Moyses and Aaron, saying, “You have killed the people of the Lord.” And it came to pass, when the congregation ganged up against Moyses and Aaron, then they rushed headlong to the tent of witness, and this—the cloud covered it and the glory of the Lord appeared. And Moyses and Aaron went in, in front of the tent of witness.

And the Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron, saying, “Depart from the midst of this congregation, and I will utterly destroy them once and for all.” And they fell upon their face. And Moyses said to Aaron, “Take the fire-pan and place it on fire from the altar, and throw incense on it, and carry it away quickly to the camp, and make atonement for them, for anger has gone out from before the Lord, and it has begun to shatter the people.” And Aaron took it, just as Moyses spoke to him, and he ran into the congregation. And already the shattering had begun among the people, and he threw the incense and made atonement for the people. And he stood between the dead and the living, and the shattering abated. And the dead in the shattering were fourteen thousand and seven hundred, apart from those who had died on account of Kore.

And Aaron returned to Moyses at the door of the tent of witness, and the shattering abated.

And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

2Speak to the sons of Israel, and take from them a rod, a rod according to the paternal houses from all their rulers, according to their paternal houses, twelve rods, and of each one inscribe his name upon his rod. And inscribe Aaron’s name upon the rod of Leui, for there is one rod; according to the tribe of their paternal house they shall give. And you shall place them in the tent of witness opposite the witness, there where I shall be made known to you. And it shall be: the person, if I choose him, his rod shall sprout forth, and I will strip away from me the complaining of the sons of Israel, which things they are themselves complaining against you. And Moyses spoke to the sons of Israel, and all their rulers gave to him a rod, a rod for one ruler, according to ruler, according to their paternal houses, twelve rods, and the rod of Aaron was among their rods. And Moyses deposited the rods before the Lord in the tent of the witness.

And it came to pass on the next day that Moyses and Aaron went into the tent of witness, and behold, the rod of Aaron for Leui’s house had sprouted, and it had produced a bud and had blossomed flowers and had sprouted almonds. And Moyses brought out all the rods from before the Lord to all of Israel’s sons, and they looked and they took, each his rod. And the Lord said to Moyses, “Deposit the rod of Aaron before the witnesses for safekeeping, as a sign to the sons of the disobedient ones, and let their complaining cease from me, and they will certainly not die.” And Moyses did—and Aaron—just as the Lord instructed Moyses, so they did.

And the sons of Israel spoke to Moyses, saying, “Behold, we have been completely destroyed; we are lost; we are totally ruined. Everyone who touches the tent of the Lord dies—are we to die totally?”

And the Lord spoke to Aaron, saying: You and your sons and your paternal house shall bear the sins of the holy things, and you and your sons shall bear the sins of your priesthood. And bring to yourself your brothers, Leui’s tribe, a division of your father, and let them be added to you, and let them minister to you, also you and your sons with you before the tent of witness. And they shall keep your guard duties and the guard duties of the tent, but they shall not approach the holy furnishings and the altar, and both they and you shall not die. And they shall be added to you, and they shall keep the guard duties of the tent of witness, according to all the ministries of the tent, and no alien shall approach you. And you shall keep the guard duties of the holy things and the guard duties of the altar, and there shall not be wrath among the sons of Israel. And as for me, I have taken your brothers the Leuites from the midst of Israel’s sons, as a gift given to the Lord, to minister in the ministries of the tent of witness. And you and your sons with you shall maintain your priestly office according to the whole manner of the altar and that which is within the veil. And you shall minister in the ministry as a gift of your priesthood, and the alien who comes near shall die.

And the Lord spoke to Aaron: And I, behold, I have given to you the safekeeping of the first fruits of all the things consecrated to me by the sons of Israel; to you I have given them as an honor and to your sons with you as a perpetual precept. And let this be for you, from the holy things that are consecrated, the offerings, from all their gifts and from all their sacrifices and from every error of theirs and from all their sins, as many as they give back to me from all the holy things—they shall be for you and for your sons. 10 In the holy of holies you shall eat them; every male shall eat them, you and your sons; they shall be holy to you. 11 And this shall be for you a first fruit of their gifts, from all the additions of the sons of Israel; to you I have given them and to your sons and to your daughters with you, as a perpetual precept. Every clean person in your house shall eat them. 12 Every first fruit of oil and every first fruit of wine and of grain, their first fruit, as much as they may give to the Lord, to you I have given them. 13 All the first products, as many as are in their land, as many as they may bring to the Lord, shall be yours; everyone who is clean in your house shall eat them. 14 Everything anathematized among Israel’s sons shall be yours. 15 And everything that opens the womb from all flesh, which they offer to the Lord, from human to animal, shall be yours, but the firstborn of people shall be redeemed with a ransom, and the firstborn of the unclean animals you shall redeem. 16 And its redemption is from a month old; its evaluation is five shekels, according to the holy shekel; twenty obols there are. 17 But firstborn of calves and firstborn of sheep and firstborn of goats you shall not redeem; they are holy. And you shall pour out their blood against the altar, and the fat you shall offer up as an offering for an odor of fragrance to the Lord, but the meat shall be for you, just as also the breast of the addition and just as the right shoulder shall be for you. 19 Every advance deduction of the holy things, as many as the sons of Israel may deduct for the Lord, I have given to you and to your sons and to your daughters with you, as a perpetual precept; it is a covenant of perpetual salt before the Lord, for your daughters with you, as a perpetual precept; it shall be for you and for your offspring after you. 20 And the Lord spoke to Aaron: You shall have no inheritance in their land, and there shall not be a portion for you among them, for I am your portion and your inheritance in the midst of the sons of Israel. 21 And to the sons of Levi, behold, I have given every tithe in Israel as an allotment for their ministries, as much as they minister in the ministry in the tent of witness. 22 And the sons of Israel shall no longer go up into the tent of witness—to incur deadly sin. 23 And the Leuite himself shall minister in the ministry of the tent of witness, and they shall bear their sins as a perpetual precept for their generations, and in the midst of Israel’s sons they shall not inherit an inheritance. 24 Because I have given the tithes of the sons of Israel, which they set apart as an advance deduction, to the Leuites as an allotment. Therefore I have said to them: In the midst of Israel’s sons they shall not inherit an allotment.

19 And the Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron, saying: 2 This is the requirement of the law, inasmuch as the Lord instructed, saying: Speak to the sons of Israel, and let them take to you an unblemished red heifer, which does not have a blemish on it and which no yoke was put upon. 3 And you shall give it to Eleazar the priest, and they shall lead it outside the camp to a clean place, and they shall slaughter it before him. 4 And Eleazar shall take cedar wood and hyssop and scarlet, and the fat you shall offer up as an offering for an odor of fragrance to the Lord, and the skin and its flesh and its blood, together with its dung, shall be burned up. 6 And the priest shall take cedar wood and hyssop and scarlet, and they shall cast them into the midst of the burning of the heifer. 7 And the priest shall wash his clothes and bathe his body with water, and afterwards he shall enter into the camp, and the priest shall be unclean until evening. 8 And the one who burns it up shall wash his clothes and bathe his body, and he shall be unclean until evening. 9 And a clean person shall collect the ashes of the heifer and deposit them outside the camp into a clean place, and they shall be for the congregation of Israel’s sons for safekeeping, water for sprinkling. It is a purification. 10 And the one who gathers the ashes of the heifer shall wash his clothes and shall be unclean until evening. And it shall be a perpetual precept for the sons of Israel and for the guests who associate themselves. 11 The one who touches the dead of any human soul shall be unclean for seven days. 12 He shall be purified on the third day and on the seventh day, and he shall be clean, but if he is not purified on the third day and on the seventh day, he shall not be clean. 13 Everyone who touches the dead from a human soul—if he died and was not purified—has defiled the tent of the Lord. That soul shall be wiped out from Israel; because water for sprinkling was not sprinkled upon him, he is unclean; his uncleanness is still in him.

14 And this is the law: a person, if he dies in a house, everyone who enters into the house and as many things as are in the house shall be unclean for seven days. 15 And every open vessel, as many as do not have a band tied on it, are unclean. 16 And everyone who, on the surface of the plain, might touch a slain person or a corpse or a human bone or a grave, for seven days he shall be unclean. 17 And they shall take for the unclean some of the burnt ashes of purification, and they shall pour out upon them living water into a vessel. 18 And a clean man shall take hyssop and dip it into the water and sprinkle it upon the house and upon the furnishings and upon the souls, as many as are there, and upon the one who touched the human bone or the slain person or the dead person or the grave. 19 And the clean one shall sprinkle upon the unclean one on the third day and on the seventh day, and he shall be purified on the seventh day. And he shall wash his clothes and bathe himself until evening. He shall wash his clothes, and the one who touches the water for sprinkling shall be unclean, and the soul who touches it shall be unclean until evening. 21 And it shall be for you a perpetual precept, and the one who sprinkles the water for sprinkling shall wash his clothes, and the one who touches the water for the sprinkling shall be unclean until evening. 22 And everything the unclean one touches shall be unclean, and the soul who touches it shall be unclean until evening.

20 And the sons of Israel, the whole congregation, came into the wilderness of Sin in the first month, and the people stayed in Kades, and Mariam died there and was buried there. 2 And there was no water for the congregation, and they were gathered together against Moyses and Aaron. 3 And the people were reviling Moyses, saying, “If only we had died in the destruction of our brothers before the Lord! 4 And why did you bring up the congregation of the Lord into this wilderness, to kill us and our animals? 5 And why is it that you brought us up out of Egypt, to come into this evil place? A place it is where nothing is sown, neither figs nor vines nor pomegranates, nor is there water to drink.” 6 And Moyses went, and Aaron, from before the congregation to the door of the tent of witness, and they fell face down, and the glory of the Lord appeared to them. 7 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 8 “Take the rod, and hold an assembly of the congregation, you and your brother Aaron, and speak to the rock before them, and it shall give forth its waters. And you shall bring water out from the rock for them, and you shall provide drink for the congregation and their animals. 9 And Moyses took the rod that was before the Lord, just as the Lord instructed. 10 And Moyses and Aaron held an assembly of the congregation before the rock, and he said to them, “Listen to me, you disobedient people; we shall not bring forth water from this rock for you, shall we?” 11 And Moyses lifted up his hand and struck the rock twice with the rod, and much water came out, and the congregation drank, and their animals. 12 And the Lord said to Moyses and Aaron, “Because you did not believe, to sanctify me before Israel’s sons, therefore, you yourselves shall not lead this congregation into the land that I have given to them.” 13 This is a water of dispute, because the sons of Israel reviled before the Lord, and he was sanctified in them.

14 And Moyses sent messengers from Kades to the king of Edom, saying, “This is what your brother Israel says: You understand about all the trouble that has found us, 15 and our fathers went down into Egypt, and we lived as sojourners in Egypt for rather many days, and the Egyptians mistreated us and our fathers. 16 And we cried out to the Lord, and the Lord listened to our voice, and having sent an angel he led us out of Egypt, and now we are in Kades, a town on the edge of your borders. 17 We shall pass through your land; we shall not traverse fields or vineyards, nor shall we drink water from your cistern. We will travel by the Royal Road; we will not turn aside to the right nor to the left until we have passed through your borders.” 18 And Edom said to him, “You shall not traverse me, and if otherwise, I will come out in war to meet you.” 19 And the sons of Israel were saying to him, “We will pass along the mountain, but if we drink of your water, both I and the animals, I will pay you a price. But the matter is nothing; we will pass along the mountain.” 20 But he said, “You shall not traverse me.” And Edom went out to meet him with a heavily armed crowd and with a strong hand. 21 And Edom did not want to grant Israel to go through his borders, and Israel turned away from him.

22 And they departed from Kades, and the sons of Israel, all the congregation, arrived at Hor the mountain. 23 And the Lord said to Moyses and Aaron in Hor the mountain, on the borders of the land of Edom, saying, 24 “Let Aaron be added to his people. For you shall not enter into the land that I have given to the sons of Israel, because you provoked me at the water of reviling. 25 Take Aaron and Eleazar his son, and make them go up to Hor the mountain before all the congregation. 26 And strip Aaron of his cloak, and put it on Eleazar his son, and when Aaron has been added to his people, and when Aaron has been added to his people, let him die there.” 27 And Moyses did just as the Lord instructed, and he brought them up to Hor the mountain before all the congregation. 28 And he stripped Aaron of his clothes and put them on Eleazar his son. And Aaron died on the top of the mountain, and Moyses and Eleazar came down from the mountain. 29 And all the congregation saw that Aaron had departed, and they wept for Aaron for thirty days, all the house of Israel.

21 And Chananis, king of Arad, who lived by the wilderness, heard, for Israel came by way of Atharim, and he made war against Israel and carried off a body of captives of them. 2 And Israel vowed a vow to the Lord and said, “If you deliver to me this people as subject, I will anathematize it and its towns to destruction.” 3 And the Lord listened to the voice of Israel and handed over Chananis as subject to 4 him, and he anathematized him and his cities. And they called the name of that place Anathaema.

4 And they set out from Hor the mountain by way to the Red Sea, and they went around the land of Edom. And the people became faint-hearted on the way. 5 And the people railed at God and against Moyses, saying, “Why have you brought us up out of Egypt to kill us in the wilderness? For there is no bread and no water, and our soul has become weary by this empty food.” 6 And the Lord sent bread and no water, and our soul has become weary by this empty food.

7 And the people came to Moyses and said, “We have sinned, for we have railed against the Lord and against you; so pray to the Lord, and let him take away the snake from us.” And Moyses prayed to the Lord for the people. 8 And the Lord said to Moyses, “Make for yourself a snake, and set it on a sign. And it shall be that if a snake bites a person, everyone who is bitten when he looks at it shall live.” 9 And Moyses made a snake of bronze and put it upon a sign, and it came to pass that when a snake bit a person and he looked at the bronze snake, then he lived.

10 And the sons of Israel set out and camped in Oboth. 11 And they departed from Oboth and camped in Achel Gaib, on the farther side in the wilderness, which is opposite Moab toward sunrise. 12 From there they set out and camped in the ravine of Zared. 13 And from there they set out and camped on the farther side of Arnon in the wilderness that extends from the borders of the Amorrites, for Arnon is the border of Moab, between Moab and between the Amorrite. 14 For this reason it is said in a book:

“A war of the Lord has set on fire Zoob and the wadis of Arnon, and he has appointed the wadis to settle Er, and it lies near to the borders of Moab.”

15 And from there to the well. This is the well of which the Lord said to Moyses, “Gather the people together, and I will give them water to drink.” 16 Then Israel sang this song over the well:

“Take the lead for it!
O Well—rulers dug it;
kings of nations hewed it out in their kingdom, when they were in control of them.”

And from the well to Manthanain 19 and from Manthanain to Naaliel and from Naaliel to Bamoth 20 and from Baemoth to a valley, which is in the plain of Moab, from the top of ‘the Hewnc—that which looks down towards the wilderness.

21 And Moyses sent ambassadors to Seon king of the Amorrites with peaceful words, saying, 22 “We shall pass through your land; we will travel by the road; we shall not divert into field or vineyard, nor shall we drink water from your well. We will travel by the Royal Road until we have passed through your borders.” 23 And Seon did not grant Israel to pass through his borders. And Seon gathered together all his people and went out to array his army for battle against Israel into the wilderness, and he came to Iasad 24 and arrayed his army against Israel. 24 And Israel struck him with a slaughter of dagger and won complete control of his land, from Arnon to Iabok, as far as Amman’s sons, for Iazer is the borders of Amman’s sons. 25 And Israel took all these cities, and Israel settled in all the cities of the Amorrites, in Hesebon and in all those contiguous to it. 26 For Hesebon is a city of Seon, the king of the Amorrites, and he waged war previously against the king of Moab, and they took all his land from Aroer as far as Arnon. 27 Therefore, those who speak riddles will say, “Come to Hesebon so that Seon’s city may be built and prepared.

28 For a fire came out from Hesebon, a flame from Seon’s city, and it devoured as far as Moab and swallowed up the steles of Arnon.

29 Woe to you, O Moab!
You were ruined, O people of Chamos!
Their sons were given over to escape, and their daughters are captives to the king of the Amorrites, to Seon.

30 And their offspring shall perish—Hesebon as far as Daibon, and the women yet further ignited a fire against Moab.”

31 And Israel settled in all the cities of the Amorrites. 32 And Moyses sent to spy out Iazer, and they captured it and its villages, and they cast out the Amorrite who was there.

33 And they turned about and went up the road to Basan. And Og, king of Basan, came out for an engagement with them, and all his people, for war to Edrain. 34 And the Lord said to Moyses, “Do not be afraid of him, for into your hands I have delivered him and all his people and all his land. And you shall do to him as you did to Seon, king of the Amorrites, who dwelt in Hesebon.” 35 And he struck him and his sons and all his people until he left none of his as live captives, and they inherited their land.

22 And the sons of Israel set out and encamped on the west of Moab by the Jordan opposite Iericho. 2 And when Balak son of Sephhor saw all that Israel had done to the Amorrite, 3 also Moab feared the people very much, because they were many, and Moab was vexed because of the presence of Israel’s sons. 4 And Moab said to the council of elders of Madiam, “Now this gathering will lick up all those who are around us, as the bull calf might lick up the greyness of the plain.” And Balak son of Sephor was king of Moab at that time. 5And he sent ambassadors to Balaam son of Beor of Pathourea, which is on the river of the land of his people’s sons, to call him, saying, “Behold, a people has come out of Egypt, and behold, it has covered the sight of the earth, and it is lying in wait next to me. 6And now come, curse me for this people, since it is stronger than we are, if we may be able to strike some of them, and I will cast them out from the land. For I know that whomever you bless are blessed, and whomever you curse are cursed.”

7 And the council of elders of Moab went, and the council of elders of Midian, and the instruments of divination were in their hands, and they came to Balaam and said to him the words of Balak. 8And he said to them, “Lodge here tonight, and I will answer you matters the Lord may speak to me.” And the rulers of Moab stayed with Balaam. 9And God came to Balaam and said to him, “What are these people with you?” 10And Balaam said to God, “Balak son of Sepphor, king of Moab, sent them to me, saying, ‘Behold, a people has come out of Egypt, and behold, it has covered the sight of the earth, and it is lying in wait next to me. And now come, curse it for me, if indeed I shall be able to strike it, and I will cast it out from the land.’” 11And God said to Balaam, “You shall not go with them, nor shall you curse the people, for it is blessed.” 12And Balaam rose up in the morning and said to the rulers of Balak, “Run off to your master; God does not permit me to go with you.” 13And the rulers of Moab arose and went to Balak and said, “Balaam does not want to go with us.”

14 And Balak added again to send rulers, more numerous and more distinguished than these. 15And they came to Balaam and said to him, “This is what Balak son of Sepphor says, ‘I beg you, do not hesitate to come to me. 16For I will honor you honorably, and whatever things you say I will do for you. And come, curse me this people.’” 17And Balaam answered and said to the rulers of Balak, “If Balak gives me his house full of silver and gold, I shall not be able to transgress the word of the Lord, whether small or great in number.” 18And Balak said to Balaam, “If Balak gives me his house full of silver and gold, I shall not hesitate to come to you. Really, shall I not be able to speak to you, if only God will show me how?” 19And Balaam said to Balak, “Build for me here seven altars, and prepare for me here seven calves and seven rams.” 20And Balak did in the manner Balaam told him, and Balak and Balaam sacrificed sheep and calves and sent them to Balaam, and Balaam and to the rulers who were with him.

21 And it became morning, and Balak took along the angel of God stood in the furrows of the vineyards, a fence here and a fence there. 22And when the donkey saw the angel of God, it pressed itself against the wall and squeezed Balaam’s foot, and he added to whip it again. 23And the angel of God proceeded and went on and stood still in a narrow place in which it was not possible to turn right or left. 24And when the donkey saw the angel of God, it settled down under Balaam, and Balaam was angered and kept beating the donkey with the rod. 25And God opened the mouth of the donkey, and it said to Balaam, “What have I done to you that you have struck me this third time?” 26And Balaam said to the donkey, “Because you have mocked me! And if I had a dagger in my hand, I would already have stabbed you!” 27And the donkey said to Balaam, “Am I not your donkey on which you would ride from your youth to this very day? Disregarding with disregard—I have not done so to you, have I?” And he said, “No!”

28 Now God uncovered the eyes of Balaam, and he saw the angel of God standing opposed in the road and the dagger drawn in his hand, and he bowed down and did obeisance to his face. 29And the angel of God said to him, “Why have you struck your donkey this third time? And behold, I came out to oppose you, because your way was not pretty before me. 30And when the donkey saw me, it turned away from me this third time. And if it had not turned away, now surely I would have killed you but kept it alive.” 31And Balaam said to the angel of the Lord, “I have sinned, for I did not understand that you stood opposed to me on the road for a meeting. And now, if it is not pleasing to you, I will turn back.” 32And the angel of God said to Balaam, “Go with the men, but the word that I say to you, this you shall take heed to speak.” And Balaam went with the rulers of Balak.

33 And when Balak heard that Balaam had come, he went out to meet him, to a city of Moab, which is on the borders of Arnon, which is on the edge of the borders. 34And Balak said to Balaam, “Did I not send to you to call you? Why did you not come to me? Really, shall I not be able to honor you?” 35And Balaam said to Balak, “Behold, I have come to you. Shall I now be able to speak anything? The word that God puts into my mouth, this I shall speak.” 36And Balaam went with Balak, and they came to cities of quarters. 37And Balak sacrificed sheep and calves and sent them to Balaam and to the rulers who were with him.

41 And it became morning, and Balak took along Balaam and brought him up to the stele of Baal, and he showed him from there a part of the people.

23 And Balaam said to Balak, “Build for me here seven altars, and prepare for me here seven calves and seven rams.” 24And Balak did in the manner Balaam told him, and Balak and Balaam offered up a calf and a ram on the altar. 25And Balaam said to Balak, “Stand beside your sacrifice, but as for me I will go, if God will appear.
to me in a meeting. And whatever word he shows me I will report to you." And Balak stood beside his sacrifice, and Balaam went to inquire of God, and he went straight ahead.

4 And God appeared to Balaam, and Balaam said to him, "I prepared the seven altars\(^a\), and I brought up a calf and a ram on the altar.\(^b\)" 5 And God put a word into Balaam's mouth and said, "When you return to Balak, thus you shall speak." 6 And he returned to him, and the latter stood over his whole burnt offerings, and all the rulers of Moab with him. 7 And a divine spirit was upon him.\(^7\) And he took up his parable and said:

"Out of Mesopotamia Balak sent for me, Moab's king from mountains on the east, saying:

'Come, curse Jakob for me, and come, call down curses upon Israel for me!'"

8 How shall I curse whom the Lord does not curse? Or how shall I call down curses on whom God does not call down curses?

9 For from a top of mountains I shall see him, and from hills I shall observe him. Behold, a people shall dwell alone and shall not be reckoned among nations!

10 Who has accurately counted the offspring of Jakob, and who shall number Israel's divisions? May my soul die among souls of righteous ones, and may my offspring be as their offspring!"

11 And Balak said to Balaam, "What have you done to me? For cursing my enemies have I called you—and behold, you have blessed them with a blessing." 12 And Balaam answered and said to Balak, "Did I not speak to you, saying 'The word that God speaks, this I shall do'?

13 And Balak said to him, "Come yet with me to another place, from there where you shall not see it—or rather, some part of it you shall see, but all you shall not see. And curse it for me from there." 14 And he took him to a look-out place of a field, on the top of Hewn. And he built there seven altars\(^a\) and brought up a calf and a ram on the altar. 15 And Balaam said to Balak, "Stand beside your sacrifice, but I will go to inquire of God." 16 And God met with Balaam, and he put a word into his mouth and said, "Turn back to Balak, and this is what you shall speak." 17 And he turned back to him, and the latter stood beside his whole burnt offering, and all the rulers of Moab with him. And Balak said to him, "What did the Lord speak?"

18 And he took up his parable and said, "Rise up, Balak, and hear; give ear as a witness, O son of Sepphor: 19 God is not to be put upon like man, nor is he to be threatened like a son of man. When he himself has said, shall he not do? Shall he speak and not make good? Behold, I have been taken hold of to bless; I will bless, and I will not turn away. 20 There shall be no trouble in Jakob, nor shall hardship be seen in Israel. The Lord his God is with him; the glories of rulers are in him. 22 God was the one who brought them out of Egypt; like a unicorn's glory he was to him. 23 For there is no omen in Jakob nor divination in Israel; opportunely it shall be told to Jakob and to Israel what God shall accomplish. Behold, a people shall rise up like a whelp and shall bear itself proudly like a lion! It will not lie down until it eats prey and will drink blood of mortally wounded."

24 And Balak said to Balaam, "You shall neither curse them with curses for me, nor, when blessing, shall you bless them." 26 And Balaam answered and said to Balak, "Did I not speak to you, saying 'The word that God speaks, this I shall do?'"

27 And Balak said to Balaam, "Come, let me take you to another place, if it shall please God, and curse it for me from there." 28 And Balak took Balaam to the top of Phogor, which extends into the wilderness. 29 And Balaam said to Balak, "Build for me here seven altars, and prepare for me here seven calves and seven rams." 30 And Balak did just as Balaam told him, and he offered a calf and a ram on the altar.\(^a\)

24 And when Balaam saw that it was good before the Lord to bless Israel, he did not go, according to his custom, to meet the omens but turned his face toward the wilderness. 2 And when Balaam raised his eyes, he looked down upon Israel encamped tribe by tribe. And a divine spirit came upon him, and he took up his parable and said:

"Says Balaam son of Beor; says the man who truly sees.

4 Says one who hears divine oracles, who saw a divine vision, in sleep when his eyes had been uncovered:

5 How beautiful are your dwellings, O Jakob, your tents, O Israel!

6 Like wooded valleys giving shade and like orchards by rivers and like tents that the Lord pitched, like cedar trees beside waters.

7 A person will come forth from his offspring, and he shall rule over many nations, and reign of him shall be exalted beyond Gog, and his reign shall be increased.

8 A god guided him out of Egypt;\(^a\)

\(^a\) Gk = bômos
\(^b\) I.e. the people
\(^7\) Possibly a rock formation of a hewn appearance, cf. Num 21.19 like a unicorn’s glory he was to him. He shall devour his enemies’ nations and de-marrow their stoutness and shall shoot down an enemy with his missiles.

9 He lay down and rested like a lion and like a whelp. Who will raise him up? Blessed are those who bless you, and cursed are those who curse you.”

10 And Balak became infuriated with Balaam, and he clapped his hands together. And Balak said to Balaam, “I have summoned you to curse my enemy, and behold, in blessing you have blessed him this third time. 11Now then be off to your enemy, and behold, in blessing you have blessed to Balaam, “I have summoned you to curse my place! I said, ‘I will honor you,’ but now the Lord has deprived you of glory.” 12And Balaam said to Balak, “No, even to your messengers whom you sent to me I spoke, saying, 13’If Balak gives me his sacrifices and did obeisance to their idols. 3And Israel stayed in Sattim, and the people were profaned by whoring after the daughters of Moab. 2And they invited them to the sacrifices of their idols, and the people ate of their sacrifices and did obedience to their idols. 3And Israel was initiated to Beel-Phegor, and the Lord was angry with wrath against Israel. 4And the Lord said to Moyses, “Take the chiefs of the people, and make an example of them to the Lord before the sun, and the anger of the Lord’s wrath shall be turned away from Israel.” 5And Moyses said to the tribes of Israel, ”Each of you kill his family-member who has been initiated to Beel-Phegor.”

6 And behold, a man of the sons of Israel came and brought his brother to the Madianite woman before Moyses and before all the congregation of Israel’s sons, but they were weeping at the door of the tent of witness. 7And when Phinees son of Eleazar son of Aaron the priest saw it, he arose from the midst of the congregation. And he took a barbed lance in his hand, and he went in after the Israelite man into the alcove and pierced both of them, both the Israelite man and the woman through her womb. And the blow stopped from Israel’s sons. 9And those that died in the blow were twenty-four thousand.

10 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, “Phinees son of Eleazar son of Aaron the priest has put a stop to my wrath from Israel’s sons when I was jealous with jealousy among them, and I did not utterly destroy the sons of Israel in my jealousy. 12Thus I said, ‘Behold, I am giving him a covenant of peace. 13And there shall be for him and for his offspring after him an everlasting covenant of priesthood, because he was zealous for his God and made atonement for the sons of Israel.”

14 Now the name of the slain Israelite man who was slain together with the Madianite woman was Zambri son of Salo, ruler of a paternal house of those of Symeon. 15And the name of the Madianite woman who was slain was Chasbi daughter of a ruler of a paternal house of those of Symeon. 16And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, “Speak to the sons of Israel, saying, Be at enmity with the Madianites, and strike them. 18For they are at enmity with you in deceitfulness, as much as they deceived you on account of Phogor and on account of Chasbi daughter of a ruler of Madian, their sister, who was slain on the day of the blow on account of Phogor.”

24 And one shall go forth from the hand of Kitieans, and they shall harm Assour, and they shall harm Ebreans, and they too shall perish together.”

25 And Balaam got up and went away as he returned to his place; Balak too went home. And Israel stayed in Sattim, and the people were profaned by whoring after the daughters of Moab. 2And they invited them to the sacrifices of their idols, and the people ate of their sacrifices and did obedience to their idols. 3And Israel was initiated to Beel-Phegor, and the Lord was angry with wrath against Israel.

26 And it came to pass after the blow that the Lord spoke to Moyses and to Eleazar the... priest, saying, 2 "Take the sum total of the whole congregation of the Israelites, from twenty years and above, according to their paternal houses—everyone who goes out to do battle in Israel." 3 And Moyses and Eleazar the priest spoke with them in Araboth of Moab near the Jordan opposite Jericho, saying, 4 "From twenty years old and above," in the manner that the Lord instructed Moyses.

And the sons of Israel who came out of Egypt were:

5 Rouben, firstborn of Israel. Now Rouben's sons: Henoch and a division of Henoch; to Phallou, a division of Phallou; 6 to Hasron, a division of Hasroni; to Charmi, a division of Charmi. 7 These are divisions of Rouben and their enrollment was forty-three thousand and seven hundred and thirty. 8 And sons of Phallou: Eliab. 9 And sons of Eliab: Namouel and Dathan and Abiron. These were designated ones of the congregation; these were those who banded together against Moyses and Aaron in the gathering of Kore, in the insurrection against the Lord. 10 And the earth opened its mouth and swallowed up them and Kore in the death of his gathering, when the fire devoured the two hundred and fifty, and they became for a sign. 11 But the sons of Kore did not die.

32(28) Joseph's sons according to their divisions: Manasse, the Aseri division; to Machir, the Machiri division, and Machir was the father of Galaad; to Galaad, the Galaadi division. 34(30) And these are Galaad's sons: to Achier, the Achiieri division; to Chelek, the Cheleki division; 35(31) to Esriel, the Esrieli division; to Sychem, the Sychemi division; 36(32) to Symaer, the Symaeri division, and to Hophere, the Hopheri division. 37(33) And to Salpaad son of Hophere there were no sons to him but daughters, and these are the names of the daughters of Salpaad: Maala and Noua and Hegla and Melcha and Thersa. 38(34) These are divisions of Manasse from their enrollment: fifty-two thousand and seven hundred.

39(35) And these are Ephraim's sons: to Soutala, the Soutalai division; to Tanach, the Tanachi division. 40(36) These are the sons of Soutala: to Eden, the Edeni division. 41(37) These are divisions of Ephraim from their enrollment: thirty-two thousand and five hundred. These are divisions of Joseph's sons according to their divisions.

42(38) Benjamin's sons according to their divisions: to Bale, the Balei division; to Asyber, the Asyberi division; to Aschir, the Aschiri division; 43(39) to Sophan, the Sophani division. 44(40) And the sons of Bale were Adar and Noeman: 45(41) These are Benjamin's sons according to their divisions from their enrollment: forty-five thousand and six hundred.

46(42) And Dan's sons according to their divisions: to Sami, the Sami division. These are divisions of Dan according to their divisions. 47(43) All the divisions of Sami according to their enrollment: sixty-four thousand and four hundred.

48 The sons of Nephtali according to their divisions: to Asiel, the Aselfi division; to Gauni, the Gaunii division; 49(44) to Ieser, the Ieseri division; to Sellem, the Sellemi division. 50(45) These are divisions of Nephtali from their enrollment: forty-five thousand and four hundred.

51 This is the enrollment of Israel's sons: six hundred and one thousand and seven hundred and thirty.

52 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 53 To these the land shall be apportioned in order to inherit, based on number of names. 54 To more you shall increase the inheritance, and to less you shall decrease their inheritance; to each one, as they were enrolled, their inheritance shall be given. 55 The land shall be apportioned by lots. By the names, according to their paternal tribes, they shall inherit. 56 Based on the lot, you shall apportion their inheritance by between many and few.

57 And Levi's sons according to their divisions: to Gedson, the Gedsoni division; to Kaath, the Kaathi division; to Merar, the Merari division. 58 These are divisions of Levi's sons: the Lobeni division, the Chebron division, the Kore division and the Mousi division. And Kaath fathered Amram. 59 And the name of the wife of Amram was Iochabed daughter of Leui, who bore these to Leui in Egypt, and she bore to Amram: Aaron and Moses and Mariam their sister. 60 And to Aaron were born both Nadab and Abioud and Eleazar and Ithamar. 61 And Nadab and Abioud died when they offered strange fire before the Lord in the wilderness of Sinai. 62 And there were from their enrollment twenty-three thousand, every male from a month old and above; for they were not enrolled in the midst of Israel’s sons, because no allotment is given to them in the midst of Israel’s sons.

63 And this is the enrollment of Moses and Eleazar the priest, who enrolled the sons of Israel in Araboth of Moab near the Jordan opposite Jericho.

64 And among these there was not a person of those enrolled by Moses and Aaron whom—the sons of Israel—they enrolled in the wilderness of Sinai. 65 For the Lord said to them, “They shall die by death in the wilderness.” And there was not left even one of them, except for Chaleb son of Iephonne and Iesous son of Naue.

27 And when the daughters of Salpaad son of Hopher son of Galaad son of Machir of the division of Manasse of the sons of Joseph came forward—and these were their names: Maala and Noua and Hegla and Melcha and Thersa—2and when they stood before Moses and before Eleazar the priest and before the rulers and before all the congregation, at the door of the tent of witness, they said, “Our father died in the wilderness, and he was not in the midst of the gathering that conspired against the Lord in the gathering of Kore, for he died for his sin, and he had no sons. 4 Let the name of our father not be wiped out from the midst of his division because he had no son. Give to us a possession in the midst of our father’s brothers.”

5 And Moses brought their case before the Lord. 6 And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: 7 Salpaad’s daughters have spoken correctly. You shall give to them as a gift a possession of inheritance in the midst of their father’s brothers, and you shall confer the allotment of their father on them. 8 And you shall speak to the sons of Israel, saying, “If a person dies, and he has no son, you shall confer his inheritance on his daughter. 9 Now if he has no daughter, you shall give the inheritance to his brother. 10 Now if he has no brothers, you shall give the inheritance to his father’s brother. 11 Now if there are no brothers of his father, you shall give the inheritance to his nearest relative from his tribe; he shall inherit what is his. And this shall be for the sons of Israel a requirement of judgment, just as the Lord instructed Moses.”

12 And the Lord said to Moses, “Go up into the mountain that is on the other side (this Mount Nabau), and see the land Chanaan, which I am giving to the sons of Israel for a possession. 13 And you shall see it, and you too shall be added to your people, just as your brother Aaron was added in Hor the mountain, 14 because you transgressed my word in the wilderness of Sin, when the congregation resisted to sanctify me. You did not sanctify me at the water before them.” (This is water of dispute of Kades in the wilderness of Sin.) 15 And Moses said to the Lord, 16 “Let the Lord, the God of the spirits and of all flesh, consider a person over this congregation, 17 who shall go out before them and who shall come in before them and who shall bring out and who shall bring them in, and the congregation of the Lord shall not be like sheep that have no shepherd.” 18 And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, “Take to yourself Iesous son of Naue, a person who has a spirit in him, and you shall lay your hands upon him, 19 and you shall have him stand before Eleazar the priest, and you shall command him before all the congregation, and you shall give authorization concerning him before them. 20 And you shall give over some of your glory upon him so that the sons of Israel may listen to him. 21 And before Eleazar the priest he shall stand, and they shall inquire of him the decision of the clear ones before the Lord. At his mouth they shall go out, and at his mouth they shall come in, and he and all the sons of Israel of one accord and all the congregation.” 22 And Moses did just as the Lord commanded him. And he took Iesous and had him stand before Eleazar the priest and before all the congregation, 23 and he laid his hands upon him and introduced him—just as the Lord instructed Moses.

28 And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: 2 Command the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them, saying: My gifts, my presents, my offerings as an odor of fragrance you shall take heed to offer to me at my feasts. 3 And you shall say to them, These are the offerings, as many as you shall bring to the Lord: two lambs, a year old without blemish, daily, as a whole burnt offering, perpetually. 4 The one lamb you shall do in the morning, and the second lamb you shall do towards evening. 5 And you shall do a tenth of an ephah d, fine flour for a sacrifice, mixed with oil, with a fourth of a hin e for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a li...

30 (29.40) And Moyses spake to the sons of Israel according to everything that the Lord commanded Moyses.

2(30.1) And Moyses spake to the rulers of the tribes of Israel, saying: This is the word that the Lord ordered: 3(2) b Person by personb—if he vows a vow to the Lord or swears an oath or determines for himself with determination about his soul, he shall not profane his word; everything that proceeds out of his mouth he shall do.

4(3) Now if a woman vows a vow to the Lord or swears an oath or determines for himself with determination about his soul, he shall not profane his word; everything that proceeds out of his mouth he shall do.

5(4) And if her father hears and says nothing to her on the day when he hears, then thereby all her vows shall stand, and her determinations that she determined for herself against her soul—they shall stand.

6(5) But if her father in withholding consent withholds consent from her on the day when he hears, all her vows and her determinations that she determined for herself against her soul shall not remain, because her husband withheld consent from her, and the Lord will clear her. 10(9) And a vow of a widow and of one cast outd whatever things she vows against her soul, shall remain for her. 11(10) And if her vow was in her husband's house or her determination against her soul was with an oath 12(11) and if her husband hears and says nothing to her and does not withhold consent to her, then all her vows shall stand, and all her determinations which she determined for herself against her soul—they shall stand regarding her. 13(12) But if her husband in canceling cancels them on the day when he hears, all the things that proceed out of her lips regarding her vows and regarding her determination that are against her soul shall not remain for her. Her husband canceled them, and the Lord will clear her. 14(13) Every vow and every oath for binding, to afflict the soul, her husband shall establish for her, and her husband shall cancel. 15(14) But if her husband is silent and says nothing to her from day to day, then he shall establish for her all her vows, and he shall establish for her the determinations that are upon her, because he kept silent to her on the day when he heard. 16(15) But if in canceling he cancels after the day that he heard, then he shall bear his sin.

17(16) These are the statutes, as many as the Lord commanded Moyses, between a man and his wife and between a father and his daughter in youth, in her father's house.

31 And the Lord spake to Moyses, saying, 2 "Exact the vengeance of the sons of Israel from the Madianites, and at last you shall be added to your people." 3 And Moyses spake to the people, saying, "Fully arm men from you to do battle before the Lord against Madian, to requite vengeance on Madian from the Lord. 4 Send a thousand from a tribe by a thousand from a tribef from all the tribes of Israel to do battle." 5 And they numbered from the thousands of Israel, a thousand from a tribe, twelve thousand armed for battle. 6 And Moyses sent them off, a thousand from a tribe by a thousand from a tribe, with their force, and Phinees son of Eleazar son of Aaron the priest. And the holy vessels and the signal trumpets were in their hands. And they did battle against Midian, just as the Lord had commanded Moyses, and they killed every male. And the kings of Midian they killed together with their slain: even Euis and Sour and Rokom and Hour and Robok, five kings of Midian. And Balaam son of Beor they killed with a sword together with their slain. And the Israelites plundered the women of Midian and their chattel and their cattle and all their possessions, and they plundered their army. And all their cities, those in their settlements, and their quarters, they burned with fire. And they took all the plunder and all their spoils, from human to animal. And they brought to Moyses and to Eleazar the priest and to all of Israel’s sons the body of captives and the spoils and the plunder to the camp, to Arabor of Moab, which is at the Jordan opposite Jericho.

And Moyses went out, and Eleazar the priest and all the rulers of the congregation, to meet them outside the camp. And Moyses was angry with the overseers of the force, with the officers of thousands and with the officers of hundreds, who had come from the battle line of the war. And Moyses said to them, “Why did you take every female alive? For these were for the sons of Israel, according to the word of Balaam, for the purpose of removing and despising the word of the Lord, on account of Phogor, and there was the blow in the congregation of the Lord. And now, kill every male among all the chattel, and kill every woman, whoever has known a male’s bed. And as for all the chattel of the women, whoever has not known a male’s bed, capture them alive. And as for you, encamp outside the camp seven days; everyone who kills and who touches the wounded person shall be purified on the third day and on the seventh day, you and your body of captives. And you shall purify every garment and every article of skin and every artifact of goatskin and every wooden article.”

And Eleazar the priest said to the men of the force, who were coming from the battle line of the war, “This is the requirement of the law that the Lord instructed to Moyses: Apart from the gold and the silver and bronze and iron and lead and tin, every object that shall pass through in fire shall also be cleansed. Nevertheless, it shall be purified with the water for purification, and whatever things do not go through fire shall pass through water. And you shall wash your clothes on the seventh day, and you shall be cleansed, and afterwards you shall come into the camp.”

And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, “Take the sum total of the spoils of the captivity, from human to animal, you and Eleazar the priest and the rulers of the paternal families of the congregation. And you shall divide the spoils between the warriors who went out into the battle line and between all the congregation. And you shall remove as a levy to the Lord, from the men, the warriors who went out into the battle line, one soul out of five hundred from the humans and from the animals and from the cattle and from the sheep and from the donkeys. And you shall take from their half, and you shall give Eleazar the priest the first fruits of the Lord. And from the half of the sons of Israel you shall take one out of fifty, from the humans and from the cattle and from the sheep and from the donkeys and from all the animals, and you shall give them to the Levites who keep the guard duties in the tent of the Lord.”

And Moyses and Eleazar the priest did just as the Lord instructed Moyses.

And the abundance of the plunder that the warriors had plundered was: of the sheep six hundred and seventy-five thousand, and cattle, seventy-two thousand, and donkeys, sixty-one thousand, and human souls of the women who did not know a man’s bed, all souls thirty-two thousand.

And the halved part, the portion of those who went out to war was: from the number of the sheep, three hundred and thirty-seven thousand and five hundred, and the levy to the Lord was: from the sheep, six hundred and seventy-five, and cattle, thirty-six thousand, and the levy to the Lord, seventy-two, and donkeys, thirty thousand and five hundred, and the levy to the Lord, sixty-one, and human souls, sixteen thousand, and their levy to the Lord, thirty-two souls. And Moyses gave the levy to the Lord, the advance deduction of God to Eleazar the priest, just as the Lord instructed Moyses, from the halved part of the sons of Israel, which Moyses separated from the warriors.

And the halved part of the congregation: from the sheep was three hundred and thirty-seven thousand and five hundred, and cattle, thirty-six thousand, and donkeys, thirty thousand and five hundred, and human souls, sixteen thousand. And Moyses took from the halved part of the sons of Israel the one out of the fifty, from the humans and from the animals, and he gave them to the Levites who were keeping the guard duties of the tent of the Lord, in the manner that the Lord instructed Moyses.

And there came to Moyses all those in charge of the thousands of the force, officers of thousands and officers of hundreds, and they said to Moyses, “Your servants have received the sum total of the warriors that are with us, and not even one of them is missing. And we have brought forward the gift to the Lord, a man what golden object he found: an anklet and a bracelet and a ring and an armlet for the right arm and a hair-clasp, to make atonement for ourselves before the Lord.” And Moyses and Eleazar the priest took the gold from them, every wrought article.

And all the gold, the advance deduction that they removed for the Lord: sixteen thousand and seven hundred and fifty shekels from the officers of thousands and from the officers of hundreds. 53 (And the warriors had taken plunder, each one for himself.) 54 And Moyses and Eleazar the priest took the gold from the officers of thousands and from the officers of hundreds and brought them into the tent of witness as a memorial of the sons of Israel before the Lord.

32 And the sons of Rouben and the sons of Gad had a multitude, a great multitude, of cattle. And they saw the country of lazer and the country of Galaad and the place was a place for cattle. 2 And when the sons of Rouben and the sons of Gad came forward, they said to Moyses and to Eleazar the priest and to the rulers of the congregation, saying, 3 “Ataroth and Daibon and Iazer and Nabau and Baian—the land that the Lord delivered before the sons of Israel—is cattle rearing land and your servants possess cattle.” 4 And they were saying, “If we found favor before you, let this land be given to your domestics for a possession, and do not make us cross the Jordan.”

6 And Moyses said to the sons of Gad and to the sons of Rouben, “Shall your brothers go to war and you will sit here? 7 And why are you perverting the minds of the sons of Israel not to cross over into the land that the Lord is giving to them? 8 Did your fathers not do so, when I sent them from Kades Barne to observe the land? 9 And they went up to Cluster Ravine and observed the land, and they turned aside the heart of the sons of Israel not to go into the land that the Lord gave them. 10 And the Lord was angry with wrath on that day, and he swore, saying, 11 “If these people who came up out of Egypt, from twenty years and above, who know evil and good, shall see the land that I swore to Abraam and Isaak and Jakob, for they have not followed along after me. 12 On the other hand, there are Chaleb son of Iephonne, who had separated himself, and lesous the son of Naue, for he followed along after the Lord.” 13 And the Lord was angry with wrath against Israel, and he made them roam about in the wilderness for forty years until the entire generation, those who were doing evil things before the Lord, was utterly consumed. 14 Behold, you rose up in place of your fathers, as a band of sinful persons, to add further to the wrath of the Lord against Israel, 15 because you will turn away from him to add further to the wrath of the Lord against this whole congregation.”

16 And they came forward to him and kept saying, “Let us build quarters for sheep here, for our animals and cities, for our chattels, and, having taken up arms, let us be a vanguard ahead of the sons of Israel until we bring them to their place. And our chattel will settle in walled cities, because of those that inhabit the land. 18 We will not turn back to our homes until all the sons of Israel have been apportioned, each one to his inheritance. 19 And let us no longer inherit among them from the other side of the Jordan and beyond, because we have our allotments on the other side of the Jordan in the east.”

20 And Moyses said to them, “If you do according to this word—if you arm yourselves before the Lord for war, 21 then every armed soldier of you shall pass the Jordan before the Lord until his enemy is wiped out from before him 22 and the land is dominated before the Lord. And after this you shall turn back, and you shall be innocent before the Lord and from Israel, and this land shall be to you as a possession before the Lord. 23 But if you will not do so, you will sin against the Lord, and you will know your sin when misfortunes overtake you. 24 And you shall build for yourselves cities for your chattel and quarters for your animals, and what proceeds from your mouth, you shall do.”

25 And the sons of Rouben and the sons of Gad said to Moyses, saying, “Your servants will do just as our lord commands. 26 And our chattel and our wives and all our animals shall be in the cities of Galaad, 27 but your servants will pass by, all armed and arrayed before the Lord for the war, just as our lord says.”

28 And Moyses brought together Eleazar the priest and lesous son of Naue and the rulers of the patriarchal tribes of Israel. 29 And Moyses said to them, “If the sons of Rouben and the sons of Gad cross over the Jordan with you—everyone armed for war before the Lord—and you gain control of the land before you, then you shall give them the land of Galaad as a possession, 30 but if they do not cross over with you armed for the war before the Lord, then you shall carry over their chattel and their wives and their animals, ahead of you into the land of Chanaan. And they shall inherit together among you in the land of Chanaan.” 31 And the sons of Rouben and the sons of Gad answered, saying, “Whatever our lord says to his attendants, so we will do. 32 As for us, we will cross over, armed before the Lord, into the land of Chanaan, and you shall give us to the possession on the other side of the Jordan.”

33 And Moyses gave to them—to the sons of Gad and to the sons of Rouben and to the half-tribe of Manasse of Joseph’s sons—the kingdom of Seon king of the Amorrites and the kingdom of Og king of Basan, the land and the cities, together with its borders, cities of the land round about. 34 And the sons of Gad built Daibon and Ataroth and Aroer 35 and Sophar and Iazer, and they raised them up. 36 And Nambra and Baitharan, strong cities and quarters for sheep. 37 And the sons of Rouben built Hesebon and Eleale and Kariathaim 38 and Nabau and Beelmeon encircled and Sebama, and they named the names of the cities they built after their own names. 39 And a son of Machir son of Manasse went to Galaad and took it, and he destroyed the Amorrite who was living in it. 40 And Moyses gave Galaad to Machir son of Manasse, and he settled there. 41 And Iair the son of Manasseh went and took their homesteads a and named them Iair’s Homesteads b. 42 And Nabau went and took Kanath and its villages and named them Naboth after his name.

33 And these are stations of the sons of Israel as they went out of the land of Egypt together with their force by the hand of Moyses and Aaron. 2 And Moyses wrote down their departures and their stations, through the word of the Lord, and these are stations of their journey. 3 They set out from Ramesses in the first month, on the fifteenth day of the first month; on the day after the pascha the sons of Israel went out with a high hand before all the Egyptians, 4 and the Egyptians were burying all those of them who had died, whom the Lord struck down, every firstborn in the land of Egypt. And among their gods the Lord executed vengeance.

5 And when the sons of Israel set out from Ramesses, they encamped at Sokchoth. 6 And they set out from Sokchoth and encamped at Bouthan, which is some part of the wilderness. 7 And they set out from Bouthan and encamped at Heiroth’s mouth, which is opposite Beelsephon, and they encamped opposite Magdolos. 8 And they set out from before Heiroth and crossed through the middle of the sea into the wilderness, and they went a journey of three days through the wilderness, and they encamped at Bitternesses. 9 And they set out from Bitternesses and came to Ailim, and in Ailim there were twelve springs of water and seventy date palm trunks, and they encamped there beside the water. 10 And they set out from Ailim and encamped by the Red Sea. 11 And they set out from the Red Sea and encamped in the wilderness of Sin. 12 And they set out from the wilderness of Sin and encamped at Raphaka. 13 And they set out from Raphaka and encamped in Ailous. 14 And they set out from Ailous and encamped in Raphidin, and there was no water for the people to drink there. 15 And they set out from Raphidin and encamped in the wilderness of Sina. 16 And they set out from the wilderness of Sina and encamped in Tombs of Craving. 17 And they set out from Tombs of Craving and encamped in Haseroth. 18 And they set out from Haseroth and encamped in Rathama. 19 And they set out from Rathama and encamped in Remmon Phares. 20 And they set out from Remmon Phares and encamped in Lebanon. 21 And they set out from Lebanon and encamped at Dessa. 22 And they set out from Dessa and encamped at Makelath. 23 And they set out from Makelath and encamped at Saphar. 24 And they set out from Saphar and encamped at Charadath. 25 And they set out from Charadath and encamped at Makeloth. 26 And they set out from Makeloth and encamped at Kataath. 27 And they set out from Kataath and encamped at Tarath. 28 And they set out from Tarath and encamped at Matekka. 29 And they set out from Matekka and encamped at Haselmona. 30 And they set out from Haselmona and encamped at Masourouth. 31 And they set out from Masourouth and encamped at Banaiaikan. 32 And they set out from Banaiaikan and encamped at the mountain of Gadgad. 33 And they set out from the mountain of Gadgad and encamped at Etebatha. 34 And they set out from Etebatha and encamped at Ebronah. 35 And they set out from Ebronah and encamped at Gesion Gaber. 36 And they set out from Gesion Gaber and encamped in the wilderness of Sin. And they set out from the wilderness of Sin and encamped in the wilderness of Pharan; this is Kades. 37 And they set out from Kades and encamped at Hor, the mountain near the land of Edom.

38 And Aaron the priest went up by the ordinance of the Lord and died there in the fortieth year of the departure of the sons of Israel from the land of Egypt, in the fifth month, on the first of the month. 39 And Aaron was a hundred and twenty-three years old when he died on Hor the mountain.

40 And Chananis, king of Arad (and he was living in the land of Chanaan), heard when the sons of Israel were coming in.

41 And they set out from Hor the mountain and encamped at Selmona. 42 And they set out from Selmona and encamped at Phino. 43 And they set out from Phino and encamped at Oboth. 44 And they set out from Oboth and encamped in Gai, on the other side, on the borders of Moab. 45 And they set out from Gai and encamped at Dibon Gad. 46 And they set out from Dibon Gad and encamped in Gelmon Deblathaim. 47 And they set out from Gelmon Deblathaim and encamped on the mountains of Abiram, opposite Nabau. 48 And they set out from the mountains of Abiram and encamped to the west of Moab by the Jordan opposite Iericho, 49 and they encamped by the Jordan between Haisimoth as far as Belsattim to the west of Moab.

50 And the Lord spoke to Moyses at the west of Moab by the Jordan opposite Iericho, saying: 51 Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: As for you, you are crossing the Jordan into the land of Chanaan, 52 and you shall destroy all those who live in the land before you, and you shall remove their look-outs b, and as for all their molten idols you shall destroy them, and all their steles you shall remove. 53 And you shall destroy the inhabitants of the land, and you shall settle in it, for to you I have given their land as an allotment. 54 And you shall obtain their land as a possession by lot according to your tribes; to the more numerous ones you shall increase their possession, and to the less numerous ones you shall decrease their possession. 4 To what his name goes out there c, his shall it be. According to your paternal tribes you shall inherit. 55 But if you do not destroy those living on the land from before you, then it shall be that whomever of them you leave shall be thorns in your eyes and missiles in your sides, and they shall act with hostility upon the land on which you will settle. 56. And it shall be, just as I had resolved to do to them, I will do to you.

34. And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

2. Command the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: As for you, you are entering into the land of Chanaan (this shall be to you for an inheritance, the land of Chanaan together with its borders). 3. And the side that is to the southwest shall be for you from the wilderness of Sin as far as next to Edom, and the borders to the southwest shall be for you from the part of the Salt Sea on the east. 4. And your borders shall go around you from the southwest to the ascent of Akrabin, and they shall pass along Senna, and its outlet shall be to the southwest of Kades of Barne, and it shall go out to the steadings of Arad, and it shall pass along Ase-monah, 5. and the borders shall go around from Ase-monah to the Wadi of Egypt, and the outlet shall be the Seaa.

6. And the boundaries of the Sea shall be for you; the Great Sea shall determine the border. This shall be for you the boundaries of the Sea.

7. And this shall be the borders for you to the north: from the Great Sea you shall measure out for yourselves along the mountain, the mountain, 8. and from the mountain, the mountain you shall measure for them, as they enter into Hemath, and its outlet shall be the borders of Sara-da. 9. And the borders shall go out to Dephrona, and its outlet shall be Hasernain; this shall be for you the borders from the north.

10. And you shall measure out for yourselves the borders of the east from Hasernain to Sep-phama, 11. and the borders shall go down from Sep-pham to Harbela from the east to springs, and the borders shall go down from Bela at the wide expanse of the sea of Chenereth from the east, 12. and the borders shall descend to the Jordan, and its outlet shall be the Salt Sea. This shall be the land for you, and its borders all around.

13. And Moyses commanded the sons of Israel, saying: This is the land that you shall obtain as a possession by lot, in the manner that the Lord instructed Moyses to give it to the nine tribes and to the half-tribe of Manasse. 14. For Rouben’s sons’ tribe and Gad’s sons’ tribe received according to their paternal houses, and the half-tribe of Manasse accepted their allotments; 15. two tribes and a half-tribe received their allotments beyond the Jordan opposite Jericho from the south, towards the east.

16. And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

17. These are the names of the men who shall inherit the land for you: the priest Eleazar and lesous the son of Naue. 18. And you shall take one ruler from a tribe to obtain for you the land as a possession. 19. And these are the names of the men: Of the tribe of Lousas, Chaleb son of Lephonh. 20. Of the tribe of Symeon, Salamiel son of Eimiouid.

29. These are the ones whom the Lord commanded to make the distribution for the sons of Israel in the land of Chanaan.

35. And the Lord spoke to Moyses at the west of Moab, by the Jordan opposite Jericho, saying: 2. Instruct the sons of Israel, and they shall give to the Leuites from the allotments of their possessions cities to live in, and the suburbs of the cities around them they shall give to the Leuites— 3. and the cities shall be for them to live in, and their areas set apart shall be for their cattle and for all their quadrapeds. 4. And the areas adjoining the cities that you shall give to the Leuites shall be from the city wall and outwards, two thousand cubits all around. 5. And you shall measure outside the city, the side towards the east, two thousand cubits, and the side towards the southwest, two thousand cubits, and the side towards the Sea, two thousand cubits, and the side towards the north, two thousand cubits, and the city in the midst of this shall be for you, and the contiguous areas of the cities— 6. even the cities that you shall give to the Leuites, the six cities of places of refuge that you shall give to the murderer to flee there, and in addition to these, forty-two cities; 7. all the cities that you shall give to the Leuites are forty-eight cities—them and their suburbs; 8. even the cities that you shall give from the possession of Israel’s sons, 8. many from those with many and fewer from those with fewer. 9. They shall give of their cities to the Leuites, each one according to his inheritance that they shall inherit.

9. And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

10. Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: As for you, you are crossing the Jordan into the land of Chanaan, 11. and you shall set aside for yourselves cities of places of refuge that you shall give to the murderer to flee there, and in addition to these, forty-two cities; 12. all the cities that you shall give to the Leuites are forty-eight cities—them and their suburbs; 13. even the cities that you shall give from the possession of Israel’s sons, 8. many from those with many and fewer from those with fewer. 14. They shall give of their cities to the Leuites, each one according to his inheritance that they shall inherit.

15. And the cities that you give as the six cities shall be places of refuge for you. 14. Three cities you shall give beyond the Jordan, and three cities you shall give in the land of Chanaan. 15. They shall be an asylum for the sons of Israel and for the guest and for the resident alien among you. These cities shall be a place of refuge for everyone to flee there when he strikes a soul unintentionally.
16 But if he strikes him with an iron instrument and he dies, he is a murderer; let the murderer be put to death by death. 17 Now if he strikes him with a stone out of hand—by which he may die—and he dies, he is a murderer; let the murderer be put to death by death. 18 Now if he strikes him with a wooden instrument out of hand—from which he may die—and he dies, he is a murderer; let the murderer be put to death by death. 19 As for the one doing the relative’s blood duty, he shall kill the one that committed murder; when he meets up with him, he shall kill him. 20 Now if out of enmity he pushes him and hurl[s] at him any object from an ambush and he dies or out of rage he struck him with the hand and he dies, let the one who struck be put to death by death—he is a murderer; let the murderer be put to death by death; the one doing the relative’s blood duty shall strike the one that committed murder when he meets him.

22 But if he pushes him suddenly, not out of enmity, or throws at him any object not from an ambush or with any stone—by which he may die—unknowingly, and it falls upon him and he dies but he was not his enemy nor was he seeking to harm him, 23 then the congregation shall judge between the striker and between the one doing the relative’s blood duty, according to these judgments, and the congregation shall rescue the one that committed murder from the one doing the relative’s blood duty. And the congregation shall restore him to the city of his place of refuge, where he fled for refuge. And he shall live there until the great priest dies, him whom they anointed with the holy oil. 26 But if he that commits murder by an exit leaves the bounds of the city, there where he fled for refuge, and the one doing the relative’s blood duty finds him outside the bounds of the city of his refuge, and the one doing the relative’s blood duty kills the one that committed murder, he is not liable. 28 For let him live in the city of refuge until the great priest dies, and after the great priest dies, he that committed murder shall return to the land of his possession.

29 And these things shall be for you a requirement of judgment for your generations in all your settlements.

30 Every one, when he strikes a soul, through witnesses you shall kill the murderer, and one witness shall not bear witness against a soul that he should die. 31 And you shall not receive ransom for a soul from the one that committed murder, liable to be killed, for he shall be put to death by death. 32 And you shall not receive ransom to flee to a city of places of refuge to live again on the land until the great priest dies. 33 And you shall not kill by murder the land on which you live. For this blood kills the land by murder, and the land shall not be atoned for from the blood that was shed upon it, except by the blood of the one who shed it. 34 And you shall not defile the land that you live upon, on which I will encamp among you, for I am the Lord, encamping in the midst of the sons of Israel.

36 And the rulers of the tribe of Galaad’s sons—son of Machir son of Manasse, from the tribe of Joseph’s sons—came forward and spoke before Moyses and before Eleazar the priest and before the rulers of the paternal houses of the sons of Israel. 2 And they said, “The Lord commanded our lord to give back the land of the inheritance by lot to the sons of Israel, and the Lord instructed the lord to give the inheritance of Salpaad our brother to his daughters. 3 And they shall become wives to one of the tribes of Israel’s sons, and their allotment will be taken away from the possession of our fathers and added to the inheritance of the tribe to whom they may become wives; then it will be taken away from the allotment of our inheritance. 4 But if the release of the sons of Israel takes place, then their inheritance shall be added to the inheritance of the tribe to whom they may become wives, and from the inheritance of our paternal tribe their inheritance shall be taken away.”

5 And Moyses commanded the sons of Israel through an ordinance of the Lord, saying, “Thus Joseph’s sons’ tribe are saying. 6 This is the thing that the Lord instructed for the daughters of Salpaad, saying, ‘Of whomever is pleasing before them, let them be wives; only out of the division of their father let them become wives, 7 and an inheritance for the sons of Israel shall not rotate from tribe to tribe; for the sons of Israel shall stick together, each one in the inheritance of his paternal tribe. 8 And as for every daughter when as next of kin she is entitled to an inheritance from the tribes of Israel’s sons, they shall become wives to one of those from the division of her father so that the sons of Israel may be entitled as next of kin, each one to his paternal inheritance. 9 And an allotment shall not rotate from tribe to another tribe, but the sons of Israel shall stick together, each one in his inheritance.”

10 In the manner the Lord instructed Moyses, so Salpaad’s daughters did. 11 And Thersa and Hegl[a] and Melcha and Noua and Maala, daughters of Salpaad, became their cousins’. 12 They became wives of the division of Manasse, of Joseph’s sons, and their inheritance was for the tribe of their father’s division.

13 These are the commandments and the statutes and the judgments that the Lord commanded by the hand of Moyses at the west of Moab, at the Jordan down from Iericho.

Edition of the Greek Text

The NETS translation of Deuteronomion has been based on the edition by John William Wevers (Septuaginta: Vetus Testamentum Graecum Auctoritate Academiae Scientiarum Gottingensis editum III.2: Deuteronomium [Gottingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1977]). This fully critical edition is the best available. Its printed text was modified only where Wevers himself, in Appendix A of his Notes on the Greek Text of Deuteronomy (SBLSCS 39; Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1995), proposed that changes be made. Most of the forty-four suggested modifications involve matters of punctuation or accentuation. Others consist of variation in pronouns due to itacisms (υμών/ήμων, etc.), changes in the form of the nomina sacra, the odd omission of a possessive or a copula and so on. Only a single reading in the list (the metathesis of lambda and alpha in λαύν 28.9) was a genuine printing error. But in one or two cases such as 28.62 or 30.13, readings that the editor initially considered secondary and therefore placed in the apparatus, he deemed on further reflection to be primary. In every instance, such changes that can be shown are noted in the brief apparatus to NETS Deuteronomion, where WeN is made to contrast with Weed.

General Comment

The aim here is not to present a complete picture of the character of the translation of Greek Deuteronomy within the constraints of a brief introduction. What follows, rather, is a discussion of some features that might interest the NETS reader conversant with Hebrew and Greek and interested in the relationship of the latter to the former. It may be assumed that the translator of Greek Deuteronomy (hereafter DeutTr) had before him a text similar in the main to the printed text of BHS and that the printed text of Weed (as modified by WeN) is representative of the original Greek translation.

Every translation must be examined, of course, for its own peculiarities, and each translator evaluated in relation to the content of the material on which he worked. Statistical representations are relevant only when judged against patterns and practices of a particular translator and the choices he faced. Deuteronomy is noted for its hortatory style and repetitive content. Thus its study, even though tedious, can be instructive to a textual critic evaluating whether and when formulaic expressions are accurately transmitted. But Deuteronomy also repeats legal material found in earlier books of the Pentateuch and contains more sustained poetry than any of the others. Furthermore, if we assume that the Pentateuch was translated sequentially, Deuteronomy, given its position, might reflect knowledge of the work of previous translators, and so we might look for evidence along those lines. These factors add a unique dimension to the task of evaluating Greek Deuteronomy. It is fair to say that DeutTr typically maintains a very close relationship to his source text, though, within a linguistically rather constricting framework, one can nevertheless speak of an interpretative dimension. I discuss each aspect in turn.

Formal Correspondence and Representation

The indicators of a close connection between a Greek translation and a Hebrew source text are well established. Some are attested throughout the Pentateuch, others in the larger corpus of LXX translation Greek and even in the NT. These include for example: fixed lexical equivalents on the content side (verbs and nouns) and even non-content elements—particles, prepositions and the like; the use of λέγων as a consistent translation for יָמַן; ὅτι as a translation for יָמַן irrespective of contextual concerns; ἣν for יָמַן; the use of a Greek conjunctive participle with a cognate finite verb to represent the Hebrew free infinitive (absolute) used for emphasis before a cognate finite verb; the (related) practice of using a participle plus finite verb to represent two successive Hebrew verbs describing the same or related activity; ἵνα τὸ + infinitive + pronoun for ἵνα + bound infinitive (construct); the ubiquitous καὶ for וַיֶּאֶר even in places where standard Greek would opt for postpositive δὲ and so forth. Beyond these lie matters of quantitative representation—the tendency to represent one word in Hebrew by one in Greek as far as possible, often down to the morphemic level—and matters of strict adherence to Hebrew word order at the expense of standard Greek style.

A translation that conforms regularly to these patterns exhibits formal correspondence with its source text—the conventions and demands of that source being dominant throughout. One that takes seriously the needs and expectations of the reader—the target audience—might be expected to deviate from these patterns regularly and demonstrate what is termed dynamic equivalence. Few translations exhibit one or the other pattern exclusively; Deuteronomion is no different in this respect. Each of the above examples of formal correspondence can be demonstrated, though some are more worthy of attention than others. I discuss a few below.

The first chapter should provide representative examples since it would presumably show DeutᵀIRD’s initial approach to his task. Indeed, a look at the very first verse demonstrates a number of DeutᵀIRD’s characteristic features. One will note: (1) an almost isomorphic relationship to the source text; (2) identical word order to the source text; (3) occasional translation of names; (4) at times excessive focus on individual items; (5) a certain freedom vis-à-vis the source text.

DeutᵀIRD selected πέραν to represent בּוֹרֶךְ and maintained it throughout the book even though he seemed unsure at that stage whether the נ should be represented discretely or not; by verse 5 he has decided that it should be, since there (and in 3.20, 4.46) he preceded πέραν with ἐν τῷ. In all but two (30.13 2x) of thirteen places, the reference is to the Jordan. The preposition ἐν here is a hapax as pointed in BHS; its variant form ὀπωσὶν occurs rarely in BHS and only four more times in Deuteronomy (2.19; 3.29; 4.46; 34.6). Of course, it cannot be known whether or not DeutᵀIRD read his unpointed text just as the Masoretes did, since the meaning of both forms of the preposition remains the same. It may be entirely coincidental but noteworthy, however, that only in 1.1, where the variant Masoretic vocalization appears, does πλησίον appear and there in relation to the Red Sea. But πλησίον is never used again as a translation of בּוֹרֶךְ, by the time DeutᵀIRD next encountered it in 2.19, he had decided that ἐγγὺς or συνεγγὺς = בּוֹרֶךְ and that either πέραν or ἐν τῷ πέραν = בּוֹרֶךְ. Thus, by 4.46 when בּוֹרֶךְ and פֶּלֶס appear in the same verse, he rendered them ἐν τῷ πέραν τοῦ Ἰορδάνου, ἐγγὺς οἴκου Φογώρ “beyond the Jordan . . . near the house of Phogor.” The variation in the gloss for בּוֹרֶךְ, however, can be accounted for on contextual grounds. Towards the end of the first verse, DeutᵀIRD seemed confident that Pharan, Tophol, and Lobon were place names because they were clearly set off by פלשים: “because this commandment that I command you today” as examples where the πέραν occurs rarely in BHS, its variant form ὀπωσὶν tou= Ἰορδάνου, Περαιαὶ Ἐνων “beyond the Jordan . . . near the house of Phogor.”

Yet, by 30.11 ἐν τῇ ἐντολῇ σωτῆρ, ἢν ἐγὼ ἐνέταξατο σοι σήμερον = NETS: “because this commandment that I command you today” as examples where the ἐν stands first in its clause under Hebrew influence but a postpositive γὰρ would seem perfectly warranted in the contexts.

One well-established marker of a translator’s dependence on his source is the treatment of clause connectors. A. Aejmelaeus has noted the importance of this issue in several publications.¹ If a translator selected ὅτι instead of γὰρ (even when standard Greek style would suggest the latter) to render בּוֹרֶךְ, it is one of many signs that the source text controlled the process. She cites 4.6 “because this is your wisdom,” 16.3 “because you came out . . . in haste,” and 22.5 “for anyone doing these things is an abhorrence to the Lord your God,” and especially 30.11 ὅτι ἐν τῇ ἐντολῇ σωτῆρ, ἢν ἐγὼ ἐνέταξατο σοι σήμερον = NETS: “because this commandment that I command you today” as examples where the ὅτι stands first in its clause under Hebrew influence but a postpositive γὰρ would seem perfectly warranted in the contexts.

Another clear example of DeutᵀIRD’s heavy dependence on the source is his literal rendering of plenaistic expressions—“the land which you are crossing the Jordan there to inherit it.” This type of syntactical structure is typical and frequent in Deuteronomion. Full lexeme-for-lexeme representation is always evident in Greek. Likewise, free infinitives are juxtaposed before or after cognate verbs frequently in Deuteronomion. DeutᵀIRD made no attempt to interpret the sense of such Hebraistic expressions but rendered them quite literally, word for word, striving to imitate his source text by utilizing cognate roots in Greek. Singular and plural forms of address in Hebrew are almost religiously followed in Greek, and the few variations can usually be explained reasonably.

Throughout Deuteronomion one finds new words (neologisms) or instances of known words combined in new ways. Some are unique to the Pentateuch; almost forty appear for the first time in ¹ See for example her collection of essays on this subject On the Trail of the Septuagint Translators (Kampen, The Netherlands: Kok Pharos, 1993) and particularly the essays on OTI.

Deuteronomion. These illustrate certain decisions DeutTr made when confronting Hebrew expressions for which he knew of no Greek equivalent quite close enough to his source text. For example, a Hebrew root may have only a noun equivalent in Greek but no verb equivalent. As a result, a translator, if he is intent on matching the source text word class for word class, might need to coin a Greek verb. So, while coining a neologism may reflect literary creativity, it can equally well indicate rigid adherence to the source text. The vast majority of DeutTr’s creations are best placed in the latter category.

The noun ἄγνωστος occurs less than ten times in the book, the first being in 1.15. In this context it describes specific officials connected to judges. Rather than replacing the Hebrew with a contextually suitable Greek term, DeutTr apparently coined a word by fusing two known Greek functionaries: a γραμματεύς “a scribe” and an εἰσαγωγεὺς “one who brings cases to court” into γραμματευσαγωγεύς “one who records things for judges.” He also used it elsewhere (16.18; 29.10; 31.28), but in three other places (20.5, 8, 9) he rendered ἀγνωστὸς more simply as γραμματεύς “scribes.”

The idiom “to be long of days,” ἀγνώστος ἀρχάγγελος, is variously translated by πολυχρωμίζω “to prolong time” (4.26), μακροχρόμεσθαι/-ρω “to have long days” (4.40; 5.33; 6.2; 11.9; 32.47) or μακροχρωμίζομαι “to have a long time” (17.20) and so on. Components of these words were already in use. For example, the adjective πολυχρώμως rendering the same Hebrew occurs in Gen 26.8. What DeutTr does in these instances then is make a verb out of a known adjective as a way of remaining close to the source text without being too slavishly literal.

The neologism δευτερονομίου itself provides a final example. Neither δεύτερος nor νόμος were new Greek words. With the suffixing of -ιον, however, they together constituted an interpretation, not simply a translation of דְּחֵיהַ נְמוּ in 17.18 that in time was adopted as the name of the book. The Hebrew phrase could be understood as describing either a copy, a repetition of or another, a second, law. This latter sense is clearly the intent of DeutTr; he makes this even more explicit in 31.26 by speaking of “the book of this law” rather than of “this book of the law” (=MT). “This law” seems in his mind to stand in contrast to the first law (Exodus-Numbers).

All the foregoing notwithstanding, DeutTr often shows that he is not invariably wedded to formal correspondence, at least not to a rigid one-to-one equivalency. Accordingly, one finds in DeutTr both semantic leveling (the use of one Greek word for several in Hebrew) and semantic differentiation (the use of two or more Greek words to render the same Hebrew). I discuss a few examples of each.

DeutTr had previously translated the simple verb ἡρωθήμεν “to lift up” by φέρω “to bear/carry,” but in 31.31 he contextualized its meaning by choosing προφορεῖν “to nurse.” He seems to have had in mind the image of the people of Israel being nurtured by their god with food in the desert, as analogous to a father nursing his son to adulthood, presumably in difficult circumstances. The noun σπέρμα, which records things for judges. He also used it elsewhere (16.18; 29.10; 31.28), but in three other places (20.5, 8, 9) he rendered ἀγνωστὸς more simply as γραμματεύς “scribes.”

word transmitted by Moyses, παραβιαζόμαι is scarcely an obvious fit. (Note that in 17.13 and 18.20 he uses σκότειν.)

The entire verse in 19.3 may be an example of contextual interpretation. Three separate Hebrew verbs are rendered in unusual ways vis-à-vis the text of BHS. Hebrew קלח (imperfect of קלח) “you must prepare” is read differently from the Masoretes as an imperative of a root קלח (as P. Dion has suggested2 and as the NRSV has adopted) and becomes in Greek κτλθροσασσαί “estimate for yourself.” DeutTr may have misread or interpreted a text like the Masoretic text, but it seems more probable that קלח was in his Vorlage. The verb קלח “you will make three of” is more explicitly rendered as τριμερίζεσθαι “you shall make (or divide) into three portions.” The very popular verb κλαί (Hiphil) “to give as a possession/inheritance,” usually translated as κληρονομεῖν, is only in this context translated as κατα-μερίζεσθαι “to divide into sections/to apportion.” Either by design or by inadvertence DeutTr ends up with a verbal repetition: τριμερίζεσθαι... κατα-μερίζεσθαι.

DeutTr made explicit that when (as in 13.5[6]; 17.7, 12; 19.19; 21.21; 22.21, 22, 24; 24.7) the source text suggests, ambiguously, that קלח “the evil” is to be removed from among the people of Israel, evil is to be understood concretely. For him, it is the evil person τόν ποινήν, not evil as an abstraction τὸ ποινήν that is the intent of the source; that person must be removed.

In terms of style, he usually utilized classical reflexive pronouns when speaking of the extirpation of these community evildoers; see for example 13.5[6]; 19.19; 21.21; 22.21, 24; 24.7. In these cases, the selection of εἰς ὑμῶν ἀυτῶν rather than εἰς ἑαυτοῦ “from among yourselves” or even of εἰς ὑμῶν “from you” may possibly signal a heightened sense of outrage, but more likely is indicative of the relatively early date of Deuteronomion.

DeutTr judged the expression in 10.16, בְּבָאֶל-לָּךְ בְּבָאֶלֶת הַלֵּרֶם “the foreskin of your heart,” perhaps too graphic and made a moral/theological judgment to render it as σκληροκαρδίαν υμῶν “your hardheartedness.” It is also quite clear that he deliberately sought to avoid translating קלח as βασιλεῖς when the referent could possibly be construed as a king of Israel. In those five instances (17.14, 15(2x); 28.36; 33.5), he chose the word δραχμὸν “ruler.” For him, it seems there could only be one βασιλεῖς in Israel and that would be κύριος their god.

These brief comments should suffice to demonstrate that DeutTr was, on the one hand, a translator who often slavishly mimicked his source text but who, on the other hand, from time to time slipped in some exegesis. He does not make unwarranted changes, but when he deems them necessary, he does not hesitate to act.

ISSUES OF THE PARENT TEXT

We turn now to examples of variance between Greek and Hebrew Deuteronomy whether occasioned by misreading, misunderstanding or, as seems clear in a few places, a source text different from BHS. The well-known “shema” in 6.4 consists in Hebrew of six words. In Greek the verse is prefaced with: Καὶ τούτα τα δικαιώματα καὶ τα κρίματα, ὡσα ενετελάτο κύριος τοῦ ὑπός Ἰσραήλ ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ εξελθόντων αὐτῶν ἐκ γῆς Αἰγύπτου “And these are the statutes and the judgments, which the Lord commanded to the sons of Israel in the wilderness as they were coming out from the land of Egypt.”

Given DeutTr’s preoccupation with quantitative representation of his source in undisputed areas, there is no reason to think that the Hebrew equivalent of this passage was absent from his Vorlage. The initial introductory remarks in 6.1 in the Greek tradition are directed to Moyses; those in 6.4 to the sons of Israel.

The case in 30.15, 16 is similar but less debatable. The Hebrew of BHS is both illogical and deficient, the Greek quite clear. Hebrew verse 15 indicates that what Moses set before the people was “the life and the good, the death and the evil.” The following verse begins with קלח, the logical antecedent of which is קלח. As the text stands, it would be translated “the evil (16) which I command you today to love the Lord your God”—clearly an untenable text. The Greek reads: ἰδοὺ δὲ ἡ διόκασ ἐπὶ πρὸς ἡμᾶς σου σήμερον τὴν ἐν ζωή καὶ τῶν βανατῶν, τὸ ἁγαθὸν καὶ τὸ κακόν. 16. ἐάν δὲ ἐπισκόπησας τὰς ἐντολὰς κυρίου τοῦ θεοῦ σου, ὥσα ἐγὼ ἐνέτελλομαι σοι σήμερον, ἀγαπᾶν κύριον τοῦ θεοῦ σου “See, I have given before you today life and death, good and evil. 16. Now if you listen to the commandments of the Lord your God that I command you today, to love the Lord your God.” Though it might be argued in this and other places that the smoother text derives from an attempt to correct the perceived difficulty in the original, that seems unlikely. Only an inclination to privilege BHS on other grounds would lead one to set aside the LXX Vorlage in this instance and argue for a shorter text.

2 “Deuteronomy 19:3 Prepare the Way, or Estimate the Distance?” ET 25 (1994) 333–341. Dion shows that the LXX reading does not reflect any form of the root קלח per the Masoretic vocalization but rather קלח, a verb used in the Hebrew Bible for measuring.

In 32.43, the Greek is twice as long as the extant Hebrew text—eight lines to four hemistichs. The longer text is not merely an elaboration of the Hebrew but adds significant details (including a reference to “all the angels of God”), which, given the generally conservative attitude of Deut\textsuperscript{10}, are best explained as text-based. A text from Qumran representing in part the source text of the LXX is extant.\textsuperscript{3} Let it suffice to note that the next verse (44) is also longer in Greek than in BHS, preposing the equivalent of “And Moses wrote this song in that day and taught it to the sons of Israel.” BHS is not identically rendered either. BHS’s equivalent of “all the words of this song” appear in Greek as “all the words of this law,” producing two subscriptions to the narrative. Indeed, throughout this entire chapter and the following one, there are notable differences between the Greek and the Hebrew.

Variance between the verse numbers of BHS and Greek exists in some chapters. Chapter 5 provides a good example. The order of the apodictic commandments is adultery, murder, theft, unlike the Hebrew (murder, adultery, theft) and unlike Exodus (adultery, theft, murder). Likewise, the list of clean and unclean food in chapter 14 shows variation in the number of some verses vis-à-vis BHS.

Less important, but equally intriguing, are the instances where, for reasons not always apparent, Deut\textsuperscript{10} chose to translate rather than transliterate place names or vice versa. Examples appear throughout with no observable pattern. In 34.6, “in the valley” (\textit{κωπή}) is read as a proper name “in Gai” (έν Γαί); Abib (\textit{αβιβ}) and Pesach (\textit{πάσχα}) are rendered respectively as τά νέα “of new things” and το πάσχο “the pascha (= passover)” in 16.1 ff. The oft-quoted passage in 26.5 \textit{ο νεών Πάσχα} “a wandering Aramean was my father” becomes in Greek Συριαν ἀπεβαλεν σπατίρι μου “my ancestor abandoned Syria.” The difference might simply be due to wrong word division of an unpointed Hebrew text, or may be a contextualized interpretation to connect with “going down into Egypt.”

\textbf{The NETS Translation of Deuteronomion}

The problems inherent in “translating a translation” assume unique dimensions in each specific translation unit when one tries, in line with NETS policy, to achieve not only semantic fidelity to the Greek but at the same time reflect something of the style in which it has been translated. Vis-à-vis the NRSV as base text for NETS, this can mean that the former has been altered for either one or both of the above reasons.

Deut\textsuperscript{10}, as has been noted, is closely tied to his source text both in terms of what he understands the text to mean and in terms of its text linguistics. Therefore, when variation is present in the translation of common expressions, it seems fair to conclude that he was acting intentionally. I have striven to reflect this consistency in NETS Deuteronomion in order to signal precisely what is present in Greek. For instance, ἐγγονα and σπέρμα (τα) are both acceptably translated as “offspring”; indeed, the NRSV translates some of their Hebrew equivalents (\textit{בנֵי/σπέρμα(τα)} and \textit{בָּן/יוֹס}) in this way. I have, however, reserved “offspring” as the translation of only σπέρμα (τα) and have chosen “progeny” consistently to translate ἐγγονα; ψώς is, of course, “son.” What is relevant here for the NETS reader is that progeny will always indicate a particular word choice of Deut\textsuperscript{10} without indicating his decision about the Hebrew text; offspring, when found in the same place in NETS and the NRSV, may point to different Hebrew/Greek originals.

The reader will also find certain seemingly inelegant renderings for the Hebraisms so prominent throughout Deuteronomion. For instance, in expressions like φυλαξέως ποιεῖν, ὁκοῦστέ ποιεῖν, and so forth, I have regularly chosen “to perform” as a translation for the infinitive ποιεῖν, and “guard” rather than “keep” for the imperative, making for the awkward “be watchful to perform” or “listen to perform.” I have also sought to reflect the imitative style of Deut\textsuperscript{10}’s treatment of Hebrew free infinitives juxtaposed to cognate verbs. So rather than translating έων οἴκοι ὁκοῦστε as “if you will only hear” (cf. NRSV), NETS displays “in/with hearing you will hear” and similar expressions throughout. Similarly, pleonastic expressions, as mentioned earlier, have generally been translated in full. The reason for this approach is not a desire for dogged literalism, but a desire to reflect the fact that Deut\textsuperscript{10} under the influence of his source text produced non-idiomatic Greek.

The treatment of the formulaic language should be easy to decode, but a few popular choices follow: κλήρος = “allotment,” \textit{έν κλήρῳ} = “as an allotment,” κληρονομία = “inheritance,” φυλάγματα = “orders,” προστάγματα = “ordinances,” δικαιώματα = “statutes,” κρίματα = “judgments,” μορφύρια = “testimonies.” Such stereotyping is, of course, not always the case. This is particularly true of the frequently recurring verbal forms of κληρονομέω. This verb and its cognates almost always translate irrespective of its Hebrew stem. Thus the appearance of κληρονομέω in the Greek text signals, in the first instance, only that the translator was formally reflecting the Hebrew before him. Following DeutTr’s approach to his Hebrew, I have utilized the English word “inherit” as a sort of default rendering of κληρονομέω in Deuteronomion. The NETS reader may thus find some degree of tension at times between the word “inherit” and its context. When the choice of “inherit” would produce not simply tension but ambiguity in English, I have employed words like “possess,” “dispossess” or “take possession of” as alternatives.

Again, I have routinely retained NRSV’s choice of “to bring” (whether in or out) as a translation for the Hebrew verb (.repeat mostly in the Hiphil) underlying both ἔδωκα and ἔδωκα, although in some instances “to lead” seemed more appropriate. The simplex form of the verb ἔδωκα, however, was always translated “to lead.” Consistent with NETS principles, the NRSV’s reading was retained when the Greek text is equivalent to the Hebrew, with deviations occurring only when the NRSV’s word choice would violate NETS objectives on other grounds. I have chosen “guest” as the translation for Greek πρόσολος even though NRSV’s “resident alien” might suffice. Also, where DeutTr used παροικος, I have chosen the word “sojourn(er),” reserving “foreigner” for the translation of ἀλλότριος and cognates.

Similarly, while in the NRSV “slave” is used without distinction to translate Hebrew vb (and its cognates, DeutTr differentiated types of servitude and servants. Thus, when οἰκτείς appears in Greek, I have generally chosen “domestic” as the translation, reserving “slave” for δοῦλος, and “male slave” and “female slave” respectively as the translations for παῖς and παῖδισκε. When the gender of the male slave is in doubt, παῖς is translated in some instances simply as “slave.”

Of the same nature is the undifferentiated use of the verb “destroy” throughout the NRSV to translate a number of Hebrew verbs. By far the most frequently used verb for “destruction” in Greek Deuteronomy is ἔκτριβω, a neologism shared with other Pentateuchal books. I have chosen “utterly destroy” as its default translation. The unqualified word “destroy” was reserved for the next most frequently used Greek verb, ἀπολλύω and its cognates. In the handful of instances when ἀναλίσκω and its cognates are used, I have chosen “eliminate,” “consume,” or “devour” depending on context, whereas for ἐκτρίβω, I routinely select “wipe out” or perhaps “rub out” in keeping with its sense in Greek. I generally have been sparingly with footnotes, assuming that readers who know Greek will check the original and those who do not will only be bogged down by excessive details.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE
Work of this kind depends on any number of resources, and I am happy to recognize my debts. Beyond the standard grammars and lexical aids, I was helped especially by the CAISS resources, notably the Parallel Aligned Text of Deuteronomy, by Wevers’ Text History of the Greek Deuteronomy (=MSU XIII; Göttingen; Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1978), particularly chapter 7 dealing with the critical text of Deuteronomy, by his article on “The Attitude of the Greek Translator of Deuteronomy toward his Parent Text” (Beiträge zur alttestamentlichen Theologie: Festschrift für W. Zimmerli zum 70. Geburtstag [H. Donner, R. Hanhart, R. Smend, eds.; Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1977] 498–505) and his Notes on the Greek Text of Deuteronomy cited above. This latter was unusually helpful when obscure lexical items or unusual Greek expressions made for ambiguous or impossible readings. In addition, C. Dogniez and M. Harl’s French translation, Le Deutéronome BA (1992), though translating primarily Rahlf’s edition and operating on different principles from NETS, took account of the Göttingen apparatuses and thus was of inestimable value in many ways. Until a commentary on NETS Deuteronomion is available, the reader is well advised to consult the extensive introduction and copious notes of this edition. Older English translations of Brenton and Thomson provided occasional assistance, but given their respective dates and their diplomatic nature, their help was not as valuable.

It remains then for me only to thank formally Albert Pietersma, general co-editor of the NETS project, whose insightful critique of a few sample pages of this translation helped sharpen my understanding of the finer nuances of the project on which we were jointly embarking. Whatever infelicities and inconsistencies remain are, however, entirely my own.

MELVIN K. H. PETERS
These are the words that Moyses spoke to all Israel beyond the Jordan—in the wilderness, towards the west near the Red Sea, among Pharan, Tophol and Lobon and Courtasa—and Goldplacesb—a route of eleven days from Choreb, by way of Mount Seir, up to Kades Barne. And it happened in the fortieth year, in the eleventh month, on the first of the month, that Moyses spoke to all the sons of Israel according to all that the Lord had commanded him for them. After he struck Seon king of the Amorrites, who lived in Hesebon, and Og king of Basan, who lived in Ashtaroth and in Edrain, across from the Jordan, in the land of Moab, Moyses began to clarify this law, saying:

6 The Lord our God spoke to us at Choreb, saying, “Let it be sufficient for you to live at this mountain. 7Turn, and depart, you, and go into the mountain of the Amorrites and to all those who live around Araba, to mountain and plain and to the south and seacoast, the land of Chananites and Anti-Lebanon, as far as the great river Euphrates. 8See, I have given the land before you; when you have gone in, inherit the land that I swore to your fathers, to Abraam and Isaak and Jakob, to give to them and to their offspring after them.”

9 And I said to you in that time, saying: “I will not be able alone to bear you. 10The Lord your God has multiplied you, and look, you are today like the stars of the sky in number. 11May the Lord, the God of your fathers, add to you, as you are, a thousand times and bless you, as he has spoken to you! 12How will I be able alone to bear your hardship and your substance and your disputes? 13Assign for yourselves men, wise and discerning and prudent for your tribes, and I will appoint them as your leaders.” 14And you answered me and said, “The word which you have spoken to do is good.” 15And I took from you men, wise and discerning and prudent, and appointed them to be leaders over you—officers of thousands and officers of hundreds and officers of fifties and officers of tens and recorders for your judges. 16And I commanded your judges at that time, saying: “Give a full hearing among your brothers, and judge rightly among your brothers, and judge rightly between a man and between his brother and between his guest. 17You shall not recognize the person when judging; like the small so you shall judge the great; you shall not shrink from the face of a person, for the judgment is God’s. And the matter, if it be too hard for you, you will bring it to me, and I will hear it.” 18And I commanded you in that time all the things that you should do.

19 And after we departed from Choreb, we went through all that great and terrible wilderness that you saw, by route of the mountain of the Amorrite, just as the Lord our God had commanded us, and we came as far as Kades Barne. 20And I said to you, “You have come as far as the mountain of the Amorrite, which the Lord our God is giving you. 21See, the Lord your God has given over to you the land before you. After you have gone up, inherit, as the Lord, the God of your fathers, said to you; do not fear, neither be afraid.”

22 And all of you came to me and said, “Let us send men ahead of us, and let them explore the land for us, and let them report to us a decision regarding the route through which we shall go up on it and the cities into which we will come into them.” 23And the matter was pleasing to me, and I took from you twelve men, one man a tribe. 24And after they had set out, they went up into the mountain and went as far as Cluster Ravine and surveyed it. 25And they took in their hands some of the fruit of the land and brought it down to us and said, “The land is good that the Lord our God is giving us.”

26 And you did not want to go up. And you disobeyed the word of the Lord your God, and you grumbled in your tents and said, “It is because the Lord hates us that he brought us out of the land of Egypt, to give us into the hands of the Amorrites to destroy us utterly. 28Where are we going up? Our brothers have disquieted our hearts, saying, ‘A great and numerous nation and more powerful than we, and cities, large and walled up to the sky! Nay, even sons of giants we have seen there!’” 29And I said to you, “Do not be alarmed, neither be afraid of them. 30The Lord your God, who goes before you, he will fight them together with you, according to all which he did for you in the land of Egypt and in this wilderness which you saw, how the Lord your God nursed you, as some person would nurse his son, along all the way that you went until you came to this place. 32And in this matter you did not believe the Lord your God, 33who went before you on the way to choose a place for you, leading you by fire at night, showing you the route whereby you should go upon it, and in a cloud by day.”

34 And the Lord heard the sound of your words and, being provoked, he swore: “If one of these men shall see this good land that I swore to your fathers! 36Except Chaleb son of lephonhe, he shall see it, and to him I will give the land on which he trod, and to his sons, because he followed closely the things of the Lord.” 37Even with me the Lord was angry on your account, saying, “Not even you shall enter there. 38Iesous son of Naue, who stands beside you, he shall enter there; strengthened him, for he will take possession of it for Israel. 39And every young child, who today does not know good or evil, they shall enter there, and to them I will give it, and they shall inherit it. 40And when you have turned, march into the wilderness, by the route toward the Red Sea.”

41 And you answered and said to me, “We have sinned against the Lord our God! Let us go up and fight, in accordance with all that the Lord our God commanded us.” And, each of you, when you had strapped on your battle gear and had gathered, went up into the mountain. 42And the Lord said to me, “Say to them, ‘You shall not go up, neither shall you fight, for I am not with you, and you shall not be wiped out before your enemies.’” 14 And I spoke to you, but you did not listen to me. And you transgressed the word of the Lord, and by force you went up into the mountain. 15 And the Amorrite who lived in that mountain came out to meet you and chased you as bees might do. And they were wounding you from Seir as far as Herma. 16 And when you sat down, you were weeping before the Lord, and the Lord neither listened to your voice nor paid you any attention. 17 And you transgressed the word of the Lord, and so you were not given any of their land as an allotment, for I will not give any of the land of the sons of Amman to you as an allotment, because I have given it to the sons of Lot as an allotment.” 18 (It will be reckoned as a land of Rephain, for the Rephain formerly inhabited it, and the Ammanites name them Zomzommin, a nation, great and numerous and rather powerful, just as the Enakim, and the Lord destroyed them from before them, and they took possession and were settled in place of them. 19 Just as theyc did to the sons of Esau, who live in Seir, as theyc wiped out the Chorrite before them, so they took possession and were settled in their place even to this day. 20 As for the Heuites, who live in Haseroth as far as Gaza, and the Cappadocians, who came from Cappadocia, they wiped them out and were settled in their place.) 21 “Now then, arise, and depart, and pass through the ravine of Arnon. See, I have given them to your feet, and to the Amorrite of Hesebon and his land. Begin to inherit; engage him in battle. 22 On this day begin to put your trembling and your fear upon all the nations beneath the sky who, when they hear your name, will be troubled and have pains because of you.”

26 And I sent ambassadors from the wilderness of Kedemoth to King Seon of Hesebon with words of peace, saying: 27 “I will pass by through your land; I will travel along the road; I will turn neither right nor left. 28 You will sell me food for money, and I will eat, and you will sell me water for money, and I will drink. Only that I will pass by on foot—29 just as the sons of Esau who live in Seir did for me and likewise the Moabites who live in Arer—until I pass the Jordan into the land that the Lord our God is giving us.” 30 And King Seon of Hesebon did not want to let us pass by him, for the Lord our God had hardened his spirit and prevailed over his heart in order that he might be delivered into your hands, as it is on this day.

31 And the Lord said to me, “See, I have begun to give King Seon the Amorrite of Hesebon and his land over before you. Begin to inherit his land.” 32 And Seon came out to meet us, he and all his people for battle at Lasa, 33 and the Lord our God gave him over before us, and we struck him down, and his sons and all his people. 34 And we captured all the cities at that time, and we utterly destroyed every city in order, and their women and their children we did not leave alive. 35 Only the cattle we plundered, and the spoils of the cities we took: 36 From Aror, which is along the edge of the Wadi Arnon, and the city that is in the ravine, even as far as the mountain of Galaad. There was not a city which escaped us. The Lord our God gave over all of them into our hands. 37 We did not enter, however, into the land of the sons of Amman, all the regions bordering the Wadi Iabok as well as the cit-

I.e. the sons of Esau
And after we had turned, we went up the road to Basan. And King Og of Basan came out to meet us, he and all his people, for battle at Edrain. And the Lord said to me, "Do not fear him, for I have given him over into your hands, and all his people and all his land. And you shall do to him as you did to King Seon of the Amorrites, who used to live in Hesebon." And the Lord our God delivered him into our hands, even King Og of Basan and all his people. And we struck him down until we did not leave him offspring. And at that time we captured all his cities; there was no city that we did not take from them—sixty cities, all the environs of Argob, the kingdom of Og in Basan. All these were strong cities, high walls, gates and bars, besides the very many cities of the Pherezites. We utterly destroyed them, as we did King Seon of Hesebon, and we utterly destroyed every city in order, and the women and the children. And all the cattle and the spoils of the cities we plundered for ourselves.

And at that time we took out of the hands of the two Amorrite kings who were beyond the Jordan the land from the Wadi Arnon up to Haermon (the Phoenicians named Haermon Sanior, and the Amorrite named it Sanir). All were cities of the hill country, just as the Lord our God had commanded us.

And now, Israel, hear the statutes and judgments that I am teaching you to do today so that you may live and, after you have entered, may inherit the land that the Lord, the God of your fathers, is giving you. You shall not add to the word I command you, and you shall not take away from it. Keep the commandments of the Lord your God which I command you today.

And I gave to the half-tribe of Manasseh the rest of Galaad and all of Basan, Og's kingdom, and all the environs of Argob, all of said Basan. (It will be reckoned a land of Raphain.) And Iair son of Manasseh took all the environs of Argob as far as the borders of Gargasi and Homachathi, and he named them after his name—Basan Hauoth Iair—until this day. And to Machir I gave Galaad. And to Rouben and to Gad I gave from Galaad as far as the Wadi Arnon, the middle of the wadi being a boundary, and up to the labok, the wadi being the boundary for the sons of Amman, the Araba also and the Jordan, being a boundary of Machanarath even up to the sea of Araba, the Salt Sea, under Aseoth of Phasga on the east.

And at that time I commanded you, saying: "The Lord your God gave you this land as an allotment; proceed fully armed before your brothers, the sons of Israel, every mighty one of you. Only your wives and your children and and your cattle—I know that you have much cattle—let them settle in your cities that I have given to you until the Lord your God gives your brothers rest, as also you and they too will inherit the land that the Lord your God is giving them beyond the Jordan, and you will return, each one to his inheritance that I have given to you." And I commanded Iesous at that time, saying: "Your eyes have seen everything that the Lord your God has done to these two kings; so the Lord will do to all the kingdoms which you are about to cross into there. You shall not be fearful of them, for the Lord your God himself will fight for you."

At that time, too, I entreated the Lord, saying: "O Lord, Lord, you have begun to show your attendant your strength and your power and your strong hand and your high arm. For what god is there in the sky or on the earth who will do as you have done, and according to your strength? After I cross over, therefore, I will see this good land, which is beyond the Jordan, this good mountainous area and the Anti-Lebanon." And the Lord ignored me on your account and did not listen to me. And the Lord said to me, "Let it be sufficient for you! Do not continue any longer to speak to me of this matter! Go up to the top of Hewn, and look with your eyes to the sea and the north and the southwest and the east, and see with your eyes, for you shall not cross over this Jordan. And command Iesous, and strengthen him, and encourage him, because he will cross over ahead of this people, and it is he who will secure for them the possession of the land that you have seen." And we remained in a glen near the house of Phogor.

And now, Israel, hear the statutes and judgments that I am teaching you to do today so that you may live and, after you have entered, may inherit the land that the Lord, the God of your fathers, is giving you. You shall not add to the word I command you, and you shall not take away from it. Keep the commandments of the Lord your God which I command you today. Your eyes have seen all that the Lord your God did to Beelphegor—that, every person who went after Beelphegor, the Lord your God wiped him out from among you, but those of you who held fast to the Lord your God are all alive today.

See, I have shown you statutes and ordinances, as the Lord has commanded me, to do so in the land into which you are entering there to inherit it. And you shall keep and do them, because this is your wisdom and discernment before all the nations, as many as might hear all these statutes, and they will say, "Look, this great nation is a wise and understanding people!" For what sort of great nation has a god for itself so near to them as the Lord our God is in everything whenever we invoke him? And what sort of great nation has for itself statutes and righteous judgment in accord with all this law that I am giving before you today? Take heed to yourself, and guard your soul closely, lest you forget all the things that your eyes have not be far from your heart all the days of your life, and you shall direct your sons and your sons’ sons 10about the day when you stood before the Lord your God at Choreb, on the day of the assembly when the Lord said to me, “Assemble the people to me, and let them hear my words so that they may learn to fear me all the days as long as they live on the earth and may teach their sons,” 11and you approached and stood at the foot of the mountain, and the mountain was burning with fire up to the sky: darkness, gloom, tempest. 12And the Lord spoke to you from the midst of the fire. You heard the sound of words but you did not notice a likeness, only a voice. 13And he announced to you his covenant, which he commanded you to do, the ten words, and he wrote them on two stone tablets. 14And the Lord commanded me at that time to teach you statutes and ordinances for you to do them in the land into which you are entering there to inherit it.

15 And guard your souls closely, because you did not notice a likeness on the day the Lord spoke to you in the mountain from the midst of the fire. 16Do not act lawlessly and make for yourselves an engraved likeness, any kind of icon—a likeness of male or female, 17a likeness of any animal of those that are on the earth, a likeness of any winged bird that flies under the sky, 18a likeness of any reptile that creeps on the ground, a likeness of any fish that is in the waters beneath the earth. 19And do not, when you look up to the sky and see the sun and the moon and the stars, even any ornament of the sky, be led astray and do obeisance to them and serve them—those things that the Lord your God has allotted to all the nations beneath the sky. 20But God has taken you and brought you out of the iron furnace, out of Egypt, to become for him an allotted people, as in this day.

21 And the Lord was angry with me because of the things being said by you, and he swore that I would not cross this Jordan and that I would not enter into the land that the Lord God is giving to you as an allotment. 22For I am going to die in this land, and I am not crossing over this Jordan, but you are going to cross over, and you will take possession of this good land. 23As for you, take care, lest you forget the covenant of the Lord your God, which he made with you, and make for yourselves an engraved likeness of all of the things that the Lord your God has instructed you. 24For the Lord your God is a devouring fire, a jealous god.

25 Now if you bear sons and sons’ sons and live long in the land and you act lawlessly and make an engraved likeness of anything and do what is evil before the Lord your God, to provoke him to anger, 26I call sky and earth to witness against you today that by destruction you will perish from the land that you are crossing the Jordan to inherit there; you will not prolong days on it but will be wiped out with a wiping. 27And the Lord will scatter you among all the nations, and you will be left few in number among the nations into which the Lord will bring you there. 28And there you will serve other gods, works of human hands, wood and stone, who will neither see nor hear nor eat nor smell. 29And there you will seek the Lord your God, and you will find him when you seek him out with your whole heart and with your whole soul, 30in your distress. 31And all these words shall find you in the end of days, and you will return to the Lord your God and listen to his voice. 32Because the Lord your God is a compassionate god, he will neither abandon you nor wipe you out; he will not forget the covenant with your fathers that he swore to them.

32 Ask of former days which occurred long before your own, from the day that God created a human being on the earth; ask at the end of the sky up to the end of the sky whether a thing this great has ever happened, whether such a thing has been heard of; 33whether any nation has ever heard the voice of a living god speaking from the midst of the fire, as you have heard, and you lived, 34whether a god ever attempted to go and take a nation for himself from the midst of a nation, by trial and by signs and by wonders and by war and by a strong hand and a high arm and by great exhibits, like all which the Lord your God did in Egypt before you, as you were looking on 35so that you might know that the Lord your God he is God, and there is no other besides him. 36From the sky his voice became audible to discipline you, and on earth he showed you his great fire, and you heard his words coming from the midst of the fire. 37Because he loved your fathers, he also chose you, their offspring after them, and himself brought you out of Egypt, by his great power, 38to destroy utterly before you great nations, and mightier than yourselves, to bring you in, to give you their land to inherit, as you have today. 39And you will know today and bear in mind that the Lord your God, he is God in the sky above and on the earth beneath, and there is no other besides him. 40And you will keep his statutes and his commandments, which I command you today, so that it may be well with you and with your sons after you so that you may be long-lived in the land that the Lord your God is giving you for all your days.

41 Then Moyses set apart three cities beyond the Jordan toward the rising of the sun 42for the murderer to flee there, whoever might unintentionally kill his neighbor, and he did not hate him before yesterday and the third day, and he shall flee to one of these cities and live: 43Bosor in the wilderness on the plain country belonging to Rouben and Ramoth in Galaad belonging to Gaddi and Gaulon in Basan belonging to Manasse.

44 This is the law that Moyses set before the sons of Israel. 45These are the testimonies and the statutes and the judgments that Moyses spoke to the sons of Israel when they had come out of the land of Egypt, 46beyond the Jordan in the valley near the house of Phogor, in the land of King Seon of the Amorrites, who used to live in Hesebon, whom8 Moyses and the sons of Israel defeated when they had come out of the land of Egypt. 47And they took possession of his land and the land of King Og of Basan, two kings of the Amorrites who were beyond the Jordan toward the rising of the sun, 48from Aroer, which is on the edge of the Wadi Arnon, and to Mount Seon (that is, Hae- rmon), 49all the Araba beyond the Jordan toward the rising of the sun, east under Aseodoth quarried from rock.

And Moyses called all Israel and said to them: 5Hear, O Israel, the statutes and judgments that I am speaking in your ears this day, and you shall learn them and be watchful to perform them. 2The Lord your God established a covenant with you at Choreb. 3Not with your fathers did the Lord establish this covenant, but with all of you here alive today. 4The Lord spoke with you face-to-face at the mountain, from the midst of the fire, 5and I stood between the Lord and you at that time, to report to you the words of the Lord, for you were afraid because of the fire and did not go up into the mountain, saying:

11You shall not take the name of the Lord your God in vain. For the Lord will never acquit the one who takes his name in vain. 12Keep the day of the sabbaths to consecrate it, as the Lord your God commanded you. 13Six days you shall labor and do all your labor, 14but on the seventh day there is Sabbath to the Lord your God; you shall not do in it any labor—you and your son and your daughter, your male slave and your female slave, your ox and your draft animal and any animal of yours and the guest within your gates so that your male slave and your female slave may rest as well as you. 15And you shall remember that you were a domestic in the land of Egypt, and the Lord your God brought you out from there with a strong hand and with a high arm; therefore, the Lord your God instructed you to keep the day of the sabbaths and to consecrate it.

16Honor your father and your mother, as the Lord your God commanded you, so that it may be well with you and that you may be long-lived in the land that the Lord your God is giving you. 17(18) You shall not commit adultery.

28And the Lord heard the sound of your words when you were speaking to me, and the Lord said to me: “I have heard the sound of the words of this people, what they have spoken to you; all that they have spoken they have spoken correctly. 29Who shall grant that their heart be in them in such a way that they fear me and keep my commandments in all their days so that it might go well with them and with their sons forever? 30Go, say to them, ‘Return to your houses.’ 31But you, stand here with me, and I will speak to you the commandments and the statutes and the judgments that you shall teach them, and let them do them in the land that I am giving them as an allotment.’

32And you shall be watchful to do as the Lord your God has commanded; you shall not turn right or left, 33to go according to all the way that the Lord your God has commanded so that he may give you rest and that it may go well with you and that you may prolong your days upon the land that you shall inherit.

6And these are the commandments and the statutes and the ordinances that the Lord your God commanded to teach you to do so in the land which you are entering there to inherit so that you may fear the Lord your God, to keep all his statutes and his commandments that I command you today, you and your sons and your sons’ sons, all the days of your life so that you may be long-lived. 3Now hear, O Israel, and be watchful to perform so that it may be well with you and that you may multiply greatly, just as the Lord, the God of your fathers, has spoken, to give you a land flowing with milk and honey.

4 And these are the statutes and the judgments, which the Lord commanded to the sons of Israel in the wilderness as they were coming out from the land of Egypt. Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord. 5And you shall love the Lord your God with the whole of your mind and with the whole of your soul and with the whole of your power.

6And these words that I command you today shall be in your heart and in your soul. 7And you shall teach them to your sons and talk on them while sitting at home and going on the road and lying down and rising up. 8And you shall bind them as a sign on your hand, and they shall be things unshakable before your eyes, 9and you shall write them on the doorposts of your houses and of your gates.

10 And it shall be, whenever the Lord your God brings you into the land that he swore to your fathers, to Abraam and Isaak and Iakob, to give you large and fine cities that you did not build, 11houses full of all sorts of goods that you did not fill, dug cisterns that you did not dig out, vineyards and olive groves that you did not plant. And when you eat and become full, 12take care for yourself, lest you forget the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of a house of slavery.

13The Lord your God you shall fear, and him you shall serve, and to him you shall cling, and by his name you shall swear. 14Do not go after other gods from the gods of the nations around you, 15because the Lord your God, who is present with you, is a jealous god. Lest the Lord your God, being angered with wrath against you, destroy you utterly from the face of the earth.

16 You shall not tempt the Lord your God, as you tempted in the Temptation. 17By guarding, you shall keep the commandments of the Lord God, the testimonies and the statutes that he has commanded you. 18And you shall do what is pleasing and good before the Lord your God, so that it may be well for you and that you may go in and inherit the good land that the Lord swore to your fathers, 19to chase out all your enemies before you, as he said.

20 And it shall be, when your son asks you tomorrow, saying, "What are the testimonies and the statutes and the judgments that the Lord our God has commanded you?" 21that you shall say to your son, "We were domestics to Pharao in the land of Egypt, and the Lord brought us from there with a strong hand and with a high arm. 22And the Lord gave before us signs and wonders, great and evil in Egypt, against Pharao and against his household. 23And he brought us out from there in order to bring us in, to give to us this land that he swore to give to our fathers. 24And the Lord commanded us to perform all these statutes, to fear the Lord our God, so that it may be well for us all our days so that we may live, as it is today.

25If we are watchful to perform all these commandments before the Lord our God, as he has commanded us, there will also be mercy for us."

7 Now if the Lord your God brings you into the land that you are entering there to inherit and shall clear away great and numerous nations before you—the Chettite and the Gergesite and the Amorrite and the Chananie and the Pherzite and the Heuite and the lebusite, seven nations numerous and mightier than you—2and the Lord your God shall deliver them into your hands and you shall strike them, by annihilation you shall annihilate them. You shall not establish a covenant with them, neither shall you have mercy on them.

3Neither shall you intermarry with them. You shall not give your daughter to his son, and you shall not take his daughter for your son. 4for she will turn away your son from me, and he will serve other gods. And the Lord will be angered with wrath against you and will utterly destroy you quickly. 5But thus you shall do to them: you shall break down their altars and smash their steles and cut down their groves and burn the carved objects of their gods with fire. 6For you are a people holy to the Lord your God, and the Lord your God has chosen you to be for him an exceptional people, more than all the nations on the face of the earth.

7 It was not because you are more numerous than all nations that the Lord chose you and picked you—for you are very few in comparison with all the nations. 8Rather, because the Lord loved you, and since he was keeping the oath that he swore to your fathers, the Lord brought you out with a strong hand and with a high arm and redeemed you from a house of slavery, from the hand of Pharao king of Egypt. 9And you shall know that the Lord your God, he is God, the faithful God, who keeps the covenant and mercy with those who love him and keep his commandments, to a thousand generations, 10and who repays those who hate him to their face, to destroy them utterly. And he will not delay with those who hate him; to their face he will repay them. 11And you will keep the commandments and the statutes and these judgments—that I command you today to do.

12 And it shall be, whenever you hear all these statutes and keep and do them, that the Lord your God will guard closely for you the covenant and the mercy as he swore to your fathers, 13and he will love you and bless you and multiply you, and he will bless the progeny of your belly and the fruit of your land, your grain and your wine and your oil, the herds of your oxen and the flocks of your sheep, in the land that the Lord swore to your fathers to give you. 14Blessed you shall be among all the nations; there shall not be an impotent one nor a sterile one among you or your cattle. 15And the Lord will remove from you every illness, and all the dread diseases of Egypt that you have seen and that you experienced he will not inflict on... you, but he will inflict them on all who hate you.

16 And you shall eat all the spoils of the nations that the Lord your God is giving to you; your eye shall not be sparing to them, and you shall not serve their gods, for this is a stumbling block to you.

17 But if you say in your mind, “This nation is more numerous than I; how will I be able to destroy them utterly?” 18 you shall not be afraid of them. With remembrance you shall remember what the Lord your God did to Pharaoh and to all the Egyptians, 19 the great trials that your eyes saw, the signs and those great wonders, the strong hand and the high arm as the Lord your God brought you out. The Lord our God will do thus to all the nations of whose faces you are afraid. 20 And the Lord your God will send the hornets against them until even the ones who have been left and those hidden 2 from you are wiped out. 21 You shall not be wounded before them, for the Lord your God with you is a great and strong god. 22 And the Lord your God will consume these nations before you little by little; you will not be able to consume them quickly, lest the land become a wilderness and the wild animals be multiplied against you. 23 And the Lord your God will deliver them into your hands, and he will destroy them with a great destruction until he has destroyed them utterly. 24 And he will deliver their kings into your hands, and you shall destroy their name from that place; no one will be able to stand up against you until you have destroyed them utterly. 25 The carved objects of their gods you shall burn with fire. You shall not desire silver and gold from them, and you shall not take for yourself, lest you stumble by means of it, for it is an abomination to the Lord your God. 26 And you shall not bring an abomination into your house, or you will be an anathema like it. With an offense you shall take offense, and with abhorrence you shall abhor it, for it is an anathema.

8 All the commandments that I command you today you shall be watchful to perform so that you may live and increase and go in and inherit the land that the Lord swore to your fathers. 2 And you shall remember all the way that the Lord your God has led you in the wilderness so that he might distress you and test you, that you might know the way of the Lord your God. 3 And he distressed you and let you hunger and fed you with manna with which your fathers were not acquainted in order to announce to you that man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that goes out through the mouth of God man shall live. 4 Your clothes were not worn off you; your feet did not become hard; look, for forty years! 5 And you shall know in your heart that as a certain person might discipline his son, so the Lord your God will discipline you. 6 And you shall keep the commandments of the Lord your God, to go in his ways and to fear him.

7 For the Lord your God is bringing you into a good and extensive land in which there are wadis of waters, springs of underground waters, flowing out through the plains and through the mountains, a land of wheat and barley, vines, figs, pomegranates, a land of olive trees of oil and of honey, a land in which you will eat your bread without poverty and will not be in need of anything there in, a land whose stones are iron and from its mountains you will mine copper. 10 And you shall eat and be filled and bless the Lord your God on the good land that he gave you.

11 Take heed for yourself lest you forget the Lord your God, so as not to keep his commandments and his judgments and his statutes, which I command you today. 12 Lest, when you have eaten and been filled and, having built fine houses and lived in them, 13 and when your oxen and sheep have multiplied and when silver and gold have been multiplied to you and when all that you own has been multiplied to you, 14 you become exalted in heart and forget the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of a house of slavery, 15 who led you through that great and fearsome wilderness, where there was a biting snake and a scorpion and thirst, where there was no water, who brought out for you from flint rock a spring of water, 16 who fed you with manna in the wilderness that your fathers did not know so that he might distress you and test you, that you might do well at your end. 17 Do not say in your heart, “My strength and the mastery of my hand have produced for me this great power.” 18 And you shall remember the Lord your God, for it is he who gives you strength to produce power—and so that he may uphold his covenant that he swore to your fathers, as today. 19 And it shall be, if by forgetting you forget the Lord your God and go after other gods and serve them and do obeisance to them, I call you to witness today that with destruction you shall perish. 20 As also the remaining nations, which the Lord is destroying before you, so shall you perish, because you have not heard the voice of the Lord your God.

9 Hear, O Israel! You are crossing the Jordan today, to go in to dispossess nations rather larger and mightier than you, cities great and walled up to the sky. 2 A great people, both numerous and tall, sons of Enak, whom you know and of whom you have heard: “Who can stand up against sons of Enak?” 3 And you shall know today that the Lord your God—he proceeds before you; a devouring fire is he; he will destroy them utterly, and he will divert them before you, and you will destroy them quickly, as the Lord has said to you.

4 When the Lord your God eliminates these nations before you, do not say in your heart, saying: “It is because of my righteousness that the Lord has brought me in to inherit this good land,” but because of the impiety of these nations the Lord will destroy them utterly before you. 5 It is not because of your righteousness or the holiness of your heart that you are going in to inherit their land, but because of the impiety of these nations the Lord will destroy them utterly before you, and in order that he may uphold the covenant that the Lord swore to your fathers, to Abraam and Isaak and Iakob.

6 And you shall know, today, that it is not because of your righteousness the Lord your God is giving you this good land to inherit, for you are a stiff-necked people. 7 Remember, do not forget how you provoked the Lord your God in the wilderness; from the day you came out of Egypt until you came into this place, you have continued being disobedient regarding things concerning the Lord.

8 Even at Choreb you provoked the Lord, and the Lord was angry enough with you to destroy you utterly, 9 when I was going up the mountain to receive the stone tablets, the tablets of the covenant that the Lord established with you, and I stayed on the mountain forty days and forty nights; I did not eat bread nor did I drink water. 10 And the Lord gave me the two stone tablets written with the finger of God, and on them had been written all the words that the Lord had spoken to you at the mountain. 11 And it happened, throughout forty days and forty nights, that the Lord gave to me the two stone tablets, tablets of covenant. 12 And the Lord said to me, "Get up, go down quickly from here, for your people whom you brought from the land of Egypt have acted lawlessly. They have digressed quickly from the way that you commanded them; they have made for themselves a molten image." 13 And the Lord said to me, "I have spoken to you once and twice, saying: I have spoken to you, and look, it is a stiff-necked people. 14 I will not go up among your people whom you brought from the land of Egypt, in fear that I would destroy them utterly, 15 for I am slow of speech and of tongue. 16 And when I saw that you had sinned against the Lord your God and had made for yourselves a molten image, and I had digressed from the way that the Lord had commanded you, 17 then having taken hold of the two tablets, I flung them from my two hands and smashed them before you. 18 And I petitioned before the Lord a second time as also the first, forty days and forty nights; I did not eat bread, and I did not drink water on account of all your sins that you had sinned, by doing what was evil before the Lord your God, to provoke him. 19 And I was terrified on account of the wrath and the anger, because the Lord had been provoked against you to destroy you utterly. And the Lord listened to me this time also. 20 And the Lord was very full of wrath against Aaron to destroy him utterly, and I prayed also on behalf of Aaron at that time. 21 And your sin which you had made, the bull calf, I took it and burned it with fire and crushed it, grinding thoroughly, until it became fine and it was as dust, and I threw the dust into the wadi that runs down from the mountain.

22 And at The Burning also and at The Temptation and at The Graves of Lust, you were provoking the Lord your God. 23 And when the Lord sent you from Kades Barne, saying, "Go up, and inherit the land that I am giving you," then you disobeyed the word of the Lord your God and did not trust him and did not listen to his voice. 24 You were disobedient in regard to things concerning the Lord from the day he knew you.

25 And I petitioned before the Lord, for forty days and for forty nights that I petitioned, for the Lord said that he would destroy you utterly. 26 And I prayed to God and said, "O Lord, Lord, king of the gods, do not utterly destroy your people and your possession whom you redeemed by your great strength, whom you brought out of the land of Egypt with your great strength and with your strong hand and your high arm. 27 Remember Abraam and Isaak and Iakob your attendants to whom you swore by yourself; do not look upon the stubbornness of this people and upon the impieties and upon their sins, lest the inhabitants of the land from whence you have brought us say, saying: 'Because the Lord was not able to bring them into the land that he mentioned to them and because he hates them, he brought them out to kill them in the wilderness.' 29 And these are your people and your allotment whom you brought out of the land of Egypt by your great strength and by your high arm."

10 At that time the Lord said to me, "Carve out for yourself two tablets of stone like the former ones, and come up to me on the mountain, and you will make for yourself an ark of wood. 2 And I will write on the tablets the words that were on the former tablets, which you smashed, and you shall put them in the ark." 3 And I made an ark of indestructible boards and carved the two tablets of stone like the former ones and went up the mountain with the two tablets in my hands. 4 And he wrote on the tablets, in accord with the first writing, the ten words that the Lord had spoken to you on the mountain from the midst of the fire, and the Lord gave them to me. 5 And I turned and came down from the mountain and put the tablets in the ark that I had made, and they were there, as the Lord commanded me.

6 (And the sons of Israel departed from Beroth of the sons of Iakim Misadai. There Aaron died, and there he was buried, and his son Eleazar became priest instead of him. 7 From there they departed to Gadgad and from Gadgad to Itelebatha, a land with a wadi of waters. 8 At that time the Lord set apart the tribe of Leui to carry the ark of the covenant of the Lord, to stand before the Lord to minister and to pray in his name, to this day. 9 Therefore, for the Leuites there is not a part or allotment among their brothers; the Lord himself is his allotment, as he said to him.)

10 And I stayed on the mountain forty days and forty nights. And the Lord listened to me in that time also. And the Lord did not want to destroy you utterly. 11 And the Lord said to me, “Go, depart before this people, and let them go in and inherit the land that I swore to their fathers to give them.”

12 And now, O Israel, what does the Lord your God ask from you but to fear the Lord your God, to go in all his ways and to love him and to serve the Lord your God with the whole of your heart and with the whole of your soul, 13 to keep the commandments of the Lord your God and his statutes that I command you today so that it may be well with you? 14 Look, the sky and the sky of the sky belong to the Lord your God, the earth and all that is in it. 15 Yet, your fathers, the Lord chose to love them, and he picked you, their offspring after them, you, among all the nations, as it is this day. 16 And you shall circumcise your hard-heartedness and shall not harden your neck any longer.

17 For the Lord your God is God of gods and Lord of lords, the great God, mighty and fear-inspiring, who does not marvel at a person, neither will he take a bribe, 18 doing justice to the guest and orphan and widow and loving the guest, to give him food and clothing. 19 You shall also love the guest, for you were guests in the land of Egypt. 20 You shall fear the Lord your God, and him you shall serve, and to him you shall hold fast, and by his name you shall swear. 21 He is your boast, and he is your God, who did among you these great and glorious things that your eyes have seen. 22 Your fathers went down to Egypt with seventy persons, and now the Lord your God has made you as the stars in the sky in number.

18 And you shall love the Lord your God and keep his orders and his statutes and his commandments and his judgments always. 2 And you shall know today that it was not your children who have not known or seen the discipline of the Lord your God and his magnificent works and his strong hand and his high arm 3 and his signs and his wonders that he did in the midst of Egypt to Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and to all his land, 4 and what he did to the force of the Egyptians, to their chariots and their horses, how he made the water of the Red Sea flow over them as they pursued you from your rear, and the Lord has destroyed them to this very day, 5 and what he did for you in the wilderness until you came to this place, 6 and what he did to Dathan and Abiron sons of Eliab son of Rouben whom the earth having opened its mouth swallowed them up, along with their households and their tents and all their substance which was with them in the midst of all Israel. 7 For it is your eyes that saw all the great deeds of the Lord that he did for you today.

8 And you shall keep all his commandments that I command you today so that you may live and be multiplied and go in and inherit the land into which you are crossing over the Jordan to take possession of it there, 9 so that you may live long in the land that the Lord swore to your fathers to give them and their offspring after them, a land flowing with milk and honey. 10 For the land into which you are about to enter there to inherit it is not like the land of Egypt, whence you are coming from there, when they sow the seed and water it with the feet like a garden of vegetables. 11 But the land into which you are entering there to inherit it is a hilly land and flat; it will drink water from the rain of the sky, 12 a land that the Lord your God regards it. The eyes of the Lord your God are always on it, from the beginning of the year even until the end of the year.

13 Now if by hearing you hear all his commandments that I command you today—to love the Lord your God and to serve him with the whole of your heart and with the whole of your soul— 14 he too will give the rain for your land in season, early rain and later rain, and you will gather in your grain and your wine and your oil, 15 and he will give fodder in your fields for your cattle. 16 And, when you have eaten and been filled, 16 take care to yourself, lest your heart be expanded, and you turn away and serve other gods and do obeisance to them, 17 and the Lord, being wrathful, be angry against you and shut up the sky, and there will be no rain, and the land will not give its fruit, and you will perish quickly off the good land that the Lord gave you.

18 And you shall put these words in your heart and in your soul, and you shall bind them as a sign on your hand, and they shall be things unshakable before your eyes. 19 And you shall teach your children to say them when they are sitting at home and going on the way and lying down and rising. 20 And you shall write them on the doorposts of your houses and of your gates so that you may be long-lived, and the days of your sons, in the land that the Lord swore to your fathers to give them, may be as the days of the sky above the earth.

22 And it shall be, if by hearing you hear all these commandments that I command you today to do—to love the Lord your God, to go in all his ways and to hold fast to him— 23 the Lord too will drive out all these nations before you, and you will dispossess nations great and rather stronger than you. 24 Every place, wherever you may plant the trace of your foot, shall be yours, from the wilderness and Anti-Lebanon and from the great river, the river Euphrates, and up to the western sea shall be your borders. 25 No one will stand against you; the Lord your God will put the trembling of you and fear of you on the face of all the land on which you may go upon it, as the Lord spoke to you.

26 See, I am giving before you today a blessing and a curse: 27 the blessing, if you hear the commandments of the Lord your God that I command you today, 28 and the curse, if you do not hear the commandments of the Lord your God which I command you today and if you wander from the way that I command you, having gone to serve other gods that you do not know.

29 And it shall be, when the Lord your God has brought you into the land into which you are crossing there to inherit it, you shall give the blessing on Mount Garizin and the curse on Mount Gaibal. 30Look, are these not across the Jordan beyond, by the way of the setting of the sun, in the land of Chanaan, that which is situated to the west, near Golbesi, beside the high oak?

31 For you are crossing the Jordan when you go in to inherit the land that the Lord your God is giving you as an allotment, for all days, and you will inherit it and live in it. 32And you shall be watchful to perform all these ordinances and these judgments that I am giving before you today.

12 And these are the ordinances and the judgments that you shall be watchful to perform in the land that the Lord, the God of your fathers, is giving you as an allotment all the days that you live on the earth.

2 You shall with destruction destroy all the places, where the nations whom you are about to dispossess serve their gods on the high mountains and on the dunes and beneath every leafy tree. 3And you shall chop down their altars and smash their steles and cut down their groves and burn with fire the carved objects of their gods and blot out their name from that place. 4You shall not do so to the Lord your God. 5But the place which the Lord your God may choose in one of your tribes—to designate that his name be called there, you too will seek and enter there. 6And you will bring there your whole burnt offerings and your sacrifices and your first fruits and your votive gifts, your freewill gifts and the firstlings of your oxen and sheep. 7And you shall eat there in the presence of the Lord your God and shall rejoice in all things to which you put your hands, you and your households, as the Lord your God has blessed you.

8 You shall not do all things that we are doing here today, each one doing what is pleasing before him, 9for you have not come until now into the rest and into the inheritance that the Lord your God is giving you. 10And you shall cross over the Jordan and live in the land that the Lord your God is allotting to you, and he will give you rest from all your enemies around, and you will live in safety. 11And it shall be that the place, wherever the Lord your God may choose for his name to be called there, there you shall bring all that I command you today—your whole burnt offerings and your sacrifices and your tithes and the first fruits of your hands and your gifts and every choice one of your gifts, whatever you may vow to your God. 12And you shall be joyful before the Lord your God, you and your sons after you, if you do what is good and pleasing before the Lord your God. 13Take care to yourself lest you bring your whole burnt offerings at any place where you may look. 14But at the place, that which the Lord your God may choose in one of your tribes—there you shall offer your whole burnt offerings, and there you shall do everything I command you today.

15 Yet at your every desire you shall slaughter and eat meat, according to the blessing of the Lord your God which he has given you within any city; 16the unclean one among you and the clean together shall eat of it, as they would gazelle or deer. 17The blood, however, you shall not eat; you shall pour it out on the ground like water. 18You shall not be able to eat within your cities the tithe of your grain and of your wine and of your oil, the firstlings of your oxen and of your sheep and all votive gifts that you may vow and your agreements and the first fruits of your hands. 19But these you shall eat in the presence of the Lord your God at the place, that which the Lord your God may choose, you and your son and your daughter, your male slave and your female slave and the guest in your cities, and you shall be joyful in the presence of the Lord your God in all things where you may put your hand.

20 Now if the Lord your God enlarges your borders, as he has said to you, and you shall say, “I am going to eat meat,” if your soul desires to eat meat, in every desire of your soul, you shall eat meat. 21But if the place the Lord your God may choose for his name to be called there is rather far away from you, then you shall slaughter from your oxen and from your sheep that God may give you as I have commanded you, then you shall eat within your cities according to the desire of your soul.

22Just as the gazelle is eaten and the deer, so you shall eat it; the unclean one among you and the clean alike shall eat it. 23Take great care not to eat blood, because its blood is life; the life shall not be eaten with the meat. 24You shall not eat it; you shall pour it out on the ground like water. 25You shall not eat it so that it may go well with you and your sons after you, if you do what is good and pleasing before the Lord your God. 26But when you have taken your sacred things, whatever you may have, and your votive gifts, you shall come to the place which the Lord your God may choose for himself for his name to be called there. 27And you shall make your whole burnt offerings; the meat you will offer on the altar of the Lord your God, but the blood of your sacrifices you will pour out at the base of the altar of the Lord your God, but the meat you shall eat.

28 Keep, and hear, and you will do all the words that I command you so that it may go well with you and with your sons forever, if you do what is good and pleasing before the Lord your God.

29 Now if the Lord your God utterly destroys from before you the nations among which you may enter there to inherit their land, and you dispossess them and live in their land, 30take care to yourself lest you seek to follow them, after they have been utterly destroyed from before you; you shall not seek their gods, saying, “How do these nations act toward their gods? I will do the same.” 31 You shall not do thus to the Lord your God, for the abominations to the Lord, which he hates, they have done for their gods. For they burn their sons and their daughters in fire to their gods. 32 Every word that I command you today, this you shall be watchful to perform; you shall not add to it or take from it.

13 Now if a prophet or one who divines by a dream should appear among you and give you a sign or a wonder, 2 and the sign or the wonder should come about, which he spoke to you, saying: “Let us go and serve other gods (whom you have not known),” 3 you shall not hear the words of that prophet or that diviner by that dream, for the Lord God is testing you, to know whether you love the Lord your God with the whole of your heart and with the whole of your soul. 4 Go after the Lord your God, and him you shall fear, and his commandments you shall keep, and his voice you shall hear, and to him you shall be joined. 5 And that prophet or that diviner by dream shall die, for he spoke to lead you astray from the Lord your God—who brought you out of the land of Egypt, who redeemed you from slavery—to thrust you from the way that the Lord your God commanded you to go upon it. And you shall eliminate the evil one from yourselves.

6 Now if your brother from your father or from your mother or your own son or daughter or the wife in your bosom or the friend who is like your own soul secretly entreats you, saying, “Let us go and serve other gods (whom you do not know), you nor your fathers, 7 from the gods of the nations that are around you, those near you or far away from you, from an end of the earth up to an end of the earth, 8 you shall not yield to him and listen to him. And your eye shall not be sparing toward him; you shall not have a longing for him, neither shall you shield him. 9 Reporting, you shall report concerning him, and your own hands shall be first against him to kill him, and afterwards the hands of all the people. 10 And they shall stone him with stones, and he shall die because he sought to turn you away from the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of a house of slavery. 11 And all Israel, when they have heard, will be afraid and never do again according to this evil thing among you.

12 Now if you hear in one of the cities that the Lord your God is giving you to live therein, saying:
13 “Lawless men have gone out from among you and led all the inhabitants of their city astray, saying, ‘Let us go and serve other gods,’ whom you have not known, 14 then you shall examine and ask and make a thorough investigation, and look, the charge is clearly true, this abomination has been done among you, 15 wiping out, you shall wipe out all the inhabitants of that city by slaughter by dagger; with an anathema, you shall anathematize it, and everything in it. 16 And all of its spoil you shall gather into its streets, and you shall burn with fire the city and all its spoil with its population, before the Lord your God. It shall remain uninhabited forever, never to be rebuilt. 17 Nothing from that which is anathema shall stick to your hand so that the Lord may turn from the heat of his anger, and he shall give you mercy and be merciful to you and multiply you, as the Lord swore to your fathers, 18 if you hear the voice of the Lord your God to keep all his commandments that I command you today, to do what is good and pleasing before the Lord your God.

14 You are sons of the Lord your God. You shall not practice purification rites; you shall not place a baldness between your eyes for a corpse. 2 For you are a people holy to the Lord your God, and it is you the Lord your God has chosen to be an exceptional people to him out of all the nations on the face of the earth.

3 You shall not eat any abomination. 4 These are the animals you shall eat: calf of cows and lamb of sheep and kid of goats, 5 deer and gazelle and roebuck and wild goat and white-rumped antelope and antelope and giraffe. 6 Any animal that divides the hoof and splits the hooves into two parts and brings up the cud, among the animals—these you shall eat. 7 And these you shall not eat of those that regurgitate the cud and of those dividing the hoofs and making distinct claws: the camel and hare and coney, because these regurgitate the cud but do not divide the hoof; these are unclean for you. 8 And the pig, because this animal divides the hoof and makes distinct claws but this one does not chew the cud; this one is unclean for you.
You shall not eat their flesh, and you shall not touch their carcasses.

9 And of all that live in water you shall eat these: whatever has fins and scales you shall eat. 10
And whatever does not have fins and scales you shall not eat; these are unclean for you.

11 You shall eat any clean bird. 12 And these, you shall not eat from them: the eagle and the bearded vulture and the osprey 13 and the vulture and the kite and those like it, 14 and every raven and those like it, (15) and ostrich and little owl and hoopoe and long-eared owl 17 (18) and pelican and water plover and those like it, and water hen and bat. 18 (19) All b creeping ones of those that fly—these are unclean for you; you shall not eat from them. 19 (20) You shall eat any clean winged creature.

20 (21) And you shall not eat any carcass; it shall be given to the resident alien in your cities, and he will eat, or you shall sell to a stranger. For you are a people holy to the Lord your God.
You shall not boil a lamb in its mother’s milk.
21 (22) You shall tithe a tithe of all the yield of your seed, the yield of your field, year by year.
22 (23) And you shall eat it in the presence of the

aGk uncertain  bI.e. insects
Lord your God, in the place that the Lord your God may choose for his name to be called there you shall bring the tithes of your grain and of your wine and of your oil, the firstlings of your cows and of your sheep so that you may learn to fear the Lord your God all your days. 23(24) But if the distance is far from you and you are unable to transport them, because the place which the Lord your God may choose for his name to be called there is far away from you, because the Lord your God will bless you, 24(25) you shall then convert them into money and take the money in your hands and go to the place, that which the Lord your God may choose, 25(26) and you shall give the money for whatever your soul may desire—for oxen or for sheep, for wine or for sikera or for whatever your soul desires. And you shall eat there in the presence of the Lord your God, and you and your household shall be joyful, 26(27) and the Levite in your cities, because he has no part or allotment with you.

27(28) After three years you shall bring out every tithe of your yield; in that year, you shall store it within your cities, 28(29) and the Levite shall come, because he has no part or allotment with you, and the guest and the orphan and the widow in your cities, and they shall eat and shall be filled so that the Lord your God may bless you in all the works whatever you may do.

15 Through seven years you shall make a remission. 2And thus is the ordinance of the remission: you shall remit every personal debt which your neighbor owes you, and you shall not ask it back of your brother, because a remission to the Lord your God has been proclaimed. 3 Of a stranger you may ask back whatever he has that belongs to you; to your brother you must make a release of the debt to you. 4 For there will be no one in need among you, because by blessing the Lord your God will bless you in the land that the Lord your God is giving you, as he deemed you from there; for this reason I command you to do this thing. 5 But if by hearing you listen to the voice of the Lord your God by keeping and doing all these things, 6 because the Lord your God has blessed you, as he said to you—you will even lend to many nations, but you will not borrow, and you will rule over many nations, but they will not rule over you.

7 Now if there is among you anyone of your brothers in need in one of your cities within the land that the Lord your God is giving you, you shall not rid your heart of love, neither shall you be hard on you when they are being sent out from you as free persons, because for six years he was a slave to you in lieu of an annual wage for the hired laborer, and the Lord your God will bless you in all that you may do.

8 It shall not be hard on you when they are being sent out from you as free persons, because for six years he was a slave to you in lieu of an annual wage for the hired laborer, and the Lord your God will bless you in all that you may do.

19 Every firstling that may be born among your cows and among your sheep, you shall consecrate the males to the Lord your God; you shall not do work with your firstling calf, and you shall not shear the firstling of your sheep. 20 In the presence of the Lord your God you shall eat it, year by year at the place that the Lord your God may choose, you and your household. 21 But if there is a defect in it—be it lame or blind—or even any serious defect, you shall not sacrifice it to the Lord your God; 22 within your cities you shall eat it; the unclean and the clean alike shall eat, like gazelle or deer. 23 But its blood you shall not eat; you shall pour it out on the ground like water.

16 Observe the month of new things, and you shall perform the paschab for the Lord your God, for in the month of new things you came out of Egypt by night. 2 And you shall sacrifice the pascha for the Lord your God, sheep and cows, at the place that the Lord your God may choose for his name to be called there. 3 You shall not eat leaven with it. For seven days you shall eat unleavened with it—bread of affliction—because you came out of Egypt in haste so that all the days of your life you may remember the day of your departure from the land of Egypt. 4 Leaven shall not be seen with you in all your borders for seven days, and none of the meat of what you may sacrifice in the evening on the first day shall lie until morning. 5 You shall not be able to offer the pascha within any of your cities that the Lord your God is giving you. 6 But at the place that the Lord your God may choose for his name to be called there, you shall offer the pascha, in the evening at sunset, the time when you departed from Egypt. 7 And you shall boil and roast and eat it at the place that the Lord your God may choose, and you shall return the next morning and go back to your houses. 8 For six days you shall eat unleavened bread, and on the seventh day there shall be a finale, a feast for the Lord your God; you shall do no work on it except that which shall be done for life.

9 You shall count for yourself seven complete weeks; when you have started the sickle on the standing grain, you shall begin to count seven weeks. 10 And you shall make the feast of weeks for the Lord your God, according as your hand is able, whatever he may give to you, as the Lord your God has blessed you. 11 And you shall be joyful before the Lord your God—you and your son and your daughter, your male slave and your female slave and the Leuites who is in your cities, as well as the guest and the orphan and the widow who is among you—at the place that the Lord your God may choose for his name to be called there. 12 And you shall remember that you were a domestic in the land of Egypt, and you shall keep and do these commandments.

13 You shall make for yourself a feast of tents for seven days, when you have gathered in from your threshing floor and from your wine press. 14 And you shall be joyful at your feast, you and your son and your daughter, your male slave and your female slave and the Leuite and the guest and the orphan and the widow who is among you—at the place that the Lord your God may choose for his name to be called there. 12 And you shall remember that you were a domestic in the land of Egypt, and you shall keep and do these commandments.

15 You shall make for yourself a feast of tents for seven days, when you have gathered in from your threshing floor and from your wine press. 14 And you shall be joyful at your feast, you and your son and your daughter, your male slave and your female slave and the Leuite and the guest and the orphan and the widow who is among you—at the place that the Lord your God may choose for his name to be called there. 12 And you shall remember that you were a domestic in the land of Egypt, and you shall keep and do these commandments.

16 Three times a year every male among you shall appear before the Lord your God at the place, that which the Lord may choose: at the feast of unleavened bread and at the feast of weeks and at the feast of tent pitching. You shall not appear before the Lord your God empty-handed, 17 each according to the strength of your hands, according to the blessing of the Lord your God that he gave you.

18 You shall appoint for yourselves judges and recorders in all your cities that the Lord your God is giving you, by tribe, and they shall render just decisions for the people. 19 They shall not bend justice; they shall not recognize a person, neither shall they take gifts. For gifts blind the eyes of the wise and nullify the words of the righteous. 20 You shall pursue justice fairly so that you may live, and when you have entered, you may inherit the land that the Lord your God is giving you.

21 You shall not plant for yourself a grove, any tree beside the altar of the Lord your God which you will make for yourself; 22 you shall not set up for yourself a stele—things which the Lord your God hated.
to multiply cavalry for himself, but the Lord has said to you, “You shall never add to return that way.” 17And he shall not multiply wives for himself, neither shall his heart turn away; also silver and gold he shall not multiply exceedingly for himself. 18And it shall be, when he has sat upon the seat of his rule, that he shall write for himself this second law in a book from the priests, the Leuites. 19And it shall be with him, and he shall read from it all the days of his life so that he may learn to fear the Lord his God, to keep all these commandments and these statutes to do them so that his heart may not be exalted above his brothers so that he not turn aside from the commandments, right or left, in order that he be long-lived in his rule, he and his sons among the sons of Israel.

18 There shall not be for the priests, the Leuites, the whole tribe of Leui, a part or allotment with Israel. The offerings of the Lord are their allotment; they shall eat of them, but he shall have no allotment among his brothers; the Lord himself is his allotment, as he said to him.

3 And this is the judgment for priests, things due from the people, from those offering sacrifices, whether a calf, whether a sheep, and he shall give to the priest the shoulder and the cheeks and the paunch\(^{a}\). 4And the first fruits of your grain and your wine and your oil and the first of the fleeces of your sheep you shall give him. 5For the Lord has chosen him out of all your tribes, to stand before the Lord your God to minister and to bless in his name, he and his sons all the days.

6 Now if a Leuite departs (from one of your cities, from all the sons of Israel wherever he sojourns, as his soul desires) for the place that the Lord may choose, 7he shall minister in the name of the Lord his God, like all his brothers—the Leuites who stand there before the Lord. 8He shall eat an allotted portion, apart from the sale which is \(^{b}\)by paternal lineage\(^{b}\).

9 Now if you enter into the land that the Lord your God is giving you, you shall not learn to act according to the abominations of those nations. 10There shall not be found among you one who cleanses his son or his daughter by fire, one who practices divination, one who acts as diviner, one who practices ornithomancy, a sorcerer, 11one who casts spells, a ventriloquist\(^{c}\) and one who observes signs and one who inquires of the dead. 12For anyone who does these things is an abomination to the Lord your God, for it is because of these abominations that the Lord your God will destroy them utterly from before you. 13You shall be perfect before the Lord your God. 14For these nations that you are about to dispossess, these will hear omens and divinations, but as for you, the Lord your God has not granted you to do so.

15 The Lord your God will raise up for you a prophet like me from among your brothers; you shall hear him. 16According to all that you requested of the Lord your God at Choreb on the day of the assembly, saying: “We shall not any more hear the voice of the Lord our God and again see this great fire—and we shall not die.” 17And the Lord said to me: “They are right in all that they have said. 18I will raise up for them a prophet just like you from among their brothers, and I will give my word in his mouth, and he shall speak to them whatever I command him. 19And the person who does not hear his words, whatever the prophet may speak in my name, I will exact vengeance from him. 20But the prophet who acts impiously by speaking a word in my name that I have not ordered to speak and who speaks in the name of other gods, that prophet shall die.” 21But if you say in your heart, “How will we know the word that the Lord has not spoken?” 22whatever the prophet might speak in the name of the Lord but the thing does not take place and does not happen, this is the word that the Lord has not spoken. That prophet has spoken it in impiety; you shall not spare him.

19 Now if the Lord your God annihilates the nations whose land your God is giving you and you dispossess them and live in their cities and in their houses, 2you shall set apart three cities to yourself in the midst of your land that the Lord your God is giving you. 3Calculate for yourself the distance, and you shall divide into three regions your land that the Lord your God apportions you, and there shall be a refuge there for every murderer.

4 Now this is the ordinance for a murderer who flees there and shall live: He who strikes his neighbor unintentionally and he did not hate him before yesterday and before the third day, 5and he who goes into the forest with his neighbor to gather wood and his hand is knocked aside when he cuts the wood with the ax, and the iron slips from the wood and happens to strike his neighbor, and he dies, this one shall flee to one of these cities and live; 6lest the avenger of blood pursue after the murderer, because his heart is hot, and overtake him—if the road was rather long—and he strike his soul, and he dies, and to this one there is not a death sentence, since he did not hate him before yesterday and before the third day. 7Therefore I command you this thing, saying: You shall set apart three cities for yourself.

8 But if the Lord your God enlarges your borders, as he swore to your fathers, and he gives you all the land that he said he would give your fathers, 9—if you give heed to do all these commandments that I command you today, to love the Lord your God and to walk in all his ways all the days—then you shall add for yourself three more cities to these three, and innocent blood shall not be shed in your land that the Lord your God is giving you as an allotment, and there shall not be among you one guilty of blood.

11 But if there be a person hating his neighbor

\(^{a}\)I.e. fourth stomach of ruminating animals  \(^{b}\)Possibly due to inheritance  \(^{c}\)I.e. one who gives oracles from the belly and he lies in wait for him and attacks him and strikes his life and he dies and flees into one of these cities, 2then the council of elders of his city shall send and take him from there and deliver him into the hand of the avenger of blood, and he shall die. 3Your eye shall not be sparing toward him, and you shall cleanse the innocent blood from Israel, and it shall be well with you. 4You shall not move your neighbor’s boundaries, which your fathers have set up on the inheritance you were allotted in the land that the Lord your God is giving you to inherit. 5One witness shall not suffice against a person in any injustice and in any wrongdoing and in any sin that he may sin. By the mouth of two or three witnesses shall any word be sustained. 6But if an unjust witness comes forward against a person, alleging impiety against him, 7then the two persons between whom is the dispute shall stand before the Lord and before the priests and before the judges, who may be in those days, 8and if the judges make a thorough inquiry and, look, an unjust witness has testified unjustly, he has stood up against his brother, 9then you shall do to him just as he connived to do to his brother. And you shall remove the evil one from yourselves. 10And the rest, when they hear, shall be afraid and will not add to act again according to this evil thing among you. 11Your eye shall not be sparing against him: soul for soul, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot. 12Now if you go out to war against your enemies and see horse and rider and a people more numerous than you, you shall not be afraid of them, for the Lord your God is with you, who made you go up from the land of Egypt. 13And it shall be when you draw near for battle, then the priest, when he has come forward, shall speak to you. 14If they respond to you peaceably and open to you, it shall be that all the people found in it shall be bearers of tribute and be subject to you. 15But if they do not respond to you and make war against you, then you shall besiege it, 16and the Lord your God will deliver it into your hands, and you shall strike every male in it with slaughter by dagger, 17except the women and the baggage. And all the livestock and all which is in the city and all the spoil you shall take as plunder for yourself, and you shall eat all the plunder of your enemies, which the Lord your God is giving you. 18Thus you shall do to all the cities that are very far from you, which are not of the cities of these nations. 19But look, of the cities of these nations that the Lord your God is giving you to inherit their land, you shall not let anything of them that breathes remain alive. 20But with anathema, you shall anathematize them—the Chettite and the Amorrite and the Chananeite and the Pherezite and the Hevite and the Jebusite and the Amalekite— as the Lord your God has commanded you, lest they teach you to do all their abominations that they did for their gods and you sin before the Lord your God. 21But if you besiege a city for rather many days, to make war against it in order to take it, you shall not utterly destroy its trees by wielding iron against them; rather you shall eat from it, but you shall not cut it down. Is the tree in the field a human being that it should enter into the palisade from before you? 22But a tree that you know does not produce edible fruit, this one you shall utterly destroy and cut down, and you shall build siege works against the city that makes war with you until it be delivered up. 23Now if, in the land that the Lord your God is giving you to inherit, someone wounded is found having fallen on the plain, and they do not know who struck him down, 24the council of elders and the judges shall come out and measure out to the cities that surround the wounded. 25And it shall be the city nearest the wounded, and the council of elders of that city shall take a heifer that was hamstrung in the ravine, 26and the council of elders of that city shall take a heifer that was hamstrung in the ravine. 27And the priests, the Levites, shall come forward, for the Lord God has chosen them to stand by him and to bless in his name, and by their mouth every dispute and every assault shall be. 28And the entire council of elders of that city, those nearest the wounded, shall wash their hands over the head of the heifer that was hamstrung in the ravine, and in reply they shall say: “Our hands did not shed...
this blood, and our eyes have not seen. § Be merciful to your people Israel, whom you redeemed, O Lord, so that innocent blood may not be among your people Israel." And the blood will be propitiated for them. §§ But you shall remove innocent blood from yourselves, if you do what is pleasing and good in the sight of the Lord your God.

10 Now if you go out to war against your enemies and the Lord your God delivers them into your hands and you take as plunder their booty and you see among the booty a woman, beautiful in appearance, and you desire her and take her for yourself as wife, then you shall bring her inside your house, and you shall shave her head and pare her nails, and you shall remove her clothes of captivity from her, and she shall settle in your house and mourn for her father and her mother 7 days of a month, and after that you shall go in to her and live together with her, and she shall be your wife. §§ And it shall be, if you do not want her, you shall send her away free, and by a sale she shall not be sold for money. You shall not break faith with her, since you have humbled her.

15 Now if a man has two wives, one of them loved and one of them hated, and if both the loved and the hated bear him children and the firstborn son is of the one who is hated, it shall be, then, on the day when he wills his possessions to his sons, he shall not be able to treat the son of the loved as the firstborn by ignoring the son of the hated who is the firstborn. §§ On the contrary, he shall acknowledge the firstborn son of the one who is hated by giving him a double portion of all things which he is found to have, since he is the first issue of his children and to this one belongs the right of the firstborn.

18 Now if someone has a disobedient and contentious son who does not obey the voice of his father and the voice of his mother, and they discipline him, and he does not listen to them, then his father and his mother, after they have taken hold of him, shall bring him out to the council of elders of his city and to the gate of his place. §§ And they shall say to the men of his city, "This son of ours is disobedient and contentious. He does not obey our voice. Being disposed to feasting, he is a drunkard." 21 And the men of his city shall stone him with stones, and he shall die. And you shall remove the evil one from yourselves and the others, when they hear, will be afraid.

22 Now if there is in someone sin, a judgment of death, and he dies and you hang him on a tree, his body shall not sleep upon the tree, but with burial you shall bury him that same day, for anyone hanging on a tree is cursed by a god. And you shall not defile the land that the Lord your God is giving you as an allotment.

When you see your brother’s bull calf or his sheep straying away on the road, do not overlook them; by restoring, you shall restore them to your brother. § 2 Now if your brother is not near you or you do not know him, you shall bring them inside in your house, and they shall be with you until your brother seeks them; then you shall give them back to him. § 3 So you shall treat his donkey, and so you shall treat his garment, and so you shall act in every loss of your brother, whatever may be lost by him and you find; you shall not be able to overlook.

4 You shall not see your brother’s donkey or his bull calf fallen on the road. Do not overlook them; raising, you shall raise them up with him.

5 There shall not be the equipment of a man upon a woman, nor shall a man put on a woman’s garment, because anyone doing these things is an abomination to the Lord your God.

6 Now if you come on a nest of birds before you on the road or in any tree or on the ground, with fledglings or eggs, and the mother is brooding on the fledglings or on the eggs, you shall not take the mother with the young ones. §§ By release, you shall release the mother, but the young you shall take for yourself in order that it may go well with you and you may live long.

8 Now if you build a new house, you shall make a parapet for your building, and you will not do murder in your house, if one who falls should fall from it.

9 You shall not sow your vineyard different in kind, lest the produce and the seed be sanctified, whatever you sow with the yield of your vineyard.

10 You shall not plow with a calf and a donkey together.

11 You shall not wear something adulterated—wool and linen combined.

12 You shall make tassels for yourself on the four corners of your garments, those in which you may wrap yourself.

13 Now if any one takes a woman and cohabits with her and hates her and places upon her specious charges and brings upon her an evil name and says, “I have taken this woman, but when I had approached her, I failed to find proofs of her virginity,” then the father of the girl and her mother, having taken them, shall bring the proofs of the girl’s virginity to the council of elders at the gate. §§ And the father of the girl shall say to the council of elders: "I gave this my daughter to this man for a wife, but, hating her, he is now placing specious charges against her, saying, ‘I failed to find in your daughter proofs of virginity.’ But these are the proofs of my daughter’s virginity.” And they shall spread out the garment before the council of elders of the city. §§ And the council of elders of that city shall take that man and discipline him, and they shall fine him one hundred shekels, and they shall give them to the young woman’s father because he cast an evil name upon an Israelite virgin. And she shall be his wife; he shall not be able to send her away for all time.

20 But if this charge is true and the evidence of the young woman’s virginity was not found, then they shall bring the young woman out to her father’s doors, and the men of her city shall stone her with stones, and she will die, because she did folly in Israel by prostituting her father’s house. And you shall remove the evil one from yourselves.

22 Now if a man is found lying with a woman married to a man, you will kill both of them, the man who lay with the woman and the woman. And you shall remove the evil one from Israel.

23 But if there is a girl, a virgin engaged to a man, and a man finding her in the city should lie with her, bring both of them to the gate of their city, and they shall be stoned with stones, and they shall die—the young woman, because she did not cry out in the city, and the man, because he humbled his neighbor’s woman. And you shall remove the evil one from yourselves.

25 But if a man finds the engaged girl in the field and, having forced her, should lie with her, you shall kill only the man who lay with her.

26 And you shall do nothing to the young woman; the young woman has not committed an offense punishable by death, because it is as if some man would rise up against his neighbor and murder his soul; so is this deed. Since he found her in the field, the engaged young woman cried for help, but there was no one to help her.

28 But if someone finds the girl, the virgin, who is not engaged, and, after he forces her, lies with her and he is discovered, the man who lay with her shall give fifty silver didrachmas to the young woman’s father, and she shall become his wife. Because he humbled her, he shall not be able to send her away for all time.

30 A man shall not take his father’s wife, and he shall not uncover his father’s cover.

23 A castrated male and one made a eunuch shall not enter the assembly of the Lord.

2 One from a prostitute shall not enter the assembly of the Lord.

3 No Ammonite and Moabite shall enter into the assembly of the Lord. Even to the tenth generation, he shall not enter into the assembly of the Lord, even forever, due to the fact that they did not meet you with bread and water on the way when you were coming out of Egypt and because they hired against you Balaam son of Beor, from Mesopotamia, to curse you. (And the Lord your God did not want to listen to Balaam, and the Lord your God turned the curses into blessings, because the Lord your God loved you.) You shall not address things of peace to them and things of profit to them all your days, forever.

7 You shall not abhor an Idumean, for he is your brother. You shall not abhor an Egyptian, because you were a resident alien in his land. If sons are born to them in the third generation, they shall enter into the assembly of the Lord.

9 Now if you go out to encamp against your enemies, you shall guard against any evil thing.

10 If there is a person among you who is not clean from his flow at night, he shall go outside the camp, and he shall not enter into the camp. And it shall be, at evening, that he shall wash his body with water, and when the sun has set, he shall enter into the camp.

12 And you shall have a place outside the camp, and you shall go there outside. On your belt you shall have a pin, and it shall be, when you sit down apart outside, that you shall dig a hole with it and then, returning the earth, you shall cover up your disgrace with it. Because the Lord your God walks about in your camp, to deliver you and to hand over your enemy before you, and your camp shall be holy, and there shall not be seen a disgrace of a matter among you, and he shall turn away from you.

15 You shall not hand over to an owner a servant who has been added to you from his owner. He shall reside with you; among you he shall live, in every place wherever he may please; you shall not oppress him.

17 There shall not be a prostitute among the daughters of Israel; there shall not be one that practices prostitution among the sons of Israel. There shall not be an initiate among the daughters of Israel, and there shall not be anyone initiated among the sons of Israel. You shall not bring the fee of a prostitute or the exchange for a dog into the house of the Lord your God for any vow, for it is an abomination to the Lord your God—in fact both.

19 You shall not charge interest to your brother, interest on money and interest on provisions and interest on any thing that may be lent. To a stranger you shall charge interest but to your brother you shall not charge interest, so that the Lord your God may bless you in all your works in the land into which you are entering there to inherit it.

21 Now if you vow a vow to the Lord your God, you shall not delay to pay it. For the Lord your God, when he requires, will require it of you, and you shall not abhor an Egyptian, because he found a shameful thing in her, then he shall write her a bill of divorce and shall give it into her hands and shall send her out of his house, and if, having gone out, she becomes another man’s and the last man hates her, then he will write her a bill of divorce and give it in her hands and send her out of his house, or if the last man who took her for himself as wife dies, 4 the former man, who sent her away, shall not be able, having returned, to take her for himself as his wife after she has been defiled, for it is an abomination before the Lord your God, and you shall not defile the land that the Lord your God is giving you as an allotment.

5 But if anyone should have taken a wife recently, he shall not go out to war, and he shall not be charged with any matter. He shall be innocent in his house one year; he shall make joyful his wife whom he has taken.

6 No one shall take a mill or the upper millstone in pledge, for this one is taking a soul in pledge.

7 And if a person is caught stealing a soul from his brothers, the sons of Israel, and, having impoverished him, he be sold, that thief shall die. And you shall remove the evil one from yourselves.

8 Guard yourself against the attack of leprosy; you shall be very watchful to do according to all the law, whatever the priests, the Levites, may announce to you. As I have commanded you, be watchful to perform. 9 Remember what the Lord God did to Miriam on the way, when you were coming out of Egypt.

10 Now if there is a debt with your neighbor, a debt of any kind, you shall not go into his house to take the pledge. 11 You shall stand outside, and the person from whom your debt is due shall bring the pledge to you outside. 12 If the person is poor, you shall not sleep in his pledge. 13 By giving back you shall give his pledge back by sunset, and he shall sleep in his garment and bless you, and to you shall be mercy before the Lord your God.

14 You shall not unjustly withhold the wages of a needy and indigent person from your brothers or from the guests in your cities. 15 You shall pay the wages daily, the sun shall not set upon it, because he is needy and on it he has his hope, and he shall not cry to the Lord against you, and it shall be sin for you.

16 Fathers shall not die for their children, and sons shall not be put to death for fathers; each one shall die for his own sin.

17 You shall not divert the justice of a guest and an orphan and a widow, and you shall not take a widow’s garment in pledge. 18 And you shall remember that you were a domestic in the land of Egypt, and the Lord your God redeemed you from there; on account of this, I command you to do this thing.

19 Now if you harvest a harvest in your field and forget a sheaf in your field, you shall not return to take it; it shall be for the guest and the orphan and the widow. 20 And if you gather olives, you shall not return to glean what is behind you; it shall be for the guest and the orphan and the widow. And you shall remember that you were a domestic in the land of Egypt; on account of this, I command you to do this thing.

21 And if you harvest your vineyard, you shall not re-harvest it for things behind you; it shall be for the guest and the orphan and the widow. 22 And you shall remember that you were a domestic in the land of Egypt; on account of this, I command you to do this thing.

25 Now if a dispute occurs between people and they enter into litigation and they a judge and justify the righteous one and condemn the impious, 2 then it shall be, if the impious is worthy of lashes, that you shall make him sit down before the judges, and they shall beat him in their presence according to his impiety. 3 They shall beat him with the number forty; they shall not add, but if they add to beat him more, beyond these lashes, your brother will be shamed before you.

4 You shall not muzzle a threshing ox.

5 Now if brothers reside together and one of them dies and there is no offspring to him, the wife of the deceased shall not be outside, for a man not close. Her husband’s brother shall go in to her and shall take her for himself as wife and shall live with her, 6 and it shall be that the child that she might bear shall be established from the name of the deceased, and his name shall not be blotted out from Israel. 7 But if the man does not wish to take his brother’s wife, then the woman shall go up to the gate to the council of elders and say, “My husband’s brother does not want to perpetuate his brother’s name in Israel; my husband’s brother has been unwilling.” 8 And the council of elders of his city shall summon him and speak to him. And, while standing, he should say, “I do not wish to take her.” 9 And his brother’s wife, having approached him in the presence of the elders, shall also loosen his sandal, the one from his foot, and shall spit in his face and, while answering, shall say, “Thus shall they do to the man who will not build up his brother’s house.” 10 And throughout Israel his name shall be called “the house of him whose sandal has been pulled off.”

11 Now if men get into a fight together, a man with his brother, and the wife of one of them comes in to rescue her husband from the hand of the one who strikes him and, extending her hand, should seize his twins, 12 you shall cut off her hand; your eye shall not be sparing toward her.

13 There shall not be in your bag weight and weight, large or small. 14 There shall not be in your house measure and measure, large or small. 15 You shall have only a true and just weight, and you shall have only a true and just measure so that you may be long-lived in the land that the Lord your God is giving you as an allotment. 16 For every one who does these things, every one who acts unjustly, is an abomination to the Lord.

17 Remember what Amalek did to you on the way, when you were coming out of the land of Egypt, 18 how he withheld you on the way and cut off your tail, all those who lagged behind you, but you were hungry and weary, and he did not fear God. 19 And it shall be, when the Lord your God gives you rest from all your enemies who surround you, in the land that the Lord your God is giving you as an allotment to inherit, you shall blot out the name of Amalek from under the sky, and you shall not forget.

26 And it shall be, if you come into the land that the Lord your God is giving you as an allotment and you take possession of it and live in it, 27that you shall take from the first fruit of the fruits of your land that the Lord your God is giving you and put in a basket and go to the place that the Lord your God may choose for his name to be called there. 3And you shall go to the priest who shall be in those days and say to him, “Today I declare to the Lord my God that I have come into the land that the Lord swore to our fathers to give us—a land flowing with milk and honey.” 4And the priest shall take the basket from your hands and set it down before the altar of the Lord your God. 5And in reply, you shall say before the Lord your God: “My ancestor abandoned Syria and went down into Egypt and sojourned there, few in number, and there he became a nation, great and numerous, many and great. 6And the Egyptians did us ill and humbled us and imposed hard work on us, 7and we cried to the Lord, the God of our fathers, and the Lord listened to our voice and saw our humiliation and our toil and our oppression. 8And the Lord brought us out of Egypt with great strength and with a strong hand and a high arm and with great spectacles and with signs and with wonders, 9and he brought us to this place and gave us this land, a land flowing with milk and honey. 10And now look, I have brought the first fruit of the produce of the land that you, O Lord, have given me, a land flowing with milk and honey.” 11And you shall leave them before the Lord your God in the place that he chooses, 12that the Lord your God is giving you as an allotment to you, that you shall set up for yourself large stones 13that you shall write on the stones all the words of this law very clearly.

27 And Moyses and the council of elders of Israel gave orders, saying: Keep all these commandments that I command you today. 2And it shall be, on the day when you cross over the Jordan into the land that the Lord your God is giving you, that you shall set up for yourself large stones 3and write on the stones all the words of this law when you cross over the Jordan, when you enter the land that the Lord, the God of your fathers, is giving you, a land flowing with milk and honey, as the Lord, the God of your fathers, said to you. 4And it shall be, when you cross over the Jordan, that you shall set up these stones about which I command you today, on Mount Gaibal, and you shall plaster them with plaster. 5And you shall build an altar there to the Lord your God, an altar of stones. You shall not place an iron tool on them. 6You shall build the altar to the Lord your God of whole stones, and you shall offer up whole burnt offerings on it to the Lord your God 7and sacrifice a sacrifice of deliverance and eat and be filled there and be joyful before the Lord your God. 8And you shall write on the stones all of this law very clearly.

9 And Moyses and the priests, the Leuites, spoke to all Israel, saying: Keep silence, and hear, O Israel! This day you have become a people to the Lord your God. 10And you shall listen to the voice of the Lord your God and do all his commandments and his statutes that I command you today.

11 And Moyses commanded the people in that day, saying: 12When you have crossed over the Jordan, these shall stand to bless the people on Mount Garizin: Symeon, Leui, Ioudas, Issachar, Ioseph and Beniamin. 13And these shall stand upon the curse on Mount Gaibal: Rouben, Gad and Aser, Zaboulon, Dan and Nepthali. 14And the Leuites, in reply, shall say in a loud voice to all Israel:

15 “Cursed be the person who shall make a carved and a cast image, an abomination to the Lord, a work of the hands of an artisan and shall set it up in secret.” And all the people, in reply, shall say, “May it be!”

16 “Cursed be he who dishonors his father or his mother.” And all the people shall say, “May it be!”

17 “Cursed be he who moves a neighbor’s boundaries.” And all the people shall say, “May it be!”
18 “Cursed be he who misleads a blind person on the road.” And all the people shall say, “May it be!"

19 “Cursed be he if he deprives guest and orphan and widow of justice.” And all the people shall say, “May it be!"

20 “Cursed be he who lies with his father’s wife, because he has uncovered the cover of his father.” And all the people shall say, “May it be!"

21 “Cursed be he who lies with any animal.” And all the people shall say, “May it be!"

22 “Cursed be he who lies with his sister, whether from his father or from his mother.” And all the people shall say, “May it be!"

23 “Cursed be he who lies with his mother-in-law.” And all the people shall say, “May it be!"

24 “Cursed be he who strikes down a neighbor with treachery.” And all the people shall say, “May it be!"

25 “Cursed be he if he take gifts to strike a soul of innocent blood.” And all the people shall say, “May it be!"

26 “Cursed be any person who does not remain in all the words of this law to do them.” And all the people shall say, “May it be!"

28 And it shall be, if by hearing you hear the voice of the Lord your God, to be watchful and to perform all his commandments that I command you today, that the Lord your God will render you high above all the nations of the earth, 2 and all these blessings shall come upon you and find you, if you hear the voice of the Lord your God:

3 Blessed be you in the city, and blessed be you in the field.

4 Blessed be the progeny of your belly and the produce of your land, the herds of your cows and the flocks of your sheep.

5 Blessed be your storehouses and your reserves.

6 Blessed be you when you come in, and blessed be you when you go out.

7 May the Lord your God hand over your enemies who have risen against you, when they have been crushed before you; they shall come out against you by one way and flee from before you by seven ways. 8 May the Lord send the blessing upon you in your storerooms and in all things to which you put your hand in the land that the Lord your God is giving you. 9 May the Lord raise you up for himself as a holy people, as he has sworn to your fathers, if you listen to the voice of the Lord your God and walk in his ways. 10 And all the nations of the earth shall see that the name of the Lord has been surnamed to you, and they shall be afraid of you. 11 And the Lord your God will make you abound with good things, in the progeny of your belly and in the progeny of your livestock and in the produce of your land in the land that the Lord swore to your fathers to give you. 12 May the Lord open for you his good treasury, the sky, to give the rain to your land in its season, to bless all the works of your hands. And you will lend to many nations, but you will not borrow. And you will rule over many nations, but they shall not rule over you. 13 May the Lord your God set you up as a head and not as a tail, and you shall then be on top, and you shall not be underneath—if you hear the commandments of the Lord your God, which I command you today, to guard and to perform. 14 You shall not turn aside from all of the words that I command you today, right or left, to go after other gods to serve them.

15 And it shall be, if you do not listen to the voice of the Lord your God to keep and to do all his commandments, which I command you today, that all these curses shall come upon you and overtake you:

16 Cursed be you in the city, and cursed be you in the field.

17 Cursed be your storehouses and your reserves.

18 Cursed be the progeny of your belly and the produce of your land, the herds of your cows and the flocks of your sheep.

19 Cursed be you when you come in, and cursed be you when you go out.

20 May the Lord send you lack and hunger and exhaustion in everything to which you may put your hand, whatever you might do until he utterly destroys you and until he ruins you quickly, on account of your evil deeds, because you have forsaken me. 21 May the Lord make death cling to you until it consumes you off the land that you are entering there to inherit it. 22 May the Lord strike you with difficulty and fever and cold and irritation and murder and with blight and paleness, and they shall pursue you until they destroy you. 23 And the sky over your head shall be bronze for the wild animals of the earth, and there shall be none to help you. 24 May the Lord send you mildew and the sky over your head shall be bronze for the wild animals of the earth, and there shall be none to help you. 25 May the Lord give you slaughter before your enemies; you shall go out against them by one way and flee from them by seven ways. And you shall be in dispersion in all the kingdoms of the earth.

26 And your corpses will be food for the birds of the sky and for the wild animals of the earth, and there shall be no one to frighten them away. 27 May the Lord strike you with an Egyptian festering sore in the seats and with severe itch and scratching so that you cannot be healed. 28 May the Lord strike you with derangement and blindness and distraction of mind, and you shall be groping about at midday as a blind person would grope in the darkness, and he will not prosper your ways, and you will then be wronged and plundered all the days, and there shall be none to help you. 29 You shall take a wife, but another man shall have her. You shall build a house, and you shall not live in it. You shall plant a vineyard and not harvest it. 30 Your bull calf is butchered before you, but you... shall not eat of it. Your donkey is seized from you, and it shall not be given back to you. Your sheep is given to your enemies, and there shall be none to help you. 32Your sons and daughters are given to another nation, and your eyes, being purulent, shall look for them, and your hand shall not be strong. 33A nation whom you do not know shall eat up the produce of your land and all your labors, and you shall be wronged and shattered all the days. 34And you shall be driven mad because of the sights of your eyes, which you shall see. 35May the Lord strike you on the knees and on the legs with a grievous festering sore so that you cannot be healed, from the sole of your feet to your crown. 36May the Lord lead away you and your rulers whom you may set over yourself to a nation that you and your fathers do not know, and you shall serve there other gods, of wood and stone.
37And there you shall become an enigma and an illustration and a tale among all the nations into which the Lord may lead you away there.

38You shall carry out much seed into the field and shall bring in few, for the grasshopper shall consume them. 39You shall plant and work a vineyard, but you shall neither drink the wine nor be joyful from it, for the worm shall devour them. 40Olive trees you shall have throughout all your borders, but you shall not anoint yourself with oil, for your olive tree shall shed. 41You shall bear sons and daughters, but they shall not remain yours, for they shall go away in captivity. 42All your wood products and the produce of your land the rust shall devour. 43The guest who is among you shall ascend up and up above you, but you shall descend down, down. 44He shall lend to you, but you shall not lend to him; he shall be the head, and you shall be the tail.

45And all these curses shall come upon you and pursue you and overtake you until it utterly destroy you and until it ruin you, because you did not listen to the voice of the Lord your God, to keep his commandments and his statutes that he commanded you. 46And there shall be signs and wonders among you and among your offspring forever, because you did not serve the Lord your God with rejoicing and with a good heart for the abundance of everything. 47And you shall serve your enemies whom the Lord will send against you, with famine and with thirst and with nakedness and with lack of everything. And he will put an iron collar on your neck until he utterly destroys you. 48The Lord will bring upon you a nation from far away, from the end of the earth, like the swoop of an eagle, a nation whose speech you will not hear, a nation shameless in face, which will not marvel at the face of an elder and have no mercy on the young. 49The Lord will bring upon you a nation from far away, from the end of the earth, like the swoop of an eagle, a nation whose speech you will not hear, a nation shameless in face, which will not marvel at the face of an elder and have no mercy on the young. 50And it shall consume the progeny of your livestock and the produce of your land so that there remains for you no grain, wine, oil, the herds of your cows and the flocks of your sheep, until it destroys you. 51And it shall wipe you out in all your cities until your high and fortified walls, in them in which you trusted, be pulled down in all your land, and it shall afflict you in all your cities that the Lord your God has given you. 52And in your desperate straits and in your affliction with which your enemy shall afflict you, you will eat the progeny of your belly, the flesh of your sons and your daughters whom the Lord has given you. 53The gentle among you and the very soft will begrudge with his eye his brother and the wife in his bosom and the remaining children who are left, so as to give to one of them from the flesh of his children whom he may be eating, because nothing remains to him in your desperate straits and affliction by which your enemies afflict you in all your cities. 54And she who is gentle among you and soft, the foot of whom did not make an attempt to tread on the ground, because of delicacy and gentleness, will begrudge with her eye her husband, who is in her bosom, and her son and daughter, even her afterbirth that comes out from between her thighs, and the child that she might bear. For she will devour them in secret for want of all things, in desperate straits and in affliction with which your enemy will afflict you in your cities.

55If you do not listen to perform all the words of this law that are written in this book, to fear this honorable and marvelous name, the Lord your God, then the Lord will make exceptional your plagues and the plagues upon your offspring, great and marvelous plagues and evil and constant maladies. 56And he will bring back upon you all the evil pains of Egypt of which you were in dread before them, and they shall cling to you. 57And every malady and every plague not recorded in the book of this law the Lord will bring on you until he utterly destroys you. 58And you shall be left few in number, instead of the fact that you were as the stars of the sky in multitude, because you did not listen to the voice of the Lord your God. 59And it shall be, just as the Lord took delight in you that you might do well and that you multiply, so the Lord will give you a discouraging heart and failing eyes and a molten soul. 60And your life shall be hanging before your eyes, and night and day you shall be afraid, and you shall not be sure of your life. 61In the morning you shall say, "If only evening might come!" and at evening you shall say, "If only morning might come!"—because of the fear of your heart with which you shall fear and because of the sights of your eyes which you shall see. 62And the Lord will bring you back in ships to Egypt by a route that I said: You shall never see it again, and there you shall be put up for sale to your enemies as male and female slaves, and there will be no buyer.

29 These are the words of the covenant, which the Lord commanded Moses to establish for the sons of Israel in the land of Moab, besides the covenant that he had made with them at Choreb.

2 And Moses called all the sons of Israel and said to them: You have seen all that the Lord did before you in the land of Egypt, to Pharao and to his attendants and to all his land, the great trials that your eyes saw, the signs and those great wonders.
But to this day the Lord God has not given you a heart to know and eyes to see and ears to hear.
And he led you forty years in the wilderness. Your garments have not grown old, and your sandals have not worn from your feet; you have not eaten bread, you have not drunk wine and sikerab—so that you may know that he is the Lord your God.
And you came as far as this place, and King Seon of Hesebon and King Og of Basan came out to meet us for battle, and we struck them down. And we took their land, and I gave it as an allotment to Rouben and to Gaddi and to the half-tribe of Ma-nasse. And you shall be watchful to perform all the words of this covenant in order that you may understand everything that you shall do.

10 You stand today, all of you, before the Lord your God—the leaders of your tribes and your council of elders and your judges and your recorders, every man of Israel, your women and your progeny and the guest who is in the midst of your camp, from your woodcutter even up to your water bearer—so that you may enter in the covenant of the Lord your God, and in his imprecations, which the Lord your God is making with you today in order that he may establish you for himself as a people, and he in turn shall be your god, as he said to you and as he swore to your father Abraam and Isaak and Iakob. And I am establishing this covenant and this imprecation, not with you alone but also with those who are here with us today before the Lord our God and with those who are not here with us today, because you know how we lived in the land of Egypt and how we passed through the midst of the nations through which you passed. And you have seen their abominations and their idols, wood and stone, silver and gold, that were among them.

Who is there among you, man or woman or family or tribe, whose mind has turned away from the Lord our God, to go to serve the gods of those nations? Who among you is a root growing up with gall and bitterness? And it shall be, if he hears the words of this imprecation and declares in his heart, saying: "May holy things become mine, because I shall walk in the wandering of my heart," lest the sinner destroy the sinless as well, God will not want to pardon him, but the Lord’s anger and his zeal will then blaze out against that person. And all the imprecations of this covenant, written in the book of this law will attach themselves to him, and the Lord will blot out his name from the earth beneath the sky.

21 And the Lord will sing him out for evil from all the sons of Israel, in accordance with all the imprecations of the covenant, which are written in the book of this law.
And the next generation will say, your sons who will rise up after you and the stranger who may come from a land far away, and they will see the plagues of that land and its diseases which the Lord has sent upon it; sulfur and burnt salt; its whole land shall not be sown, nor shall it sprout, neither will any vegetation spring up on it, just as Sodoma was overturned, and Gomorra, Adama and Seboim, which the Lord overturned in wrath and anger.
And all the nations will say, "Why has the Lord done thus to this land? What was this great vehemence of anger?"
Because they abandoned the covenant of the Lord, the God of their fathers, which he made with their fathers when he brought them out of the land of Egypt. And having gone, they served other gods and did obeisance to them whom they had not known, neither had he allotted to them, and the Lord became angry with wrath against that land, to bring on it according to all the curses written in this book.
The Lord removed them from their land in wrath and anger and very great provocation and cast them into another land, as it is now.
The secret things belong to the Lord our God, but the revealed things belong to us and to our children forever, to do all the words of this law.

30 And it shall be, when all these words come upon you, the blessing and the curse that I gave before you, that you shall receive them into your heart among all the nations wherever the Lord may scatter you there, and you shall return to the Lord your God and obey his voice regarding everything I command you today, with the whole of your heart and with the whole of your soul.
And the Lord will heal your sins and have mercy on you and gather you again from all the nations among whom the Lord has scattered you there.
If your dispersion be from an end of the sky to an end of the sky, from there the Lord your God will gather you, and from there he will take you.
And the Lord your God will bring you into the land that your fathers inherited, and you will inherit it, and he will make you well, and he will make you numerous beyond your fathers.

6 And the Lord will purge your heart and the heart of your offspring, to love the Lord your God with the whole of your heart and with the whole of your soul in order that you may live. And the Lord your God will give these imprecations on your enemies and on those who hate you, who pursued you. And you shall turn and listen to the voice of the Lord your God, and you shall do his commandments that I command you today.

aI.e. the words  bAram = strong drink work of your hands, in the progeny of your belly and in the produce of your land and in the progeny of your livestock. For the Lord your God will turn to be joyful toward you for good things, just as he was joyful over your fathers, 10 if you listen to the voice of the Lord your God, to keep his commandments and his statutes and his judgments that are written in the book of this law, if you turn to the Lord your God with the whole of your heart and with the whole of your soul. 11 Because this commandment that I command you today is not excessive nor is it far from you. 12 It is not in the sky, saying, "Who will go up to the sky and get it for us? And when we hear it, we shall do it." 13 Neither is it beyond the sea, saying, "Who will cross to the other side of the sea for us and get it for us? And when we hear it, we shall also do it." 14 The word is very near to you, in your mouth and in your heart and in your hands, to do it.

15 See, I have given before you today life and death, good and evil. 16 Now if you listen to the commandments of the Lord your God that I command you today, to love the Lord your God, to walk in his ways, to keep his statutes and his commandments and his judgments, then you shall live and become many, and the Lord your God will bless you in all the land into which you are entering there to inherit it. 17 And if your heart turns away and you do not listen but having been led astray you do obeisance to other gods and serve them, 18 I declare to you today that by destruction I will inflict on you the afflictions that I inflicted on the Egyptians, and in that day it will say, "Be not frightened from before them on that day, on account of all the evils they have done, because they turned to foreign gods. 19 And now write the words of this song, and teach it to the sons of Israel, and put it in their mouth in order that this song may be to me a witness against you today: I have given before you life and death, blessing and curse. And choose life, so that you and your offspring may live, 20 to love the Lord your God, to listen to his voice and to keep his commandment that I command you today, to love the Lord your God, and they shall listen to perform all the words of this law, 21 and their sons, who do not know, shall hear and learn to fear the Lord your God, all the days which they themselves live in the land into which you are crossing over the Jordan there to inherit it."

14 And the Lord said to Moyses, "Look, the days of your death have come near; call Iesous, and stand by the entrance of the tent of witness, and I will command him." And Moyses went, and Iesous, into the tent of witness, and they stood by the entrance of the tent of witness, 15 and the Lord descended in a cloud, and he stood at the entrance of the tent of witness, and the pillar of cloud stood at the entrance of the tent.

16 And the Lord said to Moyses, "Look, you are lying down with your fathers. And this people, having risen up, will prostitute after foreign gods of the land into which it is going there into it, and they will forsake me and break my covenant that I have established with them. 17 And I shall be angry with wrath against them in that day, and I will abandon them and turn away my face from them, and it will become food, and many evils and afflictions will find it. And in that day it will say, 'Because the Lord my God is not with me, these evils have found me.' 18 But I by turning will turn my face from them on that day, on account of all the evils they have done, because they turned to foreign gods. 19 And now write the words of this song, and teach it to the sons of Israel, and put it in their mouth in order that this song may be to me a witness among the sons of Israel. 20 For I will bring them into the good land which I swore to their fathers, a land flowing with milk and honey, and they shall eat and, filled, shall be sated and will not forsake you or abandon you. Do not fear, nor be frightened."

31 And Moyses finished speaking all these words to all the sons of Israel, 2 and he said to them: "I am today one hundred twenty years old. I shall not be able any more to come in and to go out. Now the Lord said to me, 'You shall not go out. Now the Lord said to me, 'You shall not cross over this Jordan. 3 The Lord your God who goes before you, he will utterly destroy these nations from before you, and you shall dispossess them. Iesous also is the one crossing over before you, 4 and the Lord will do to them as he did to Seon and Og, the two kings of the Amorrites who were beyond the Jordan, and to their land, as he utterly destroyed them. 5 And the Lord has delivered them before you, and you shall do to them as I have commanded you. 6 Be manly and strong; have no fear, nor be frightened, nor be terrified from before them, because the Lord your God, he who goes with you among you, will not forsake you or abandon you."

he shall make it heard to us = Weaned good land that I swore to their fathers." 22And on that day Moyses wrote this song and taught it to the sons of Israel.

23 And he commanded Iesous and said, "Be manly and strong, for you shall bring the sons of Israel into the land that the Lord swore to them, and he will be with you."

24 Now when Moyses had finished writing down in a book all the words of this law, to the very end, 25then he commanded the Leuites, who carry the ark of the covenant of the Lord, saying,

26 "Having taken the book of this law, you shall put it beside the ark of the covenant of the Lord your God, and it shall be there as a witness against you.

27 For I know your rebelliousness and your hard neck. For, while I am still alive among you today, you are being fractious concerning the things of God, how not also after my death? 28Assemble to me all the leaders of your tribes and your elders and your judges and your recorders so that I may speak all these words in their ears and call sky and earth to witness against them. 29For I know that, after my demise, with lawlessness you will act lawlessly and turn aside from the way that I have commanded you. And the evils will come upon you at the end of days, because you will do what is evil in the sight of the Lord, to provoke him through the works of your hands."

30 And Moyses spoke the words of this song, to the very end, in the ears of the whole assembly of Israel:

32 Give heed, O sky, and I will speak, and let the earth hear words from my mouth.

2 Let my utterance be awaited like rain, and let my words come down like dew, like a rainstorm on dog's tooth grass, and like a snowstorm on grass.

3 For I have called out the name of the Lord; ascribe greatness to our God!

4 God—his works are genuine, and all his ways are justice.

A faithful god, and there is no injustice, a righteous and holy Lord; 5 blemished children, not his, have sinned, a generation, crooked and perverse.

6 Do you thus repay the Lord these things, O people, foolish and not wise? Did not he himself, your father, acquire you and make you and create you?

7 Remember days of old; consider years of a generation of generations;

ask your father, and he will inform you, your elders, and they will tell you.

8 When the Most High was apportioning nations, as he scattered Adam's sons, he fixed boundaries of nations according to the number of divine sons, and his people Iakob became the Lord's portion, Israel a measured part of his inheritance.

9 He made him self-sufficient in a desert land, in thirst of heat, in a waterless place; he encircled him and educated him and guarded him as the apple of his eye. Like an eagle to protect his brood, he too yearned for his young; spreading his wings, he received them and bore them aloft on his back; the Lord alone was leading them, and no foreign god was with them.

10 He made them ascend onto the strength of the land, fed them with produce of the fields; they sucked honey from a rock and oil from solid rock, butter of cows and milk of sheep, with fat of lambs and rams; of the sons of bulls and of goats, with fat of kidneys of wheat—and they drank wine, blood of grapes. And Iakob ate and was filled, and the beloved one kicked.

He grew fat; he became heavy; he became broad! And he abandoned God who made him, and he departed from God his savior. 16 They provoked me with foreign things; by their abominations they embittered me.

17 They sacrificed to demons and not to God, to gods they did not know. New, recent ones have come, whom their fathers did not know.

18 You abandoned God who bore you, and you forgot God who nurtures you.

19 And the Lord saw it and was jealous, and he was provoked on account of the wrath of his sons and daughters.

20 And he said: I will turn away my face from them, and I will show what will happen to them at the end, for it is a perverse generation, sons who have no faithfulness in them.

21 They made me jealous with what is no god, provoked me with their idols. So I will make them jealous with what is no nation, provoke them with a nation lacking understanding.

22 For a fire has lit up from my anger and will burn as far as Hades below; it will devour earth and its produce and will light up foundations of mountains.

23 I will gather evils against them and will spend my arrows against them:

24 when they are being wasted by famine.
and by devouring of birds—and recurrvation beyond cure. Teeth of beasts I will send against them, with rage of things that drag on the ground.

25 From outside a dagger shall bereave them, and from the inner chambers fear, young man together with maiden, nursing child with one grown old.
26 I said, I will disperse them; indeed, I will cause their memory to cease from among humans; were it not for wrath of the enemies so that they may not last long and so that their adversaries not collaborate, let them not say, "Our hand is high, and it was not the Lord who did all these things."

28 For it is a nation that has lost counsel, and there is no understanding in them. They had no sense to understand these things. Let them accept them for the time to come.

30 How shall one pursue thousands and two remove myriads unless God sold them and the Lord delivered them up?
31 For not like our God are their gods, but our enemies are without understanding.

32 For their vine is from the vine of Sodoma, and their branch from Gomorra; their cluster is a cluster of bile; it is a bunch of bitterness to them;
33 their wine is the wrath of dragons, and the wrath of asps beyond cure.

34 Look, have not these things been gathered with me and sealed up in my treasuries?
35 In a day of vengeance, I will repay, in a time when their foot slips, because near is the day of their destruction and things prepared for you are at hand.

36 For the Lord will judge his people and be comforted over his slaves. For he saw them paralyzed, both failed under attack and enfeebled.

37 And the Lord said: Where are their gods, they in whom they trusted, the fat of whose sacrifices you were eating and were drinking the wine of their libations?
38 Let them rise up and help you, and let them be protectors for you!

39 See, see that I am, and there is no god except me. I will kill, and I will make alive; I will strike, and I will heal, and there is no one who will deliver from my hands.

40 For I will lift up my hand to the sky, and I will swear by my right hand, and I will say: I live forever, 41 because I will sharpen my dagger like lightning, and my hand will take hold on judgment, and I will repay my enemies with a sentence, and those who hate me I will repay.

42 I will make my arrows drunk with blood—and my dagger shall devour flesh—with the blood of the wounded and of captives, from the head of the commanders of the enemies.

43 Be glad, O skies, with him, and let all the divine sons do obeisance to him. Be glad, O nations, with his people, and let all the angels of God prevail for him. For he will avenge the blood of his sons and take revenge and repay the enemies with a sentence, and he will repay those who hate, and the Lord shall cleanse the land of his people.

44 And Moyses wrote this song in that day and taught it to the sons of Israel. And Moyses entered and spoke all the words of this law in the ears of the people, he and Iesous the son of Naue. And Moyses finished speaking to all Israel, and he said to them: "Pay heed with your heart to all these words that I am testifying against you today, which things you shall command your sons, to guard and to perform all the words of this law. Because this is not an empty word for you, since it is your very life, and through this word you shall live long in the land into which you are crossing over the Jordan there to inherit."

48 And on this day the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: "Ascend the mountain, this Abarim, Mount Nabau, which is in the land of Moab, across from Iericho, and view the land of Chanaan, which I am giving to the sons of Israel as a possession, and die on the mountain upon which you are ascending there, and be added to your people as your brother Aaron died on Hor the mountain and was added to his people, because you both disobeyed my word among the sons of Israel at the water of dispute at Kades in the wilderness of Sin, because you both did not sanctify me among the sons of Israel. Because you shall view the land from a distance, but you shall not enter there.

33 And this is the blessing with which Moyses, man of God, blessed the sons of Israel before his death. And he said: The Lord has come from Sina and appeared to us from Seir and hasted from Mount Pharan with myriads of Kades;
at his right, angels with him.

3 And he spared his people, and all of the sanctified ones were under your hands—
even these are under you, and it* accepted from his words 4a law, which Moyses commanded us, an inheritance for the congregations of Iakob.

5 And he shall be a ruler inb the beloved one, when rulers of peoples have been gathered together with the tribes of Israel.

6 Let Rouben live and not die out, and let him be many in number.

7 And thisc of Ioudas:
Listen, O Lord, to the voice of Ioudas, and you could enter into his people;
his hands will decided for him, and you will be a helper from his enemies.

8 And to Leui he said:
Give Leui his eclear ones and his truth to the devout man, whom they tempted him with temptation.
They reviled him at the water of dispute.

9 He who was saying to his father and his mother,
"I have not seen you,"
and he did not acknowledge his brothers and did not acknowledge his sons—he guarded your oracles and kept your covenant.

10 They shall show Jakob your statutes and Israel your law;
they shall place incense fin your wrathf continually on your altar.

11 Bless, O Lord, his strength, and accept the works of his hands;
shatter the loins of his enemies that have risen up against him, and those that hate him, let them not rise up.

12 And to Benjamin he said:
Beloved by the Lord he shall encamp in confidence—and God overshadows him all the days—and he rested between his shoulders.

13 And to Joseph he said:
His land is from the Lord's blessing, from the seasons of the sky and of dew and from unfathomable springs below and in a season of produce of the sun's changes

15 and from conjunctions of months and from the top of mountains of yore and from the top of the everlasting hills

16 and in a season of earth's fullness.
And may the things acceptable to him who appeared in the bush
come on the head of Ioseph and on his crown, when he was glorified among brothers.

17 A firstborn of a bull—his beauty!
His horns are horns of a unicorn;
with them he will gore nations,
all at once as far as earth's end.
These are the myriads of Ephraim;
these the thousands of Manasse.

18 And to Zaboulon he said:
Be glad, Zaboulon, in your going out, and, Issachar, in his coverts.

19 They shall utterly destroy nations, and you shall invoke there, and you shall sacrifice a sacrifice of righteousness,
for the riches of the sea will suckle you and the trade of those living by the seacoast.

20 And to Gad he said:
Blessed be the one who expands Gad!
He rested like a lion, having broken arm and ruler.

21 And he saw his first fruit, for there was apportioned a land of rulers, gathered together with chiefs of peoples,
the Lord executed righteousness and his judgment with Israel.

22 And to Dan he said:
Dan is a lion's whelp,
and he shall leap forth from Basan.

23 And to Nephthali he said:
Nephthali has a fullness of things acceptable, and let him be filled with blessing from the Lord;
he shall inherit the sea and the southwest.

24 And to Aser he said:
Blessed of children be Aser, and he shall be acceptable to his brothers;
he shall dip his foot in oil.

25 His sandal will be iron and bronze, and as your days, so is your strength.

26 There is none like the God of the beloved;
he who rides upon the sky is your helper and the magnificent one of the firmament.

27 And there is divine protection of yore and under the strength of the everlasting arms, and he will drive out the enemy before you, saying, “May you perish!”

28 And Israel will encamp in confidence, alone in Jakob’s land with grain and wine, and the sky is cloudy with dew for him.

29 Happy are you, O Israel! Who is like you, a people saved by the Lord? Your helper will shield you, and the dagger will be your boast! And your enemies shall speak falsely to you, and you shall tread on their neck.

34 And Moyses went up from Araboth of Moab to Mount Nabau, to the top of Phasga, which is opposite Jericho, and the Lord showed him all the land: Galaad as far as Dan and all the land of Nephthali and all the land of Ephraim and Manasse and all the land of Judah as far as the last sea and the wilderness and the environs of Jericho, a city of palm trees—as far as Segor. 4 And the Lord said to Moyses, “This is the land of which I swore to Abraam and Isaak and Jakob, saying, ‘I will give it to your offspring, I showed it to your eyes, but you shall not enter there.” 5 And Moyses, the domestic of the Lord, died there in the land of Moab, through the word of the Lord. 6 And they buried him in Gai, in the land of Moab, near the house of Phogor, but no one knows his grave to this day. 7 Now Moyses was one hundred twenty years old when he died; his eyes were neither dimmed nor were they ruined.

8 And the sons of Israel wept for Moyses in Araboth of Moab, near the Jordan, opposite Jericho, thirty days, and the days of mourning of the weeping for Moyses were ended.

9 And Jesus son of Naue was filled with the spirit of understanding, because Moyses had laid his hands on him, and the sons of Israel listened to him and did as the Lord had commanded Moyses.

10 And there has not again arisen a prophet in Israel like Moyses whom the Lord knew face-to-face, with all the signs and wonders, whom the Lord sent to do them in the land of Egypt, against Pharaoh and his attendants and his entire land and the great wonders and the strong hand which Moyses exhibited before all Israel.
IESOUS
TO THE READER

For this translation I have made use of the edition of A. Rahlfs, Septuaginta. Id est Vetus Testamentum græce iuxta LXX interpretes, 2 vols. (Stuttgart: Württembergische Bibelanstalt, 1935). I did not deviate from its text or punctuation. At three places—in chapters 15, 18, and 19—Rahlfs presented the texts of Codex Vaticanus (B) and Codex Alexandrinus (A) in separate columns. Each of these instances involves lists of place names, often obscure ones. I have followed Rahlfs by translating these columns separately.

An earlier edition of Greek Joshua was prepared by Max L. Margolis in the 1920s and early 1930s and published as The Book of Joshua in Greek: Parts I – IV (Paris: Geuthner, 1931–1938 [repr. 1974]) and The Book of Joshua in Greek: Part V; Joshua 19.39–24.33 (preface E. Tov; Philadelphia: Annenberg Research Institute, 1992). Margolis and Rahlfs agree that the text of Iesous as preserved in Codex B is in many respects a close approximation of the Old Greek (OG) version as it left the hands of the original translator(s). But they often differ, both in small points and in their approach to the frequently enigmatic way in which the many place names of Hebrew Joshua are represented in the Greek traditions. My decision to follow Rahlfs should not be taken to mean that I agree with Rahlfs over Margolis in every instance. The easier accessibility of the Rahlfs version makes it prudent to give it precedence in NETS. In any case, Rahlfs will be superseded by the Göttingen edition, which is in the process of preparation.

Translation Profile of the LXX of Joshua

General Character
The Greek of LXX Joshua has been variously described as “one of the most interesting books of the Greek Bible,” “a thoughtful version” and “[striking] a balance between literalness and freedom.” By and large, it, like the corresponding Hebrew, is fairly easy to read.

Comparison with LXX Pentateuch
There are few, if any, indications of the specific date or locale in which the LXX of Joshua was produced; recently the case has been made for a mid-third century BCE date. There is indeed much evidence to commend the view that the person(s) responsible for LXX Joshua, while not feeling bound by the Greek translation of the Pentateuch, did make extensive use of this earlier text. Particularly instructive is LXX Joshua’s use of θυσιαστήριον, possibly to distinguish a “licit” altar from one the text condemns. So, for example, at 22.19 Hebrew מִנְהַל הַלַּיְלָה הַיָּבוֹם (“an altar other than the altar of the LORD our God”), LXX Joshua has μετῆλθεν τῆς θυσιαστήριου κύριον τοῦ θεοῦ ἡμῶν (“an altar other than the altar of the Lord our God”).

Variation in Translation
The Greek translator of Joshua, although maintaining standard renderings for a number of terms, also shows a marked tendency to vary them—and not just in instances of potential exegetical importance, as at 22.19 above. Another example of such variation is provided at 5.2 and 3. In both verses the Hebrew reads מִנְהַל סְפָרִים; the LXX has μαχαίρας πετρίνας [ἐκ πέτρας ὀρφανοῦ] in v. 2 but μαχαίρας πετρίνας [ὀρφανοῦ] in v. 3. It should be noted, however, that in both cases the words I have placed in square brackets have no counterpart in MT and may be textual rather than translational. The Hebrew idiom “to blow the horn” always requires the preposition ב, as in 6.13: חָלָה בְּעֵדֶת. On occasion, LXX Joshua follows suit, as in this same verse: καὶ οἱ ἱερεῖς ἐσάλπισαν τοῖς σάλπιγξι, though without explicitly reproducing the Hebrew preposition. Elsewhere and even in close proximity (v. 16), however, the Greek verb alone is made to suffice (ἐσάλπισαν οἱ ἱερεῖς). The former I have translated as “sounded with the trumpets” but the latter as “trumpeted”. Among individual and recurring words that the Greek translator handled differently throughout the book of Joshua are ἔβασεν (δούλος, θεράπτων, παῖς) and ἔντελλομαι (ἐντέλλομαι, συντάσσω).
Relationship between MT and LXX

The determination of the relationship between the MT and the OG of Joshua has attracted considerable scholarly debate in the last few decades. Overall, it has been estimated, the Greek version of Joshua is 4–5% shorter than the MT.

This percentage should not obscure the variety of differences between the Greek and Hebrew. (1) In many small details (which are often qualitative rather than quantitative), the two traditions differ. Three examples from proper names are instructive in this regard: throughout chapter 7, נְכַת (Nk) becomes Ἀχαρ; נְדִיד (qdc-ynd) is Αὐδωνίβεζεξ (Adōnibexēz) in chapter 10; and the site where Iesous/Joshua assembles the Israelites for the last time (in chapter 24) is Μᾶκαλ in the MT, Σήλαο in the LXX.

(2) Substantial differences of meaning occur, for example, in chapter 5, even when the number of words is nearly the same. In this regard, none is more dramatic than the LXX statement (5.4) that there were uncircumcised males among the Israelites who left Egypt: καὶ οἵοι ποτὲ ἀπερίτμητοι ἤσαν τῶν ἡγεληλθοῦσαν ἤ Αἰγύπτου—in the face of the MT affirmation (5.5) that all the people who came out [of Egypt] had been circumcised: מִתְנַח מִלְּתָם יִשְׂרָאֵל. Also of considerable interest is the variation in the number of years the Israelites were in the wilderness (v. 6): forty-two in the LXX; forty in the MT.

(3) In chapter 6, the LXX is 10% shorter than the MT, and in chapter 20, three verses from the MT are absent in the LXX. Fairly typical is this regard is 6.15 in the LXX: καὶ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τῇ ἐρήμῳ ἄνεστον ὅρθρω καὶ περιοίλθοσαν τὴν πόλιν ἐξαίρετος (“And on the seventh day they rose at dawn and marched around the city seven times”), in comparison with the MT of the same verse. In chapter 20, vv. 1–2 and 7–9 are parallel in the LXX and MT; what follows in the MT as vv. 3–7 appears far more succinctly in v. 3 of the LXX.

(4) On occasion, the LXX has material not found in the MT, specifically in chapters 21 and 24. Especially notable is the reference in 21.42d to “the flint knives”: καὶ ἐλαβὲν ἥρις τάς μαχαίρας τάς πετρίνας, which reappears at 24.31a as τάς μαχαίρας τάς πετρίνας. (It is worth observing that this wording differs from the renderings in chapter 5, noted above.) LXX Joshua concludes with two verses (33a–b) that form a distinctive link (vis-à-vis the MT) with the following book of Judges.

The majority of contemporary scholars locate many, if not most, of these differences, especially the larger ones, in a Hebrew Vorlage of the LXX that differed from the MT in these respects. Other scholars would allow a far greater role for interpretive activity on the part of those responsible for LXX Joshua. My translation does not depend on the acceptance of one or the other view or any permutation of them.

Hebraisms

In working through LXX Joshua, I have come to acknowledge what I would term the translation’s (translator’s) strengths and weaknesses. Preeminent among the strengths, as I see them, is a sincere desire on the part of the translator to convey to his (original) audience the sense and the structure of his Hebrew Vorlage as he understood them. His retention of some Hebraisms may well have made his version tough going for all but those who were truly bilingual, but his dedication to the base text does not seem to have flagged, except perhaps in the long and involved lists of place names that predominate in the book’s mid-section.

In addition to several Hebraisms mentioned earlier, I highlight here two other instances, one found only once in Iesous, the other, recurrent. At 14.9, מִתְנַח מִלְּתָם יִשְׂרָאֵל is rendered, somewhat freely, by the NRSV as “because you have wholeheartedly followed the LORD my God.” Initially I had translated the corresponding Greek—ὅτι προστίθη γιὰ διάκολουθησα ὑπίσ σε σοῦ θεου ἡμῶν—as “because you have continued to follow closely after the Lord our God.” Since προστιθημί regularly renders κατακολούθησα with the meaning “continue to”—although the Greek verb does not have this meaning outside of the LXX—I determined that “continue to,” rather than “add to” (the common, non-LXX meaning) would be appropriate. I finally settled on “apply oneself to” (so, “because you have applied yourself to”) as the rendering that best suited the context.

The Hebrew at 24.13, בְּרֵאשֵׁית הָאָרֶץ מִי יָדֶּשֶׁת (“land on which you had not labored”), would be adequately and effectively rendered into Greek by γῆν ἐὰν οὐκ ἔκσπαστε; the fuller LXX, with ἔποιητα, is clearly not a “natural” or “normal” koine idiom and can only be explained as a reflex of בְּרֵאשֵׁית in the source text. The NETS translation, “a land, that on which you did not labor,” is an attempt to reflect the awkwardness of the Greek.

Transliteration

To illustrate the difficulties faced by the modern researcher—as well, I suspect, as the ancient translator and those who transmitted his words—we may look at a small section of the several chapters and many verses devoted to lists, specifically chapter 19.3–4 (describing a portion of the territory allotted to Symeon [LXX] or Simeon [MT]). What follows in transcription is Codex Vaticanus (B), Codex Alexandrinus (A), and the MT (as rendered in the NRSV):

In his version, Max Margolis (see above) reconstructed the oldest Greek of these verses in this way:
3 καὶ Ασαρ Σωαλ καὶ Βωλα καὶ Άσεμ 4 καὶ Ελθωλαδ καὶ Βεθουλ καὶ Ερμα.

In arriving at these transcriptions he relied heavily on the Onomasticon of Eusebius, resorting to conjecture (only) in the case of Άσεμ. It was Margolis’ judgment that Codex Alexandrinus, as a chief exemplar of his Constantinopolitan group, was on the whole a better witness than Codex Vaticanus to the earliest forms of place names, especially rare ones, although (as can be seen here) its testimony is far from faultless.

Other Translation Issues
I have wrestled with several other practices on the part of LXX Joshua. In particular, I decided, in accordance with NETS policy, not to smooth out the many rough edges of the translation. Where sentences lack syntactic cohesion, I indicate this, often with one or more dashes. An example of this is found at 7.14: καὶ ἔσται ἡ φυλή, ἤν ἄν δειξῃ κύριος, προσαξέτε κατὰ δῆμους, “And it shall be that the tribe that the Lord shows—you shall bring it near by districts.”

In one case, I would have wished to part company with my NETS colleagues. It seems to me that, in the majority of cases, LXX Joshua’s πρός (or ἐπὶ) θάλασσαν should be translated “westward” (or “to the West”), rather than “seaward” or “to the sea.” This is especially the case when the translator clearly understood other, parallel terms as directional, as in 18.12ff, where ἐπὶ τὴν θάλασσαν and πρὸς θάλασσαν are in parallel with ἀπὸ βορρᾶ, ἀπὸ λιβῶς and similar terms. The use of “sea” as a directional designation is without parallel in extra-LXX contexts, thus precluding my use of directional terminology in my translation for this expression.

The Book of Iesous (Joshua) in Nets and in the NRSV
The NRSV’s rendering of the book of Joshua is not as literal as that of its predecessor, the RSV. On a number of occasions, this can give the impression that the MT and the LXX of Joshua are more at variance than they actually are. Especially in the earlier chapters, I made a conscious effort to retain NRSV wording when it was a possible equivalent for the Greek; as time went on, I tended to up the ante, as it were, to probable equivalent. I sensed the need to reflect my perception of Greek nuances over against the collective responsibility to prepare an English rendering of the LXX that can be used synoptically with the NRSV.

Earlier Renderings of the LXX Into English
Although there are problems with both its Greek base text and the accompanying English-language version, it is still useful to consult Brenton.

Leonard J. Greenspoon
And it happened after the death of Moyses that the Lord spoke to Iesous son of Naue, Moyses’ assistant, saying, 2"Moyses my attendant is dead. Now then rise up to cross the Jordan, you and all this people, into the land that I am giving to them. 3Every place upon which you tread with the sole of your feet, to you I will give it, as I promised to Moyses, 4the wilderness and Anti-Lebanon as far as the great river, the river Euphrates, and as far as the farthest sea; from the setting of the sun shall be your boundaries. 5No person shall stand against you all the days of your life. And just as I was with Moyses, so I will also be with you, and I will not forsake you or overlook you. 6Be strong and manly, for you shall divide for this people the land that I swore to your ancestors to give to them. 7Be strong, therefore, and manly, to observe and act as Moyses my servant commanded you, and you shall not turn aside from them to the right or to the left so that you may be perceptive in everything you do. 8And the book of this law shall not depart out of your mouth, and you shall meditate on it day and night so that you may understand how to do all that is written. Then you shall prosper and make your ways prosperous, and then you shall be perceptive. 9Look, I have commanded you: Be strong and manly; do not be cowardly or frightened, for the Lord your God is with you in all places where you go."

And Iesous commanded the scribes of the people, saying, 11"Go into the midst of the camp of the people, and command the people, saying: ‘Prepare provisions, for yet three days and you are crossing over this Jordan, when you go in to take possession of the land that the Lord, God of your ancestors, gives you.’"

And to Rouben and to Gad and to the half-tribe of Manasse Iesous said, 13"Remember the word of the Lord that Moyses the servant of the Lord commanded you, saying, ‘The Lord your God has given you rest and has given you this land.’ 14Let your wives and your little ones and your livestock settle in the land he gave you. But you shall cross over well-equipped before your kindred, every strong man, and you shall fight on their side until the Lord your God gives rest to your kindred, as also to you, and they too inherit the land that the Lord your God is giving them. And each of you shall depart to his inheritance, which Moyses gave to you beyond the Jordan, from the rising of the sun.’"

And in reply to Iesous, they said: "All that you have commanded us we will do, and to every place you send us we will go. 17Just as we obeyed Moyses in all things, we will obey you. Only let the Lord our God be with you, as he was with Moyses. 18But the person who is disobedient towards you and whoever disobeys your words, as you command him, let him die. But be strong and manly.”

And Iesous son of Naue sent two young men from Sattin to spy, saying, “Go up, and view the land, especially Iericho.” And the two young men went and entered Iericho, and they entered the house of a prostitute whose name was Raab and lodged there. 2And it was reported to the king of Iericho, saying, “Men of the sons of Israel have come here to spy out the land.” 3And the king of Iericho sent and spoke to Raab, saying, “Bring out the men who entered your house tonight, for they have come to spy out the land.” 4And the woman took the men and hid them, and she said to them, saying, “The men came to me. 5But when the gate was closed at dark, then the men went out. Where they went I do not know. Pursue after them, if you can overtake them.” 6She had, however, brought them up upon the roof and hid them in the flax-straw that she had laid out upon the roof. 7And the men pursued after them on the way by the Jordan to the fords, and the gate was closed.

And it happened, when those who were pursuing after them had gone out 8and before they too went to sleep, she too came up on the roof to them 9and said to them, “I know that the Lord has given you the land, for the dread of you has fallen on us. 10For we have heard that the Lord God dried up the Red Sea before you when you came out of the land of Egypt and what he did to the two kings of the Amorrites that were beyond the Jordan, to Seon and Og, those whom you utterly destroyed. 11And when we heard it, we were distraught in our heart, and there was no spirit left in any of us from before you, for the Lord your God is God in heaven above and on earth below. 12And now, since I am showing you pity, swear to me by the Lord God that you also in turn will show pity in the house of my father 13and spare the house of my father and my mother and my brothers and all my house and all that belong to them and deliver my soul from death.” 14And the men said to her, “Our soul for yours unto death.” And she said, “When the Lord hands over to you the city, you shall show me pity and truth.”

And she let them down through the window. 16And she said to them, “Depart into the hill country so that the pursuers may not come upon you. And you shall be hidden there three days until those who pursue after you have returned, and afterward you shall depart on your way.” 17And the men said to her, “We are free from this oath of yours. 18Look, we are entering a part of the city, and you shall set in place the sign. You shall tie this scarlet cord in the window through which you let us down, and you shall gather to yourself, into your house, your father and your mother and your brothers and all your father’s family. 19And it shall be that everyone who goes out of the door of your house into the street, he shall be liable on his own account, and we will be free from this oath of yours. And any who are with you in your house, we shall be liable. 20But if anyone wrongs us or also discloses this business of ours, we shall be free from this oath of yours.” 21And she said to them, “According to your word, so let it be.” And she sent them away.
And they departed and went into the hill country and stayed there three days. And the pursuers searched all the roads and did not find them. And the two young men returned and came down from the mountain. And they crossed over to Iesous son of Naue and told him all that had happened to them. And they said to Iesous, "The Lord has given all the land into our hand, and everyone who inhabits that land cowers because of us."

And Iesous rose early in the morning and departed out of Sattin, and they came as far as the Jordan and lodged there before crossing over. And it happened after three days that the scribes went through the camp and commanded the people, saying, "When you see the ark of the covenant of the Lord our God and our priests and the Levites carrying it, you shall depart from your places. And go after it. But let there be a distance between you and it, as much as two thousand cubits. You shall stand still. Do not approach it so that you may know the way whereby you will go, for you have not gone the way from yesterday and the third day." And Iesous said to the people, "Purify yourselves for tomorrow; for tomorrow among you the Lord will do wonders." And Iesous said to the priests, "Take up the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and go before the people." And the priests took up the ark of the covenant of the Lord and went in front of the people.

And the Lord said to Iesous, "On this day I am beginning to exalt you before all the sons of Israel so that they may know that as I was with Moyse, so will I be also with you. And now command the priests who bear the ark of the covenant, saying, 'When you enter upon a part of the water of the Jordan, then you shall stand still in the Jordan.'" And Iesous said to the sons of Israel, "Draw near here, and hear the word of the Lord your God. By this you shall know that a living god is among you, and with destruction he will destroy from before us the Chananite and the Pherezite and the Heuite and the Amorrite and the Gergesite and the lebouise: Look, the ark of the covenant of the Lord of all the earth passes through the Jordan. Select for yourselves twelve men from the sons of Israel, one from each tribe. And it will be, when the feet of the priests who bear the ark of the covenant of the Lord of all the earth rest in the water of the Jordan, that the water of the Jordan shall cease, and the water coming down shall stand still."

And the people departed from their coverts to cross over the Jordan, and the priests bore the ark of the covenant of the Lord in front of the people. Now when the priests who bore the ark of the covenant were entering the Jordan and the feet of the priests who bore the ark of the covenant of the Lord were dipped in part of the water of the Jordan—now the Jordan would overflow throughout all its channel-system as if it were the days of wheat harvest—and the waters flowing down from above stood still, a single solid heap stood apart very, very far off, as far as part of Kariathi- arim, and that which came down came down to the sea of Araba, the salt sea, until it completely ceased. And the people stood opposite Iericho. And the priests who bore the ark of the covenant of the Lord stood on dry ground in the middle of the Jordan—and all the sons of Israel were crossing over on dry land—until all the people finished crossing over the Jordan.

And when all the people finished crossing over the Jordan, then the Lord said to Iesous, saying, "Take along men from the people, one from each tribe; instruct them, saying, 'Take twelve stones at hand out of the middle of the Jordan, and when you have carried these over with you, lay them down in your camp, there where you make camp for the night.'" And when Iesous had summoned twelve men of the honored from the sons of Israel, one from each tribe, he said to them, "Pass on before me, before the Lord, into the middle of the Jordan, and when each has taken up a stone from there, let him carry it on his shoulders, according to the number of the twelve tribes of Israel, so that these may exist as a sign for you, in place for all time; so that when your son asks you tomorrow, saying, 'What are these stones to you?' then you shall explain to your son, saying, 'Because the river Jordan failed from before the ark of the covenant of the Lord of all the earth, when it crossed over it. And these stones shall be to you a memorial, to the sons of Israel forever.'"

And the sons of Israel did so, as the Lord commanded Iesous. And they took up twelve stones out of the middle of the Jordan, as the Lord instructed Iesous at the completion of the crossing over of the sons of Israel, and they carried them over with them to the camp and laid them down there. Now Iesous also set up another twelve stones in the Jordan itself, in the place that was under the feet of the priests who bore the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and they are there until this very day.

Now the priests who bore the ark of the covenant stood in the Jordan until Iesous finished everything the Lord commanded him to tell the people. And the people hastened, and they crossed over. And it happened, as soon as all the people had finished crossing over, that the ark of the covenant of the Lord passed over, and the stones in front of them. And the sons of Rouben and the sons of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasse crossed over equipped before the sons of Israel, as Mowse had commanded them. Forty thousand well girded for battle passed over before the Lord for war against the city of Iericho.

On that day the Lord exalted Iesous before the whole race of Israel, and they feared him, as they had Mowse, for as long a time as he lived. And the Lord said to Iesous, saying, "Command the priests who bear the ark of the covenant of the testimony of the Lord to come up out of the Jordan." And Iesous commanded the priests, saying, "Come up out of the Jordan."
And it happened, as soon as the priests who bore the ark of the covenant of the Lord came up out of the Jordan and set their feet on the land, that the water of the Jordan rushed headlong into place and went as yesterday and the third day throughout all its banks.

19 And the people went up out of the Jordan on the tenth of the first month, and the sons of Israel encamped in Galgala in the part toward sunrise, from Jericho. 20 And those twelve stones, which he had taken out of the Jordan, Iesous set up in Galgala, 21 saying, "When your sons ask you, saying, ‘What are these stones?’ 22 proclaim to your sons, 'Israel crossed over the Jordan on dry ground, when the Lord our God dried up the water of the Jordan from before them until they crossed over, as the Lord our God did to the Red Sea, which the Lord our God dried up before us until we passed over, that all the nations of the earth may know that the power of the Lord is mighty and in order that you may worship the Lord your God for all time.'"

5 And it happened, when the kings of the Amorites, who were beyond the Jordan, and the kings of Phoenicia by the sea heard that the Lord God had dried up the Jordan river from before the sons of Israel when they crossed over, that their hearts melted, and they were panic-stricken, and there was no understanding in them, from before the sons of Israel.

2 Now about that time, the Lord said to Iesous, "Make for yourself flint knives out of sharp rock, and sit down, and circumcise the sons of Israel." 3 And Iesous made sharp flint knives and circumcised the sons of Israel at the place called Hill of Foreskins. 4 And how Iesous completely purified the sons of Israel—as many as were born on the way and as many as were uncircumcised of those who had come out of Egypt—5 all these Iesous circumcised. 6 For Israel had gone about in the wilderness of Madbaritis for forty-two years, wherefore most of their warriors who had come out of the land of Egypt were uncircumcised, those who disobeyed God’s ordinances, concerning whom he also determined that they would not see the land that the Lord had sworn to their forefathers to give to us, a land flowing with milk and honey. 7 And in their place he raised up their sons, whom Iesous circumcised because they remained uncircumcised on the way.

8 Now when they had been circumcised, they kept quiet there, remaining in the camp until they were healed. 9 And the Lord said to Iesous son of Naue, "On this very day I have taken away the reproach of Egypt from you." And he called the name of that place Galgala.

10 And the sons of Israel kept the pascha on the fourteen day of the month from evening at sunset at Jericho on the opposite side of the Jordan in the plain. 11 And they ate from the grain of the land, things unleavened and fresh. On this day 12 the manna ceased, after they had eaten from the grain of the land, and the sons of Israel no longer had manna, and they enjoyed the fruit of the country of the Phoenicians in that year.

13 And it happened, when Iesous was at Jericho, that he looked up with his eyes and saw a person standing before him, and his sword was drawn in his hand. And Iesous approached and said to him, "Are you one of us or on the side of our adversaries?" 14 Then he said to him, "As commander-in-chief of the force of the Lord I have now come." And Iesous fell facedown onto the earth, and he said to him, "Master, what do you order your domestic?" 15 And the commander-in-chief of the Lord said to Iesous, "Loosen the sandal from your feet, for the place where you stand is holy." 16 And Jericho was completely closed up and fortified, and no one came out from it nor went in. 2 And the Lord said to Iesous, "Look, I am delivering Jericho into your control, and its king in it, mighty ones in strength. 3 And you, station around it the warriors in a circle. 4 And it shall be as soon as you sound with the trumpet, let all the people shout together. And when they shout, the walls of the city will fall spontaneously, and all the people shall enter, each one rushing headlong into the city." 6 And Iesous the son of Naue went in to the priests 7 and spoke to them, saying, "Charge the people to go around and surround the city. And let the warriors pass by in arms before the Lord. 8 "And let seven priests holding seven sacred trumpets proceed in this manner before the Lord, and let them signal vigorously. And let the ark of the covenant of the Lord follow. 9 And let the warriors go before, and the priests who bring up the ark of the covenant of the Lord, as they walk and trumpet." 10 And the people Iesous commanded, saying, "Do not shout, and do not let anyone hear your voice until the day he himself tells you to shout, and then you shall shout." 11 And when the ark of the covenant of God had gone around the city, it immediately went back into the camp and lodged there.

12 And on the second day Iesous rose in the morning, and the priests took up the ark of the covenant of the Lord. 13 And the seven priests carrying the seven trumpets passed on before the Lord, and afterwards the warriors entered, and the rest of the crowd behind the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and the priests sounded with the trumpets. And all the rest of the crowd encircled the city from close at hand 14 and went back again into the camp. Thus they kept doing for six days.

15 And on the seventh day they rose at dawn and marched around the city seven times. 16 And on the seventh circuit the priests trumpeted, and Iesous said to the sons of Israel, "Cry out, for the Lord has given you the city. 17 And the city shall be devoted, it and all that is in it, to the Lord Sabaoth. Only keep safe Raab the prostitute, her and what is in her house. 18 But you, keep well away from what is devoted so that you yourselves do not covet and take any of what is devoted and make the camp of the sons of Israel a devoted thing and annihilate us. 19 And all silver or gold or bronze or iron shall be sacred to the Lord; it shall be carried into the treasury of the Lord." 20And the priests sounded with the trumpets. And as soon as the people heard the sound of the trumpets, all the people at the same time raised a great and strong shout, and the whole wall fell down all around. And all the people went up into the city. 21And with the edge of the sword lesous devoted it and all that was in the city, from man even to woman, from young man even to old, and even to calf and draft animal.

22 And lesous said to the two young men who had served as spies, “Go into the woman’s house, and bring her out from there and all that is hers.” 23And the two young men who had spied out the city went into the house of the woman and brought out Raab the prostitute and her father and her mother and her brothers and all that was hers and her kindred. And they set her outside the camp of Israel. 24And the city was burned with burning with all that was in it. Only things of silver and gold and bronze and iron did they give, to be brought into the treasury of the Lord. 25And Raab the prostitute and all her father’s house lesous kept alive, and it has dwelled in Israel until this very day. For she hid the spies whom lesous sent to spy out lericho.

26 And lesous swore on that day before the Lord, saying,
"Cursed be the person who shall build that city.
At the cost of his firstborn he shall find it, and at the cost of his youngest he shall set up its gates." And thus did Ozan of Baithel; at the cost of Abiron, his firstborn, he founded it, and at the cost of his youngest, although he escaped, he set up its gates.
27 And the Lord was with lesous, and his name was in all the land.

7 And the sons of Israel committed a major offense and appropriated for themselves part of what was devoted. And Achar son of Charmi son of Zambri son of Zara, of the tribe of Ioudas, took from what was devoted, and the Lord was furiously angry with the sons of Israel.

2 And lesous sent men to Gai, which is near Baithel, saying, “Spy out Gai.” And the men went up and spied out Gai. 3And they returned to lesous and said to him, “Let not all the people go up, but let about two or three thousand men go up and take the city by siege. Do not lead up there the whole people, for they are few.” 4And about three thousand men went up, and they fled before the men of Gai. 5And of them the men of Gai killed up to thirty-six men. And they pursued them from the gate, and they crushed them on the slope. And the heart of the people was terrified and became like water.

6 And lesous tore his clothes, and lesous fell on the ground facedown before the Lord until evening, he and the elders of Israel, and they threw dust on their heads. 7And lesous said, “I pray, Lord, why has your servant brought this people across the Jordan, to hand them over to the Amorrite so as to destroy us? If only we had remained and been settled beyond the Jordan. 8And what shall I say, since Israel has turned its neck before its enemy? 9And when the Chananite and all the inhabitants of the land hear, they will surround us and wipe us out from the land. And what will you make of your great name?”

10 And the Lord said to lesous, “Stand up. Why is it that you have fallen upon your face? 11The people have sinned and transgressed the covenant that I made with them. And they have stolen from what is devoted and put it into their own belongings. 12The sons of Israel shall not be able to stand before their enemies; they shall turn their neck before their enemies, because they have become what is devoted. I will be with you no longer, unless you remove what is devoted from yourselves. 13Stand up, sanctify the people, and tell them to be sanctified for tomorrow. This is what the Lord God of Israel says, ‘What is devoted is among you. You will be unable to withstand before your enemies until you remove what is devoted from among you.’ 14And all of you shall be gathered together in the morning by tribes. And it shall be that the tribe that the Lord shows you shall bring near by districts. And the district that the Lord shows you shall bring near by household. And the household that the Lord shows you shall bring near by man.
15And the one who is indicated shall be burned with fire, and all that he has, because he has transgressed the covenant of the Lord and has committed lawlessness in Israel.”

16 And lesous rose early and brought the peoples near by tribes, and the tribe of Ioudas was shown. 17And it was brought near by districts, and the Zarai district was shown. And it was brought near by man. 18And Achar son of Zambri son of Zara was shown. 19And lesous said to Achar, “Give glory today to the Lord, God of Israel, and make the confession. And tell me what you have done, and do not hide it from me.” 20And Achar answered lesous and said, “Truly I have sinned against the Lord, God of Israel. Thus and so have I done. 21I saw in the spoil a beautiful, many-colored carpet and two hundred didrachmas of silver and one golden tongue-shaped object of fifty didrachmas, and I coveted them and took them.
And look, they are hidden in the ground in my tent, and the silver is hidden underneath them.”

22 And lesous sent messengers, and they ran to the tent into the camp, and these things were hidden in the tent, and the silver was underneath them. 23And they brought them out of the tent and brought them to lesous and the elders of Israel, and they set them before the Lord. 24And lesous took Achar son of Zara and brought him up to the ravine of Achor, and his sons and his daughters and his bull calves and his draft animals and all his sheep and his tent and all his belongings—and all the people with him. And he brought them up to Emekachora. 25And lesous said to Achar, “Why

4Heb = valley of Achor have you destroyed us? May the Lord destroy you as also today.” And all Israel stoned him with stones. 26And they set up over him a great heap of stones. And the Lord ceased from burning anger. Therefore he named it Emekachor3 until this day.

8 And the Lord said to Iesous, “Do not fear, nor be afraid. Take with you the men, all the military men, and get up, go up to Gai. See, I have given into your hands the king of Gai and his land. 2And you shall do to Gai as you did to Iericho and its king. And the spoil of the cattle you shall carry away as spoil for yourself. Now set for yourself an ambush against the city, behind.”

3 And Iesous and all the military people got up to go up against Gai. And Iesous picked out thirty thousand men mighty in strength and sent them off by night. 4And he commanded them, saying, “You, lie in ambush behind the city; do not be far from the city, and all of you shall be ready. 5And I and all those with me will approach the city. And it shall be that when the inhabitants of Gai come out against us, as also before, then we shall flee from before us. 6And when they come out after us, we will draw them away from the city. And they will say, ‘They are fleeing from before us, as also previously.’ 7And you shall rise up out of the ambush and go into the city. 8And you shall act according to this word; see, I have commanded you.”

9 And Iesous sent them off, and they went to the ambush, and lay between Baithel and between Gai, from the sea of Gai.

10 And Iesous early in the morning mustered the people, and they went up, he and the elders, before the people to Gai. 11And all the military people with him went up, and as they went, they came opposite the city to the east. 12And the ambushers came opposite the city to meet them, and they were between the camp, some on one side and some on the other side, and they struck them down until no one was left of them who survived and escaped. 23And they took the king of Gai alive and brought him to Iesous.

24 And when the sons of Israel had finished slaying all those in Gai, those in the plains and on the mountain on the descent, there where they fully pursued them, then Iesous turned back to Gai and struck it with the edge of the sword. 25And those who fell that day, from man even to woman, were twelve thousand—all the inhabitants of Gai.

27 Except for the livestock and the spoils that were in the city, all things that the sons of Israel took as spoil, according to the ordinance of the Lord, as the Lord had instructed Iesous. 28And Iesous burned the city with fire; he made it an uninhabited mound forever until this day. 29And he hanged the king of Gai on a forked tree, and he was on the tree until evening. And when the sun set Iesous gave instructions, and they took his body down from the tree and threw him into the hole and set over him a heap of stones until this day.

9 Now when the kings of the Amorrites, who were on the other side of the Jordan, who were in the hill country and who were in the plain and who were in all the coast of the great sea, and who were near Anti-Lebanon, and the Chettites and the Chananites and the Pherezites and the Heuites and the Amorrites and the Gergesites and the lebousites heard, 2they gathered together, all of them with one accord, to make war against Iesous and Israel.

2a(8.30) Then Iesous built an altar to the Lord, the God of Israel, on Mount Gaibal, as Moses the attendant of the Lord had commanded the sons of Israel, as it is written in the law of Moyses, “an altar of whole stones on which iron was not applied,” and he brought up there whole burnt offerings to the Lord and an offering of deliverance. 2c(32)And Iesous wrote on the stones Deuteronomion4, a law of Moyses, which he wrote in the presence of the sons of Israel. 2d(33)And all Israel and their elders and their judges and their scribes passed on one side and on the other side of the ark, opposite, and the priests and the Leuites took up the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and the guest and the native-born. Half of them were near Mount Garizin and half of them were near Mount Gaibal, as Moyses the attendant of the Lord commanded at first, to bless the people. 2e(34)And after these things Iesous thus read all the words of this law, the blessings and the curses, according to all things written in the law of Moyses. 2f(35)There was not a word of all that Moyses commanded Iesous that Iesous did not read in the ears of all the assembly of the sons of Israel, to the men and the women and the children and the guests who attached themselves to Israel.

3 And the inhabitants of Gabaon heard all that the Lord did to Jericho and to Gai. 4 And indeed they on their part acted with cunning, and they went, prepared provisions and got themselves ready. And they put old sacks on their donkeys and old and torn, bound-up wineskins. 5 And the hollows of their shoes and their sandals were old and clouted on their feet, and their garments were worn out upon them, and the bread of their provision was dry and moldy and bug-infested. 6 And they came to Iesous into the camp of Israel to Galgala, and they said to Iesous and Israel, “We have come from a land far away; now then make a covenant with us.” 7 And the sons of Israel said to the Chorrite, “Take heed, lest you live with me, and how am I to make a covenant with you?” 8 And they said to Iesous, “We are your domestics.” And Iesous made peace with them, and the leaders of the congregation swore an oath to them. “From where are you? And from where have you come?” 9 And they said, “Your servants have come from a land very far away in the name of the Lord your God; for we have heard his name and what he did in Egypt and in the name of the Lord your God; for we have come from a land very far away; now then make a covenant with us.” 10 And the sons of Israel said to the Chorrite, “Take heed, lest you live with me, and how am I to make a covenant with you?” 11 And when they heard, our elders and all the inhabitants of our land spoke to us, saying, ‘Take provision for yourselves for the journey, and go to meet them, and you shall say to them, “We are your domestics; now then make a covenant with us.”’ 12 These are the loaves; we took them for our journey when they were hot on the day on which we set out to come to you, but now they are dried and have become bug-infested. 13 And these are the skins of wine that we filled when they were new, and they are burst. And our garments and our shoes are worn out because of the very long journey.” 14 And the leaders took of their provision and did not ask the Lord. 15 And Iesous made peace with them, and they made a covenant with them, to preserve them, and the leaders of the congregation swore an oath to them.

16 And it happened three days after they had made a covenant with them that they heard that they were close by them and that they were living among them. 17 And the sons of Israel set out and came to their cities. And their cities were Gabaon and Kephira and Berot and Iarin-City. 18 But the sons of Israel did not fight against them, because all the leaders had sworn to them by the Lord, the God of Israel. And all the congregation murmured against the leaders. 19 And the leaders said to all the congregation, “We have sworn to them by the Lord, the God of Israel, and now we shall not be able to touch them.” 20 This we will do: take them alive, and we will preserve them. And there shall not be wrath against us because of the oath that we swore to them. 21 They shall live and shall be hewers of wood and drawers of water for all the congregation”—as the leaders said to them.

22 And Iesous called them together and said to them, “Why have you misled me, saying, ‘We live very far from you,’ but you are fellow dwellers, those who live among us? 23 And now you are cursed; there shall not be lacking from you a slave or a hewer of wood for me and my God.” 24 And they answered Iesous, saying, “It was reported to us what the Lord your God instructed his servant Moyses, to give you this land and to destroy us and all its inhabitants from before you, and we greatly feared for our lives before you and did this thing. 25 And now, see, we are in your power; do to us as it is pleasing to you and as it seems right to you.” 26 And thus they did to them, and Iesous rescued them on that day out of the hands of the sons of Israel, and they did not kill them. 27 And Iesous made them on that day hewers of wood and drawers of water for the whole congregation and for the altar of God. Therefore the inhabitants of Gabaon became hewers of wood and drawers of water of the altar of God until this very day, and in the place that the Lord should choose.

10 And when Adonibezek, king of Jerusalem, heard that Iesous had taken Gai and had utterly destroyed it—as they did to Jericho and its king, so they did to Gai and its king—and that the inhabitants of Gabaon had deserted to Iesous and to Israel, 2 then they became greatly frightened by means of them, for he knew that Gabaon was a large city, like one of the mother-cities, and all its men were strong. 3 And Adonibezek, king of Jerusalem, sent to Ailam, king of Chebron, and to Phidon, king of Ierimouth, and to Iephtha, king of Lachis, and to Dабir, king of Odollam, saying, 4 “Come up here to me, and help me, and let us go to war with Gabaon, for they have deserted to Iesous and to the sons of Israel.” 5 And the five kings of the lebousites—the king of Jerusalem and the king of Chebron and the king of Ierimouth and the king of Lachis and the king of Odollam—went up, they and all their people, and surrounded Gabaon and besieged it.

6 And the inhabitants of Gabaon sent to Iesous into the camp of Israel to Galgala, saying, “Do not relax your hands from your servants. Come up to us quickly, and rescue us, and help us, for all the kings of the Amorrites who live in the hill country are gathered together against us.” 7 And Iesous went up out of Galgala, he and all the military people with him, every one mighty in strength. 8 And the Lord said to Iesous, “Do not fear them, for I have delivered them into your hands; not one of them shall be left before you.” 9 And Iesous came upon them suddenly; he entered all night out of Galgala. 10 And the Lord confounded them before the sons of Israel, and the Lord shattered them with great destruction at Gabaon, and they pursued them by the way of the ascent of Horonin and cut them down as far as Azeka and as far as Make-da. 11 Now as they fled from before the sons of Israel, upon the descent of Horonin, then the Lord threw down upon them hailstones from heaven as far as Azeka, and there were more who died through 12 Then Lesous spoke to the Lord, on the day when God delivered the Amorrite into the control of Israel, when he shattered them at Gabaon, and they were shattered before the sons of Israel, and Lesous said,

"Let the sun stand at Gabaon, and the moon at the ravine of Ailon."

And the sun stood still, and the moon was in position until God avenged himself on their enemies, and the sun stood in midheaven; it did not go forward to set until the end of one day. 14 And there was not such a day either before or after so that a god heeded a human being, because the Lord fought alongside Israel.

16 And those five kings fled and hid themselves in the cave that was in Makeda. 17 And it was told Lesous, saying, "The five kings have been found, hidden in the cave that is in Makeda."

18 And Lesous said, "Roll stones against the mouth of the cave, and set men to guard over them. 19 But you, do not stand in pursuing after your enemies, and lay hold of their rear guard. And do not let them enter into their cities, for the Lord our God has given them into our hands." 20 And it happened, when Lesous and every son of Israel finished smiting them with a very great slaughter, all the way to the end, that those who survived sought survival in the strong cities. 21 And all the people returned sound to Lesous to Makeda, and no one of the sons of Israel grumbled with his tongue.

22 And Lesous said, "Open the cave, and bring these five kings out of the cave." 23 And they brought the five kings out of the cave—the king of Jerusalem and the king of Chebron and the king of Jerimouth and the king of Lachis and the king of Odollam. 24 And when they brought them out of Jerusalem and the king of Lachis and the king of Jerusalem and the king of Chebron and the king of Odollam.

25 And Lesous said to them, "Neither fear them, nor be cowardly; be manly and strong; for thus the Lord will do to all your enemies against whom you fight." 26 And Lesous killed them, and he hung them on five trees. And they hung upon the trees until evening. 27 And it happened towards sunset that Lesous commanded, and they took them down from the trees and threw them into the cave, there where they had fled for refuge, and they rolled stones against the cave until this very day.

28 And they took Makeda on that day, and they slew it with the edge of the rapier, and they utterly destroyed everything breathing in it, and there was no one left in it that survived and had escaped. And they did to the king of Makeda as they did to the king of Jericho.

29 And Lesous departed out of Makeda, and all Israel with him, to Lebna, and he besieged Lebna. 30 And the Lord delivered it into the hands of Israel, and they took it and its king, and they slew it with the edge of the rapier, and everything breathing in it, and there was not left in it one that survived and had escaped. And they did to its king as they did to the king of Jericho.

31 And Lesous departed out of Lebna, and all Israel with him, to Odollam, and surrounded it and besieged it. 32 And the Lord delivered Lachis into the hands of Israel, and he took it on the second day, and they slew it with the edge of the rapier, and they utterly destroyed it as they did to Lebna.

33 Then Ailam, king of Gazer, came up to help Lachis, and Lesous smote him with the edge of the rapier, and his people, until there was not left of them any who survived and had escaped.

34 And Lesous departed out of Lachis, and all Israel with him, to Odollam, and surrounded it and besieged it. 35 And the Lord delivered it in the hand of Israel, and he took it on that day and slew it with the edge of the rapier, and they slew everything breathing in it, as they did to Lachis.

36 And Lesous and all Israel with him departed to Chebron and surrounded it. 37 And he smote it with the edge of the rapier, and everything breathing, as many as were in it; there was not anyone who survived; as they did to Odollam, they utterly destroyed it and as many as were in it.

38 And Lesous and all Israel returned to Dabir, and when they had surrounded it, 39 they took it and its king and its villages, and they smote it with the edge of the rapier, and they utterly destroyed it and everything breathing in it, and they did not leave it anyone who survived; as they did to Chebron and its king, so they did to Dabir and its king.

40 And Lesous smote all the land of the hill country and the Nageb and the plain and Asedoth and its kings; they did not leave any of them who survived, and they utterly destroyed everything that breathed with life, as the Lord, the God of Israel, commanded, 41 from Kades Barne as far as Gaza, all Gosoim as far as Gabaon. 42 And Lesous smote, once for all, all their kings and their land, because the Lord, the God of Israel, fought alongside Israel.

11 Now when Iabin, king of Hasor, heard, he sent to Iobab, king of Marron, and to the king of Symoon and to the king of Azipfh and to the kings who were by Sidon the great, to the hill country and to Rabah opposite Keneroth and to the plain and to Naphednor and to the coast-dwelling Chananites on the east and to the coast-dwelling Amorrite and the Heuites and the lebousites and the Phezzites in the mountain and the Chettites, those under Haemon in the land of Massheph. 4 And they came out, they and their kings with them, as the sand of the sea in multitude, and horses and very many chariots. 5 And all these kings gathered and came to the same place and encamped at the water of Marron, to fight with Israel.

6 And the Lord said to Lesous, "Do not be afraid before them, for tomorrow at this time I will deliver them, routed before Israel; you shall hamstring their horses and burn their chariots with fire." 7 And Iesous—and all the military people—came upon them at the water of Marron suddenly, and they fell upon them in the hill country. 8 And the Lord delivered them into the power of Israel, and as they smote them, they pursued them as far as Sidon the great and as far as Maseron and as far as the plains of Massoch to the east. And they cut them down until not one of them was left who survived. 9 And Iesous did to them as the Lord commanded him; he hamstring their horses and burned their chariots with fire.

10 And Iesous turned back at that time and took Hasor and its king. And Hasor was earlier chief of all those kingdoms. 11 And they slew everything breathing in it with the rapier and utterly destroyed them all, and nothing breathing was left in it, and they burned Hasor with fire. 12 And all the cities of the kings and their kings, Iesous took and killed them with the edge of the rapier and utterly destroyed them, as Moyses the servant of the Lord instructed. 13 But all the cities fortified with mounds Israel did not burn, but Iesous burned only Hasor.

14 And the sons of Israel appropriated all its spoils for themselves, but they completely destroyed all people with the edge of the rapier until he demolished them; they did not leave anything of them breathing. 15 As the Lord instructed Moyses his servant, Moyses also commanded Iesous in like manner, and so Iesous did; he did not transgress anything of all that Moyses instructed him.

16 And Iesous took all the land: the hill country and all the Nageb and all the land of Gosom and the plain and that toward the west and the mountain of Israel and the low regions by the sea of Arnon to Mount Haermon and all the land of Araba before the Jordan; 17 by the mountain, from mount Hachel, and that which rises up to Seir and as far as Baalgad and the plains of Lebanon, under Mount Haermon. And all their kings he took and destroyed and killed them. 18 And for rather many days Iesous made war with these kings. 19 And there was not a city that Israel did not take; they took everything in war. 20 For it was through the Lord to strengthen their heart to meet for war against Israel in order that they might be utterly destroyed, that mercy not be given to them, but that they be utterly destroyed, just as the Lord said to Moyses.

21 And at that time Iesous came and utterly destroyed the Enakim out of the hill country, out of Chebron and out of Dabir and out of Anaboth and out of all the race of Israel and out of all the mountain of loudas with their cities, and Iesous utterly destroyed them. 22 And none of the Enakim was left by the sons of Israel, but only in Gaza and in Geth and in Asedoth was anyone left. 23 And Iesous took all the land, as the Lord commanded Moyses, and Iesous gave them as an inheritance of Israel by allotment according to their tribes, and the land stopped being at war.

12 And these are the kings of the land, whom the sons of Israel slew, and they inherited their land beyond the Jordan from the rising of the sun, from the ravine of Arnon to Mount Haermon and all the land of Araba on the east: 2 Seon, the king of the Amorrites, who lived in Hesebon, ruling from Aroer, which is in the ravine, along part of the ravine, and half of Galaad as far as Iabok, the boundaries of the sons of Ammon; 3 and Araba as far as the sea of Chenereth eastward and as far as the sea of Araba; the sea of salt on the east along the way of Hasimoth, from Thaiman, which is under Asedoth Phasga. 4 And Og, king of Basan, was left of the giants, who he lived in Astaroth and in Edrain, ruling from Mount Haermon and from Selcha and all the land of Basan as far as the boundaries of Gesouri and Machati and half of Galaad as far as the boundaries of Seon, king of Hesebon. 5 Moyses, the servant of the Lord, and the sons of Israel smote them, and Moyses gave it as an inheritance to Rouben and Gad and the half-tribe of Manasse.

7 And these are the kings of the Amorrites whom Iesous slew, and the sons of Israel, beyond the Jordan by the sea of Baalgad in the plain of Lebanon and as far as the Mount Chelcha, as they rise to Seir, and Iesous gave it to the tribes of Israel to inherit according to their allotment, 8 in the mountain and in the plain and in Araba and in Asedoth and in the wilderness and in the Nageb; the Chettite and the Amorrite and the Chananite and the Pherezite and the Heuite and the Jebousite: 9 the king of Iericho and the king of Iaia, which is near Baithel, 10 king of Ierousalem, king of Chebron, 11 king of Ierimouth, king of Lachis, 12 king of Ailam, king of Gazer, 13 king of Dabir, king of Gader, 14 king of Hermath, king of Arath, 15 king of Lebna, king of Odollam, 16 king of Make-da, 17 king of Taphoug, king of Hopher, 18 king of Aphek of Saron, 19 king of Hasor, 20 king of Symoon, king of Mannor, king of Aziph, 21 king of Kades, king of Tanach, 22 king of Magedon, king of lekonam of Chemel, 23 king of Dor of Napheddor, king of Goim of Galilee, 24 king of Tharsa; all these, twenty-nine kings.

13 And Iesous was rather old, advanced in days, and the Lord said to Iesous, "You are advanced in days, and there is much land left to inherit. 2 And this is the land that is left: the boundaries of Phylskiim, Gesiri and the Chananite, from the uninhabited region before Egypt, as far as the boundaries of Akkaron, to the left of the Chananites, it is reckoned to the five satrapies of the Phylskiim—to the Gazean and to the Azotian and to the Ascalonite and to the Geththite and to the Akkaronite—and to the Heuite, 4 from Thaiman, and to all the land of Chanaan before Gaza and the Sidonians as far as Aphek, as far as the boundaries of the Amorrites, and all the land of Gabli of Phylskiim and all Lebanon, toward the rising of the sun, from Galgal under Mount Haermon as far as the entrance of Hemath, everyone who inhabits the hill country from Lebanon as far as Maserephothmaim. All the Sidonians, I will utterly destroy them from before Israel, but pass it on as an allotment to Israel, as I commanded you. 7 And now divide this land as an inheritance for the nine tribes and for the half-tribe of Manasse. From the Jordan as far as the great sea toward the setting of the sun you shall give it; the great sea shall be the boundary."

8 But to the two tribes and to the half-tribe of Manasse, to Rouben and to Gad, Moyses gave beyond the Jordan toward the rising of the sun; Moyses the servant of the Lord has given it from Aroer, which is on the edge of the wadi of Arnon, and the city in the middle of the ravine and all Misor from Maidaba as far as Daiban, all the cities of Seon, king of the Amorrites, who reigned in Hesebon, as far as the boundaries of the sons of Ammon, and Galadaditis and the boundaries of Gesiri and of Machati, the entire Mount Haermon, and all Basanitis as far as Selcha, all the kingdom of Og in Basan, he who reigned in Astaroth and in Edrain; he was left of the giants, and Moyses smote and utterly destroyed him. And the sons of Isreal did not utterly destroy Gesiri and Machati and the Chananite, and Gesiri’s king and Machati kept living among the sons of Israel until this very day.

14 With the exception of the tribe of Leui—no inheritance was given; the Lord God of Israel, he is their inheritance, as the Lord said to them, and this is the division that Moyses divided for the sons of Israel in Araboth Moab beyond the Jordan opposite Jericho.

15 And Moyses gave to the tribe of Rouben according to their districts. And their boundaries were from Aroer, which is opposite the valley of Arnon, and the city that is in the ravine of Arnon, and all the land of Misor, as far as Hesebon, and all the cities that are in the land of Misor and of Daibon and of Bamoth-Baal and of the house of Beelmon, and Lassa and Kedemoth and Megaphor and Asedoth and Phagsha and Baithasimoth, and all the cities of Misor and all the kingdom of Seon, king of the Amorrites, whom Moyses smote, him and the leaders of Madian, and Eui and Rokom and Sour and Hour and Robe, rulers alongside Seon, and the inhabitants of the land. And Balaam the son of Beor, the diviner, they slew at the decisive moment. And it became the boundaries of Rouben. Jordan was a boundary. This was the inheritance of the sons of Rouben according to their districts, their cities and their farmsteads.

24 And Moyses gave to the sons of Gad according to their districts. And their boundaries were Jazer, all of the cities of Galaad and half of the land of the sons of Ammon, as far as Aroer, which is before Rabba, and from Hesebon as far as Ramoth by Massepha and Botanin and Maaanin as far as the boundaries of Dabir and in Emek and Baitharam and Baithanabra and Sokchotha and Saphan and the rest of the kingdom of Seon, king of Hesebon, and the Jordan shall be the boundary as far as part of the sea of Chenereth beyond the Jordan eastward. This is the inheritance of the sons of Gad according to their districts, their cities and their farmsteads.

29 And Moyses gave to the tribe of Manasse according to their districts. And their boundaries were from Maanaim and all the kingdom of Basani and all the kingdom of Og, king of Basan, and all the villages of Iair, which are in Basanitis, sixty cities, and half of Galaad and in Astaroth and in Edrain, cities of the kingdom of Og in Basanitis, and they were given to the sons of Machir son of Manasse and to half the sons of Machir son of Manasse according to their districts.

14 And these are the inheritors from the sons of Israel in the land of Chanaan to whom Eleazar the priest and Iesous the son of Naue and the chiefs of the paternal families of the tribes of the sons of Israel gave inheritances. By lots they inherited, as the Lord commanded by the hand of Iesous to the nine tribes and to the half-tribe, from beyond the Jordan. And to the Leuites he did not give an allotment among them. For the sons of Joseph were two tribes, Manasse and Ephraim, and a portion was not given in the land to the Leuites, rather, cities to live in and areas marked off for their cattle and their cattle. As the Lord commanded Moyses, so the sons of Israel did, and they distributed the land.

6 And the sons of Ioudas came to Iesous at Galgal, and Chaleb the son of lephonne the Kenezite said to him, "You know the word that the Lord spoke to Moyses man of God concerning you and me at Kades Barne. For I was forty years old when Moyses the servant of God sent me out of Kades Barne to spy out the land, and I answered him a word according to his mind. And my brothers who went up with me changed the heart of the people, but I added to follow closely the Lord my God. And Moyses swore on that day, saying, The land upon which you have tread shall be yours as an allotment and your children’s forever, because you have applied yourself to follow closely after the Lord our God. And now the Lord has sustained me, as he said; this is the forty-fifth year from when the Lord spoke this word to Moyses, and Israel journeyed in the wilderness, and now, look, I am today eighty-five years old. I am still strong today, as when Moyses sent me; I am now just as strong to go out and to go into war. And now I ask you for this mountain, as the Lord said on that day; for you have heard this word on that day. But now the Enakim are there, cities strong and great; if then the Lord is with me, I will utterly destroy them, as the Lord said to me." And Iesous blessed him and gave Chebron to Chaleb son of lephonne son of Kenez as an allotment. Therefore Chebron became an allotment for Chaleb the son of Iephonne the Kenezite to this day, because he followed closely the ordinance of the Lord, God of Israel. 15 And the name of Chebron formerly was city of Arbok; this is the mother-city of the Enakim, and the land abated from war.

15 And the boundaries of the tribe of Ioudas according to their districts were from the boundaries of Idumea from the wilderness of Sin as far as Kades to the southwest. 2 And their boundaries were from the southwest as far as part of the salt sea from the ridge that stretches southwestward. 3 And they pass through before the ascent of Akrubin and go out around Senna and go up from the southwest to Kades Barne and go out to Hasor and go up to Addara and go around toward the west of Kades and proceed to Asemoha and pass through as far as the ravine of Egypt, and the outlet of its boundaries shall be to the sea. This is their boundaries from the southwest. 4 And the boundaries from the north, both from the ridge of the sea and from the part of the Jordan, 5 the boundaries go to Baithagala, and they go past from the north to Baitharaba, and the boundaries go higher to the stone of Baion son of Ruben, 6 and the boundaries go higher to the fourth part of the ravine of Achor and go down to Galrub, which is before the approach of Adamin, which is to the southwest of the valley, and pass through to the water of the fountain of the sun, and its outlet shall be the fountain of Rogel, 8 and the boundaries go up to the ravine of Honom at the ridge of lebous (this is Jerusalem), and the boundaries pass through to the mountain top that is before the ravine of Honom toward the sea, which is by the side of the land of Raphain northward, 9 and the boundary passes through from the top of the mountain to the spring of the water of Naphtho and passes through to Mount Ephron, and the boundary will lead out to Baal (this is the city of Iarim), 10 and the boundary will go around from Baal to the sea and will go alongside to Mount Assares at the ridge, the city of Iarim from the north (this is Chaslun) and will go down to Sun-City and will go alongside to the southwest, 11 and the boundary will go out toward the ridge of Akkaron northward, and the boundaries will go out to Sakcharona and will pass alongside to Mount Bala and will go out to Iabnel, and the outlet of the boundaries shall be to the sea. 12 And their boundaries from the sea: the great sea shall be the boundary. These are the boundaries of the sons of Ioudas round about according to their districts.

13 And to Chaleb son of Iephonne he gave a portion among the sons of Ioudas, according to the ordinance of God, and Iesous gave him the city of Arbok, the mother-city of Enak (this is Chebron). 14 And Chaleb son of Iephonne completely destroyed from there the three sons of Enak: Sousi and Tholmi and Achima. 15 And Chaleb went up from there against the inhabitants of Dabir; now the name of Dabir formerly was City of Letters. 16 And Chaleb said, “Whoever takes City of Letters and gains power over it, to him I will give Achsa my daughter as wife.” 17 And Gothioniel son of Kenez, the younger brother of Chaleb, took it, and he gave him Achsa his daughter as his wife. 18 And it happened, when she came in, that she advised him, saying, “I will ask my father for a field.” And she cried out from the donkey, and Chaleb said to her, “What do you wish?” 19 And she said to him, “Give me a blessing, since you have placed me in the land of Nageb; give me Golathmain.” And Chaleb gave her her upper Golathmain and lower Golathmain.

20 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the sons of Ioudas. 21 And these were their cities, foremost city of the tribe of the sons of Ioudas at the boundaries of Edom at the wilderness:

16 And the boundaries of the sons of Joseph were from the Jordan near Iericho from the east, and they will go up from Iericho into the hill country, the wilderness, into Baithel Louza, and they will go out into Baithel and will proceed to Iericho and will pass through and out to the Jordan. And from Taphou the boundaries shall proceed to the sea, to Chelkana, and their outlet shall be to the sea. This is the inheritance of the tribe of Ephraim according to their districts. And the cities marked off for the sons of Ephraim were in the midst of the inheritance of the sons of Manasse, all the cities and their villages.

17 And the boundaries of the tribe of the sons of Manasse, for he was the firstborn to will go around eastward into Thenas and Sellessa, and they will proceed from the east into Ianoka and into Macho and Ataroth, and these are their villages, and they will go to Iericho and will pass through and out to the Jordan. And from Taphou the boundaries shall proceed to the sea, to Chelkana, and their outlet shall be to the sea. This is the inheritance of the tribe of Ephraim according to their districts. And the cities marked off for the sons of Ephraim were in the midst of the inheritance of the sons of Manasse, all the cities and their villages.
Ioseph, were: to Machir, firstborn of Manasse, father of Galaad, for he was a military man, in Galaaditis and in Basanitis. And to the remaining sons of Manasse, according to their districts they were: to the sons of Iezel and to the sons of Kelez and to the sons of Iezel and to the sons of Sychem and to the sons of Symarim and to the sons of Hophner; these are the males, according to their districts.

3 And to Salpaad son of Hopher—he did not have sons but daughters, and these are the names of the daughters of Salpaad: Maala and Noua and Hegla and Melcha and Thersa. And they stood before Eleazar the priest and before Iesous and before the leaders, saying, “God commanded through the hand of Moyses, to give us an inheritance in the midst of our brothers.” And there was given to them through the ordinance of the Lord an allotment among the brothers of their father.

5 And their portion fell from Anassa and the plain of Labek, out of Galaad, which is beyond the Jordan, because the daughters of the sons of Manasse inherited an allotment in the midst of their brothers, but the land of Galaad was for the remaining sons of Manasse.

7 And the boundaries of the sons of Manasse were Delanath, which is before the sons of Anath, and they proceed to the boundaries, to Iamin and Lissib, to the fountain of Thaphthoth. It shall belong to Manasse and Thapheth at the borders of Manasse to the sons of Ephraim. And the boundaries shall go down to the ravine of Karana southward by the ravine of Iariel—a terebinth tree belonging to Ephraim is in the midst of a city of Manasse—and the boundaries of Manasse northward are into the wadi, and the sea shall be its outlet. From the south is Ephraim’s, to the north is Manasse’s, and the sea shall be their boundaries, and they shall border upon Aser to the north and on Isschar from the east.

And Manasse shall have, in Isschar and in Aser, Baithsan and their villages and the inhabitants of Dor and its villages and the inhabitants of Megeddo and its villages and the third part of Napheta and its villages. And the sons of Manasse were not able to destroy utterly these cities, and the Chananite began to dwell in this land. And it happened also, when the sons of Israel grew strong, that they made the Chananites subjects, but did not utterly destroy them.

14 Now the sons of Ioseph disputed with Iesous, saying, “Why have you caused us to inherit a single allotment and a single portion, for I am a numerous people, and God has blessed me?” And Iesous said to them, “If you are a numerous people, go up into the thicket, and clear it for yourself, if Mount Ephraim is cramped for you.” And they said, “Mount Ephraim is not enough for us, and the Chananite dwelling on it, in Baithsan and in its villages, in the valley of Iezrael, has choice cavalry and iron.” And Iesous said to the sons of Ioseph, “If you are a numerous people and if you have great strength, you shall not have a single allotment. For the thicket shall be yours, because there is a thicket, and you shall clear it, and it shall be yours, and when you utterly destroy the Chananite, because he has choice cavalry; for you are stronger than he.”

18 And the whole congregation of the sons of Israel was assembled at Selo, and they pitched there the tent of witness, and the land was subdued by them.

2 And the sons of Israel who had not received their inheritance remained, seven tribes. And Iesous said to the sons of Israel, “How long will you be slack about inheriting the land that the Lord our God has given you? Provide from yourselves three men from a tribe, and let them rise up and go throughout the land, and let them map it out before me, as it will be necessary to divide it.” And they came to him, and he divided for them seven portions: “Ioudas shall stand for them as a boundary from the southwest, and the sons of Ioseph shall stand for them from the north. Now you, apportion the land into seven portions, and bring word to me here, and I will cast a lot for you before the Lord our God. For the sons of Leui have no portion among you, for the priesthood of the Lord is his portion, and Gad and Rouben and the half-tribe of Manasse have received their inheritance beyond the Jordan eastward, which Moyses the servant of the Lord gave them.”

8 And the men rose up and went on their way, and Iesous commanded the men who went to survey the land, saying, “Go, and survey the land, and come to me, and I will cast a lot for you here before the Lord in Selo.” And they went and surveyed the land, and they viewed it, and they wrote it in a book according to its cities, seven parts, and they brought it to Iesous. And Iesous cast a lot for them in Selo before the Lord.

nasarach, which is in Mount Ephraim, and he built the city and dwelt in it.
51 These are the divisions that Eleazar the priest assigned as inheritances, and lesous the son of Naue and the chiefs of the paternal families among the tribes of Israel, according to allotments, at Selô before the Lord by the doors of the tent of witness. And they proceeded to come into possession of the land.

20 And the Lord spoke to Iesous, saying, 2“Speak to the sons of Israel, saying, ‘Give the cities of places of refuge of which I spoke to you through Moyses, 3a place of refuge for the slayer who has smitten a soul involuntarily, and the cities the hand of the next of kin in blood until he stands before the congregation for judgment.

21 And the chiefs of the paternal families of the sons of Leui approached Eleazar the priest and Iesous the son of Naue and the tribal chiefs of the families out of the tribes of Israel, and they said to them at Selô in the land of Chanaan, saying, “The Lord commanded through the hand of Moyses to give us cities to occupy and Israel gave to the Leuites, as they were inheriting by commanded Moyses.

9 And the tribe of the sons of Ioudas and the tribe of the sons of Symeon and part of the tribe of the sons of Beniamin gave the cities, and they were assigned 10to the sons of Aaron from the district of Kaath of the sons of Leui, because theirs was the allotment. 11He gave to them Kariatharbak, the mother-city of those of Enak (this is Chebron) in the mountain of Ioudas and the surrounding lands. 12And the fields of the cities and its villages Iesous gave to the sons of Chaleb son of Iephonne

ies. 19All the cities of the sons of Aaron the priests were thirteen.

20 And the districts, the sons of Kaath, the remaining Leuites from the sons of Kaath, also had a city of their boundaries from the tribe of Ephraim, 21and they gave them the city of a place of refuge of the one who slays, Sychem and the lands set apart for it and Gazara and the lands by it and the lands set apart for it 22and Kabsaim and the lands set apart near it and Upper Baithoron and the lands set apart for it—four cities. 23And out of the 41 All the cities of the Leuites within the possession of the sons of Israel were forty-eight cities and their surrounding lands 42 round about these cities—a city and the surrounding lands round about the city, pertaining to all these cities. 42a And Lesous ceased dividing the land in their boundaries. 42b And the sons of Israel gave a portion to Lesous according to the ordinance of the Lord. They gave him the city that he asked for; they gave him Thamnasarach in Mount Ephraim. 42c And Lesous built the city and lived in it. 42d And Lesous took the flint knives with which he circumcised the sons of Israel born on the way in the wilderness, and he put them in Thamnasarach.

43 So the Lord gave to Israel all the land that he swore to give to their fathers, and they inherited it and settled in it. 44 And the Lord gave them rest round about just as he swore to their fathers; no one of all their enemies rose against them; the Lord delivered all their enemies into their hands.

45 None failed of all the good words that the Lord spoke to the sons of Israel; all came to pass.

22 Then Lesous summoned the sons of Ruben and the sons of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasse 2 and said to them, "You have heard all that Moyses the servant of the Lord commanded you, and you have obeyed my voice according to all that I have commanded you. 3 You have not forsaken your brothers all these days and more until this day. You have kept the ordinance of the Lord your God. 4 And now the Lord our God has given rest to our brothers, as he said to them; now then return, and depart to your homes and to the land of your possession that Moyses gave to you on the other side of the Jordan. 5 But take great care to do the ordinances and the law that Moyses the servant of the Lord commanded you to do: to love the Lord your God, to walk by all his ways, to keep his ordinances and to hold fast to him and to serve him with all your mind and with all your soul." 6 And Lesous blessed them and sent them away, and they went to their homes.

7 And to one half of the tribe of Manasse Moyses gave land in Basanitis, and to one half Lesous gave land with his brothers on the other side of the Jordan toward the sea. And when Lesous sent them away to their homes and blessed them, 8 then they departed with much wealth to their homes, and they divided the spoil of the enemies with their brothers: both very large herds of cattle and silver and gold and iron and a great quantity of clothing.

9 And the sons of Ruben and the sons of Gad and the half-tribe of the sons of Manasse went from the sons of Israel out of Selô in the land of Chanaan, to depart to the land of Galaad, to the land of their possession, which they inherited through the ordinance of the Lord by the hand of Moyses.

10 And they came to Galgala of the Jordan, which is in the land of Chanaan, and the sons of Gad and the sons of Ruben and the half-tribe of Manasse built there an altar to see. 11 And the sons of Israel heard people saying, "Look, the sons of Gad and the sons of Ruben and the half-tribe of Manasse built an altar at the boundaries of the land of Chanaan at Galaad of the Jordan, on the other side of the sons of Israel." 12 And all the sons of Israel gathered together at Selô, to go up to make war against them.

13 And the sons of Israel sent to the sons of Ruben and to the sons of Gad and to the half-tribe of Manasse into the land of Galaad both Phinees son of Eleazar son of Aaron the high priest 14 and ten of the chiefs with him, one chief from each paternal house from all the tribes of Israel—chiefs of paternal houses they were, officers of thousands of Israel. 15 And they came to the sons of Gad and to the sons of Ruben and to the halves of the tribe of Manasse into the land of Galaad, and they spoke to them, saying, "This is what the whole congregation of the Lord says, 'What is this trespass that you have committed against the God of Israel, to turn away today from the Lord by building for yourselves an altar so that you become rebels from the Lord?' Is the sin of Phogor insignificant for you, that we have not been cleansed from it until this day and there was a plague in the congregation of the Lord? 18 And shall you turn away today from the Lord? And it shall be if you rebel today from the Lord, that tomorrow there shall be anger upon all Israel. 19 And now if the land of your possession is small, cross over to the land of the possession of the Lord, there where the tent of the Lord encamps, and take your inheritance among us, but do not become rebels from God, and do not rebel from the Lord by your building an altar other than the altar of the Lord our God. 20 Look! Did not Achar the son of Zara commit a trespass from what was devoted, and there was anger upon the whole congregation. of Israel? And he was not one lone person. Did he alone die for his own sin?"

21 And the sons of Rouben and the sons of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasse answered, and they spoke to the officers of thousands of Israel, saying, 22 "God is Lord God, and God, Lord God, he himself knows, and Israel itself shall know: If in rebellion we have trespassed against the Lord, may he not deliver us in this. 23 And if we built an altar for ourselves so as to rebel from the Lord our God, so as to offer upon it a sacrifice of whole burnt offerings or so as to make upon it a sacrifice of deliverance, the Lord shall seek it out. 24 But we have done this for the sake of a matter of caution, saying, 'Lest tomorrow your children say to our children, 'What have you to do with the Lord God of Israel?' 25 And the Lord set boundaries between us and you, the Jordan, and you do not have a portion of the Lord.' And your sons shall alienate our sons, that they not worship the Lord. 26 And we said to do thus, to build this altar not for produce offerings nor for sacrifices, 27 but that this may be a witness between us and you and between our descendants after us, to serve a service to the Lord before him with our produce offerings and our sacrifices and our sacrifices of deliverance, and your children will not say to our children tomorrow, 'You do not have a portion of the Lord.' And we said, if it should ever happen that they speak to us and to our descendants tomorrow, then they shall say, 'See a likeness of the altar of the Lord, which our fathers made, not for produce offerings nor for sacrifices, but it is a witness between you and between us and between our sons.' 29 May it not be therefore that we turn away from the Lord in these very days, to rebel from the Lord, so as to build an altar for produce offerings and for the sacrifices of salamæ and for the sacrifice of deliverance, other than the altar of the Lord that is before his tent."

30 And when Phinees the priest and all the chiefs of the congregation of Israel who were with him heard the words that the sons of Rouben and the sons of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasse spoke, then it pleased them. 31 And Phinees the priest said to the sons of Rouben and the sons of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasse, "Today we know that the Lord is with us, because you have not committed a trespass against the Lord and that you have delivered the sons of Israel out of the hand of the Lord."

32 And Phinees the priest returned, and the chiefs, from the sons of Rouben and from the sons of Gad and from the half-tribe of Manasse, out of the land of Galaad into the land of Chanaan, to the sons of Israel, and they reported the words to them. 33 And it pleased the sons of Israel, and they spoke to the sons of Israel and blessed the God of the sons of Israel, and they said that they would no longer go up against them for war, to utterly destroy the land of the sons of Rouben and the sons of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasse, and they settled upon it. 34 And Iesous named the altar of those of Rouben and those of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasse, and he said: "It is a witness between them that the Lord is their God."

23 And it happened, after rather many days after the Lord had given Israel rest from all their enemies round about and Iesous was old, advanced in days, 2 that Iesous summoned all the sons of Israel and their council of elders and their chiefs and their scribes and their judges, and he said to them, "I am old and advanced in days. 3 Now you have seen what the Lord your God has done to all these nations before you, for it is the Lord your God who has fought for you. 4 See that I have cast upon you by the allotments to your tribes these nations that remain to you, from the Jordan all the nations that I have utterly destroyed, and from the great sea it shall be the boundary toward the setting of the sun. 5 And the Lord your God, he shall utterly destroy them from before you until they perish, and he shall send wild beasts against them until he utterly destroys them and their kings from before you, and inherit their land, as the Lord your God spoke to you. 6 Therefore be very steadfast to observe and to do all the things written in the book of the law of Moyses so that you do not turn aside to the right or the left, 7 that you not go into these nations that are left, and the names of their gods shall not be named among you; neither do obeisance to them nor serve them, 8 but you shall hold fast to the Lord your God, as you have done until this day. 9 And the Lord utterly destroyed them from before you, great and strong nations, and no one has withstood you until this day. 10 One of you has put to flight thousands, since the Lord your God was fighting for you, as he said to you. 11 And take great care to love the Lord your God. 12 For if you turn away and attach yourselves to these nations remaining with you and make marriages with them and intermingle with them and they with you, 13 know that the Lord will not continue to utterly destroy these nations from before you, but they shall be snares and traps for you and nails in your heels and arrows in your eyes until you are destroyed from this good land that the Lord your God has given you.

14 But I am going the way, as also all who are on earth, and you shall know in your heart and in your soul, because not one word has crumbled of all the words that the Lord our God spoke concerning all that involves you; not one out of them failed. 15 And it shall happen that, as all the good things that the Lord spoke concerning you have come upon you, so the Lord God will bring upon you all the evil things until he utterly destroys you from this good land that the Lord has given you, 16 when you transgress the covenant of the Lord your God, which he commanded you, and go to serve other gods and do obeisance to them."

24 And Iesous gathered all the tribes of Israel to Selo and summoned their elders and their scribes and their judges and set them before God. 2And Iesous said to all the people, “This is what the Lord, the God of Israel, says: ‘Your fathers at first lived beyond the river, Thara the father of Abraam and the father of Nachor, and they served other gods. 3And I took your father Abraam from beyond the river and led him in all the land and made his offspring many and gave him Isaak, 4and to Isaak, Jakob and Esau. And I gave to Esau Mount Seir for him to inherit. And Jakob and his sons went down into Egypt and became there a great and populous and mighty nation, 5and the Egyptians afflicted them.’ And the Lord smote Egypt with things he did to them, and afterwards he brought you out of Egypt. And you came into the Red Sea, and the Egyptians pursued after your fathers with chariots and with horses into the Red Sea. 7And we cried out to the Lord, and he gave a cloud and darkness between us and between the Egyptians, and he brought the sea upon them and covered them, and your eyes saw what the Lord did in the land of Egypt. And you were in the wilderness rather many days. 8And he brought you into the land of Egypt. And you were in the wilderness forty years. 9And Balak the son of Sepphor, king of Moab, rose up and set himself against Israel, and they went each to his place. And the people answered and said, “May it not be that we forsake the Lord so as to serve other gods. 11And the Lord drove out from before us the Amorrite and in the place of Eleazar his father until he died, and Phinees served as priest around in their midst. And Phinees served as priest among the sons of Israel, and he tended the ark of God, and he took a large stone, and Iesous set it under the terebinth tree before the Lord. 12And he wrote these words in the book as the law of God, and he took an anointing oil and anointed Iesous as a priest. 13And he gave you a stone, that on which you did not labor, and cities that you did not build, and you were settled in them, and you shall eat of vineyards and olive yards that you did not plant. 14And now fear the Lord, and serve him in straightness and in righteousness, and put away the foreign gods that your fathers served beyond the river and in Egypt, and serve the Lord. 15But if it does not seem good to you to serve the Lord, choose for yourselves today whom you will serve, whether the gods of your fathers that were beyond the river or the gods of the Amorrites among whom you live upon their land, but I and my household will serve the Lord, because he is holy.” 16And the people answered and said, “May it not be that we forsake the Lord so as to serve other gods. 17The Lord our God, he is God; he brought us and our fathers out of Egypt, and he protected us on all the way on which we went and among all the nations through whom we passed. 18And the Lord drove out from before us the Amorrites and all the nations that inhabited the land. But we also will serve the Lord, for he is our God.” 19And Iesous said to the people, “You will not be able to serve the Lord, for he is a holy god. And since he is jealous, he will not forgive your sins and your acts of lawlessness. 20Whenever you forsake the Lord and serve other gods, then he will come upon you and do you harm and consume you, instead of having done you good.” 21And the people said to Iesous, “No, but we will serve the Lord.” 22And Iesous said to the people, “You are witnesses against yourselves that you have chosen the Lord, to serve him. 23And now put away the foreign gods that are among you, and direct your heart toward the Lord, God of Israel.” 24And the people said to Iesous, “We will serve the Lord and hearken to his voice.” 25And Iesous made a covenant with the people that day and gave them law and judgment at Sela before the tent of the God of Israel. 26And he spoke to the people, “Look, this stone shall be in your midst as a witness; for it has heard all the things spoken to it by the Lord, whatever he spoke to us today, and this shall be in your midst as a witness at the last of days, whenever you deal falsely with the Lord my God.” 28And Iesous sent the people away, and they went each to his place. 29And Israel served the Lord all the days of Iesous and all the days of the elders who drew out the time with Iesous and who knew all the works of the Lord that he did for Israel. 30And it happened after these things that Iesous son of Naue, slave of the Lord, died at one hundred ten years. 31And they buried him at the borders of his allotment in Thammathasachara in Mount Ephraim, from the north of Mount Gaas. 31aThere they put with him, into the tomb in which they buried him, the flint knives with which he circumcised the sons of Israel in Galgala, when he led them out of Egypt, as the Lord instructed them, and there they are until this very day. 32And the sons of Israel brought up the bones of Joseph out of Egypt, and they interred him in Sikima, in the portion of the field that Jakob acquired from the Amorrites living in Sikima for one hundred ewe-lambs, and he gave it to Joseph as a portion. 33And it happened after these things that Eleazar son of Aaron, the high priest, died and was buried in Gabaath, which he was his own. 33bAnd the sons of Israel departed each to their place and to their own city. And the sons of Israel worshiped Astarte and Astaroth and the gods of the nations round about them. And the Lord delivered them into the hands of Eglom, the king of Moab, and he dominated them eighteen years.

Edition of Greek Text
To date there is no fully critical edition of LXX Judges. The Göttingen edition has not yet appeared, and the edition of Brooke and Maclean is a "diplomatic" edition in which the main text is basically that of Codex Vaticanus (B). The NETS translation of Judges, therefore, is based on A. Rahlfs, Septuaginta. Id est Vetus Testamentum graece iuxta LXX interpretes, 2 vols. (Stuttgart: Württembergische Bibelanstalt, 1935).

In Judges Rahlfs based his edition on the readings of about twenty manuscripts. He identified two main textual traditions, which he believed were so diverse that they amounted to separate recensions (editions) of the book. He printed these as separate texts, designated A and B. NETS Judges, accordingly, offers a translation of both the A and the B texts.

Rahlfs based his A text upon Codex Alexandrinus (A) and two groups of manuscripts representing the recensions of the LXX associated, respectively, with Origen (c. 185–253 CE) and Lucian (c. 250–312 CE). His B text was based upon Codex Vaticanus (B).

Overview of the Text(s) of Judges
Subsequent scholarship has refined Rahlfs' classifications. The manuscripts which are seen as witnesses to an A-type of text are now divided into three groups, AI, AII and AIII, of which AI corresponds fairly closely to Rahlfs' "Origenic" manuscripts, and AII to his "Lucianic" manuscripts. Similarly, the B-type of text is now held to be represented by two related but distinct manuscript groups.

It is generally held that the "Old Greek" (OG) of Judges is to be found within AII (the Lucianic group), particularly in a subgroup of AII formed by the manuscripts glnw. (The Old Latin, a translation made from an early form of LXX Judges, is also an important witness to the OG.) The two main reasons for this view are that AII and the Old Latin show less "kaige influence" than the other manuscript groups and that they show less evidence of "Hexaplaric contamination."

"Kaige," or "kaige revision," is shorthand in Septuagint studies for a tendency, already observable in the first century CE, for earlier forms of the LXX to be revised towards a proto-Masoretic text (MT). This tendency is held to have reached its fullest expression in the Greek translation produced by Aquila (c. 140 CE). The revision towards the MT is notable for its use of "quantitative equivalents," stock renderings of particular Hebrew words and phrases that seem to be chosen primarily to give Greek readers a sense of what was in the original Hebrew, with little concern for whether the resulting translation was idiomatic Greek. Of these the best known is the use of καί γε, "and indeed," as the equivalent for καί ("also") and καί ("and also") after which the entire revising tendency has been named. Other characteristic translations linked with it are: όνειρ < ονομα ("man") in its distributive sense of "each"; ἐγώ εἰμι < ἐγώ ("I am"), even with another finite verb; οὐκ εἶστιν < οὐ ("there is not"). All of these translations occur in the A and B texts of Judges (though B alone has ἐγώ εἰμι + finite verb: cf. 5.3; 6.18; 11.27, 35).

"Hexaplaric contamination" takes its name from Origen's Hexapla, a work set out in six columns for comparative purposes. It is the conflating into one LXX manuscript of readings, which originally belonged in separate columns of the Hexapla, and the clearest sign of it is the presence of doublets, or double translations of words and phrases. For doublet translations in the manuscripts (including mss A and B) see Schreiner, pp. 90–104. Doublets are not entirely absent even from the AII group or from the subgroup glnw, which is why the Old Latin is important in Judges as offering independent testimony to the OG.

Neither the A nor the B text consistently represents the OG. The A text stands somewhat closer to it but still contains many examples of kaige revision and Hexaplaric contamination. What is more, whereas scholarship in the decades before Rahlfs tended to stress the independence of the textual traditions represented by A and B, the large amount of common ground between them should not be overlooked: in many passages A and B are very similar, if not normally identical. The A and B traditions probably derive from a single archetype, of which they represent different degrees of revision. It is likely, then, that the Göttingen edition, when it appears, will print only one main text, which will not be identical to either Rahlfs’ A or B texts. Textually, therefore, NETS Judges is as provisional as the book’s Greek text(s).

Translation Profile of the Greek

In what follows, a reference to either LXX A or B is always specified (e.g., 1.6A; 2.15B); references not so qualified apply to both A and B.

The Hebrew of Judges

MT Judges mostly consists of straightforward, clearly structured narrative, although it does contain occasional obscure words, e.g., הֹגַוְנָּל in 1.14 (NRSV, “she dismounted”) or verses, e.g., 18.7, and there are some sections of narrative where the nature of the action described is unclear (e.g., Ehud’s escape, 3.23–25; Gideon’s attack on the Midianite camp, 7.16–22). But in general there is little that one would expect to cause a translator great difficulties. The one exception is the Song of Deborah in Judges 5, written in poetry generally thought to represent a more archaic form of Hebrew than that found in most parts of the Hebrew Bible and containing a number of rare words.

LXX Judges and its Vorlage

As it stands, LXX Judges (A and B) mainly represents a form of text very close to MT. In some cases, however, it is possible that LXX Judges is based on a different Vorlage.

So, for example:

1.14: “he urged her” (A), “Gothoniel urged her” (B), instead of “she urged him” (MT). MT is less logical.

16.13–14: LXX has several lines lacking in MT (see NRSV footnote).

19.2: LXX A “became angry,” possibly ἡ γυναῖκα in place of MT’s ἔγνυται “played the harlot.”

19.30: LXX A includes the Levite’s instructions to those who carry the dismembered limbs of his concubine throughout Israel (see NRSV footnote; in LXX A, however, these instructions are illogically inserted after the Israelites’ response to this horrible message and not where NRSV might be taken to imply).

On other occasions the translator seems to have had to choose a consonantal text identical to MT, but he apparently divided the consonants differently or supplied different vowels:

14.14: מַעֲשֵׂה הָאָרֶץ, “from the eater” = τι βρωτόν, “what edible thing?” (LXX B) = מַעֲשֵׂה הָאָרֶץ. 18.25: do not make your voice heard = μὴ οἴκουσθήτω δι ἐν φωνῇ σου, “your voice had better not be heard” (LXX AB). Possibly ἐκ χειρὸς has been vocalized as a Niphal, not a Hiphil.

Occasionally LXX has sentences in a different order compared to MT: e.g., the notice of Aod’s (Ehud’s) death in 3.30–4.1, especially in LXX A; the note about the location of the Ark at 20.26–28 in LXX B. In these cases the Vorlage was likely enough identical to MT, and the translation simply rearranges the sentences to produce what seemed to be a clearer or more logical presentation. Sometimes there are repeated elements or other dislocations in the text, which may be due to a scribal slip (e.g., in 18.8–9A; 18.16–20A).

Some of the cases where LXX Judges seems to offer a reading different from MT are probably due to inner-Greek corruption: ἐπορεύοντο, “would prostitute themselves” (2.15A) has probably arisen as a mis-copying of ἐπορεύοντο, “would go” or ἐπορεύοντο, “marched out” (LXX B); ἔξηκονωμενοι, “reaching” (5.15B) is probably a corruption of an earlier reading ἔξηκονωμενοι, “searching out” (cf. the reading of LXX A ἀρκετασμόνοι, “inquiries”). Other examples are: 6.34B ἐτοπήθη, “was seized by fear” for ἐπορεύθη; 9.28B ἐν πόλει, “in his city” for ἐν πόλις ἀγαθῆναι ἡ ἀγαθή σου, “with a good head of grey hair”; 9.7B ἐκλέφει, “he went” for ἐκλέψει, “he called out”; 15.18B ἐκδοκήσας, “you have approved,” by error for ἐδόκησες “you granted.”

Selected Words and Phrases

LXX Judges is generally accurate, and it stays close to the sense of the Hebrew. But names and obscure words sometimes seemed to have caused the translator problems:

1.15: מים מים, “Gulloth-mayim” (NRSV; fn. “Basins of Water”) becomes “redemption of water,” as though מים were related to מים “redeem.”
4.11: "Elon-bezaannim" (NRSV) becomes "Oak-of-the-Resters" in LXX A, as though were related to "undisturbed." LXX B translates it as "Oak-of-the-Greedy," seemingly linking with the root "make a profit."

These translations are perhaps due not to simple error but to a desire to find theologically significant meanings in names by a kind of wordplay. But when LXX A translates the Hiphil participle of a rare root meaning "burst forth" (cf. NRSV "rushed"), as "was struggling," this is probably no more than a guess. There are many such cases in Judges 5, where not only individual words but entire phrases seem to have caused difficulties. Thus, a comparison between 5.1–11 in NRSV and NETS reveals the following differences:

5.2: "When locks are long in Israel" (NRSV); "when chiefs take the lead in Israel" (= LXX A); "an unveiling was unveiled in Israel" (= LXX B)
5.7: "The peasantry prospered in Israel, they grew fat on plunder" (NRSV); "a spokesman was lacking in Israel; he was lacking" (= LXX A); "mighty ones were lacking in Israel; they were lacking" (= LXX B)
5.8 "When new gods were chosen, then war was in the gates" (NRSV); "they chose new gods, like barley bread" (= LXX A); "they chose new gods; then the cities of the rulers fought" (= LXX B)
5.10: "Tell of it, you who ride on white donkeys, you who sit on rich carpets" (NRSV); "mounted upon draft animals, sitting on covered chariots . . . " (= LXX A); "mounted upon a female donkey at midday, sitting on tribunal . . . " (= LXX B)

Some of the LXX translations in these verses seem little short of nonsense. The translator has made his best guess at the meaning of individual words (and in this it may be said that he shows his intent to be faithful to the Hebrew), but these guesses taken together do not yield coherent sense. In most cases it is rare Hebrew words that have caused the problem. Things become a little better as the chapter proceeds, because many of the difficulties are found in the opening section. But it is impossible to read a modern, philologically informed translation of Judges 5 such as the NRSV without feeling that it has come closer to what the Hebrew likely meant.

Transliterations

Occasionally LXX Judges simply transliterates the Hebrew. Sometimes this may be because there was no obvious equivalent to the Hebrew: the rendering of "the Baals" as Baalim (2.11; 3.7; 8.33; 10.6, 10) may fall into this category. At other points transliteration may have been the translator’s last resort in dealing with difficult Hebrew: 5.16A, μοσφαθάμ (NRSV “sheepfolds”); 5.22A, αμαδαρωθ (NRSV “galloping”); 8.7A, βαρκοννιμ, B αβαρκνιν (NRSV “thorns”); 20.6B, ξεμα (NRSV “outrage”). At 5.7, φρασω (‘spokesman’) is a recognizable Greek word, but one probably chosen because it resembled the Hebrew יון (NRSV “peasantry”) in sound. LXX B’s otherwise obscure translation of יון (‘dead’) at 5.27 by ἔξοδοςεθ ξεμα (‘gone’) may have a similar explanation.

Word-for-Word Approach

It would be unfair, however, to focus only on the treatment of difficult words and passages. By and large LXX Judges conveys the sense of the Hebrew, sometimes with considerable skill. But it does so in a form of Greek that, by the standards of most ancient Greek literature, is not fully idiomatic. LXX Judges consistently reproduces in Greek constructions, which, while they are good Hebrew, are not attested in other forms of Greek or are only rarely attested. This is true of both LXX A and LXX B. In general LXX Judges follows a “word-for-word” translational model. Examples of this include the following:

(1) Particles

(i) MT’s standard connective י (“and”) is typically glossed as καί (“and”) and only rarely by other particles one would expect to find in other forms of Greek. δὲ (“but/and/now”) occurs 18x in LXX A and 12x in LXX B); οὖν (“but”) occurs 8x in LXX A and 3x in LXX B; οὖν (“so/therefore”) 2x in LXX A and 3x in LXX B; γὰρ (“for”) 2x in LXX A and never in LXX B.

(ii) LXX Judges generally translates the relative particle ὅς (‘who/which/where,’ etc.) well, using the appropriate form of relative clause. But in some cases the ὅς clause involves “relative resumption,” ending with a word that refers back to the clause’s antecedent. In these cases LXX Judges regularly translates word for word, yielding a kind of double translation of the relative particle. Thus ὅς ἐρχεται ἀστείον πάλιν ἐπὶ τὸ πάντα,
“the mission you are on” (18.6), in which לְבָנָה, “in it,” picks up לַבְּנֵי מִשָּׁם, “your mission,” becomes in LXX A Μη αῷδος ὑμῶν καθ’ ὑμείς περιεβεβεθε ἐν αὐτῷ, “your journey, on which you are going in it.” This is as clumsy in Greek as in English. (LXX B has a slightly varied but equally inelegant translation.) Making a slight concession to English usage, NETS translates LXX A at this point as “your journey, that upon which you are going.” Other examples of the same phenomenon are: 6.10A; 14.17A; 16.11B, 26, 29; 18.5, 6, 10A; 20.22A.

(ii) The Hebrew infinitive absolute is used to represent simultaneous action in an phrase such as הִניֵה לְהַעֲשָׂרָה, “inquire of.” At 1.1 LXX A renders this ἰπροσέθησαν οἱ υἱοὶ Ἰσραήλ ἐν κυρίῳ, “the sons of Israel were inquiring of the Lord”; LXX B has διὰ τοῦ κυρίου “through the Lord,” which is not much better. See also 18.5; 20.18, 23, 27.

(iii) The Hebrew preposition ב, “between” is characteristically repeated in phrases of the type “between X and Y.” An example is לְבָנָה בְּבֵין בַּיְתֵל בֶּן (4.5), which LXX A renders ἀνὰ μέσον Οραμά καὶ οὖν μέσον Βαΐθηλ. This can only be rendered (unidiomatically) as “between Rama and between Baithel.” LXX B has something very similar. See also 4.17; 9.23; 11.27; 13.23; 16.31.

(iv) Another preposition that is sometimes repeated is ב, “as/like,” in phrases of the type “X and Y alike.” Thus at 8.18 we read לְבָנָה בְּבֵין לַמָּס (NRSV, “as you are, so were they”). LXX A renders this ὁμοιός σοί, ὁμοίος αὐτῶν, “one like you was like (of) them.”

(3) Verbs

(i) The Hebrew infinitive absolute is used to reinforce a finite verb from the same root. NRSV translates such phrases in a variety of ways: 7.19: “they had just set the watch”; 8.25: “we will willingly give”; 11.30: “if you will give”; 13.22: “we shall surely die.” LXX Judges translates such expressions in one of two ways: either reinforcing the verb with a cognate noun in the dative (7.19A ἐγέροντο ἠγερόντες, “he roused . . . with a rousing”; 13.22: θυσίατο ὁ ποιησάμεθα “we shall die by death”) or reinforcing it with a participle (7.19B ἐγείροντες ήγεροντες, “rousing they roused”; 8.25 διδόντες δώσομεν, “giving we will give”). Neither is good Greek. See also 15.2; 15.13; 16.11; 17.3; 21.5.

(ii) Biblical Hebrew uses הָיָה (Qal or Hiphil) followed by the infinitive construct of another verb to denote “doing something again”: 3.12, “shall no longer drive out” (2.21). LXX translates this idiom literally, using προσέτθηκεν followed by an infinitive: 3.12 and προσέθηκαν οἱ υἱοὶ Ισραήλ ποιήσωσι, “and the sons of Israel added to do”; 2.21 οἱ προσθήκασαν τὸν ἐξάρα, “I will not add to remove.” See also 4.1; 8.28; 9.37; 10.6, 13; 11.1, 23; 20.22, 23, 28. See also the translation of the analogous construction γίνεσθαι ἐν Λαόν θέλεται at 13.19 as καὶ διεκόρωσαν ποιήσωσι, “and he separated to act” (LXX B).

(4) Idioms with “Man” and “Woman”

(i) In Hebrew ישן, “man” (singular) is used in a distributive sense, e.g., לְבָנָה לְאָלֶישָׁה עַל לְאַלֶישָׁה, “the Israelites again did” (3.12), or, negatively לְבָנָה לְאָלֶישָׁה עַל לְאַלֶישָׁה, “I shall no longer drive out” (2.21). LXX translates this idiom literally, using προσέτθηκεν followed by an infinitive: 3.12 and προσέθηκαν οἱ υἱοὶ Ισραήλ ποιήσωσι, “and the sons of Israel added to do”; 2.21 οἱ προσθήκασαν τὸν ἐξάρα, “I will not add to remove.” See also 4.1; 8.28; 9.37; 10.6, 13; 11.1, 23; 20.22, 23, 28. See also the translation of the analogous construction γίνεσθαι ἐν Λαόν θέλεται at 13.19 as καὶ διεκόρωσαν ποιήσωσι, “and he separated to act” (LXX B).

(ii) The singulars of ישן and ישן, “woman” can also be used in a collective sense to denote a group of men or women; for instance: לְאִשָּׁה לְאֵשָׁה (NRSV, “the men of Israel,” “the Israelites”); לְאָלֶישָׁה לְאָלֶישָׁה (21.16; NRSV, “there are no women left in Benjamin”). LXX Judges sometimes translates such phrases literally, using the singular in contexts that demand the plural, with awkward effect (7.23; 20.15B, 36, 39A; 21.1A, 16). On other occasions the plural is rendered לְאָלֶישָׁה לְאָלֶישָׁה at 20.17 is rendered περισσότεροι χιλιάδες άνδρών, “four hundred thousand men”; cf. 20.15A. At 20.39 and 21.1 LXX B translates ישן collective with οἱ υἱοὶ Ισραήλ, “the sons of Israel,” which suits the context better than the literal translation of LXX A.
2.1: "I will not scatter my covenant" = LXX; NRSV, "I will never break my covenant."

3.22: "he even drove the hilt in after the flame" = LXX; NRSV, "after the blade."

6.13, 15: "by me, Lord" = LXX; NRSV, "but sir."

7.17: "you will see from me" = LXX; NRSV, "look at me."

8.35: "they did not do mercy with" = LXX; NRSV, "they did not exhibit loyalty to."

9.17: "cast his life in opposition" = LXX A; "cast forth his life in opposition" = LXX B; NRSV, "risked his life."

14.7: "she was pleasing before Sampson" = LXX A; "she was made straight in Sampson’s sight" = LXX B; NRSV, "she pleased Samson."

16.20: "I will go out as once and once" = LXX B; NRSV, "I will go out as at other times."

18.19: "you will be to us for a father and for a priest" = LXX A; "become for a father and for a priest to us" = LXX B; NRSV, "be to us a father and a priest."

19.1: "the thighs of the hill country of Ephraim" = LXX; NRSV, "the remote parts of the hill country of Ephraim."

19.24: "the thing of this madness" = LXX; NRSV "such a vile thing."

20.16: "All these were slingers of stones at a hair, and not missing" = LXX B; NRSV, "every one could sling a stone at a hair, and not miss."

20.40: "and see, the annihilation of the city went up" = LXX; NRSV, "and there was the whole city going up in smoke."

20.42: "overtook upon them" = LXX B; NRSV "overtook them."

20.48: "and the cities that were found they sent off with fire" = LXX A; NRSV, "also the remaining towns they set on fire."

21.19: "from days to days" = LXX A; NRSV "yearly."

Translations such as these, it is important to note, reflect a deliberate choice on the translator’s part (or in some cases, on the part of those who have corrected an earlier text towards the Hebrew). It is not that the translator/reviser knew no better than to write pidgin-Greek. Rather, his consistent aim was that the translation should mirror its Vorlage as closely as possible, and so he has left within the translation many signals as to the nature of the Hebrew original. LXX Judges well exemplifies the “interlinear” paradigm, which informs NETS as a whole.

The translation here offered, in accordance with the principles of NETS, attempts to capture this aspect of LXX Judges by using English which, while grammatical, is at points unidiomatic, inelegant or illiterate. This happens literally hundreds of times. But the reader should not draw inappropriate conclusions about the LXX translator’s competence from this aspect of the translation.

“Theological” Renderings

At points within LXX Judges there may be a theological issue underlying the translation. The addition at the end of 4.8 (“for I do not know the day in which the Lord will send his angel on a good journey with me”) is an example: LXX speaks of God as intervening through a mediating figure rather than directly accompanying Barak, a type of interpretation that is more common in the Targum of Judges. (E.g., at 4.14 the Targum has “Is not the angel of the Lord going forth to ensure success before you?” in place of MT’s “the Lord is indeed going out before you.”) Something similar may apply to the narrative of Gideon and the angel of the Lord in Judg 6.11–24. MT speaks sometimes of “the angel of the Lord/God” (vv. 11, 12, 20–22), and sometimes of “the Lord” (vv. 14, 16, 23). LXX has “the angel of the Lord” throughout, except at v. 23, where it seems that Gideon only hears God’s voice and no longer sees any manifestation of God’s presence. LXX seems to go beyond MT in safeguarding God’s transcendence. Compare also 2.1: the form of the angel’s words in MT leaves it ambiguous whether he speaks as the Lord’s representative or in some sense as the Lord himself, but LXX A and B in different ways remove the ambiguity.

At 5.23 MT has: “they did not come to the help of the Lord, to the help of the Lord against the mighty.” LXX A translates this “because they did not come to the help of the Lord; the Lord is our helper, mighty among warriors.” The second part of this translation echoes Psalms in which God is described as Israel's or an individual's helper (e.g., 18[19].15; 27[28].7; 113.17–19[115.9–11]), and that may partly explain LXX A's deviation from MT. Additionally, it may be that the translator felt unease at words which seemed to suggest that God stood in need of human aid and so translated the second half of the line in a way that made clear that God is Israel's helper, and not the other way around. (Targum, "they did not come to the aid of the people of the Lord, to the aid of the people of the Lord," seems to have been similarly motivated, though its approach is different.) LXX B is closer to MT.

In Iotham's parable, the olive tree speaks of "my rich oil by which gods and mortals are honored" (9.9 NRSV), and the vine speaks of "my wine that cheers gods and mortals" (9.13 NRSV). In these verses could instead be translated as "God." LXX A at these points has "my fattiness which God and men extol in me" (v. 9) and "my wine, the good cheer of men, which comes from God" (v. 13), translations which avoid any suggestion of polytheism and perhaps also the idea that wine might make God merry (v. 13). LXX B has "my fattiness by which men extol God" at v. 9, an even more "theologically sound" translation than LXX A, but at v. 13 translates "my wine, that cheers God [or "god," for there is no article] and men," this last translation illustrating the point that tendencies in LXX Judges are not usually consistently attested.

Lastly, mention should be made of the bizarre translation of as "she-Baal/she-Baalim" at four points in LXX A: 2.13; 3.7; 10.6, 10. Whether this arose through simple error (2.13 and 10.6 also refer to "the [female] Astartes") or as part of an inconsistently applied policy of denigration of Baal, it is impossible at this distance to decide.

Judges A

1 And it came about after the death of Isous that the sons of Israel were inquiring by the Lord, saying, "Who shall go up for us against the Chanaanites as leader, to fight against him?"

2 And the Lord said, "Ioudas shall go up. See, I have given the land in his hand." And Ioudas said to his brother Symeon, "Come up with me in my allotment, and let us fight against the Chanaanites, and indeed I will go with you in your allotment." And Symeon went with him. And Ioudas went up, and the Lord gave the Chanaanite and the Pherezite in his hand, and he struck them down at Bezek, ten thousand men. And they found Adonibezek at Bezek and fought against him and struck down the Chanaanite and the Pherezite. And Adonibezek fled, and they went in pursuit after him and cut off the tips of his hands and his feet. And Adonibezek said, "Seventy kings with the tips of their hands and their feet cut off used to gather the scraps under my table; therefore, as I have done, so God has paid me back." And they brought him to Jerusalem, and he died there.

Judges B

1 And it came about after the death of Isous that the sons of Israel were inquiring through the Lord, saying, "Who shall go up for us against the Chanaanites as leader, to fight against them?"

2 And the Lord said, "Ioudas shall go up. See, I have given the land in his hand." And Ioudas said to his brother Symeon, "Come up with me in my allotment, and let us fight against the Chanaanites, and indeed I will go with you in your allotment." And Symeon went with him. And Ioudas went up, and the Lord gave the Chanaanite and the Pherezite in his hand, and he struck them down at Bezek, ten thousand men. And they found Adonibezek at Bezek and fought against him and struck down the Chanaanite and the Pherezite. And Adonibezek fled, and they went in pursuit after him and caught him and cut off the tips of his hands and his feet. And Adonibezek said, "Seventy kings with the tips of their hands and their feet cut off used to gather the scraps under my table; therefore, as I have done, so God has paid me back." And they brought him to Jerusalem, and he died there.
8 And the sons of Ioudas fought against Jerusaleam and took it. And they struck it down with the edge of the sword and set the city on fire with fire. 9And after that the sons of Ioudas went down to fight against the Chananite who lived in the hill country and the south and the lowland. 10And Ioudas went against the Chananite who lived in Chebron, and Chebron came out in opposition (now the name of Chebron was formerly Karia-tharboxsepher), and he struck down Sesi and Achiman and Tholmi, offspring of Enak.

11 And from there they went against the inhabitants of Dabir (and the name of Dabir was formerly City of Letters). 12And Chaleb said, “Whoever strikes a blow against the City of Letters and captures it first, I will give him my daughter Ascha for a wife.” 13And Gothoniel son of Kenez, Chaleb’s younger brother, captured it first, and he gave him his daughter Ascha for a wife. 14And it came about, when she entered, that he urged her to ask for the field from her father. And she grumbled upon her draft animal and cried out from where she was on her draft animal, “You have given me away into the land of the south.” And Chaleb said to her, “What do you want?” 15And Ascha said to him, “Give me a blessing; since you have given me away into the land of the south, you shall also give me redemption of water.” And, according to her desire, Chaleb gave her the redemption of the upper and the redemption of the lower.

16 And the sons of Iobab the Kinite, Moyses’ father-in-law, went up from the City of Palms to the sons of Ioudas, into the wilderness that is in the south near the descent of Arad. And he went and settled with the people. 17And Ioudas went with his brother Symeon, and they struck down the Chananite who inhabited Sephet and anathematzed it and destroyed it. And they called the name of the city Destruction. 18And Ioudas did not inherit Gaza and its territory and Ascalon and its territory and Akkaron and its territory and Azotus and its surrounding lands. 19And the Lord was with Ioudas, and he inherited the hill country, for he could not inherit the inhabitants of the valley, because Rechab commanded it. 20And he gave Chebron to Chaleb, just as Moyses had said, and from there he inherited the three cities and removed from there the three sons of Enak. 21And the sons of Beniamin did not remove the lebousite who lived in Jerusaleam, and the lebousite has lived with the sons of Beniamin to this day.

22 And the sons of Ioseph, indeed they too went up towards Baithel, and Ioudas with them. 23And the house of Israel encamped against Baithel (now the name of the city was formerly Louza). 24And those who were keeping watch saw a man coming out of the city, and they captured him and said to him, “Show us the way into the city, and we will do mercy with you.” 25And he showed them the way into the city, and they struck down the city with the edge of the sword, but they sent the man and his family away. 26And the man left for the land of Chettiim and built a city there and called its name Louza; that is its name to this day.

27 And Manasses did not inherit Baithshan (which is the city of the Scythians) or its daughters or its surrounding lands or Ekthanaad and its daughters or the inhabitants of Dor and its daughters and the inhabitants of Balaam and its daughters and the inhabitants of Magedon and its daughters or the inhabitants of leblaam or its daughters, and the Chananite began to live in that land. 28And it came about that when Israel grew strong, he set the Chananite to pay tribute, and removing he did not remove him.

29 And Ephraim did not remove the Chananite who lived in Gazer, and the Chananite was living in his midst in Gazer and became for tribute.

30 And Zaboulon did not remove the inhabitants of Kedron and the inhabitants of Enaala, and the Chananite lived in his midst and became for tribute.

31 And Aser did not remove the inhabitants of Akcho (and it became for tribute to him), and the inhabitants of Dor and the inhabitants of Sidon and the inhabitants of Aalaph and Achazib and the city of Chelba and of Aphek and of Roob 32and Aser lived in the midst of the Chananite who inhabited the land, for he could not remove him.

33 And Nephthali did not remove the inhabitants of Baithsamys or the inhabitants of Baitheneth, and Israel lived in the midst of the Chananite who inhabited the land; now the inhabitants of Baithsamys and the city of Baitheneth became for tribute to them.

34 And the Amorrite pressed the sons of Dan back into the hill country, for he did not allow him to come down to the valley. 35And the Amorrite began to live in the mountain of the Myrtle-grove, where there are bears and foxes, and the hand of the house of Ioseph rested heavily on the Amorrite, and he became for tribute. 36And the border of the Amorrite was the Idumean above Akrabin, near Petra and above.

Now an angel of the Lord went up from Galgal to Weeping and to Baithel and to the house of Israel, and he said to them, "The Lord, the Lord brought you up from Egypt and brought you into the land that he had sworn to your fathers to give to you. And he said to you, 'I will not scatter my covenant with you forever. 2And for your part, you shall not make a covenant with those who have their seat in this land, nor shall you do obeissance to their gods, but you shall destroy their carved objects and tear down their altars.' And you did not

Now an angel of the Lord went up from Galgal to Weeping and to Baithel and to the house of Israel, and he said to them: This is what the Lord says: "I brought you up from Egypt and brought you into the land that I had sworn to your fathers. And I said, 'I will not scatter my covenant with you forever. 2And for your part, you shall not make a covenant with those who have their seat in this land, nor shall you do obeissance to their gods, but you shall destroy their carved objects and demolish their altars." listen to my voice when you did these things. 3 And I said, I will not add to deport the people of whom I spoke, to destroy them from before you, and they shall be for causes of oppression to you, and their gods shall be for an obstacle to you." 4 And it came about, as the angel of the Lord spoke these words to all Israel, that the people lifted up their voice and wept. 5 For this reason the name of that place was called Weeping, and there they sacrificed to the Lord.

6 And Iesous dismissed the people, and the sons of Israel went away, each to his house and to his inheritance to inherit the land. 7 And the people were subject to the Lord all the days of Iesous and all the days of the elders, those who prolonged their days after Iesous, those who had known all the Lord’s great work that he had done for Israel. 8 And Iesous son of Naue, slave of the Lord, died, a son of one hundred and ten years. 9 And they buried him within the bounds of his inheritance in Thamnatharees, in the hill country of Ephraim, north of Mount Gaas. 10 And that whole generation was added to their fathers, and another generation arose after them, those who did not know the Lord and the work that he had done for Israel.

11 And the sons of Israel did what was evil before the Lord and served the Baalim, and the work that he had done in Israel.

12 And another generation arose after them, who did not know the Lord and, indeed, the work that he had done for Israel.

13 And they abandoned the Lord and served the Baalim and the Astartes. 14 And the Lord was furiously angry with Israel, and he gave them up in the hands of their enemies. 15 And they plundered them, and they plundered them, and they plundered them, and they gave them up in the hand of their enemies all around, and they could not withstand in the presence of their enemies. 16 At every point at which they would prostitute themselves, the Lord's hand also was to them for misfortune, as the Lord had said and as the Lord had sworn, and he oppressed them greatly.

17 And the Lord raised up judges for them and delivered them out of the hand of those who plundered them. 18 And indeed they did not listen to their judges, for they prostituted themselves after other gods and did obeisance to them and provoked the Lord to anger. And they soon turned aside from the way in which their fathers had walked in obeying the commandments of the Lord; they did not do so. 19 And because the Lord raised up judges for them, the Lord also was with the judge, and he delivered them from the hand of their enemies all the days of the judge, for the Lord was entreated by their groaning from before those who besieged and afflicted them. 20 And it came about when the judge would die that they relapsed and again caused corruption beyond what their fathers had done, going after other gods, serving them and doing obeisance to them. They did not cast off their practices and they did not withdraw from their stubborn way.

voice, for you did these things. 3 And I said, I will not remove them from before you, and they shall be causes of oppression for you, and their gods shall be for an obstacle to you." 4 And it came about, as the angel of the Lord spoke these words to all the sons of Israel, that the people lifted up their voice and wept. 5 And they named the name of that place Weepings, and there they offered sacrifice to the Lord.

6 And Iesous dismissed the people, and a man went to his inheritance to inherit the land. 7 And the people were subject to the Lord all the days of Iesous and all the days of the elders, those who prolonged their days along with Iesous, those who had known all the Lord’s great work that he had done in Israel. 8 And Iesous son of Naue, slave of the Lord, died, a son of one hundred ten years. 9 And they buried him within the bounds of his inheritance in Thamnatharees, in the hill country of Ephraim, north of Mount Gaas. 10 And indeed, that whole generation was added to their fathers, and another generation arose after them, who did not know the Lord and, indeed, the work that he had done in Israel.

11 And the sons of Israel did what was evil before the Lord and served the Baalim, and they abandoned the Lord, god of their fathers, who had brought them out of the land of Egypt, and they went after other gods from among the gods of the nations who were all around them and did obeisance to them, and they provoked the Lord to anger. 12 And they abandoned the Lord and served Baal and the Astartes. 13 And the Lord was furiously angry against Israel, and he gave them into the hands of plunderers, and they plundered them, and he gave them up in the hands of their enemies all around, and they could no longer withstand in the presence of their enemies. 14 And the Lord was furiously angry against Israel, and he delivered them into the hands of plunderers, and they plundered them, and he gave them up in the hands of their enemies all around, and they could no longer withstand in the presence of their enemies. 15 At every point at which they marched out, the Lord’s hand was also against them for misfortune, as the Lord had said and as the Lord had sworn, and he oppressed them greatly.

16 And the Lord raised up judges, and the Lord delivered them out of the hand of those who plundered them. 17 And indeed they did not obey the judges, for they prostituted themselves after other gods and did obeisance to them. And they soon turned aside from the way in which their fathers had walked in obeying the words of the Lord; they did not do so. 18 And because the Lord raised up judges for them, the Lord also was with the judge, and he delivered them from the hand of their enemies all the days of the judge, for the Lord was entreated by their groaning from before those who besieged and oppressed them. 19 And it came about when the judge would die that they relapsed and again caused corruption beyond what their fathers had done, going after other gods, serving them and doing obeisance to them. They did not cast off their practices and their stubborn ways.
And the Lord was furiously angry against Israel, and he said, “Seeing that, inasmuch as this nation has abandoned my covenant that I commanded their fathers and has not obeyed my voice, 21 for my part will not add to remove from before them a man from among the nations that lesous left behind and let be, 22 to test Israel by means of them, whether or not they would keep to the way of the Lord, walking in it, as their fathers had kept to it.” 23 And the Lord had let those nations be, not removing them at once, and had not delivered them in lesous’ hand.

And lesous left these nations so as to test Israel by means of them, all those who had no experience of all the wars of Chanaan (only on account of the generations of the sons of Israel, to teach them war; only, those before them did not know them): 3 the five satrapies of the allophyles and the full number of the Chananite and the Sidonian and the Heuite who lived on Lebanon, from Mount Balaermon as far as Lobomath. 4 And it happened so as to test Israel by means of them, to know whether they would obey the commandments of the Lord, which he commanded their fathers by the hand of Moyses. 5 And the sons of Israel lived in the midst of the Chananite and the Chettite and the Amorrite and the Pherezite and the Heuite and the lebusite, and they took their daughters for wives for themselves, and their own daughters they gave to their sons, and they served their gods.

And the sons of Israel did what was evil before the Lord, and they forgot the Lord, their God, and served the she-Baalim and the sacred groves. 8 And the Lord was furiously angry against Israel, and he gave them up into the hands of King Chousarsathaim of Syria-of-Rivers, and they were subject to him eight years. 9 And the sons of Israel cried out to the Lord, and the Lord raised up a deliverer for Israel, and he delivered them, Geroniel son of Kenez, Chaleb’s younger brother, and he obeyed him. 10 And a spirit of the Lord came upon him, and he judged Israel, and he went out to war, and the Lord gave King Chousarsathaim of Syria in his hand, and his hand prevailed over Chousarsathom. 11 And the land had rest fifty years. And Geroniel son of Kenez died.

12 And the sons of Israel added to do what was evil before the Lord, and the Lord strengthened King Eglom of Moab against Israel, because they had done what was evil before the Lord. 13 And he brought to him all the sons of Ammon and Amalek, and he went and struck down Israel, and he inherited the City of Palms. 14 And the sons of Israel were subject to King Eglom of Moab eighteen years.

15 And the sons of Israel cried out to the Lord, and the Lord raised up for them a deliverer, Aod son of Gera son of Iemeni, an ambidextrous man. And the sons of Israel sent gifts to King Eglom of Moab.
Moab by his hand. And Aod made for himself a double-bladed dagger; it was a span in length, and he fastened it on his right thigh under his cloak. And he presented the gifts to King Eglom of Moab. Now Eglom was a very handsome man. And it came about, when Aod had finished presenting the gifts, that he sent those who bore the gifts on their way. 19 And Eglom turned back from the carved objects with Galgal. And Aod said, “I have a secret message for you, O king.” And Eglom said to everyone, “Away!” and all his attendants went out from him.

And Aod came in to him, and he was sitting alone, quite by himself in his summer roof-chamber. And Aod said, “I have a divine message for you, O king.” And Eglom rose from his seat, near to him. And it came about just as he rose up that Aod reached with his left hand and took the dagger from his right thigh and thrust it into Eglom’s belly, and indeed he even drove the hilt in after the flame, and the fat closed over the flame, for he did not draw the dagger out of his belly. 23 And Aod went out into the vestibule, and he closed the doors of the roof-chamber on him and wedged them.

And he had gone out, and his servants came in. And they looked, and see, the doors of the roof-chamber were locked. And they said, “Perhaps he is sitting on the stool in the retreat of his bedroom.” And they waited, embarrassed. And see, there was no one to open the doors of the roof-chamber, and they took the key and opened, and see, their lord was lying dead on the ground.

And Aod escaped while they were in confusion (and there was no one paying attention to him) and he passed beyond the carved objects and escaped to Setirotha. And it came about when he arrived that he sounded with a horn in the hill country of Ephraim, and the sons of Israel went down with him, and he himself was at their head. And he said to them, “Come down after me, for the Lord God has given your enemies, Moab, in your hand.” And they went down after him and quickly seized the fords across the Jordan of Moab, and they did not allow a man to cross over. And at that time they struck down Moab, about ten thousand men, all the warriors among them, even every man of power, and not a man escaped. 30 And Moab was humbled in that day under the hand of Israel. And the land had rest for eighty years. And Aod judged them until he died.

And after him arose Samegar son of Anath, and he struck down the allophyles, fully six hundred men, as well as calves of cattle. And he himself delivered Israel.

And the sons of Israel added to do what was evil before the Lord. And the Lord gave them images.

And he himself turned back from the carved objects that were with Galgal. And Aod said, “I have a secret message for you, O king.” And Eglom said to him, “Be quiet!” and he sent all those who stood by him out from him. And Aod came into him, and he was sitting alone, quite by himself in his own summer roof-chamber. And Aod said, “I have a divine message for you, O king.” And Eglom rose from his seat, near to him. And it came about just as he rose up that Aod reached with his left hand and took the dagger that was above his right thigh and thrust it into his belly, and indeed he even drove the hilt in after the flame, and the fat closed over the flame, for he did not draw the dagger out of his belly. 23 And Aod went out by the vestibule. And he went out past those who had been stationed, and he closed the doors of the roof-chamber on him and wedged them.

And he had gone out, and the servants came in. And they looked, and see, the doors of the roof-chamber were locked. And they said, “Perhaps he is sitting on the stool in the retreat of his bedroom.” And they waited, embarrassed. And see, there was no one to open the doors of the roof-chamber, and they took the key and opened, and see, their lord was lying dead on the ground.

And Aod escaped while they were in confusion (and there was no one paying attention to him) and he passed beyond the carved objects and escaped to Setirotha. And it came about when Aod entered the land of Israel that he sounded with a horn in the hill country of Ephraim, and the sons of Israel went down with him from the hill country, and he himself was at their head. And he said to them, “Come down after me, for the Lord God has given your enemies, Moab, in your hand.” And they went down after him and quickly seized the fords across the Jordan of Moab, and he did not allow a man to cross over. And in that day they struck down Moab, about ten thousand men, every sleek man, even every man of power, and not a man escaped. And Moab was humbled in that day under the hand of Israel. And the land had rest for eighty years. And Aod judged them until he died.

And after him arose Samegar son of Dinach, and he struck down the allophyles, fully six hundred men, with a bull’s ploughshare. And indeed he too delivered Israel.

up in the hand of King Iabin of Chanaan, who reigned in Hasor, and the commander of his force was Sisara, and he himself lived in Harisoth-of-the-Nations. And the sons of Israel cried out to the Lord, for he had nine hundred ironclad chariots and himself cruelly oppressed Israel for twenty years.

4 And at that time a woman, Debbora, a prophetess, wife of Laphidoth, was judging Israel by herself. And she used to sit by herself under the palm of Debbora between Rama and between Baithel in the hill country of Ephraim, and the sons of Israel would come up to her there to resolve disputes. And Debbora sent and summoned Barak son of Abineem from Kedes Nephthali and said to him, “Is it not you whom the Lord, the God of Israel, commanded? And you shall leave for Mount Thabor and bring with you ten thousand men from the sons of Nephthali and from the sons of Zaboulon. And I will bring out to you, to the Wadi Kison, Sisara, commander of Iabin’s force, and his chariots and his horde, and I will give him in your hand.” And Barak said to her, “If you will go with me, I will go, and if you will not go with me, I will not go, for I do not know the day in which the Lord will send his angel on a good journey with me.” And Debbora said to him, “Going I will go with you, but know that it will not be your success for the journey on which you are going, for the Lord will give Sisara up in the hand of a woman.” And Debbora went up and went with Barak to Kedes. And Barak summoned Zaboulon and Nephthali to Kedes, and ten thousand warriors went up at his heels, and Debbora went up with him.

11 And the fellows of the Kinite had separated from the sons of Iobab, a relative by marriage of Moyses, and he had pitched his tent by Oak-of-the-Resters, which is near Kedes.

12 And they told Sisara that Barak son of Abineem had gone up to Mount Thabor, and Sisara called out all his chariots, for he had nine hundred iron-clad chariots, and all the people who were with him, from Harisoth-of-the-Nations, to the Wadi Kison. And Debbora said to Barak, “Up! For this is the day in which the Lord has given Sisara in your hand. See, will the Lord not go before you?” And Barak went down from Mount Thabor, and ten thousand men behind him. And the Lord threw Sisara and all his chariots and all his camp into a panic by the edge of the sword before Barak, and Sisara got down from his chariot and fled away on his feet, and Barak was pursuing after the chariots and after the camp, all the way to Thicket-of-the-Nations. And all the camp of Sisara fell by the edge of the sword; not even one was left.

17 And Sisara had retreated on his feet to the tent of Iael, wife of Chaber the Kinite, for there was peace between King Iabin of Hasor and between the clan of Chaber the Kinite. And Iael came out to Zaboulon and Nephthali from Kades, and ten thousand warriors went up at his heels, and Debbora went up with him.

Judges B

Lord gave them up in the hand of King Iabin of Chanaan, who reigned in Hasor, and the commander of his force was Sisara, and he himself lived in Harisoth-of-the-Nations. And the sons of Israel cried out to the Lord, for he had nine hundred ironclad chariots and himself cruelly oppressed Israel for twenty years.

4 And at that time a woman, Debbora, a prophetess, wife of Laphidoth, was judging Israel by herself. And she used to sit by herself under the palm of Debbora between Rama and between Baithel in the hill country of Ephraim, and the sons of Israel would come up to her there to resolve disputes. And Debbora sent and summoned Barak son of Abineem from Kedes Nephthali and said to him, “Did not the Lord, the God of Israel, command you? And you shall leave for Mount Thabor and bring with you ten thousand men of the sons of Nephthali and of the sons of Zaboulon. And I will bring against you, to the Wadi Kison, Sisara, commander of Iabin’s force, and his chariots and his horde, and I will give him into your hands.” And Barak said to her, “If you will go with me, I will go, and if you will not go, I will not go, for I do not know the day on which the Lord will send his angel on a good journey with me.” And she said, “Going I will go with you, but know that it will not be your success for the journey on which you are going, for the Lord will give Sisara up in the hand of a woman.” And Debbora got up and went with Barak from Kades. And Barak called out to Zaboulon and Nephthali from Kades, and ten thousand warriors went up at his heels, and Debbora went up with him.

11 And Chaber the Kinite had separated from Kaina, from the sons of Iobab, a relative by marriage of Moyses, and he had pitched his tent as far away as Oak-of-the-Greedy, which is near Kedes.

12 And Sisara was told that Barak son of Abineem had gone up towards Mount Thabor, and Sisara called out all his chariots, nine hundred iron-clad chariots, and all the people who were with him, from Harisoth-of-the-Nations, to the Wadi Kison. And Debbora said to Barak, “Up! For this is the day in which the Lord has given Sisara in your hand. For the Lord will go out before you.” And Barak went down from Mount Thabor, and ten thousand men behind him. And the Lord threw Sisara and all his chariots and all his camp into a panic by the edge of the sword before Barak, and Sisara got down from his chariot and fled away on his feet, and Barak was pursuing after the chariots and after the camp, all the way to Thicket-of-the-Nations. And all the camp of Sisara fell by the edge of the sword; not even one was left.

17 And Sisara had fled on his feet to the tent of Iael, wife of Chaber, comrade of the Kinite, for there was peace between King Iabin of Hasor and between the clan of Chaber the Kinite. And Iael came out to Zaboulon and Nephthali from Kades, and ten thousand warriors went up at his heels, and Debbora went up with him.

to meet Sisara and said to him, “Come aside, my lord, come aside to me; have no fear.” And he came aside to her, into the tent, and she covered him with her skin curtain. 19 And Sisara said to her, “Do but give me a little water to drink, for I am thirsty.” And she opened the skin of milk and gave him a drink and covered up his face. 20 And he said to her, “Stand at the entrance of the tent, and it shall be, if anybody comes to you and asks you and says to you, ‘Is there a man within?’ that you will say, ‘There is not.’ ” And she covered him up with her skin curtain. 21 And Iael, wife of Chaber, took the tent peg and placed the hammer in her hand and quietly went in towards him and hammered the peg into his jaw and drove it through in the ground. And as for him, he writhed between her knees, and he breathed his last and died. 22 And see, Barak was pursuing Sisara, and Iael went out to meet him and said to him, “Come here, and I will show you the man whom you are seeking.” And he went in to her, and see, Sisara, a fallen corpse, and the tent peg in his jaw.

23 And the Lord God humbled King Iabin of Chanaan in that day before the sons of Israel. 24 And the hand of the sons of Israel went out, going and becoming hard against King Iabin of Chanaan until they destroyed him.

And Debbora sang, and Barak son of Abineem, in that day and said:

2 “When chiefs take the lead in Israel, when people make their free choice, bless the Lord!

3 “Hear, O kings; give ear, O mighty satraps; I will sing to the Lord; I will make music to the God of Israel.

4 “Lord, at your marching out from Seir, when you set out from the field of Edom, earth trembled, and the sky was convulsed. and the clouds dripped water.

5 Mountains quaked from before the Lord, this Sinai, from before the Lord, God of Israel.

6 “In the days of Samegar son of Anath, in the days of Iael, kings were lacking, and they traveled paths; they traveled twisting roads.

7 A spokesman was lacking in Israel; he was lacking until Debbora rose up, for she arose as a mother in Israel.

8 They chose new gods, like barley bread—protection, if I see it, of barbed lances among forty thousand!”

14 People of Ephraim wreaked vengeance on them in your brother Benjamin’s valley, among your peoples.

15 In Issachar he sent his foot-soldiers with Debbora into the valley. You, why do you dwell in the midst of shores? He spread out with his feet. Among the divisions of Rouben there were great inquiries of heart.

16 Tell me; why do you sit among the mospthaim3, to hear the pipings of those who arouse? To cross over into the territory of Rouben there were great searchings of heart.

17 Galaad encamped beyond the Jordan; and Dan, why does he dwell by the ships? Aser sojourned at the shore of seas and encamped by his channels. Zaboulon is a people that scorned their life to death; Nepthali too, on the heights of the field.

And the sons of Israel did what was evil before the Lord, and the Lord gave them up in the hand of Midian seven years. And the hand of Midian prevailed over Israel, and the sons of Israel made for themselves, from before Midian, shelters in the mountains and in the caves and the strongholds. And it came about whenever a man of Israel put in seed that Midian would come up, and Amalek and the sons of the east, and they would come up against him. And they would encamp against them, and they destroyed the produce of the land, until one comes to Gaza, and they would not leave support for life in Israel, even flock and calf and donkey. For they and their livestock would come up, and they would bring their tents, and they would arrive like a grasshopper in great numbers, and there was no number for them or their camels, and they would arrive in the land of Israel to waste it. And Israel was greatly impoverished from before Midian, and the sons of Israel cried out to the Lord.

And it came about, when the sons of Israel cried to the Lord on account of Midian, that the Lord sent a man, a prophet, to the sons of Israel, and he said to them, "This is what the Lord, the God of Israel, says: I am the one who made you come up from Egypt, and I led you out of a house of slavery, and I delivered you from the hand of Egypt and from the hand of all who oppressed you, and I drove them out from before you and gave you your land, and I said to you, 'I am the Lord your God; you shall not pay reverence to the gods of the Amorrite, among whom you dwell, in their land.' And you have not given heed to my voice."

And an angel of the Lord came and sat under the oak, which was at Ephratha, which belonged to Joas, father of Abiezri, and his son Gideon was beating out wheat in a wine press to escape from before Midian. And an angel of the Lord appeared to him and said to him, "The Lord is with you, mighty in strength." And Gideon said to him, "By me, Lord? And if the Lord is with me, mighty in strength, then why have all these evils found us? And where are all his wonders, everything our fathers recounted to us, saying, 'Did not the Lord bring us up from Egypt? But now he has cast us out and given us up in the hand of Midian.' And the angel of the Lord looked at him and said to him, "Go in your strength and you will deliver Israel, and see, I have sent you forth." And Gideon said to him, "By me, Lord? By what means shall I deliver Israel? See, my thousand is more lowly in Manasses, and I am insignificant in my father's house." And the angel of the Lord said to him, "The Lord will be with you, and you shall strike down Midian as you would one man." And Gideon said to him, "And if I have found favor in your eyes and you will perform a sign for me that it is you who speak with me, do not stir from here until I come to you; but if I have found pity in your eyes and you will do for me today everything you spoke about with me, do not de-you, and I will bring my sacrifice and place it before you.” And he said, “I am he; I will stay seated until you return.”

19 And Gideon entered and prepared a goat kid and unleavened cakes from an ephah of wheat flour, and the meat he placed in the breadbasket, and the broth he poured into a pot and brought it out to him under the oak and did obeisance.

20 And the angel of the Lord said to him, “Take the meat and the unleavened cakes, and put them by that rock, and pour out the broth.” And he did so.

21 And the angel of the Lord reached out the tip of the rod that was in his hand and touched the meat and the unleavened cakes, and fire ignited from the rock and consumed the meat and the unleavened cakes, and the angel of the Lord departed from his sight.

22 And Gideon perceived that it was an angel of the Lord, and Gideon said, “Ah, ah, Lord, Lord! For I have seen the angel of the Lord face to face.”

23 And the Lord said to him, “Peace be to you; do not be afraid that you will die.”

24 And Gideon built an altar there to the Lord and called it, Peace of the Lord, it being still at Ephratha of Ozi’s father to this day.

25 And it came about in that night that the Lord said to him, “Take your father’s fattened calf, the seven-year-old one. And you will pull down the altar of Baal that is your father’s and cut down the sacred grove that is beside it, and you will build an altar to the Lord your God, who appeared to you on the peak of this Mount Maoz, in proper order, and you will take the calf and offer up a whole burnt offering with the wood of the sacred grove that you shall cut down.”

26 And Gideon took thirteen men from among his slaves and did as the Lord had told him, and it came about, since he was afraid of his father’s household and the men of the city, so as not to do it by day, that he did it by night.

28 And the men of the city arose early in the morning, and see, the altar of Baal broken down, and the sacred grove beside it cut down, and the fattened calf offered up for a whole burnt offering on the altar that had been built!

29 And a man said to his fellow, “Who has done this deed?” And they were searching and seeking, and they said, “Gideon son of Loas did this deed.”

30 And the men of the city said to Loas, “Bring out your son, and let him die, because he has broken down the altar of Baal and because he has cut down the sacred grove beside it.”

31 And Loas said to the men who were arrayed against him, “Are you now acting as judges for Baal? Or are you delivering him? He who has sought judgment against him shall die by morning. If he is a god, he will exact justice from him, because he has broken down his altar.”

32 And in that day he called it Baal’s Court of Justice, because he pulled down his altar.

33 And all Madiam and Amalek and the sons of Amalek and the sons of the house of Esau, all the Philistines, and the sons of Ammon.

34 And it came about in the day that Gideon spoke, and it was told to Jair, saying, “Let Baal seek justice b, for his altar was pulled down.”

33 And all Madiam and Amalek and the sons of the east gathered together and crossed and encamped in the Valley of Lezrael. 34 And a divine spirit entered Gedeon, and he sounded with a horn and called out for Abiezer after him. 35 And he sent out messengers throughout all Manasses, and he himself called out after him. He also sent out messengers in Aser and in Zaboulon and in Nephthali, and they went up to meet him.

36 And Gedeon said to God, "If you are delivering Israel by my hand, as you have spoken, 37 see, I am laying a fleece of wool on the threshing floor, and if there is dew on the fleece alone and there is dryness over all the ground, then I shall also know that you are delivering Israel by my hand, as you have spoken." 38 And it was so. And Gedeon rose early the next morning and squeezed the fleece, and the dew flowed out of the fleece, a full basin of water. 39 And Gedeon said to God, "Let not your anger be aroused against me, and I will speak one more time, and I will make trial with the fleece one more time, and let there be dryness only on the fleece, but over all the ground let there be dew." 40 And God did so in that night. And there was dryness on the fleece only, but over all the ground there was dew.

7 And Jeroboam (he is Gedeon) rose early, and all the people that were with him, and encamped beside the land of Aroed, and the camp of Midian and Amalek was north of him, away from the hill of Abo, in the valley.

2 And the Lord said to Gedeon, "The people with you are numerous; so I will not give up Midian in their hand. Israel would only boast against me, saying, 'My own hand has delivered me.'" 3 And the Lord said to him, "Do proclaim in the hearing of the people, saying, 'Who is faint-hearted and fearful? Let him return home.' And twenty-two thousand quickly set out from Mount Galaad and returned home from the people, and ten thousand remained.

4 And the Lord said to Gedeon, "The people are still numerous; take them down into the water, and I will test them for you there. And it will be that anyone of whom I say to you, 'This one shall go with you,' he shall go with you, and anyone of whom I say to you that he shall not go with you, he shall not go with you." 5 And he brought the people into the water, and the Lord said to Gedeon, "Everyone who laps from the water with his tongue as if a dog laps, you shall put him to one side, and every one who kneels down on his knees to drink, you shall put him by himself." 6 And the full number of those that lapped with their tongue was three hundred men, and all the rest of the people knelt down on their knees to drink water. 7 And the Lord said to Gedeon, "With the three hundred men that lapped I will deliver you and give Midian up in your hand. And let all the people depart, a man to his place." 8 And they took the provisions of the people in their hand, and their horns, and he sent every man of Israel of the East gathered together and encamped in the Valley of Ezereel. 34 And a spirit of the Lord empowered Gedeon, and he sounded with a horn, and Abiezer was seized by fear after him. 35 And he sent messengers into all Manasses and in Aser and in Zaboulon and Nephthali, and he went up to meet them.

36 And Gedeon said to God, "If it is you who are delivering Israel by my hand, as you have spoken, 37 see, I am placing a fleece of wool on the threshing floor; if there is dew on the fleece alone and there is dryness over all the ground, I shall know that you will deliver Israel by my hand, as you have spoken." 38 And it was so. And he rose early the next morning and squeezed the fleece, and dew dripped from the fleece, a full basin of water. 39 And Gedeon said to God, "Do not let your anger be aroused against me, and I will speak one more time. I will yet indeed make trial with the fleece one more time, and let the dryness be only on the fleece, and over all the ground let there be dew." 40 And God did so in that night. And there was dryness on the fleece only, and over all the ground there was dew.

7 And Jeroboam (he is Gedeon) rose early, and all the people with him, and they encamped by the spring of Arad, and the camp of Midian was north of him, away from Gabaath Amora, in the valley.

2 And the Lord said to Gedeon, "The people with you are numerous; so I will not give up Midian in their hand. Israel would only boast against me, saying, 'My own hand has delivered me.'" 3 And now, do proclaim in the hearing of the people, saying, 'Who is the one who is fearful and faint-hearted? Let him turn round and leave Mount Galaad.' And twenty-two thousand of the people turned around, and ten thousand remained.

4 And the Lord said to Gedeon, "The people are still numerous; bring them down to the water, and I will sift them for you there. And it will be that anyone of whom I say to you, 'This one shall go with you,' he shall go with you, and every one of whom I say to you, 'This one shall not go with you,' he shall not go with you." 5 And he brought the people down to the water, and the Lord said to Gedeon, "Everyone who laps from the water with his tongue as if a dog laps, you shall put him to one side, and so with all those who bend down on their knees to drink." 6 And the number of those that lapped with their hand to their mouth was three hundred men, and all the remainder of the people bent down on their knees to drink water. 7 And the Lord said to Gedeon, "With the three hundred men that lapped I will deliver you and give Midian in your hand. And all the people will go, a man to his place." 8 And they took the provisions of the people in their hand, and their horns, and he sent every man of Israel away, a man to his away, a man to his dwelling, but retained the three hundred men. Now the camp of Madiam was below him in the valley.

9 And it happened in that night that the Lord said to him, “Get up, go down quickly from here into the camp, for I have given it up in your hand.

10 But if you fear to go down, you and your young servant Phara go down into the camp, 11 and you shall hear what they say, and afterward your hands shall be strengthened, and you shall go down into the camp.” And he went down, he and his young servant Phara within the bounds of the fifty in the camp. 12 And Mediam and Amalek and all the sons of the east had encamped in the valley like a grasshopper, in great numbers, and there was no number for their camels, but they were like the sand on the seashore, in great numbers. 13 And Gedeon entered, and see, a man was telling his dream to his comrade, and he said, “See, the dream which I dreamed, and see, a cake of barley bread was tumbling in the camp of Mediam, and it came to the tent of Mediam and struck it and overturned it, and the tent collapsed.” 14 And his comrade answered and said, “This is nothing other than the sword of Gedeon son of Ioas, a man of Israel; the Lord has given up Mediam and all the camp in his hand.”

15 And it came, about when Gedeon heard the narration of the dream and its interpretation, that he did obeisance to the Lord, and he returned to the camp of Israel and said, “Get up, for the Lord has given the camp of Mediam in your hands.” 16 And he divided the three hundred men into three commands and put horns in the hand of all of them and empty jars and torches in the middle of the jars. 17 And he said to them, “You will see from me and do the same. And see, I am going into the middle of the camp, and it will be that as I do, so you shall do. 18 And I shall sound with the horn, I and all those with me, and you also shall sound with your horns around the camp and say, ‘For the Lord and for Gedeon!’ ” tent, and he encouraged the three hundred men. And the camp of Mediam was below him in the valley.

19 And Gedeon and a hundred men with him entered in the bounds of the camp at the beginning of the midnight watch; however, he roused the guards with a rousing, and they sounded with the horns and shook out the jars that were in their hands. 20 And the three commands sounded with the horns and broke the jars and grasped the torches in their left hand, and in their right hand were the horns to sound, and they cried, “A sword for the Lord and for Gedeon!” 21 And everyone stood in his place all around the camp, and they ran, all the camp, and they gave signals and fled. 22 And the three hundred horns sounded, and the Lord set a man’s dagger against his fellow and against all the camp, and the camp fled as far as Baithasetta and was pressed back as far as the edge of Abelmeoula and by Tabath. 23 And a man of Israel sounded the cry from Nephthalim and from Aser and from all Manasses, and they took up the pursuit after Mediam.

9 And it happened in that night that the Lord said to him, “Get up, and go down in the camp, for I have given it up in your hand. 10 And if you fear to go down, you and your young servant Phara go down into the camp, 11 and you shall hear what they will say, and after that your hands shall be strengthened, and you shall go down in the camp.” And he went down, he and his young servant Phara towards the command of the fifty that were in the camp. 12 And Mediam and Amalek and all the sons of the east were thrown in the valley like a grasshopper, in great numbers, and there was no number for their camels, but they were like the sand on a seashore, in great numbers. 13 And Gedeon arrived, and see, a man telling a dream to his comrade, and he said, “A dream, see, I dreamed, see, a cake of barley bread was spinning round in the camp of Mediam, and it came to the tent and struck it, and it collapsed, and it turned it upside down, and the tent collapsed.” 14 And his comrade answered and said, “This is nothing if not the sword of Gedeon son of Ioas, a man of Israel; God has given up Mediam and all the camp in his hand.”

15 And it came about, when Gedeon heard the explanation of the dream and its interpretation, that he did obeisance to the Lord, and he returned to the camp of Israel and said, “Get up, for the Lord has given the camp of Mediam in your hand.” 16 And he divided the three hundred men into three commands and put horns in the hands of all of them and empty jars and torches in the jars. 17 And he said to them, “You will see from me and do the same. And see, I am entering in the command of the camp, and it will be that as I do, so you shall do. 18 And I shall sound with the horn for my part, and all you with me shall sound with your horns around the entire camp and say, ‘For the Lord and for Gedeon!’ ”

19 And Gedeon and the hundred men with him entered in the command of the camp at the beginning of the middle watch, and rousing they roused the guards, and they sounded with the horns and shook out the jars that were in their hands. 20 And the three commands sounded with the horns and broke the jars and grasped the torches in their left hand, and in their right hands the horns to sound, and they cried, “A sword for the Lord and for Gedeon!” 21 And they stood, a man for himself, all around the camp, and all the camp ran, and they gave signals and fled. 22 And they sounded with the three hundred horns, and the Lord set a man’s sword against his fellow throughout all the camp, and the camp fled as far as Bethseeda Garagatha, as far as the edge of Abomeoula by Tabath. 23 And they sounded the cry, a man of Israel, from Nephthalim and from Aser and from all Manasses, and they pursued after Mediam.
And a man of Ephraim said to him, "Why have you done this thing to us, not to call us when you were setting out to fight against Madiam?" And they disputed with him forcefully. 2And he said to them, "What have I done now as you have? Are not the gleanings of the grapes of Ephraim better things than the vintage of Abiezer? 3God has given up in your hand the commanders of Madiam, Oreb and Zeb, and what have I been able to do as you have?" And they desisted. Then their spirit abated because of him, when he spoke this word.

4 And Gedeon came to the Jordan and crossed over, he and the three hundred men with him, faint and famished. 5And he said to the men of Sokchoth, "Do give some loaves to the people who are with me, for they are famished, but as for me, I am pursuing after Zebee and Salmana, kings of Madiam." 6And the rulers of Sokchoth said, "Do you already have in your hand a hand of Zebee and Salmana, that we shall give loaves to your army?" 7And Gedeon said, "Not so! When the Lord has given Zebee and Salmana in my hand, I will also cut your flesh to pieces with the thorns of the wilderness and with the barkonnins." 8And from there he went up to Phanouel and spoke to them in a similar way, and the men of Phanouel answered him as the men of Sokchoth had answered him. 9And he said to the men of Phanouel, saying, "When I come back in peace, I will break down this tower."

10 And Zebee and Salmana were in Karkar, and their camp was with them, about fifteen thousand, those who were left among all the camp of the sons of the east, and those who had fallen were one hundred and twenty thousand men who had drawn a sword. 11And Gedeon went up by the route of those who dwell in tents, east of Nabeth, opposite Zebee, and struck the camp, but the camp was confident. 12And Zebee and Salmana fled, and he took up the pursuit after them and seized the two kings of Madiam, Zebee and Salmana, and destroyed all their camp.

13 And Gedeon son of Ioas returned from the war, from the ascent of Hares. 14And they caught a lad, one of the men of Sokchoth, and he questioned him, and he noted down for them the beat of the wineskins. 15And he sent messengers throughout all the hill country of Ephraim, saying, "Come down to meet Madiam, and seize the water for yourselves as far as Baithbera and the Jordan." And every man of Ephraim sounded the cry, and they quickly seized the water as far as Baithbera and the Jordan. 24And they brought the head of Oreb and Zeb to Gedeon, from beyond the Jordan.

8 And they said to Gedeon, a man of Ephraim, "Why have you done this thing to us, not to call us when you set out to deploy against Madiam?" And they argued strongly with him. 2And he said to them, "What have I done now as you have? Or is not the gleaning of the grapes of Ephraim a better thing than the vintage of Abiezer? 3God has given up in your hand the commanders of Madiam, Oreb and Zeb, and what have I been able to do as you have?" Then their spirit abated because of him, when he spoke this word.

4 And Gedeon came to the Jordan and crossed over, he and the three hundred men who were with him, famished and pursuing. 5And he said to the men of Sokchoth, "Do give some loaves as food for this people which is at my feet, for they are fainting, and see, as for me, I am pursuing after Zebee and Selmana, kings of Madiam." 6And the rulers of Sokchoth said, "Do you already have in your hand a hand of Zebee and Selmana? We will not give loaves to your force." 7And Gedeon said, "Therefore, when the Lord has given Zebee and Selmana in my hand, then I for my part will thresh your flesh with the thorns of the wilderness and with the barkonnins." 8And from there he went up to Phanouel and spoke to them likewise, and the men of Phanouel answered him as the men of Sokchoth had answered. 9And Gedeon said to the men of Phanouel, "On my return in peace, I will break down this tower."

10 And Zebee and Selmana were in Karkar, and their camp was with them, about fifteen thousand, those who were left out of all the army of foreigners, and those who had fallen were one hundred and twenty thousand men drawing a sword. 11And Gedeon went up by the route of those who camp in tents, to the east of Nabai and Iegebal, and struck the camp, and the camp was in panic. 12And Zebee and Selmana fled, and he took up the pursuit after them and seized the two kings of Madiam, Zebee and Salmana, and threw all the army into panic.

13 And Gedeon son of Ioas returned from the battle, from above the battle of Hares. 14And he caught a lad, one of the men of Sokchoth, and he questioned him, and he wrote for him the rulers of Sokchoth and its elders, seventy-seven men. 15And Gedeon came to the rulers of Sokchoth and said to them, “See! Zebee and Selmana, on whose account you taunted me, saying, ‘Do you perhaps already have in your hand a hand of Zebee and Selmana, that we shall give loaves to your men who are exhausted?’” 16And he took the rulers and the elders of the city, and he cut them to pieces with the thorns of the wilderness and the barakenim, and he cut the men of Sokchoth to pieces with them. 17And he broke down the tower of Phanouel and killed the men of the city.

18 And he said to Zebee and Selmana, “Where are the men whom you killed at Thabor?” And they said, “As you are: one like you was like them, like the appearance, the form, of kings’ sons.” 19And Gedeon said, “They are my brothers and the sons of my mother.” And he swore to them: “The Lord lives: if you had brought them to life, I would not have killed you.” 20And he said to Iether his firstborn, “Get up, and kill them!” And the lad did not draw his dagger, for he was afraid, because he was still too young. 21And Zebee and Selmana said, “You then get up and face us, for like a man is his power.” And Gedeon got up and killed Zebee and Selmana, and he took the crescents that were on the necks of their camels.

22 And a man of Israel said to Gedeon, “Rule among us, you and your sons, for you have delivered us out of the hand of Madiam.” 23And Gedeon said to them, “I will not rule over you, and my son will not rule over you; the Lord will rule over you.” 24And Gedeon said to them, “I will request a request of you, and you, ba man, give me an earring from your booty.” (For they had many golden earrings, because they were Ismaelites.) 25And they said, “Giving we will give them.” And he spread his garment, and ba man cast there a golden earring of his booty. 26And the weight of the golden earrings that he requested was one thousand seven hundred shekels of gold (apart from the earring that he requested was one thousand five hundred pieces with the thorns of the wilderness and the barakenim, and he threshed the men of the city with them). 27And Gedeon made it into an ephod and put it in his city, Ephratha, and he took the crescents that were on the necks of their camels. 28And Madiam was humbled before the sons of Israel, and they did not add to lift up their head. And the land had rest forty years in the days of Gedeon.

29 And Jerobaal son of Ioas went and lived in his own house. 30And Gedeon had seventy sons who came from his thighs, for he had many wives. 31And his concubine who was in Sikima, she indeed also bore him a son, and he named his name Abimelech. 32And Gedeon son of Ioas died with a request of you, and you, ba man, give me an earring from your booty.” (For they had golden earrings, because they were Ismaelites.) 25And they said, “Giving we will give them.” And he spread his garment, and ba man cast there a golden earring of his booty. 26And the weight of the golden earrings that he requested was one thousand seven hundred shekels of gold (apart from the crescents that were on the necks of their camels). 27And Gedeon made it into an ephod and put it in his city, Ephratha, and he took the crescents that were on the necks of their camels. 28And Madiam was humbled before the sons of Israel, and they did not add to lift up their head. And the land had rest forty years in the days of Gedeon.

29 And Jerobaal son of Ioas went and lived in his own house. 30And Gedeon had seventy sons who came from his thighs, for he had many wives. 31And his concubine who was in Sikima, she indeed also bore him a son, and he named his name Abimelech. 32And Gedeon son of Ioas died with a request of you, and you, ba man, give me an earring from your booty.” (For they had golden earrings, because they were Ismaelites.) 25And they said, “Giving we will give them.” And he spread his garment, and ba man cast there a golden earring of his booty. 26And the weight of the golden earrings that he requested was one thousand seven hundred shekels of gold (apart from the crescents that were on the necks of their camels). 27And Gedeon made it into an ephod and put it in his city, Ephratha, and all Israel prostituted themselves after it there, and it became for an obstacle to Gedeon and to his house. 28And Madiam was humbled before the sons of Israel, and they did not add to lift up their head. And the land had rest forty years in the days of Gedeon.

29 And Jerobaal son of Ioas went and sat in his own house. 30And Gedeon had seventy sons who had come from his thighs, for he had many wives. 31And his concubine was in Sychem, she indeed also bore him a son, and he called his name Abimelech. 32And Gedeon son of Ioas died with a good head of grey hair and was buried in the tomb of his father Ioas at Ephratha, of Abiezri’s father.

Zebee and Selmana, by means of whom you taunted me, saying, ‘Do you perhaps already have in your hand a hand of Zebee and Selmana, that we shall give loaves to your men who are exhausted?’” 16And he took the elders of the city among the thorns of the wilderness and the barakenim, and he threshed the men of the city with them. 17And he toppled the tower of Phanouel and killed the men of the city.

18 And he said to Zebee and Selmana, “Where are the men whom you killed at Thabor?” And they said, “As you are, so were they, for a likeness of a king’s son.” 19And Gedeon said, “They were my brothers and the sons of my mother. The Lord lives: if you had brought them to life, I would not have killed you.” 20And Iether said to his firstborn, “Get up, and kill them!” And the lad did not draw his sword, for he was afraid, because he was still too young. 21And Zebee and Selmana said, “You get up and face us, for your power is like a man’s.” And Gedeon got up and killed Zebee and Selmana, and he took the crescents that were on the necks of their camels.
Judges A

33 And it came about as Gedeon died that the sons of Israel turned aside and prostituted themselves after the Baalim and made for themselves Baal-Berith for a covenant that he should be for a god to them. 34 And the sons of Israel did not remember the Lord their God, who had rescued them from the hand of all their enemies on every side, and they did not do mercy with the house of Ierobaal Gedeon in return for all the goodness that he had done with Israel.

9 And Abimelech son of Ierobaal went to Sikima to his mother’s brothers and spoke to them and to the whole clan of his mother’s family, saying, 2 “Speak now in the hearing of the men of Sikima, ‘Which is better, that seventy men, all sons of Ierobaal, rule over you or that one man be lord over you?’ And remember that I am your flesh and your bone.” 3 And his mother’s brothers spoke all these words about him in the hearing of all the men of Sikima, and their heart inclined after Abimelech, for they said, “He is our brother.” 4 And they gave him seventy pieces of silver out of the house of Baal-Berith, and Abimelech hired himself vain and cowardly fellows, and they walked after him. 5 And he entered his father’s house at Ephratha and killed his brothers, sons of Ierobaal, seventy men, on one stone, and Ioatham, the youngest son of Ierobaal, was left, for he hid. 6 And all the men of Sikima and all the house of Maallon came together, and they went and made Abimelech king by the acorn-tree at Sikima.

7 And it was told to Ioatham, and he went and stood on the top of Mount Garizin and raised his voice and wept and said to them, “Listen to me, you men of Sikima, and God will listen to you. 8 Going out, the trees went out to anoint a king for themselves. And they said to the olive tree, ‘Reign over us.’ And the olive tree said to them, ‘Am I to neglect my fattiness, which God and men extol in me, and go to rule the trees?’ 9 And the trees said to the fig tree, ‘Come, reign over us.’ And the fig tree said to them, ‘Am I to neglect my sweetness and my good produce and go to rule the trees?’ 10 And the trees said to the vine, ‘Come, reign over us.’ 11 And the vine said to them, ‘Am I to neglect my wine, the good cheer of men which comes from God, and go to rule the trees?’ 12 And the trees said to the bramble, ‘Or sedition’

33 And it came about even as Gedeon died that the sons of Israel turned around and prostituted themselves after the Baalim, and they made a covenant for themselves with Baal that he should be for a god to them. 34 And the sons of Israel did not remember the Lord God, who had rescued them from the hand of all who oppressed them on every side, and they did not do mercy with the house of Ierobaal (he is Gedeon) in return for all the good deeds that he had done with Israel.

9 And Abimelech son of Ierobaal went to Sichem to his mother’s brothers and spoke to them and to every clan of his mother’s father’s family, saying 2 “Speak now in the hearing of all the men of Sichem, ‘What is good for you, that seventy men, all sons of Ierobaal, be lord over you or that one man be lord over you?’ And remember that I am your bone and your flesh.” 3 And his mother’s brothers spoke all these words about him in the hearing of all the men of Sichem, and their heart inclined after Abimelech, for they said, “He is our brother.” 4 And they gave him seventy pieces of silver out of the house of Baal-Berith, and Abimelech hired himself vain and cowardly fellows, and they walked after him. 5 And he entered his father’s house at Ephratha and killed his brothers, sons of Ierobaal, seventy men, on one stone, and Ioatham, the youngest son of Ierobaal, was left, for he hid. 6 And all the men of Sichem and every household of Bethmaalon came together, and they went and made Abimelech king by the acorn-tree of placing at Sichem.

7 And it was told to Ioatham, and he went and stood on the top of Mount Garizin and raised his voice and wept and said to them, “Listen to me, you men of Sichem, and God will listen to you. 8 Going out, the trees went out to anoint a king over themselves. And they said to the olive tree, ‘Reign over us.’ And the olive tree said to them, ‘Shall I abandon my fattiness by which men extol God and go to sway over the trees?’ 9 And the olive tree said to the fig tree, ‘Shall I abandon my sweetness and my good produce and go to sway over the trees?’ 10 And the fig tree said to the vine, ‘You come; reign over us.’ 11 And the vine said to them, ‘Shall I abandon my wine, that cheers God and men, and go to sway over the trees?’ 12 And the trees said to the vine, ‘You come; reign over us.’ 13 And the vine said to them, ‘Shall I abandon my wine, that cheers God and men, and go to sway over the trees?’ 14 And all the trees said to the bramble, 14 Gk uncertain
'You come; reign over us.'

And the bramble said to the trees, 'If in good faith you are anointing me for king over you, come, and trust in my protection, and if not, may fire come out of the bramble and devour the cedars of Lebanon.'

16 "Now then, if you acted in good faith and in perfection and made Abimelech king and if you dealt well with Ierobaal and with his house and if you have done to him according to the recompense of his hand—17 seeing that my father fought for you and cast his life in opposition and rescued you from the hand of Madiam, 18 and you have risen up against my father's house today and have killed his sons, seventy men on one stone, and have made Abimelech, the son of his slave woman, king over the men of Sikima, because he is your brother—19 and if you acted in good faith and perfection with Ierobaal and his house this day, may you be blessed today and may you rejoice in Abimelech and may he also rejoice in you, 20 and if not, may fire come out from Abimelech and devour the men of Sikima and the house of Maallon, and if not, may fire come from the men of Sikima and out of the house of Maallon and devour Abimelech." 21 And Ioatham ran away and went on a journey and fled to Rara and lived there from before his brother Abimelech.

22 And Abimelech ruled over Israel three years. 23 And God sent an evil spirit between Abimelech and the men of Sikima, and the men of Sikima dealt treacherously in the house of Abimelech, 24 that they might bring up the injustice against the seventy sons of Ierobaal, to lay their blood upon their brother Abimelech, who killed them, and upon the men of Sikima, who strengthened his hands so that he killed his brothers. 25 And the men of Sikima set ambushes against him on the mountaintops, and they would kidnap all who passed by them along that way, and it was reported to Abimelech.

26 And Gaal son of Abed and his brothers came into Sikima, and the men of Sikima had put confidence in him. 27 And they went into the field and gathered grapes from their vineyards and were treading them and did dances. And they went into the house of their god and ate and drank and were cursing Abimelech. 28 And Gaal son of Abed said, 'What is Abimelech, and who is the son of Sychem, that we shall be subject to him? Is he not a son of Ierobaal? And Zeboul his supervisor is his slave along with the men of Hemmor father of Sychem. And why is it that we shall serve him? 29 And who would give this people in my hand? And I will remove Abimelech, and I will say to Abimelech, 'Multiply your force, and come out.' "

30 And Zeboul the ruler of the city heard the words of Gaal son of Iobel, and he himself was furiously angry. 31 And he sent messengers to Abimelech in secret, saying, "Look, Gaal son of Iobel and his brothers are coming into Sychem, and see, they themselves are laying siege to the city against you. 32 Now then, get up by night, you and the people that are with you, and lie in wait in the fields. 33 And it will happen early, as the sun rises, that you will rise early and reach out against the city, and see, he himself and the people that are with him will come out against you, and you will deal with him just as your hand devises."

34 And Abimelech got up—and all the people with him were with him—by night, and they stationed themselves in ambush against Sychem, in four commands. 35 And Gaal son of Iobel went out and stood at the entrance of the gate of the city, and Abimelech and the people with him rose from their ambushes. 36 And Gaal son of Iobel saw them and said to Zeboul, "Look, people coming down from the mountain tops!" And Zeboul said to him, "You are seeing the shadows on the mountains as men." 37 And Gaal added still to speak, and he said, "Look, people coming down towards the sea from the area near the navel of the land, and one command is coming from the direction of Watchers' Oak." 38 And Zeboul said to him, "Where is your mouth now, which said, 'Who is Abimelech, that we shall be subject to him?' Look, are these not the people you made light of? Go out now and fight with them." 39 And Gaal went out from before the men of Sychem and deployed against Abimelech. 40 And Abimelech chased him, and he fled from before him, and many fell wounded, up to the entrance of the city. 41 And Abimelech resided at Arima, and Zeboul drove out Gaal and his brothers so that they could not live on at Sychem.

42 And it came about on the following day that the people went out into the plain, and it was reported to Abimelech. 43 And he took along the people and divided them into three commands and lay in wait in it. And he looked, and see, people came out of the city, and he rose against them and struck them down. 44 And Abimelech and the commands that were with him spread out and stood at the gate of the city, and the two commands rushed out at all who were in the fields and struck them down. 45 And Abimelech was fighting against the city all that day, and they took the city, and he killed the people that were in it, and he razed the city and sowed it with salt.

46 And all the men of the Tower of Sychem heard of it, and they entered the stronghold of the house of Baal-of-Covenant. 47 And Abimelech was told that all the men of the Tower of Sychem were gathered together. 48 And Abimelech went up to Mount Selmon, he and all the people that were with him. And Abimelech took an axe in his hand and cut down a bundle of brushwood and took it up and laid it on up and laid it on his shoulders. And he said to the people with him, "What have you seen me doing? Do quickly just as I have done." 49 And every one of them also cut down a bundle, took it up and followed after Abimelech, and they put it against the stronghold, and they burned the stronghold over them with fire, and all the men of the Tower of Sikima died, about a thousand men and women.

50 And Abimelech went to Thebes, and laid siege against it and quickly seized it. 51 And there was a strong tower in the middle of the city, and all the men and women and all the leaders of the city fled there and shut it on themselves, and they went up to the top of the tower. 52 And Abimelech came up to the tower, and they fought him, and Abimelech, came near to the door of the tower, to burn it with fire. 53 And one woman threw a piece of a millstone on Abimelech's head and crushed his skull. 54 And immediately he called out to the young servant, the one who carried his equipment, and said to him, "Draw your dagger, and kill me, so they will not say, 'A woman killed him.' " And his young servant thrust him through, and Abimelech died. 55 And a man of Israel saw that Abimelech had died, and they departed, a man to his place. 56 And God turned away the evil of Abimelech, which he committed against his father in killing his seventy brothers, 57 and God returned all the evil of the men of Sikima on their head, and on them came the curse of Ioatham the son of Jerobaal.

10 And after Abimelech, Thola son of Phoua, son of his father's brother, a man of Issachar, rose to deliver Israel, and he himself lived at Samaria in the hill country of Ephraim. 2 And he judged Israel twenty-three years. And he died and was buried at Samaria.

3 And after him arose Iair the Galaadite, and he judged Israel twenty-two years. 4 And there were born to him thirty-two sons who rode on thirty-two colts, and they had thirty-two cities, and he called them Iair's Hamlets until this day, which are in the land of Galaad. 5 And Iair died and was buried in Ramnoo.

6 And the sons of Israel added to do what was evil before the Lord and served the she-Baalim and the Astaroth and the gods of Sidon and the gods of Moab and the gods of the sons of Ammon and the gods of the allophyles. And they abandoned the Lord and were not subject to him. 7 And the Lord was furiously angry with Israel, and he gave them up in the hand of the sons of Ammon, 8 and they undermined and crushed the sons of Israel in that year for eighteen years, all the sons of Israel beyond the Jordan in the land of the Amorrite in Galaaditis. 9 And the sons of Ammon crossed the Jordan, to wage war both against Judas and Benjamin and against the house of Ephraim, and the sons of Israel were greatly distressed.

And he said to the people with him, "What have you seen me doing do quickly as I have done." 49 And they—and indeed a man—also cut down every man a branch and followed after Abimelech, and they put it against the assembly-place, and they set the assembly-place alight over them with fire, and indeed all the men of the Tower of Sikima died, about a thousand men and women.

50 And Abimelech went from Baithel-Berith, and encamped against Thebes and took it. 51 And there was a strong tower in the middle of the city, and all the men and women of the city fled there and shut it around them, and they went up to the top of the tower. 52 And Abimelech came up to the tower, and they engaged in battle with him, and Abimelech came near to the door of the tower, to burn it with fire. 53 And one woman threw a piece of an upper millstone on Abimelech's head and cracked his skull. 54 And quickly he called out to the young servant who carried his equipment and said to him, "Draw my sword, and kill me, so they will not say, 'A woman killed him.' " And his young servant thrust him through, and he died. 55 And a man of Israel saw that Abimelech had died, and they went, a man to his place. 56 And God returned the wickedness of Abimelech, which he committed against his father in killing his seventy brothers, 57 and God returned all the wickedness of the men of Sychem on their head, and on them came the curse of Ioatham son of Jerobaal.

10 And after Abimelech, Thola son of Phoua, son of his father's brother, a man of Issachar, rose to deliver Israel, and he himself dwelt at Samir in the hill country of Ephraim. 2 And he judged Israel twenty-three years. And he died and was buried at Samir.

3 And after him arose Iair the Galaadite, and he judged Israel twenty-two years. 4 And he had thirty-two sons riding on thirty-two colts, and they had thirty-two cities, and they would call them Iair's Hamlets until this day, which are in the land of Galaad. 5 And Iair died and was buried in Ramnoo.

6 And the sons of Israel added to do what was evil before the Lord and were subject to the Baalim and the Astaroth and the gods of Arad and the gods of Sidon and the gods of Moab and the gods of the sons of Ammon and the gods of Phylistim. And they abandoned the Lord and were not subject to him. 7 And the Lord was furiously angry with Israel, and he gave them up in the hand of Phylistim and in the hand of the sons of Ammon, 8 and they oppressed and crushed the sons of Israel at that time for eighteen years, all the sons of Israel who were beyond the Jordan in the land of the Amorri, who is in Galaad. 9 And the sons of Ammon crossed the Jordan, to deploy against Judas and Benjamin and against Ephraim, and Israel was greatly distressed.

And the sons of Israel cried to the Lord, saying, "We have sinned against you, because we have abandoned our God and have served the she-Baalim." 11And the Lord said to the sons of Israel, "Did not the Egyptians and the Amorites and the sons of Ammon and Moab and the allophyles 12and Sidonians and Madiam and Amalek oppress you? And you cried to me, and I delivered you out of their hand. 13And you have abandoned me and served other gods; therefore I will not add to deliver you. 14Go away, and cry aloud to the gods whom you have chosen for yourselves, and let them deliver you in the time of your distress." 15And the sons of Israel said to the Lord, "We have sinned; do to us according to everything that is pleasing before you; only, Lord, deliver us in this day!" 16And they put away the foreign gods from their midst and served the Lord, and he was not well pleased with the people, and he was worried about the suffering of Israel.

And the sons of Ammon went up and encamped in Galaad, and the sons of Israel went out and encamped at Massepha. 18And the rulers of the people of Galaad said, a man to his fellow, "What man is it who will begin to fight against the sons of Ammon? He will also be for a head to all the inhabitants of Galaad."

And Iephthae the Galaadite was powerful in strength, and he himself was a son of a woman who was a prostitute, and she bore lepthae to Galaad. 2And Galaad’s wife bore him sons, and his wife’s sons came to maturity and drove lepthae away and said to him, “You shall not inherit anything in our father’s house, for you are the son of woman who is a courtesan.” 3And lepthae fled from before his brothers and lived in the land of Tob. And petty men were coming together to lepthae and would go out together with him.

And it happened after days that the sons of Ammon made war with Israel. 5And it happened, when the sons of Ammon were making war with Israel, that the elders of Galaad went to take along lepthae in the land of Tob. 6And they said to lepthae, “Come, and you will be for a leader to us, and let us fight against the sons of Ammon.” 7And lepthae said to the elders of Galaad, “Was it not you that hated me and drove me out of my father’s house, and sent me away from you? And why is it that you came to me when you were in trouble?” 8And the elders of Galaad said to lepthae, “It is not like that! We have come to you now, and you will go with us, and we will fight against the sons of Ammon, and you will be for a head to us, to all the inhabitants of Galaad.” 9And lepthae said to the elders of Galaad, “If you are returning me to fight against the sons of Ammon, then let the Lord give them over before me. I will be for a head to you.” 10And the elders of Galaad said to lepthae, “The Lord will be the one who hears between us, if we do not do so, according to your word.” 11And lepthae went with the elders of

And the sons of Israel called out to the Lord, saying, "We have sinned against you, because we have abandoned God and were subject to Baalim." 11And the Lord said to the sons of Israel, "Was it not out of Egypt and from the Amorrite and from the sons of Ammon and from Phylisitiim 12and Sidonians and Amalek and Madiam who oppressed you, and you called out to me, and I delivered you out of their hand? 13And you have abandoned me and were subject to other gods; therefore I will not add to deliver you. 14Go, and call out to the gods whom you have chosen for yourselves, and let them deliver you in the time of your distress." 15And the sons of Israel said to the Lord, "We have sinned; do to us according to everything that is good in your sight; only, deliver us in this day!" 16And they shunned the foreign gods from their midst and were subject to the Lord only, and his soul was constricted over the suffering of Israel.

And the sons of Ammon went up and encamped in Galaad, and the sons of Israel gathered and encamped at a the vantage point. 18And the people, the rulers of Galaad, said, a man to his fellow, "Who is the man who might begin to deploy against the sons of Ammon? He will also be for a ruler to all the inhabitants of Galaad."

And Iephthae the Galaadite was exalted in power, and he himself was the son of a woman who was a prostitute, who bore lepthae to Galaad. 2And Galaad’s wife bore him sons, and his wife’s sons came to maturity and drove lepthae away and said to him, “You shall not inherit anything in our father’s house, for you are the son of woman who is a courtesan.” 3And lepthae fled from before his brothers and lived in the land of Tob. And worthless men gathered around lepthae and set out with him.

And it happened, when the sons of Ammon mustered with Israel, that the elders of Galaad went to take lepthae from the land of Tob. 6And they said to lepthae, “Come, and you will be for a chief to us, and let us deploy against the sons of Ammon.” 7And lepthae said to the elders of Galaad, “Was it not you that hated me and drove me out of my father’s house and sent me away from you? And for what reason did you come to me now when you are in need?” 8And the elders of Galaad said to lepthae, “It is for this reason that we have now turned to you, and you will go with us and deploy against the sons of Ammon, and you will be for a ruler to us, to all the inhabitants of Galaad.” 9And lepthae said to the elders of Galaad, “If you are returning me to deploy against the sons of Ammon, then let the Lord give them over before me, and I will be for a ruler to you.” 10And the elders of Galaad said to lepthae, “Let the Lord be hearing between us, if we do not do so, according to your word.” 11And lepthae went with the

And lepthae sent messengers to the king of the sons of Ammon, saying, “What is there between you and me that you have come against me to fight me in my land?” 13 And the king of the sons of Ammon said to the messengers of lepthae, “Because Israel took away my land in their journey up out of Egypt, from Arnon up to Iabok and up to the Jordan, and now restore them in peace.” 14 And the messengers returned to lepthae, and lepthae sent messengers to the king of the sons of Ammon, 15 saying: “This is what lepthae says: Israel did not take away the land of Moab or the land of the sons of Ammon 16 in their journey up out of Egypt; rather, Israel went in the wilderness to the Red Sea and came to Kades. 17 And Israel sent out messengers to the king of Edom, saying, ‘I will pass through your land,’ and the king of Edom did not listen. And indeed he sent to the king of Moab, but he did not consent. And Israel resided at Kades. 18 And he journeyed through in the wilderness and went around the land of Edom and the land of Moab and arrived at sunrise of the land of Moab, and they camped on the other side of Arnon. And they did not enter the territory of Moab, for Arnon was the boundary of Moab. 19 And Israel sent messengers to Seon, king of Hesebon, the Amorrite, and Israel said to him, ‘I will pass through your land to my place.’ 20 And Seon did not want Israel to cross his boundaries, and Seon gathered all his people together and encamped at Iassa and fought with Israel. 21 And the Lord, the God of Israel, gave Seon and all his people in the hand of Israel, and he struck them down, and Israel inherited all the land of the Amorrite who inhabited the land. 22 And he inherited all the territory of the Amorrite from Arnon and up to the Iabok and from the wilderness and up to the Jordan. 23 And now the Lord, the God of Israel, has removed the Amorrite from before his people Israel. And shall you inherit them for yourself? 24 Should it not be that whatever your god Chamos has assigned you as an inheritance, that you will inherit? And everything that the Lord our God has assigned as an inheritance from before us, that we will inherit. 25 And now, are you any better than Balak son of Sepphor, king of Moab? Did he fight in a battle with Israel, or going to war, did he go to war with them? 26 In the house of Israel in Hesebon and in its daughters and in Iazer and in its daughters and in all the cities that are along the Jordan, for three hundred years, why is it they did not recover them within that time? 27 And as for me, I have not sinned against you, and you are the one who does evil against me, to make war against me. May the Lord, who is judging, judge today between the sons of Israel and between the sons of Ammon.” 28 And the king of the sons of Ammon elders of Galaad, and the people appointed him over them for a head, for a leader, and lepthae spoke all his words before the Lord at Massepha. 12 And lepthae sent messengers to the king of the sons of Ammon, saying, “What is there between you and me that you came against me to deploy in my land?” 13 And the king of the sons of Ammon said to the messengers of lepthae, “Because Israel took away my land when they came up out of Egypt, from Arnon and up to Iabok and up to the Jordan, and now restore them in peace, and I will go.” 14 And lepthae still added and sent messengers to the king of the sons of Ammon and said to him; “Thus says lepthae: Israel did not take away the land of Moab or the land of the sons of Ammon, 16 for when they came up out of Egypt Israel went in the wilderness to the Sea of Siph and came to Kades. 17 And Israel sent messengers to the king of Edom, saying, ‘I will indeed pass through in your land.’ And the king of Edom did not listen. And he sent to the king of Moab, and he did not consent. And Israel resided at Kades. 18 And he journeyed in the wilderness and went around the land of Edom and the land of Moab, and he came from sunrise to a the land of Moab, and they camped on the other side of Arnon. And shall you inherit them? 24 Should it not be that whatever your god Chamos will let you inherit, that you will inherit? And all those that the Lord our God has removed from before us, them we will inherit. 25 And now, are you in any good thing better, beyond Balak son of Sepphor, king of Moab? Did he, fighting, fight with Israel, or going to war, did he go to war with him 26 while he dwelt in Hesebon and in its territories and in the land of Aroer and in its territories and in all the cities that are along the Jordan, for three hundred years, and why did you not recover them within that time? 27 And now it is me. 12 And the sons of Ephraim gathered together, and they came to Sephina and said to Lephthae, "Why is it that you went to fight against the sons of Ammon and did not call us to go with you? We will burn your house with fire!" 2And Lephthae said to them, "I was a man facing opponents, I and my people, and the sons of Ammon were humiliating me greatly. And I called out to you, and you did not deliver me from their hand. 3And I saw that there was none to deliver, and I took my life in my hand and crossed over against the sons of Ammon, and did not pay heed, and he did not pay heed to the words of Lephthae that he sent him.

29 And a spirit of the Lord came upon Lephthae, and he passed through the land of Galaad and Manasses. And he passed through the vantage point of Galaad, and from the vantage point of Galaad to the other side of the sons of Ammon. 30And Lephthae vowed a vow to the Lord and said, "If with a giving over, you will give me over to the sons of Ammon in my hand, 31it shall also be that whoever comes out of the doors of my house to meet me, when I return in peace from the sons of Ammon, shall also be the Lord’s, and I will offer him up as a whole burnt offering." 32And Lephthae crossed over to the sons of Ammon to fight against them, and the Lord gave them up in his hand. 33And he struck them down from Aroer and until one comes to Semoith, twenty cities, as far as Abel-of-the-vineyards, a very great blow. And the sons of Ammon were humbled from before the sons of Israel.

34 And Lephthae came to Massepha, to his home, and see, his daughter was coming out to meet him with timbrels and with dancing. And she was his beloved only child, and he had no son or daughter except her. 35And it came about, when he saw her that he tore his clothes and said, "Alas, my daughter! You have got in my way; you have become for a thorn in my eyes. But I opened my mouth about you to the Lord, and I cannot turn away." 36And she said to him, "My father, if against me you have opened your mouth to the Lord, do to me as it came out of your mouth, now that the Lord has exacted vengeance for you from your enemies, from the sons of Ammon." 37And she said to her father, "Also, do this word for me: Grant me two months, and I will go and descend on the mountains and bewail my virginity, both I and my companions." 38And he said, "Go," and sent her away for two months. And she went, she and her companions, and she bewailed her virginity on the mountains. 39And it came about after the end of two months that she returned to her father, and Lephthae fulfilled his vow that he had vowed. And she had never known a man. And it became for an ordinance in Israel: from days to days the daughters of Israel would go together to lament the daughter of Lephthae the Galaadite, four days in the year.

12 And a man of Ephraim called out, and they passed by to the north and said to Lephthae, "Why did you pass by to deploy against the sons of Ammon and did not call us to go with you? We will burn your house with fire!" 2And Lephthae said to them, "I was a fighting man, I and my people, and the sons of Ammon were humiliating me greatly. And I called you to, and you did not deliver me from their hand. 3And I saw that there was none to deliver, and I took my life in my hand and crossed over against the sons of Ammon, and did not listen to the words of Lephthae that he sent him.

And the sons of Ammon were put to shame from before the sons of Israel.

34 And Lephthae came to Massepha, to his home, and see, his daughter was coming out to meet him with timbrels and with dancing. And she was an only child; he had no other son or daughter. 35And it came about, as he himself saw her that he tore his clothes and said, "Ah ah, my daughter! With confusion you have confused me, and it is you who were in my confusion. And it is me. Against you I opened my mouth to the Lord, and I cannot turn back." 36But she said to him, "Father, you have opened your mouth to the Lord; do to me as it came out of your mouth when the Lord exacted vengeance for you from your enemies, from the sons of Ammon." 37And she it was who said to her father, "Let my father indeed do this matter: Grant me two months, and I will go and descend on the mountains and bewail my virginity. It is me and my companions." 38And he said, "Go," and sent her away for two months. And she went, she and her companions, and she bewailed her virginity on the mountains. 39And it came about at the end of the two months that she returned to her father, and he carried out against her his vow that he had vowed. And she had never known a man. And it became for an ordinance in Israel: from days to days the daughters of Israel would go to lament the daughter of Lephthae of Galaad, for four days in the year.

the Lord gave them up in my hand. And why have you come up to me this day, to fight against me?"
4 And Iephthae gathered all the men of Galaad and began to fight Ephraim, and the men of Galaad struck down Ephraim, because they said, "You are the fugitives from Ephraim, O Galaad in the midst of Ephraim and in the midst of Manasses!" 5 And the men of Galaad quickly seized the fords of the Jordan of Ephraim. And it came about that the fugitives of Ephraim said, "Let us pass over," and the men of Galaad said to them, "Are you not from Ephraim?" And they said, "We are not." 6 And they said to them, "Then say: ‘Password,’ and they did not keep straight so as to say it like that. And they seized them and slew them at the fords of the Jordan. And forty-two thousand out of Ephraim fell at that time.
7 And Iephthae judged Israel six years. And Iephthae the Galaadite died and was buried in his city, Galaad.
8 After him Esebon of Baithleem judged Israel.
9 And there were born to him thirty sons and thirty daughters, who were sent out outside, and he brought in thirty women from outside for his sons. And he judged Israel seven years. 10 And Esebon died and was buried at Bethlehem.
11 And after him Ailom the Zaboulonite judged Israel, and he judged Israel ten years. 12 And Ailom the Zaboulonite died at Ailim, and they buried him in the land of Zaboulon.
13 And after him Labdon son of Sellem the Phraathonite judged Israel. 14 And there were born to him forty sons and thirty sons of his sons, mounted on seventy colts, and he judged Israel eight years. 15 And Labdon son of Sellem the Phraathonite died and was buried at Phraathon in the land of Ephraim, in the hill country of Amalek.

13 And the sons of Israel added to do what was evil against the Lord, and the Lord gave them up in the hand of allopthis forty years.
2 And there was a man of Saraa, of the tribe of Dan, and his name was Manoe. And his wife was barren and was not bearing. 3 And an angel of the Lord appeared to the woman and said to her, "See now! You are barren and have not borne. And you shall become pregnant and bear a son. 4 And now, be careful, and do not drink wine and sikera, and do not eat anything unclean, 5 for see, you shall become pregnant and bear a son. And iron shall not come upon his head, for the boy shall be sanctified, a nazirite to God from the womb. And he it is who shall begin to deliver Israel from the hand of allopthis." 6 And the woman came and said to her husband, saying, "A man of God came to me, and the seeing of him was like the seeing of an angel of God, most remarkable, and I asked where he came from, and he did not tell me his name. 7 And he said to me, ‘See, you shall become pregnant and bear a son. And now, drink no wine and sikera, and do not eat anything unclean, 8 for see, you are barren and have not borne. And you shall conceive a son. 9 So then do be careful, and do not drink wine and strong drink, and do not eat anything unclean, 9 for see, you are pregnant and shall bear a son. And iron shall not come upon his head, for the boy shall be a nazir of God from the womb. And he it is who shall begin to deliver Israel from the hand of Phylismiim." 10 And the woman went inside and said to her husband, saying, "A man of God came to me, and his appearance was like the appearance of an angel of God, most awe-inspiring, and I did not ask him where he came from, and he did not tell me his name. 11 And he said to me, ‘See, you are pregnant and shall bear a son. and eat no uncleanness, for the boy shall be a nazirite of God from the womb to the day of his death.”

8 And Manoe entreated the Lord and said, “By me, Lord, do let the man of God whom you sent to us come to us and enlighten us about what we are to do for the boy who is being born.” 9 And God heard Manoe’s voice, and the angel of God came again to the woman as she sat in the field, but her husband Manoe was not with her. 10 And the woman hurried and ran off and told her husband, “See, the man who came to me the other day has appeared to me.” 11 And Manoe got up and went after his wife towards the man and said to him, “Are you the man who spoke to this woman?” And the angel said, “I am.” 12 And Manoe said, “Now your word has come, what shall be the boy’s judgment, and what will his works be?” 13 And the angel of the Lord said to Manoe, “Let him keep away from all the things that I spoke to the woman about. 14 He shall not eat of anything that comes from the vine. And he is not to drink wine and sikera and he is not to eat any unclean thing. He is to observe everything that I commanded her.”

15 And Manoe said to the angel of the Lord, “Let us then constrain you, and we will prepare a kid of goats before you.” 16 And the angel of the Lord said to Manoe, “If you constrain me, I will not eat of your loaves, and if you make a whole burnt offering, you shall offer it to the Lord.” (For Manoe did not know that he was an angel of the Lord.) 17 And Manoe said to the angel of the Lord, “What is your name so that we may honor you when your word comes?” 18 And the angel of the Lord said to him, “Why do you ask this, my name? Even by itself it is amazing.” 19 And Manoe took the kid of goats and the sacrifice and offered it on the rock to the Lord, to the Lord who works wonders, and Manoe and his wife were looking on. 20 And it came about, when the flame went up above the altar toward the sky, that the angel of the Lord ascended in the flame, and Manoe and his wife were looking on, and they fell on their face to the ground. 21 And the angel of the Lord did not add still to appear to Manoe and to his wife. Then Manoe realized that it was an angel of the Lord. 22 And Manoe said to his wife, “We shall die by death, for we have seen a god.” 23 And his wife said to him, “If the Lord had desired to kill us, he would not have accepted a whole burnt offering and a sacrifice from our hands, and he would not have enlightened us about all these things, and he would not have made them audible to us.” 24 And the woman bore a son and called his name Sampson. 8 And Manoe prayed to the Lord and said, “By me, Lord Adonai, about the man of God whom you sent, do let him come to us again, and let him instruct us as to what we are to do for the boy who is being born.” 9 And God listened to Manoe’s voice, and the angel of God again came to the woman, and she was sitting in a field, and her husband Manoe was not with her. 10 And the woman hurried and ran and told her husband, “See, the man who came to me in a day has appeared to me.” 11 And Manoe got up and went after his wife and came to the man and said to him, “Are you the man who spoke to this woman?” And the angel said, “I am.” 12 And Manoe said, “Now your word will come: what is to be the boy’s decision, and what will his deeds be?” 13 And the angel of the Lord said to Manoe, “He will keep away from all the things that I have spoken to the woman about. 14 He shall not eat of anything that comes from the vine. And he is not to drink wine and sikera, strong drink, and he is not to eat any unclean thing. He shall observe everything that I commanded her.” 15 And Manoe said to the angel of the Lord, “Let us detain you here, and let us prepare a kid of goats before you.” 16 And the angel of the Lord said to Manoe, “If you detain me, I will not eat any of your loaves, and if you make a whole burnt offering, you shall offer it to the Lord.” (For Manoe did not know that he was a very angel of the Lord.) 17 And Manoe said to the angel of the Lord, “What is your name? For may your word come, and we will honor you.” 18 And the angel of the Lord said to him, “To what end do you ask this, my name? Even by itself it is amazing.” 19 And Manoe took the kid of goats and the sacrifice and offered it on the rock to the Lord. And he separated to act, and Manoe and his wife were watching. 20 And it came about, when the flame went up above the altar to the sky, that the angel of the Lord ascended in the flame of the altar, and Manoe and his wife were watching, and they fell on their face to the ground. 21 And the angel of the Lord did not add still to appear to Manoe and to his wife. Then Manoe realized that he was an angel of the Lord. 22 And Manoe said to his wife, “We shall die by death, for we saw a god.” 23 And his wife said to him, “If the Lord had wanted to kill us, he would not have taken a whole burnt offering and a sacrifice from our hand, and he would not have shown us all these things, and he would not have caused us to hear them when it was the right time.” 24 And the woman bore a son and called his name Sampson. And the boy came to maturity and the Lord blessed him. 25 And a spirit of the Lord

And Sampson went down to Thammatha, and at Thammatha he saw a woman of the daughters of the allophyles, and she was pleasing before him. 2 And he came up and told his father and his mother and said, "I have seen a woman at Thammatha of the daughters of the allophyles, and now, get her for me for a wife." 3 And his father and his mother said to him, "Is there not a woman of your brothers' daughters and among all my people, that you will go to take a wife from the uncircumcised allophyles?" And Sampson said to his father, "Get this one for me, because she was pleasing in my sight." 4 And his father and his mother did not know that it was from the Lord, for he himself was seeking requital from the allophyles. And at that time allophyles had dominion over the sons of Israel.

And Sampson went down, and his father and his mother, to Thammatha. And he turned aside into a vineyard of Thammatha, and see, a whelp of lions roaring to meet him. 6 And a spirit of the Lord made straight for him, and he tore it apart as he would crush a kid, and there was nothing in his hand. And he did not tell his father or mother what he had done. 7 And they went down and talked with the woman, and she was pleasing before Sampson. 8 And after days he returned to marry her, and he turned aside to see the carcass of the lion, and see, a swarm of bees in the mouth of the lion, and there was honey. 9 And he took it out into his mouth and went on, going and eating. And he came to his father and to his mother, and he gave to them, and they ate. And he did not tell them that he had taken the honey from the condition of the lion.

And his father went down to the woman, and Sampson held a drinking party there for seven days, because the young men would do thus. 11 And it came about, when they were afraid of him, that they appointed thirty companions for him, and they were with him. 12 And Sampson said to them, "I will set you a problem, and if you tell me the problem within the seven days of the drinking party, I will give you thirty linen garments and thirty robes. 13 And if you cannot tell me, you shall also give me thirty linen garments and thirty robes used as outer garments." And they said to him, "Set your problem, and we will hear it." 14 And he said to them, "Out of the eater came forth food, and out of a strong one came forth something sweet." And for three days they could not tell the problem.

And it came about in the fourth day that they said to Sampson's wife, "Do deceive your husband, and let him tell you the problem, or we will burn you and your father's house with fire. Did you not hate your father's house and come to me?" 15 And it came about in the fourth day that they said to Sampson's wife, "Do deceive your husband, and let him tell you the problem, or we will burn you and your father's house with fire. And they said to them, "To what end have you come up against us?" And the allophyles said, "We have come up to bind Sampson and to

to him as he did to us.” 11 And three thousand men of Loudas went down into a hole in the rock of Etam, and they said to Sampson, “Do you not know that the allophyles are ruling over us? And why have you done these things to us?” And Sampson said to them, “As they did to us, so I have done to them.” 12 And they said to him, “We have come down to bind you and to give you into the hands of the allophyles.” And Sampson said to them, “Swear to me not to kill me yourselves and give me up to them, lest you yourselves come against me.” 13 And they swore to him, saying, “No, but we will bind you with a binding and give you into their hands, but we will not put you to death by death.” And they bound him with two new cords and led him up from the rock.

14 And he came by himself as far as Jawbone, and the allophyles shouted in triumph to meet him and ran to meet up with him, and a spirit of the Lord leapt upon him, and the cords that were on his arms became like flax when it smells fire, and the bonds were loosed from his arms. 15 And he found a jawbone of a donkey cast aside and stretched out his hand and took it, and with it he struck down a thousand men. 16 And Sampson said, wiping them out with a donkey’s jawbone,

“I have wiped them out,

for with a donkey’s jawbone

I have struck down a thousand men.”

17 And it came about, when he had finished speaking, that he threw the jawbone from his hand, and he called that place Jawbone’s Slaying. 18 And he was very thirsty, and he called out to the Lord and said, “You have granted this great deliverance by the hand of your slave. And now, shall I die by thirst and fall in the hand of the uncircumcised?” 19 And God opened the wound of the jawbone, and waters came from it. And he drank, and his spirit returned in him, and he revived. Therefore its name was called Spring-Summoned-by-Jawbone, as it remains to this day. 20 And he judged Israel in the days of the allophyles twenty years.

And Sampson went from there to Gaza, and there he saw a woman, a prostitute, and went in to her. 2 And the Gazites were told, saying, “Sampson has come here.” And they circled around and lay in wait for him all night by the city gate. And they kept quiet all night, saying, “Let us wait until the light, when it is early, and let us kill him.” 3 And Sampson lay until midnight. And about midnight he rose up and took hold of the doors of the city gate and the two posts and pulled them up, bar and all, and put them on his shoulders and went up to the top of the mountain that faces the front of Chebron and set them down there. 4 And it came about after this that he fell in love with a woman by the Wadi Sorech, and her name was Dalila. 5 And the satraps of the allo-

And Dalila said to Sampson, “Tell me in what your great strength lies and by what means you may be bound so that you could be subdued.”

And Sampson said to her, “If they bind me with seven fresh bowstrings that have not been spoiled, I shall both become weak and be like one of men.”

And the satraps of the allophyles brought her seven fresh bowstrings that had not been spoiled, and she bound him with them. And his ambush was sitting in the storeroom, and she said to him, “Allophyles are upon you, Sampson!” And he broke the bowstrings, as a strand shaken off snaps when it smells fire. And his strength was not known.

10 And Dalila said to Sampson, “Look, you have deceived me and told me lies; now then do tell me how you may be bound.”

And he said to her, “If they bind me with a binding, with seven new cords with which no work has been done, I shall both become weak and be like one of men.”

12 And Dalila took new cords for him and bound him with them, and said to him, “The allophyles are upon you, Sampson!” And he tore apart the bowstrings, as one might tear apart a twist of flax when it smells fire. And his strength was not known.

13 And Dalila said to Sampson, “Until now you have deceived me and told me lies; do tell me how you may be bound.”

And he said to her, “If you weave the seven plaits of my head with the warp and hammer them into the wall with the peg, and the wall and the warp. And his strength was not known.

15 And Dalila said to him, “How can you say, ‘I love you,’ and your heart is not with me? This is the third time you have deceived me and have not told me in what your great strength lies.”

And it came about, when she had overpowered him with her words for the entire night and had pestered him, that he was tired to death. And he told her everything from his heart and said to her, “A razor will not come upon my head, for I have been a nazirite of God from my mother’s belly. And if I am shaved, my strength will leave me, and I will become weak and be as all men are.”

18 And Dalila realized that he had told her everything from his heart. And she sent and called all the satraps of the allophyles, saying, “Come up this once, for he has told his whole heart to me.”

And he said to her, “If when they tie me up they bind me with seven new cords, them with which no work has been done, I shall both become weak and be like one of men.”

12 And Dalila took new cords and bound him with them, and the ambushes came out of the storeroom. And she said, “Allophyles are upon you, Sampson!” And he snapped them off his arms like a thread.

13 And Dalila said to Sampson, “Look, you have misled me and told me lies; do tell me how you may be bound.”

And he said to her, “If you weave the seven plaits of my head with the warp and hammer them into the wall with the peg, I shall also become weak, like one of men.”

14 And Dalila lulled him to sleep, and she made the seven plaits of his head the warp with the stretching out and hammered them into the wall with the pegs. And she said to him, “The allophyles are upon you, Sampson!” But he awoke from his sleep and pulled away the pegs along with the web from the wall.

Then Dalila said to Sampson, “How can you say, ‘I love you,’ and your heart is not with me? This is the third time you have misled me and have not told me in what your great strength lies.”

And it came about, when she had worn him down with her words all the days and had hemmed him in, that he was tired to the point of dying. And he told her all his heart and said to her, “Iron has not come upon my head, for I have been a holy one of God from my mother’s belly. If then I am shaved, my strength will leave me, and I will become weak and be like all men.”

18 And Dalila realized that he had told her all his heart. And she sent and called the rulers of the allophyles, saying, “Come up just this once more, for he has told his whole heart to me.”

And all the satraps of the allophyles came up to her and brought up the money in their hands. 19 And she lulled him to sleep between her knees, and she called a barber, and she shaved off the seven locks of his head. And he began to weaken, and his strength left him. 20 And Dalida said to him, “The allophyles are upon you, Sampson!” and he awoke from his sleep and said, “I will go out and do as I have always done and shake myself free.” And he himself did not know that the Lord had left him.

And the allophyles seized him and gouged out his eyes. And they led him down to Gaza and bound him with bronze shackles, and he was grinding grain in the prison-house. 22 And the hair of his head began to grow again after it had been shaved.

23 And the satraps of the allophyles gathered to sacrifice a great sacrifice to their god Dagon and to rejoice. And they said, “Our god has delivered Sampson our enemy in our hand.” 24 And the people saw him and praised their gods. And they said, “Our god has delivered our enemy in our hand, yes, the ravager of our country, who multiplied our wounded.” 25 And it came about, when their heart was merry, that they said, “Call Sampson from the prison-house, and let him perform before us.” And they called Sampson out of the prison-house and were making fun of him. And they placed him between the two pillars, 26 and Sampson said to the lad who held him by the hand, “Do let me rest, and make me feel the pillars, those on which the house rests, and I will lean against them.” Now the boy did so. 27 Now the house was full of men and women, and all the satraps of the allophyles were there, and on top of the house there were about three thousand men and women, watching Sampson being made fun of.

28 And Sampson called out to the Lord and said, “Lord, Lord, remember me, and do strengthen me only this once more, and I will exact one act of requital against the allophyles in return for my two eyes.” 29 And Sampson embraced the two mid-pillars, those on which the house rested, and he leaned against them, one in his right hand and one in his left hand. 30 And Sampson said, “Let my soul die with the allophyles.” And he leaned with strength, and the house fell on the satraps and on all the people who were in it. And the dead whom Sampson put to death at his death were more numerous, above those he had put to death during his life. 31 And his brothers and all his father’s house came down and took him and went up and buried him between Saraa and between Esthaol in the tomb of his father Manoe. And he himself judged Israel twenty years.

And there was a man from the hill country of Ephraim, and his name was Micha. 2 And he said to his mother, “Eleven hundred pieces of silver, those that were taken for you—and you administered an oath and spoke in my hearing—see, the silver is in my possession; I took it.”
Judges A

And his mother said, “My son is blessed to the Lord!” 3 And he returned the eleven hundred pieces of silver to his mother, and his mother said, “By an act of consecration I consecrated the silver to the Lord from my hand, setting it apart to make a carved objecta and a cast objecta, and now I will return them to you and will give it back to you.” 4 And he returned the silver to his mother, and his mother took two hundred pieces of silver and gave it to the smelter, and he made it into a carved objecta and a cast objecta, and it came to be in the house of Micha. 5 As for the man Micha, he had a house of god, and he made ephod and tharaphinb and filled the hand of one of his sons, and he became for a priest to him. 6 In those days there was no king in Israel; a man would do what was good in his own eyes.

7 And there was a lad of Bethleem, division ofoudas, of the clan ofoudas, himself a Leuite, and he himself lived there as a resident alien. 8 And the man went from the city of oudas, from Bethleem, to live as resident alien wherever he could find. And he came to the hill country of Ephraim as far as the house of Micha, to make his journey. 9 And Micha said to him, “From where do you come?” And he replied, “I am a Leuite out of Bethleem in oudas, and I am going to live as resident alien wherever I can find.” 10 And Micha said to him, “Settle with me, and become for a father and for a priest to me, and I for my part will give you ten pieces of silver for days and an outfit of clothes and what you need to live on.” And the Leuite went 11 and began to live as a resident alien with the man, and the lad became to him like one of his sons. 12 And Micha filled the Leuite’s hand, and the lad became for a priest to him and was in the house of Micha. 13 And Micha said, “Now I know that the Lord favors me, because the Leuite has become for a priest to me.”

18 In those days there was no king in Israel. And in those days the tribe of Dan was seeking an inheritance for itself to live in. For up to those days no inheritance had fallen to their lot in the midst of the tribes of Israel. 2 And the sons of Dan sent out five men from their clans, from part of them, sons of power, from Saraa and Esthaol, to spy out the land and to explore it, and they said to them, “Go, and search out the land.” And they came to the hill country of Ephraim, as far as the house of Micha, and they rested there. 3 While they were near Micha’s house, they also themselves recognized the voice of the young lad, the Leuite, and they went over and said to him, “Who brought you here? And what are you doing here, and what is your business here?” 4 And he said to them, “Micha did such and such for me, and he hired me, and I became for a priest to him.” 5 And they said to him, “Do inquire by God, and we will know whether the mother said, “May my son be blessed to the Lord!” 3 And he returned the eleven hundred pieces of silver to his mother, and his mother said, “Consecrating I have consecrated the silver to the Lord from my hand for my son, to make a carved objecta and a cast objecta, and now I will give it back to you.” 4 And he returned the silver to his mother, and his mother took two hundred pieces of silver and gave it to a silversmith, and he made it into a carved objecta and a cast objecta, and it came to be in the house of Michaias. 5 And Michaias’ house was a house of god for him, and he made ephod and tharaphinb and filled the hand from one of his sons, and he became for a priest to him. 6 Now in those days there was no king in Israel; a man would do what was right in his own eyes.

7 And there was a young man of Bethleem, division of oudas, himself a Leuite, and he lived there as a resident alien. 8 And the man went from Bethleem, the city of oudas, to live as resident alien in whatever place he could find. And he came as far as the hill country of Ephraim and as far as the house of Michaias, to make his journey. 9 And Michaias said to him, “From where do you come?” And he replied, “I am a Leuite from Baithleem in oudas, and I am going to live as resident alien in whatever place I can find.” 10 And Michaias said to him, “Settle with me, and become for a father and for a priest to me, and I for my part will give you ten pieces of silver a day and an outfit of clothes and what you need to live on.” And the Leuite went 11 and began to live as a resident alien with the man, and the young man became with him like one from among his sons. 12 And Michaias filled the Leuite’s hand, and he became for a priest to him and came to be in the house of Michaias. 13 And Michaias said, “Now I know that the Lord will be good to me, because the Leuite has become for a priest to me.”

journey, that upon which we are going, succeeds.”

And the priest said to them, “Go in peace. Your journey, that upon which you are going, is before the Lord.”

And the five men went on, and they came to Laisa, and they observed the people who were living in it, settled in hope, according to the decision of the Sidonians, resting in hope and unable to speak a word, for they were far from Sidon and had no word with Syria. And the five men came to their brothers at Saraa and Esthaol and their brothers were saying to them, “Why are you sitting down?” And they said, “Get up, and let us go up against them. For we have entered and journeyed about in the land as far as Laisa, and we saw the people who live in it in hope, according to the judgment of the Sidonians: and they were far away, away from Sidon, and they had no word with Syria. But get up, and let us go up against them! For we have found the land, and see, it is very good. And will you keep silent? Do not hesitate to go, to come and inherit the land. Whenever you enter, you will come to a trusting people, and the land is broad—for God has delivered it in your hand—a place, there where is no lack of every matter, everything on earth.”

And six hundred men of a clan of Dan, armed with military implements, set out from there, from the divisions of Dan, from Saraa and from Esthaol, and went up and encamped at Kariathiarim in Lousadas. On this account that place is called Dan’s Camp to this day; see, it is behind Kariathiarim.

From there they passed on and came as far as the hill country of Ephraim and came as far as the house of Micha.

And the five men who were going to spy out the land answered and said to their brothers, “Do you know that in these buildings there are ephoud, theraphin, a carved object and a cast object? So now consider what you will do.” And they turned in that direction and entered the house of the lad, the Leuite, at the home of Micha, and greeted him.

And the six hundred men who were armed with military implements were standing like pillars by the door at the gateway, those of the sons of Dan. And the five men who were going to spy out the land went up. They came there and took the carved object, the ephoud, the theraphin and the cast object. And the priest was standing like a pillar by the door at the gateway, and the six hundred men armed with military implements. And they went into Micha’s house and took the carved object, the ephoud, the theraphin and the cast object, and the priest said to them, “What are you doing?” And they said to him, “Keep quiet! Put your hand over your mouth, and come with us, and you will be to us for a father and for a priest. Is it better that you should be priest to the house of one man than that you should become priest to a tribe and clan in Israel?”

And the priest’s heart was glad. And he took the ephoud, the theraphin, whether the journey, that on which we are going, will be successful.” And the priest said to them, “Go in peace. Your journey, that on which you are going, is before the Lord.”

And the five men went on, and they came to Laisa, and they observed the people in the midst of it, settled in hope, like the judgment of Sidonians, being quiet, and there was none in the land to deter or to make them ashamed in regard to a word, no oppressive inheritor of a treasury, and they were far from Sidonians and did not have a word with a person. And the five men came to their brothers at Saraa and Esthaol and said to their brothers, “Why are you sitting down?” And they said, “Get up, and let us go up against them. For we saw the land, and see, it is very good. And will you remain quiet? Do not hesitate to go and enter in to inherit the land. And whenever you go, you will enter in to a people in hope, and the land is wide—for God has given it in your hand—a place, there where there is no lack of every matter of the things on earth.”

And six hundred men, equipped with battle implements, set out from there, from the divisions of Dan, from Saraa and from Esthaol, and went up and encamped at Kariathiarim in Lousadas. On this account it is called Dan’s Camp in that place to this day; see, it is behind Kariathiarim.

And the six hundred men who were equipped with their battle implements were standing by the doors at the gateway, those of the sons of Dan. And the five men who had gone to spy out the land went up, and they went in there, into Michaias’ house (and the priest was standing) and took the carved object, the ephoud, the theraphin and the cast object, and the priest said to them, “What are you doing?” And they said to him, “Keep quiet! Put your hand over your mouth, and come here with us, and become for a father and for a priest to us. Is it good that you should be priest to the house of one man or that you should become priest to a tribe and a house for a division in Israel?”

And the priest’s heart was glad. And he took the ephoud, the theraphin, the carved object and the cast object and went into the midst of the people.

21 And they turned around and departed and positioned the whole household and his esteemed possession in front of them. 22 Now when they had gone a long distance from the home of Micha, then see, Micha and the men who belonged to the house with Micha were crying out behind the sons of Dan. 23 And the sons of Dan turned their faces around and said to Micha, "What is the matter that you cried out?" 24 And Micha said, "Because you took my carved object that I made for myself and the priest, and went away, and what have I left? And why do you say this to me, 'Why do you cry out like this?' " 25 And the sons of Dan said to him, "Your voice had better not be heard with us or else men who are afflicted in soul will attack you, and you will add your life and the lives of your household." 26 And the sons of Dan went on their way. And Micha saw that they were too strong for him, and he turned away and went back to his home.

27 And they took everything Micha had made and the priest who belonged to him and came as far as Lais, to a people quiet and trusting in hope, and they struck them down with the edge of the sword and burned down the city. 28 And there was none to rescue, because it was far from Sidonians and they had no word with people. And it was in a valley that belongs to the house of Roob. And they built the city and pitched tent in it. 29 And they called the name of the city Dan, by the name of their ancestor, who was born to Israel; and the city formerly had the name Lais. 30 And the sons of Dan set up Micha's carved object for themselves, and Jonathan son of Gersom son of Moyes, he and his sons were priests for the tribe of Dan until the day of the removal from the land. 31 And they appointed for themselves Micha's carved object that he had made, all the days that the house of God was at Selo.

19 And it came about in those days that there was no king in Israel. And it came about that a man, a Leuite, was living as a resident alien in the thighs of the hill country of Ephraim. And the man took to himself a wife, a concubine from Bethleem of Loudas. 2 And his concubine became angry with him, and she went away from him to her father's house at Bethleem of Loudas and was there for days, four months. 3 And her husband got up and set out after her, to speak to her heart, to reconcile her to himself and bring her back to him. And his young servant was with him, and a team of draft animals. And he came as far as her father's house, and the young woman's father saw him and was there to meet him. 4 And his father-in-law, the young woman's father, brought him inside and sat with him three days, and they ate and drank and slept there. 5 And it came about on the fourth day that they rose early in the morning, and he got up
And both of them ate and drank. 9 And the man put great pressure on him, and he sat down and let your heart be glad. 7 And the man got up to go, and his father-in-law put great pressure on him, and he lodged there again. 8 And on the fifth day he rose early in the morning to leave, and the young woman’s father said, “Strengthen your heart with bread, and camp until the day declines.” And both of them ate and drank. 9 And the man got up to leave, he and his concubine and his young servant, and his father-in-law, the young woman’s father, said to him, “Look now, the day has declined towards evening. Stay here today as well, and let your heart be glad, and tomorrow you shall rise early for your journey and shall depart for your dwelling.”

10 And the man did not want to lodge, and he got up and departed, and they came as far as opposite Iebous (this is Jerousalem). And with him was a team of loaded draft animals, and his concubine was with him. 11 While they were still near Iebous (the day was far spent), then the young servant said to his master, “Come now, and let us turn aside to this city of the Iebousite and lodge in it.” 12 And his master said to him, “I will not turn aside into a foreigner’s city, which is not of the sons of Israel, and we will continue on as far as Gabaa.” 13 And he said to his young servant, “Come, and let us enter one of the places and lodge in Gabaa or in Rama.” 14 And they passed by and went on, for the sun sank near Gabaa, which belongs to Beniamin. 15 And they turned aside there, to go in to stay in Gabaa. And they went in and sat down in the square of the city, and there was no man who would take them into the house to stay.

16 And at evening, see, an old man came in from his work, from the field. And the man was from the hill country of Ephraim, and he himself was a resident alien in Gabaa (and the men of the place were sons of Beniamin). 17 And when he looked up with his eyes, he saw the man, the wayfarer in the square of the city, and the old man said, “Where are you going, and where do you come from?” 18 And he said to him, “We are passing through from Bethleem of Loudas as far as the thighs of the hill country of Ephraim. Now, I am from there, and I went as far as Bethleem of Loudas, and I am returning to my home, and there is no man taking me into the house. 19 And indeed, there is straw and fodder for our donkeys, and indeed there is bread and wine for me and for your slave-woman and for the young servant, your slaves. There is no lack of anything.”

And the old man said, “Peace be to you. Yet, everything you lack is my concern; only do not spend the night in the square.” 21 And he led him into his house and fed him and his concubine and his young servant. 22 And the man got up to go, he and his concubine and his young servant, and his father-in-law, the young woman’s father, said to him, “Do strengthen your heart, and camp until the day declines.” And the two ate. 23 And the man got up to go, and he and his concubine and his young servant, and his father-in-law, the young woman’s father, said to him, “Come now, lodge, and your heart will be glad.”

10 And the man was not pleased to lodge, and he got up and departed, and he came as far as opposite Iebous (this is Jerousalem). And with him was a team of loaded donkeys, and his concubine was with him. 11 And they came as far as Lebous, and the day was far advanced, and the young man said to his master, “Come now, and let us turn aside to this city of the Libousite and lodge in it.” 12 And his master said to him, “We will not turn aside into a foreign city in which there is none from among the sons of Israel here, and we will continue on as far as Gabaa.” 13 And he said to his young man, “Come, and let us go near one of the places, and we will lodge in Gabaa or in Rama.” 14 And they passed by and went on, and the sun sank on them near Gabaa, which belongs to Beniamin. 15 And they turned aside there, to go in to lodge in Gabaa. And they went in and sat down in the square of the city, and there was no man taking them in to a house to lodge.

16 And at evening, see, an old man was coming in from his work, from the field. And the man was from the hill country of Ephraim, and he himself was a resident alien in Gabaa (and the men of the place were sons of Beniamin). 17 And the old man lifted up his eyes and saw the wayfaring man in the square of the city, and the old man said, “Where are you going, and where do you come from?” 18 And he said to him, “We are passing by from Bethleem of Loudas as far as the thighs of the hill country of Ephraim. There is no lack of anything.”

20 And the old man said, “Peace be to you. Yet, everything you lack is my concern; only do not lodge in the square.” 21 And he brought him into his house and made space for the donkeys, and his draft animals, and they washed their feet and ate and drank.

22 Now when they were glad in their heart, then see, the men of the city, sons of transgressors, encircled the house and pounded on the door. And they said to the man, the master of the house, the old man, saying, “Bring out the man who came into your house so that we may know him.” 23 And the man, the master of the house, went out to them and said to them, “No, no, my brothers, you must not act wickedly. After this man has come into my house, do not do this madness. 24 See, my virgin daughter and his concubine, I will bring them out now, and you humiliate them and do to them what is good in your eyes, and against this man do not carry out the thing of this madness.” 25 And the men did not want to listen to him. And the man seized his concubine and led her out to them outside, and they knew her and sported with her all through the night until the early morning. And just as the dawn began to break, they sent her away. 26 And towards morning, the woman came and fell down by the door at the gateway to the man’s house, where her master was, until it was light.

27 And her master got up early and opened the doors of the house and went out to go on his way, and see, the woman, his concubine, lying by the door, and her hands were in the entrance. 28 And he said to her, “Get up, and let’s go.” And she did not answer him, but she had died. And he took her up onto the draft animal, and the man got up and departed for his place. 29 And he entered his house and took his dagger and took hold of his concubine and dismembered her into twelve pieces, limb by limb, and sent them to all the tribes of Israel. 30 And it came about that everyone who saw would say, “Neither has it happened nor has it appeared thus from the day of the coming up of the sons of Israel from Egypt until this day. And he commanded the men whom he sent, saying, “This is what you shall say to every man of Israel, ‘Has it happened according to this thing from the day of the coming up of the sons of Israel from Egypt until this day? Do take counsel with yourselves about her, and speak out.’”

20 And all the sons of Israel came out, from Dan and up to Bersabee, and the land of Galaad, and all the congregation assembled like one man before the Lord at Massepha. 2And the region of all the people stood, all the tribes of Israel in the assembly of the people of God, four hundred thousand men, foot-soldiers drawing a sword. 3 (And the sons of Benjamin heard that the sons of Israel had gone up to the Lord at Massepha.) And the sons of Israel said, “Say where this evil took place.” 4 And the Leuite, the husband of the woman who had been murdered, answered and said, “I came to Gabaa in the territory of Ben-

And the sons of Israel went up and wept in the place, there where they had drawn up in the battle. 3And the inhabitants of Gilgal encamped against them. 4And the men of Israel said, “We will not go, a man to his house, and we will not turn aside, a man to his covert, and we will not turn around, a man to his house.” 5And now this is the word that we will carry out against Gilgal: we will go up against it by lot. 6And we will take ten men for a hundred, and a hundred for a thousand, and a thousand for ten thousand, to bring provisions for the people, those who are going in to carry out against Gilgal of Benjamin according to all the madness that they have committed in Israel.” 7And every man of Israel gathered from their cities, coming as one man. 8And all the people got up like one man, saying, “We will not go, a man into his dwelling, and we will not turn aside, a man to his house.” 9And now this is the word that will be carried out against Gilgal: we will go up against it by lot. 10And we will take ten men for a hundred, and a hundred for a thousand, and a thousand for ten thousand, to bring provisions for the people, those who are going in to carry out against Gilgal of Benjamin according to all the madness that they have committed in Israel.” 11And every man of Israel gathered from their cities, coming as one man. 12And the tribes of Israel sent out men through all the tribe of Benjamin, saying, “What evil is this that has happened among you? 13Now then, hand over the godless men in Gilgal, the sons of Belial, and we will put them to death and remove evil from Israel.” And the sons of Benjamin would not listen to the voice of their brothers, the sons of Israel. 14And the sons of Benjamin came together out of their cities to Gilgal, to go out to fight with sons of Israel. 15And in that day the sons of Benjamin were reviewed, twenty-five thousand men from the cities drawing a sword, besides the inhabitants of Gilgal. They were reviewed, seven hundred men, handpicked young men, ambidextrous. All these were slingers, throwing a stone at a hair and not missing. 17And every man of Israel—they were reviewed, apart from the sons of Benjamin, four hundred thousand men drawing a sword. All of these were men, warriors. 18And they arose and went up to Baithel, and the sons of Israel inquired by God and said, “Who shall go up for us as leader, to fight with Benjamin?” And the Lord said, “Ioudas shall go up as leader.” 19And the sons of Israel arose and encamped against Gilgal. 20And every man of Israel went out to battle with Benjamin, and they mustered with them for battle, a man of Israel against Gilgal. 21And the sons of Benjamin came out of the city and destroyed among Israel in that day twenty-two thousand men upon the land. 22And a man of Israel was strong, and they added to draw up for war in the place, there where they had drawn up in the first day. 23And the sons of Israel went up and wept before the Lord until the evening, and they inquired by the Lord, saying, “Shall I add to draw near for war with my brother Benjamin?” And the Lord said, “Go up against him.”

And the men of Benjamin rose up against them and surrounded the house at night against me. They wanted to murder me, and they humiliated my concubine, and she died. 6And I seized my concubine and dismembered her and sent throughout every territory of the inheritance of the sons of Israel, for they committed zemán and an outrage in Israel. 7And all of you, sons of Israel, give yourselves advice and counsel there.”

8And all the people got up like one man, saying, “We will not depart, a man to his covert, and we will not turn around, a man to his house.” 9And now this is the word that will be carried out against Gilgal: we will go up against it by lot. 10Only, we will take ten men for a hundred, and a hundred for a thousand, and a thousand for ten thousand, to bring provisions to the people, to bring it about that they enter Gilgal of Benjamin to do to it according to all the error that it has committed in Israel.” 11And every man of Israel gathered into the city as one man. 12And the tribes of Israel sent men throughout all the tribe of Benjamin, saying, “What wickedness is this that has happened among you? 13Now then, hand over the men, sons of transgressors, those in Gilgal, and we will put them to death and purge wickedness from Israel.” And the sons of Benjamin did not see fit to listen to the voice of their brothers, sons of Israel. 14And the sons of Benjamin came together from their cities to Gilgal, to go out to battle against sons of Israel. 15And in that day the sons of Benjamin were reviewed, twenty-three thousand from the cities, a man drawing a sword, excluding the inhabitants of Gilgal, who were reviewed, seven hundred men, handpicked from all the people, ambidextrous. All these were slingers of stones at a hair and not missing. 17And a man of Israel—they were reviewed, excluding Benjamin, four hundred thousand men drawing a sword. All of these were men of battle. 18And they arose and went up to Baithel, and they inquired by God. And the sons of Israel said, “Who shall go up for us to start with, for battle against the sons of Benjamin?” And the Lord said, “Ioudas shall go up with as leader.” 19And the sons of Israel arose in the morning and encamped against Gilgal. 20And they went out, every man of Israel, for battle against Benjamin, and they joined battle with them by Gilgal. 21And the sons of Benjamin came out of the city and destroyed among Israel in that day twenty-two thousand men upon the land. 22And a man of Israel was strong, and they added to draw up for war in the place, there where they had drawn up in the first day. 23And the sons of Israel went up and wept before the Lord until the evening, and they inquired by the Lord, saying, “Shall we add to draw near for battle against our brothers, sons of Benjamin?” And the Lord said, “Go up against them.”

24 And the sons of Israel advanced against Benjamin in the second day. 25 And Benjamin went out to meet them from Gabaa in the second day and destroyed eighteen thousand men of the people upon the land; all these had drawn a sword. 26 And all the sons of Israel and all the people went up and came to Baithel and wept before the Lord, and they fasted in that day and offered whole burnt offerings of deliverance before the Lord. 27 And the sons of Israel inquired by the Lord and the ark of the covenant of the Lord was there in those days, 28 and Phinees son of Eleazar son of Aaron stood before it in those days, saying, "Shall I yet add to go out for battle with the sons of Benjamin my brother, or shall I desist?" And the Lord said, "Go up, for tomorrow I will deliver him in your hand."

29 And the sons of Israel set ambushes against Gabaa all around. 30 And Israel drew up against Benjamin in the third day, and they deployed against Gabaa, as once and once. 31 And the sons of Benjamin went out to meet the people, and they were drawn away out of the city, and as once and once they began to strike down some from the people along the roads, one of which goes up to Baithel and one goes up to Gabaa, in the fields, about thirty men in Israel. 32 And the sons of Benjamin said, "They are stumbling before us as previously." And the sons of Israel said, "Let us retreat and draw them out of the city toward the roads." 33 And every man of Israel went up from his position, and they mustered in Baalthamar, and the Israelite ambush was struggling out of its position west of Gabaa. 34 And there arrived in front of Gabaa ten thousand men, hand-picked out of all Israel, and the war became grievous. And they did not realize that evil had touched them.

35 And the Lord routed Benjamin in front of Israel, and the sons of Israel destroyed twenty-five thousand one hundred men among Benjamin in that day; all these were drawing a sword. 36 And Benjamin saw that he was routed.

And a man of Israel gave ground to Benjamin, because they looked to the ambush that they had stationed against Gabaa. 37 And the ambush rushed forward, and they spread out against Gabaa, and the ambush advanced, and they struck down the whole city with the edge of the sword. 38 And the command for a man of Israel as regards the ambush was that they should send up a signal of the smoke of the city. 39 And they turned, a man of Israel, in the battle, and Benjamin had begun to strike down wounded in the man of Israel, about thirty men, for they said, "But being routed he is routed before us, just like the previous battle."

And the signal, a pillar of smoke, began to rise out of the city, and Benjamin looked behind him, and see, the annihilation of the city went upward to the sky! And a man of Israel turned back, and a man of Benjamin made haste, and he saw that evil had touched him. And they turned before a man of Israel in the direction of the wilderness, and the battle overtook them, and those from the cities destroyed him in their midst. And they cut down Benjamin, to stop him with a stopping, and they trampled him down until opposite Gabaa from the east. And there fell eighteen thousand men of Benjamin. With all these were powerful men. And they turned and fled into the wilderness to the rock of Remmon. And they gleaned five thousand men along the roads, and they clung on after him as far as Gadaam, and they struck down two thousand men of them. And all those who fell in that day among Benjamin were twenty-five thousand men who drew a sword. With all these were powerful men. And six hundred turned and fled into the wilderness to the rock of Remmon and remained at the rock of Remmon for four months. And a man of Israel shut out the sons of Benjamin, and they struck them down with the edge of the sword, from city, one after another, up to animal and up to everything that was found, into all the cities. And the cities that were found they sent off with fire.

And a man of Israel had sworn at Massepha, saying, "A man out of us shall not give his daughter to Benjamin for a wife." And all the people came to Massepha and Baithel and sat there until evening before God, and they lifted up their voice and wept with a great weeping. And they said, "O Lord, the God of Israel, why has this come about in Israel, that today in Israel one tribe should be reviewed?" And it came about in the next day that the people rose early, and they built an altar there and offered up whole burnt offerings and ones of completion. And the sons of Israel said, "Who is the one who did not come up in the assembly to the Lord, out of all the tribes of Israel?" For there was a solemn oath against the one who did not come up to the Lord to Massepha, saying, "He will die by death." And the sons of Israel were comforted concerning Benjamin their brother, and they said, "One tribe has been taken away from Israel this day. What are we to do for wives for them that are left? And it was we who swore by the Lord that we would not give them any of our daughters for wives."

And they said, "What one of the tribes of Israel is there which did not come up to the Lord to Massepha?" And see, a man did not come from Iabis Galaad to the camp, to the assembly. And the people were reviewed, and see, there was not a person.

And the sons of Israel had sworn at Massepha, saying, "A man out of us shall not give his daughter to Benjamin for a wife." And the people came to Baithel, and they sat there until evening before God, and they lifted up their voice and wept with a great weeping. And they said, "O Lord, the God of Israel, for what reason has this come about that today from Israel one tribe should be reviewed?" And it came about on the next day that the people rose early, and they built an altar there and offered up whole burnt offerings of deliverance. And the sons of Israel said, "Who is the one who did not come up in the assembly to the Lord, out of all the tribes of Israel?" For the oath was solemn for those who had not come up to the Lord to Massepha, saying, "He will be put to death by death." And the sons of Israel were comforted concerning Benjamin their brother, and they said, "One tribe has been cut off from Israel this day. What are we to do for wives for them that remain, those who are left? And it was we who swore by the Lord that we would not give them any of our daughters for wives."

And they said, "What one of the tribes of Israel is there which did not come up to the Lord to Massepha?" And see, a man did not come from Iabis Galaad to the camp, to the assembly. And the people were reviewed, and there was not a man.

man there of the inhabitants of Iabis Galaad. 10 And the congregation sent twelve thousand men there of the sons of power and commanded them, saying, "Go, and strike down all the inhabitants of Iabis Galaad with the edge of the sword, both the women and the people. 11 And this is the word that you shall carry out: everything male and every woman who is familiar with intercourse with a male you shall anathematize." 12 And they found from among the inhabitants of Iabis Galaad four hundred young women, virgins, who had not known a man for intercourse with a male, and they led them to the camp at Selo, which is in the land of Chanaan.

13 And the whole congregation sent, and they spoke to Benjamin, who was at the rock of Remmon, and called them to peace. 14 And Benjamin turned back to the sons of Israel in that time, and they gave them the women who were from among the women of Iabis Galaad, and in this way they were content.

15 And the people were comforted over Benjamin, because the Lord had made a breach in the tribes of Israel. 16 And the elders of the congregation said, "What are we to do for wives for those who are left, since a woman has disappeared from Benjamin?" 17 And they said, "An inheritance has survived for Benjamin, and a tribe will not be blotted out from Israel. 18 And we will not be able to give them wives from among our daughters, for we, the sons of Israel, swore, saying, 'Cursed be the one who gives a wife to Benjamin.' " 19 And they said, "There is a feast to the Lord at Selo afrom days a, which is to the north of Baithel, to the east, on the road that goes up from Baithel to Sichim, and to the south of Lebanon of Lebona." 20 And they commanded the sons of Benjamin, saying, "Spread out, and lie in wait in the vineyards. 21 And you will watch, and see, when the daughters of the inhabitants of Selo and carry off, a man a wife for himself, from the daughters of Selo, and you shall go away to the land of Benjamin. 22 And it will be, when their fathers or their brothers come to dispute with you, that we will say to them, 'Have mercy on them, because they did not capture, a man his wife, in war. For it was not you who gave to them; you erred based on circumstance.' " 23 And the sons of Benjamin did so, and they took wives according to their number from the dancers whom they abducted. And they went away and turned back to their inheritance, and they built cities for themselves and lived in them. 24 And the sons of Israel went about from there in that time, a man to his tribe and to his family, and they went away from there, a man to his own inheritance.

And they did so. 12 And they found from among the inhabitants of Iabis Galaad four hundred young women, virgins who had not known a man for intercourse with a male, and they brought them to the camp at Selo, which is in the land of Chanaan.

EDITION OF THE GREEK TEXT

The present English translation of Routh (the Greek spelling of Ruth) follows the Greek edition by Alfred Rahlfs, which is generally regarded as the best available for this biblical book (Septuaginta. Id est Vetus Testamentum graece iuxta LXX interpretes, 2 vols. [Stuttgart: Württembergische Bibelanstalt, 1935]). Departures from Rahlfs’ text as the basis for the English translation are rare, except where punctuation is concerned. Rahlfs’ Septuagint as a whole is based principally upon three early codices, not upon all available textual evidence, but for the book of Ruth Rahlfs presumably was able to draw upon his earlier work involving c. 50 manuscripts. See A. Rahlfs, Das Buch Ruth griechisch als Probe einer kritischen Handsausgabe der Septuaginta (Stuttgart: Privilegierte Württembergische Bibelanstalt, 1922), which was not available to me, and Studie über den griechischen Text des Buches Ruth (MSU 3, 2; Berlin: Wiedmannsche Buchhandlung, 1922), also published in Nachrichten von der Gesellschaft der Wissenschaften zu Göttingen (Philologisch-historische Klasse, 1922) 47–164.

TRANSLATION PROFILE OF THE GREEK

The book of Routh is a fairly literal translation of the Hebrew, with the Greek text often matching the Hebrew in a word-for-word fashion. At times the translator reflects distinctions in the Hebrew that seem to be of no consequence semantically, as in the consistent representation of –ας ανοθεν (both meaning “said to”) as εἶπεν plus dative (15x) and εἶπεν πρὸς (7x) respectively.

Not surprisingly, the Greek text displays a high tolerance for Hebraic modes of expression, retaining certain idioms like “uncover your ear” (4.4) and generally keeping the paratactic syntax of the Hebrew original. The latter is illustrated by the fact that a meaning “and” (etc.) that begins most Hebrew sentences is reproduced in Greek by the word καί (“and”) somewhat less than 90% of the time. Typically this is done even when the resulting Greek is awkward or unappealing stylistically.

Evidently the merits of this kind of close translation were seen to outweigh its disadvantages. By virtue of its Hebraisms, the translation had the power to evoke the original. Non-Jewish readers, no doubt, would have found it strangely worded or even obscure in places, but for the reader who shared the translator’s social setting, the Hebraisms in Routh must have been valued as highly accurate renderings.

To speak of a tendency toward literal translation, however, is to tell only part of the story. In many ways the translator exhibits a degree of flexibility and freedom in the treatment of the text. Renderings as completely regular as the example of εἶπεν mentioned above are the exception rather than the rule, and the usual Greek equivalent was often rejected where clarity or other considerations came into play. An interesting example is the rendering of ἰημένος, “I,” by ἔγω γὰρ ἐίμι, “I am,” a feature of Kaige texts (of which Routh is one) by which ἰημένος was distinguished from its synonym ἴημα. This rendering, which is generally found in Routh (in 2.10; 3.9, 12; and twice in 4.4), is replaced by ἔγω γὰρ alone in 2.13 and 3.13, where ἔγω γὰρ ἐίμι would have resulted in difficult or ungrammatical Greek.

Often, too, a single Hebrew word is represented by a variety of Greek ones. Three different Greek words, νεανις, “young woman” (2.5), παις, “lass” (2.6), and παιδισκή, “maidservant” (4.12), are all used to translate Hebrew ננה when it refers to Routh, and a fourth Greek word, κορόσιον, “girl, young woman” (2.8, etc.), is used when ננה refers to the female workers of Boos (Boaz). Throughout, the attentive reader will find that Routh, like any translation, is very much an interpretation.

Not infrequently we find that information drawn from the context is inserted into a verse in order to clarify its meaning. These insertions are mostly minor; in a typical if prosaic example from 1.15, in place of MT’s “she said” the Greek specifies “Noemin said to Routh.” A more substantive insertion occurs in 4.8, where the next-of-kin removes his sandal, as in the MT, “and gave it to him” (to Boos), an act that is implied by 4.7 but not stated in the Hebrew text. Minuses relative to the MT are less frequent. Often they seem to involve words that were seen as superfluous, as with “days of” in the Hebrew text of 1.1. Several may have been motivated by a sense of propriety, as in the omission of “tonight” in 1.12.

Of course many of the differences between the Hebrew text that we know today and the Greek translation might have been present in the Vorlage (the translator's Hebrew text) rather than originating in the translation. Such was evidently the case with the name of Noemin's husband, which is Elimelech in our present-day Hebrew text but is Abimelech in the Greek text (six times in the book). The difference between the two names is only one letter in the vowelless ancient Hebrew script.

The NETS Translation of Routh
NETS Routh attempts to capture something of the character of the Greek translation. Like the Greek translation, the present English one is relatively literal. In attempting to reflect the Greek closely, it is a more literal rendering of the Greek than the NRSV is of the Hebrew. (For the role of the NRSV as the base text for NETS, see “TO THE READER OF NETS.”) In fact, since the Greek often renders the Hebrew literally, and NETS Routh attempts to render the Greek literally, NETS frequently represents the Hebrew phraseology more closely than the NRSV does.

It follows that divergences of NETS Routh from NRSV Ruth in many cases do not indicate divergences of the Greek text from the Hebrew Masoretic Text, but rather stem from the different translation philosophies of NETS and the NRSV. Wherever possible, however, the wording of the NRSV has been retained so that it can be compared profitably with NETS. A somewhat free translation within NETS, Routh may, therefore, be the result of a desire to preserve the NRSV where possible, or it may reflect the necessity for grammatical English.

In many cases the NRSV does not translate the conjunction “and” into English, especially when it begins a sentence, or the NRSV renders it “now,” “then,” “so,” or the like. In this matter NETS Routh is more conservative, generally translating “and.” But where both Hebrew and Greek have initial “and,” and the NRSV does not translate it, NETS Routh also ignores it, so as not to imply that the Hebrew and Greek differ. When the Greek uses the alternative conjunction δὲ, NETS tries to use a nuanced English equivalent instead of “and.” In more significant matters NETS Routh tends to follow the Greek rather than retaining an NRSV translation that does not adequately represent it.

Generally the Greek words in the book of Routh are used in their ordinary meanings, but at times the linkage between a Hebrew word and its typical Greek equivalent apparently caused the Greek word (at least in “biblical Greek”) to be used in a Hebraic sense. Examination of Hellenistic sources has often turned up Greek parallels to supposed Hebraisms, but a residue remains that cannot be explained as ordinary Greek. Examples in Routh include καί, “and,” introducing an apodosis or conclusion, ὅτι, “that” as an asseverative (perhaps explicable as ellipsis); and ἐν, “in,” marking the recipient of a thought or emotion.

That certain Hebraisms (but not others) were tolerated seems to point to the audience’s familiarity with them, due either to their use in earlier parts of the Septuagint or to their penetration into Jewish liturgical or other settings. If indeed the audience understood certain words and expressions in their Hebrew senses, rather than as ordinary Greek, one might justify a freer, more idiomatic rendering of the Greek than the present one. But in the absence of evidence (as is often the case) that these Greek expressions were so understood, and in keeping with NETS policy, I have adopted a conservative approach, translating the expressions literally except where the sense was in peril or where English grammar would not permit a literal rendering.

Here and there the reader might perceive overtones of the King James Version or other exemplars of “biblical English” (“and it shall be,” “look upon [favorably],” etc.). Similarly, it seems, the first audience of Routh experienced its Hebraistic constructions as the “biblical Greek” that they had come to know from oral translations. But NETS Routh avoids “biblical English” where it might obscure the meaning. Thus in 3.3 NRSV’s ill-chosen “anoint”—a word restricted to ritual contexts in contemporary English—is rejected in favor of “apply oil.”

Bibliographical Note
Detailed comments on a draft of this translation by Peter J. Gentry have proven invaluable. The translation also owes much to the insightful comments of Albert Pietersma.

Frederick W. Knobloch
It was when the judges were judging, and there was a famine in the land, and a man went from Baithleem in Iouda to sojourn in the countryside of Moab, he and his wife and his sons. The name of the man was Abimelech, and the name of his wife, Noemin, and the name of his two sons, Maalon and Chelaion, Ephrathites from Baithleem in Iouda. They went into the countryside of Moab and remained there. And Abimelech, the husband of Noemin, died, and she was left, she and her two sons. They took for themselves Moabite wives; the name of the one was Orpha, and the name of the second, Routh. And they lived there about ten years, and both Maalon and Chelaion also died, and the woman was left, apart from her husband and apart from her two sons.

And she set out, she and her two daughters-in-law, and they came back from the countryside of Moab, for they had heard in the countryside of Moab that the Lord had looked upon his people, giving them bread. And she went out from the place, there where she had been, and her two daughters-in-law with her, and they were going on their way to return to the land of Iouda, and Noemin said to her daughters-in-law, “Go now, go back, each to her mother’s house. May the Lord do mercy with you, as you have done with the dead and with me. May the Lord give to you, and may you find rest, each in the house of her husband.” And she kissed them, and they lifted up their voice and wept. They said to her, “We are returning with you to your people.” And Noemin said, “Turn back now, my daughters! Now why are you going with me? Do I still have sons in my womb, and will they become husbands for you? Turn back now, my daughters, for I am too old for a husband to have me. For if I said, ‘I have confidence that a man will marry me and I will bear sons,’ you would not wait for them until they mature, would you? Or would you, on their account, reverse the command that a man will marry me and I will bear sons, and you should not go from this one. Stick close to me, and we will go wherever you go. And wherever you lodge, I will lodge; your people shall be my people, and your God my God. And wherever you die, I will die—there will I be buried. Thus and so may the Lord do to me, and thus and so may he add—for death alone shall part me from you!”

Then when Noemin saw that she was determined to go with her, she ceased speaking to her further.

So the two of them went on until they came to Baithleem. And the whole city was abuzz because of them, and they said, “Is this Noemin?” She said to them, “Call me no longer Noemin; call me Bitter, for the Sufficient One was greatly embittered against me.”

I went away full, and the Lord has brought me back empty. Why do you call me Noemin when the Lord has abased me and the Sufficient One has maltreated me?”

And Noemin returned, and Routh the Moabite, her daughter-in-law, returning from the countryside of Moab. Now they came to Baithleem at the beginning of the barley harvest.

And with regard to Noemin there was a man, an acquaintance of her husband, and the man was powerful, of the kin of Abimelech, and his name was Boos. And Routh the Moabite said to Noemin, “Let me go now to the field and gather among the ears of grain, behind anyone in whose eyes I may find favor.” And she said to her, “Go, daughter.” And she went and gleaned in the field behind the reapers. And by happenstance she happened upon the part of the field belonging to Boos, who was of the kin of Abimelech. And there, from Baithleem, came Boos! He said to the reapers, “The Lord be with you.” They said to him, “The Lord bless you.” And Boos said to his servant who was in charge of the reapers, “To whom does this young woman belong?” The servant who was in charge of the reapers answered and said, “She is the Moabite lass, the one who came back with Noemin from the countryside of Moab. She said, ‘Let me glean now and gather among the sheaves behind the reapers.’ And she came, and she stood from morning until evening. She did not rest a bit in the field.”

And Boos said to Routh, “Did you not hear, daughter? Do not go to glean in another field, and you should not go from this one. Stick close to my girls here. Keep your eyes on the field, wherever they are reaping, and walk behind them. See, I have commanded the young men not to touch you. If you want anything to drink, go to the vessels, and drink from what the young men draw.”

And she fell upon her face and did obeisance on the ground and said to him, “Why is it that I have found favor in your eyes, that you should take notice of me? And I am a foreigner!” And Boos answered and said to her, “All that you have done together with your mother-in-law since the death of your husband has been fully told me, and how you left your father and your mother and your native land and came to a people that you did not know yesterday or the day before. 12 May the Lord repay you for your work, and may your recompense be full from the Lord, God of Israel, to whom you came, to put your trust under his wings!” 13 Then she said, “May I find favor in your eyes, sir, because you have comforted me and because you have spoken to the heart of your slave, and see, I shall be like one of your maidservants.”

14 And Boos said to her, “It is already time to eat. Come here, and eat some of the bread, and dip your morsel in the wine vinegar.” And Routh sat by the side of the reapers, and Boos heaped up barley groats for her. She ate and was satisfied and had some left over. 15 And she got up to glean, and Boos commanded his young men, saying, “Let her glean even among the standing sheaves, and do not dishonor her. 16 By all means carry for her, and even throw aside something for her from the bundles, and leave it, and she will glean, and do not rebuke her.”

17 And she gleaned in the field until evening and beat out what she had gleaned, and it was about an ephah a of barley. 18 She picked it up and came into the city, and her mother-in-law saw what she had gleaned. And taking it out, Routh gave her what she had left over after she had been satisfied. 19 Her mother-in-law said to her, “Where did you glean today? And where did you work? Blessed be the man who took notice of you.” And Routh told her mother-in-law where she worked and said, “The name of the man with whom I worked today is Boos.” 20 And Noemin said to her daughter-in-law, “He is blessed by the Lord, because he has not forsaken his compassion for the living and for the dead.” And Noemin said to her, “The man is near to us; he is one of our next-of-kin.” 21 And Routh said to her mother-in-law, “He even said to me, ‘Stick with my servants until they have finished all the harvest that belongs to me.’”

22 Noemin said to Routh, her daughter-in-law, “It is good, daughter, that you go with his girls, and they will not confront you in another field.” 23 And Routh stayed close to the girls of Boos, gleaning until he completed the reaping of the barley and the wheat, and she lived with her mother-in-law.

3 But Noemin her mother-in-law said to her, “Daughter, shall I not seek rest for you so that it may be well with you? 2 Now, is not Boos our acquaintance, whose girls you were with? Look, he is winnowing the threshing floor of the barley b or this very night. 3 Now bathe, and apply oil, and put your clothing on yourself, and go up onto the threshing floor. Do not make yourself known to the man until he has finished drinking and eating. 4 And it shall be, when he lies down, that you shall observe the place where he is lying, and you shall go and uncover the place at his feet and lie down, and he will tell you what you shall do.” Then Routh said to her, “Everything that you say I will do.”

6 And she went down to the threshing floor and did according to everything that her mother-in-law had commanded her. 7 And Boos ate, and his heart was content, and he went to lie down on part of the heap of grain. Then she came stealthily and uncovered the place at his feet. 8 Now it was at midnight, and the man was startled and troubled, and there, lying at his feet, was a woman! 9 So he said, “Who are you?” Then she answered, “I am Routh, your slave; spread your wing c over your bondwoman, for you are a next-of-kin.” 10 Boos said, “May you be blessed by the Lord God, daughter, for your last instance of compassion is better than the first, that you have not gone after young men, whether poor or rich. 11 And now, daughter, do not be afraid. Everything that you say I will do for you, for the whole clan of my people knows that you are a strong woman d and that I am, truly, a near kinsman, yet there is even a nearer kinsman than I. 12 Spend the night, and it shall be in the morning, if he will act as next-of-kin for you, good; let him do it. But if he is not willing to act as next-of-kin for you, the Lord lives, I myself will act as next-of-kin for you. Lie down until morning.”

14 And she lay at his feet until morning but got up before a man could recognize his neighbor. And Boos said, “It must not be known that a woman came to the threshing floor.” 15 And he said to her, “Bring the apron that you have on.” And she held it, and he measured out six measures of barley and put it upon her, and he went into the city. 16 And Routh came in to her mother-in-law, and she said, “Who are you, daughter?” And she told her all that the man had done for her, 17 and she said to her, “He gave me these six measures of barley, for he said to me, ‘Do not go in empty-handed to your mother-in-law.’” 18 Then she replied, “Sit, daughter, until you observe how not a word will fail, for certainly the man will not rest until he settlesthe matter today.”

4 And Boos went up to the gate and sat down there, and right there, passing by, was the next-of-kin of whom Boos had spoken. And Boos said to him, “Come over; sit down here, Name Withheld e.” And he went over and sat down. 2 And Boos took ten men of the elders of the city and said, “Sit down here,” and they sat down. 3 And Boos said to the next-of-kin, “Concerning the portion of the field that belongs to our brother Abimelech, which has been given to Noemin, who returned from the countryside of Moab, I said, I will uncover your ear f, saying: Buy it in the presence of those sitting here and in the presence of the elders of my people. If you are acting as next-of-kin, act as next-of-kin, but if you are not acting as next-of-kin, tell me, and I shall know, for there is no one except you to act as next-of-kin, and I come after you.” So he said, “I am the one; I will act as next-of-kin.” 5 And Boos said, “The day you acquire the field from the hand of Noemin and from Routh the Moabite, the wife of the deceased, it is necessary for you to acquire her also in order to raise up the name of the deceased on his inheritance.” 6 And the next-of-kin said, “I will not be able to perform the kinsman’s function for myself without ruined my inheritance. Take for yourself my right of inheritance, for I will not be able to act as next-of-kin.”

7 And this was the statute in former times in Israel concerning the right of inheritance and concerning exchange: to confirm every agreement, a man would take off his sandal and give it to his neighbor who was acquiring the right of inheritance. This was an attestation in Israel. 8 And the next-of-kin said to Boos, “Acquire for yourself my right of inheritance,” and he took off his sandal and gave it to him. 9 And Boos said to the elders and all the people, “Today you are witnesses that I have acquired everything of Abimelech’s and all that belongs to Chelaion and Maalon from the hand of Noemin. 10 I have also acquired Routh the Moabite, the wife of Maalon, for myself as a wife, to raise up the name of the deceased on his inheritance, and the name of the deceased shall not be extirpated from his brothers and from the clan of his people. Today you are witnesses.” 11 And all the people who were at the gate said, “We are witnesses.” And the elders said, “May the Lord make your wife who is coming into your house like Rachel and like Leia, who built up, both of them, the house of Israel and produced might in Ephratha, and there shall be a name in Baithleem. 12 And, through the offspring that the Lord will give you from this maidservant, may your house be like the house of Phares whom Thamar bore to Iouda.”

13 And Boos took Routh, and she became a wife to him. And he went in to her, and the Lord granted her conception, and she bore a son. 14 And the women said to Noemin, “Blessed be the Lord, who did not bring your next-of-kin to an end this day! And may he call your name in Israel! 15 He shall be to you a restorer of life and shall sustain your gray head. For your daughter-in-law, who loves you, who is better to you than seven sons, has borne him.” 16 And Noemin took the child and laid him in her bosom and became a nanny to him. 17 The women of the neighborhood gave him a name, saying, “A son has been born to Noemin.” They named him Obed. This was the father of Lessai, the father of David.

18 And these are the generations of Phares: Phares became the father of Hesron, 19 then Hesron became the father of Arran, and Arran became the father of Aminadab; 20 Aminadab became the father of Naasson; Naasson became the father of Salmon; 21 Salmon became the father of Boos; Boos became the father of Obed; 22 Obed became the father of Jessai, and Jessai became the father of David.

THE OLD GREEK TEXT OF REIGNS TO THE READER

Edition of the Greek Text
Since no volume of the Göttingen Septuagint is currently available for the four books of Reigns, the translation throughout is of Alfred Rahlfs, Septuaginta. Id est Vetus Testamentum graece iuxta LXX interpretes 2 vols. (Stuttgart: Württembergische Bibelanstalt, 1935), except in the few places noted. Rahlfs did not include any diacriticals for proper nouns, so the Swete text as reproduced in the Larger Cambridge Septuagint has determined whether names beginning with a vowel or diphthong should be aspirated.

The NETS translation of the OG sections departs from the Rahlfs text in only seven places: 1 Rgns 1.4; 9.24; 13.4; 14.20, 23; 2 Rgns 3.5; 7.21. Versification follows the Rahlfs text, with the numbering of the NRSV noted in parentheses.

Translational Profile of the Greek
In 1907 Henry St. John Thackeray claimed that the Old Greek (OG) translation did not include all of Samuel and Kings. To simplify his presentation, he divided the text of the four books of Reigns using the following sigla:

- Α = 1 Rgn 1–31
- ΒΒ = 2 Rgn 1.1–11.1
- ΒΥ = 2 Rgn 11.2–3 Rgn 2.11
- ΓΓ = 3 Rgn 2.12–21.43
- ΓΔ = 3 Rgn 22 + 4 Rgn 1–25
- Θ = the combined passages ΒΥ and ΓΔ.

On the basis of the presence or absence of two syntactical and eight lexicographical features in the earliest and best extant Greek manuscripts for 1–4 Reigns, he claimed that the Old Greek text originally omitted the Θ portion and that the current text was the work of a later translator. The omissions in ΒΥ include the events of the life of David from his initial encounter with Bathsheba to his death, and in ΓΔ they extend from the time of Jehoshaphat to the Babylonian exile. Thackeray saw the omissions as prompted by concern over content, what he characterized as “The Decline and Fall of the Monarchy,” and he found ready parallels in the book of 2 Supplements (Chronicles in the MT), which similarly omits the David and Bathsheba story and extended portions of the subsequent events.

In the light of the research of Barthélemy and others, it is now generally accepted that rather than representing a new translation, Θ is the result of a later revision. Accordingly, the underlying translation has affinities with the OG of the rest of Reigns, but the revisions have distinct differences that set the sections apart from the rest of Reigns. However, those who accept that the text is a revision lack any agreed upon explanation for why only these portions were revised.

In a similar manner NETS assigned the Old Greek sections and the revised sections to two different translators, and while collaboration has been necessary at specific points, for the most part they worked independently, including the writing of the respective introductions. It is significant, then, that when the introductions were brought together in preparation for publication, each translator has characterized the overall Greek translation in similar terms relative to its relationship to the Hebrew Vorlage and the degree of faithfulness.

2 The Greek title is Βοσιλαίσιων: 1, 2 Reigns = 1, 2 Samuel; 3, 4 Reigns = 1, 2 Kings.
3 As will be noted in more detail, in section ΓΓ the order of the OG text varies extensively from that of the standard Hebrew Bible, and the text from 2 Kgs 22.41–50 (the beginning of ΓΓ) is included within ΓΓ as 3 Rgns 16.28a–h.
THE OLD GREEK TRANSLATION OF REIGNS

The Translation Process

The translation work involved two major iterations and several minor ones. The first major one concentrated on the text of the NRSV. Throughout, the NRSV and NETS were placed in parallel columns, and a synoptic relationship was maintained with the two texts aligned not only by chapter and verse, but by clause, phrase, and even word. Since the NRSV was the basis of the NETS translation, as few changes as necessary were made. However, the second time through careful attention was paid to the Greek text, and all necessary changes were made to ensure that the resultant text was faithful to the OG qua Greek.

The Old Greek Text

While Thackeray gave few specifics, he believed that each of the three OG sections was the work of a different translator. At the same time, they all share common underlying characteristics. The one characteristic he chose to focus on was the frequency of historic presents where past events are described using present tense verbs “as date-registering” and “to introduce new scenes in the drama.” By his count there are 227 examples in the OG sections of Reigns (close to two-thirds of all the examples in the LXX), but only 9 in Ḫ, some of which he considered spurious. In 1 Reigns 17, seven occur in the first three verses: συνάγουσιν ... συνάγονται ... παρέμβαλουσιν ... συνάγονται ... παρατάσσονται ... ἵσταται ... ἵσταται. In accord with standard translation methods, this construction is not represented in NETS.

In terms of the traditional criteria, the translation is literal, though generally not slavishly so in the style of Aquila, and more specifically, overall it is isomorphic. However, the insistence on representing in Greek all of the frequent, redundant nominative personal pronouns in imitation of the Hebrew Vorlage would have sounded strange to the native Greek speaker. While Greek does at times use such a pronoun for emphasis, it is clear that this is not what prompts the translator but rather the presence of the corresponding pronoun in the Hebrew. It is as if the guiding principle was: leave no element untranslated.

Because of the close adherence to the Hebrew word order, the initial impression is that this is semitized Greek, and it is true that at the level of idiom numerous Hebrew expressions found their way into Greek and would have sounded strange to the reader. Yet at the same time, word order aside, with few exceptions, the grammar and syntax is that of koine Greek. In contradistinction to Hebrew (and Latin), Greek has in addition to the active voice and the passive voice, the middle voice where the subject of the verb is both the doer and the receiver of the action. Some Greek verbs only occur in the middle voice, while others are regularly middle in one tense and active in another. A study of all of the middle voices in 1 Reigns established that the presence of middle voice forms was not due to Semitic interference from the Hebrew text, but rather the Greek syntax follows normal Greek usage.

While the translation in general is adequate, at times it is so literal that even though the Greek matches the Hebrew word for word, the resultant translation says something significantly different. At the word level, ἱέρος “horn,” ἑξή ν “hand,” and οἶκος “house” are translated respectively κέρας, χείρ, and οίκος with the same basic meanings. This is not a problem so long as the semantic fields do not move outside of their standard denotations. However, on the Hebrew side, ὁ ἱερὸς (1 Sam 2.1,10) and ἡ ἁγιασμένη (2 Sam 8.3) connote “strength,” “power,” and in addition, ὁ ἱερός connotes “a monument” (1 Sam 15.12), while οἶκος (1 Sam 1.21) connotes “family,” “household,” none of which find any correspondence on the Greek side. In spite of this, with no regard for the context, the translator maintains the standard associations. Similarly, where the homophone ἐν “I pray” occurs, it is translated ἐν ἑαυτῷ “in/by me” with no regard for context, as if it were the inseparable preposition ἐν with pronominal suffix.

At the level of phrase, a typical example is found at 1 Sam 9.21. The MT reads: ἔλεξεν μὴ ἐν αὐτῷ ἶδεται (NRSV “I am only a Benjaminite”), for which the OG has: Όχις ὁ οἶκος ἣς ἦπιος έγρο ἐίμι ἃ ἑαυτόν έλεξα ἡμῖν ἠμῖν ἐλεγώ ἐκείνως ἐξώς τοῦ τόπου, οὗ ἐκείνως ἐκείνως ἐξορθεὶσαν. In accord with standard translation methods, this construction is not represented in NETS.

Since the two languages belong to different language groups, the syntax of each does not correspond at every point, so close correspondence of the Greek to the Hebrew at times results in felicitous Greek. The last part of 2 Rgns 2.23 reads καὶ ἔγενετο πῶς ὁ ἐρχόμενος ἐγὼ τοῦ τόπου, οὗ ἐπονεῖν ἐκείνως ἐξορθείσα τοῦ τόπου...
The features of the OG are the frequent use of transliterations, though at times in unpredictable ways, since in the same context a word can be both translated and transliterated. In 1 Reigns 5, \text{εἰρησολήμη} is first transliterated σφασθ in v. 4, and then translated βοηθος in v. 5. In all, there are 25 transliterations of common nouns in the OG sections, but with none found in section ββ. Since most of the Hebrew proper nouns have no counterparts in Greek, the translator has simply transliterated. For the most part these are consistent across all three sections, though some variation occurs, such as the dual spelling Σηλς/Σηλμ. Where the resulting transliteration has an existing Greek counterpart, such as \text{Ανως}, it will sometimes decline as if it were a Greek noun. This is not always obvious in the Rahlfss text, since it does not include diacriticals for proper nouns (e.g., 1 Rgns 1.2 καὶ θέτις Άνως). Similarly, proper nouns with an existing Greek form, such as Αἰγυπτος ("Egypt"), are used to translate the Hebrew counterpart (in this case, \text{Σηλμ}). At the same time, \text{Ἱεροσολύμα} ("Jerusalem") is always transliterated Ιερουσαλήμ in the OG of Reigns, since it is the only form found in the Greek translations of the Hebrew Bible. It is not until the Apocrypha that the declinable form Ιερουσαλίμ (Hierosolyma), also found in the Greek New Testament, appears.

Two transcriptions are worthy of closer attention. First is \text{Ιάσαμ}, as in the title \text{Ιάσαμος εἰρησολήμης} "Lord of hosts," found first in the Hebrew Bible at 1 Sam 1.3. In 1 Reigns, \text{Ιάσαμ} is transliterated σφασθ ("sabeoth," 1.2, 11; 15.2; 17.45; in 4.4 the OG has no counterpart in MT). In section ββ of 2 Reigns the translation is either παντοκράτωρ ("Almighty," 5.10; 7.8, 25 [not in MT]; 19.10, 15) or δύναμις ("host," 6.2, 18). The γγ section of 3 Reigns again has a translation, either as παντοκράτωρ ("Almighty," 19.10, 14) or δύναμις ("host," 17.1 [not in MT]; 18.15), but it does not have a transliteration.

The second example is the consistent translation of \text{Σουλων} "Philistine" as (δ/ό/ό) ἀλλόφυλος/-οι "al- lophyle(s)," first seen in the book of Judges (3.3, 31; for a total of 20x), rather than the transliteration φυλιστιμ ("Phylistim") found already in Genesis (8x), Exodus (2x), Iesous (Joshua) (1x), Judges (6x) and Sirach (3x).

Overall, with the strong Semitic flavor so pervasive, this is non-literary Greek. For instance, the particle μόν only occurs once in the OG sections (1 Rgns 20.14), and then without a corresponding δε; and δε is found 14 times, in stark contrast to the books of Genesis with 855 instances and Exodus with 402 occurrences. Further, with close imitation of the Hebrew parataxis being the norm, the standard Greek hypotaxis is largely eschewed. In line with the LXX text in general, neologisms are found in the OG sections, though only 4 are unique to these sections: ἐπακρώσις (1 Rgns 15.22), ὑφάλφρης (2 Rgns 8.18) ὀπτέλεκτος (3 Rgns 6.1a, 36, 48, 49; 10.11, 12 [2x]), κοιλοσταθμέω (3 Rgns 6.9), δικτύομαι (3 Rgns 7.6), ἀλυριτής (3 Rgns 19.6).

It is not uncommon in the recording of a Hebrew oath to leave the apodosis unexpressed, perhaps originally having been signaled by a hand gesture akin to drawing the fingers across one’s throat, or something similar. The resulting Greek translation is a solecism (see 1 Rgns 3.14).

In the areas of slavery and children/youth, Greek has a more extensive vocabulary than Hebrew, and while several words are interchanged as virtually synonymous, it was deemed advisable to standardize the translation equivalents to signal word changes for the NETS reader. Perhaps the most jarring is the frequent translation of \text{σδαβ} ("servant/slave") as δουλος/δουλη ("bond" slave) (including Hanna, 1 Rgns 1.10), but the Greek is unequivocal. While παις is "boy," it is often found in the context of slavery and is there translated "servant." As far as youth and children are concerned, the following standard equivalents have been adopted: παιδίου "boy, child," παιδαρίων "boy, lad," τέκνων "child," νεανίς "young man," νεανίσκος "youth, young man."

In line with the NRSV translation, gender inclusive language has been adopted where the Greek text supports it. However, where the OG translation uses gender specific terms such as ἄνη γυνη "man," γυνη "woman," rather than the generic ἄνθρωπος "human" (whether male or female), the NETS translation reflects this. However, there is also fluidity in the use of the terms as seen in the story of the Leminite who brought news of the capture of the ark of the Lord in 1 Rgns 4. He is variously designated as ἀνήρ (v. 12), ἄνθρωπος (vv. 13, 14), ἄνήρ (v. 16), πατέρας (v. 17).

7 They are: αυλας, αυλαμιν, αλεμωιν, αλεμωινι, ασαμαροι, ασαμαροιν, βαρα, βαραχθαιν, γεδουρο, γυμορ, δαβιρ, εργοβ, εφου, ελωι, θαλατα, θεε, θεραφιν, ιασορ, κυμα, κεχεοκονθ, νασιβ, νεβελ, νεεσσαραν, οιφι, ραθη, φελλανι.

8 In the LXX as a whole, significant numbers for the occurrence of μόν are only found in the non-translational Greek books of the Apocrypha, 2–4 Makkabees and Wisdom, although the book of Job has 13 occurrences.

In addition to the above, some words or phrases are used relatively frequently in these OG sections, significantly more frequently than elsewhere in the rest of the LXX. Of the 661 times that the preposition ἐνώπιον ("before") occurs overall, 138 (21%) are in these sections, and 66 are found in 1 Rgns, the most of any book, LXX or Greek New Testament (the most in the latter is Revelation at 35x). In contrast it occurs only 5x in Genesis and 43x in the Pentateuch as a whole.

For the most part the stereotypical pairings are to be expected, such as ἱερόν-κιβωτός ("ark"), ἱερόν-ἐυλογέω ("to bless"), and ἱερόν-δόξα ("glory"). At one level the association of ἱερόν ("assembly, congregation") and μαρτυρίον ("witness, testimony") is to be expected, since it is found in earlier books, however not when the former means "appointed time," but once the connection was made, it is used in the OG regardless of context.

This is the longest of the three OG sections, and it sets the stage. In relation to the MT, the following verses are not included: 13.1; 17.12–31, 41, 50; 18.1–5, 10–11, 17–19; 23.12. The most significant is the shorter version of events surrounding the David and Goliath story in chapters 17–18.

While the Hebrew text underlying the OG is not identical to the MT, it nevertheless is quite close, and comparison to the latter proved helpful in understanding the Greek text. The Hebrew of 1 Samuel has suffered in transmission, though this is not readily apparent simply by reading the text. Rather it is evident when compared to the OG and the Qumran Samuel manuscripts. Note the following example:

NETS 1 Rgns 14.41 And Saoul said, “O Lord God of Israel, why is it that you have not answered your slave today? If this guilt is in me or in my son Ionathan, O Lord God of Israel, give ‘clear ones,’ and if this is what you say, ‘In your people Israel,’ give, now, holiness.” And Ionathan and Saoul were indicated by the lot, and the people were cleared.

NRSV 1 Sam 14.41 Then Saul said, “O L ORD God of Israel, why have you not answered your servant today? If this guilt is in me or in my son Jonathan, O LORD God of Israel, give Urim; but if this guilt is in your people Israel, give Thummim.” And Jonathan and Saul were indicated by the lot, but the people were cleared.

NIV 1 Sam 14.41 Then Saul prayed to the LORD, the God of Israel, “Give me the right answer.” And Jonathan and Saul were taken by lot, and the men were cleared.

The NRSV reflects the longer OG translation, as can be seen when compared to the NIV translation of the MT. However, the NRSV translators have done more than this. Consciously or unconsciously, they translate δοξής δήλους “give manifestations” back into Hebrew as בורא תבלית, and then translate as “give Urim.”

2 Reigns

While the overall characteristics of the text in section ββ are the same as those found in 1 Reigns, there are nevertheless some 7 differences beyond Thackeray’s observations. Already noted is the preference for translating rather than transliterating πάντα ("hosts") and the absence of transliteration of common nouns, although only two of the lexemes transliterated in the other OG sections are found here: τραγούδης ("raid") translated ἐξοδίας ("raid") in 3.22 and συστρέμματων ("bands") in 4.2; and ἔφοδος ("ephod") translated στολή ("garment") in 6.14.

Third, it is surprising to find the expression καὶ γε intruding into this section at 2.6, 7. However, the manuscript evidence makes clear that these two readings are found in the earliest and best witnesses, rather than being later glosses.

Fourth, at 2.13 the expression ἐπὶ τῷ σῶτῳ ("at the same place") translating πᾶν ("all") occurs for the first of the two times in Reigns OG, the other being in 10.15 (πᾶν). Elsewhere in the OG sections the translation appearing first in Deut 12.15 (κατὰ τοῦ σῶτο "according to this") is found (1 Rgs 11.11; 30.24; 31.6; 2 Rgs 16.10 and 3 Rgs 3.18).11

9 In 1 Rgs 30.8, 15, 23 it is transliterated as γεθδουρ.
10 Not translated in NRSV.
11 In the Pentateuch and elsewhere the translation is frequently ἰματ.
Fifth, at 7.3 the verb βαδίζω translates ἑλθέναι (both: “walk,” “go”). This is the only time this verb occurs in the OG of Reigns, and as close as two verses later the expected περεύομαι translates ἐλθεῖν.

Next, at 8.7, rather than the expected Σολομων used everywhere else in Reigns, including the very next verse (and the rest of the LXX), the declinable form Σολόμων occurs. The latter is the only form found in the NT (Matt, Luke-Acts, John).

Seventh, at 10.2 ὁ τρόπον (“just as”) translates ἀσχολεῖται (“as”). This is the default (but not the only) translation in the Pentateuch, Joshua and Judges. However, though ἀσχολεῖται occurs 20 times in 1 Reigns, ὁ τρόπον is not used. Instead a variety of other words with the same basic meaning are used (ὅσις, καθώσις, ὃς, καθότι, διότι). Thus in 2 Reigns there is a measure of selectivity.

Taken individually, some of these examples might be easily dismissed, but taken together they indicate either the influence of one or more hands or a change in editorial approach.

3 Reigns

Unlike any of the other sections, γγ contains both additions not found in any extant Hebrew text and extensively rearranged text from within the section, and these Miscellanies are its most striking characteristic. Whole chapters are in different order. Sections are included more than once, some drawn from Supplements (MT Chronicles), while others have no known counterpart in the Hebrew Bible or the LXX. The sections are: 2.35a–n, 46a–l; 5.14a,b; 6.1a–d; 6.36a; 9.9a; 10.22a–c; 12.24a–z; 16.26a–h; also, chapters 20 and 21 are in reverse order, and 22.41–50, from the beginning of section γδ, are included in this section at 16.26a–h. Where the source of the transposed text is known, the reference is given in parentheses. In many instances only parts of verses are included, and the material quoted might not be as extensive as would otherwise appear, since the end of known passages is not indicated within any particular “verse.”

The additions to 12.24 are the longest interpolation. They include 14.1–20, which is not found in loco and is not found in chapter 12 in MT order. Further, the additions include a duplication of the verses from the beginning of chapter 12 already included ahead of the addition. They serve to rehearse the events surrounding the death of Salomon, the reign of Roboam, and the rise of Ieroboam and concomitant revolt of Israel. However, all this had already been covered in chapters 11 and 12. The additions constitute a distinct recension and give at once evidence of an underlying Hebrew original, but an agenda different from that of the MT. To date, no a priori grounds have been established as a basis for preferring one recension over the other in toto.

Naturally this phenomenon has been the subject of discussion and debate, but there is no agreed accounting for it.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

The translation process was enhanced by various resources. The time-honored translations by Thomson and Brenton sometimes provided a starting point for a difficult verse but also proved to have been overly influenced by the Hebrew text (and possibly English translations of the same) at just such points. Tov’s Hebrew-Greek parallel text has been invaluable, initially as worksheets where all the preliminary translation work was done. The integration of Tov’s text into BibleWorks 7 facilitated preparation of this Introduction. Along the same line, the availability of a hyperlinked version of the LSJ lexicon within Logos Bible software made lexical work a pleasure. Though regrettably not complete at this time, MSL 2002 contains a wealth of important information that has guided the translation at key points.

Beyond the physical resources, my weekly adult Bible class proved invaluable. Since they knew neither Greek nor Hebrew, their focus was thereby on the NETS translation itself, and their observations helped shape English expression.

Finally, my profound thanks to Albert Pietersma. I have been privileged to work with him from the outset of the project, beginning with the NETS Translation Committee, and then throughout my translation work. His vision for the completed project provided guidance along the way and encouragement to persist. While his acumen enriched at many places, it is nowhere more evident than in the translation of 3 Reigns 7.

BERNARD A. TAYLOR

12 It occurs 4x in the ββ section of 2 Reigns (14.8; 15.9; 18.21, 24.1). Thus the use of this verb and the occurrence of καὶ γς suggest a possible link to the following section and its translator.

13 The added letters distinguish “verses” within the subsections.
There was a man of Harmathaim Sipha from the hill country of Ephraim, and his name was Elkana son of Jeremeel son of Eliou son of Thoke, in Nasib Ephraim. 2And he had two wives; the name of the one was Hanna, and the name of the second Phennana. And Phennana had children, and Hanna had no child.

3 And the man used to go up from days to days from his town, from Harmathaim, to do obeisance and to sacrifice to the Lord God Sabaoth at Selom, and there Eli and his two sons, Hophni and Phinees, were priests of the Lord. 4And it happened on a day and Elkana sacrificed and gave portions to his wife Phennana and to her sons b, 5and to Hanna he gave one portion, because she did not have a child; however, Elkana loved Hanna more than this one, and the Lord had closed the area of her womb. 6Since the Lord did not give her a child according to her affliction and according to the dependency of her affliction, she was also becoming despondent because of this, that the Lord had closed the area of her womb so as not to give her a child. 7Thus she used to do year by year, when she would go up to the house of the Lord, and she would be despondent and would weep and not eat. 8And her husband Elkana said to her, “Hanna,” and she said to him, “Here I am, sir.” And he said to her, “How is it that you are weeping? And why do you not eat? And why does your heart smite you? Am I not good to you beyond ten times? And why do you not eat?”

9 And after they had eaten at Selom, Hanna rose and stood before the Lord, and Eli the priest was sitting on the seat beside the doorposts of the shrine of the Lord. 10And she was deeply distressed in soul and prayed to the Lord, and weeping she went 11and vowed a vow to the Lord, saying: “Adonai, Lord, Eloai, Sabaoth, if looking you will look on the humiliation of your slave and remember me and give to your slave an offspring of men, and I will give him as one devoted before you until the boy goes up if I shall wean it, and it will appear to the face of the Lord and stay there forever.” 12And her husband Elkana said to her, “Do what is good in your sight; stay until you have weaned him; only may the Lord establish that which goes out of your mouth.” And the woman remained and nursed her son until she weaned him.

13 And she went up with him to Selom with a three-year-old bull calf and bread and an oiphie of flour and a nebelf of wine, and she entered into the house of the Lord at Selom, and the boy was with them. 14And they brought him before the Lord, and his father slaughtered the sacrifice that he used to do from days to days to the Lord, and he brought the boy near and slaughtered the bull calf. And Hanna, the mother of the child, brought it to Eli 26and said, “By me, sir! Your soul lives, I am the woman who stood before you when praying to the Lord; 27for this boy I prayed, and the Lord has granted me my request that I requested of him. 28And I lend him to the Lord as long as he lives, a loan to the Lord.”

And she said,

“Boast not, and speak not lofty things; let not big talking come forth from your mouth, because there is none holy like the Lord, and there is none righteous like our God; there is none holy besides you.

3 “My heart was made firm in the Lord; my horn was exalted in my god; my mouth was made wide against enemies; I was glad in your deliverance, because there is none holy like the Lord, and there is none righteous like our God; there is none holy besides you.

4 The bow of the mighty has become weak, and weak ones have girded themselves with might;

5 full of bread they suffered loss, and the hungry have forsaken the land, because a barren one has borne seven, and she who is rich in children became weak.

6 The Lord puts to death and brings to life;
The Lord makes poor and makes rich; he brings down to Hades and brings up.
The Lord will make his adversary weak; he will not stand before him.
He raises up the needy from the ground and lifts the poor from the dunghill, to make them sit with the mighty of the peoples, even making them inherit a throne of glory.

"Granting the prayer to the one who prays, he has even blessed the years of the righteous, because not by strength is a man mighty.

The Lord will make his adversary weak; the Lord is holy. Let not the clever boast in his cleverness, and let not the mighty boast in his might, and let not the wealthy boast in his wealth, but let him who boasts boast in this: to understand and know the Lord and to execute justice and righteousness in the midst of the land.
The Lord ascended to the heavens and thundered. He will judge earth's ends and gives strength to our kings and will exalt the horn of his anointed."

And they left him there before the Lord and departed to Harmathaim, and the lad was ministering to the face of the Lord, before Eli the priest.

And the sons of Eli the priest were pestilent sons not knowing the Lord, and what was due to the priest from the people, when any was sacrificing, and the priest's servant would come, while the meat boiled, and a three-pronged meat hook in his hand, and he thrust it into the great cauldron or meat boiled, and a three-pronged meat hook in his hand, and he thrust it into the great cauldron or meat boiled, and a three-pronged meat hook in his hand, and he thrust it into the great cauldron or meat boiled, and a three-pronged meat hook in his hand, and he thrust it into the great cauldron or meat boiled, and a three-pronged meat hook in his hand.

And they left him there before the Lord and departed to Harmathaim, and the lad was ministering to the face of the Lord, before Eli the priest.

And the sons of Eli the priest were pestilent sons not knowing the Lord, and what was due to the priest from the people, when any was sacrificing, and the priest's servant would come, while the meat boiled, and a three-pronged meat hook in his hand, and he thrust it into the great cauldron or into the kettle or into the pot; all that came up on the meat hook the priest would take for himself. Like this they would do to all Israel who came to sacrifice to the Lord at Selom. And before the fat was burned, the priest's servant would come and say to the man who was sacrificing, "Give meat for the priest to roast, and I will not accept from you boiled meat out of the cauldron." And the man who was sacrificing would say, "Let the fat be burned first as is proper, and take for yourself of all that your soul desires." And he said, "No, because you shall give it now, otherwise I will take it by force." And the sin of the boys before the Lord was very great, for they set at naught the offering of the Lord.

And Samouel was ministering before the Lord, a boy wearing an ephoud; and his mother made for him a small double cloak and would bring it up to him from time to time when she would go up with her husband to offer the daily sacrifice of the days. And Eli blessed Elkana and his wife, saying, "May the Lord repay you with offspring by this woman in return for the loan that you made to the Lord." And the man returned to his place.

And the Lord took note of Hanna, and she bore further, three sons and two daughters. And the boy Samouel became great before the Lord.

And Eli was a very old man, and he heard what his sons were doing to the sons of Israel, and he said to them, "Why do you do according to this thing which I hear from the mouth of all the people of the Lord? No, children, for the report which I hear is not good; do not behave in this way. For the reports that I hear are not good so that people are not subject to God. If in sinning a man sins against a man, and they shall pray for him to the Lord, and if he sins against the Lord, who shall pray for him? And they would not listen to the voice of their father, for the Lord willfully willed to destroy them.

And the boy Samouel kept going and became great and was in favor both with the Lord and with people.

And a man of God came to Eli and said, "This is what the Lord says, 'When I revealed myself, I revealed myself to your father's house when they were in Egypt, slaves to the house of Pharao, and I chose the house of your father out of all the scepters of Israel, to serve me as priests and to go up on my altar and to offer incense and to bear an ephoud, and I gave to the house of your father all the things of the fire of the sons of Israel for food, and why did you look with greedy eye at my incense and my sacrifice and honored your sons above me, to bless themselves with the first fruit of every offering of Israel before me?' Therefore this is what the Lord the God of Israel has said: 'I said: Your family and your ancestral family shall go in and out before me forever, but now, says the Lord: 'Far be it from me, for I will only honor those who honor me, and he who despises me shall be treated with contempt. Behold, days are coming, and I will destroy your offspring and the offspring of your father's house, and no elderly of yours will be in my house all the days, and a man I will not destroy for you from my altar so that his eyes may fail and his soul may ebb away, but every one that remains of your house— they will fall by the sword of men. And this is the sign for you that will come upon these two sons of yours, Hophni and Phinees; both shall die on one day. And I will raise up for myself a faithful priest, who shall do all that is in my heart and that is in my soul, and I will build him a sure house, and he shall go about before me who shall be his anointed one all the days. And it shall be; he who is left in your house shall come to do obeisance to him for a silver obole, saying, Put me down in one of your priestly places to eat bread.'"

And the boy Samouel was ministering before the Lord before Eli the priest, and a word of the Lord was precious in those days; there was no distinguishing vision.
2 And it happened in that day that Eli was lying down in his place, and his eyes began to be heavy, and he could not see, and it was before the lamp of God was replenished, and Samouel was lying down in the shrine, where the ark of God was, and the Lord called, “Samouel! Samouel!” And he said, “Here I am!” and ran to Eli and said, “Here I am, for you have called me,” and he said, “I have not called you; return, lie down.” And he returned and lay down. And the Lord continued and called, “Samouel! Samouel!” and he went to Eli the second time and said, “Here I am, for you have called me,” and he said, “I have not called you; return, lie down.” And it was before Samouel knew God and a word of the Lord had been revealed to him. And the Lord continued to call Samouel for a third time, and he got up and went to Eli and said, “Here I am, for you have called me.” And Eli learned that the Lord had called the boy, and he said, “Return, lie down, my child, and it shall be that if he calls you, then you shall say, ‘Speak, Lord, for your slave is listening.’” And Samouel went and lay down in his place.

10 And the Lord came and stood and called him a second time, and Samouel said, “Speak, for your slave is listening.” And the Lord said to Samouel, “Behold, I carry out my words in Israel so that both ears of everyone that hears shall tingle. On that day I will raise up against Eli all that I have spoken concerning his house; I will begin, and I will finish. And I have told him that I am about to punish his house forever, for the iniquities of his sons, because his sons were reviling God, and even so he would not admonish them. I have sworn to the house of Eli, ‘If the iniquity of Eli’s house shall be expiated by incense or sacrifice forever . . .’”

15 And Samouel lay there until morning, and he arose early in the morning and opened the doors of the house of the Lord, and Samouel was afraid to tell the vision to Eli. And Eli said to Samouel, “Samouel, my child,” and he said, “Here I am.” And he said, “What was the word that was told you? Nay, do not hide it from me; may God do thus to you and thus add, if you hide anything from me of all the words spoken to you in your ears.” And Samouel reported all the words and hid not from him, and Eli said, “He is the Lord; he will do what is good before him.”

19 And Samouel became great, and the Lord was with him, and none of his words fell to the ground. And all Israel from Dan and as far as Bersabee knew that Samouel was faithful to the Lord as a prophet. And the Lord continued to appear at Selom, for the Lord had revealed himself to Samouel, and from one end of the land and as far as the other, Samouel was believed to be a prophet of the Lord to all Israel. And Eli was a very old man, and his sons kept advancing, and their way was evil before the Lord.

4 And it happened in those days that the allophyles mustered for war against Israel, and Israel went out to meet them for war, and they encamped at Abenezer, and the allophyles encamped at Aphek. And the allophyles prepared for war against Israel, and the battle turned and a man of Israel fell before the allophyles, and four thousand men were smitten on the field in the battle. And the people came to the camp, and the elders of Israel said, “Why has the Lord caused us to fall today before allophyles? Let us take the ark of our God from Selom, and let it go out in our midst, and it will save us out of the hand of our enemies.” And the people sent to Selom and brought from there the ark of the Lord who is seated on the cherubim, and both sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinees, were with the ark.

5 And it happened, when the ark of the Lord came into the camp, all Israel gave a mighty shout, and the earth resounded. And the allophyles heard the shouting, and the allophyles said, “What is this great shouting in the camp of the Hebrews?” And they learned that the ark of the Lord had come into the camp. And the allophyles were afraid and said, “These are the gods that have come to them into the camp; woe to us, O Lord! Deliver us today, for nothing like this has happened yesterday or the third day. Woe to us! Who will deliver us out of the hand of these sturdy gods? These are the gods who struck Egypt with every plague, and in the wilderness. Strengthen yourselves and be men, O allophyles, lest you become subject to the Hebrews as they have been subject to us, and be men and fight them.”

10 And they fought them, and a man of Israel fell, and they fled each to his covert, and there was very great distress, and there fell of Israel thirty thousand from the units. And the ark of God was captured, and both sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinees, died.

12 And a man, a Ieminite, ran from the battle line and came to Selom on that day, and his clothes were torn, and earth was upon his head. And he arrived, and behold, Eli was sitting upon the seat by the gate watching the road, for his heart was distraught for the ark of God, and the battle turned and a man of Israel was killed in the battle. And the men of Selom sent to Selom and brought from there the ark of the Lord who is seated on the cherubim, and both sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinees, died.

16 And hurrying the man came to Eli and said to him, “I am the one who has come from the camp, and I have fled from the battle today.” And he said, “What has happened, child?” And the lad answered and said, “A man of Israel has fled before the allophyles, and there has also been a great slaughter among the people, and both your sons are dead, and the ark of God has been captured.” And it happened, when he mentioned the ark of God, he fell over backward from the seat near the gate, and his back was broken, and he died, for the man was old and heavy, and he had judged Israel twenty years.

19 And his daughter-in-law, the wife of Phinees, was pregnant to give birth, and she heard the news that the ark of God was captured and that her father-in-law and her husband were dead, and she crouched down and gave birth, for her labor pains came upon her. 20 And as she was about to die, the women attending her said to her, “Do not be afraid, for you have borne a son,” and she did not answer, and her heart did not give heed. 21 And she named the boy Woebarchaboth, because of the ark of God and because of her father-in-law and because of her husband. 22 And they said, “The glory of Israel has been exiled, in that the ark of the Lord has been taken.”

5 And the allophyles took the ark of God and brought it from Abennezer to Azotus. 2 And the allophyles took the ark of the Lord and brought it into the house of Dagon and placed it beside Dagon. 3 And the Azotians rose early and entered into the house of Dagon and looked and beheld, Dagon fallen on his face before the ark of God. And they raised up Dagon and put him back in his place. And the hand of the Lord was heavy on the Azotians, and he plagued them and afflicted them on their seats, Azotus and its borders.

4 And it happened, when they rose early on the next morning, that, behold, Dagon fallen on his face before the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and the head of Dagon and both soles of his hands cut off, each on the front parts of amapheth, and both wrists of his hands fallen in the doorway; only the spine of Dagon was left. 5 This is why the priests of Dagon and anyone who enters the house of Dagon do not step on the step of the house of Dagon in Azotus to this day, for when they step over, they step over.

6 And the hand of the Lord was heavy upon Azotus and brought trouble on them, and it broke out upon them into the ships, and in the midst of its territory mice grew up, and there was great confusion of death in the city. 7 And the men of Azotus saw that it was so, and they said, “The ark of the God of Israel shall not sit with us, for his hand is harsh on us and on our god Dagon.” 8 And they sent and gathered together to them the satraps of the allophyles and said, “Send away the ark of the God of Israel, and let it lodge in its own place, and it shall not put us and our people to death”; for there was a very heavy confusion of death in the whole city when the ark of the God of Israel entered there, 12 and those who lived and did not die were stricken on the seats, and the cry of the city went up to heaven.

6 And the ark was in the country of the allophyles seven months, and their land broke out in mice. 2 And the allophyles called for the priests and the diviners and their enchanters, saying, “What should we do with the ark of the Lord? Tell us in what we should send it to its place.” 3 And they said, “If you are sending away the ark of the covenant of the Lord, God of Israel, on no account send it away empty, but in giving it back give back for it something of the torment, and then you will be healed, and it will propitiate for you, lest his hand not withdraw from you.” 4 And they said, “What is that something of the torment that we should render for it?” And they said, “Five gold seats, according to the number of the satraps of the allophyles, because you and your rulers and the people have one offense, and a gold mouse a likeness of your mice that ravage the land, and you shall give glory to the Lord, that he might lighten his hand from off you and from off your gods and from off your land. 6 And why should you make your hearts heavy, as Egypt and Pharaoh made their heart heavy? Was it not so when he mocked them, they sent them off, and they departed? 7 And now take, and make a new cart, and take two cows without their young that have calved for the first time, and yoke the cows to the cart, but take the young home away from them, and you shall take the ark and place it on the cart and render for it the implements of gold for the torment, and you shall put bersechthanc as a deposit at its side, and you shall give glory to the Lord, that he might lighten his hand from off you and from off your gods and from off your land. 9 And why should you make your hearts heavy, as Egypt and Pharaoh made their heart heavy? Was it not so when he mocked them, they sent them off, and they departed? 7 And now take, and make a new cart, and take two cows without their young that have calved for the first time, and yoke the cows to the cart, but take the young home away from them, and you shall take the ark and place it on the cart and render for it the implements of gold for the torment, and you shall put bersechthanc as a deposit at its side, and you shall send it off and drive it away, and it will go its way, and you shall watch, if it goes on the way to its own borders by Baithsamsys, he has done us this great harm, and if not, then we shall know that his hand has not struck us, but this is a chance that has happened to us.”

10 And the allophyles did so and took two cows that had calved for the first time and yoked them to the cart and kept back their young at home, 11 and they put the ark on the cart and the deposit as ergab and the gold mice. 12 And the cows went straight on the way to the way of Baithsamsys; they kept going on one path and kept toiling and did not turn aside to the right or to the left, and the satraps of the allophyles kept going behind it as far as the borders of Baithsamsys. 13 And the people of Baithsamsys were reaping the wheat harvest in the valley, and they lifted up their eyes and saw the ark of the Lord and rejoiced to meet it. 14 And the cart came into the field of Hosee which was in Baithsamsys, and they set up there beside it a great stone, and they split up the wood of the cart and offered the cows as a whole burnt offering to the Lord. 15 And the Leuites brought up the ark of the Lord and the deposit, the ergab\(^a\) with it, and the gold implements that were with it, and set them upon the large stone, and the men of Baithسامys offered whole burnt offerings and sacrifices in that day to the Lord. 16 And the five satraps of the allophyles were watching, and they returned on that day to Ascalon.

17 And these are the gold seats which the allophyles returned to the Lord for the torment: one for Azotus, one for Gaza, one for Ascalon, one for Geth, one for Akkaron—\(^b\) and the gold mice according to the number of all the cities of the allophyles, of the five satraps, from fortified city and as far as the village of the Pherezite and to the great stone on which they set down the ark of the covenant of the Lord, in the field of Hosee the Baithسامyte.

18 And the sons of Iechonias were not pleased with the men of Baithسامys, because they saw the ark of the Lord, and he smote among them seventy men and fifty thousand men. And the people mourned because the Lord had inflicted on the men and fifty thousand men. And the people with the men of Baithسامys, because they saw the Samsyte.

19 And the sons of Iechonias were not pleased with the men of Baithسامys, because they saw the ark of the Lord, and he smote among them seventy men and fifty thousand men. And the people mourned because the Lord had inflicted on the people a very great plague. 20 And the men who were from Baithسامys said, “Who shall be able to pass before this holy Lord? And to whom shall the ark of the Lord go up from us?” 21 And they sent messengers to the inhabitants of Kariathiarim, saying, “The allophyles returned the ark of the Lord; come down, and take it up to yourselves.”

And the men of Kariathiarim came and brought up the ark of the covenant of the Lord and brought it in to the house of Aminadab, which was on the hill, and they consecrated his son, Eleazar, to have charge of the ark of the covenant of the Lord.

2 And it happened, from the day the ark was at Kariathiarim, that the days multiplied, and it was twenty years, and all the house of Israel looked back after the Lord.

3 And Samouel said to all the house of Israel, saying, “If you are returning to the Lord with all your heart, take away the foreign gods and the groves from among you, and prepare your hearts towards the Lord, and be subject to him alone, and he will deliver you out of the hand of allophyles.” 4 And the sons of Israel took away the Baalim and the groves of Astaroth and were subject to the Lord alone.

5 And Samouel said, “Gather all Israel at Massephath, and I will pray to the Lord for you.” 6 And they were brought together at Massephath, and they drew water and poured it out on the ground before the Lord, and they fasted in that day and said, “We have sinned before the Lord.” And Samouel was judging the sons of Israel at Massephath.

7 And the allophyles heard that all the sons of Israel had been gathered together at Massephath, and the satraps of the allophyles went up against Isra-rael, and the sons of Israel heard and were afraid from before the allophyles. 8 And the sons of Israel said to Samouel, “Do not omit mention of us so as not to cry to the Lord, your God, and he will save us out of the hand of the allophyles.” 9 And Samouel took one sucking lamb and offered it with all the people as a whole burnt offering to the Lord, and Samouel cried out to the Lord for Israel, and the Lord heard him. 10 And Samouel was offering up the whole burnt offering, and the allophyles drew near for war against Israel. And the Lord thund-ered with a mighty voice in that day against the allophyles, and they were thrown into confusion and fell before Israel. 11 And the men of Israel went out of Massephath and pursued the allophyles and struck them down as far as under Baithchor.

12 And Samouel took one stone and set it up between Massephath and between the old city and called its name Abenezee, Stone of the Helper, and he said, “Thus far the Lord has helped us.” 13 And the Lord humbled the allophyles, and they did not add again to enter into the territory of Israel, and the hand of the Lord was against the allophyles all the days of Samouel. 14 And the towns that the allophyles took from the sons of Israel were restored, and they restored them to Israel from Ascalon to Azob, and Israel recovered the territory from the hand of the allophyles. And there was peace between Israel and between the Amorrite.

15 And Samouel was judging Israel all the days of his life, and he went and made the rounds year by year to Baithel and Galgala and Massephath and was judging Israel in all these consecrated places. 16 But his return was to Harmathaim, for his home was there, and he was judging Israel there, and he built there an altar to the Lord.

And it happened, when Samouel became old, that he appointed his sons judges over Israel. 2 And these are the names of his sons; the firstborn Ioel, and the name of the second, Abia, judges in Bersabee. 3 And his sons did not go in his way and turned aside after completion and were taking bribes and perverting statutes. 4 And the men of Israel gathered together and came to Harmathaim to Samouel and said to him, “You are old, and your sons do not go in your way, and now appoint over us a king to judge us just like the rest of the nations.” 5 And the message was evil in the eyes of Samouel when they said, “Give us a king to judge us,” and Samouel prayed to the Lord. 6 And the Lord said to Samouel, “Listen to the voice of the people in whatever they say to you, for they have not rejected you, but they have rejected me from being king over them. 7 According to all the deeds that they did to me from the day I brought them up out of Egypt to this day, and they forsook me and were subject to other gods, so also they are doing to you. 8 And now listen to their voice; only, when testifying, you shall testify to them and tell them the just claim of the king who shall reign over them.”

10 And Samouel told every word of the Lord to the people who were requesting a king of him. 11And he said, "This will be the just claim of the king who will reign over you: he will take your sons and put them in his chariots and for his cavalry, and those running before his chariots, 12and to appoint them for himself officers of thousands and officers of hundreds and to reap his harvest and to gather his vintage and to make his implements of war and the equipment of his chariots, 13and he will take your daughters for perfumers and for cooks and for bakers, 14and he will take your fields and your vineyards and your good olive-groves and give them to his slaves, 15and he will take one-tenth of your grain and of your vineyards and give to his eunuchs and his slaves, 16and he will take your male and female slaves and your good cattle and your donkeys and will take one tenth for his works, 17and he will take one-tenth of your flocks, and you shall be slaves to him. 18And in that day you will cry out from before your king whom you chose for yourselves, and the Lord will not hear you in those days, because you chose a king for yourselves."

19 And the people did not want to listen to Samouel and said to him, "No! But a king will be over us, 20and we too will be like all the nations, and our king will judge us and will go out before us and fight our battle." 21And Samouel heard all the words of the people and spoke them in the ears of the Lord. 22And the Lord said to Samouel, "Listen to their voice, and appoint for them a king." And Samouel said to the men of Israel, "Let each return to his town."

9 And there was a man of the sons of Beniamin, and his name was Kis son of Abiel son of Sared son of Bachir son of Aphek son of a Ieminite man, a mighty man. 2And this man had a son, and his name was Saoul, tall, a good man, and there was not among the sons of Israel better than he; above the shoulder and upward he was taller than all the land.

3 And the donkeys of Kis, Saoul’s father, strayed, and Kis said to his son Saoul, “Take one of the lads with yourself, and arise, and go, and look for the donkeys.” 4And they passed through the hill country of Ephraim and passed through the land of Selcha and did not find them, and they passed through the land of Easakem, and there was nothing, and they passed through the land of Lakim and did not find them.

5 When they came to Siph, then Saoul said to his lad who was with him, “Come, and let us turn back, lest when my father leaves the donkeys he should be anxious about us.” 6And the lad said to him, “Behold, now a man of God is in this town, the man is held in honor; anything, whatever he says, when it comes, it will happen, and now let us go, that he might tell us our journey on which we have set out on it.” 7And Saoul said to his lad who was with him, "And behold, we will go, and what shall we bring the man of God? For the bread in our containers is used up, and there is nothing more that belongs to us to bring to the man of God.” 8And the lad added to answer Saoul and said, "Behold, a quarter of a shekel of silver is found in my hand, and you will give it to the man of God, and he will tell us our way” 9(And formerly in Israel everyone when going to inquire of God would say this, “Come, let us go to the seer,” for formerly the people used to call the prophet, “the seer.”) 10And Saoul said to his lad, “The matter is good; come and let us go.” And they went to the town, there where the man of God was.

11 As they were going up the ascent to the town, then they found the girls when they had come out to draw water and said to them, “Is the seer here?” 12And the girls answered them and said to them, “He is, behold, ahead of you! He has come because of the day to the town, because the people have a sacrifice today at Bama; 13as soon as you enter the town, thus you will find him in the town before he goes up to Bama to eat, for the people will not eat until he enters, because he blesses the sacrifice, and after these things the guests eat, and now go up, for because of the day you will find him.” 14And they went up to the town. As they were entering into the center of the town then, behold, Samouel came to meet them to go up to Bama.

15 And one day before Saoul came to him, the Lord uncovered Samouel’s ear, saying: 16“Tomorrow about this time I will send to you a man from the land of Beniamin, and you shall anoint him to be ruler over my people Israel, and he shall save my people from the hand of allophyles; for I have looked upon the humiliation of my people, because their cry has come to me.” 17And Samouel saw Saoul, and the Lord answered him, "Behold, the man about whom I said to you, ‘This one shall rule among my people.’ " 18And Saoul approached Samouel in the center of the town and said, “Tell, now, which is the house of the seer?” 19And Samouel answered Saoul and said: “I am he; go up before me to Bama, and eat with me today, and in the morning I will send you off and will tell you all that is in your heart. 20And as for your donkeys that were lost three days ago, do not set your heart on them, for they have been found, and whose is the beauty of Israel? Is it not yours and your ancestral house?” 21And Saoul answered and said, “Am I not son of a leminite man, the small sceptor of a tribe of Israel and of the least tribe of the whole sceptor of Beniamin? And why did you speak to me according to this word?” 22And Samouel took Saoul and his lad and brought them into the lodging place and set a place before them about the first of those who had been invited—about seventy men. 23And Samouel said to the cook, “Give me the portion that I gave you, the one I told you to put aside.” 24And the cook had boiled the thigh, and he set it before Saoul, and Samouel said to Saoul, “Behold, that which is left, set it before you, and eat, for it is set before you for a testimony in preference to the others; tear off.” 25And Saoul ate with Samouel in that day.
he came down from Bama into the town, and they spread a bed for Saoul on the roof, 26 and he fell asleep. And it happened when dawn arose that Samouel called Saoul on the roof, saying, “Get up, and I will send you on your way,” and Saoul got up, and he and Samouel went out, outside.

27 As they were going down to the outskirts of the town, Samouel said to Saoul, “Speak to the young man, and let him go on before us, and as for you, stand as today, and hear a message from God.”

10 And Samouel took the flask of oil and poured it on his head and kissed him and said to him, “Has the Lord not anointed you ruler over his people, over Israel? And you shall reign among the people of the Lord, and you will save them from the hand of their enemies all around. And this shall be the sign to you that the Lord anointed you ruler over his heritage: 2 when you depart from me today, then you will find two men, by Rachel’s tomb in the territory of Benjamin, jumping greatly, and they will say to you, ‘The donkeys that you went to seek are found, and behold, your father has disposed of the matter of the donkeys that you went to seek are found, and we will be subject to you.’ 2And Naas the Ammanite, “Make a covenant with us, and we will be subject to you.” 2And Naas the Ammanite went up and encamped against Iabis and encamped against Iabis-Galaa, and all the men of Iabis said to Naas the Ammanite, “Make a covenant with us, and we will be subject to you.” 2And Naas the Ammanite said to them, “By this d I will make a covenant with you, by gouging out of you every right eye, and I will put disgrace upon Israel.” 2And the men of Iabis said to him, “Allow us seven days, and we will send messengers through all the territory of Israel; if there is no one to save us, we will come out to you.” 2And the messengers came to Gabaa and spoke the words in the ears of the people, and all the people lifted up their voice and wept.

5 And behold, Saoul was coming from the field after the early morning, and Saoul said, "Why is it that the people are weeping?" And they told him the words of the sons of Iabis. 6 And a spirit of the Lord sprang upon Saoul when he heard these words, and his anger was greatly kindled against them. 7 And he took two oxen and cut them in pieces and sent throughout all the territory of Israel by the hand of messengers, saying, "He who does not come out after Saoul and after Samouel, like this shall they do to his oxen!" And the dread of the Lord fell upon the people of Israel, and they cried out as one man. 8 And he reviewed them at Abiezek in Bama, every man of Israel, six hundred thousand and the men of loudas, seventy thousand. 9 And he said to the messengers who came, "This is what you shall say to the men of Iabis: 'Tomorrow, by the time the sun is hot, you shall have deliverance.' And the messengers came to the town and told the men of Iabis, and they rejoiced. 10 And the men of labeis said to Naas the Ammanite, "Tomorrow we will come forth to you, and you shall do to us what seems good before you." 11 And it happened after the morrow that Saoul put the people in three companies. And at the morning watch they came into the camp and smote the sons of Ammon until the day had become hot, and there were those who survived; they were scattered, and no two among them were left together.

12 And the people said to Samouel, "Who is it that said, 'Shall Saoul reign over us?' Hand the men over and we will put them to death." 13 And Saoul said, "No one shall die in this day, for today the Lord has wrought deliverance in Israel." 14 And Samouel said to the people, saying, "Let us go to Galgala and there renew the kingdom." 15 And all the people went to Galgala, and there Samouel anointed Saoul king before the Lord in Galgala, and there he sacrificed meat offerings and peace offerings before the Lord, and Samouel and all Israel rejoiced exceedingly.

12 And Samouel said to every man of Israel, "Behold, I heard your voice in all that you said to me, and I set a king over you. 2 And now, behold, the king goes about before you, and I am old, and I will sit still, and behold, my sons are with you, and behold, I have gone about before you from my youth even until this day. 3 Here I am; answer against me before the Lord and before his anointed; whose calf have I taken, or whose donkey have I taken, or whom of you have I oppressed, or whom have I mistreated, or from whose hand have I taken a bribe, even a sandal? Answer against me, and I will restore it to you." 4 And they said to Samouel, "You have not defrauded us, and you have not oppressed us, and you have not afflicted us, and you have not taken anything from the hand of anyone." 5 And Samouel said to the people, "The Lord is witness among you, and his anointed is witness in this very day that you have not found anything in my hand." And they said, "He is witness." 6 And Samouel said to the people, saying, "The Lord who made Moyses and Aaron is witness, who brought your fathers up out of Egypt. 7 And now stand still, and I will enter into judgment with you before the Lord, and I will declare to you all the righteousness of the Lord, which things he performed among you and among your fathers." 8 How Iakob and his sons went into Egypt, and Egypt humiliated them, and our fathers cried to the Lord, and the Lord sent Moyses and Aaron, and he brought forth our fathers out of Egypt and settled them in this place. 9 And they forgot the Lord their God, and he sold them into the hands of Sisara, commander-in-chief of the army of King Iabin of Hamor and into the hands of the allies and into the hands of the king of Moab, and they fought against them. 10 And they cried to the Lord and were saying, 'We have sinned, because we forsook the Lord and were subject to the Baalim and the groves, and now deliver us out of the hand of our enemies, and we will be subject to you.' 11 And the Lord sent Ierobaal and Barak and Iephthae and Samouel and delivered you out of the hand of your enemies who were round about, and you were living securely. 12 And you saw that Naas, king of the sons of Ammon, came against you, and you said, 'No, none but a king shall reign over us,' and the Lord our God is our king. 13 And now, behold, the king whom you chose, and behold, the Lord has granted a king over you, 14 if you fear the Lord and are subject to him and heed his voice and do not contend with the mouth of the Lord, and if both you and the king who reigns over you keep following the Lord, 15 but if you should not heed the voice of the Lord and contend with the mouth of the Lord, the hand of the Lord will also be against you and against your king. 16 And now stand still, and see this great thing that the Lord will do before your eyes. 17 Is it not the wheat harvest today? I will call upon the Lord, and he will give sounds and rain, and know, and see that your wickedness that you have done before the Lord is great in asking a king for yourselves." 18 And Samouel called upon the Lord, and the Lord gave sounds and rain in that day, and all the people greatly feared the Lord and Samouel.

19 And all the people said to Samouel, "Pray to the Lord, your God, for your slaves, and we shall not die, for we have added to all our sins an evil by asking for a king for ourselves." 20 And Samouel said to the people, "Do not be afraid; you have done this entire evil; yet do not turn aside from the Lord, and be subject to the Lord with your whole heart, 21 and do not turn aside after those things that are nothing, who do not accomplish anything and who will not deliver, for they are nothing. 22 For the Lord will not cast away his people for his great name's sake, because the Lord graciously took you to him for a people. 23 And far be it from me to sin against the Lord by ceasing to pray for you, and I will subject to the Lord and show you the good and the right way; 24 only fear the Lord.
and be subject to him in truth and with your whole heart, for you saw what things he has magnified with you, and if you still do wickedly, you shall be handed over, both you and your king.*

13 And Saoul chose for himself three thousand men from the men of Israel, and two thousand were with Saoul in Machemas and in the hill country of Baithel, and a thousand were with Jonathan in Gabee of Benjamin, and the rest of the people he sent home each to his covert. 3 And Jonathan smote Nasib the allophyle who was in the hill, and the allophyles heard. And Saoul blew with a trumpet in all the land, saying, "The slaves have revolted!" 4 And all Israel heard say, "Saoul has smitten Nasib the allophyle, and Israel was put to shame among the allophyles." And the people went up after Saoul at Galgala.

5 And the allophyles gathered for battle against Israel, and thirty thousand chariots and six thousand horsemen and a people like the sand that is by the sea in multitude came up against Israel, and they came up and encamped at Machemas over against Baithon, southward. And Saoul saw that he was in distress so that he could not proceed, and the people hid in caves and in dens and in rocks and in holes and in pits. And those who crossed over crossed the Jordan to the land of Gad and Galaad. And Saoul was still at Galgala, and all the people were confounded behind him.

And he waited seven days for the testimony as Samuel said, and Samuel did not come to Galgala, and his people slipped away from him. 9 And Saoul said, "Bring, that I may offer a whole burnt offering and peace offerings," and he offered the whole burnt offering, that Saoul said, and Samuel did not come to Galgala. 9 And Saoul said to the lad who carried his armor, "Come, let us go over to Messab of these allophyles, which is on the yonder side," but he did not tell his father. 2 And Saoul was sitting on the top of the hill under the pomegranate tree that is at Magdon, and there were with him about six hundred men, 3 and Achia son of Achitob, Joab's brother, son of Phinees son of Eli the priest of God in Selom, carrying an ephod. And the people did not know that Jonathan had gone. 4 And in the middle of the pass, where Jonathan was trying to go over to the substance of the allophyles, there was a rocky crag on one side and a rocky crag on the other; the name of the one was Bazas, and the name of the other, Senna; 5 one way from the north was for one going to Machemas, and the other way from the south, for one going to Gabee.

6 And Jonathan said to the lad who carried his armor, "Come, let us go over to Messab of these uncircumcised, if perhaps the Lord may do something for us, for nothing can hinder the Lord from saving by many or by few." 7 And his armor-bearer said to him, "Do all that your mind inclines to; behold, I am with you; my mind is as your mind." 8 And Jonathan said, "Behold, we are going to cross over to the men, and we will be rolled down to them, and if this is what they say to us, 'Stand off there until we tell you,' then we will stand by ourselves and definitely not go up to them, 9 and if this is what they say to us, 'Come up to us,' then we will go up, for the Lord has given them into our hands; this will be the sign for us." 11 And both of them entered into Messab of the allophyles, and the allophyles said, "Behold, the Hebrews are coming out of their holes where they hid there." 12 And the men of Messab hailed Ionathan and his armor-bearer and said, "Come up to us, and we will show you something." And Ionathan said to his armor-bearer, "Come up after me, for the Lord has given them into the hands of Israel." 13 And Ionathan climbed up on his hands and on his feet, and his armor-bearer with him, and they looked intently at the face of Ionathan, and he smote them, and his armor-bearer behind him was providing supplies. 14 And the first slaughter that Ionathan and his armor-bearer inflicted was about twenty men, with darts and with sling stones and with pebbles of the plain. 15 And there was a dread in the camp and in the field, and all the people, those in Messab and the raiders, were astounded, and they would not act, and the earth was terror-struck, and the dread was from the Lord.

16 And Saoul's lookouts in Gabee of Benjamin saw, and behold, the camp was in commotion on this side and that. 17 And Saoul said to the people that were with him, "Call the roll now and see who has gone from us," and they called the roll, and behold, Ionathan and his armor-bearer were not to be found. 18 And Saoul said to Achia, "Bring the ephod, for he bore the ephod in that day before Israel." 19 And it happened, while Saoul was talking to the priest, that the tumult in the camp of the allophyles increased more and more, and Saoul said to the priest, "Bring your hands together." 20 And Saoul and all the people who were with him went up and came to the battle, and behold, a man's sword was against his neighbor, a very great confusion. 21 And the slaves who yesterday and the third day had been with the allophyles had gone up into the camp, turned about, even they, to be with Israel who were with Saoul and Ionathan. 22 And all Israel who were hiding in the hill country of Ephraim also heard that the allophyles had fled, and they joined together, even they, after them in battle. 23 And the Lord saved Israel in that day.

And the battle passed through Bamoth, and all the people with Saoul were about ten thousand men, and the battle was extended into every town in the hill country of Ephraim.

24 And Saoul was ignorant with great ignorance in that day, and he laid an oath on the people, saying, "Cursed be anyone who eats food before it is evening, so I will avenge my enemy," and none of the people tasted food. 25 And all the land ate the midday meal. And Laar was a wood with a beehive on the ground, 26 and the people came upon the beehive, and behold, they went on talking, and, behold, they did not turn their hands to their mouths, for the people feared the oath of the Lord. 27 And Ionathan had not heard when his father charged the people with the oath, and he extended the scepter that was in his hand and dipped the tip of it in the honeycomb and put his hand to his mouth, and his eyes recovered their sight. 28 And one of the people answered and said, "Ad-and more also, you shall die the death today."
45 And the people said to Saoul, "Shall he who achieved this great victory in Israel die today? The Lord lives; shall a hair of his head fall to the ground?—for the people of God wrought this day." And the people prayed for Jonathan in that day, and he did not die. 46 And Saoul went up from following the allophyles, and the allophyles went to their place.

47 And Saoul had received by lot office over Israel, and he was fighting against all his enemies on every side—against Moab and against the sons of Ammon and against the sons of Edom and against Baithoe and against the king of Soubra and against the allophyles; wherever he turned, he was being kept safe. 48 And he formed an army and struck down Amalek and delivered Israel out of the hand of those who trampled on them.

49 And the sons of Saoul were Jonathan and Lessiou and Melchisa, and the names of his two daughters: the name of the firstborn was Merob, and the name of the second, Melchol. 50 And the name of his wife was Achinoom daughter of Achimaas. And the name of the commander-in-chief was Abenner son of Ner son of a kinsman of Saoul, 51 and Kis was the father of Saoul, and Ner the father of Abenner was the son of lamin son of Abiel.

52 And the fighting against the allophyles was hard all the days of Saoul, and when Saoul saw any strong man and any man a son of might, then he took them to himself.

15 And Samouel said to Saoul, "The Lord sent me to anoint you as king over Israel, and now listen to the voice of the Lord. 2This is what the Lord Sabacho said, 'Now I will avenge what Amalek did to Israel, how he encountered him in the way as he was coming up out of Egypt. 3 And now go, and you shall smite Amalek and Jerim and all that he has, and you shall not keep anything of his alive, and you shall utterly destroy him and anathematize him and all that he has to destruction, and you shall not spare of him, and you shall kill from man even up to woman and from child up to infant and from calf up to sheep and from camel up to donkey.'"

4 And Saoul summoned the people, and reviewed them in Galgala, four hundred thousand in units, and Ioudas, thirty thousand in units. 5 And Saoul came to the cities of Amalek and lay in wait in the wadi. 6 And Saoul said to the Kinite, "Depart, and turn aside from among the Amalekite, lest I include you with him, and as for you, you deal mercifully with the sons of Israel when they came up out of Egypt." And the Kinite withdrew from among Amalek. 7 And Saoul smote Amalek, from Euilat as far as Sour, facing Egypt. 8 And he took king Agag of Amalek alive, but he killed all the people of Jerim with the edge of the sword. 9 And Saoul and all the people saved alive Agag and the best of the flocks and of the herds and of the foods and of the vineyards and of all the good things and did not wish to destroy them utterly, and every despised and worthless artifact they utterly destroyed.

10 And a word of the Lord came to Samouel, saying: 11 "I have been comforted, because I made Saoul king, for he has turned away from behind me and has not kept my words." And Samouel was disheartened, and he cried out to the Lord the whole night. 12 And Samouel rose early and went to meet Israel in the morning, and it was told to Samouel, saying, "Saoul came to Carmel and raised a hand for himself, and the chariot returned." And he went down to Galgala to Saoul, and behold, he was offering up to the Lord as a whole burnt offering the first of the spoils that he brought from Amalek.

13 And Samouel came to Saoul, and Saoul said to him, "Blessed are you to the Lord; I have established all that the Lord spoke." 14 And Samouel said, "And what is the sound of this flock in my ears and the sound of cattle that I am hearing?" 15 And Saoul said, "From Amalek I brought them, what the people spared, the best of the flock and of the cattle, that they might be sacrificed to the Lord, your God, and the rest I have utterly destroyed." 16 And Samouel said to Saoul, "Stop, and I will tell you what the Lord spoke to me during the night." And he said to him, "Speak."

17 And Samouel said to Saoul, "Are you not small before him, a leader of a scepter of a tribe of Israel? And the Lord anointed you as king over Israel.

18 And the Lord sent you on a journey and said to you, 'Go, and utterly destroy those who sin against me, Amalek, and you shall fight them until you consume them.' 19 And why did you not hearken to the voice of the Lord, but rushed to set upon the spoils and did what was evil before the Lord?" 20 And Saoul said to Samouel, "Because I listened to the voice of the people, and I went on the journey on which the Lord sent me, and I brought Agag, king of Amalek, and I utterly destroyed Amalek, 21 and from the spoils the people took flocks and herds, the first of the things devoted to destruction, to sacrifice before the Lord, our God, in Galgala." 22 And Samouel said, "Are whole burnt-offerings and sacrifices as wanted to the Lord as hearkening to the voice of the Lord? Behold, hearing is better than sacrifice and listening than the fat of rams.

23 For divination is a sin, and theraphin bring grief and toil. Because you rejected the word of the Lord, the Lord will also reject you from being king over Israel." 24 And Saoul said to Samouel, "I have sinned; for I have transgressed the word of the Lord and what you said, because I feared the people and listened to their voice. 25 And now do take away then my sin, and return with me, and I will do obedience to the Lord your God." 26 And Samouel said to Saoul, "I will not return with you, for you have rejected the word of the Lord, and the Lord will reject you from being king over Israel." 27 And Samouel turned away his face to go away, and Saoul caught hold of the wing of his double cloak, and he tore it. 28 And Samouel said to him, "The Lord tore the kingdom of Israel from your hand today, and he will give it to a neighbor of yours, who is better than you. 29 and Israel will be divided in two, and he will not turn back or change his mind, for he is not like a human, that he should change his mind." 30 And Saoul said, "I have sinned; yet do honor me now before the elders of Israel and before my people, and return with me, and I will do obeisance to the Lord, your God." 31 And Samouel turned back after Saoul, and he did obeisance to the Lord.

32 And Samouel said, "Bring Agag king of Amalek to me." And Agag came to him trembling. And Agag said, "Is death thus bitter?" 33 And Samouel said to Agag, "As your sword made women childless, so your mother shall be childless among women." And Samouel slew Agag before the Lord in Galgal.

34 And Samouel went away to Harmathaim, and Saoul went up to his house in Gabaa. 35 Samouel did not add to see Saoul until the day of his death, for Samouel grieved over Saoul. And the Lord was sorry that he had made Saoul king over Israel.

16 And the Lord said to Samouel, "How long are you grieving over Saoul? And it is I that have set him at naught not to be king over Israel. Fill your horn with oil, and come, let me send you to Iessai as far as to Bethleem, for I have observed among his sons one to be king for me." 2 And Samouel said, "How am I to go? Saoul will both hear and kill me." And the Lord said, "Take a heifer with the oxen in your hand, and you will say, 'I have sinned; yet do honor me now before the elders of Israel and before my people, and return with me, and I will do obeisance to the Lord, your God.'" 3 And Samouel turned back after Saoul, and he did obeisance to the Lord.

6 And it happened, when they entered, and he looked on Eliab that he said, "To be sure, before the Lord is his anointed." 7 And the Lord said to Samouel, "Do not look on his appearance or on the posture of his size, because I have rejected him, for God will not look as a mortal will see, for a mortal will see into a face, but God will see into a heart." 8 And Iessai called Aminadab, and he passed before Samouel. And he said, "Neither has the Lord chosen this one." 9 And Iessai brought forward Sama. And he said, "Also for this one the Lord has not chosen." 10 And Iessai brought his seven sons forward before Samouel, and Samouel said, "The Lord has not chosen among these." 11 And Samouel said to Iessai, "Have the boys come to an end?" And he said, "There is yet the smallest; behold, he is shepherding among the flock." And Samouel said to Iessai, "Send, and fetch him; for we will definitely not reclone until he comes." 12 And he sent and brought him in. And this one was ruddy with beauty of eyes and was good in appearance to the Lord. And the Lord said to Samouel, "Rise, and anoint Dauid; for this one is good." 13 And Samouel took the horn of oil and anointed him in the midst of his brothers, and a spirit of the Lord sprang upon Dauid from that day and onward. And Samouel rose and returned to Harmathaim.

14 And a spirit of the Lord departed from Saoul, and an evil spirit from the Lord tormented him. 15 And Saoul's servants said to him, "See now, an evil spirit from the Lord is tormenting you. Let now your slaves speak before you, and let them seek for our lord a man who has learned how to play on a cinyrab, and it will be, when an evil spirit is upon you, that he will play on his cinyrab, and it will be good for you, and it will give you respite." 16 And Saoul said to his servants, "Do look out for me for a man who plays well, and bring him to me." 17 And one of his lads answered and said, "Behold, I have seen a son of Iessai a Bethleemite, and he knows how to play music, and the man is intelligent, and the man is a warrior and prudent with words, and a man good in appearance, and the Lord is with him." 18 And Saoul sent messengers to Iessai, saying, "Send me your son Dauid who is with your flock." 19 And Iessai took a gomor of bread and a skin of wine and one kid of goats and sent them by the hand of his son Dauid to Saoul. 20 And Dauid came in to Saoul and stood before him. And Saoul loved him greatly, and he became to him one that would bear his armor. 21 And Saoul sent to Iessai, saying, "Do let Dauid stand before me, for he has found favor in my eyes." 22 And the evil spirit came upon Saoul, that Dauid would take the cinyrab and play it with his hand, and Saoul would be relieved, and it was good for him, and the evil spirit would depart from him.

17 And the allophyles gathered their armies for battle, and they were gathered at Sokchoth of Judea, and they encamped between Sokchoth and between Azeka, in Ephremm. 2 And Saoul and the men of Israel were gathered and encamped in the valley; they formed ranks for battle opposite the allophyles. 3 And the allophyles stood on the mountain here, and Israel stood on the mountain there, and the valley was between them. 4 And a mighty man came out from the ranks of the allophyles; Goliath was his name, from Geth; his height was four cubits and a span. 5 And he had a helmet on his head, and he was armed with a coat of chain mail, and the weight of his coat was five thousand shekels of bronze and iron. 6 And there were bronze greaves on his legs and a bronze shield between his shoulders. 7 And the shaft of his spear was like a beam of weavers, and his spear weighed six hundred shekels of iron, and the one who carried his armor would go before him. 8 And he stood and shouted to the ranks of Israel and said to them, “Why do you come out to draw up for battle opposite us? Am I not an allophyle, and are you not Hebrews of Saoul? Choose a man for yourselves, and let him come down to me, 9 and if he is able to fight against me and if he strike me, then we will be to you for slaves, but if I am able and kill him, then you shall be to us for slaves and be subject to us.” 10 And the allophyle said, “Behold, today on this very day I have chided the ranks of Israel. Give me a man, and we both will fight in single combat.” 11 And Saoul and all Israel heard these words of the allophyle, and they were dismayed and greatly afraid. 32 And Dauid said to Saoul, “On no account let the heart of my lord collapse upon him; your slave will go and will fight with this allophyle.” 33 And Saoul said to Dauid, “You will definitely not be able to go against the allophyle to fight with him, for you are a boy, and he has been a warrior from his youth.” 34 And Dauid said to Saoul, “Your slave was tending the flock for his father, and when the lion and the bear would come and take a sheep from the herd, 35 and I would go after it, then I struck it and pulled from its mouth, and if it turned against me, then I caught it by its throat and struck it down and put it to death. 36 And your slave would smite both the bear and the lion, and the uncircumcised allophyle shall be like one of these. Shall I not go and smite him and take away today a reproach from Israel? For who is this uncircumcised one who reproached the ranks of the living God? 37 The Lord who delivered me from the paw of the lion and from the paw of the bear, he himself will rescue me from the hand of this uncircumcised allophyle.” And Saoul said to Dauid, “Go, and the Lord will be with you!” 38 And Saoul put a woolen cloak on Dauid, and a bronze helmet around his head, 39 and he girded Dauid with his sword over his woolen cloak, and he grew tired walking once and twice. And Dauid said to Saoul, “I shall definitely not be able to go in these, for I am not experienced.” And they removed them from him. 40 And he took his staff in his hand and chose for himself five smooth stones from the wadi and put them in his shepherd’s bag, which he had with him for collecting, and his sling in his hand, and he advanced against the man, the allophyle. 42 And Goliad saw Dauid, and he disdained him, for he was a boy, and he was ruddy with beauty of eyes. 43 And the allophyle said to Dauid, “Am I like a dog, that you come upon me with a rod and stones?” 44 And Dauid said, “No, but worse than a dog.” And the allophyle cursed Dauid by his beauty of eyes. 45 And the allophyle said to Dauid, “Come to me, and I will give your flesh to the birds of the air and to the animals of the earth.” 46 And Dauid said to the allophyle, “You come to me with sword and with spear and with shield, and I am coming to you in the name of the Lord Sabaoth, the God of the ranks of Israel, which you have reproached today. 47 And today the Lord will shut you up into my hand, and I will kill you and remove your head from you, and I will give your limbs and the limbs of the camp of the allophyles on this day to the birds of the air and to the wild animals of the earth, and all the earth will know that there is a God in Israel, 48 and all this assembly will know that the Lord does not save by sword and spear, for the battle is the Lord’s, and the Lord will give you into our hands.” 49 And the allophyle arose and came to meet Dauid, 50 and Dauid stretched out his hand into the bag and took out from there one stone and slung it and struck the allophyle on his forehead, and the stone penetrated through the helmet into his forehead, and he fell on his face on the ground. 51 And Dauid ran and stood over him and took his sword and put him to death and cut off his head. And the allophyles saw that their mighty one was dead, and they fled. 52 And the men of Israel and Ioudas rose up and shouted and pursued after them, as far as the entrance to Geth and as far as the gate of Ascalon, and the wounded of the allophyles fell on the way of the gates, even as far as Geth and as far as Akkaron. 53 And the men of Israel came back from turning aside after the allophyles, and they trampled their camps. 54 And Dauid took the head of the allophyle and brought it into Jerusalem, and he put his armor in his covert. 18 And the dancers came to meet Dauid out of all the towns of Israel, with drums and with rejoicing and with cymbals. 7 And the women began and were saying, “Saoul killed amongst his thousands, and Dauid amongst his ten thousands.” 8 And the matter appeared evil in the eyes of Saoul concerning this word, and he said, “They ascribed to Dauid the ten thousands, and to me they ascribed the thousands.” 9 And Saoul was eyeing Dauid with suspicion from that day and beyond. 12 And Saoul was afraid from before Dauid, 13 and he removed him from him and made him an officer of a thousand for himself, and he was going out and coming in before the people. 14 And Dauid was prudent in all his ways, and the Lord was with him. 15 And Saoul saw how he acted very prudently, and he was afraid from before him. 16 And all Israel and Ioudas loved Dauid, for he was going out and coming in from before the people. 20 And Saoul’s daughter Melchol loved Dauid, and Saoul was told, and it was right in his eyes. 21 And Saoul said, “I will give her to him, and she will be a snare to him.” And the hand of the allophyles was against Saoul, 22 and Saoul commanded his servants, saying, “Speak to Dauid secretly, saying, ‘Behold, the king wants you, and all his servants love you, and as for you, become the king’s son-in-law.’ ” 23 And Saoul’s servants spoke these words in the hearing of Dauid. And Dauid said, “Does it seem light in your eyes to become the king’s son-in-law? And as for me, I am a humble man and of no repute.” 24 And the servants of Saoul reported to him according to these things.

that Dauid said. 25And Saoul said, "This is what you shall say to Dauid, 'The king does not desire to avenge for the king's enemies with a present, except with a hundred foreskins of the allophyles.' " And Saoul counted on casting him into the hands of the allophyles. 26And the servants of Saoul told Dauid these words, and the matter was right in the eyes of Dauid to be the king's son-in-law. 27And Dauid said to Saoul, "Why have you thus deceived me and sent off my enemy, and he has escaped?" And Melchol said to Saoul, "He said, 'Send me off, but if not, I will put you to death.' "

18 And Dauid fled and escaped and came to Samouel at Harmathaim and told him all that Saoul did to him, and Dauid and Samouel went and settled at Nauath in Rama. 19And it was told to Saoul, saying, "Behold, Dauid is at Nauath in Rama." 20And Saoul sent messengers to take Dauid, and they saw the assembly of the prophets, and Samouel stood as appointed over them, and a divine spirit came upon the messengers of Saoul, and they were prophesying. 21And it was told to Saoul, and he sent other messengers, and they also prophesied. And Saoul added to send messengers the third time, and they too prophesied. 22And Saoul was seething with anger, and he too went to Harmathaim, and he came to the well of the threshing floor that is in Sephi, and he asked and said, "Where are Samouel and Dauid?" And they said, "Behold, at Nauath in Rama." 23And he went from there toward Nauath in Rama, and a divine spirit also came upon him, and as he was going, he was prophesying until he came to Nauath in Rama. 24And he stripped off his clothes, and he prophesied before them and fell naked all that day and the whole night. Therefore they were saying, "Is Saoul also among the prophets?"

20 And Dauid fled from Nauath in Rama and came before Jonathan and said, "What have I done? And what is my wrong? And wherein have I sinned before your father that he is seeking my life?"

2And Jonathan said to him, "Far be it from you! You shall not die. Behold, my father will not do anything either great or small and not uncover my ear, and why is it that my father should hide this matter? This is not possible!" 3And Dauid answered Jonathan and said, "Perceiving your father knows that I have found favor in your eyes, and he said, 'Do not let Jonathan know this; he may not consent.' But, the Lord lives, and your soul lives, that, as I said, between me and death has been filled up."

4And Jonathan said to Dauid, "What does your soul desire, and what shall I do for you?" 5And Dauid said to Jonathan, "Behold, now, tomorrow is the new moon and seated I will not sit with the king to eat, and you will send me off, and I will hide in the plain until evening. 6If observing your father observes me, then you will say, 'Entreat Dauid asked leave of me to run as far as to Bethleem his city, for there is a sacrifice of days there for all the tribe.' If this is what he says, 'Very well!' there is peace for your slave, and if he should answer you harshly, know that evil has been determined by him. And you shall do mercy with your slave, for you have brought your slave into a covenant with the Lord along with yourself, and if there is iniquity in your slave, you put me to death, and why should you bring me thus to your father?" 7And Jonathan said, “Far be it from you, for if knowing I know that the evil from my father had been determined to come upon you—and if not—I will bring tidings to you to your cities.” 10And Dauid said to Ionathan, “Who will tell me if your father answers you harshly?” 11And Ionathan said to Dauid, “Go, and stay in a field.” And they both went out into a field.

12 And Ionathan said to Dauid, “The Lord the God of Israel knows that I will sound out my father as the opportunity arises, three times, and behold, if there is good concerning Dauid, then I will not send to you in the field; 13this is what God may do as the opportunity arises, three times, and behold, field.” And they both went out into a field.

14And if I am still living, you shall also do mercy with me, and if I die by death, 15you shall not remove your mercy from my house for ever, and if not, when the Lord removes the enemies of Dauid, each from the face of the earth, 16that the name of Ionathan be removed from the house of Dauid, and may the Lord seek out the enemies of Dauid.”

17And Ionathan added yet to swear to Dauid, for he loved the soul of one who loved him.

18 And Ionathan said, “Tomorrow is the new moon, and you will be observed, because your seat will be observed. 19And you shall do it three times and observe and come to your place where you hid on the workday, and you will sit by that ergab. 20And I will shoot three times with darts, sending them into the amattarib. 21And behold, I will send the lad, saying, ‘Go, find the dart for me. ’ If I say to the lad, saying, ‘Here is the dart, away from you, even here; take it; come, for, the Lord lives, there is peace for you, and there is no word. 22If this is what I say to the young man, ‘Here is the dart, away from you, even beyond’; go, for the Lord has sent you away. 23And as for the matter about which I and you have spoken, behold, the Lord is witness between me and you forever.”

24 And Dauid hid in a field, and the month came, and the king came to the table to eat. 25And the king sat upon his seat, as once and again, upon the seat by a wall. And he preceded Ionathan, and Abenner sat beside Saoul, and Dauid’s place was under observation.

26 And Saoul did not say anything in that day, for he said, “A chance; he appears not to be clean because he has not purified himself.” 27And it happened on the morrow, on the second day of the month, and Dauid’s place was under observation. And Saoul said to his son Ionathan, “Why is it that the son of Jessai has not come to the place of the dart where Ionathan was throwing, and Ionathan called after the young man and said, “There is the dart, away from you, even beyond.”

30 And Saoul was greatly seething with anger against Ionathan, and he said to him, “You son of traitorous girls! For do I not know that you are an accomplice of the son of Jessai to your shame and to the shame of your mother’s uncovering? 31For during all the days which the son of Jessai lives upon the earth, your kingdom shall not be established. Now therefore send, take the youth, for he is a son of death.” 32And Ionathan answered Saoul, “Why does he die? What has he done?” 33And Saoul lifted up the spear against Ionathan, to put him to death, and Ionathan knew that this evil from his father to put Dauid to death was fully determined, 34and Ionathan sprang up from the table in fierce anger and ate no food on the second day of the month, for he was grieved for Dauid, because his father was set against him.

35 And morning came, and Ionathan went out into the field as arranged for a witness to Dauid, and with him was a little boy. 36And he said to the boy, “Run, find for me the darts with which I am throwing.” And the boy ran, and he was throwing the dart and sent it beyond. 37And the boy came to the place where Ionathan was throwing, and Ionathan called after the young man and said, “There is the dart, away from you, even beyond.”

38And Ionathan called after his boy saying, “Hurry, be quick, and do not linger.” And Ionathan’s boy gathered up the darts for his master. 39And the boy knew nothing; only Ionathan and Dauid knew the matter. 40And Ionathan gave his implements to his boy and said to his boy, “Go, enter into the city.” 41And when the boy had entered, Dauid rose from the ergab and fell on his face and did obeisance to him three times, and each kissed each his fellow and each wept with his fellow, until a great completion. 42And Ionathan said, “Go in peace, and as we both have sworn in the name of the Lord, saying, ‘The Lord shall be witness between me and you and between my seed and between your seed, forever.’ ”

2(21.1) And Dauid came to Nomba to the priest Abimelech. And Abimelech was astonished to meet him and said to him, “Why is it that you are alone, and no one with you?” 3(2)And Dauid said to the priest, “The king has charged me with a matter today and said to me, ‘Let no one know the matter about which I send you and concerning which I have charged you,’ and I have testified solemnly to the lads in the place called Faith of God, Phellani, Alemoni, 4(3)and now if there are in your hand five loaves, give into my hand what is found.” 5(4)And the priest answered Dauid and said, “There are no permitted loaves in my hand, for there are only consecrated loaves; if the lads have kept themselves from a woman, then they shall eat.” 6(5)And Dauid answered the priest and said to him, “Indeed we have kept ourselves from a woman yesterday and the third day; when I go on a journey all the lads have become consecrated, and this journey is profane, wherefore it shall be consecrated today through my implements.”

7(6) And Abimelech the priest gave him the loaves of the presentation, for there was no bread there except the loaves of the presence, which are removed from the presence of the Lord to be replaced by hot bread on the day that he took them.

8(7) And one of the lads of Saoul was there in that day detained neessaran before the Lord, and his name was Doek the Syrian, tending Saoul’s mules.

9(8) And Daudi said to Abimelech, “See if there is a spear or sword here by your hand, for I have not brought my sword and my implements in my hand, because the king’s business was in haste.”

10(9) And the priest said, “Behold, the sword of Goliath the allophyle whom you killed in the valley of Ela, and it is wrapped in a garment; if you will take this for yourself, take it, for there is none here except this one.” And Daudi said, “Behold, there is none like it; give it to me.” 11 And he gave it to him.

10(10) And Daudi rose and fled in that day from before Saoul. And Daudi went to King Anchous of Geth. 12(11) And the servants of Anchous said to him, “Is this not Daudi, the king of the land? Did the dancers not take the lead for this one, saying, ‘Saoul killed amongst his thousands, and Daudi amongst his ten thousands?’”

13(12) And Daudi put the words in his heart and was very much afraid from before King Anchous of Geth. 14(13) And he changed his face before him, and he put on an act in that day, and he drummed on the doors of the city and gestured with his hands and fell against the doors of the gate, and his spittle ran down on his beard. 15(14) And Anchous said to his servants, “Look, see an epileptic man; why did you bring him to me? 16(15) Indeed, do I lack epileptics, that you have brought him to have an epileptic fit before me? This fellow shall not come into the house.”

22 And Daudi left there and escaped and came to the Odollam cave. And his brothers and his father’s house heard and went down there to him. 2And every one in distress and every one in debt and every one troubled in soul were gathering to him, and he was leader over them, and there were with him about four hundred men.

3 And Daudi went from there to Massepha of Moab and said to the king of Moab, “Let now my father and my mother be with you until I know what God will do for me.” 4 And he persuaded the person of the king of Moab, and they were dwelling with him all the days that Daudi was in the stronghold.

5 And the prophet Gad said to Daudi, “Do not remain in the stronghold; leave, and you shall enter into the land of loudas.” And Daudi left and went and settled in the city of Sarich.

6 And Saoul heard that Daudi had been recognized, and the men who were with him, and Saoul was sitting on the hill below the cultivated field which is in Rama, and his spear in his hand, and all his servants stood around him. 7 And Saoul said to his servants who stood around him and said to them, “Do hear, sons of Beniamin, if the son of Lessai will truly give every one of you fields and vineyards and make you all officers of hundreds and officers of thousands! 8 For you are all in collusion against me, and there is no one who uncovers my ear when my son makes a covenant with the son of Lessai, and there is no one of you who feels sorry for me or uncovers my ear because my son stirred up my slave against me as an enemy, as this day.” 9 And Doek the Syrian who was in charge of Saoul’s mules answered and said, “I have seen the son of Lessai coming to Nomba to Abimelech son of Achitob the priest, and he was inquiring of God for him, and he gave him provisions and gave him the sword of Goliath the allophyle.”

11 And the king sent to call Abimelech son of Achitob and all the sons of his father, the priests who were at Nomba, and all of them came to the king. 12 And Saoul said, “Listen now, son of Achitob.” And he said, “Here I am, speak, sir.” 13 And Saoul said to him, “Why have you conspired against me, you and the son of Lessai, that you gave him bread and a sword and that you ask through God for him, to set him against me as an enemy, as this day?”

14 And he answered the king and said, “And who among all your slaves is like Daudi, faithful and the king’s son-in-law and executor of your every behest and honored in your house? 15 Have I begun today to ask through God for him? By no means! Let not the king impute anything to his slave or to the whole of my father’s house, for your slave knew nothing of all this, a matter small or large.” 16 And Saoul the king said, “You shall die by death, Abimelech, you and all your father’s house.” 17 And the king said to the runners who stood around him, “Draw near, and put to death the priests of the Lord, because their hand is with Daudi and because they knew that he was fleeing and they did not uncover my ear.” And the servants of the king were not willing to extend their hands to attack the priests of the Lord. 18 And the king said to D奥迪, “You, turn, and attack the priests.” And D奥迪 the Syrian turned and put to death the priests of the Lord in that day, three hundred five men, all bearing an ephod. 19 And Nomba, the city of the priests, he smote with the edge of the sword: from man up to woman, from child up to infant, and calf and donkey and sheep.

20 And one son of Abimelech son of Achitob escaped, and his name was Abiathar, and he fled after Daudi. 21 And Abiathar told Daudi that Saoul put to death all the priests of the Lord. 22 And Daudi said to Abiathar, “I knew in that day that Doek the Syrian—that telling he would tell Saoul. I am responsible for the lives of your father’s house. 23 Stay with me; do not be afraid; for where I shall seek a place for my life, I shall also seek one for your life, for you are safe with me.”

23 And it was told to David, saying, "Behold, the allophyles are fighting in Keila, and they are despoiling, they are trampling the threshing floors." 2And David inquired through the Lord, saying, "Shall I go and attack these allophyles?" And the Lord said, "Go, and you shall attack among these allophyles and rescue Keila." 3And David's men said to him, "Behold, we are afraid here in Judea, and how will it be if we go to Keila? We shall enter into the spoils of the allophyles." 4And David added to inquire again through the Lord, and the Lord answered him and said to him, "Arise, and go down to Keila, for I am giving the allophyles into your hands." 5And David went, and the men who were with him, to Keila and fought with the allophyles, and they fled from before him, and he brought away their livestock and dealt a heavy blow among them. And David rescued the inhabitants of Keila.

6 And it happened, when Abiathar son of Abimelech fled to David, that he came down with David to Keila having an ephod in his hand. 7And it was told Saul that David had come to Keila, and Saul said, "God has sold him into my hands, for he has shut himself in having entered a town of doors and bars." 8And Saul summoned all the people to war to go down to Keila to besiege David and his men. 9And David learned that Saul was not keeping the evil concerning him quiet, and David said to the priest Abiathar, "Bring the ephod of the Lord here." 10And David said, "O Lord, the God of Israel, hearing your slave has heard that Saul seeks to come to Keila to destroy the city on my account. 11Will it be shut up? And now, will Saul come down as your slave has heard? O Lord, the God of Israel, tell your slave." And the Lord said, "It will be shut up." 12And David arose, and the men who were with him, about four hundred, and they departed from Keila, and they were going wherever they went, and it was told Saul that David had escaped from Keila, and he gave up to go out.

14 And David settled in the wilderness in Mazerem at the narrows, and he sat in the wilderness in Mount Ziph in the dry country, and Saul was seeking him all the days, and the Lord did not give him into his hands. 15And David saw that Saul was coming out to seek David, and David was in the dry mountain in New Ziph. 16And Saul's son Jonathan set out and came to David at New and strengthened his hands in the Lord. 17And he said to him, "Do not be afraid, for the hand of my father Saul shall not find you, and you shall be king over Israel, and I shall be second to you, and my father Saul knows that this is so." 18And both of them made a covenant before the Lord, and David sat at New, and Jonathan departed to his house.

19 And the Ziphites from the dry country went up to Saul on the hill, saying, "Behold, is David not hiding among us in Messara in the narrows in New in the hill of Hechela, which is on the right of lassoim? 20And now, as for everything that is on the king's mind for a descent, let him descend to us; they have shut him up into the king's hands." 21And Saul said to them, "May you be blessed to the Lord, for you felt sorry for me! 22Do go, and make ready once more, and know his place where his foot will be, quickly there where you said, lest he be cunning. 23And look around, and know, and we will go with you, and it will be, if he is in the land, that I will search him out among all the thousands of lousadas." 24And the Ziphites set out and went ahead of Saul, and David and his men were in the Maan wilderness in the evening to the right of lassoim.

25 And Saul went, and his men, to search for him, and they reported to David, and he went down to the rock that is in the wilderness of Maan. And Saul heard and pursued after David into the wilderness of Maan. 26And Saul and his men went on one side of this mountain, and David and his men were on the other side of this mountain. And David was sheltering himself to get away from before Saul, and Saul and his men encamped against David and his men to capture them. 27And a messenger came to Saul, saying, "Hurry, and come, for the allophyles have made a raid on the land." 28And Saul turned back from pursuing after David and went to meet the allophyles; therefore that place was called the Divided Rock.

24 (23.29) And David went up from there and settled in the narrows of Engaddi. (24.1) And it happened, when Saul returned from after the allophyles, that it was told him, saying, "David is in the wilderness of Engaddi." (2) And he took with him three thousand chosen men out of all Israel and went to look for David and his men in front of Sadaiem. (3) And he came to the flocks of herdsmen that were beside the road, and a cave was there, and Saul went in to prepare himself, and David and his men were sitting in the inner part of the cave. (4) And David's men said to him, "Behold, this is the day of which the Lord spoke to you to give your enemy into your hands, and you shall do to him as is good in your eyes." And David arose and stealthily removed the wing of his double-cloak. (5) And it happened after these things that David's heart smote him, because he had removed the wing of his double-cloak. (6) And David said to his men, "Not at all is it to me from the Lord, if I shall do this thing to my lord, the Lord's anointed, to bring my hand against him, for this one is the Lord's anointed." 8(7) And David persuaded his men with words and did not permit them to get up to put Saul to death. And Saul got up and went down to the road.

9(8) And David got up after him out of the cave, and David called after Saul, saying, "My lord king!" And Saul looked behind him, and David bowed with his face to the ground and did obeisance to him. (9) And David said to Saul,
Why do you listen to the words of the people, saying, ‘Behold, Dauid seeks your life’? Behold, in this very day your eyes have seen how the Lord gave you today into my hand in the cave, and I was not willing to kill you, and I spared you and said, ‘I will not raise my hand against my lord; for this one is the Lord’s anointed.’ And behold, the wing of your double-cloak is in my hand; I have removed the wing, and I have not killed you, and know, and see today that there is no wrong or impiety and rebellion in my hand. And I have not sinned against you, and you are binding my life to take it. May the Lord judge between me and you, and may the Lord avenge me on you, and my hand shall not be against you, as the ancient illustration says, ‘Out of the lawless will come forth error,’ and my hand shall not be against you. And now after whom do you come out O king of Israel? After whom do you pursue? After a dead dog and after one flea. May the Lord be judge and jury between me and between you; may the Lord see and judge my cause and acquit me out of your hand.

And it happened, when Dauid had finished speaking these words to Saoul, that Saoul said, ‘Is this your voice, my child Dauid?’ and Saoul lifted up his voice and wept. And Saoul said to Dauid, ‘You are more righteous than I, for you have repaid me good, but I have repaid you evil. And today you have told me the good things that you have done for me, when the Lord shut me into your hands today and you did not kill me, and that if one should find his enemy in distress and should send him on a good way, then the Lord will repay him good as you have done today. And now, behold, I know that ruling the Lord will repay him good as you have done before his master. And shall I take my bread and my wine and my sacrifices, the sheep that I have sacrificed for my shearsers, and give them to men who come from I do not know where?’ And Dauid’s lads turned away on their way and returned and came and told Dauid according to these words. And Dauid said to his men, ‘Each strap on his sword!’ and about four hundred men went up after Dauid, and the two hundred remained with the baggage.

And one of the lads told Abigaia, Nabal’s wife, saying, ‘Behold, Dauid sent messengers out of the wilderness to salute our master, and he turned away from them. And the men were very good to us; they did not hinder us nor make demands on us, and when we were in the fields, they were like a wall around us both by night and by day, during all the days that we were with them keeping the flock. And now know, and see what you will do, for evil has been decided against our master and against his house, and he is a pestilent son, and it is not possible to speak to him.’ And Abigaia hurried and took two hundred loaves and two vessels of wine and five sheep ready dressed and five oiphib of parched grain and one gomor of raisins and two hundred cakes of dried fruit and put them on the donkeys and said to her lads, ‘Go on ahead of me, and behold, I am coming after you.’ And she did not tell her husband. And it happened, when she was mounted on the donkey and was going down under cover of the mountain, that, behold, Dauid and his men were coming down to meet her, and she met them. And Dauid said, ‘Perchance for an unrighteous fellow I have protected all his belongings in the wilderness, and we have not ordered to receive anything of all his belongings, and he has returned me evil for good. This is what God may do to Dauid, and this is what he may he add, if by morning I will leave of all who belong to him one who urinates against a wall.’

And Samouel died, and all Israel assembled and mourned him, and they buried him at his home in Harmathaim. And Dauid got up and went down to the wilderness of Maan. And there was a man in Maan, and his flocks were in Carmel, and the man was very great, and he had three thousand sheep and a thousand goats, and it happened when he was shearing his flock in Carmel. And the name of the man was Nabal, and the name of his wife Abigaia, and his wife was good at understanding and very beautiful in appearance, and the man was surly and mean in his practices, and the man was dog-like. And Dauid heard in the wilderness that Nabal the Carmelite was shearing his flock, and Dauid sent ten lads and said to the lads, “Go up to Carmel, and go to Nabal, and ask him in my name regarding peace, and you shall say this: ‘To good times; may you be in good health and your house, and all that you have be in good health! And now, behold, I have heard that they are shearing for you—now your shepherds who were with us in the wilderness, and we did not hinder them and did not demand anything of them, all the days they were in Carmel. Ask your lads, and they will tell you. And let my lads find favor in your sight, for we have come on a good day. Do give whatever your hand finds to your son Dauid.”

And the lads came and spoke these words to Nabal according to all these words in the name of Dauid. And he leaped up, and Nabal answered Dauid’s servants and said, ‘Who is Dauid? And who is the son of lessiai? Slaves have been multiplied today, when they are breaking away each from before his master. And shall I take my bread and my wine and my sacrifices, the sheep that I have sacrificed for my shearsers, and give them to men who come from I do not know where?’ And Dauid’s lads turned away on their way and returned and came and told Dauid according to these words. And Dauid said to his men, “Each strap on his sword!” and about four hundred men went up after Dauid, and the two hundred remained with the baggage.

And one of the lads told Abigaia, Nabal’s wife, saying, ‘Behold, Dauid sent messengers out of the wilderness to salute our master, and he turned away from them. And the men were very good to us; they did not hinder us nor make demands on us, and when we were in the fields, they were like a wall around us both by night and by day, during all the days that we were with them keeping the flock. And now know, and see what you will do, for evil has been decided against our master and against his house, and he is a pestilent son, and it is not possible to speak to him.’ And Abigaia hurried and took two hundred loaves and two vessels of wine and five sheep ready dressed and five oiphib of parched grain and one gomor of raisins and two hundred cakes of dried fruit and put them on the donkeys and said to her lads, ‘Go on ahead of me, and behold, I am coming after you.’ And she did not tell her husband. And it happened, when she was mounted on the donkey and was going down under cover of the mountain, that, behold, Dauid and his men were coming down to meet her, and she met them. And Dauid said, ‘Perchance for an unrighteous fellow I have protected all his belongings in the wilderness, and we have not ordered to receive anything of all his belongings, and he has returned me evil for good. This is what God may do to Dauid, and this is what he may he add, if by morning I will leave of all who belong to him one who urinates against a wall.’

And Abigaia saw Dauid, and she hurried and alighted from the donkey and fell before Dauid on the ground and said, ‘Upon me, my lord, be the injustice; do let your slave speak in your ears, and hear a word of your slave. 25Let not now my lord set his heart on this pestiferous person, for as his name is, so is he; Nabal is his name, and folly is with him, but I, your slave, did not see your lads whom you sent.

26 “And now, my lord, the Lord lives, and your life lives, since the Lord restrained you from coming against innocent blood, and to save your hand for yourself, even now may your enemies and those who seek evil for my lord be like Nabal. 27And now accept this benefaction that your slave has brought for my lord, and you shall give it to the lads who follow my lord. 28Do remove the trespass of your ears, and hear a word of your slave. 29Let not now be the injustice; do let your slave speak in your self as a wife. 30And Dauid’s servants came to Abigaia and spoke concerning Abigaia to take her to him as a wife.

And Dauid’s servants came to Abigaia and spoke concerning Abigaia to take her to him as a wife. 31And this shall not be that the Lord will do to my lord all the good that he has chosen for your face.” 32 And Dauid said to Abigaia, “Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel, who has sent you to meet me, 33and blessed be your character, and blessed be you who has hindered me on this very day, 34for surely the Lord has shut up your enemy into your hand, 35and I will not strike him a second time.” 36 And Abigaia received from her hand all that she had brought him, and he said to her, “Go up to your house in peace; see, I have heeded your voice, and I have chosen your face.”

37 And Dauid came to Nabal, and behold, he had a feast in his house like a feast of a king, and Nabal’s heart was merry upon him, and he was exceedingly drunk, and she did not tell him a word small or great until the morning light. 38And it happened in the morning, when Nabal had sobered up from the wine, his wife told him these things, and his heart died within him, and he became like a stone. 39And it happened about ten days later, and the Lord struck Nabal, and he died.

40 And Dauid heard and said, “Blessed be the Lord who has judged the cause of my reproach at Nabal’s hand and has kept back his slave from the hand of evil acts, and the Lord has returned the evildoing of Nabal upon his head.” And Dauid sent and spoke concerning Abigaia to take her to himself as a wife. 41And Dauid’s servants came to Abigaia at Carmel and spoke to her, saying, “Dauid sent us to you to take you to him as a wife.” 42And she rose and did obeisance, face to the ground, and said, “Behold, your slave is for a servant-girl to wash the feet of your servants.” 43And Abigaia arose and mounted the donkey and five maids were attending her, and she went after the servants of Dauid and became his wife.

44 And Dauid took Achinaam from Iezrael, and both were his wives. 45And Saoul gave his daughter Melchol, Dauid’s wife, to Phalti son of Lais, who was from Romma.

26 And the Ziphites came from the dry country to Saoul on the hill, saying, “Behold, Dauid is sheltering with us on the hill of Hechela, which is in front of lessaimoun.” 2And Saoul rose and went down to the wilderness of Ziph, and with him were three thousand chosen men of Israel, to seek Dauid in the wilderness of Ziph. 3And Saoul encamped on the hill of Hechela in front of lessaimoun beside the road, and Dauid settled in the wilderness. And Dauid saw that Saoul had come after him into the wilderness, 4and Dauid sent out spies and learned that Saoul had come prepared from Keila. 5And Dauid rose secretly and went in to the place, there where Saoul was sleeping, and Abenner son of Ner, the commander-in-chief of his army, was there, and Saoul was sleeping in a covered chariot, and the people were encamped around him.

6 And Dauid answered and said to Achimelech the Chettite and to Iob’s brother Abessa son of Sarouia, saying “Who will enter with me into the camp to Saoul?” And Abessa said, “I will enter with you.” 7And Dauid went in, and Abessa, to the people by night, and behold, Saoul lay in sleep in a covered chariot, and his spear stuck in the ground at his head, and Abenner and his people were sleeping around him. 8And Abessa said to Dauid, “The Lord has shut up your enemy into your hand today, and now I will pin him to the ground with the spear once, and I will not strike him a second time.” 9And Dauid said to Abessa, “Do not humbly him, for who shall bring his hand against the Lord’s anointed and be guiltless?” 10And Dauid said, “The Lord lives, if the Lord does not strike him down or his day comes and he dies or he goes down into battle and is added, 11it is certainly not from the Lord to bring my hand against the Lord’s anointed, and now do take the spear from by his head, and the head of water, and let us depart by ourselves.” 12And Dauid took the spear and the jar of water from by his head, and they went away by themselves. And there was no one to see it and no one to know it and no one to awake; all were sleeping, because amazement from the Lord had fallen upon them.

13 And Dauid went over to the other side and stood on the top of the mountain far away, and the distance between them was great. 14And Dauid called to the people, and he spoke to Abenner, saying, “Abenner! Will you not answer?” And Aben-
And the Lord will return to "Behold, the spear of the king! Let one of the lads David had Iezraelite and Abigail the wife of Nabal the hold, and David and both his wives, Achinaam the chous at Geth, he and his men, each and his house-earth. And now do see! Where are the king's spear and the jar of water that are at his head?"

And David recognized David's voice and said, "Is this your voice, my child David?" And David said, "Your slave, O lord the king." And he said, "Why does my lord thus pursue after his slave? For what have I done wrong? And what injustice was found in me? And now do let my lord the king hear the word of his slave: if it is God who have driven me out offering, and if it is sons of men, may they be cursed before the Lord, for they have driven me out today so as not to be established in the heritage of the Lord, saying, 'Go, be subject to other gods.' And now, may my blood not fall to the ground opposite the presence of the Lord, for the king of Israel has come out to seek my life, as the long-eared owl hunts on the mountains."

And Saoul said, "I have done wrong: come back, my child David, for I will not harm you, because my life was precious in your eyes in this very day; I have been a no-good and have acted in very great ignorance." And David answered and said, "Behold, the spear of the king! Let one of the lads come over and get it. And the Lord will return to each his righteous deeds and his faith, as the Lord gave you into my hand today, and I did not want to bring my hand against the Lord's anointed, and behold, as your life was magnified today in my eyes in this very day, so may my life be magnified before the Lord, and may he protect me, and he will deliver me from all tribulation." And Saoul said to David, "Blessed be you, my child. And doing you what your slave will do," and Anchous said to David, "So I will make you chief of the bodyguard and the king of the Israelites and I shall escape to a land of allophyles and Saoul ceases from seeking me within every border of Israel, and I shall escape out of his hand." And David and the four hundred men with him arose and came to Anchous son of Ammach, king of Geth. And David settled with Anchous at Geth, he and his men, each and his household, and David and both his wives, Achinaam the Izraelite and Abigail the wife of Nabal the Carmelite. And it was told Saul that David had fled to Geth, and he no longer added to seek him. And David said to Anchous, "If indeed your slave has found favor in your eyes, do let them give me a place in one of the towns that are in the country, and I will settle there, and why does your slave settle in a royal city with you?"

And and in that day he gave him Sekelak; therefore Sekelak has belonged to the king of Judea to this day. And the number of days that David was settled in the country of the allophyles was four months. And David was going up, and his men, and they were making raids on every Gesir and on the Amalekite, and behold, the land was being inhabited—the land from Gelampsour even as far as the land of Egypt—by suitable walled places. And he was striking the land and not leaving man or woman alive and was taking away flocks and herds and donkeys and camels and clothing, and they returned and were coming to Anchous. And Anchous said to David, "Against whom have you made a raid today?" And David said to Anchous, "Against the south of Judea and against the south of Iesmego and against the south of Kenezi." And he left neither man nor woman alive to bring back to Geth, saying, "They must not bring word to Geth against us, saying, This is what David does." And this was his rationale all the days that David was settled in the country of the allophyles. And David was fully trusted with Anchous, saying, "Shaming he has made himself shamed among his people in Israel, and he shall always be a slave to me."

And it happened in those days that allophyles were gathering in their camps to go out to fight with Israel, and Anchous said to David, "Knowing you shall know that you will go out with me to battle, you and your men." And David said to Anchous, "Thus now you shall know what your slave will do," and Anchous said to David, "So I will make you chief of the bodyguard all the days."

And Samouel died, and all Israel mourned for him and buried him in Harmathaim in his city. And Saoul expelled the ventriloquists and those in the know from the land. And the allophyles assembled and came and encamped at Soman, and Saoul gathered every man of Israel, and they encamped at Gelboue. And Saoul saw the camp of the allophyles and was afraid, and his heart was greatly dismayed. And Saoul inquired through the Lord, and the Lord did not answer him by dreams and by clear ones and by prophets. And Saoul said to his servants, "Seek out for me a ventriloquizing woman, and I will go to her and inquire by her," and his servants said to him, "Behold, there is a ventriloquizing woman at Aendor."

And Saoul disguised himself and put on other clothes and went, he and two men with him, and they came to the woman by night, and he said to her, "Do seek divinations for me by a ventriloquist, and bring up for me whomever I say to you."

And the woman said to him, "Behold, indeed you know what Saoul did, how he cut off the ventriloquists and those in the know from the land, and why are you laying a snare for my life to put it to death?" And Saoul swore to her, saying, "The Lord lives, if injustice shall befall you in this matter.” 11 And the woman said, “Whom shall I bring up for you?” And he said, “Bring up Samouel for me.” 12 And the woman saw Samouel, and she cried out with a loud voice, and the woman said to Saoul, “Why did you deceive me? And you are Saoul!” 13 And the king said to her, “Have no fear; tell whom you have seen.” And she said to him, “I have seen gods coming up out of the ground.” 14 And he said to her, “What did you perceive?” And she said to him, “A man, standing, coming up out of the ground, and he is wrapped in a double-cloak.” And Saoul knew that this was Samouel, and he bowed with his face to the ground and did obeisance to him. 15 And Samouel said, “Why did you disturb me that I ascend?” And Saoul said, “I am greatly distressed, and the allophyles are warring against me, and God has turned away from me and no longer heeds me, either by the hand of prophets or by dreams, and now I have summoned you to tell me what I shall do.” 16 And Samouel said, “Why do you inquire of me? And the Lord has turned from you and is with your neighbor, 17 and the Lord has done to you just as he spoke by my hand, and the Lord will tear your kingdom out of your hands and give it to your neighbor Daud. 18 Because you did not hear the voice of the Lord and did not carry out his fierce wrath on Amalek, therefore the Lord did this thing to you this day. 19 And the Lord will hand over Israel along with you into the hands of allophyles, and tomorrow you and your sons with you shall fall, and the Lord will give the camp of Israel into the hands of allophyles.” 20 And Saoul hastened, and as he stood, he fell on the ground and was filled with fear because of the words of Samouel, and there was no more any strength in him, for he had eaten nothing the whole day and that whole night. 21 And the woman came to Saoul and saw that he hastened greatly and said to him, “Behold, indeed your slave heard your voice, and I put my life in my hand and heard the words that you spoke to me, and now do listen to the voice of your slave, and I will set a morsel of bread before you, and eat, and there will be strength in you for you will go on the way.” 22 And he did not want to eat, and his servants and the woman were urging him, and he listened to their voice and got up from the ground and sat on the seat. 23 And the woman had a grazing heifer, and she hastened and slaughtered it and took flour and kneaded it and baked unleavened cakes 24 and brought them before Saoul and before his servants, and they ate. And they rose and went away that night. 25 And allophyles gathered all their armies at Aphek, and Israel encamped in Aendor which is in Iezrael. 26 And satraps of allophyles were passing on by hundreds and by thousands, and Daud and his men were passing on in the rear with Anchous, 27 and the satraps of the allophyles said, “Who are these who pass by?” And Anchous said to the commanders of the allophyles, “Is this not Daud, the slave of King Saoul of Israel? He has been with us for days; this is the second year, and from the day he fell in with me I have found no fault in him and until this day.” 28 And the commanders of the allophyles were distressed by him and said to him, “Return the man to his place, there where you have assigned him, and let him not go with us to the battle, and let him not be a plotter against the camp, and by what means could this fellow reconcile himself to his lord? Would it not be with the heads of those men? 29 Is this not Daud, for whom they began with dances, saying, ‘Saoul has killed amongst his thousands, and Daud amongst his ten thousands?’” 30 And Anchous called Daud and said to him, “The Lord lives, that you and your coming in and your going out with me in the camp are right and good in my eyes and that I have not found evil against you from the day you have come to me until the present day, and in the eyes of the satraps you are not good. 31 And now go back, and go in peace, and you shall not do evil in the eyes of the satraps of the allophyles.” 32 And Daud said to Anchous, “What have I done to you, and what did you find in your slave from the day I was before you even until this day, that I shall not go to fight the enemies of my lord the king?” 33 And Anchous replied to Daud, “I know that you are good in my eyes, but the satraps of the allophyles say, ‘He shall not go up with us to battle’. 34 And now be early in the morning, you and the servants of your lord who came with you, and go to the place, there where I appointed you, and do not place a pestilent thought in your heart, for you are good before me, and start early on the way, and let there be light upon you, and go.” 35 And Daud was early to depart, he and his men, and to guard the land of the allophyles, and the allophyles went up to fight against Israel.

7 And Dauid said to the priest, Abiathar son of Achimelech, “Bring the ephoud.” 8 And Dauid inquired through the Lord, saying, “Shall I pursue after this geddoura? Shall I overtake them?” And he said to him, “Pursue, for overtaking you shall overtake, and delivering you shall deliver.” 9 And Dauid went out, and he and the six hundred men with him. And they came to Wadi Bosor, and the reserves stayed. 10 And he pursued with four hundred men, but two hundred stayed behind, who stayed on the other side of Wadi Bosor.

11 And in the open country they found an Egyptian man, and they took him and brought him to Dauid in the open country, and they gave him bread, and he ate, and they gave him water to drink, 12 and they gave him a piece of fig cake, and he ate, and his spirit revived in him, for he had not eaten bread or drunk water for three days and three nights. 13 And Dauid said to him, “Whose are you, and where are you from?” And the Egyptian lad said, “I am a slave of an Amalekite man, and my master left me behind because I fell sick three days ago. 14 And we had made a raid on the south of Cholthi and on the parts of Judea and on the south of Cheloub, and we burned Sekelak with fire.” 15 And Dauid said to him, “Will you take me down to this geddoura?” And he said, “Do swear to me by God that you will not put me to death and not hand me over into the hands of my master, and I will take you down to this geddoura.”

16 And he took him down there, and behold, they were spread out over the face of all the ground, eating and drinking and celebrating a feast with all the great spoils they took from the land of allophyles and from the land of Ioudas. 17 And Dauid came upon them and smote them from the flocks and herds and led them away ahead of them, and the allophyles came and settled in them. 18 And Dauid recovered all that the Amalekites took and delivered both his wives. 19 And nothing was amiss with them, from small up to great and from the spoils even up to sons and daughters and leave.” 20 And Dauid took all the things that they took of theirs; Dauid brought back all the things. 21 And Dauid came to the two hundred men who had been too exhausted to go after Dauid, and he had caused them to sit at Wadi Bosor, and they went out to meet Dauid and to meet the people who were with him, and Dauid drew near to the people, and they asked him the matters for peace. 22 And every pestilent and bad fellow among the men, the warriors, who had gone with Dauid answered and said, “Because they did not pursue together with us, we will not give them any of the spoils that we have recovered, except let each take his wife and his children and leave.” 23 And Dauid said, “You shall not do so after the Lord delivered them to us and guarded us, and the Lord delivered the geddour that came against us into our hands. 24 And who will listen to these your words? For they are not inferior to you; because according to the share of the one who goes down into the battle, so shall be the share of the one who stays by the baggage; according to this they shall be divided.” 25 And it happened, from that day and beyond, that it was for an ordinance and for a statute for Israel until today.

26 And Dauid came to Sekelak and sent part of the spoils to the elders of Ioudas and to his fellows, saying, “Behold, some of the spoils of the enemies of the Lord,” 27 for those in Baithsour and those in Rama of the south and those in leith thor and those in Aroer and the Ammadi and those in Saphi and those in Esthie and those in Geth and those in Kinan and those in Saphek and those in Timatham and those in Carmel and those in the towns of Jerameli and those in the towns of Kenezi and those in Ierimouth and those in Bersabee and those in Noo and those in Chebron and in all the places, there where Dauid crossed, he and his men.

31 And the allophyles were fighting against Israel, and the men of Israel fled from before the allophyles, and wounded fell on Mount Gelboure. 2 And allophyles engaged Saoul and his sons, and allophyles smote Jonathan and Aminadab and Melchisa, sons of Saoul. 3 And the battle pressed hard upon Saoul, and the darters, the bowmen found him, and he was wounded in the abdomen. 4 And Saoul said to the one who bore his armor, “Draw your sword, and thrust me through with it, lest these uncircumcised come and thrust me through and make sport of me.” And the one who bore his armor was unwilling, for he feared greatly, and Saoul took the sword and fell upon it. 5 And the one who bore his armor saw that Saoul had died, and he also fell upon his sword and died with him. 6 And Saoul and his three sons and the one who bore his armor died together in that day. 7 And the men of Israel who were on the other side of the valley and those beyond the Jordan saw that the men of Israel fled and that Saoul had died, and his sons, and they forsook their towns and fled, and the allophyles came and settled in them.

8 And it happened on the next day that the allophyles came to strip the dead, and they found Saoul and his three sons fallen on the mountains of Gelboure. 9And they brought him back and stripped off his armor and sent them into the land of allophyles round about, proclaiming the good news to their idols and to their people. 10 And they put his armor in the Astarteion and they fastened his body on the wall of Baithsion. 11And the inhabitants of Iabis of Galaaditis heard what the allophyles had done to Saoul, 12 and every man of might arose and went the whole night and took the body of Saoul and the body of Jonathan his son from the wall of Baithsion and brought them to Iabis and burned them there. 13 And they took and buried their bones under the cultivated ground of Iabis and fasted seven days.

THE KAIGE TEXT OF REIGNS

TO THE READER

Edition of the Greek Text
The NETS translation of the two Kaige sections in Reigns, 2 Rgns 11.2–3 Rgns 2.11 (= βγ) and 3 Rgns 22.1–4 Rgns 25.30 (= γδ), is based on the preliminary critical edition by Alfred Rahlfs, Septuaginta. Id est Vetus Testamentum graece iuxta LXX interpretes, 2 vols. (Stuttgart: Württembergische Bibelanstalt, 1935).

In a few places I have disagreed with Rahlfs' edition. For example, he was correct to adopt τόν ούδαι in 2 Rgns 24.1 and ούδαι in 4 Rgns 21.11. Both readings show that the translator rendered ἡδών by an uninflected transcription (ούδαι) instead of the inflected form (οὐδάς). Inner-Greek copyists preferred οὐδάς, which accounts for Rahlfs' readings in 2 Rgns 11.1; 20.5; 4 Rgns 8.19; 9.29; 14.10, 12; 17.19; 21.16; 23.27; 25.21.

Kaige as Composite Text
Most Septuagint scholars today agree that Rahlfs' edition of βγ and γδ (Thackeray’s labels for the two sections) is a reasonable approximation (as a work in progress) to the text presupposed by extant Hexaplaric readings and a counterweight to the text of the so-called Lucianic manuscripts. A growing consensus further suggests that Rahlfs' text most likely represents a composite text, consisting of an underlying Old Greek (OG) translation (second century BCE) interspersed with “Kaige” revisions (latter part of the first century BCE, perhaps by a Jewish Palestinian school of translators), with the aim of bringing the OG into closer agreement with a proto-Masoretic text. This composite text is commonly referred to as “Kaige-Theodotion” or simply “Kaige.” For further details about scholarly theories on the OG and Kaige in 1–4 Reigns, see “TO THE READER OF THE OLD GREEK TEXT OF REIGNS” (above).

Two Sections of Kaige Shared Features in βγ and γδ
Several translation equivalents and techniques are shared by βγ and γδ, in contrast to the OG sections of 1–4 Reigns. (1) ב or ב was typically rendered by καὶ γέ (c. 26x and 17x respectively: e.g., 2 Rgns 11.12, 17, 21, 24; 3 Rgns 22.22; 4 Rgns 2.5; 8.1) in distinction from καὶ in OG (c. 72x). One can therefore infer that a Kaige translator/reviser was intent on contrasting מ with ב or ב. I have tried to flag this contrast by glossing καὶ γέ with “and indeed/indeed.” (2) γώ – ἐγώ – ἐγω – ἐγω ἐμι were distinguished, even when ἐγω ἐμι was followed by a finite verb, e.g., ἐγώ ἐμι ἐξισοῦ ἂς ἐς ἡς βασιλέα ἂπι ἱρατη “I am–I anointed you to be king over Israel” (2 Rgns 12.7[2x] and cf. 11.5; 13.28; 15.28; 18.12; 20.17; 24.12, 17; 3 Rgns 2.2). Though γδ is less consistent than βγ, there too one finds ἐγώ ἐμι plus a finite verb (cf. 4 Rgns 4.13; 10.9; 22.20), a barbarism absent from the OG sections of 1–4 Reigns. (3) Though Ἑβρ “a ram’s horn” is translated by σάλπιγξ “a (metal) trumpet” in the OG (and Lucianic manuscripts within βγ and γδ), in Kaige it is rendered by κερατιν “a horn” (e.g., contrast 1 Rgns 13.3 with 2 Rgns 18.16 and 4 Rgns 9.13). (4) The historic present tense, found over 220 times in the OG sections, is used fewer than 10 times in Kaige. (5) ἐποῦ “from” is rendered by ἐπάνωθεν or ἐπάνωθεν “from upon,” rather than by ἀπο or ἐπάνω “from” as in OG (e.g., 2 Rgns 11.21; 13.9; 24.25; 3 Rgns 2.4; 4 Rgns 2.3, 5, 13, 14; 10.31; 17.2; 23; 25.5, 21, 28). These shared features set βγ and γδ apart from the OG sections in 1–4 Reigns.

Isomorphic Translation of Hebrew
Another distinctive Kaige feature, ubiquitous in βγ and γδ, is what may be called “rigid isomorphism” or “extreme literalism.” Each constitutive element in the source text (apparently proto-Masoretic) is translated sequentially morpheme-for-morpheme or word-for-word, with the result that the Greek is often unidiomatic. Although this feature is not absent from the OG sections, it is more strictly adhered to in βγ and γδ (which is not to say that “normal” Greek does not occur). A few examples are in order:
TO THE READER OF THE KAIGE TEXT OF REIGNS

2 Rgns 12.5 προσελήφθη υπὸ τὴν καρδιά τοῦ σώματος - ὁτι υἱὸς βασιλέως ὁ ἄνδρον ὁ ποιήσας τοῦτο, “for the man who did this is a son of death.”

2 Rgns 12.16 καὶ ἐμπροσθοσεῖν Δαυιδ ἡστείαν, “and David fasted a fast.”

2 Rgns 13.15 εἰς τὴν ἐσχάτην ἡμέραν - καὶ ἐμπροσθοσεῖον αὐτὴν Δαυιδ μίσος μέγα σφόδρα, “And Amnon hated her with very great hatred.”

See further 2 Rgns 14.28; 3 Rgns 2.4; 4 Rgns 5.3; 8.20, 22; 10.30; 11.11; 14.21.

Overworked pairings are περίπτωσις - ἵνα δοθήν ἡ διάθεσις (c. 45x in βγ, 60x in γδ) and παρακολουθήσω - λέγων “saying” (c. 40x in βγ, 60x in γδ). The infinitive absolute plus finite verb was translated awkwardly by finite verb plus cognate participle/cognate dative, e.g., παρακολουθήσων παράκολον ὅποιον διδάσκει “provokingly you provoked . . . [he] shall die by death” (2 Rgns 12.14; cf. 14.14; 15.8; 17.10–11; 18.2–3; 23.7; 24.24; 3 Rgns 22.28; 4 Rgns 1.4, 6, 16; 2.11; 8.10, 14; 14.10; 18.30, 33). Oath formulae were rendered word-for-word, to the point where the standard default εἶ “if” failed to pick up on the emphatic negative component of πλέκω when it occurs in an oath, which resulted in an unstated protasis or apodosis, e.g., ἢ κύριος ἐπείδη αὐτό τοῦ τρίγος τοῦ υἱοῦ σου ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν “The Lord lives, if a hair of your son shall fall on the ground!” (2 Rgns 14.11; cf. 11.11; 14.19; 15.21; 19.8; 3 Rgns 2.8; 4 Rgns 2.2, 4, 6; 3.14; 4.30; 5.16). Throughout βγ and γδ clauses were not subordinated but simply strung together according to the equation τοῦ – καὶ.

Stereotypes

Stereotyping in βγ and γδ sometimes results in negative semantic interference from the Hebrew source text. So, for example, the third instance of τὸ παρακολουθίαν ἐπείδη in 2 Rgns 11.7 gives rise to an oxymoron: “and Daud inquired after the peace of loab and after the peace of the people and after the war.” In 4 Rgns 1.7 παρακολουθίας has the sense “kind/sort/manner”: “What sort of man was he who came to meet you?” However, the translator’s stereotyped equation παρακολουθίας – κρίσις results in an unusual inquiry: “What was the judgment <Or means of judging> of the man who went up to meet you,” whereupon Eliou is described as a hairy man wearing a leather belt.

Isolates

Etymologizing translations can produce isolates. In βγ, for example, Hebrew עַל הָגָם מָאָסָה was rendered as ἀροῖς τοῦ βασιλέως in the clause “and there went out after him a burden/portion from the king” (2 Rgns 11.8). παρακολουθίας was derived from παρακολούθω, which usually corresponds to σύρῃ “to raise,” which in turn produced ἀροῖς, a word that is a poor contextual fit here. Another example is τὸς ἅγιος ὡτοῦ “his hearings/reports” for ἀσκέμενος “his bodyguard” in 2 Rgns 23.23 via the equation ἀσκέμενος – ἀσκεῖν “to hear.”

γδ has numerous isolate translations, for example: Εἰρήνης θεου – αὐτῶ (4 Rgns 2.14); γινώσκω ἥν βραχίονα “a short distance” – εἰς δείπνον τῆς γῆς “for debratha of the land” (4 Rgns 5.19); ἔρχομαι ἐν θάλασσα ἐπὶ τοῦ κάστρου “to the citadel” – εἰς το οἰκώμενον “into the darkness <Perhaps secret place>” (4 Rgns 5.24) where the translator may have misconstrued the Hebrew noun to be παλαισία, παλαιόν “a present” – μανασσα (4 Rgns 8.8, 9; 17.3, 4; 20.12); οὕτως “then” – αὐτῶ (4 Rgns 10.10); παρακολούθησα λέει λεῶν to the keeper of the wardrobe” – τῷ ἐπὶ τοῦ οἴκου μεσθαλ “to the man over the house of mesthaal <Or Mesthala>” (4 Rgns 10.22); παρακολούθησα “the thornbush” – ὁ ἀκανθός (4 Rgns 14.9[2x]); παρακολούθησα, παρακολούθησα “the Chaldean officials” – πάραδον τῶν Ἑλλήνων “a passing <Possibly incursion> of the Chaldeans” (4 Rgns 25.24) although the translator may have misread ἀποφαίνεται as ἠπείρετο. Isolate translations further illustrate the translator’s rigid isomorphism in both sections of Kaige.

Transcriptions

The translator’s isomorphic approach is further underscored by numerous transcriptions of typically difficult or unknown Hebrew words. For example, in βγ one finds: “araboth of the wilderness” (2 Rgns 15.28), “dried araphoth on it” (17.19), and “saphphoth from cows” (17.29). In γδ a great number of transcriptions occur (c. 26), not including person or place names (cf. 4 Rgns 3.4; 4.39; 8.15; 9.13; 11.8, 12; 12.6, 10; 15.5; 16.17; 19.23; 20.12–13; 22.14; 23.4, 5, 7, 11, 24; 25.12, 14, 17). Some of these may be technical terms and thus unknown to the translator, while some may have been institutionalized.

Neologisms

Apparent neologisms in βγ include παραβιβάζω “to put aside” (2 Rgns 12.13; 24.10); κολληρίζω “to roll κολληρίζοντας (i.e., rolls)” (13.6, 8); παραξυνή “belt” (18.11); εξανθηκέω “to hang in the sun (i.e., as a form of torture)” (21.6, 9, 13); ἐπιστήριγμα “a support” (22.19); μονόξυων “a lightly armed (man)”
Calques

Occasionally the translator(s) of Ἡγ and γδ made use of calques or loan words from Semitic, some of which, however, pre-date the LXX. For example: ἐπίθετος “robe/coat” (2 Rgs 13.18, 19; 15.32); γυναῖκας σίκλος “shekel” (2 Rgs 14.26; 18.12; 21.16; 24.24; 4 Rgs 6.25; 7.1, 16, 18; 15.20); γῆ - διαθήκη “covenant” (2 Rgs 15.24; 23.5; 4 Rgs 11.4, 17; 13.23; 17.35, 38; 18.12; 23.2, 3, 21); ἡμέρας κόβος unit of measure (4 Rgs 6.25); and ἔρις τρίστατης “the number-three man” (4 Rgs 7.2, 17, 19; 9.25; 10.25; 15.25).

Distinctive Features in Ἡgamma and γδ vis-à-vis the MT

Both Ἡγ and γδ share many translation features, resulting from strict adherence to the Hebrew source text and Kaige revision, which set them apart for the OG sections in 1–4 Reigns. At the same time, both Ἡγ and γδ reflect hundreds of small semantic variants from MT. A comparison of NETS with NRSV will spot many of these. These variants may be quantitative, ranging in length from a single word to several verses, or qualitative, i.e., the source text was interpreted differently. In either case, the composite Kaige text in both Ἡγ and γδ reflects only partial revision towards a proto-Masoretic text.

The fact that semantic variations exist between MT and the Kaige text in both Ἡγ and γδ, means that each section has its own distinctive features or translation profile vis-à-vis MT. Naturally, such features are conditioned by the way the translator (or were there two translators?) handled the details in the various narratives recounted in each section. Here I do not intend to make a detailed comparison between Ἡγ and γδ that would argue for or against the existence of two translators for these two sections. Such a project awaits future study. My more limited aim is to alert the reader to the kind of quantitative and qualitative variants visible in both Ἡγ and γδ.

Distictive Features in Ἡgamma vis-à-vis MT

Many quantitative differences in Ἡγ are probably due to a source text slightly different from proto-MT. In these instances the unwary reader of NETS (side by side with NRSV) might incorrectly conclude that Kaige is a free translation of the corresponding Hebrew. However, close comparison of MT with Kaige, along with new insights from 4QSam (first century BCE), show that many variants in the Greek are best attributed to a Hebrew source different from proto-MT or to changes that occurred in proto-MT after the Hebrew had been translated into Greek (e.g., editorial changes or errors in transmitting the Hebrew). One may note quantitative variants in: 2 Rgs 11.22; 12.16, 30; 13.21, 27, 34, 39; 14.27, 30; 15.18, 20, 34; 17.3, 8, 28; 18.3, 14, 18; 19.8, 10, 11, 19, 44; 20.18; 21.1, 5, 11, 22; 23.1, 3, 8, 9, 15; 24.25; 3 Rgs 1.47, 48 (for discussion see Barthélemy, Driver, McCarter, and McLean).

Other differences are likely due to the translator/reviser. I count some 100 light interpretive touches. Consistent with the translator’s usual mode of translating, these variants are typically limited to one or two words in a given sentence.

Semantic leveling occurs. So for example, while MT distinguishes between νάζω “commander” (10x, e.g., 2 Rgs 18.5; 19.7) and παῖς “chief” (2 Rgs 23.8, 18), the translator uses but one, ἄρχων “commander.” At other times, the translator differentiated where the Hebrew did not. For example, ναζωμαι “slave/servant/minister/adviser/official” was rendered by παῖς “servant” or δούλος “slave,” the latter typically in a deferential context (e.g., 2 Rgs 11.24; 13.24; 14.6; 3 Rgs 1.13, 17). Similarly, Hebrew נאצל “sword” becomes either μάχαιρα “dagger” or ρομφαία a large broad “sword” or “scimitar.” (The last two examples of differentiation occur in γδ also.) In numerous instances the translator made a grammatical subject or object explicit. Sometimes the subject was altered in Greek (e.g., 2 Rgs 20.22; 21.13).

As instances of interpretation in Ἡγ from MT to Kaige (i.e., MT > Kaige) one may cite: “fourfold” > “seVENfold” (2 Rgs 12.6); “desolate woman” > “widow” (13.20); “the king” > “his father” (15.7); “turn [it] into foolishness” > “scatter abroad” (15.31); “playing on pipes” > “dancing in choruses” (3 Rgs 1.40). In 2 Rgs 18.21, 22, 23, 31, 32 an anonymous “Cushite” has been turned into Daud’s wise friend “Chousi” (cf. 2 Rgs 15.32, 37; 16.16–18; 17.5–8, 14, 15).
A few translational variants are of a theological nature, for example: "ο Θεός" (the) God > ὁ Ἰσχυρός "the Strong One" (2 Rgsns 22.31, 33, 48; 23.5); ἐλαφίας "my rock" > φύλαξ...μου "my keeper" (22.3); ἅμαρτε "my shield" > ἅπαρσατισθέν "my protector" (22.3); ἑλέα "my stronghold" > ἀντιλήπτωρ μου "my supporter" (22.3); παγίω "the cords of Sheol" > ὁδής "δοκιμαζο "judging" (22.6, contrast 3 Rgsns 2.6, 9).

Distinctive Features in γδ vis-à-vis MT

In general, the Hebrew source text behind γδ appears to have been in better shape than that behind βγ. Nevertheless, one observes many pluses and minuses in γδ vis-à-vis MT. Two of the longest variants involve doublets. (1) Greek text missing at 3 Rgsns 22.47–50 (= 1 Kings 22.46–49 in NRSV) actually appears in the OG section at 3 Rgsns 16.28d–g. This doublet concerns the reign of losaphat, cf. 3 Rgsns 16.28a–h; 22.41–46, 51. (2) γδ contains a lengthy plus at 4 Rgsns 1.18a–d concerning loram's reign, which reappears with slight differences in the doublet at 4 Rgsns 3.1–3.

Other quantitative variants are typically only a word or a few words in length. Minuses in γδ (i.e., pluses in MT) occur in or in between such verses as: 3 Rgsns 22.47–50; 4 Rgsns 1.17; 3.13; 4.20; 5.21; 6.21, 31; 9.28, 29, 32; 10.14; 13.1, 13, 16; 15.14, 19; 16.11–12; 17.14–15, 27; 18.34; 19.6, 10, 15, 25, 34; 20.11; 21.7, 12; 23.17; 24.2; 25.10. Pluses in γδ occur in: e.g., 3 Rgsns 22.7, 53; 4 Rgsns 1.18a–d (cf. 3.1–3); 2.6, 16; 4.36; 6.16; 9.16, 29, 32; 10.16, 21, 34; 15.25; 16.2; 17.32; 19.20; 20.21; 22.3; 23.16, 29.

Given the relatively good shape of the Hebrew text, many of the pluses here and elsewhere in γδ may have been added intentionally by the translator to clarify the identity of a speaker, to avoid points of misunderstanding, to highlight certain items, or for other unknown reasons. In one case, 4 Rgsns 17.32–34, Kaige reflects a doublet and several minuses whose overall effect, whether or not they stem from the translator, is to paint the Samaritans and their syncretistic practices in a harsher way than in MT. Sometimes the translator might have misconstrued the Hebrew, for example in 4 Rgsns 5.24; 6.25; 7.10, 17; 11.10, 14; 19.25.

Variations between the Hebrew and Greek texts, however the differences arose, also have a bearing on the complicated chronological problems that surface in γδ and elsewhere in 1–4 Reigns. For example, in 4 Rgsns 8.25–29 Kaige does not distinguish as clearly as MT between kings ioam and ioaniak. In 8.17 rahlf adopted the reading “eight years” (= MT) for the length of Jehoram’s reign; yet another well attested reading in Greek has “forty years.” Ambiguity in 4 Rgsns 3 over the identities of the kings of Israel and Iouda also adds to the complex problem of variant chronologies in MT and the Greek texts in Reigns.

As in βγ, so in γδ one also observes hundreds of light interpretive touches, probably due to the translator (or a later reviser), which in effect have set the Kaige text apart from MT, sometimes in significant and fascinating ways. (Some examples cited below may be regarded as the necessary consequences of the translator’s isomorphic mode of translating.)

Again, one finds instances of semantic leveling. In 4 Rgsns 13.12 ἐρείπη and ἐρείπη were leveled to ποιεῖ (NETS “did” and “exercised” allows for better English grammar). In 4 Rgsns 24.6, 8, 12, 15; 25.27 Kaige fails to distinguish between father Jehoiakim and his son Jehoiakin and names them both “Ioakim.” This leads to further confusion in 4 Rgsns 24.17 where there is another variant concerning the relationship between Ioakim and sedekias.

Occasionally Kaige exhibits semantic differentiation. In 4 Rgsns 2.2, 4, 6 Elisaie declares three times that he will not “leave” or “abandon” Eliou, a small change from MT’s “leave.” In 4 Rgsns 10.27 men “pulled down (καταστεώ) the steles of Baal and tore down (καταστεώ) the house of Baal,” while MT uses the same verb γδ "demolish." In 4 Rgsns 11.9 Kaige describes Iodae not only as “the priest” (2 x in MT) but also as ο σωτήρ "the wise," perhaps picking up on the semantic component περίν in his Hebrew name βερεπε "Jehoiada."

On numerous occasions in γδ the translator interpreted the Hebrew in a different way from what we see in MT (glossed here as, MT > Kaige). For example: “Elijah ascended in a whirlwind into heaven” > “Eliou was taken up in a whirlwind as into heaven” (4 Rgsns 2.11); "mantle/cloak" > "sheepskin" (4 Rgsns 2.8, 13, 14; in LXX μηλωτή is used solely to designate Eliou’s sheepskin, cf. previously in the OG in 3 Rgsns 19.13, 19); "eighty shekels" > “fifty shekels” (4 Rgsns 6.25); “arrows” > “bows” (4 Rgsns 13.18); “king of Assyria” > “king of the Assyrians” (c. 48x, e.g., 4 Rgsns 15.19, 20, 29); “they did wicked things”

1 For further discussion of the different chronological systems in MT and the Greek versions, see E. Tov, The Text-
TO THE READER OF THE KAIGE TEXT OF REIGNS

> "and they made partners and engraved <Perhaps engraved steles>” (4 Rgns 17.11); “he prospered” > “he understood” (4 Rgns 18.7); “one hundred talents of silver and a talent of gold” > “one hundred talents of silver and one hundred talents of gold” (4 Rgns 23.33); “the captain of the bodyguard” > “the chief cook” (4 Rgns 25.8, 10–12, 15, 18, 20). In 4 Rgns 11.4, 19 MT refers to captains of “the Carites” (בַּעַל) and "the guards" (בָּשָׂל), while Kaige interpreted these as two commanders named “Chorri” (חֹרְרוּ) and “Rasim” (רָסִים). In 4 Rgns 2.12 the translator interpreted the expression “Father, father! The chariots of Israel and its horsemen!” (MT) as “Father, father! Chariot of Israel and its horseman!” (γδ), apparently a designation for the prophet Eliou himself, not a description of other elements in the vision (similarly in 13.14 where Eliaie is given the same epithet). In 4 Rgns 8.1, 5, Eliaie is said to have vividly “sparked to life” (ἐξομηρήσαν) the Soumanite woman’s dead son (MT reads Hiphil forms of ἀνασά “restored”; contrast 5.7 where the verb ζωοποίησα “to make alive” was used).

Some semantic variants in γδ pertain to foreign gods or goddesses. (1) The translator consistently rendered θεὴς “Asherah” or the Asherah pole that represented this foreign goddess by τὸ ἅλος “a sacred grove” (4 Rgns 13.6; 17.10, 16; 18.4; 21.3, 7; 23.4, 6, 7, 14, 15 and cf. the precedent for this in Ex 34.13; Deut 7.5). (2) In 4 Rgns 1.2, 3, 6, 16 (and cf. 21.3) the translator interpreted “Baal” in an intriguing manner: μισθωτός ἀπὸ τοῦ βασιλέου “of Baal-zebub [i.e., Baal of flies] the god of Ekron” – ἐν τῇ Βασίλει ὁμιλήθη θεὸν ἄκκαρον “by the goddess Baal, fly god of Akkaron.” Oddly, the translator refers to this Baal using both feminine and masculine language (e.g., 1.2 ἐν τῇ βασίλει where NETS supplies “goddess” and διὰ αὐτοῦ “through him”). Previously, in 3 Rgns 22.54, the translator rendered καὶ ἀπὸ τῶν θεῶν βασιλικά “Baal” – τοῖς θεοῖς ὀνόματι “the Baalim” using a transcription (βασιλικά usually marks the plural form βασιλεύς, e.g., 1 Rgns 7.4; 12.10; 3 Rgns 18.18). Thus the translator perceived Baal in a variety of ways.

Finally, some of the translator’s interpretations touch on matters of a theological nature. (1) Where MT frequently reads “man of God” in reference to Elisha, for some reason Kaige preferred “Elisaie” (cf. 4 Rgns 4.16, 25, 27; 5.8, 14, 15, 20; 6.3, 9, 10, 15; 7.2, 18, 19; 8.2). One might suppose the translator did this to avoid being vague or confusing Elisaie with others called a “man of God” (e.g., Eliou, cf. 3 Rgns 17.18, 24; 4 Rgns 1.9–13). However, in many other verses pertaining to Elisha as a “man of God,” Kaige did translate the expression word-for-word (e.g., 4.7, 9, 21, 22, 25, 40, 42; 7.17; 8.4, 7, 8, 11; 13.19). (2) If the variation in 4 Rgns 20.17 is not attributed to a different Hebrew Vorlage, then the translator has shown theological interest in underscoring the point that every word of the Lord shall be fulfilled: "τὸ πάντα ἐπιτελεῖται ἡ ἡμέρα τῆς ἀπειθείας "nothing shall be left, says the Lord" – καὶ οὐχ ὑποτελείφησεται ἡμῖν ὁ ἐπίτυχαν κύριος “and no word which the Lord said shall fail."

In summary

There are numerous shared features in the so-called “Kaige” text of γδ and βγ that distinguish these two sections from the OG sections found elsewhere in 1–4 Reigns. The Kaige text itself is most likely a composite text which consists of an underlying layer of OG along with a scattering of subsequent partial revisions towards a proto-Masoretic text. In both βγ and γδ the Kaige text reflects a typically isomorphic word-for-word rendering of the Hebrew source text, to the point where one finds examples in almost every sentence of linguistic features native to Hebrew that have been translated quite mechanically into Greek. The longer pluses or minuses found in these Kaige chapters, vis-à-vis MT, resulted from: semantic leveling, semantic differentiation, specifying the Hebrew in a different way in the Greek, small interpretive touches for various contextual reasons, and some theological interpretations, all of which have affected the Greek narrative in slightly different ways from the Hebrew story.

The NETS Translation of Kaige in βγ and γδ

Throughout my translation of Kaige in sections βγ and γδ, I have tried to adhere strictly to the guidelines outlined in the introduction, “TO THE READER OF NETS.” In particular, in order to represent the predominantly isomorphic and stilted nature of the Greek text, I have intentionally used an isomorphic or wooden style of English, when demanded by the Greek. Even in verses where the Hebrew and Greek texts are semantically equivalent, the reader will observe that NETS (correctly) has the same essential meaning as NRSV, though the style of the NETS translation may be laborious English. In other words, in translating the Greek text, I have often altered the wording of NRSV in such a way that NETS reproduces unidiomatic Greek features using unidiomatic yet grammatical English.
EDITORIAL DETAIL
In matters of punctuation I have followed NRSV as much as possible. To assist the reader in making sense of Kaige’s awkward rendering of ἐγώ εἰμι plus a finite verb, I have used an em dash (e.g., 2 Rgns 12.7). An ellipsis indicates the unstated protasis or apodosis in an oath (e.g., 2 Rgns 11.11). Versification follows Rahlfs’ Greek text with NRSV’s verse numbers in parentheses where applicable (cf. 2 Rgns 19.1–44; 3 Rgns 22.44–54; 4 Rgns 1.18a–d; 12.1–22).

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

My heartfelt appreciation goes to my teacher and friend, Albert Pietersma, co-editor of NETS and the director of my doctoral thesis. Al has provided me with expert guidance, sage advice and warm encouragement throughout the translation and analysis of both Kaige sections in 1–4 Reigns.

PAUL D. McLEAN
And it happened, after Saoul died, that Dauid returned from smiting Amalek, and Dauid settled two days in Sekelak. 2And it happened on the third day, and behold, a man came from the camp of Saoul's people, and his clothes were torn, and earth was on his head. And it happened, when he came in to Dauid, that he fell to the ground and did obeisance to him. 3And Dauid said to him, "Where have you come from?" And he said to him, "I have come safe from the camp of Israel." 4And Dauid said to him, "What is this word? Tell me!" And he said, "The people fled from the battle, and many of the people have fallen and died, and Saoul died, and his son Ionathan died." 5And Dauid said to the lad who was telling him, "How do you know that Saoul and his son Ionathan died?" 6And the lad who was telling him said, "By accident I had an encounter on Mount Gelboue, and behold, Saoul was propped up on his spear, and behold, the chariots and the horse captains drew close to him. 7And he looked on the things behind him and saw me and called me, and I said, 'Behold, here am I.' 8And he said to me, 'Who are you?' And I said 'I am an Amalekite.' 9And he said to me, 'Do stand over me, and put me to death, for a terrible darkness has laid hold of me, for all my life is in me.' 10And I stood over him and put him to death, for I knew that he could not live after he had fallen, and I took the crown that was on his head and the armlet that was on his arm, and I have brought them here to my lord."

11 And Dauid took hold of his clothes and tore them, and all the men who were with him tore their clothes. 12And they beat themselves and wept and fasted until evening for Saoul and for his son Ionathan and for the people of Ioudas and for the house of Israel, because they were smitten with a sword. 13And Dauid said to the lad who had told him, "Where are you from?" And he said, "I am son of a man, a resident alien, an Amalekite." 14And Dauid said to him, "How did you not fear to bring your hand to destroy the Lord's anointed?" 15And Dauid called one of his lads and said, "Drawing near, fall upon him," and he struck him down, and he died. 16And Dauid said to him, "Your blood be on your head, for your mouth answered against you, saying, 'I put to death the Lord's anointed.'"

17 And Dauid lamented this lamentation over Saoul and over his son Ionathan 18and said to teach the sons of Ioudas—behold, it is written in a book of the upright—

19 Set up a monument, O Israel, for the wounded that have died upon your heights!

How the mighty have fallen!

20 Tell it not in Geth, and proclaim it not in the exits of Ascalon, lest daughters of allophyles rejoice, lest daughters of the uncircumcised exult.

21 You mountains that are in Gelboue, let no dew descend, and let there be no rain upon you or fields of first fruits! For there the shield of the mighty was treated with vexation; Saoul's shield was not anointed with oil.

22 From the blood of wounded, from the fat of mighty ones, Ionathan's bow did not return empty to the rear, and Saoul's sword did not turn back empty.

23 Saoul and Ionathan, the beloved and lovely, not divided; comely in their life and in their death they were not divided; swift beyond eagles they were, and they had strength beyond lions.

24 O daughters of Israel, weep over Saoul, who clothed you with scarlet with your ornament, who brought gold ornament to your apparel.

25 How the mighty have fallen amidst the battle! Ionathan, a casualty upon your heights.

26 I grieve for you, my brother Ionathan; you were made very beautiful to me; your love to me was wonderful, beyond women's love.

27 How the mighty have fallen, and the weapons of war perished!

And it happened after these things that Dauid inquired by the Lord, saying, "Shall I go up into one of the cities of Ioudas?" And the Lord said to him, "Go up." And Dauid said, "Where shall I go up?" And he said, "To Chebron." 2And Dauid went up there to Chebron, and both his wives, Achinoom the Iezraelite and Abigaia, the wife of Nabal the Carmelite, 3and the men who were with him, each and his household, and they were dwelling in the towns of Chebron. 4And the men of Judea came, and there they anointed Dauid to reign over the house of Ioudas.

And they told Dauid, saying, "The men of labis of Galaaditis buried Saoul." 5And Dauid sent messengers to the leaders of labis of Galaaditis and said to them, "You are blessed to the Lord, because you have done this mercy to your lord, to Saoul the anointed of the Lord, and buried him and Ionathan his son! 6And now may the Lord do mercy and truth with you! And indeed I will do these good things with you, because you have done this thing. 7and now let your hands be strong, and become mighty sons, for Saoul your lord is dead, and indeed the house of Ioudas has anointed me king over themselves."
And Abenner son of Ner, commander-in-chief for Saoul, took Iebosthe son of Saoul and brought him out to the camp to Manaem and made him king over Galadadis and over Thasiri and over Izrael and over Ephraim and over Benjamin and over all Israel. Iebosthe, Saoul's son, was forty years old when he began to reign over Israel, and he reigned two years, except over the house of loudas who were behind Dauid. And the days that Dauid was king in Chebron over the house of loudas were seven years and six months.

And Abenner son of Ner went out, and the servants of Iebosthe son of Saoul, from Manaem to Gabaon, and loab son of Sarouia and the servants of Dauid went out from Chebron and met them at the well of Gabaon at the same place and they sat, these at the well of Gabaon here and these at the well there. And Abenner said to loab, “Do let the lads arise and have a game before us,” and loab said, “Let them arise.” And they arose and passed by, to the number of twelve of the servants of Benjamin, those of Iebosthe son of Saoul, and twelve of the servants of Dauid. And they held each his hand upon the head of his fellow, and his dagger to the side of his fellow, and they fell down together, and the name of that place was called the Portion of the Plotters, which is at Chebron. And the battle was extremely hard in that day, and Abenner stumbled, and the men of Israel, before the servants of Dauid.

And three sons of Sarouia were there, loab and Abessa and Asael, and Asael was as swift on his feet as one gazelle in a field. And Asael pursued after Abenner and did not turn to go to the right or to the left after Abenner. And Abenner looked behind him and said, “Are you Asael himself?” And he answered, “I am.” And Abenner said to him, “Turn to the right or to the left, and seize for yourself one of the lads, and take for yourself his armor,” and Asael did not want to turn aside from behind him. And Abenner added again, saying to Asael, “Withdraw from me, lest I strike you to the ground, and how then could I lift up my face to loab? And where are these things leading? Return to your brothor loab.” But he was not willing to withdraw. And Abenner struck him in the loins with the butt of his spear, and the spear went out behind him, and he fell there and died under him. And it happened, each one who came to the place, there where Asael fell and died—and he stood still.

And loab and Abessa pursued after Abenner, and the sun was going down, and they came to the hill of Amman, which is before Gai on the way to the wilderness of Gabaon. And the sons of Benjamin who were behind Abenner gathered themselves together and formed one band, and they stood on the top of one hill. And Abenner called loab and said, “The sword will not devour unto victory, will it? Do you not know that in the end it will be bitter? And how long will you not say to the people to turn from after our brothers?” And loab said, “The Lord lives, for if you had not spoken, wherefore, then the people from early morning would have gone up, each after his brother.” And loab trumpeted with the trumpet, and all the people departed, and they did not pursue after Israel, and they did not add to fight any longer.

And Abenner and his men returned westward that whole night and crossed the Jordan and went the whole stretch of time ahead and came to the camp. And loab returned from after Abenner and gathered all the people together, and nineteen men and Asael of Dauid’s servants were not ed. And the servants of Dauid smote of the sons of Benjamin three hundred sixty men, belonging to him. And they took up Asael and buried him in the tomb of his father at Baithleem. And loab went, and the men who were with him, the whole night, and the day broke upon them at Chebron.

And the war was for a long time between the house of Saoul and between the house of Dauid, and the house of Dauid was going and strengthening, and the house of Saoul was going and weakening.

And sons were born to Dauid at Chebron, and his firstborn was Amnon by Achinoom the Izraelite, and his second Dalouia by Abigaia the Carmelite, and the third Abessalom son of Maacha daughter of King Tholmi of Gesir, and the fourth Ornna son of Pheggith, and the fifth Sabatia by Abital, and the sixth letheraam by Dauid’s wife Aigla; these were born to Dauid in Chebron.

And it happened, while there was war between the house of Saoul and between the house of Dauid, that Abenner was prevailing over the house of Saoul. And Saoul had a concubine Respah daughter of Ial, and Memphiboshte son of Saoul said to Abenner, “Why is it that you went in to my father’s concubine?” And Abenner was very angry concerning the word of Memphiboshte, and Abenner said to him, “Am I a dog’s head? Today I did mercy with the house of your father Saoul both concerning brothers and acquaintances, and I did not desert to the house of Dauid, and do you question me today concerning an injustice of a woman? This is what God may do to Abenner, and this is what he may add to it, for just what the Lord has sworn to Dauid, for thus will I do for him in this day, to take the kingdom from the house of Saoul and set up the throne of Dauid over Israel and over loudas, from Dan to Bersabee.” And Memphiboshte was no longer able to answer Abenner a word, from his being afraid of him.

And Abenner sent messengers to Dauid at Thailam, where he was, immediately, saying, “Make your covenant with me, and behold my hand is with you to return all the house of Israel to you.” And Dauid said, “Well, I will make a covenant with you, but one thing I ask of you, saying: ‘You shall never see my face unless you bring Saoul’s daughter Melchol when you come to see my face.’ ” And Dauid sent messengers to Saoul’s son Memphibosthe, saying, “Give me back my wife Melchol whom I took for a hundred foreskins of allophyles.” And Memphibosthe sent and took her from her husband, from Phaltiliel son of Selles. And her husband went with her, weeping behind her until Barakim, and Abenner said to him, “Go, return,” and he returned.

17 And Abenner said to the elders of Israel, saying, “Yesterday and the third day you were seeking Dauid to rule over you, and now act, for the Lord spoke concerning Dauid, saying: ‘By the hand of my slave Dauid I will save Israel from the hand of allophyles and from the hand of all their enemies.’” And Abenner spoke in the ears of Benjamin. And Abenner went to speak in the ears of Dauid at Chebron all that seemed pleasing in the eyes of Israel and in the eyes of all the house of Benjamin.

20 And Abenner came to Dauid at Chebron and with him twenty men. And Dauid made a feast for Abenner and the men who were with him. And Abenner said to Dauid, “Indeed I will arise and go and will gather all Israel to my lord the king, and I will make a covenant with you, and you will reign over all that your soul desires.” And Dauid sent away Abenner, and he went in peace.

22 And behold, the servants of Dauid and Iob arrived from the raid, and they brought much spoil with them, and Abenner was not with Dauid at Chebron, for he had sent him away, and he had gone in peace. And Iob and all his army came, and it was told Iob, saying, “Abenner son of Ner has come to Dauid, and he has dismissed him, and he went away in peace.” And Iob went in to the king and said, “What is this you have done? Behold, Abenner came to you, and why have you sent him off, and he has gone away in peace?” Do you not know the wickedness of Abenner son of Ner, that he came to deceive you and to learn your comings and goings and to learn all that you are doing?”

26 And Iob returned from Dauid and sent messengers after Abenner, and they brought him back from the cistern of Seiram, and Dauid did not know. And he brought Abenner back to Chebron, and Iob took him aside beside the gate to speak to him, ambushing him, and there he stabbed him in the loins, and he died by the blood of Asael, Iob’s brother. And after these things Dauid heard and said, “I am guiltless, and my kingdom, forever from the Lord for the blood of Abenner son of Ner; let it fall on the head of Iob and on all his father’s house, and may the house of Iob never be without one who has a discharge or who is leprous or who holds a cudgel or who falls by the sword or who lacks food!” But Iob and his brother Abessa lay in wait for Abenner, because he had put to death their brother Asael in the battle at Gabaon.

31 And Dauid said to Iob and to all the people who were with him, “Tear your clothes, and put on sackcloth, and beat yourselves before Abenner.” And King Dauid walked behind the bier. And they buried Abenner at Chebron, and the king lifted up his voice and wept at his grave, and all the people wept for Abenner. And the king lamented for Abenner and said, “Shall Abenner die according to the death of Nabal?”

34 Your hands were not bound; your feet were not in fetters; he did not bring, like Nabal; before sons of injustice you fell.” And all the people gathered to weep over him. And all the people came to make Dauid eat a funeral meal with bread while it was still day, and Dauid swore, saying, “This is what God may do, and this may he add, because, if the sun does not set, I will not taste of bread, or from anything!” And all the people knew, and everything that the king did before the people was pleasing before them. And all the people and all Israel knew in that day that it was not from the king to put Abenner son of Ner to death. And the king said to his servants, “Do you not know that a great leader has fallen in this day in Israel and that today I am a Kinsman and one appointed by a king? But these men, sons of Sarouia, are too cruel for me; the Lord pay back the one who does evil in accordance with his wickedness!”

4 And Saouil’s son Memphibosthe heard that Abenner had died at Chebron, and his hands were weakened, and all the men of Israel grew faint. And Saouil’s son Memphibosthe had two men, captains of bands, the name of the one was Baana sons of Remmon the Berothite and said to the king, “Behold, the head of Memphibosthe son of Ner to death. And the king said to his servants, “Do you not know that a great leader has fallen in this day in Israel and that today I am a Kinsman and one appointed by a king? But these men, sons of Sarouia, are too cruel for me; the Lord pay back the one who does evil in accordance with his wickedness!”

And Saouil’s son Jonathan had a son injured in the feet; he was a son of five years when the news about Saouil and his son Jonathan came from Iezrael, and his nurse picked him up and fled, and it happened, when she hastened and withdrew, that he fell and became lame, and his name was Memphibosthe.

5 And sons of Remmon the Berothite, Rekcha and Baana, went, and about the heat of the day they entered into the house of Memphibosthe, and he was sleeping on the bed at noonday, and behold, the porter of the house was cleaning wheat, and he slumbered and slept, and Rekcha and Baana, the brothers, escaped notice and entered into the house, and Memphibosthe was lying on his couch in his bedchamber, and they attacked him and put him to death and beheaded him and took his head and returned by the western road the whole night. And they brought the head of Memphibosthe to David at Chebron and said to the king, “Behold, the head of Memphibosthe son of Saouil your enemy, who used to seek your life, and the Lord gave the lord king vengeance on his enemies, as this day, on Saouil your enemy and on his offspring.”

them, “The Lord lives, who redeemed my life out of every adversity.” 10 For the one who told me that Saül had died—and he was as one bringing good news before me—and I seized and killed him at Sekelak, to whom I ought to have given a reward for good tidings. 11 And now wicked men have killed a righteous man on his bed in his own house! And now I shall require his blood at your hand and destroy you from the earth.” 12 And David commanded his lads, and they killed them and docked their hands and their feet and hung them at the well at Chebron, and the head of Memphiboth he buried in the tomb of Abenner son of Ner.

5 And all the tribes of Israel came to David at Chebron and said to him, “Behold, we are your bone and your flesh; 2 and yesterday and the third day, while Saül was king over us, it was you who led out and brought in Israel, and the Lord said to you: It is you who shall shepherd my people Israel, and it is you who shall become a ruler over Israel.” 3 And all the elders of Israel came to David at Chebron, and King David made a covenant with them at Chebron before the Lord, and they anointed David king over all Israel. 4 David was a son of thirty years when he began to reign, and he reigned forty years, 5 seven years and six months he reigned at Chebron, and thirty-three years he reigned over all Israel and Judas at Jerusalem.

6 And David departed, and his men, to Jerusalem against the Jebusite who inhabited the land. And it was said to David, “You will not come in here,” for the blind and the lame resisted, saying, “David shall not come in here.” 7 And David took the stronghold Sion (this is the city of David). 8 And David said on that day, “Everyone who strikes down the Jebusite, let him attack with a dirk both the lame and the blind, and those who hate the soul of David”; therefore they shall say, “The blind and the lame shall not come into the house of the Lord.” 9 And David settled in the stronghold, and this was called the city of David, and he built the city all around from the citadel and his house. 10 And David would go, going and increasing, and the Lord Almighty was with him.

11 And King Chiram of Tyre sent messengers to David and cedar wood and craftsmen of wood and craftsmen of stones, and they built David a house. 12 And David perceived that the Lord had prepared him to be king over Israel and that his kingdom was exalted for the sake of his people Israel.

13 And David took yet wives and concubines out of Jerusalem after he came from Chebron, and David yet had sons and daughters. 14 And these are the names of those who were born to him in Jerusalem: Sammous and Sobab and Nathan and Salomon 15 and Ebear and Elisous and Naphek and Iephies 16 and Elisama and Eldae and Eliphalath, Samea, lessibath, Nathan, Galamaan, Iebaar, Theesous, Elphalat, Naged, Naphek, Iathan, Leasams, Baalimath, Eliphalath.

17 And the Philistines heard that David had been anointed king over Israel, and all the Philistines went up to seek David, and David heard and went down to the stronghold. 18 And the Philistines came and converged on the valley of the Titans. 19 And David inquired through the Lord, saying, “Shall I go up against the Philistines, and will you give them into my hands?” And the Lord said to David, “Go up, for giving I will give the Philistines into your hands.” 20 And David came from the upper breaches and smote the Philistines there, and David said, “The Lord has breached my enemies the Philistines before me, like water is breached”; therefore the name of that place was called the Upper Breaches. 21 And they abandoned their gods there, and David and those who were with him took them.

22 And the Philistines added still to come up and converged in the valley of the Titans. 23 And David inquired through the Lord, and the Lord said, “You shall not go up to meet them; return from them, and you shall meet them near the Wailing.” And it will be when you hear the sound of the confinement of the grove of the Wailing, then you shall go down to them, because then the Lord will go out before you, to strike down in the battle of the Philistines.” 25 And David did just as the Lord had commanded him and struck down the Philistines from Gabaon to the land of Gazer.

26 And David again gathered every young man of Israel, about seventy thousand. 2 And he arose and went, David and all the people with him, from the rulers of Judas on an ascent, to bring up from there the ark of God on which the name of the Lord of hosts who is seated on the cherubim upon it is called. 3 And he loaded the ark of the Lord on a cart and brought it out of the house of Aminadab which was on the hill, and Oza and his brothers, sons of Aminadab, were leading the cart with the ark, and his brothers were going in front of the ark. 5 And David and the sons of Israel were sporting before the Lord with tuned instruments, with strength and with songs and with cymbals and with flutes.

6 And they came to the threshing floor of Nobad, and Oza reached out his hand to the ark of God to steady it and took hold of it, for the bull calf caused it to swerve, to steady it. 7 And the Lord was angry with Oza, and God struck him there, and he died there beside the ark of the Lord before God. 8 And David was disheartened because the Lord breached a breach upon Oza, and that place was called the Breach of Oza until this day. 9 And David was afraid of the Lord in that day, saying, “How will the ark of the Lord come to me?” 10 And David did not want to turn aside the ark of the covenant of the Lord to him in the city of David, and David turned it aside into the house of Abeddara the Gethhithe. 11 And the ark of the Lord sat in the house of Abeddara the Gethhithe three months,

*i.e. was expected = Heb kinnor = lyre = Heb nebel = ten or twelve stringed instrument and the Lord blessed the whole house of Abeddara and all that belonged to him.
12 And it was told King Dauid, saying, “The Lord has blessed the whole house of Abeddara and all that belongs to him because of the ark of God.” And Dauid went and brought up the ark of the Lord from the house of Abeddara to the city of Dauid with rejoicing. 13 And there were with them seven bands carrying the ark and a sacrifice: calf and lamb. 14 And Dauid struck upon tuned instruments before the Lord, and Dauid was girded with a distinguishing garment. 15 And Dauid and all the house of Israel brought up the ark of the Lord with shouting and with sound of trumpet.

16 And it happened, as the ark of the Lord was entering the city of Dauid, that Melchol the daughter of Saoul was peeping through the window and saw King Dauid dancing and striking up before the Lord, and she despised him in her heart.

17 And they brought the ark of the Lord and set it in its place into the midst of the tent that Dauid pitched for it, and Dauid offered whole burnt offerings and peace offerings before the Lord. 18 And Dauid finished offering up the whole burnt offerings and the peace offerings and blessed the people in the name of the Lord of hosts 19 and distribut ed to all the people, to all the host of Israel from Dan to Bersabee, from man until woman, to each a small loaf of bread and a portion of roasted bread and a cake from a frying-pan, and all the people went back, each to his home.

20 And Dauid returned to bless his household, and Melchol the daughter of Saoul came out to meet Dauid and blessed him and said, “How the king of Israel has honored himself today, who was uncovered today in the eyes of his own slaves’ maids, as one of the disrobed dancers uncovers himself!” 21 And Dauid said to Melchol, “I will dance before the Lord; blessed be the Lord who chose me over your father and over all his house to appoint me as leader for his people, for Israel, and I will play and dance before the Lord, 22 and I will again be uncovered thus, and I will be worthless in your eyes and with the maids with whom you said I am held in honor.” 23 And to Melchol daughter of Saoul there was no child to the day of her death.

7 And it happened, when the king sat in his house and the Lord had given him an inheritance round about from all his enemies who were round about him, 2 that the king said to the prophet Nathan, “Behold, indeed I am living in a house of cedar, and the ark of God stays in the midst of the tent.” 3 And Nathan said to the king, “Go, and do all that is in your heart; for the Lord is with you.”

4 And it happened on that night that a word of the Lord came to Nathan, saying: 5 Go, and say to my slave Dauid: This is what the Lord says: You shall not build me a house for me to live in; 6 for I have not lived in a house from the day I brought up the sons of Israel from Egypt to this day, and I was moving about in a temporary abode and in a tent. 7 In all places to which I have moved about among all Israel, speaking did I speak with one tribe of Israel whom I commanded to shepherd my people Israel, saying, “Why is it that you have not built me a house of cedar?” 8 And now this is what you shall say to my slave Dauid: This is what the Lord Almighty says: I took you from the sheepfold for you to be leader for my people, for Israel 9 and was with you in all to which you went and destroyed all your enemies from before you and made you renowned like the name of the great ones who are upon the earth. 10 And I will appoint a place for my people Israel and will plant them, and they will encamp by themselves, and they will be distressed no more, and a son of injustice shall not add to afflict them as formerly 11 from the days that I appointed judges over my people Israel, and I will give you rest from all your enemies, and the Lord will tell you that you will make a house for him. 12 And it will be if your days are fulfilled and you lie down with your fathers, that I will raise up your offspring after you who shall be from your belly, and I will prepare his kingdom; 13 he shall build me a house for my name, and I will restore his throne forever. 14 I will be a father to him, and he shall be a son to me, and if his injustice comes, then I will punish him with a rod of men and with attacks of sons of men, 15 but I will not remove my mercy from him, as I removed it from those whom I removed from before me. 16 And his house and his kingdom shall be made sure forever before me, and his throne shall be restored forever. 17 According to all these words and according to all this vision, thus Nathan spoke to Dauid.

18 And King Dauid went in and sat before the Lord and said, “Who am I, my Lord, O Lord, and what is my house, that you have loved me until these? 19 And it was very small before you, my Lord, O Lord, and you spoke of your slave’s house to make known to your slave, and I am your slave and all your words and all that you have acted and according to your own heart you spoke of to me and to your servants before you, the princes of your people Israel, saying, ‘Why is it that you have not built me a house of cedar?’” 20 And what more shall Dauid add to say to you? And now you know your slave, my Lord, O Lord! 21 On account of your slave you have acted and according to your own heart you did all this greatness to make known to your slave, 22 for the sake of magnifying you, my Lord, O Lord, for there is no one like you and there is no god besides you in all that we have heard with our ears. 23 And who is like your people Israel—another nation in the earth? How God guided them to redeem a people for him to make you a name to do greatness and manifestation that you should cast out nations and coverts from before your people whom you redeemed for yourself out of Egypt! 24 And you prepared your people Israel for yourself, a people forever, and you, O Lord, became a god to them. 25 And now, my Lord, O Lord, the word that you spoke concerning your slave and his house, confirm it forever, O Lord Almighty, O God of Israel, and now as you said, 26 may your name be magnified forever. 27 O Lord Almighty, God of Israel, you uncovered the ear of your slave, saying, ‘I will build you a house’; therefore your slave found his own heart to pray this prayer to you. 28 And now, my Lord, O Lord, you are God, and your words will be true, and you spoke these good things concerning your slave, 29 and now begin, and bless the house of your slave, that it may exist forever before you, for you exist, my Lord, O Lord; you have spoken, and from your blessing shall the house of your slave be blessed forever.”

8 And it happened after these things that David smote the Philistines and brought tribute from them.

2 And David smote Moab and measured them off with ropes, putting them to sleep on the ground, and there were the two portions for putting to death, and the two portions he kept alive, and Moab became slaves to David bearing gifts.

3 David also smote Hadrahazar son of Rehob, king of Senaah, as he went to establish his hand to the river Euphrates. 4 And David preempted a thousand of his chariots and seven thousand cavalrymen and twenty thousand men on foot, and David disabled all the chariots and left remaining from them a hundred chariots. 5 And Syria of Damascus came to help Hadrahazar, king of Senaah, and David smote among the Syrian twenty-two thousand men. 6 And David put a garrison in Syria, which was at Damascus, and the Syrian became slaves to David bearing gifts. 7 And the Lord preserved David throughout all Idumea, and all the Idumeans became slaves to David in all to which he went.

9 And David said, “Is there still anyone left of the house of Saul, and I will do mercy with him for Jonathan’s sake.” 2 And there was a servant from the house of Saul, and his name was Siba, and they called him to David. And the king said to him, “Are you Siba?” And he said, “I am your slave.” 3 And the king said, “Is there still a man remaining from the house of Saul, and I will do with him divine mercy,” and Siba said to the king, “There is still a son of Jonathan injured in the feet.” 4 And the king said, “Where is he?” And Siba said to the king, “Behold, in the house of Machir son of Amiel from Laphadabar.” 5 And King David sent and took him from the house of Machir son of Amiel from Laphadabar. 6 And Memphibose the son of Jonathan son of Saul came to King David and fell on his face and did obeisance to him. And David said to him, “Memphibose,” and he said, “Behold, your slave.” 7 And David said to him, “Do not be afraid, for doing I will do mercy with you on account of your father Jonathan, and I will restore to you every field of Saul, father of your father, and you shall eat bread at my table always.”

8 And Memphibose did obeisance and said, “Who am I, your slave, that you looked upon a dead dog like me?” 9 And the king called Saul’s lad Siba and said to him, “All that belongs to Saul and to his whole house I have given to your master’s son, and you shall till the land for him, you and your sons and your slaves, and you shall bring in food to your master’s son, and he shall eat it, and your master’s son Memphibose shall always eat bread at my table.” (And Siba had fifteen sons and twenty slaves.) 10 And Siba said to the king, “According to all that my lord the king has commanded his slave, so your slave will do.” And Memphibose used to eat at David’s table like one of the king’s sons.

11 And Memphibose had a young son and his name was Micha. And all the household of Siba’s house became Memphibose’s slaves. 12 And Memphibose was living in Jerusalem, for he always used to eat at the king’s table, and he was lame in both his feet.

10 And it happened after these things that the king of the sons of Ammon died, and his son Hannon reigned in his stead. 2 And David said, “I will do mercy with Hannon son of Naas, just as his father did mercy with me,” and David sent by the hand of his slaves to comfort him concerning his father. And David’s servants came into the land. of the sons of Ammon, and the rulers of the sons of Ammon said to their lord Hannon, “Was it from Daud’s glorifying your father before you, that he sent comforters to you? But has not Daud sent his servants to you to search the city and to spy it out and in order to survey it?” And Hannon took Daud’s servants and shaved their beards and cut their woolen cloaks in half up to their hips and sent them away. And they told Daud about the men, and he sent for a meeting with them, for the men were very insulted, and the king said, “Settle at Jericho until your beards grow, and you shall return.”

6 And the sons of Ammon saw that the people of Daud were put to shame, and the sons of Ammon sent and hired Syria of Baithroob, twenty thousand foot soldiers, and the king of Maacha, one thousand men, and Istob, twelve thousand men. And Daud heard and sent loab and the entire force, the mighty ones. And the sons of Ammon came out and prepared for battle near the door of the gate, and Syria of Souba and Roob and Istob and Maacha were by themselves in open country.

9 And loab saw that there was a front of the battle against him both in front and in the rear, and he chose from the young men of Israel and arrayed them opposite Syria. And the rest of the people he put in the hand of his brother Abessa, and he arrayed them opposite the sons of Ammon. And he said, “If Syria is too strong for me, then you shall be a deliverance to me, and if the sons of Ammon are too strong for you, then we will be to save you; be valiant, and let us be strong for the sake of our people and for the cities of our God, and the Lord will do what is good in his eyes.”

13 And loab and his people with him moved forward into battle against Syria, and they fled from before him. And the sons of Ammon saw that Syria fled, and they fled from before Abessa and entered into the city. And loab returned from the sons of Ammon and came to Jerusalem.

15 And Syria saw that they fell before Israel, and they gathered themselves together. And Hadraazar sent and gathered Syria who was from beyond the river Chalamak, and they came, Hailam and Sobak, the ruler of the army of Hadraazar, in front of them. And it was told Daud, and he gathered all Israel together and crossed the Jordan and came to Hailam, and Syria arrayed itself against Daud and fought with him. And Syria fled from before Israel, and Daud destroyed of Syria seven hundred chariots and forty thousand men of power were there. And the men of the city came out and were fighting with loab, and some of the people of the slaves of Daud fell. And indeed Ourias the Chettite died. And loab sent and told Daud all the news of the fighting. And he commanded the messenger, saying, “When you have finished telling the king all the news of the fighting. 20 and it shall be, if the anger of the king rises and he says to you, 'Why is it that you went so near the city to fight? Did you not know that they would shoot from the top of the wall? 21 Who struck Abimelech son of Ierobaal? Did not a woman throw a piece of millstone on him from the top of the wall, and he died at Thamasi? Why did you draw so near the wall?' and you shall say, 'And indeed Ourias your slave, the Chettite, died.'

22 And the messenger of Ioab went to the king in Ierousalem and came and told Dauid all that Ioab had told him, all the news of the fighting. And Dauid was angry with Ioab and said to the messenger, “Why did you draw so near the city to fight? Did you not know that you would be struck from the wall? Who struck Abimelech son of Ierobaal? Did not a woman throw a piece of millstone on him from the wall, and he died at Thamasi? Why did you draw so near the wall?” 23 And the messenger said to Dauid, “Because the men prevailed against us and came out against us in the field, and we were upon them to the entrance of the gate. 24 And the archers shot at your servants from the top of the wall, and some of the servants of the king died, and indeed your slave Ourias the Chettite died.” 25 And Dauid said to the messenger, “This is what you shall say to Ioab, ‘Do not let this thing be evil in your sight, for the dagger devours now one way then another way; strengthen your fight against the city, and pull it down.’ And strengthen him.”

26 And the wife of Ourias heard that Ourias her husband had died, and she made lamentation for her husband. 27 And the mourning passed, and Dauid sent and brought her to his house, and she became his wife and bore him a son.

And the thing that Dauid had done appeared evil in the Lord’s sight.

12 And the Lord sent Nathan the prophet to Dauid. And he went in to him and said to him, “There were two men in one city, one rich and one poor. 2 And the rich man had very many flocks and herds, 3 and the poor man had nothing but one little ewe lamb, which he had bought. And he preserved and reared it, and it grew up with him. 4 And there came a traveler to the rich man, and he refused from taking anything from his flocks and from his herds to prepare for the stranger, since he had come to him as a wayfarer, and he took the ewe lamb of the poor man and prepared it for the man who had come to him.” 5 And Dauid was greatly inflamed with anger at the man. And Dauid said to Nathan, “The Lord lives, for the man who did this is a son of death, 6 and he shall restore the ewe lamb sevenfold, because he did this thing, and because he did not refrain.”

7 And Nathan said to Dauid, “You are the man who did this! This is what the Lord, the God of Israel, says: I am—I anointed you to be king over Israel, and I am—I rescued you from the hand of Saoul, 8 and I gave you the house of your master and the wives of your master into your bosom, and I gave you the house of Israel and of Iouda, and if it is too little, I will add to you in accordance with these. 9 Why is it that you trivialized the word of the Lord, to do what is evil in his sight? You struck Ourias the Chettite with a sword and took his wife for yourself for a wife and killed him with a sword of the sons of Ammon. 10 And now, a sword shall never depart from your house, because you counted me as nothing and took the wife of Ourias the Chettite to be your wife. 11 This is what the Lord says: Behold, I am raising up trouble against you out of your own house, and I will take your wives before your eyes and give them to your neighbor, and he shall lie with your wives before this sun. 12 For you did it secretly, and I will do this thing before all Israel and before this sun.” 13 And Dauid said to Nathan, “I have sinned against the Lord.” And Nathan said to Dauid, “Indeed, the Lord put aside your sin; you shall not die. 14 Yet, because provokingly you provoked the enemies of the Lord by this thing, indeed your son who was born to you shall die by death.” 15 And Nathan went away to his house.

And the Lord weakened the child that the wife of Ourias bore to Dauid, and it became ill. 16 And Dauid sought God concerning the child, and Dauid fasted a fast and went in and lodged in sackcloth on the ground. 17 And the elders of his house stood by him to raise him from the ground, but he was unwilling, and he did not eat bread together with them. 18 And it happened in the seventh day that the child died. And the slaves of Dauid were afraid to tell him that the child was dead; for they said, “Behold, while the child was still alive, we spoke to him, and he did not listen to our voice, and how can we tell him that the child is dead? Indeed, he shall do harm.” 19 And Dauid noticed that his servants were whispering, and Dauid perceived that the child was dead, and Dauid said to his servants, “Is the child dead?” And they said, “He is dead.”

20 And Dauid rose from the ground and washed and anointed himself and changed his clothes. And he entered into the house of God and did obeisance to him, and he entered into his house, and he asked for bread to eat, and they set bread before him, and he ate. 21 And his servants said to him, “What is this thing that you did? For the sake of the child, while it was still alive, you were fasting and weeping and keeping watch, and when the child died, you rose and ate bread, and you have taken a drink.” 22 And Dauid said, “While the child was still alive, I fasted and wept, for I said, ‘Who knows whether the Lord will have pity on me and the child will live?’ 23 But now he is dead. Why is this, that I fast? I will not be able to bring it back again, will I? I will go to him, but he shall not return to me.”

24 And Dauid consoled Bersabee his wife and went in to her and lay with her, and she conceived and bore a son and called his name Salomon. And the Lord loved him. 25 And he sent by the hand of Nathan the prophet, and he called his name Isted, on account of the Lord.

26 And Joab made war on Rabbath of the sons of Ammon and seized the royal city. 27 And Joab sent messengers to Dauid, and said, “I made war on Rabbath and seized for myself the city of the waters. 28 And now gather the rest of the people together, and encamp against the city, and seize it in advance for yourself so that I myself might not seize the city in advance for myself, and my name be called over it.” 29 And Dauid gathered all the people together and went to Rabbath and made war on it and seized it for himself. 30 And he took the crown of Melchol, their king, from his head, and the weight of it was a talent of gold and of precious stone, and it was on the head of Dauid. And he brought forth very many spoils of the city.

And he brought out the people who were in it and set them at the saw and at the iron threshing machines and conducted them through the brick-works. And thus he did to all the cities of the sons of Ammon. And Dauid and all the people returned to Ierousalem.

And it happened after this that Abessalom son of Dauid had a sister very beautiful in appearance, and her name was Themar, and Amnon son of Dauid loved her. 2 And Amnon was tormented so as to be ill because of Themar his sister, for she was a virgin, and it was too gross in Amnon’s sight to do anything to her. 3 And Amnon had a companion, and his name was Ionadab son of Samaa the brother of Dauid, and Ionadab was a very crafty man. 4 And he said to him, “What’s with you that you are so haggard, O son of the king, morning by morning? Will you not tell me?” And Amnon said to him, “I love Themar, the sister of Abessalom my brother.” 5 And Ionadab said to him, “Lie down on your bed and act weak, and your father will come in to see you, and you shall say to him, ‘Do let Themar my sister come and feed me some morsels, and let her prepare food in my sight so that I may see and eat from her hands.’ ” 6 And Amnon lay down and became ill, and the king and his servants went in to see him, and Amnon said to the king, “Do let Themar my sister come to me and roll two rolls in my sight and boil the rolls. 7 And Dauid sent to Themar, to the house, saying, “Do go to the house of Amnon your brother, and prepare food for him.” 8 And Themar went to the house of Amnon his brother, and he was lying down. And she took the dough and kneaded it and rolled rolls in his sight and boiled the rolls. 9 And she took the frying-pan and emptied it out before him, but he did not want to eat. And Amnon said, “Lead out every man from upon me.” And they led out every man from upon him. 10 And Amnon said to Themar, “Bring the food into the chamber, and I will eat from your hand.” And Themar took the rolls that she had prepared and brought them to Amnon her brother, into the bedroom. 11 And she brought them to him to eat, and he took hold of her and said to her “Come on, lie with me, my sister!” 12 And she said to him, “No, my brother, do not humiliate me; for it shall not be done in this way in Israel; do not do this folly! 13 And I, where will I carry away my shame? And you, you shall be as one of the fools in Israel. And now, do speak to the king; for surely he shall not withhold me from you.” 14 But Amnon did not want to listen to her voice, and he prevailed over her and humiliated her and lay with her.

15 And Amnon hated her with very great hatred; for the hatred with which he hated her was greater than the love with which he had loved her. And Amnon said to her, “Get up, and get out!” 16 And Themar said to him, “No, brother, for greater is the last wrong than the first which you did with me, to send me away.” But Amnon did not want to listen to her voice. 17 And he called his lad who was in charge of his house, and he said to him, “Now send this woman away from me, outside, and bar up the door after her.” 18 (And on her was a tunic to the wrists, for so the daughters of the king who were virgins were clothed in their outer garments.) And his attendant led her outside and barred up the door after her. 19 And Themar took ashes and put them on her head and tore the tunic to the wrists that was on her, and she put her hands on her head and went away, walking and crying aloud.

20 And Abessalom her brother said to her, “Amnon your brother wasn’t with you, was he? And now, my sister, be quiet, for he is your brother; do not set your heart to speak about this thing.” And Themar stayed as a widow in her brother Abessalom’s house. 21 And King Dauid heard all these words and was very angry, but he did not grieve the spirit of Amnon his son, for he kept loving him, for he was his firstborn. 22 And Abessalom did not speak with Amnon, from evil to good, for Abessalom kept hating Amnon on account of which he had humiliated Themar his sister.

23 And it happened in a two-year span of days that they were shearing for Abessalom at Belasor, which borders Ephraim, and Abessalom invited all the sons of the king. 24 And Abessalom came to the king and said, “Behold now, they are shearing for your slave; do let the king and his servants go with your slave.” 25 And the king said to Abessalom, “Surely not my son, let us not all go, and we will not be a burden on you.” And he pressed him, but he did not want to go, and he blessed him. 26 And Abessalom said, “And if not, do let Amnon my brother go with us.” And the king said to him, “Why should he go with you?” 27 And Abessalom pressed him, and he sent with him Amnon and all the sons of the king. And Abessalom made a feast according to the feast of the king. 28 And Abessalom commanded his lads, saying, “Watch, when the heart of Amnon is made good with wine, and I say to you, ‘Strike Amnon, and put him to death.’ Don’t be afraid, for I am—I am commanding you, am I not? Act like men and be sons of power.” 29 And the lads of Abessalom did to Amnon just as Abessalom had commanded them. And all the sons of the king rose, and they sat, a man upon his mule, and fled.
30 And it happened, while they were on the way, that the report came to David, saying, "Abijalom struck all the sons of the king, and none of them was left, not even one." 31And the king rose and tore his garments and lay on the ground, and all his servants who were standing around him tore their garments. 32And Ionaadab, son of Sammaa brother of David, answered and said, "Let not my lord the king say that he put to death all the lads, the sons of the king; for only Amnon alone has died, for it was determined by the mouth of Abijalom from the day when he humiliated Themar his sister. 33And now, let not my lord the king set a thing on his heart, saying, 'All the sons of the king have died,' but only Amnon alone has died."

34 And Abijalom ran away. And the lad, the lookout, raised his eyes and saw, and behold, many people were coming on the road behind him from the side of the mountain in the desert, and the lookout came and told the king and said, "I have seen men from the road of Oron from the region of the mountain." 35And Ionaadab said to the king, "Behold, the sons of the king are nearby; according to the word of your slave, so it happened." 36And it happened, when he finished speaking, that behold, the sons of the king came and raised up their voice and wept, and indeed the king and all his servants wept with a very great weeping.

37 And Abijalom fled and went to Tholmai son of Emeid, king of Ged succeeded to the land of Machad. And King David mourned for his son all the days. 38And Abijalom ran away and went to Ged succeeded and was there three years. 39And the spirit of the king ceased to go out after Abijalom, for he was consoled over Amnon, that he had died.

14 And Ioaab son of Sarouia perceived that the heart of the king was on Abijalom. 2And Ioaab sent to Thekoe and took from there a wise woman. 3And the woman went in to the king, and she fell on her face to the ground and did obeisance to him and said, "Save, O king, save!" 4And the king said to her, "What is it with you?" And she said, "And certainly I am a widow woman, and my husband has died. 5And indeed your slave had two sons, and they both struggled in the field, and there was no one to part them, and the one struck his brother and put him to death. 6And behold, the whole paternal family rose up against your slave, and they said, 'Give up the one who struck his brother, and we will put him to death for the life of his brother whom he killed, and we will remove indeed your heir.' And they will quench my ember that is left, so as not to establish for my husband remnant and name on the face of the earth."

8 And the king said, "Proceed to your house in good health, and I will give command concerning you." 9And the Shekite woman said to the king, "On me, my lord O king, be the lawlessness, and on the house of my father, and the king and his throne be guiltless." 10And the king said, "Who was speaking to you? You shall also bring him to me, and he shall not any longer touch him." 11And she said, "Do let the king keep the Lord, his God, in mind, that a next of kin of blood succeed in destroying him, and they shall not remove my son." And he said, "The Lord lives, if a hair of your son shall fall on the ground!"

12 And the woman said, "Do let your slave speak a word to my lord the king." And he said, "Speak." 13And the woman said, "Why did you calculate such a thing against God's people? Indeed this word out of the king's mouth is like an error, inasmuch as the king did not bring back his own banished one. 14For by death we shall die and be as water that is spilled on the ground, which shall not be gathered up. And God shall take a life, even as he calculates to banish a banished one from him. 15And now, what I came to say to the king my lord is this word, because the people will see me, and your slave will say, 'Do let one speak to the king, if somehow the king will enact the word of his slave; 16for the king will hear, and so to deliver his slave from the hand of the man who seeks to remove me and my son from a divine heritage.' 17And the woman said, "May the word of my lord the king indeed be as an offering, for as a divine angel, so is my lord the king, to hear the good and the evil, and the Lord your God shall be with you!"

18 And the king answered and said to the woman, "Do not hide from me a thing that I ask you." And the woman said, "Do let my lord the king speak." 19And the king said, "The hand of Ioaab is not in all this with you, is it?" And the woman said to the king, "Your soul lives, my lord O king, if there is to the right or to the left from anything that my lord the king said! For your slave Ioaab himself commanded me, and he himself put all these words in the mouth of your slave. 20In order to get around the façade of this thing, your slave Ioaab made up this tale. And my lord is wise like the wisdom of an angel of God, to know all things that are in the earth."

21 And the king said to Ioaab, "Behold now, I acted for you according to this your word; go, bring back the lad Abijalom." 22And Ioaab fell on his face on the ground and did obeisance and blessed the king, and Ioaab said, "Today your slave realized that I found favor in your sight, my lord O king, for my lord the king enacted the word of his slave." 23And Ioaab set off and went to Ged succeeded and brought Abijalom to Ierusalem. 24And the king said, "Let him return to his house and not see..." my face." And Abessalom returned to his house and did not see the face of the king.

25 And in all Israel there was no man quite so praiseworthy as Abessalom; from the sole of his foot even to the crown of his head there was no blemish in him. 26 And when he cropped his head (and it happened from a beginning of days to days, when he would crop, that it weighed down on him), and after he cropped it, he weighed the hair of his head, two hundred shekels by the royal shekel. 27 And there were born to Abessalom three sons and one daughter, and her name was Themar; she was a very beautiful woman, and she became wife to Roboam son of Salomon, and she bore him Abia.

28 And Abessalom stayed in Ierousalem two years of days and did not see the face of the king. 29 And Abessalom sent to Ioab to send him to the king, but he did not want to come to him. And he sent a second time to him, but he did not want to come. 30 And Abessalom said to his servants, "Look, the portion in Ioab’s field is next to mine, and he has barley there; go, and burn it with fire." And the servants of Abessalom set them on fire.

31 And Ioab set off and came to Abessalom into his house and said to him, "Why did your servants burn your portion with fire?" 32 And Abessalom said to Ioab, "Behold, I sent to you, saying: Come here, and I will send you to the king, saying, 'Why did I come from Ged- sour? It were good for me to be there still. And now, behold, I have not seen the face of the king, but if there is injustice in me, just put me to death!'" 33 And Ioab went in to the king and told him, and he summoned Abessalom. And he went in to the king and did obeisance to him and fell on his face on the ground in front of the king, and the king kissed Abessalom.

15 And it happened after this that Abessalom got himself chariots and horses and fifty men to run along before him. 2 And Abessalom woke up at dawn and stood close by the road of the gate, and it happened: every man who had a judgment came to the king for judgment, and Abessalom called out to him and would say to him, "From what city are you?" And the man said, "Your slave is from one of the tribes of Israel." 3 And Abessalom said to him, "Behold, your claims are good and easy, and there is no one from the king to hear you." 4 And Abessalom said, "Who will make me a judge in the land? And every man who may have a dispute and a judgment will come to me, and I will give him justice." 5 And it happened, when a man came near to do obeisance to him, that he would stretch out his hand and take hold of him, and he kissed him. 6 And Abessalom did according to this thing to all Israel, to those who came to the king for judgment, and Abessa- lom made the heart of the men of Israel his own.

7 And it happened at the end of forty years, that Abessalom said to his father, "I will go now and pay my vows that I vowed to the Lord, in Che- bron. 8 For your slave vowed a vow when I lived in Gedsour in Syria, saying, 'If by returning the Lord should return me to Ierousalem, then I will serve the Lord.' " 9 And the king said to him, "Proceed in peace." And getting up, he went to Chebron. 10 And Abessalom sent spies among all the tribes of Israel, saying, "When you hear the sound of the horn, then you will say, 'Abessalom has been crowned king in Chebron!'" 11 And two hundred men from Ierousalem went with Abessalom, invited and going in their simplicity, and they did not know anything. 12 And Abessalom sent and summoned Achitophel the Gelmonite, the counselor of Dauid, from his city, from Gola, when he was offering sacrifices. And the conspiracy became strong, and the people, going and in great number, were with Abessalom.

13 And the messenger came to Dauid, saying, "The heart of the men of Israel has gone after Abessalom." 14 And Dauid said to all his servants who were with him in Ierousalem, "Get up, and let us flee, for there is no deliverance for us from be- fore Abessalom. Be quick to go so that he might not be quick and overtake us and thrust out evil upon us and strike the city with a dagger’s edge." 15 And the servants of the king said to the king, "According to everything which our lord the king chooses, behold, your servants." 16 And the king went out, and all his house on their feet, and the king left ten women of his concubines to keep the house. 17 And the king went out and all his servants on foot, and they stopped at the far house. 18 And all his servants were passing close by him, and every Chetti and every Phelethi, and they stood by the olive tree in the wilderness. And all the people were passing by near him, and all those about him and all the prominent men and all the warriors, six hundred men, and they were passing by at his hand, and every Chereththi and every Phelethi and all the Geththites, six hundred men, who came on their feet from Geth, going in front of the king.

19 And the king said to Eththi the Geththite, "Why are you also going with us? Turn back, and live with the king, because you are a stranger and be- cause you have changed your abode from your place. 20 If you had come yesterday, shall I even today move you with us, and indeed will you evade your place? Yesterday was your ‘going out’, and today shall I remove you to go with us? And I will go wherever I go. Turn back, and turn back your brothers with you, and the Lord will do mercy and truth with you." 21 And Eththi answered the king and said, "The Lord lives, and my lord the king lives, for in the place wherever my lord may be, both if it be for death and if it be for life, for there your slave will be." 22 And the king said to Eththi, "Come on and cross over with me." And Eththi the Geththite went past, and all his servants and all the throng that was with him. 23 And the whole country was weeping with a loud voice. And all the people were passing by at the Wadi Kidron, and the king crossed the Wadi Kidron, and all the people and the king were passing by the wilderness on the road surface.

24 And behold, and indeed Sadok and all the Levites were with him carrying the ark of the covenant of the Lord from Baithar, and they set down the ark of God, and Abiathar went up until all the people ceased to pass out of the city. 25 And the king said to Sadok, "Return the ark of God to the city. If I find favor in the eyes of the Lord, then he will bring me back and show me it and its beauty."

26 And if he says thus, 'I have no want in you,' behold, here I am, let him do to me according to what is good in his eyes." 27 And the king said to Sadok the priest, "Look, you are turning back to the city in peace, and Achimaas your son and Jonathan the son of Abiathar, your two sons with you. 28 Look, I am—I am at arms in araboth of the wilderness until word comes from you to inform me." 29 And Sadok and Abiathar returned the ark to Jerusalem, and it sat there.

30 And Dauid was ascending by the ascent of the olive groves, ascending and weeping and his head covered, and he went barefoot, and all the people who were with him—a man covered his head, and they were ascending, ascending and weeping. 31 And it was told Dauid, saying, "Even Achitophel is among the conspirators with Abessalom." And Dauid said, "Do scatter abroad the counsel of Achitophel, O Lord my God."

32 And Dauid was coming to the Ros, there where he did obeisance to God, and behold, there was Chousi the Archi, a companion of Dauid, to meet with him, with his tunic torn and earth on his head. 33 And Dauid said to him, "If you cross over with me, then you will be for a burden on me. 34 And if you return to the city and will say to Abessalom, 'Your brothers have passed through, and your father the king has passed through behind me, and now I am your servant, O king, permit me to live; I was a servant of your father in the past and recently, and now I am a slave of yours, then you will scatter abroad for me the counsel of Achitophel. 35 And behold, Sadok and Abiathar the priests are with you there, and it shall be that every word that you might hear from the king's house, you shall also tell it to Sadok and Abiathar the priests. 36 Behold, their two sons are there with them, Achimaas son of Sadok and Jonathan son of Abiathar, and by their hand you shall send to me every word which you might hear." 37 And Chousi, the companion of Dauid, entered into the city, and Abessalom was going into Jerusalem.

16 And Dauid passed some little way from the Ros, and behold, there was Siba, the lad of Memphibosthe, to meet him, and a couple of donkeys fully laden and upon them two hundred loaves of bread and one hundred raisins and one hundred dates and a nebela of wine. 2 And the king said to Siba, "Why do you have these things?" And Siba said, "The draft animals are for the household of the king to sit upon, and the loaves of bread and the dates for food for the lads, and the wine for those who are faint in the wilderness to drink."

3 And the king said, "And where is the son of your master?" And Siba said to the king, "Behold, he sits in Jerusalem, for he said, 'Today the house of Israel will return to me the kingdom of my father.' " 4 And the king said to Siba, "Behold, everything is yours that belongs to Memphibosthe." And doing obeisance Siba said, "May I find favor in your sight, my lord O king."

5 And King Dauid came to Baourim, and behold, a man from the kinsfolk of the house of Saoul went out from there, and his name was Semei son of Gera; he came out, going out and cursing 6 and stoning with stones Dauid and all the servants of King Dauid, and there were all the people, and all the powerful men were on the right and on the left of the king. 7 And thus Semei kept saying while he cursed, "Get out, get out, man of blood and lawless man! 8 The Lord returned on you all the blood of the house of Saoul, for you became king in his stead, and the Lord gave the kingdom into the hand of Abessalom your son. And behold, you are in your bad state, for you are a man of blood."

9 And Abessa son of Sarouia said to the king, "Why does this dead dog curse my lord the king? I will surely walk over and take off his head." 10 And the king said, "What have I to do with you, O sons of Sarouia? Leave him alone, and so let him curse, because the Lord told him to curse Dauid, and who shall say, 'To what end did you do so?' " 11 And Dauid said to Abessa and to all his servants, "Behold, my son who came out of my belly seeks my life, and now besides, the son of the Iemini! Leave him alone to curse, because the Lord told him to curse Dauid, and who shall say, 'To what end did you do so?' " 12 And Dauid said to Abessa and to all his servants, "Behold, my son who came out of my belly seeks my life, and now besides, the son of the Iemini! Leave him alone to curse, because the Lord told him. 13 If somehow the Lord may look on my humiliation, then he will return to me good things in place of his curse this day." 14 And Dauid and his men went on the road, and Semei was going by the side of the mountain next to him, going and cursing and stoning with stones from his flanks and sprinkling with dirt. 15 And the king came, and all his people, exhausted, and they recovered there.

15 And Abessalom and every man of Israel entered into Jerusalem, and Achitophel was with him. 16 And it happened when Chousi the Archi, a companion of Dauid, came to Abessalom, that Chousi said to Abessalom, "Let the king live!" 17 And Abessalom said to Chousi, "Is this your mercy with your companion? Why did you not go away with your companion?" 18 And Chousi said to Abessalom, "No, but hereafter he whom the Lord and this people and every man of Israel have chosen, his I will be, and with him I will sit. 19 And secondly, to whom will I be subject? Is it not in the presence of his son? Just as I was subject in the presence of your father, so I will be in your presence."

20 And Abessalom said to Achitophel, "Bring forth counsel among yourselves, what we should do.” 21 And Achitophel said to Abessalom, “Go in to the concubines of your father, whom he left behind to keep his house, and all Israel will hear that you put your father to shame, and the hands of all who are with you will be strengthened.” 22 And they pitched the tent for Abessalom upon the roof, and Abessalom went in to the concubines of his father in the sight of all Israel. 23 And the counsel of Achitophel, which he counseled in the former days, was as if one were to inquire by a word of God; so was all the counsel of Achitophel, and indeed to David and indeed to Abessalom.

17 And Achitophel said to Abessalom, “I will now choose for myself twelve thousand men, and I will set out and pursue closely after David tonight. 2 And I will come suddenly upon him, and he will be weary and faint in hands, and I will astound him, and all the people who are with him shall flee, and I will strike only the king alone, 3 and I will turn all the people back to you, as a bride turns back to her husband. You seek only the life of one man, and there will be peace for all the people.” 4 And the saying was right in the sight of Abessalom and in the sight of all the elders of Israel.

5 And Abessalom said, “Do call indeed Chousi the Arachi, and let us hear what is in his mouth, indeed his.” 6 And Chousi went in to Abessalom, and Abessalom said to him, saying, “According to this word Achitophel spoke. Shall we act according to his saying? But if not, you speak.” 7 And Chousi said to Abessalom, “This counsel, that Achitophel counseled this one time, is not good.” 8 And Chousi said, “You know your father and his men, that they are very powerful and downright bitter in their spirit, as a bear robbed of her young in a field and as a savage sow in the plain. And your father is a man of war, and he shall not lodge with the people. 9 For behold, he himself is now hidden in one of the hills or in one of the places. And it shall be, when he falls upon them at first, and if the hearer hears and says, ‘There has been a slaughter among the people who are behind Abessalom,’ and indeed a son of power himself, whose heart is like the heart of a lion—melting it shall melt away, for all Israel knows that your father is powerful, and those who are with him are sons of power. 10 For in advising I so advised, that all Israel being gathered, shall be gathered together to you, from Dan even to Bersabee, as the sand by the sea for multitude, and your face going in their midst. 11 And we shall come to him in one of the places where we may find him there, and we shall encamp against him, as the dew falls on the ground, and we shall not leave behind among him and the men who are with him indeed one. 12 And if he is gathered into a city, then all Israel will take ropes to that city, and we shall drag it as far as to the wadi in order that not even a stone may be left behind there.” 14 And Abessalom, and every man of Israel said, “The counsel of Chousi the Arachi is better than the counsel of Achitophel.” And the Lord commanded to scatter abroad the good counsel of Achitophel so that the Lord might bring all evil upon Abessalom.

15 And Chousi the son of the Arachi said to Sadok and Abiathar the priests, “Thus and so Achitophel advised Abessalom and the elders of Israel, and thus and so I advised. 16 And now send quickly and tell David, saying, ‘Do not lodge tonight in the wilderness, and indeed hasten crossing over, lest one swallow up the king and all the people who are with him.’” 17 And Jonathan and Achimaas stood by the spring of Rogel, and the servant-girl went and told them, and they would go and tell King David, for they could not be seen to enter into the city. 18 And a lad saw them and told Abessalom, and the two went quickly and entered into the house of a man in Baourim, and he had a cistern in his courtyard, and they went down there. 19 And the wife took and spread out the covering over the face of the cistern and dried araphoth on it, and not a thing was known. 20 And the servants of Abessalom came to the woman into the house, and they said, “Where are Achimaas and Jonathan?” And the woman said to them, “They passed by a little way from the water.” And they searched and did not find, and they returned to Ierusalem.

21 And it happened, after they departed, that they came up out of the cistern and went and told King David. And they said to David, “Set out, and cross the water quickly, for thus Achitophel counseled about you.” 22 And Daud set out, and all the people who were with him, and they crossed the Jordan until the morning light; not even one went unnoticed who did not pass through the Jordan.

23 And Achitophel saw that his counsel did not come to pass, and he saddled his donkey and set out and departed to his house into his city. And he commanded his household and hanged himself, and he died and was buried in the tomb of his father.

24 And David passed through to Manaim, and Abessalom crossed the Jordan, he and every man of Israel with him. 25 And Abessalom set Amessai instead of Joab over the force. And Amessai was the son of a man, and his name was thothor the Israelite; he it was who went in to Abigaia daughter of Naas, sister of Sarouia mother of Joab. 26 And all Israel and Abessalom encamped in the land of Galaad.

27 And it happened, when David came to Manaim, Ouesbi son of Naas from Rabbath of the sons of Ammon and Machir son of Amiel from Lodabar and Berzelli the Galaadite from Rogellim brought ten beds and double-sided rugs and ten cauldrons and earthen vessels and wheat and barley and wheat-meal and barley-meal and beans and lentils and honey and butter and sheep and saphphoth from cows, and they brought them to Daud and the people with him, to eat, for they said, “The people are hungry and faint and thirsty in the wilderness.”

And Dauid inspected the people who were with him and set over them officers of thousands and officers of hundreds. 2And Dauid sent out the people, one-third by the hand of loab and one-third by the hand of Abessa son of Sarouia, brother of loab, and one-third by the hand of Eththi the Gethhite. And Dauid said to the people, “Going out I will go out, and indeed I with you.” 3And they said, “You shall not go out. For if in flight we should flee, they will not set heart upon us. And if we should die, even half of us, they will not set heart upon us; for you are as we are, ten thousand, and now it is good that you will be a help for us in the city to help.” 4And the king said to them, “Whatever pleases in your sight I will do.” And the king stood close by the gate, 5And the king commanded loab and Abessa and Eththi, saying, “Spare for my sake the lad Abessalom.” And all the people heard when the king commanded all the commanders concerning Abessalom.

6 And all the people went out into the forest opposite Israel, and the battle took place in the forest of Ephraim. 7And the people of Israel fell there before the servants of Dauid, and the slaughter was great in that day, twenty thousand men. 8And the battle took place there, spread about over the face of all the country, and the forest exceeded in devouring of the people more than those whom the dagger devoured among the people in that day.

9 And Abessalom met face to face in front of the servants of Dauid. And Abessalom was mounted on his mule, and the mule entered under the thick branches of the great oak. And his head was hung in the oak, and he was hung between heaven and between earth, and the mule under him passed on. 10And one man saw and told loab, and said, “Behold, I have seen Abessalom hanging in the oak.” 11And loab said to the man who told, “And behold, you have seen! Why is it that you did not strike him to the ground? And I would have given you ten pieces of silver and one belt.” 12But the man said to loab, “Even I am—should I weigh on my hands a thousand shekels of silver, I would never lay my hand upon the son of the king; for in our ears the king commanded you and Abessa and Eththi, saying, ‘Protect for my sake the lad Abessalom, 13to do no wrong to his life.’ And no word from the king will escape notice; even you shall stand opposed.” 14And loab said, “I will begin this; I will not wait thus in your sight.” And loab took three spears in his hand and planted them in the heart of Abessalom, while he was still alive in the heart of the oak. 15And ten lads bearing the weapons of loab surrounded and struck Abessalom and put him to death.

16 And loab trumpeted with a horn, and the people turned back in order not to pursue after Israel, for loab was sparing the people. 17And he took Abessalom and threw him into a great chasm in the forest, into the great pit, and set up as a stele over him, a very great heap of stones. And all Israel fled, a man to his covert. 18And Abessalom, while still alive also set up for himself the stele by which he was taken and set it up as a stele to take, the stele that is in the valley of the king, for he said, “He has no son for the sake of remembering his name,” and he called the stele Hand of Abessalom, until this day.

19 And Achimas son of Sadok said, “Do let me run, and I will carry good tidings to the king, that the Lord has vindicated him from the hand of his enemies.” 20And loab said to him, “You are not a man of good tidings in this day, and you shall carry good tidings in another day, but in this day you shall not carry good tidings, because the son of the king has died.” 21And loab said to Chousi, “Proceed, tell the king what you saw.” And Chousi did obeissance to loab and went out. 22And Achimas son of Sadok continued further and said to loab, “And let it be that I may run, and indeed I after Chousi.” And loab said, “Why is this that you run, my son? Come on; by going you have no good tidings for gain.” 23And he said, “So what if I will run?” And loab said to him, “Run.” And Achimas ran the way of the Kehar and went beyond Chousi.

24 And Dauid was sitting between the two gates. And the lookout went to the roof of the gate at the wall and lifted up his eyes and looked, and behold, a man running alone before him. 25And the lookout shouted and told the king. And the king said, “If he is alone, there are good tidings in his mouth.” And he kept going, going and drawing near. 26And the lookout saw another man running, and the lookout shouted to the gate and said, “Behold, another man running alone!” And the king said, “And indeed he is bringing good tidings.” 27And the lookout said, “I see the running of the first one as the running of Achimas son of Sadok.” And the king said, “He is a good man, and indeed he will come for the purpose of beneficial good tidings.”

28 And Achimas shouted and said to the king, “Peace!” And he did obeissance to the king on his face on the ground and said, “Blessed be the Lord your God, who shut up the men who hate, their hand against my lord the king.” 29And the king said, “Is there peace for the lad Abessalom?” And Achimas said, “I saw the great multitude, so that loab sent off the slave of the king, even your slave, but I knew not what was there.” 30And the king said, “Turn aside, be set up as a stele here.” And he turned aside and stood.

31 And behold, Chousi came and said to the king, “Let my lord the king receive good tidings! For the Lord has vindicated you today from the hand of all who were stirred up against you.” 32And the king said to Chousi, “Is there peace for the lad Abessalom?” And Chousi said, “May the enemies of my lord the king, and all who rose up against him for evil, be like the lad.”
And the king was troubled and went up to the upper chamber of the gate and wept, and thus he said, as he went, "O my son Abessalom, my son, my son Abessalom! Who would give my death instead of you, I instead of you? O Abessalom, my son, my son!"

And it was told Ioab, saying, "Behold, the king is weeping and mourning for Abessalom." And the deliverance in that day turned into mourning for all the people, for the people heard in that day, saying, "The king is grieving for his son." And the people kept stealing away in that day to enter into the city, as people steal away who are ashamed when they flee in battle. And the king covered his face, and the king cried with a loud voice, saying, "O my son Abessalom, O Abessalom, my son!"

And Ioab went in to the king into the house and said, "Today you covered with shame the face of all your slaves who delivered you today, and the life of your sons and your daughters and the life of your wives and your concubines, to love those who hate you and to hate those who love you. And you proclaimed today that neither your commanders nor servants exist, for I have perceived today that if Abessalom were alive, all of us would be dead today, that then it would have been the right thing in your sight. And now arise, go out, and speak to the heart of your slaves; for I swore by the Lord, that unless you shall go out today—if a man shall lodge with you this night— and observe for yourself, this will be evil for you, even beyond all the evil that has come upon you from your youth until now." And the king got up and took his seat in the gate. And all the people proclaimed, saying, "Behold, the king is sitting in the gate," and all the people entered in front of the king.

And Israel fled, a man to his coverts. And all the people were disputing among all the tribes of Israel, saying, "King Dauid rescued us from all our enemies, and he delivered us from the hand of alaphyles, and now he has fled from the land and from his kingdom, from Abessalom. And Abessalom, whom we anointed over us, died in the battle. And now why are you quiet about bringing the king back?" And the word of all Israel came to the king.

And King Dauid sent to Sadok and to Abiathar the priests, saying, "Speak to the elders of Iouda, saying, 'Why are you the last to bring the king back to his house? And the talk of all Israel came to the king. You are my brothers, you are my bones and my flesh, and why are you the last to bring the king back to his house?' And you shall say to Amessai, 'Are you not my bone and my flesh? And now, this is what God may do to me, and this is what he may add, if you shall not be commander of the force before me all my days instead of Ioab,' " And he inclined the heart of every man of Iouda as one man, and they sent to the king, saying, "Return, you and all your slaves."

And the king returned and came as far as the Jordan, and men of Iouda came to Galgala to go to meet the king, to bring the king over the Jordan.

And Semei son of Gera son of the Iemeni, from Baourim, hurried and went down with a man of Iouda to meet King Dauid, and a thousand men were with him from Beniamin and Siba, the lad of the house of Saoul, and his fifteen sons with him and his twenty slaves with him, and they made straight towards the Jordan before the king and ministered the ministry to bring over the king, and the crossing crossed over to raise up the household of the king and to do what was right in his sight.

And Semei son of Gera fell on his face before the king, as he crossed over the Jordan, and said to the king, "Let my lord not consider my lawlessness, and do not remember how much your servant did wrong in the day when my lord the king was going out from Ierousalem so that the king put it in his heart. For your slave knew that I sinned, and behold, I came today, first of all the house of Joseph to go down to meet my lord the king."

And Abessa son of Sarouia answered and said, "Shall not Semei be put to death for this, because he cursed the Lord’s anointed?" And Dauid said, "What have I to do with you, O sons of Sarouia, that you become treacherous to me today? Today no man from Israel shall be put to death, for I do not know whether I am king today over Israel."

And the king said to Semei, "You shall not die." And the king swore to him.

And Memphibosthe son of Jonathan son of Saoul went down to meet the king, and he did not take care of his feet nor pare his nails nor make his moustache, and he did not wash his clothes, from the day when the king departed until the day when he arrived in peace. And it happened, when he entered into Ierousalem to meet the king, that the king said to him, "Why is it that you did not go with me, Memphibosthe?" And Memphibosthe said to him, "My lord O king, my slave deceived me; for your servant said to him, ‘Saddle the donkey for me, and I will mount up on it and go with the king.’ For your slave is lame. And he played a trick on your slave against my lord the king. And my lord the king is like an angel of God, and do what is good in your sight."

For all the house of my father were nothing but men of death to my lord the king, and you set your slave among those who eat your table. And what right have I any longer even to cry any longer to the king? And the king said to him, "Why do you speak any longer of your affairs? I said, You and Siba shall divide the field for yourselves."

And Memphibosthe said to the king, "And let him take him instead all, after my lord the king comes in peace to his house."

And Berzelli the Galaadite came down from Rogellim and crossed over the Jordan with the king, to send him out at the Jordan. And Berzelli was a very elderly man, a son of eighty years, and he supported the king while he lived in Manaim, for he was a very great man. 34(33)And the king said to Berzelli, "You shall cross over with me, and I will support your old age with me in Jerusalem." 35(34)And Berzelli said to the king, "How many are the days of the years of my life, that I shall go up to the king to Jerusalem? 36(35)Today I am a son of eighty years; I shall not discern between good and evil, shall I? Or will your slave taste any longer what I shall eat or drink? Or shall I hear any longer the voice of singing men and singing women? Why will your slave be a burden any longer on my lord the king? 37(36)Your slave will cross over the Jordan a little with the king, and why does the king recompense me this reward? 38(37)Do let your slave stay put, and I shall die in my city, near the tomb of my father and my mother. And behold, your slave Chamama will cross over with my lord the king, and do for him what is good in your sight." 39(38)And the king said, "Let Chamama cross over with me, and I will do for him what is good in your sight, and all that you shall choose in my power, I will do for you." 40(39)And all the people crossed over the Jordan, and the king crossed over, and the king kissed Berzelli and blessed him, and he returned to his own place. 41(40)And the king crossed over to Galgala, and Chamama crossed over with him, and all the people of louda were crossing over with the king, and indeed half of the people of Israel.

42(41)And behold, every man of Israel came to the king, and they said to the king, "Why is it that our brothers, man a of louda, stole you away and brought the king and his household over the Jordan, and all Daud's men with him?" 43(42)And many of louda answered a man of Israel and said, "Because the king is near to me. And why were you thus angry concerning this matter? In eating, we did not eat from the king, did we? Or did he give us a gift or lift a burden b for us?" 44(43)And a man of Israel answered the man of Israel and said, "I have ten hands in the king, and I am first-born rather than you, and indeed in Daud I am over you. And why is this that you despised me? And was my word not reckoned first to me, to bring the king back to me?" And the word of the man of louda grew harder than the word of the man of Israel.

20 And one nicknamed a lawless son was there, and his name was Sabee son of Bochori, the Iemeni man, and he trumpeted with the horn and said,

"We have no portion in Daud, and we have no inheritance in the son of Iessai!
A man to your coverts, O Israel!"

2 And every man of Israel went up from behind Daud after Sabee son of Bochori, and man c of louda adhered to their king from the Jordan even to Jerusalem.

3 And Daud entered into his house in Jerusalem, and the king took the ten women, his concubines, whom he left to keep the house, and gave them over into a house under guard and supported them but did not go in to them. And they were shut up until the day of their death, living as widows.

4 And the king said to Amessai, "Call to the man of louda to me for three days, and stand here yourself." 5And Amessai went to call loudad, and he delayed beyond the set time that Daud appointed for him. 6And Daud said to Abessa, "Now Sabee son of Bochori will do us more harm than Abessalom, and now, take with yourself the servants of your lord, and pursue closely after him, lest he find strong cities for himself and will overshadow our eyes." 7And there went out after him the men of loab and Chereththi and Pheleththi and all the powerful men, and they went out from Jerome- salem to pursue after Sabee son of Bochori. 8And they were beside the great stone that is in Gabaon, and Amessai went in before them. And loab was wearing a woolen cloak as his garment, and over it he was wearing a dagger fastened at his waist in its sheath, and the dagger came out and fell. 9And loab said to Amessai, "Are you in good health, brother?" And the right hand of loab took hold of the beard of Amessai to kiss him. 10And Amessai did not guard himself against the dagger that was in the hand of loab, and loab struck him with it in the muscles of the loins, and his entrails poured out on the ground, and he did not do it to him a second time, and he died.

And loab and Abessa his brother pursued after Sabee son of Bochori. 11And a man from the lads of loab stood over him and said, "Who is it that likes loab, and who belongs to Daud after loab?" 12And Amessai was drenched in his blood in the middle of the path. And the man saw that all the people had stopped, and he turned Amessai away from the path into a field and threw a garment over him, inasmuch as he saw all who came by him standing still. 13And when he preceded off the path, every man of Israel passed on after loab to pursue after Sabee son of Bochori.

14 And he passed through among all the tribes of Israel to Abel and to Baithmacha, and all in Charri both assembled and came behind him. 15And they came near and kept laying siege against him in Abel and Baithmacha, and they poured out a mound against the city, and it stood within the outer fortification, and all the people who were with loab were intending to throw down the wall. 16And a wise woman shouted from the wall and said, "Listen! Listen! Do say to loab, 'Come over here, and I will speak to him.' 17And he came near to her, and the woman said, 'Are you loab?' And he said, 'I am.' And she said to him, 'Listen to the words of your slave.' And loab said, 'I am listening—I am.' 18And she said, saying, 'A saying they spoke at first, saying, 'When inquired of, one was inquired of in Abel,' and in Dan if they had abandoned what the faithful of Israel had established. 'When inquiring, they shall inquire in Abel,' and likewise if they had abandoned it. 19I am a peaceful one of the supports of Israel, but you seek to put to death a city and a mother city in Israel; why do you drown the Lord's inheritance?" 20And loab an-

21 And there was a famine in the days of Daid for three years, year next to year, and Daid sought the face of the Lord. And the Lord said, “There is an injustice upon Saoul and upon his house, because he put to death a death of blood, on account of which he put to death the Gabaonites.” 2And King Daid called the Gabaonites and spoke to them. (And the Gabaonites are not sons of Israel, but only from the remnant of the Amorrite, and the sons of Israel swore to them, and Saoul sought to strike them, when he was zealous for the sons of Israel and Iouda.) 3And Daid said to the Gabaonites, “What shall I do for you? And in what way shall I make atonement, and you will bless the inheritance of the Lord?” 4And the Gabaonites said to him, “For us it is not silver and gold with Saoul and with his house, and for us there is no man to put to death in Israel.” And he said, “What are you saying, and I will do it for you?” 5And they said to the king, “The man brought an end upon us, so he has no stand within any boundary of Israel. 6Let one hand over to us seven men from his sons, and let us hang them in the sun, and the Lord will show us whether his word is good or not.” 7And the king spared Memphibosthe son of Jonathan son of Saoul, because of the oath of the Lord that was between them, between Daid and between Jonathan son of Saoul. 8And the king took the two sons of Respha daughter of Aia, whom he bore to Saoul, Ermoni and Memphibosthe, and the five sons of Michol daughter of Saoul, whom he bore to Esriel the Mooulathi, son of Berzelli, and he gave them into the hand of the Gabaonites, and they hung them in the sun on the mountain before the Lord. And the seven themselves fell together. And also they were put to death in the days of harvest at the first, at the beginning of barley harvest.

22 And Daid spoke to the Lord the words of this ode in which day the Lord delivered him from the hand of all his enemies and from the hand of Saoul. 2And he said: O Lord, my rock and my fortress, and for me one who delivers me; my God shall be my keeper; I will be reliant on him, my protector and horn of my salvation, my supporter and my refuge for my salvation, you shall save me from wrong.

I will call upon the Lord for he is praiseworthy, and I shall be saved from my enemies.

For afflictions of death encompassed me;

wadis of lawlessness astounded me;

pangs of death surrounded me;

rigidities of death outran me.

When I am afflicted I will call upon the Lord, and to my God I will shout, and from his shrine he shall heed my voice, and my cry shall be in his ears.

And the earth was stirred up and quaked, and the foundations of the sky were confounded and torn apart, because the Lord was angry with them.

Smoke went up in his wrath, and fire from his mouth shall devour;

coals flamed forth from him.

And he bent the heavens and came down, and thick darkness was under his feet.

And he sat on cherubim and flew,

and he was seen upon wings of wind.

And he made darkness his hideaway around him;

his tent was a darkness of waters;

a it thickened with clouds of air.

From the splendor before him

coals of fire flamed forth.

The Lord thundered from heaven, and the Most High gave his voice.

And he sent forth arrows and scattered them—

lightning, and astounded them.

And b emissions of sea were seen, and foundations of the world were laid bare

by the rebuke of the Lord,

at the blast of the breath of his anger.

He sent from on high, and he took me;

he drew me out of many waters.

He rescued me from my enemies of strength,

from those who hate me,

for they were too strong for me.

They outran me in the day of my affliction, and the Lord was my support.

And he brought me out into spaciousness, and he delivered me, because he delighted in me.

And the Lord rewarded me according to my righteousness;

according to the cleanness of my hands

he rewarded me.

For I kept ways of the Lord and did not impiously depart from my God.

For all his judgments were in front of me, and his statutes, I did not depart from them.

And I shall be blameless to him, and I shall keep myself from my lawlessness.

And the Lord will pay me back according to my righteousness and according to the cleanness of my hands in his sight.

With the devout you will be deemed devout, and with a perfect man you will be deemed perfect, and with the select you will be select,

and with the crooked you will be deemed crooked.

And you will save the poor people, and you will lower your eyes on the haughty.

For you are my lamp, O Lord, and the Lord will illumine my darkness for me.

For in you I shall run as a lightly armed man, and in my God I shall scale a wall.

The Strong One—his way is blameless;

the word of the Lord is strong, e tried by fire;

he is a protector for all who rely on him.

Who is strong except the Lord?

And who will be a creator except our God?

It was the Strong One who strengthened me with power and shook my way blameless, making my feet like the feet of deer and setting me secure on the heights, training my hands for war and breaking a bronze bow with my arm.

And you gave me protection for my salvation, and your answer made me increase into spaciousness for my steps under me, and my legs did not totter.

I will pursue my enemies and destroy them, and I will not turn back until I will bring them to an end.

And I will crush them, and they shall not rise, and they shall fall under my feet.

And you will strengthen me with power for battle;

you will make those who rise up against me bow down under me.

And you gave me my enemies in the back;

those who hated me, you even put them to death.

They will shout, and there is no helper;

to the Lord, but he did not answer them.

And I ground them down like dust of the earth;

like mire of exits I beat them fine.
And you will rescue me from battle with peoples;
you will guard me to be head of nations;
a people whom I did not know was subject to me.

Foreign sons lied to me;
at the hearing of the ear they heard me.

Foreign sons shall be cast away and shall stumble out of their enclosures.

The Lord lives! And blessed be my keeper!
And my God, the keeper of my salvation, shall be exalted!

The Lord who gives me vengeance is strong, disciplining peoples underneath me and bringing me out from my enemies.
And you will exalt me from those who are stirred up against me;
you will rescue me from a man of wrongs.

Therefore I will acknowledge you, O Lord, among the nations,
and make music in your name, magnifying acts of deliverance of his king and doing mercy to his anointed, to David and his offspring forever.

And these are the last words of David:
Faithful is David, son of Jassai, and faithful the man whom the Lord raised up to be the anointed of Jacob's God, and fitting are Israel's melodies.

The Lord's spirit spoke by me, and his word was upon my tongue.

The God of Israel speaks; Israel's keeper spoke to me: Speak a parable.

How might you strengthen fear of God
by a human?

And by God may the sun rise at the light of dawn;
the morning did not pass from splendor, and it was as if from rain for tender grass from the earth.

For is my house not so with Someone Strong?
For he made with me an everlasting covenant,
ready in every season, kept safe;
for my whole salvation and total will is that the lawless shall not sprout.

They are all like a thorny plant, thrust out, for not by hand shall they be taken,
and a man shall not grow weary among them—
and full of iron also is a shaft of a spear—and with fire, with burning, they shall be burned by their shame.

These are the names of the powerful men of David: lebothe the Chanaiti is commander of the Third—Adinon the Asonite—he drew his sword against eight hundred casualties at once.

And after him was Eleazar, son of his father's brother, son of Sousi,6 among the three powerful men. He was with David in Serran, and when he reproached them among the allophyles, they gathered there for battle, and they went up, a man of Is-real. 10He stood up and struck among the allophyles until his hand grew weary and his hand stuck to the dagger, and the Lord brought about a great deliverance in that day. And the people were encamped behind him—only to despoil.

And after him was Samaia son of Asa, the Harouchite. And the allophyles gathered together at Wild Beasts, and there was there a portion of the field full of lentil, and the people fled from before allophyles. 12And he was made a stele in the middle of the portion and delivered it and struck the allophyles, and the Lord brought about a great deliverance.

And three of the Thirty went down and came into Kason to David into the cave of Odollam, and a unit of the allophyles encamped in the valley of Raphaim. 14And David was then in the enclosure, and the support of the allophyles was then in Baith-leem. 15And David longed and said, "Who will give me water to drink from the cistern that is in Baith-leem, that is by the gate?" But the corps of the allophyles was then in Baithleem. 16And the three pow-ergful men broke through into the camp of the allophyles and drew water from the cistern that was in Baithleem that was by the gate and took it and came to David. But he did not want to drink it, and he poured it out as a libation to the Lord 17and said, "Be gracious to me, O Lord, for doing this.
Shall I drink the blood of the men who went by their lives?" And he did not want to drink it. The three powerful men did these things.

Abessa, brother of Iob son of Sarouia, he was commander among the Three. And he awakened his spear against three hundred casualties and had a name among the Three. 19Of those Three he was highly esteemed and became a commander for them, but he did not attain to the Three.

Banaias son of Iodai, he was a man great in deeds, from Kabeseel, and he struck the two sons of Ariel of Moab. He also went down and struck the lion in the middle of the pit in the day of the snowfall. 21He struck the Egyptian man, a man to be seen. Now in the hand of the Egyptian was a spear, like the upright of a ladder, and he went down to him with a rod and snatched the spear out of the hand of the Egyptian and killed him with his own spear. 22These things did Bana-ias son of Iodai, and he had a name among the three powerful men. 23Of the Three he was highly esteeemed, but he did not attain to the Three. And Dauid appointed him for his hearings.

24 And these are the names of the powerful men of King Dauid: Asael, brother of Ioaab (he was among the Thirty), Eleanan son of Doudi his father’s brother in Baithleem, 25 Samai the Haroudite, Elikia the Haroudite, 26 Helles the Phelothei, Ira son of Ekkas the Thkoite, 27 Abiezer the Anathothite of the sons of the Hasothite, 28 Gabaeth son of Beniamin, 29 Banaias the Pharathonite, Eththi son of Riba of Gabaeth son of Beniamin, 30 Banaias the Pharathonite, 31 Abiel son of the Arabothite, Azoith the Barsamite, 32 Eliasou the Salabonite, sons of Iasan, Jonathan, 33 Samma the Harodite, Achian son of Sarad the ArouUrith, 34 Alphaleth son of the Hasbite son of the Maachati, Eliab son of Achithophel the Gelonite, 35 Hasarai the Carmelite, Pharei the Erchi, 36 Igaal son of Nathan from power, son of Gaddi, 37 Elie the Ammanite, Gelorai the Berothite, carrier of the weapons of Iob son of Sarouia, 38 Iras the Iethirite, Gareb the Iethirite, 39 Ourias the Chethite—thirty-seven in all.

24 And anger of the Lord added to blaze out against Israel, and he incited Dauid against them, saying: “Go, count Israel and Iouda.” 2And the king said to Ioaab commander of the force, who was with him, “Go now through all the tribes of Israel, from Dan and as far as Bersabee, and inspect the people, and I will know the number of the people.” 3And Ioaab said to the king, “And may the Lord your God add to the people, just as they are, even while the eyes of my lord the king see! And my lord the king, why is he desirous in this matter?” 4And the king prevailed against Ioaab and against the commanders of the force. And Ioaab and the commanders of the force went out before the king to inspect the people of Israel. 5And they crossed the Jordan and encamped in Aroer on the right side of the city that is in the middle of the ravine of Gad and Eliezer. 6And they came to Galaad and to the land of Thabason, which is Hadasai, and they drew near to Danid and Oudan and circled round to Sidon 7and came to Mapsar of Tyre and all the cities of the Heuite and the Chananite, and they came down south of Iouda to Bersabee. 8And they went round in all the land, and they drew near to Ierousalem to destroy it, and the Lord was consoled over the evil and said to the angel who was destroying among the people, “It is much now; relax your hand.” And the angel of the Lord was by the threshing floor of Orna the Iebousite. 16And Dauid spoke to the Lord when he saw the angel hitting among the people and said, “Behold, I am—I did wrong, and I am the shepherd—I did evil, and these are the sheep; what did they do? Now let your hand be against me and against the house of my father.”

18 And Gad came to Dauid in that day and said to him, “Go up, and erect an altar to the Lord on the threshing floor of Orna the Iebousite.” 19And Dauid went up according to the word of Gad, according as the Lord commanded him. 20And Orna looked out and saw the king and his servants passing by upon him, and Orna went out and did obeisance to the king on his face on the ground. 21And Orna said, “Why is it that my lord the king came to his slave?” And Dauid said, “To buy the threshing floor from you in order to build an altar to the Lord, and the destruction may be stopped over the people.” 22And Orna said to Dauid, “Let my lord the king take and offer up to the Lord what is good in his sight; behold, the oxen for a whole burnt offering, and the wheels and the gear of the oxen for wood.” 23Orna gave everything to the king, and Orna said to the king, “May the Lord your God bless you.”

24 And the king said to Orna, “No, on the contrary, buying I will buy from you at a price, and I will not offer up a whole burnt offering to the Lord, my God, without payment.” And Dauid bought the threshing floor and the oxen in silver of fifty shekels. 25And Dauid built there an altar to the Lord, and offered up whole burnt offerings and peace offerings, and the wheels and the gear of the oxen for wood.”

And King David was old, advanced in days, and they kept clothing him with clothes, and he was not being warmed. 2And his servants said, “Let them search for a young virgin for our lord the king, and she shall wait on the king, and she shall be keeping him warm and shall fall asleep with him, and our lord the king shall be warmed.” 3And they searched for a beautiful girl from every boundary of Israel and found Abisak the Somanite and brought her to the king. 4And the girl was beautiful, extremely so, and she was keeping the king warm and was ministering to him, but the king did not know her. 5 And Adonias son of Haggith was exalting himself, saying, “I will be king,” and he prepared for himself chariots and horsemen and fifty men to run along before him. 6And his father did not ever hinder him, saying, “For what reason did you act?” And indeed he was very youthful in appearance, and he begot him after Abessalom. 7And his conferences were with Ioab the son of Sarouia and with Abiathar the priest, and they were helping behind Adonias. 8And Sadok the priest and Banaias son of Iodae and Nathan the prophet and Semei and Rei and the powerful men of Dauid were not behind Adonias. 9 And Adonias offered sacrifices, sheep and calves and lambs, with stone of Zoeleth, which was next to the spring of Rogel, and he invited all his brothers and all the prominent men of Iouda, servants of the king, 10and Nathan the prophet and Banaia and the powerful men and Salomon his brother he did not invite. 11 And Nathan spoke to Bersabee mother of Salomon, saying, “Did you not hear that Adonias son of Haggith became king, and our lord Dauid did not know? 12And now, come, I will indeed give you advice. And deliver your own life and the life of your son Salomon. 13Come on, go in to King Dauid, and you shall speak to him, saying, ‘Did you not, my lord O king, swear to your slave, saying: Salomon your son shall be king after me, and he shall sit on my throne? And why is it that Adonias became king?’ 14And behold, while you are still there speaking with the king, I too will go in after you and will fill out your words.”

And Bersabee went in to the king into the chamber. And the king was very old, and Abisak the Somanite was ministering to the king. 16And Bersabee bent down and did obeisance to the king, and the king said, “What is it with you?” 17And she said, “My lord O king, you swore by the Lord your God to your slave, saying: Salomon your son shall be king after me, and he shall sit on my throne. 18And now, behold, Adonias became king, and you, my lord O king, did not know. 19And he offered sacrifices, calves and lambs and sheep in great numbers, and invited all the sons of the king and Abia-thar the priest and loab the commander of the force, but Salomon your slave he did not invite. 20And you, my lord O king—the eyes of all Israel are towards you to tell them who shall sit on the throne of my lord the king after him. 21And it will come to pass, when my lord the king sleeps with his fathers, that I myself and my son Salomon will be sinners.” 22 And behold, while she was still speaking with the king, Nathan the prophet also came. 23And it was told the king, “Behold, Nathan the prophet.” And he entered in front of the king and did obeisance to the king, in front of him on the ground. 24And Nathan said, “My lord O king, did you say, ‘Adonias shall be king after me, and he shall sit on my throne?’ 25For today he went down and offered sacrifices, calves and lambs and sheep in great numbers, and invited all the sons of the king and the commanders of the force and Abiathar the priest, and they said, ‘Let King Adonias live!’ 26But me myself your slave and Sadok the priest and Banaias son of Iodae and Salomon your slave he did not invite. 27If this thing has been brought about by my lord the king, then you did not let your slave know who shall sit on the throne of my lord the king after him.” 28 And Dauid answered and said, “Summon to me Bersabee.” And she came in before the king and stood before him. 29And the king swore and said, “The Lord lives, who redeemed my life from every affliction, 30that as I swore to you by the Lord, the God of Israel, saying, ‘Salomon your son shall be king after me, and he shall sit on my throne,’ that so will I do this day.”

3 And the king said, “Let them search for a young virgin for our lord the king, and she shall wait on the king, and she shall be keeping him warm and shall fall asleep with him, and our lord the king shall be warmed.” And they searched for a beautiful girl from every boundary of Israel and found Abisak the Somanite and brought her to the king. And it was told the king, “Behold, Nathan the prophet.” And he entered in front of the king and did obeisance to the king, in front of him on the ground. And Nathan said, “My lord O king, did you say, ‘Adonias shall be king after me, and he shall sit on my throne?’ For today he went down and offered sacrifices, calves and lambs and sheep in great numbers, and invited all the sons of the king and the commanders of the force and Abiathar the priest, and they said, ‘Let King Adonias live!’ But me myself your slave and Sadok the priest and Banaias son of Iodae and Salomon your slave he did not invite. If this thing has been brought about by my lord the king, then you did not let your slave know who shall sit on the throne of my lord the king after him.” And Dauid answered and said, “Summon to me Bersabee.” And she came in before the king and stood before him. And the king swore and said, “The Lord lives, who redeemed my life from every affliction, that as I swore to you by the Lord, the God of Israel, saying, ‘Salomon your son shall be king after me, and he shall sit on my throne instead of me,’ that so will I do this day.” And Bersabee bent down on her face on the ground and did obeisance to the king and said, “Let my lord King Dauid live forever!”

And King Dauid said, “Summon to me Sadok the priest and Nathan the prophet and Banaias son of Iodae.” And they came in before the king. And the king said to them, “Take the slaves of your lord with you and mount my son Salomon on my own mule and bring him down to Gion.

2 And the days of Dauid drew near for him to die, and he commanded Salomon his son, saying: 2“I am—I am going by way of all the earth. And you shall be strong, and you shall become a man, 3and you shall keep the charge of the Lord your God, to walk in his ways, to keep his commandments and the statutes and the judgments which are written in the law of Moses so that you may understand what you shall do in all things, whatever I command you 4so that the Lord may establish his word that he spoke, saying, ‘If your sons take heed to their way, to walk before me in truth with their whole heart and with their whole soul—saying: There shall not be utterly destroyed for you a man from upon the throne of Israel.’ 5And indeed you knew what Ioab son of Sarouia did to me, what he did to the two commanders of the forces of Israel, to Abenner son of Ner and to Amessai son of Iether, and he killed them and arrayed the blood of war in peace and put innocent blood on his belt that was on his waist and on his sandal that was on his foot. And you shall act according to your wisdom, and you shall not bring his gray hair down in peace to Hades. 6And you shall do mercy to the sons of Berzelli the Galaadite, and they shall be among those who eat your table, for thus they drew near to me when I ran away from before Abessalom your brother. 7And behold, there is with you Semei son of Gera son of the Iemeni from Baourim, and he cursed me with a painful curse on the day when I went to Camps, and he came down to meet me at the Jordan, and I swore to him by the Lord, saying, ‘If I will put you to death with a sword, . . . !’ 8And you shall not hold him guiltless, for you are a wise man, and you will know what you shall do to him, and you shall bring his gray hair down with blood to Hades.”

10 And Dauid slept with his fathers and was buried in the city of Dauid. 11And the days that Dauid reigned over Israel were forty years; in Chebron he reigned seven years and in Ierousalem thirty-three years.

(OLD GREEK)
19 And Bersabee went in to King Salomon to speak to him on behalf of Adonias. And the king rose to meet her and kissed her, and he sat on his throne, and a throne was placed for the king's mother, and she sat on his right. 20And she said to him, "I request one small request from you; do not turn your face away." And the king said to her, "Make your request, my mother, for I will not refuse you." 21And she said, "Let now Abisak the So- manite be given to your brother Adonias as a wife." 22And King Salomon answered and said to his mother, "And why do you request Abisak for Adoni- as? And request for him the kingdom! For he is my brother, the great one beyond me, and he has the priest Abiathar, and he has Ioab the son of Sarouia the commander-in-chief for a compan- ion!" 23And King Salomon spoke by the Lord, say- ing, "This is what God may do to me, and this may he add, for Adonias spoke this word at the risk of his life! 24And now the Lord lives, who prepared me and placed me on the throne of my father Dauid, and he made me a house, as the Lord spoke, for today Adonias shall be put to death." 25And King Salomon sent by the hand of Banaiou son of Iodae and did away with him, and Adonias died on that day.

26 And the king said to the priest Abiathar, "Depart quickly to Anathoth, to your field, for you are a man of death on this day, and I will not put you to death, because you carried the ark of the covenant of the Lord before my father and because you were afflicted with all the hardships with which my father was afflicted." 27And Salomon banished Abiathar from being a priest of the Lord, to fulfill the word of the Lord that he spoke re- garding the house of Eli in Selom.

28 And the news came to Ioab the son of Sarouia—for Ioab had inclined after Adonias and did not incline after Salomon—and Ioab fled to the covert of the Lord and grasped the horns of the altar. 29And it was told to Salomon, saying, "Ioab the covert of the Lord and grasped the horns of the altar," And Salomon sent to Ioab, saying, "What happened to you that you fled to the altar?" And Ioab said, "Because I was afraid from before you, and I fled to the Lord." 30And King Salomon sent Banaiou son of Iodae, saying, "Go, and do away with him, and bury him." 31And Banaiou son of Iodae came to Ioab into the tent of the Lord and said to him, "This is what the king says, 'Come out.'" And Ioab said, "I am not going out, for I will die here." And Banaiou son of Iodae returned and said to the king, saying, "This is what Ioab has spoken, and this is what he has answered me." 32And the king said to him, "Go, and do to him as he has said, and do away with him, and you shall bury him, and today you will take away from me and from my father's house the blood that Ioab shed without cause; 33and the Lord brought back the blood of his injustice on his head, as he fell upon the two persons who were more righteous and better than he, and he killed them with a sword, and my father Dauid did not know of their blood, Abenner son of Ner, com- mander-in-chief of Israel, and Amessa son of Aether, commander-in-chief of loudas, 34and their spilled blood was brought back on his head and on the head of his offspring forever, and to Dauid and to his offspring and to his house and to his throne may there be peace from the Lord forever." 35And Banaiou son of Iodae came upon Ioab and put him to death and buried him at his house in the wilderness. 36And the king put Banaiou son of Iodae in command in his place, and the kingdom was being established in Jerusalem, and the king appointed the priest Sadok first priest in the place of Abiathar.

35a (4.29) And the Lord gave Salomon dis- cernment and very great wisdom and breadth of mind like the sand which is by the sea, 35b(4.30) and the discernment of Salomon was greatly multi- plied above the discernment of all ancient sons and above all prudent ones of Egypt.

35c(3.1) And he took the daughter of Pharao and brought her into the city of Dauid until he first finished his house and the house of the Lord and the wall of Jerusalem round about; in seven years he made and finished them. 35d(5.15) And Salomon had seventy thousand bearing a burden and eighty thousand stonemakers in the hill country.

35e(7.23) And Salomon made the sea and the supports and the great washbasins and the pillars and the fountain of the court and the bronze sea. 35f(And he built the citadel and its defenses, and he cut through the city of Dauid; 9.24) thus Pharao's daughter used to go up from the city of Dauid to her house which he built for her. Then he built the citadel.

drone, knowing you shall know that by death you shall die; your blood shall be on your own head.” And the king caused him to swear on that day. 38 And Semei said to the king, “The dictum is fair that you have spoken, my lord O king; so will your slave do.” And Semei stayed in Jerusalem three years.

39 And it happened after three years that two of Semei’s slaves ran away to King Anchous son of Maacha of Geth, and it was told Semei, saying, “Behold, your slaves are in Geth.” 40 And Semei arose and saddled his donkey and went to Anchous in Geth to search for his slaves, and Semei went and brought his slaves from Geth. 41 And it was reported to Salomon, saying, “Semei went from Jerusalem to Geth and brought back his slaves.” 42 And the king sent and summoned Semei and said to him, “Did I not make you swear by the Lord and solemnly adjure you, saying, ‘Knowing you shall know that on the day you go out of Jerusalem and go to the right or to the left, by death you shall die?’ 43 And why is it that you have not kept the oath of the Lord and the commandment which I commanded against you?” 44 And the king said to Semei, “You know all your evil that your heart knew that you did to my father David, and the Lord has recompensed your evil on your own head. 45 And King Salomon is blessed, and the throne of David shall be established before the Lord forever.” 46 And King Salomon commanded Banaia son of Iodae, and he went out and did away with him, and he died.

46a And King Salomon was very prudent and wise, (4.20) and loudas and Israel were very many as the sand which is by the sea in great number, eating and drinking and being happy, 46b and Salomon was chief among all the kingdoms, and they were bringing gifts, and they were subject to Salomon all the days of his life. 46c And Salomon began to open the resources of Lebanon, 46d and he built Thermai in the wilderness, 46e and this was the highest ground and great; Salomon offered a thousand whole burnt offerings on the altar at Gabaon. 46f And the Lord appeared to Salomon, saying: “Request some request for yourself.” 46g And Salomon said, “You did great mercy with your slave, my father David, as he passed through before you in truth and in righteousness and in uprightness of heart with you, and you have kept for him this great mercy to give his son on his throne, as this day. 46h And now, O Lord my God, you gave your slave in place of my father David, and I am a little lad, and I do not know my going out and my coming in, 46i but your slave is in the midst of your people whom you chose, a large people, who shall not be counted, 46j and you shall give your slave a heart to hear and to judge your people in righteousness to discern between good and evil; for who will be able to judge this your weighty people?”

10 And it was pleasing before the Lord that Salomon requested this thing. 11 And the Lord said to him, “Because you requested this thing from me and did not request for yourself many days and did not request riches and did not request lives of your enemies but requested for yourself understanding to discern between good and evil; for who will be able to judge this your weighty people?”

15 And Salomon awoke, and behold, it was a dream, and he arose and came to Jerusalem and stood facing the altar which is before the ark of the covenant of the Lord in Sion and offered up whole burnt offerings and made peace offerings and made a great feast for himself and all his servants. 16 Then, two women, prostitutes, appeared before the king and stood before him. 17 And the one woman said, “With regard to me, my lord, this woman and I, we live in one house, and we gave birth in the house, 18 and it happened, on the third day after I gave birth, that this woman also gave birth, and we were together, and there was no one else with us besides both of us in the house. 19 And this woman's son died in the night, as she lay on him. 20 And she got up in the middle of the night and took my son from my arms and laid him in her bosom and laid her dead son in my bosom. 21 And I arose in the morning to nurse my son, and that one was dead, and behold, I looked at him closely in the morning, and behold, it was not my son whom I had borne." 22 And the other woman said, "No, but the living son is mine, but the dead son is yours." And they spoke before the king.

23 And the king said to them, "You say, 'This is my son that is alive, and this woman's son is the dead one,' and you say, 'Not so! but my son is the living one, and your son is the dead one.' " 24 And the king said, "Take a dagger for me," and they brought the dagger before the king. 25 And the king said, "Divide the living boy, the suckling, in two, and give the half of it to this woman and the half of it to this woman." 26 And the woman whose was the living son answered and said to the king—because her womb was troubled over her son—and she said, "With regard to me, my lord, give her the boy, and by death do not put him to death," and this woman said, "Let it be neither mine nor yours; divide it." 27 And the king answered and said: "Give the boy to the one who said, 'Give it to her, and by death do not put him to death.' She is his mother." 28 And all Israel heard this judgment that the king judged, and they stood in awe from before the king, because they perceived that divine discernment was in him to execute judgment.

4 And King Salomon was ruling over Israel, 2 and these were the rulers who were his: Azariou son of Sadok 3 and Eliareph and Achia son of Saba, secretaries, and Iosaphat son of Achilid, recorder, 4 and Sadouch and Abiathar, priests, 5 and Ornai son of Nathan, over the officials, and Zabouth son of Nathan, the king's companion, 6 and Achiel, steward, and Eliab son of Saph, over the paternal family, and Adoniram son of Ephra, over the levy. 7 And Salomon had twelve appointed over all Israel to provide for the king and his household; it would be that for one month in the year the one would provide. 8 And these are their names: Benor in the hill country of Ephraim, one; 9 son of Rechab in Mackemas and Bethalamin and Baithsamus and Ailon as far as Baithanagan, one; 10 son of Esoth Berbethma, Lousamencha and Resphara; 11 Chinarad and Anaphathi, a man of Tableth (his wife was a daughter of Salomon), one; 12 Bakcha son of Achilid Thaanach and Mekedo and all the house of San which is beside Sesathan below the Ereesae and from Baisaphoud Ebelmaola as far as Maebet Loukam, one; 13 son of Gaber in Remath Galaad, and to this the allotment Eregaba, which is in Basan, sixty great cities with walls and bronze bars, one; 14 Achinadab son of Acheil Maanain, one; 15 Achimaas, in Nephthali (and he took Basemmath, Salomon's daughter, as wife), one; 16 Baana son of Chousi in Maalath, one; 17 Samaab son of Ela in Beniamin; 18 Gaber son of Adai in the land of Gad, the land of King Seon of Hesebon and of King Og of Basan; and one nasiph in the land of Ioudas; 19 Iosaphat son of Phouasoud in Isschar.

5 (4.27) And thus the officials would supply provisions for King Salomon and everything ordered for the table of the king, each one in his month, they did not alter a thing, and they also used to bring to the place where the king might be barley and straw for the horses and the chariots, each according to his charge. 2(4.22) And these were Salomon's provisions for one day: thirty kors of choice flour and sixty kors of ground meal 3(4.23) and ten choice calves and twenty pasture-fed oxen and one hundred sheep, besides deer and gazelles and choice birds, 'grain fed'. 4(4.24) For he was ruler across the river, and he was at peace on all sides round about.

9(4.29) And the Lord gave Salomon discernment and very great wisdom and volume of mind like the sand that is by the sea, 10(4.30) and Salomon was greatly multiplied, above the discernment of all ancient people and above all the discerning of Egypt. 11(4.31) And he was wise beyond all humans; he was wise beyond Gaithan the Ezraite and Haiman and Chalkal and Darda, sons of Mal. 12(4.32) And Salomon spoke three thousand illustrations, and his songs were five thousand. 13(4.33) And he spoke of trees, from the cedar that is in Lebanon and as far as the hyssop that comes out through the wall, and he spoke of animals and of birds and of reptiles and of fish. 14(4.34) And all the people used to come to hear the wisdom of Salomon, and he would receive gifts from all the kings of the earth who were hearing of his wisdom.

14(3.1) And Salomon took the daughter of Pharaoh for himself for a wife and brought her into the city of Dauid until he finished the house of the Lord and his own house and the wall of Ierusalem. 14b(9.16) Then Pharaoh king of Egypt went up and captured Gazer and burned it and the Canaanite who lived in Mergab, and Pharaoh gave them as send-off to his daughter, Salomon's wife, and Salomon built Gazer.

15(5.1) And King Chiram of Tyre sent his servants to anoint Salomon in place of his father Dauid, for Chiram had affection for Dauid all the days. 16(5.2) And Salomon sent to Chiram, saying, 17(5.3) "You know my father Dauid that he could not build a house for the name of the Lord, my God, from the presence of the wars that surrounded him until the Lord put them under the traces of his feet. 18(5.4) And now the Lord my God gave me rest all around; there is no plotter, and there is no evil encounter. 19(5.5) And behold, I intend to build a house for the name of the Lord, my God, as the Lord God spoke to my father Dauid, saying, 'Your son whom I will give on your throne in your place, this one shall build the house for my name. 20(5.6) And now command, and let them cut timber from Lebanon for me, and behold, my slaves are with your slaves, and I will give you the wages of your services according to all that you say, for you know that we have no one who knows how to cut timber like the Sidonians."

21(5.7) And it happened, when Chiram heard the words of Salomon, he rejoiced greatly and said, "Blessed be God today, who gave to David a discerning son over this numerous people."

22(5.8) And he sent to Salomon, saying, "I have heard concerning all that you sent to me; I will do your every wish, cedar timber and pine. 23(5.9) My slaves shall bring them down to the sea from Lebanon, and I will make them rafts to the place that you indicate to me, and I will have them broken up there, and you will take them away, and you shall do my wish by providing food for my household."

24(5.10) And Chiram was giving Salomon cedars and his every wish. 25(5.11) And Salomon in turn gave Chiram twenty thousand kors of wheat and machir for his household and twenty thousand beths of beaten oil; like this Salomon would give its plan and in all its arrangement. 2And the house is the eighth month) the house was finished in all its arrangement. And the house of the Lord in the month Niso, the second month; the fourth year he laid the foundation of the house

3 And he commanded, and they took great, costly stones, hewn stones, 1b(5.18) and the sons of Salomon and the sons of Chiram hewed and laid them. 1c(6.37) In the fourth year he laid the foundation of the house of the Lord in the month Niso, the second month; 1d(6.38) in the eleventh year in the month Baal (this is the eighth month) the house was finished in all its plan and in all its arrangement. 2And the house that King Salomon built for the Lord, forty cubits its length and twenty its width in cubits and twenty-five its height in cubits. 3And the altar in front of the shrine, twenty its width in cubits for the width of the house and ten its depth in cubits in front of the house. 6.14) And he built the house and finished it. 4And for the house he made hidden, peep windows. 5 And he placed beams on the wall of the house all around the shrine and the dabir, and he made sides all around. 6 The lower side five cubits its width and the middle six and the third seven its width in cubits; he gave the house a space all around, outside the house, in order that they should not lay hold of the walls of the house.

7 And the house while it was being built was built with rough, unworked stones, neither hammer nor ax nor any tool of iron was heard in the house while it was being built.

8 And the gateway of the lower side was under the right shoulders of the house, and there was a winding ascent into the middle and from the middle to the third-story. 9 And he built the house and finished it, and he made a coffered ceiling for the house from cedars. 10 And he built the bindings through the whole house, its height five in cubits, and he enclosed the binding with cedar boards.

15 And he built the walls of the house with cedar boards from the floor of the house and as far as the rafters and to the walls; he made a coffered ceiling enclosed with boards within, and he covered the inside of the house with sides of pine. 16 And he built the twenty cubits from the top of the house, the one side from the floor to the rafters, and he made from the dabir to the holy of holies. 17 And the shrine was forty cubits in front of the dabir in the midst of the house within, to set there the ark of the covenant of the Lord. 20 The length twenty cubits and twenty cubits the width and twenty cubits its height, and he covered it with overlaid gold. And he made an altar in front of the dabir and overlaid it with gold. 22 And he overlaid the whole house with gold until the completion of all the house.

23 And in the dabir he made two cheroubin of ten cubits measured size. 24 And five cubits the wing of the one cheroub and five cubits its second wing and from the tip of its wing to the tip of its wing ten in cubits; 25 thus it was with the second cheroub, with one measure one completion for both. 26 And the height of the one cheroub ten in cubits and so the second cheroub. 27 And both the cheroubin were in the midst of the innermost house and he spread out their wings, and one wing was touching the wall, and a wing of the second was touching the wall, and their other wings which were in the midst of the house were touching wing to wing. 28 And he overlaid the cheroubin with gold.

29 And with a stylus he inscribed all the walls of the house, round about, with engraved cheroubin, and the inner and the outer had palm trees. 30 And the floor of the house he overlaid with gold, of the innermost and of the outermost.

31 And for the doorway of the dabir he made doors of juniper wood and a five-sided lintel and two doors of pine boards and carved on them carved cheroubin and palm trees and open flower-leaves, and he overlaid with gold, and the gold went down on the cherubim and on the palm trees. 33 And thus he made for the gateway to the shrine lintels of juniper, four-sided porticoes. 34 And pine boards in both the doors; the one door two leaves and their hinges and the second door two leaves, hinged; 35 carved cherubim and palm trees and open flowers-leaves and overlaid with gold brought down upon the relief work. 36 And he built the inner court, three courses of unhewn stones and a course of prepared cedar round about. And he built the veil of the court of the ailama of the house, which is before the shrine.

7 (13) And King Salomon sent and received Chiram from Tyre, 2(14) son of a widow, and he was from the tribe of Nephthali, and his father was a Tyrian man, an artisan in bronze and accomplished in skill and understanding and knowledge to perform every work in bronze, and he was brought in to King Salomon, and he made all the works.

3(15) And he cast the two pillars for the ailama of the house; eighteen cubits was the height of a pillar, and a circumference of fourteen cubits encompassed it, and the thickness of the pillar was the hollow of four fingers, and so the second pillar.

4(16) And he made two covers of molten bronze to set on the tops of the pillars, five cubits the height of the one cover and five cubits the height of the second cover.

5(17) And he made two lattice works to wrap around the cover of the pillars, and a lattice-work for the one cover and a lattice work for the second cover.

6(18) And he made two lattice works to cover the one cover and five cubits the height of the second cover.

7(21) And he set up the pillars of the ailama of the shrine, and he set up the one pillar and called its name Lachoum, and he set up the second pillar and called its name Baaz. 8(19) And on the tops of the pillars was lily-work of four cubits, against the ailama of the shrine, and a beam on both the pillars, and on top of the sides the beam was as a cover in thickness.

10(23) And he made the sea, ten cubits in its rim to its rim; the same was round in a circle; its height was five in cubits, and drawn together, thirty-three in cubits encompassed it.

11(24) And supports under its rim all round were encircling it, ten in cubits all round, to raise up the sea.

12(26) And its rim was like the work of the rim of a cup, like a bud of a lily, and the thickness of it a handbreadth.

13(25) And twelve oxen were under the sea, the three facing north and the three facing south and the three facing east, and all the hindquarters were toward the house, and the sea was upon them from above.

14(27) And he made ten bronze mechnoth, five cubits the length of the one mechnoth and four cubits its width and six in cubits its height.

15(28) And this was the work of the mechnoth; they had a stopper, and a stopper between the projections, 16(29) And on their stoppers between the projections were lions and oxen and cherubim, and on the projections thus: enclosed spaces both above and below the lions and the oxen, a work of descent. 17(30) And the one mechnoth had four bronze wheels and the bronze attachments and their four sides, shoulder pieces under the washbasins.

18(32) And there were hands in the wheels in the mechnoth and the height of the one wheel was a cubit and a half.

19(33) The work of the wheels was the work of chariot wheels; their hands and their backs and their works, the whole castings.

20(34) The four shoulder pieces were at the four corners of the one mechnoth; its shoulders were from the mechnoth.

21(35) And on the top of the mechnoth, half a cubit its size, a circle around on the top of the mechnoth and a beginning of its hands and its borders, and it was open at the beginning of its hands. 22(36) And its borders were cherubim and lions and palm trees, standing, each connected on its front, inside and round about.

23(37) Like it, he made all the ten mechnoth, one order and measure for all.

24(38) And he made ten bronze buckets, the one bucket holding forty chous by measurement; the one bucket on the one mechnoth, for the ten mechnoth.

25(39) And he placed the ten mechnoth, five on the shoulder of the house on the right and five on the shoulder of the house on the left and the sea on the shoulder of the house on the right, eastward, on the side of the south.

26(40) And Chiram made the cauldrons and the tongs and the saucers, and Chiram finished making all the works that he made for King Salomon in the house of the Lord: 27(41) two pillars and the wreathe works of the pillars on the tops of the two pillars and the two lattice works to cover both the wreathe works of the carvings that were on the pillars, 28(42) the four hundred pomegranates for both the lattice works, two rows of pomegranates for the one lattice work, to wrap around both the wreathe works on both the pillars, 29(43) and the ten mechnoth, the ten buckets on the mechnoth and the one sea and the twelve oxen underneath the sea and the cauldrons and the tongs and the saucers, all the implements that Chiram made for King Salomon for the house of the Lord, and the forty-eight pillars of the house of the king and the house of the Lord.

All the works of the king that Chiram made, entirely of bronze; 32(47) the weight of the bronze of which he made all these works, very much in abundance. 33(46) In the region of the Jordan the king cast them, in the thickness of the ground between Sokchoth and between Sira.

34(48) And King Salomon gave the implements that he made in the house of the Lord: the golden altar, and the table upon which were the loaves of the offering—golden, 35(49) and the lampstands, five on the right and five on the left, in front of the dabiir—overlaid gold, and the torches and the lamps and the golden pouring vessels and the porticoes and the nails and the saucers and the bowls and the golden censors, overlaid, and the doorways of the innermost part of the house, the holy of the holies and the golden doors of the shrine. 37[^1] And all the work that King Salomon did on the house of the Lord was fulfilled, and Salomon brought in the holy things of his father David and all the holy things of Salomon, the silver and the gold and the implements, and gave them into the treasuries of the house of the Lord.

38(7.1a) And Salomon built his house in thirteen years.

39(7.2) And he built the House to the Forest of the Lebanon, one hundred cubits its length and fifty cubits its width and thirty cubits its height, and three courses of cedar logs, and cedar shoulders for the logs. 40[^2] And he paneled the house, from above, on the sides of the logs, and the number of logs was forty-five; the course was fifteen, 41(7.4) and there were three beams and space on space, three times, 42(7.5) and all the doorways and the spaces linked by beams were square and from the doorway on the door three times.

43(7.6) And the Ailam[^3] of the Pillars was fifty cubits long and thirty in cubits in width, and a house for Pharaoh’s daughter whom Solomon related to the king and all Israel were assembled in the feast of the month Athanim. 44(7.7) And the Ailam of the Thrones, there where he pronounced judgment, Ailam[^4] of the Court.

45(7.8) And he had a house, there where he sat, one court evolved for those according to this work, and a house for Pharaoh’s daughter whom Solomon took, corresponding to this ailm[^5].

46(7.9) All these were of costly stones, sculptured at intervals on the inside, even from the foundation to the coping, and on the outside into the great court 47(7.10) founded with large, costly stones, stones of ten cubits and eight cubits. 48(7.11) And above with costly stones, according to the measure of unhewn[^6], and with cedars. 49(7.12) For the great court three courses of unhewn[^7] and a course of sculptured cedar. 50(7.1b) And Salomon finished his whole house.

8 And it happened, when Salomon finished building the house of the Lord and his own house after twenty years, then King Salomon assembled all the elders of Israel in Sion to bring up the ark of the covenant of the Lord out of the city of David (this is Sion) 2 in the month Athanim. 3 And the priests carried the ark 4 and the covert of witness and all the holy vessels that were in the tent of witness, 5 and the king and all Israel were before the ark sacrificing countless sheep and oxen. 6 And the priests brought the ark into its place in the dabir[^8] of the house, into the holy of holies, underneath the wings of the cheroubin, 7 for the cheroubin were spread out by their wings over the place of the ark, and the cheroubin would cover above the ark and above its holy things from above, 8 and the sacred things projected, and the heads of the sacred things were seen from the holy place in front of the dabir[^8], but they could not be seen from outside. 9 There was nothing in the ark except the two stone tablets, tablets of the covenant, that Moyses had placed there at Choreb—which things the Lord arranged with the sons of Israel, when they came out of the land of Egypt. 10 And it happened, when the priests came out of the holy place, that a cloud filled the house, 11 and the priests could not stand to minister from before the cloud, for the glory of the Lord filled the house.

14 And the king turned his face away, and the king blessed all Israel, and all the assembly of Israel had stood. 15 And he said, “Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel today, who spoke with his mouth concerning my father David and fulfilled with his hands, saying, 16 Since the day that I brought my people Israel out of Egypt, I have not chosen in a city, in one sceptor of Israel, to build a house for my name to be there, but I chose in Jerusalem for my name to be there, and I chose David to be over my people Israel.” 17 And it was in the heart of my father David to build a house for the name of the Lord, God of Israel. 18 And the Lord said to my father David, “Because it came into your heart to build a house for my name, you did well that it came into your heart; 19 nevertheless, you shall not build the house, but your son who will come forth out of your sides, he shall build the house for my name. 20 And the Lord raised up his word that he spoke, and I arose in the place of my father David, and I sat on the throne of Israel, as the Lord had spoken, and I built the house for the name of the Lord, God of Israel. 21 And I set there a place for the ark, there wherein is the covenant of the Lord, which the Lord made with our fathers, when he brought them out of the land of Egypt.”

22 And Salomon stood before the altar of the Lord before all the assembly of Israel and spread out his hands to heaven 23 and said, “O Lord God of Israel, there is no God like you in heaven above and on the earth beneath, keeping covenant and mercy for your slave who goes before you with his whole heart, 24 which things you kept for your slave my father David and spoke with your mouth and have, as this day, fulfilled with your hands. 25 And now, O Lord God of Israel, keep for your slave, my father David, what you spoke to him, saying, ‘There shall not be taken from you a man from before me to sit on the throne of Israel, if only your children keep their ways to go before me, as you went before me.’ 26 And now, O Lord God of Israel, do let your word to my father David be confirmed.

27 “For will God indeed dwell with people on the earth? If heaven and the heaven of the heaven will not suffice for you, how much less even this house that I built for your name? 28 And you shall look upon my petition, O Lord God of Israel, to hear the delight with which your slave prays before you to you today, 29 that your eyes may be open day for your servant’s prayer.”
and night toward this house, toward the place of which you said, 'My name shall be there,' that you may heed the prayer that your slave prays toward this place day and night. 30And you shall hearken to the petition of your slave and of your people Israel, which things they pray toward this place, and you shall listen in heaven, in the place of your habitation, and you shall do and be merciful.

31 "What each sins against his neighbor, and if he takes a curse upon him that he be cursed and comes and confesses before your altar in this house, 32then you shall listen from heaven and act and shall judge your people Israel, that a lawless person has acted lawlessly—to give his way to his head—and to declare righteous a righteous person—to give him according to his righteousness.

33 "When your people Israel fall before enemies, because they will sin against you, and they shall return and acknowledge your name and pray toward this house, 34then you shall listen from heaven and be merciful to the sins of your people Israel and bring them again to the land that you gave to their fathers.

35 "When the sky is shut up and there is no rain, because they will sin against you, and they pray toward this place and acknowledge your name and turn from their sins, when you humble them, 36then you shall listen from heaven and be merciful to the sins of your slave and your people Israel, because you will make clear to them the good way to go in it, and you will grant rain on the land that you gave to your people in inheritance.

37 "If there is famine, if there is death—for there will be burning, locust larva—if there is mildew and if their enemy afflicts them in one of their cities, any plague, any pain, 38any prayer, any petition, if it be to any person, when each knows the grip of his own heart and spreads out his hands toward this house, 39then you shall listen from heaven, from your established dwelling place, and will be merciful and act and give to a man according to his ways, just as you know his heart, for you alone know the heart of all the sons of people, 40that they may fear you all the days that they live in the land that you gave to our fathers.

41 "And for the stranger, he who is not of your people, 42when they shall come and pray toward this place, 43then you shall listen from heaven, from your established dwelling place, and do according to all that the stranger calls to you for, that all the peoples may know your name and fear you like your people Israel and know that your name has been invoked on this house that I have built.

44 "For your people will go out to battle against their enemies, by a way that you shall turn them, and they will pray in the name of the Lord by way of the city, which you have chosen to be in it, and the house that I have built for your name, 45then you, from heaven, shall listen to their petition and their prayer and maintain their cause.

46 "Because they will sin against you—for there is not a person who will not sin—and you will bring against them and hand them over before enemies, and those who take captive shall take them captive to a land far off and near, 47and they will turn their hearts in the land, there where they were transferred. And should they turn and plead with you in the land of their deportation, saying, 'We have sinned; we have acted lawlessly; we have acted unjustly,' 48and they turn to you with their whole heart and with their whole soul in the land of their enemies where you transferred them, and they shall pray to you by way of their land, which you gave to their fathers, the city that you have chosen, and the house that I have built for your name, 49then you shall listen from heaven, from your established dwelling place, and you will be merciful to their injustices with which they sinned against you and according to all their transgressions that they have transgressed against you, and you will give them over to compassion before their captors, and they will have compassion on them, 50for they are your people and your heritage, which you brought out of the land of Egypt, from the midst of a smelter of iron. 52And let your eyes and your ears be open to the petition of your slave and to the petition of your people Israel, to listen to them whenever they call to you. 53for you have separated them for yourself from among all the peoples of the earth to be your heritage, just as you said by the hand of your slave Moyses, when you brought our fathers out of the land of Egypt, O Lord, O Lord."

53a(8.12) Then Salomon spoke concerning the house, when he had finished building it, 54 "A sun the Lord made manifest in the sky; he said that he should dwell in deep darkness: 55 'Build my house, a remarkable house for yourself, to dwell in anew.'"

And behold, is this one not written in a book of the song?

54 And it happened, when Salomon finished praying the whole prayer and this petition to the Lord, that he arose from before the altar of the Lord, crouched down on his knees and his hands spread out toward heaven, 55and he stood and blessed all the assembly of Israel with a loud voice, saying:

56 "Blessed be the Lord today, who has given rest to his people Israel according to all that he spoke; not one word failed in all his good words which he spoke by the hand of his slave Moyses. 57May the Lord our God be with us, as he was with our fathers; may he not abandon us or turn us away, 58to incline our hearts to him, to go in all his ways and to keep all his commandments and his ordinances which he commanded our fathers. 59And let these words which I have pleaded before the Lord, our God, be near to the Lord, our God, day and night, that he may maintain the cause of your slave and the cause of your people Israel, as a word of a day in its day 60so that all the peoples of the earth may know that the Lord God, he is God and there is no other. 61And let our hearts be perfect to the Lord, our God, to go devoutly in his ordinances and to keep his commandments, as this day."
62 And the king and all the sons of Israel offered a sacrifice before the Lord. 63 And King Solomon offered the sacrifices of peace that he sacrificed to the Lord, twenty-two thousand oxen and one hundred twenty thousand sheep, and the king and all the sons of Israel dedicated the house of the Lord. 64 On that day the king consecrated the middle of the court that was in front of the house of the Lord, for there he made the whole burnt offering and the sacrifices and the fat pieces of the peace offerings, because the bronze altar that was before the Lord was small so as not to be able to bear the whole burnt offering and the sacrifices of peace.

65 And Solomon held the feast in that day, and all Israel with him, a great assembly, from the entering in of Hemath to the river of Egypt, before the Lord, our God, in the house that he built, eating and drinking and rejoicing before the Lord, our God, seven days. 66 And in the eighth day he sent the people away, and he blessed them, and they went each to his tents joyful and in good heart because of the good things that the Lord did to his slave David and to his people Israel.

9 And it happened, when Salomon had finished building the house of the Lord and the house of the king and all the business of Solomon that he desired to do, 2 that the Lord appeared to Salomon a second time, as he appeared at Gabaon, 3 and the Lord said to him, “I heard the sound of your prayer and your petition which you petitioned before me; I have done for you according to all your prayer; I have consecrated this house that you built to put my name there forever, and my eyes and my heart will be there all the days. 4 And if you go before me, as David your father went, with piety of heart and with upright doing and doing according to all that I commanded him and will keep my ordinances and my commandments, 5 then I will establish the throne of your kingship over Israel forever, as I spoke to your father David, saying, ‘There shall not be taken from you a man who rules in Israel.’

6 ‘But if turning aside you turn aside from me, you and your children, and do not keep my commandments and my ordinances that Moyses set before you, and go, and be subject to other gods, and do obeisance to them, 7 then I will remove Israel off from the land that I have given them, and this house that I consecrated for my name I will cast out from before me, and Israel will become a desolation and prattle among all the peoples. 8 And as for this exalted house—everyone who passes by it will be astonished and will hiss, and they will say, ‘Why did the Lord do thus to this land and to this house?’ 9 And they will say, ‘Because they forsook the Lord, their God, who brought their fathers out of Egypt out of a house of slavery and embraced foreign gods and did obeisance to them and were subject to them, therefore the Lord has brought this evil upon them.’” 10 For twenty years, in which Salomon built the two houses, the house of the Lord and the king’s house, 11 King Chiram of Tyre supplied Salomon with cedar timber and with pine timber and with gold and with every wish of his. Then the King gave Chiram twenty cities in the land of Galilee. 12 And Chiram departed from Tyre and went to Galilee, to see the cities that Salomon gave him, and they did not please him, 13 and he said, “What kind of cities are these that you gave me, brother?” And he called them Boundary to this day. 14 And Chiram brought Salomon one hundred twenty talents of gold, 26 and with that King Salomon made a ship at Galsongaber, which is near Ailath on the shore of the last sea in the land of Edom. 27 And Chiram sent off in the ship some of his servants, seafaring men who knew how to row the sea, together with the servants of Salomon. 28 And they went to Sophera and took from there one hundred twenty talents of gold and brought them to King Salomon.

10 And the queen of Saba heard the name of Salomon and the name of the Lord and came to test him with riddles, 2 and she came to Jerusalem with a very weighty force, and there were camels bearing spices and very much gold and precious stone, and she came in to Salomon and spoke to him all that was on her heart. 3 And Salomon reported to her all her words; there was not a word overlooked by the king that he did not report to her. 4 And the queen of Saba observed all the discernment of Salomon and the house that he built 5 and the food of Salomon and the sitting of his servants and the standing of his public servants and his clothing and his cupbearers and his whole burnt offering that he offered in the house of the Lord, and she was beside herself.

6 And she said to King Salomon, “The word is true that I heard in my land concerning your word and concerning your discernment, 7 and I did not believe those who spoke to me until I came and my own eyes had seen it, and behold, as they reported to me, it is not the half. You have added good things to them in every report that I heard in my land. 8 Happy are your wives! Happy are these your servants who continually stand before you, who hear all your discernment! 9 May the Lord your God be blessed who wanted you, to give you on the throne of Israel. Because the Lord loves Israel to establish it forever, he also made you king over them to do judgment in righteousness, even in their lawsuits.” 10 And she gave Salomon one hundred twenty talents of gold and very much spices and precious stone. Like those spices, which the queen of Saba gave to King Salomon, there have not come again in quantity.

11 (And the ship of Chiram which carried the gold from Sophira brought very much unhewn wood and precious stone. 12 And the king made the unhewn wood supports of the house of the Lord and of the house of the king and nablases and ciniras for the singers. Such unhewn wood had not come into the land or been seen anywhere to this day.)

13 And King Salomon gave the queen of Saba everything, as much as she desired, as much as she requested, beyond all that Salomon had given her through the hand of the king, and she returned and went to her own land, she and all her servants.

14 And the weight of gold that had come to Salomon in one year was six hundred sixty-six talents of gold, 15 besides the tributes from those subject and from the merchants and from all the kings who are from beyond and the satraps of the land.

16 And Salomon made three hundred beaten gold spears; three hundred gold pieces went into the one spear. 17 And he made three hundred beaten gold weapons; three minas of gold went into the one weapon, and he put them in the House of the Forest of Lebanon. 18 And the king made a great ivory throne and gilded it with pure gold; 19 the throne had six steps, and the throne had heads of calves in relief behind it and on this side and on that, on the place of the seat, were arms and two lions standing beside the arms 20 and twelve lions standing on this side and on that, on the six steps; it was not done so in any kingdom. 21 And all Salomon’s drinking vessels were of gold, and gold washbasins, all the vessels of the House of the Forest of Lebanon, were of overlaid with gold; there was no silver, for it was not reckoned in the days of Salomon. 22 For the king had a ship of Tharsis at sea with the ships of Chiram, one ship used to come to the king from Tharsis every three years with gold and silver and carved and hewn stones.

22a (9.15) This was the business of the foraging that King Salomon brought to build the house of the Lord and the house of the king and the wall of Jerusalem and the citadel, to fortify all round the fence of the city of David and Assour and Magdan and Gazer (9.17) and Upper Baithoron (9.18) and Iethermath (9.19) and all the cities for the chariots and all the cities for the horsemen and the business of Salomon which he was engaged in, to build in Jerusalem and in all the land, 22b (9.20) so that all the people who remained of the Chettite and of the Amorrite and of the Pherezite and of the Chananeite and of the Heuite and of the Ibousite and of the Gergesite, those who were not of the sons of Israel—those children who remained after them in the land, whom the sons of Israel were not able to destroy—would not rule over him. And Salomon brought them under tribute until this day. 22c (9.22) And from the sons of Israel Salomon exacted nothing, for they were men who fought, and his servants and captains of his chariots and his horsemen.

23 And Salomon was greater than all the kings of the earth in riches and in discernment. 24 And all the kings of the earth were seeking the face of Salomon to hear his discernment, which the Lord gave into his heart. 25 And they each would bring their gifts, gold utensils and raiment, oil of myrrh and spices and horses and mules, this every year by year.

26 And Salomon had four thousand mares for chariots and twelve thousand horsemen, and he put them in the cities for the chariots and with the king in Jerusalem. 26a (4.21) And he was ruling all the kings from the river and as far as the land of Alalpheges and to the borders of Egypt. 27 And the king gave gold and silver in Jerusalem like stones, and he gave the cedars like cypresses that are in abundance. 28 And Salomon’s import of horses was from Egypt and the kings’ traders would receive them from Thékoue by barter, 29 and the import from Egypt rose, a chariot for a hundred pieces of silver and a horse for fifty pieces of silver, and thus to all the kings of Chettia and the kings of Syria they used to go out by sea.

11 And King Salomon was a philogynist. And he had seven hundred ruling women and three hundred concubines. And he took foreign women, both the daughter of Pharaon, Moabites, Ammonites, Syrians and Edumeans, Chettites and Amorrites, 2 from the nations that the Lord forbade to the sons of Israel: “You shall not go in to them, and they shall not go in to you, lest they turn away your hearts after their idols”; Salomon clung to them for love. 4 And it happened at the time of Salomon’s old age that his heart was not perfect with the Lord, his God, as was the heart of his father David, and his foreign wives turned away his heart after their gods. 5 Then Salomon built a high place to Chamos, idol of Moab, and to their king, idol of the sons of Ammon, 6 and to Astarte, abomination of the Sidonian. 7 And thus he did for all his foreign wives; they were offering incense and sacrificing to their idols, 8 and Salomon did evil before the Lord; he did not go after the Lord as David his father.

9 And the Lord was angry with Salomon, because his heart had turned away from the Lord God of Israel, who appeared to him twice, 10 and commanded him concerning this matter that he should definitely not go after other gods and should keep to do what the Lord God commanded him. 11 And the Lord said to Salomon, “Since these things were with you and you did not keep my commandments and my ordinances that I commanded you, tearing I will tear your kingdom from your hand and give it to your slave. 12 Yet, for the sake of your father David I will not do them in your days; I will take it out of the hand of your son. 13 Yet, I will not take the entire kingdom; I will give one sceptor to your son for the sake of my slave David and for the sake of Jerusalem, the city which I chose.”

14 And the Lord raised up a satan against Salomon, Hader the Edumean (11.23) and Hesrom son of Eliadae who was in Rammath, Hadrazar, king of Oubia, his master, (11.24) and men were gathered around him, and he was leader of a band, and he... first captured Damasek, and they were a satan to Israel all the days of Salomon. And Hader the Idumean was of the seed of the kingdom in Idumea. And it happened, when Dauid utterly destroyed Edom while Ioab, commander of the army, went to bury the casualties, that they cut off every male in Idumea (for Ioab and all Israel encamped there in Idumea six months until he had eliminated every male from Idumea), and Hader fled, he and all the Idumean men of the servants of his father with him, and they went into Egypt, and Hader was a young lad. And men from the city of Madiam rose up and came into Pharan, and they took men with them and came to Pharao, king of Egypt, and Hader entered in before Pharao, and he gave him a house and arranged food for him. And Hader found great favor in the sight of Pharao, and he gave him for a wife a sister of his new garment that was upon him and tore it into twelve pieces. And he said to Ieroboam: Send me off. And Hader returned to his land. This was the evil which Hader did, and he was indignant with Israel, and he reigned in the land of Edom.

26 And Ieroboam son of Nabat the Ephrathi from Sarira, son of a widow woman, was a slave of Salomon. And this was the matter when he lifted up hands against King Salomon. He built the citadel, closed up the fence of the city of David his father, and the person Ieroboam was mighty in power, and Salomon saw the lad, that he was a man of action, and he gave him charge over the man of action, and he gave him charge over the province of the house of Joseph. And it happened at that time that Ieroboam went out of Jerousalem, and the prophet Achias the Selonite found him on the way and took him aside out of the way, and Achias had clothed himself with a new garment, and both were in the plain. And Achias laid hold of his new garment that was upon him and tore it into twelve pieces. And he said to Ieroboam: Take for yourself ten pieces, for this is what the Lord, God of Israel, says, Behold, I am about to tear the kingdom from the hand of Salomon, and I will give you ten scepters, and two scepters will remain his for the sake of my slave Dauid and for the sake of Jerousalem, the city that I chose in it, out of all the tribes of Israel, because he forsook me and acted for Astarte, abomination of the Sidonians, and for Chamos and for the idols of Moab and for their king, offense of the sons of Ammon, and he did not go in my ways, to do what is right before me, like his father Dauid. And I will certainly not take the whole kingdom out of his hand because, resisting I will resist him all the days of his life, for the sake of my slave Dauid, him whom I chose. And I will take the kingdom out of the hand of his son and give you the ten scepters, but to his son I will give the two scepters in order that there be an institution for my slave Dauid all the days before me in Jerousalem, the city which I chose for myself to put my name there. And I will take you, and you shall reign in what your soul desires, and you shall be king over Israel. And it will be, if you keep all that I command you and go in my ways and do what is right before me, to keep my commandments and my ordinances, as Dauid, my slave, did, then I will be with you and will build you a sure house, as I built for Dauid. And Salomon sought to put Ieroboam to death, and he arose and fled to Egypt to King Sousakim of Egypt, and he was in Egypt until Salomon died.

41 And the rest of the words of Salomon and all that he did and all his discernment, behold, have these not been written in a book of the words of Salomon? And the days that Salomon reigned in Jerousalem were forty years. And Salomon slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of his father Dauid. And it happened, when Ieroboam son of Nabat heard (and he was still in Egypt, since he fled from before Salomon and settled in Egypt), he went straight and came to his city in the land of Sarira which is in the hill country of Ephraim. And King Salomon slept with his fathers, and his son Roboam ruled in his stead.

12 And King Roboam went to Sikima, for all Israel was coming to Sikima to make him king. And the people spoke to Roboam the king, saying, Your father made our collar heavy, and now you, lighten some of the hard service of your father and of his heavy collar that he placed on us, and we will be subject to you. And he said to them, Go away for as long as three days, and come again to me, and they went away.

6 And the king summoned the elders who had attended before his father Salomon while he was still living, saying, How do you advise and I answer this people a word? And they spoke to him, saying, If you will be a slave to this people in this day and be subject to them and speak good words to them, they will also be your slaves all the days. And he disregarded the advice of the elders that they counseled him and took counsel with the young men who had grown up with him who attended before him and said to them, What do you advise, and what should I answer this people who spoke to me, saying, Lighten some of the collar that your father put on us? And the young men who had grown up with him who attended before him spoke to him, saying, This is what you shall speak to this people who spoke to you, saying, Your father made our collar heavy, and now you, lighten it from off us, this is what you shall speak to them, My smallness is thicker than my fa-
And now, my father used to lay on you a heavy collar, and I will add to your collar; my father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with scorpions.”

And the king answered the people harshly, and Roboam disregarded the advice of the elders that they counseled him.

14 And spoke to them according to the advice of the young men, saying, “My father made your collar heavy, and I will add to your collar; my father disciplined you with whips, and I will discipline you with scorpions.”

And the king did not listen to the people, because the change was from the Lord that his word which he spoke by the hand of Achia the Selonite concerning Ieroboam son of Nabat might stand.

16 And all Israel saw that the king did not listen to them, and the people answered the king, saying,”What share do we have in Dauid? And we have no inheritance in the son of Iessai; depart to your coverts, O Israel! Now feed your own house, O Dauid.”

And Israel went away to its coverts. And the king sent Adoniram who was over the levy, and all Israel stoned him with stones, and he died, and King Roboam was the first to mount to flee to Jerusalem.

And Israel rebelled against the house of Dauid to this day.

20 And it happened, when all Israel heard that Ieroboam had returned from Egypt, that they sent and called him to the gathering and made him king over Israel, and there was no one behind the house of Dauid except the scepter of Ioudas and Beniamin alone.

And Roboam entered into Jerusalem and convened the gathering of Ioudas and scepter of Beniamin, one hundred twenty thousand young men, practicing war, to fight against the house of Israel to restore the kingdom to Roboam son of Saulom. And a word of the Lord came to Samaias, a man of God, saying: 23Say to Roboam king of Ioudas, son of Salomon and to all the house of Ioudas and Beniamin and to the rest of the people, saying, “This is what the Lord says, ‘You shall not go up or fight with your brothers, the sons of Israel; let each return to his own house, for this thing has come from me.’ ” And they heeded the word of the Lord and forbore to go, according to the word of the Lord.

24a(11.43) And King Salomon slept with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of Dauid. And his son Roboam ruled in his stead in Jerusalem being a son of sixteen years when he began to reign, and he reigned twelve years in Jerusalem, and his mother’s name was Naanan daughter of Anan son of Naas, king of the sons of Ammon, 24b(11.26-28) And there was a person of Mount Ephraim, a slave of Salomon, and his name was Ieroaboam, and his mother’s name was Sarira, a prostitute, and Salomon made him ruler of the cudgev over the burdens of the house of Joseph, and he built for Salomon Sarira, which was in Mount Ephraim, and he had three hundred chariots of horses; he built the citadel with the burdens of the house of Ephraim; he enclosed the city of Dauid, and he was aspiring to the kingdom. 24c(11.40) And Salomon was seeking to put him to death, and he was afraid and ran away to King Sousakim of Egypt, and he was with him until Salomon died. 24d(11.21,22) And Ieroaboam heard in Egypt that Salomon had died, and he spoke in the ears of Sousakim, king of Egypt, saying, “Send me off, and I will depart into my land,” and Sousakim said to him, “Request any request, and I will give it to you.”

And Ieroaboam began to reign in Egypt that Salomon had died, and he spoke in the ears of Sousakim, king of Egypt, saying, “Send me off, and I will depart.” And Ieroaboam departed from Egypt and came into the land of Sarira, which is in Mount Ephraim, and there all the scepter of Ephraim gathered, and Ieroaboam built a palisaded camp there.

24g(14.1) And his lad was sick with a very severe sickness, and Ieroaboam went to inquire about the lad, 24h and he said to Ano his wife, “Arise, and go; ask God about the lad, whether he will recover from his sickness.” And there was a person in Selo, and his name was Achia, and he was a son of sixty years, and the word of the Lord was with him. And Ieroaboam said to his wife, “Arise, and take in your hand for the man of God loaves and cakes for his children and grapes and a jar of honey.”

And the woman arose and took in her hand loaves and two cakes and grapes and a jar of honey for Achia, and the person was rather old, and his eyes were dim-sighted to see.

And she arose from Sarira and came, and it happened, after she entered into the city to Achia the Selonite, that Achia said to his lad: Indeed, go out to meet Ano the wife of Ieroaboam and you will say to her, 24k And Ana entered in before the man of God, and Achia said to her, “Why have you brought me loaves and grapes and cakes and a jar of honey? This is what the Lord says, ‘Behold, you will depart from me, and it will be when you enter the gate to Sarira that your girls will come out to meet you and will say to you, ‘The lad has died.’ ”

24m(14.11) For this is what the Lord says, ‘Behold, I will utterly destroy of Ieroboam one that urinates against a wall, and the dead of Ieroboam will be in the city; the dogs will devour them*, and the birds of the air will devour the one who has died in the field. And they shall lament for the child, “Woe, O Lord,” for there was found in him a good thing concerning the Lord.' " 24n(14.17) And the woman departed when she heard, and it happened, as she entered into Sarira, that the lad died, (14.18) and the wailing came out to meet her.

24o And Ieroboam went to Sikima which is in Mount Ephraim and gathered there the tribes of Israel, and Roboam son of Salomon came up there, and a word of the Lord came to Samaias the Elami, saying: "Take for yourself a new garment which has not been immersed in water and tear it into twelve pieces, and you shall give to Ieroboam and say to him, This is what the Lord says, Take for yourself ten pieces to cover yourself." And Ieroboam took them, and Samaias said, "This is what the Lord says concerning the ten tribes of Israel."

24p(12.3) And the people said to Roboam son of Salomon, (12.4) "Your father made his collar heavy upon us and the food of his table heavy. And now if you will ease up on us, then we will be subject to you," and Roboam said to the people, (12.5) "Yet three days, and I will answer you a word."

24q(12.6) And Roboam said, "Bring in the elders to me and I will take counsel with them what word I should answer the people in the third day." And Roboam spoke in their ears as the people sent to him, and the elders of the people said, "Thus the people spoke to you." 24r(12.8) And Roboam rejected their advice, and it was not pleasing before him, and he sent and gathered those who had been brought up with him (12.9) and spoke to them the issues, "And the people sent to me, saying these things."

(12.10) And those who had been brought up with him said: "Thus you shall speak to the people, saying, 'My smallness is thicker than my father's loins; (12.11) my father chastised you with whips, but I will rule you with scorpions.' " 24s And the word was pleasing before Roboam, (12.14) and he answered the people according as the lads who grew up with him advised him. 24t(12.16) And all the people as one man advised him, each to his neighbor, and all cried out, saying,

"There is no part for us in Dauid, neither inheritance in the son of Jessai; to your coverts, O Israel, for this person is not for a ruler or for a leader."

24u And all the people were dispersed from Sikima, and each departed to his coverts. (12.21) And Roboam retained control and departed and mounted on his chariot and entered into Jerusalem, and all the scepter of Ioudas and all the scepter of Beniamin went after him.

25 And Ieroboam built Sikima, which is in Mount Ephraim and settled in it, and he went out from there and built Phanouel. 26 And Ieroboam said in his heart, "Behold, now the kingdom will revert to the house of Dauid. 27 If these people go up to offer sacrifices in the house of the Lord in Jerusalem, the heart of the people will also turn again to the Lord and their lord, to King Roboam of Ioudas, and they will kill me." 28 And the king took counsel and went and made two golden calves and said to the people, "Let it suffice for you to go up to Jerusalem; behold, your gods, O Israel, who brought you up out of the land of Egypt."

29 And he set the one in Baithel, and the one he gave in Dan. 30 And this thing became a sin, and the people would go before the one as far as Dan.

31 And he made houses on high places and made some part of the people priests who were not of the sons of Levi. 32 And Ieroboam made a feast in the eighth month in the fifteenth day of the month like the festival that was in the land of Ioudas, and he went up onto the altar that he made in Baithel to sacrifice to the calves that he had made, and he placed in Bethel the priests of the high places that he made. 33 And he went up onto the altar that he made on the fifteenth day in the eighth month on the feast that he fashioned from his heart, and he made a festival for the sons of Israel and went up onto the altar to sacrifice.

13 And behold, a man of God came out of Ioudas to Baithel by word of the Lord, and Ieroboam was standing by the altar to sacrifice, and he proclaimed against the altar by a word of the Lord and said, "O altar, altar, this is what the Lord says, 'Behold, a son shall be born to the house of Dauid, Josias by name, and he shall sacrifice on you the priests of the high places who sacrifice on you and shall burn human bones on you.' " 3 And he gave a sign in that day, saying, "This is the word that the Lord spoke, saying, 'Behold, the altar shall be torn down, and the fatness that is on it shall be poured out.' " And it happened, when King Ieroboam heard the words of the man of God who called out against the altar which was at Baithel, that the king stretched out his hand from the altar, saying, "Seize him!" And behold, his hand that he stretched out against him withered, and he could not return it to himself, 5 and the altar also was torn down, and the fatness poured out from the altar according to the sign that the man of God gave by a word of the Lord. 6 And King Ieroboam said to the man of God, "Entreat the face of the Lord your God, and let my hand return to me." And the man of God entreated the face of the Lord, and he returned the king's hand to him, and it became as it was before. 7 And the king spoke to the man of God, "Come home with me, and dine, and I will give you a gift." 8 And the man of God said to the king, "If you give me half your house, I will not go in with you, nor will I eat food or drink water in this place. 9 For thus the Lord commanded by a word, saying: Do not eat food, and do not drink water, and do not return by the way that you came on it.” 10And he went another way and did not return by the way that he had come on it to Baithel.

11 And one old prophet lived in Baithel and his sons came and told him all the deeds that the man of God did in that day in Baithel, and the words that he spoke to the king, and they turned the face of their father. 12And their father spoke to them, saying, “Which way has he gone?” And his sons showed him the way on which the man of God who came from Loudas returned. 13And he said to his sons, “Saddle the donkey for me,” and they saddled the donkey for him, and he mounted it. 14And

he went after the man of God and found him sitting under an oak tree, and he said to him, “Are you the man of God who came from Loudas?” And he went after the man of God and did not crush the donkey. 29And the body, and the lion did not eat the body of the man he went and found his body thrown in the road, and the donkey and the lion stood beside the body was thrown in the road, and the donkey put him to death, and his his father. 12And their father spoke to them, saying, Bring him back to yourself into your house, and let him eat food and drink water,” and he lied to him. 19And he brought him back, and he ate food and drank water in his house.

20 And it happened, as they were sitting at the table, that a word of the Lord came to the prophet who had brought him back, 21and he said to the man of God who came from Loudas, saying, “This is what the Lord says: Because you embittered the man of God who came from Loudas, saying, “This spears that Dauid took from the hand of the servants of Hadraazar, king of Souba, and brought them into

Ierousalem; he took all the golden shields. 27And

Dauid took from the hand of the servants of the treasures of the house of the Lord and the treasures of the king’s house and the golden spears that

Dauid took from the hand of the servants of Hadraazar, king of Souba, and brought them into

Ierousalem; he took all the golden shields. 27And

King Roboam made bronze shields instead of them.
And the officers of the runners\textsuperscript{a} who keep the gateway of the king’s house put them on him.

28And it happened, when the king would go into the house of the Lord, that the runners\textsuperscript{a} would remove and deposit them in the Thee\textsuperscript{b} of the runners\textsuperscript{a}.

29 And the rest of the histories of Roboam and all that he did, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days of the Kings of

Loudas? 30And there was war between Roboam and between Ieroboam all the days. 31And Roboam slept with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of Dauid, and his son Abiou reigned instead of him.

14 21And Roboam son of Salomon reigned over Loudas; Roboam was a son of forty and one years when he began to reign, and he reigned seventeen years in Ierousalem, the city that the Lord chose out of all the tribes of Israel to put his name there, and his mother’s name was Naama

the Ammanite. 22And Roboam did what was evil before the Lord and provoked him to jealousy with all that his fathers did and with their sins with which they sinned, 23and they built for themselves high places and poles and groves on every high hill and under every shady tree, 24and there was also a conspiracy in the land, and they did some of all the abominations of the nations that the Lord drove out from before the sons of Israel.

25 And it happened, in the fifth year when

Roboam was reigning, King Sousakim of Egypt came up against Ierousalem 26and took all the treasures of the house of the Lord and the treasures of the king’s house and the golden spears that

Dauid took from the hand of the servants of Hadraazar, king of Souba, and brought them into

Ierousalem; he took all the golden shields. 27And

King Roboam made bronze shields instead of them.
And the officers of the runners\textsuperscript{a} who keep

the gateway of the king’s house put them on him.
28And it happened, when the king would go into the house of the Lord, that the runners\textsuperscript{a} would remove and deposit them in the Thee\textsuperscript{b} of the

runners\textsuperscript{a}.

29 And the rest of the histories of Roboam and all that he did, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days of the Kings of

Loudas? 30And there was war between Roboam and between Ieroboam all the days. 31And Roboam slept with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of Dauid, and his son Abiou reigned instead of him.

15 And in the eleventh year of the reign of Ieroboam son of Nabat, Abiou son of Roboam began to reign over Loudas, 2and he reigned six years, and his mother’s name was Maacha daughter of Abessalom. 3And he went in the sins of his father that he did before him, and his heart was not perfect with the Lord, his God, like the heart of his father Dauid. 4For because of Dauid the Lord gave him a remnant, that he might \textsuperscript{a}I.e. guards \textsuperscript{b}Heb = chamber establish his children after him and establish Jerousalem; 5 as David did what was right before the Lord, he did not turn aside from anything that he commanded him all the days of his life. 7 And the rest of the histories of Abiou and all that he did, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Ioudas? And there was war between Abiou and between Iero-boam. 8 And Abiou slept with his fathers in the twenty-fourth year of Ieroboam, and he was buried with his fathers in the city of David, and his son

Asa reigned instead of him.

9 In the twenty-fourth year of King Ieroboam of Israel, Asa began to reign over Ioudas, 10 and he reigned forty-one years in Jerusalem, and his mother’s name was Ana daughter of Abessalom.
11 And Asa did what was right before the Lord like his father David. 12 And he took away the mystic rites out of the land and removed all the evil practices that his fathers did. 13 And he also removed his mother Ana from being a leader, because she conducted a meeting in her grove, and Asa cut down her hiding-places and burned them with fire at the Wadi Kedron. 14 But he did not take away the high places; yet, the heart of Asa was perfect with the Lord all his days. 15 And he brought in the columns of his father, and he brought in his columns into the house of the Lord—silver and gold and utensils.

16 And there was war between Asa and between King Baasa of Israel all the days. 17 And King Baasa of Israel went up against Ioudas and built Rama to prevent anyone from going out and coming in to King Asa of Ioudas. 18 And Asa took the silver and the gold that was found in the treasures of the house of the king and gave them into the hands of his servants, and King Asa sent them away to Hader’s son, son of Taberemman son of Hazin king of Syria who resided in Damascus, saying, 19 “Make a covenant between me and between you and between your father and your father; behold, I have sent you presents, silver and gold; go, break your covenant with King Baasa of Israel, and he will withdraw from me.” 20 And Hader’s son listened to King Asa and sent the commanders of his forces against the cities of Israel and smote Ain and Dan and Abelmaa and all Chezrath as far as all the land of Nephthali. 21 And it came to pass, when Baasa heard, that he stopped building Rama and returned to Thersa. 22 And King Asa made a proclamation to all Ioudas up to Ainakim, and they carried away the stones of Rama and its timber which Baasa built, and with them King Asa built all the hill of Beniamin and the watchtower. 23 And the rest of the histories of Asa and all his power that he exercised, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Ioudas? Yet, in the time of his old age he was diseased in his feet. 24 And Asa slept and was buried with his fathers in the city of David, and his son Losaphat reigned instead of him.

25 And Nadab son of Ieroboam began to reign over Israel in the second year of King Asa of Ioudas, and he reigned over Israel two years. 26 And he did what was evil before the Lord and went in the way of his father and in his sins with which he made Israel sin.

27 And Baasa son of Achia, over the house of Belaan, laid siege against him and struck him down at Gabathon, which belonged to the allophyles, and Nadab and all Israel were laying siege to Gabathon. 28 And Baasa put him to death in the third year of Asa son of King Abiou of Ioudas, and he reigned. 29 And it happened, when he reigned, that he smote the house of Ieroboam any breath until he destroyed it according to the word of the Lord that he spoke by the hand of his slave Achia the Selonite 30 concerning the sins of Ieroboam as he made Israel sin and by his provocation with which he provoked the Lord God of Israel.

31 And the rest of the histories of Nadab and all that he did, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Israel?

32 And in the third year of King Asa of Ioudas, Baasa son of Achia began to reign over Israel at Thersa for twenty-four years. 33 And he did what was evil before the Lord and went in the ways of Ierboam son of Nebat and in his sins as he made Israel sin.

16 And a word of the Lord came by the hand of lou son of Hanani against Baasa, 2 “Since I raised you from the ground and gave you as a leader over my people Israel and you went in the way of Ieroboam and made my people Israel sin, provoking me to anger with their vain things, 3 behold, I am rousing up after Baasa and after his house, and I will render your house like the house of Ieroboam son of Nabat; 4 the dead person of Baasa in the city, him the dogs shall devour, and his dead person on the plain, him the birds of the air shall devour.”

5 And the rest of the histories of Baasa and all that he did and his dominance, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days of the Kings of Israel? 6 And Baasa slept with his fathers and was buried at Thersa, and his son Ela reigned in his stead in the twentieth year of King Asa. 7 And by the hand of lou son of Hanani the Lord spoke against Baasa and against his house all the evil that he did before the Lord, to provoke him to anger with the works of his hands, in being like the house of Ieroboam, and because he smote it.

8 And Ela son of Baasa reigned over Israel two years in Thersa. 9 And Zambri, commander of half his cavalry, conspired against him, and he was at Thersa drinking himself drunk in the house of Osa the steward at Thersa, 10 and Zambri came in and struck him down and put him to death and reigned instead of him.

11 And it happened, when he began to reign, when he sat on his throne, that he smote the whole house of Baasa 12 according to the word which the Lord spoke against the house of Baasa to the prophet lou 13 concerning all the sins of Baasa and his son Ela as made Israel sin, provoking the Lord God of Israel to anger with their vain things. 14 And the rest of the histories of Ela and all that he did, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days of the Kings of Israel?

15 And Zambri reigned seven days in Thersa. And the camp of Israel was against Gabathon, which belonged to the allophyles. 16 And the people in the camp heard, saying, “Zambri conspired and struck the king.” And in Israel they made Ambri, the commander of the army, king over Israel on that day in the camp. 17 And Ambri went up from Gabathon, and all Israel with him, and they laid siege to Thersa. 18 And it happened, when Zambri saw that his city had been taken, that he went into the cave of the house of the king and burned down the house of the king over himself with fire, and he died 19 because of his sins that he did, to do what was evil before the Lord, to go in the way of Ieroboam son of Nabat and in his sins as he made Israel sin. 20 And the rest of the histories of Zambri and the collusions in which he colluded, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days of the Kings of Israel?

21 Then the people of Israel were divided; half of the people were behind Thamni son of Gonaith to make him king, and half of the people were behind Ambri. 22 The people who were behind Ambri overcame the people who were behind Thamni son of Gonaith, and Thamni died, and Ioram his brother, at that time, and Ambri became king after Thamni. 23 In the thirty-first year of King Asa, Ambri began to reign over Israel for twelve years. He reigned six years in Thersa.

24 And Ambri bought mount Semoneron from Semer, the owner of the mount, for two talents of silver, and he built the mount and called the name of the mount that he built Semoneron after the name of Semer, the owner of the mount.

25 Ambri did what was evil before the Lord and did more evil than all who were before him, and he went in every way of Ieroboam son of Nabat and in his sins with which he made Israel sin, provoking the Lord God of Israel, to anger with their vain things. 27 And the rest of the words of Ambri and all that he did and his dominance, behold, are these not written in a book of Histories of the Days of the Kings of Israel? 28 And Ambri slept with his fathers and was buried in Samaria, and his son Ioram reigned in his stead.

29 In the second year of Iosaphat, Achaab son of Ambri began to reign; he reigned over Israel in Samaria twenty-two years. 30 And Achaab did what was evil before the Lord, he was more wicked than all who were before him, and it was not enough for him to go in the sins of Ieroboam son of Nabat, and he took as his wife Iezebel daughter of King Segob of Sidonia and went and was subject to Baal and did obeisance to him. 32 And he set an altar for Baal in the house of his offences which he built in Samaria, and Achaab made a grove, and Achaab added to do provocations to provoke to anger so that his life might be destroyed; he did more evil than all the kings of Israel who were before him. 34 In his days Achiel the Bethelite built Iericho; he laid its foundation with Abiron his firstborn and set up its doors with his younger son Segob according to the word of the Lord, which he spoke by the hand of Iesous son of Naue.

17 And Eliou the prophet, the Thesbite from Thesbon of Galadai, said to Achaab, “The Lord lives, the God of hosts, the God of Israel before whom I stand, if there shall be dew and rain these years, except by the word of my mouth.” 2 And a word of the Lord came to Eliou, 3 “Go from here eastward, and hide yourself by the wadi Chorrath which is before the Jordan. 4 And it will be that you shall drink water from the wadi, and I will command the ravens to feed you there.” 5 And Eliou did according to the word of the Lord, and he settled by the wadi Chorrath before the Jordan. 6 And the ravens would bring him bread in the morning and meat in the evening, and he drank water from the wadi. 7 And it happened after days that the wadi dried up, because there was no rain in the land.

8 And a word of the Lord came to Eliou, 9 “Arise, and go to Sarepta of Sidonia; behold, I have commanded a widow there to feed you.” 10 And he arose and went to Sarepta, to the gateway of the town, and behold a widow was there gathering sticks, and Eliou shouted after her and said, “Bring me now a little water in a vessel, and I will drink.” 11 And she went to take it, and Eliou shouted after her and said to her, “Indeed take for me a morsel of bread in your hand.” 12 And the woman said, “The Lord your God lives, if I have a cake, but there is only a handful of meal in the jar and a little oil in the jug, and behold, I am now gathering two cake, and I shall go in and make it for myself and my children, and we shall eat and die.” 13 And Eliou said to her, “Be of good courage; go in, and do according to your word, but first make me a little cake of it, and you shall bring it to me, but afterwards you shall make something for yourself and your children. 14 For this is what the Lord says, ‘The jar of meal will not fail, and the jug of oil did not diminish until the day that the Lord gives rain on the earth.’” 15 And the woman went and did it, and she and he and her children ate. 16 And the jar of meal did not fail, and the jug of oil did not diminish according to the word of the Lord that he spoke by the hand of Eliou.

17 And it happened after these things that the son of the woman, the mistress of the house, became ill, and his illness was so severe until there was no breath left in him. 18 And she said to Eliou, “What to me and to you, O man of God? You have come to me to bring my injustices to remembrance and to put to death my son!” 19 And Eliou said to the woman, “Give me your son.” And he took him from her bosom and carried him up into the upper chamber, there where he was lodging, and laid him on his bed. 20 And Eliou cried out and said, “Alas O Lord, the witness of the widow, her with whom I am staying, you have done evil by putting to death her son.” 21 And he breathed on the lad three times and called on the Lord and said, “O Lord my God, let this lad’s life now come into him again.” 22 And it happened thus, and the lad cried out. 23 And he brought him down from the upper chamber into the house and gave him to his mother, and Eliou said, “See, your son is alive.” 24 And the woman said to Eliou, “Behold, I know that you are a divine man and that a word of the Lord in your mouth is true.”

18 And it happened after many days that a word of the Lord came to Eliou in the third year, saying, “Go, and appear to Achaab, and I will give rain on the surface of the earth.” 2 And Eliou went to appear to Achaab. And the famine was severe in Samaria. 3 And Achaab summoned Abdiou the steward. (And Abdiou was one who revered the Lord greatly, and it happened, when Iezabel smote the prophets of the Lord, that Abdiou took a hundred men, prophets, and hid them by fifty to a cave and kept providing them with bread and water.) 5 And Achaab said to Abdiou, “Come, and let us pass through the land to springs of water and to wadis, if perhaps we may find grass and keep the horses and mules alive, and none of the animals will be destroyed.” 6 And they divided for themselves the way to pass through it; Achaab went in one direction alone, and Abdiou went in another direction alone. 7 And Abdiou was on the way alone, and Eliou came to meet him alone, and Abdiou hastened and fell on his face and said, “Are you he, my lord Eliou?” 8 And Eliou said to him, “It is I; go, say to your lord, Behold, Eliou.” 9 And Abdiou said, “What have I sinned, that you give your slave into the hand of Achaab, to put me to death?” 10 The Lord your God lives, if there is a nation or kingdom to which my lord has not sent to seek you, and they said, ‘He is not here,’ and he set fire to the kingdom and its regions, because it had not found you. 11 And now you say, ‘Go, tell your lord, Behold, Eliou.’ 12 And it will be if I depart from you, that a spirit of the Lord will carry you into a land that I know not, and I will go in to tell Achaab, and he will kill me, and your slave is one who reveres the Lord from his youth. 13 Has it not been told to you my lord what I have done when Iezabel killed the prophets of the Lord, that I hid some of the Lord’s prophets, a hundred men, by fifty to a cave, and provided them with loaves and water? 14 And now you say to me, ‘Go, say to your lord, Behold Eliou, and he will kill me.’ 15 And Eliou said, “The Lord of hosts lives before whom I stand, for I will appear to him today.” 16 And Abdiou went to meet Achaab and told him, and Achaab ran forth and came to meet Eliou. 17 And it happened, when Achaab saw Eliou, that Achaab said to Eliou, “Are you he who perverts Israel?” 18 And Eliou said, “I am not perverting Israel, but you and your father’s house, when you forsok the Lord, your God, and went after the Baalim. 19 And now send, assemble all Israel for me at Mount Carmel, and the four hundred fifty prophets of shame and the four hundred prophets of the groves, since they eat at Iezabel’s table.” 20 And Achaab sent to all Israel and gathered all the prophets at Mount Carmel. 21 And Eliou came near to all, and Eliou said to them, “How long will you go limping on both legs? If the Lord is God, go after him, but if Baal is he, go after him.” And the people did not answer a word. 22 And Eliou said to the people, “I alone am left over as prophet of the Lord, and Baal’s prophets number four hundred fifty men, and the prophets of the grove, four hundred. 23 Let them give us two bulls, and let them choose the one for themselves and cut it in pieces and lay it on the wood, and let them put on no fire, and I will do the other bull and will put on no fire. 24 And shout in the name of your gods, and I will call on the name of the Lord, my God, and it will be, the god who answers by fire, he is God.” And all the people answered and said, “The word which you spoke is good!” 25 And Eliou said to the prophets of shame, “Choose for yourselves the one bull calf, and do it first, for you are many, and call on the name of your god, and put on no fire.” 26 And they took the bull calf and did it and were calling on the name of Baal from morning until noon and said, “Hear us, O Baal, hear us!” And there was no voice, and there was no hearing, and they ran about on the altar that they made. 27 And it happened at noon that Eliou the Thesbite mocked them and said, “Call in a loud voice! For he is a god, for praying occupies him, and at the same time he is perhaps giving an oracle, or perhaps he is asleep and will Heed me, O Lord, and let this people know that you are Lord, God of Israel. O Lord, God of Abraam and Isaak and Israel, said, “Truly the Lord is God; he is God.” And fire from the Lord fell from heaven and consumed the whole burnt offering and the firewood, and the fire licked up the stones, and the firewood and the water that was in the trench gushed out over them. And it happened, as it was the time for the sacrifice to ascend and there was no voice, that Eliou the Thesbite spoke to the prophets of the offenses, saying, “Stand aside for the present, and I will do my whole burnt offering,” and they stood aside and departed.

And Eliou said to the people, “Come closer to me,” and all the people came closer to him. And Eliou took twelve stones according to the number of the tribes of Israel, as the Lord had spoken to him, saying, “Israel shall be your name,” and he built the stones in the name of the Lord and repaired the altar that had been thrown down and made a thaala around the altar, holding two measures of seed. And he piled up the firewood on the altar that he made and cut the whole burnt offering in pieces and laid it on the firewood and piled it on the altar. And he said, “Take for me four jars of water, and pour it on the whole burnt offering and on the firewood,” and they did so. And he said, “Do it a second time,” and they did it a second time. And he said, “Do it a third time,” and they did it a third time. And the water ran all around the altar, and filled the thaalaa with water.

And Eliou cried aloud to heaven and said, “O Lord, God of Abraam and Isaak and Israel, heed me, O Lord, heed me today with fire, and let all this people know that you are Lord, God of Israel, and I am your slave, and I have done these works on your account. Hear me, O Lord, heed me with fire, and let this people know that you are Lord God and that you turned the heart of this people back.” And fire from the Lord fell from heaven and consumed the whole burnt offering and the firewood and the water that was in the thaalaa and the stones, and the fire licked up the dust. And all the people fell on their face and said, “Truly the Lord is God; he is God.”

And Eliou said to the people, “Seize the prophets of Baal; do not let one of them escape.” And they threw down your altars and killed your prophets with a sword, and I alone am a remnant, and they are seeking my life, to take it.”

And Eliou did and how he killed the prophets with a sword. And Iezabel sent to Eliou and said, “If you are Eliou and I am Iezabel, this is what God may do to me, and this is what he may add, because I will make your life like the life of one of them by this hour tomorrow.” And Eliou was afraid and got up and went away for his life and came to Bersabee which belongs to Ioudas, and he left his lad there.

And he went a day’s journey into the wilderness and came and sat down under one rathm and asked that his soul die and said “Let it be enough now; indeed, take away my life from me, Lord, for I am no better than my fathers.” And he lay down there under a plant and fell asleep, and behold, someone touched him and said to him, “Get up, and eat.” And Eliou looked, and behold, at his head was a wheat cake and a jar of water, and he arose and ate and drank. And turning away, he slept. And the angel of the Lord returned a second time and touched him and said to him, “Get up, eat, for the journey will be too much for you.” And he got up and ate and drank, and he went in the strength of that food forty days and forty nights as far as Mount Choreb. And there he entered into a cave and lodged there.

And he said, “You shall go out tomorrow and shall stand before the Lord on the mountain; behold, the Lord will pass by.” And there was a great, strong wind splitting mountains and crushing rocks before the Lord, and the Lord was not in the dust. And it happened, when Eliou heard it, that he wrapped his face in his hairy mantle and went out and stood by the cave, and behold, there came a voice to him, and it said, “Why are you here, Eliou?” And Eliou said, “Being zealous, I have been zealous for the Lord Almighty, for the sons of Israel forsook you; they threw down your altars and killed your prophets with a sword, and I alone am a remnant, and they are seeking my life, to take it.”

And Achaab said to Iezabel his wife all that Eliou did and how he killed the prophets with a sword. And Iezabel sent to Eliou and said, “If you are Eliou and I am Iezabel, this is what God may do to me, and this is what he may add, because I will make your life like the life of one of them by this hour tomorrow.” And Eliou was afraid and got up and went away for his life and came to Bersabee which belongs to Ioudas, and he left his lad there.

And Achaab wept and went to Iezrael. And the hand of the Lord was on Eliou, and he girded up his loins and ran in front of Achaab to Iezrael.

19 And Achaab told Iezabel his wife all that Eliou did and how he killed the prophets with a sword. And Iezabel sent to Eliou and said, “If you are Eliou and I am Iezabel, this is what God may do to me, and this is what he may add, because I will make your life like the life of one of them by this hour tomorrow.” And Eliou was afraid and got up and went away for his life and came to Bersabee which belongs to Ioudas, and he left his lad there.

And Achaab went and took Achaab wept and went to Iezrael. And the hand of the Lord was on Eliou, and he girded up his loins and ran in front of Achaab to Iezrael.

Elisaie son of Saphat from Abelaoma as prophet in your stead. And it will be that the one who escapes from the sword of Hazael lou shall put to death, and the one who escapes from the sword of Sou Elisaie shall put to death. And you will leave seven thousand men in Israel, all the knees that did not bow a knee to Baal and every mouth that did not do obeisance to him.

19 And he set out from there and found Elisaie son of Saphat, and he was plowing with oxen—twelve yoke of oxen ahead of him, and he was with the twelve—and he came upon him and threw him his hairy mantle over him. And Elisaie left the oxen and ran after Eliou and said, “I will kiss my father and will follow after you,” and Eliou said, “Go back, for I am done with you.” And he returned from behind him and took the yoke of oxen and slaughtered and boiled them with the equipment from the oxen and gave it to the people, and they ate, and he arose and went after Eliou and ministered to him.

20(21) And Nabouthai the Iezraelite had one vineyard beside the threshing floor of King Achaab of Samaria. And Achaab spoke to Nabouthai, saying, “Give me your vineyard, and it will be to me for a garden of vegetables, because it is nearer my house, and I will give you another vineyard better than it, but if it seems pleasing before you, I will give you money in exchange for this your vineyard, and it will be to me for a garden of vegetables.” And Nabouthai said to Achaab, “May it not be to me from my God to give you the inheritance of my fathers.” And the spirit of Achaab became troubled, and he lay down on his bed and covered his face and did not eat bread.

5 And his wife Iezabel came in to him and spoke to him. “Why is your spirit troubled and you are not eating bread?” 6And he said to her, “Because I spoke to Nabouthai the Iezraelite, saying, ‘Give me your vineyard for money, but if you prefer, I will give you another vineyard for it,’ and he said, ‘I will not give you the inheritance of my fathers.’” And his wife Iezabel said to him, “Do you now thus act the king over Israel? Get up, eat bread, and be yourself, I will give you the vineyard of Nabouthai the Iezraelite.”

8 And she wrote a document in Achaab’s name and sealed it with his seal and sent the document to the elders and the freemen who lived with Nabouthai. And it was written in the documents, saying, “Fast a fast, and seat Nabouthai at the head of the people, and seat two men, sons of transgressors, opposite him and have them testify against him, saying, ‘You have blessed God and king,’ and let them take him out and stone him, and let him die.” And the men of his city, the elders and the freemen who lived in his city, did as Iezabel sent to them, just as it was written in the documents that she sent to them. They called a fast and seated Nabouthai at the head of the people, and two men, sons of transgressors, came and sat opposite him and testified against him, saying, “You have blessed God and king,” and they took him outside the city and stoned him with stones, and he died. And they sent to Iezabel, saying, “Nabouthai has been stoned and is dead.”

15 And it happened, when Iezabel heard, that she said to Achaab, “Get up, take possession of the vineyard of Nabouthai the Iezraelite, which he refused to give you for money, for Nabouthai is not alive, for he is dead.” And it happened, when Achaab heard that Nabouthai the Iezraelite was dead, that he tore his garments and put on sackcloth, and it happened after these things that Achaab arose and went down to the vineyard of Nabouthai the Iezraelite to possess it.

17 And the Lord said to Eliou the Thesbite, saying: Arise, and go down to meet King Achaab of Israel who is in Samaria; behold, he is in the vineyard of Nabouthai, for he has gone down there to possess it. And you shall speak to him, saying, “This is what the Lord says: Since you murdered and took possession,” therefore, “this is what the Lord says: In every place where swine and dogs licked up the blood of Nabouthai, there dogs will lick up your blood, and the prostitutes will wash themselves in your blood.”

20 And Achaab said to Eliou, “Have you found me, O my enemy?” And he said, “I have found you, because you have vainly sold yourself to do what is evil before the Lord, to provoke him to anger. This is what the Lord says, ‘Behold I am bringing disaster on you, and I will burn after you and will cut off from Achaab every one who urinates against a wall, both shut up and one left in Israel, and I will render your house like the house of Ieroboam son of Nabat and like the house of Baasa son of Achia concerning the provocations with which you provoked, and you made Israel sin.’ And to Iezabel the Lord spoke, saying, ‘The dogs shall eat her by the fortification of Iezrael.’ The dead of Achaab in the city the dogs shall eat, and his dead on the plain the birds of the air shall eat.”

25 (Yet, Achaab did act foolishly when he sold himself to do what was evil before the Lord, as his wife Iezabel led him astray, and he acted most abominably in going after abominations, according to all that the Amorrites did, whom the Lord utterly destroyed from before the sons of Israel.) And because of the word, when Achaab was smitten with remorse from before the Lord, he went weeping, and he tore his tunic and girded himself with sackcloth on his body and fasted and put on sackcloth in the day on which he smote Nabouthai the Iezraelite. And a word of the Lord by the hand of his slave Eliou came concerning Achaab, and the Lord said, “Have you seen how Achaab is smitten with remorse from before me? I will not bring the disaster in his days, but in his son’s days I will bring the disaster.”

21(20) And Hader’s son gathered all his force together and went up and laid siege against Samaria, and thirty-two kings with him and every horse and chariot, and they went up and laid siege against Samaria and fought against it. 2And he sent into the city to King Achaab of Israel 3and said to him, "This is what Hader’s son says: Your silver and your gold are mine, and your wives and your children are mine." 4And the king of Israel answered and said, "As you spoke, O Lord, king, I am yours, and all that is mine." 5And the messengers came again and said, "This is what Hader’s son says: I have sent to you, saying: You shall give me your silver and your gold and your wives and your children, 6for I will send my servants to you tomorrow at this time, and they shall search your house and the houses of your servants, and it will be the desirable objects of their eyes, on which they shall lay their hands, they will take.”

7 And the king of Israel called all the elders, and said, "Indeed, know, and see that this man is seeking trouble, for he has sent to me concerning my wives and concerning my sons and concerning my daughters; my silver and my gold I did not keep back from him." 8And the elders and all the people said to him, "Do not listen, and do not consent." 9And he said to the messengers of Hader’s son, "Say to your master: All things that you have sent to your slave about at first I will do, but this matter I cannot do." And the men left and returned word to him. 10And Hader’s son sent back to him, saying, "This may the god do to me, and this may he add, if the dust of Samaria will suffice for foxes for all the people, for my footmen." 11And the king of Israel answered and said, "Let it suffice; let not the hunchback boast as he who is straight." 12And it happened, when he answered him this word, he was drinking, he and all the kings with him, in the booths, and he said to his servants, "Build a palisade!’ And they placed a palisade against the city.

13 And behold, one prophet came up to the king of Israel and said, "This is what the Lord says, Have you seen all this great multitude? Behold, I will give it into your hand today, and you shall know that I am the Lord.” 14And Achaab said, "By whom?" and he said, "This is what the Lord says, By the lads who serve the district governors." And Achaab said, "Who shall begin the battle?" And he said, "You.” 15And Achaab mustered the lads who served the district governors, and there were two hundred thirty, and after these things he mustered the people, every son of power, sixty thousand.

16 And he went out at noon, and Hader’s son was drinking himself drunk in Sokchoth, and he and the thirty-two kings allied with him. 17And the lads who served the district governors went out among the first. And they sent and reported to the king of Syria, saying, "Men have come out from Samaria.” 18And he said to them, "If these have come out for peace, take them alive, and if they have come out for war, take them alive.” 19And do not let the lads who serve the district governors come out of the city.” And the force behind them 20smote, each the one beside him, and he repeated, each the one beside him, and Syria fled, and Israel pursued them, and Hader’s son, king of Syria, escaped on a horse of a horseman. 21And the king of Israel went out and took all the horses and the chariots and struck a great blow in Syria.

22 And the prophet approached the king of Israel and said, “Strengthen yourself, and consider, and see what you will do, for when the year turns, Hader’s son, king of Syria, will come up against you.”

23 And the servants of the king of Syria said, “The God of Israel is a god of mountains and not a god of valleys, therefore he prevailed over us, but if we fight against them on level ground, then we shall prevail over them.” 24And do this: send away the kings, each to their place, and put satraps in place of them, 25and we will exchange with you a form like the force that you have lost, both horse for horse and chariot for chariot, and we will fight against them on level ground, and we shall prevail over them.” And he heeded their voice and did so.

26 And it happened when the year turned that Hader’s son mustered Syria and went up to Aphek for battle against Israel. 27And the sons of Israel mustered and went out to meet them, and Israel encamped opposite them like two flocks of goats, and Syria filled the country. 28And the man of God approached and said to the king of Israel, “This is what the Lord says, Because Syria said, ‘The Lord the God of Israel is a god of mountains and not a god of the valleys, I will give this great force into your hand, and you shall know that I am the Lord.’” 29And they encamped opposite one another seven days, and it happened on the seventh day that the battle drew near, and Israel smote Syria, one hundred thousand foot soldiers in one day.

30And the rest fled into the city of Aphek, and the wall fell on twenty-seven thousand of the men that were left.

And Hader’s son fled and entered the house into the inner chamber of the bedroom. 31And he said to his servants, "I know that the kings of Israel are merciful kings; let us now put sackcloths around our waists and ropes on our heads and go out to the king of Israel, perhaps he will spare our lives.” 32And they tied sackcloths around our waists and put ropes on our heads and said to the king of Israel, “Your slave, Hader’s son, says, ‘Indeed, let my soul live.’” And he said, “Is he still alive? He is my brother.” 33And the men practiced ornithomancy, and they hastened and seized upon the word from his mouth and said, “Hader’s son is your brother.” And he said, “Go in, and bring him,” and Hader’s son came out to him, and they made him come up to him into the chariot. 34And he said to him, “I will restore to you the towns that my father took from your father, and you shall establish streets for yourself in Damascus, as my father did in Samaria, and I will send you off with a covenant.” So he made a covenant with him and sent him off.

35 And by a word of the Lord one person of the sons of the prophets said to his neighbor, “Indeed, smite me!” And the person refused to smite him. 36And he said to him, “Because you have not obeyed the voice of the Lord, behold, you will depart from me, and a lion will smite you." And he went out from him, and a lion found him and smote him. 37 And he found another person and said, "Now smite me!" And the person smote him, and he smote and smashed him. 38 And the prophet departed and waited for the king of Israel along the road and bound his eyes with a bandage. 39 And it happened, as the king was passing by, that he shouted to the king and said, "Your slave went out to the army for the battle, and behold, a man brought a man to me and said to me, 'Guard this man, but if escaping he escapes, then your life shall be for his life, or else you shall pay a talent of silver.' 40 And it happened: your slave looked around here and there, and he was not." And the king of Israel looked and said, "Behold, you have also slain the ambushes on my side." 41 And he said to him, "Michaias, son of Iemla," 10And the king of Israel said to him, "Behold, you have also around here and there, and he was not." And the prophet departed and waited for the king of Israel along the road and bound his eyes with a bandage. 39 And it happened, as the king was passing by, that he shouted to the king and said, "Your slave went out to the army for the battle, and behold, a man brought a man to me and said to me, 'Guard this man, but if escaping he escapes, then your life shall be for his life, or else you shall pay a talent of silver.' 40 And it happened: your slave looked around here and there, and he was not." And the king of Israel recognized him that he was one of the prophets. 42 And he said to him, "This is what the Lord says, 'Because you carried off a man destined for destruction at your hand, your life shall also be for his life, and your people for his people.'" 43 And the king of Israel departed, troubled and faint, and came to Samaria.

(KAIGE)

22 And he stayed for three years, and there was no war between Syria and between Israel. 2And it happened in the third year that Josaphat, king of Lousia, came down to the king of Israel. 3And the king of Israel said to his servants, "Do you know that Remmath Galaad belongs to us, and we are saying nothing to take it out of the hand of the king of Syria?" 4 And the king of Israel said to Josaphat, "Will you go up with us to Remmath Galaad to battle?" And Josaphat said, "As I am, so also are you; as my people, are your people; as my horses, are your horses."

5 And Josaphat, king of Lousia, said to the king of Israel, "Do inquire of the Lord today." 6 And the king of Israel gathered all the prophets together, about four hundred men, and the king said to them, "Shall I go to battle against Remmath Galaad, or shall I refrain?" And they said, "Go up, and giving the Lord will give it into the hands of the king."

7 And Josaphat said to the king of Israel, "Is there not a prophet of the Lord here? And we will inquire of the Lord through him."

8 And the king of Israel said to Josaphat, "There is still one man to inquire of the Lord through him, but I hate him, for he does not speak anything good about me, but only evil, Michaias son of Iemla." And Josaphat, king of Lousia, said, "Let the king not say so." 9 And the king of Israel summoned one eunuch and said, "Quickly, Michaias son of Iemla." 10 And the king of Israel and Josaphat, king of Lousia, were sitting, a man upon his throne, armed in the gates of Samaria, and all the prophets were prophesying before them. 11 And Sedekias son of Chanana made for himself horns of iron, and he said, "This is what the Lord says: With these you shall gore Syria until it is finished." 12 And all the prophets were prophesying the same way, saying, "Go up to Remmath Galaad, and you will succeed, and the Lord will give into your hands even the king of Syria."

13 And the messenger who had gone to summon Michaias spoke to him, saying, "Behold now, all the prophets are speaking with one mouth good things about the king: now you too, let your words be like the words of one of them, and speak good things." 14 And Michaias said, "The Lord lives, for whatever the Lord says to me, that I will speak."

15 And he came to the king, and the king said to him, "Michaias, shall I go up to Remmath Galaad to battle, or shall I refrain?" And he said, "Go up, and you will succeed, and the Lord will give it into the hand of the king." 16 And the king said to him, "How many times must I make you swear that you tell me the truth in the name of the Lord?" 17 And Michaias said, "Not so—I have seen all Israel scattered on the mountains, like a flock that has no shepherd, and the Lord said, 'These have no master; let each one go home in peace.'" 18 And the king of Israel said to Josaphat, king of Lousia, "Did I not tell you that this one does not prophesy anything good to me, for on the contrary evil?"

19 And Michaias said, "Not so, not I—hear the word of the Lord—not so: I saw the Lord God of Israel, sitting on his throne, and all the host of heaven stood near him on his right and on his left. 20 And the Lord said, 'Who will entice Achaab, king of Israel, and he will go up and fall at Remmath Galaad?' And one spoke one way, and another another way. 21 And a spirit came forward and stood before the Lord and said, 'I will entice him.' And the Lord said to him, 'In what way?'

22 And he said, 'I will go out and be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.' And he said, 'You shall entice him, and indeed you shall prevail; go out, and do so.' 23 And now, behold, the Lord has put a lying spirit in the mouth of all these your prophets, and the Lord has spoken evil against you."

24 And Sedekias son of Chanana came near and struck Michaias on the cheek and said, "What kind of a spirit of the Lord has spoken in you?" 25 And Michaias said, "Behold, you shall see in that day, when you go into a chamber of the chamber to hide." 26 And the king of Israel said, "Take Michaias, and return him to Emer the governor of the city, and tell loas son of the king 27 to put this fellow in prison and to feed him bread of affliction and water of affliction until I return in peace." 28 And Michaias said, "If returning you return in peace, the Lord has not spoken by me."

29 And the king of Israel and Josaphat, king of Lousia, with him went up to Remmath Galaad. 30 And the king of Israel said to Josaphat, king of Lousia, "I will disguise myself and enter into the battle, and you wear my clothing." And the king of Israel disguised himself and entered into the battle. And the king of Syria commanded the thirty-two commanders of his chariots, saying, “Fight not small or great, but only the king of Israel.” And it happened, as the commanders of the chariots saw Iosaphat, king of Iouda, that they said, “This appears to be the king of Israel.” And they surrounded him to fight him, and Iosaphat cried out. And it happened, as the commanders of the chariots saw that this was not the king of Israel, that they turned back from him. And one drew his bow aiming well and struck the king of Israel between the lungs and between the breastplate. And he said to the driver of his chariot, “Turn your hands around, and carry me away out of the battle, for I am wounded.” And the battle turned into a rout in that day, and the king stood on his chariot facing Syria from morning until evening, and he shed blood from the wound into the hollow of the chariot, and he died in the evening, and blood a rout flowed out to the hollow of the chariot. And the herald of the army stood at sunset, saying, “Every man to his own city and to his own country, for the king is dead!”

And they came to Samaria and buried the king in Samaria. And they washed off the chariot by the spring of Samaria, and the sows and the dogs licked up the blood, and the prostitutes washed themselves in the blood, according to the word of the Lord that he had spoken. And the rest of the histories of Achaab and all that he did and the ivory house that he built and all the cities that he made, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days of the Kings of Israel? And Achaab slept with his fathers, and Ochozias his son reigned in his stead.

And Iosaphat son of Asa reigned over Iouda. In the fourth year of Achaab, king of Israel, he became king. Iosaphat was a son of thirty-five years when he became king, and he reigned twenty and five years in Jerusalem. And his mother’s name was Azouba daughter of Selei. And he went in all the way of Asa his father; he did not turn aside from it, doing what was right in the sight of the Lord; yet he did not take away any of the high places; the people were still sacrificing and offering incense on the high places. And Iosaphat made peace with the king of Israel.

And the rest of the histories of Iosaphat and his acts of dominance that he exercised, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days of the Kings of Ioudas? And Iosaphat slept with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of Dauid his father, and Ioram his son reigned in his stead.

And Ochozias son of Achaab reigned over Israel in Samaria in the seventeenth year of Iosaphat, king of Iouda, and he reigned in Israel two years. And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord and walked in the way of Achaab his father and in the way of Iezabel his mother and in the sins of the house of Ieroboam son of Nabat, who made Israel sin. And he was subject to the Baalim and did obeisance to them, and he provoked the Lord, God of Israel, to anger, according to all that had been done before him.
And Moab rebelled against Israel after Achaab died.

2 And Ochozias fell through the lattice in his upper chamber in Samaria and was sick, and he sent messengers and told them, “Go, and inquire by the goddess Baal, fly god of Akkaron, whether I shall recover from this my sickness.” And they went to inquire through him. 3And an angel of the Lord spoke to Eliou the Thesbite, saying, “Get up, go to meet the messengers of Ochozias, king of Samaria, and you shall say to them, ‘Is it because there is no god in Israel that you are going to inquire by the goddess Baal, fly god of Akkaron?’ 4And not so, for this is what the Lord says, ‘The bed upon which you went up there, you shall not come down from it, for there by death you shall die.’” And Eliou went and spoke to them.

5 And the messengers returned to him, and he said to them, “Why is it that you returned?” 6And they said to him, “A man came up to meet us and said to us, ‘Go, return to the king who sent you, and you shall say to him: This is what the Lord says: Is it because there is no god in Israel that you are going to inquire by the goddess Baal, fly god of Akkaron?’ 7And he spoke to them, saying, “What was the judgment of the man who went up to meet you and told you these words?” 8And they said to him, “A hairy man, and wearing a leather belt around his waist.” And he said, “This is Eliou the Thesbite.”

9 And he sent to him a leader, an officer of fifty, and his fifty men. And he went up and came to him, and behold, Eliou was sitting on the top of the mountain. And the officer of fifty spoke to him and said, “O man of God, the king has summoned you, come down.” 10And Eliou answered and said to the officer of fifty, “And if I am a man of God, fire will come down from heaven and consume you and your fifty.” And fire came down from heaven and consumed him and his fifty.

11 And the king proceeded and sent to him another officer of fifty and his fifty. And he went up, and the captain of fifty spoke to him and said, “O man of God, this is what the king says: Come down quickly!” 12And Eliou answered and spoke to him and said, “If I am a man of God, fire will come down from heaven and consume you and your fifty.” And fire came down from heaven and consumed him and his fifty.

13 And the king proceeded still to send a third leader, an officer of fifty, and his fifty. And the third officer of fifty went to him and knelt on his knees before Eliou and entreated him and spoke to him and said, “O man of God, do let my life and the life of these fifty slaves of yours be precious in your sight. 14Look, fire came down from heaven and consumed the two former officers of fifty and their fifties, but now do let the life of your slaves be precious in your sight.” 15And an angel of the Lord spoke to Eliou and said, “Go down with him; do not be afraid from before them.” And Eliou set out and went down with him to the king. 16And he spoke to him, and Eliou said, “This is what the Lord says: Why is it that you sent messengers to inquire by the goddess Baal, fly god of Akkaron? Not so; the bed upon which you went up there, you shall not come down from it, for by death you shall die.”

17 And he died according to the word of the Lord that Eliou had spoken. 18And the rest of the histories of Ochozias, what he did, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Israel?

18a And Ioram son of Achaab reigns over Isra-el in Samaria twelve years in the eighteenth year of losaphat, king of Iouda. 18bAnd he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, yet not like his brothers nor like his mother. 18cAnd he removed the stel-es of Baal that his father had made and broke them in pieces. Yet, he clung to the sins of the house of Ieroboam who made Israel sin; he did not depart from them. 18dAnd the Lord was inflamed with anger against the house of Achaab.

And it happened, when the Lord was about to take Eliou up by a whirlwind as into heaven, that Eliou and Elisaie went from Galgala. 2And Eliou said to Elisaie, “Do stay here, for the Lord has sent me as far as Baithel.” And Elisaie said, “The Lord lives, and your soul lives, if I will leave you!” And they came to Baithel. 3And the sons of the prophets who were in Baithel came to Elisaie and said to him, “Did you know that today the Lord is taking your master from above your head?” And he said, “Yes, I know; keep silent.”

4 And Eliou said to Elisaie, “Do stay here, for the Lord has sent me to Iericho.” And Elisaie said, “The Lord lives, and your soul lives, if I will aban-
And they came to Iericho. 6 And Eliou said to him, “Do stay here, for the Lord has sent me as far as the Jordan.” And Elisaie said, “The Lord lives, and your soul lives, if I will abandon you!” And they both went on. 7 And fifty men, sons of the prophets, also stood opposite at a distance, and they both stood by the Jordan. 8 And Eliou took his sheepskin and rolled it up and struck the water, and the water was divided here and there, and they both crossed in a wilderness. 9 And it happened, when they had crossed, that Eliou said to Elisaie, “Ask what I may do for you, before I am taken from you.” And Elisaie said, “Do let twofold in your spirit be on me.” 10 And Eliou said, “You made hard to ask this for yourself; if you see me as I am being taken up from you, then it will be so for you, and if not, it will not be.” 11 And it happened, as they walked, that they were walking and talking, and behold, a chariot of fire and horses of fire, and they separated between both, and Eliou was taken up in a whirlwind as into heaven. 12 And Elisaie kept watching and crying out, “Father, Father! Chariot of Israel and its horseman!” And he saw him no longer, and he grasped his clothes and tore them into two tears. 13 And he picked up the sheepskin of Eliou that fell from upon Elisaie, and Elisaie went back and stood on the bank of the Jordan. 14 And he took the sheepskin of Eliou that fell from upon him and struck the water, and it did not part, and he said, “Where is the God of Eliou—aphphob?” And he struck the waters, and they burst here and there, and Elisaie went over. 15 And the sons of the prophets who were in Iericho saw him opposite there, and Elisaie went back to Samaria in that day and inspected Israel. 16 And they said to him, “See now, with your servants there are fifty men, sons of power; as they go, do let them seek your master; it may be that a spirit of the Lord picked him up and threw him in the Jordan or on one of the mountains or on one of the hills.” And Elisaie said, “You shall not send.” 17 And they urged him until he was ashamed, and he said, “Send.” And they sent fifty men, and they searched for three days but did not find him. 18 And they came back to him (and he had remained in Iericho), and Elisaie said, “Did I not say to you, Do not go?” 19 And the men of the city said to Elisaie, “Behold, the location of the city is good, as our lord sees, but the waters are bad, and the land is deprived of children.” 20 And Elisaie said, “Bring me a new bowl, and put salt there.” And they brought it to him. 21 And Elisaie went out to the outlet of the waters and threw the salt there and said, “This is what the Lord says, I have healed these waters; no longer shall there be death nor a lack of children from there.” 22 And the waters have been healed to this day, according to the word of Elisaie that he spoke.

3 And Ioram son of Achaab became king in Israel in the eighteenth year of Iosaphat, king of Iouda, and he reigned twelve years. 2 And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, yet not like his father and not like his mother, and he removed the steles of Baal that his father had made. 3 Yet, he clung to the sin of Ieroboam son of Nabat, who made Israel sin; he did not depart from it. 4 And Mosa, king of Moab, was noked, and he used to return to the king of Israel at the rising of the one hundred thousand lambs and one hundred thousand rams, based on wool. 5 And it happened, after Achaab died, that the king of Moab rebelled against the king of Israel. 6 And King Ioram went out of Samaria in that day and inspected Israel. 7 And he went and sent to Iosaphat, king of Iouda, saying, “The king of Moab rebelled against me; will you go with me to Moab to battle?” And he said, “I will go up; like me, like you; as my people are your people, as my horses are your horses.” 8 And he said, “By which way should I go up?” And he said, “The way of the wilderness of Edom.” 9 And the king of Israel set out, and the king of Iouda and the king of Edom, and they circled around a journey of seven days, and there was no water for the camp or for the animals that were at their feet. 10 And the king of Israel said, “O, for the Lord has summoned the three kings to hand them over to the hands of Moab.” 11 And Iosaphat said, “Is there no prophet of the Lord here? And let us inquire of the Lord through him.” And one of the servants of the king of Israel answered and said, “Elisaie son of Saphat, who poured water on the hands of Eliou, is here.” 12 And Iosaphat said, “He has a word of the Lord.” And the king of Israel and Iosaphat, king of Iouda, and the king of Edom went down to him. 13 And Elisaie said to the king of Israel, “What have I to do with you? Go to the prophets of your father.” And the king of Israel said to him, “No, for the Lord has summoned the three kings to hand them over to the hands of Moab.” 14 And Elisaie said, “The Lord of hosts before whom I stand lives, unless I regard the person of Iosaphat, king of Iouda, if I had looked at you and seen you! But as it is, get me a harpist.” And it happened, as the harpist was playing, that the hand of the Lord came upon him. 16 And he said, “This is what the

17 For this is what the Lord says, 'You shall not see wind, and you shall not see rain, and this wadi shall be filled with water, and you shall drink, you and your possessions and your animals. 18 And this is easy in the sight of the Lord, and I will hand over Moab in your hand. 19 And you shall strike every strong city, and every good tree you shall fell, and all springs of water you shall stop up, and every good portion of land you shall ruin with stones.'” 20 And it happened in the morning, when the offering was going up, and behold, waters were coming from the way of Edom, and the land was filled with water.

21 And all Moab heard that the kings had come up to fight them, and they called out, from everyone wearing a belt and upward, and they stood at the frontier. 22 And they rose early in the morning, and the sun rose over the waters, and Moab saw the waters opposite, red as blood. 23 And they said, “This is blood of the sword; the kings had a fight, and they struck, a man his neighbor. And now, to the spoils, Moab!” 24 And they entered into the camp of Israel, and Israel rose up, and they struck Moab, and they fled from before them, and they entered Moab, going in and beating. 25 And the cities they overturned, and on every good portion of land they threw, a man his stone, and they filled it, and every spring of water they stopped up, and every good tree they felled until they left the stones of the wall overturned, and the slingers surrounded and struck it. 26 And the king of Moab saw that the battle prevailed over him, and he took with him seven hundred men who drew sword to break through to the king of Edom, but they could not.

27 And he took his firstborn son who became reapers, 19 that he said to his father, “My head, my head!” And he said to his lad, “Carry him to his mother.” 20 And he carried him to his mother, and he lay down on her knees until noon, and he died. 21 And she carried him up and laid him on the bed of the man of God, and he turned aside to the upper chamber and lay down there. 22 And she called her husband and said, “Do not hold back for me to mount, for if I tell you . . . !” 23 And she said, “Bring yet to me a vessel.” And they said to her, “There is no longer a vessel.” And the oil stopped. 24 And she came and told the man of God, and Eliseiah said, “Come on, and sell the oil, and you shall pay your interests, and you and your sons shall live by the remaining oil.”

8 And a day came, and Eliseiah passed through to Souman, and a great woman was there, and she prevailed on him to eat bread. And it happened after enough of his entrances that he turned aside to eat there. 9 And the woman said to her husband, “Look, indeed I knew that this man was a holy man of God; he regularly passes through to us. 10 Let us now make for him an upper chamber, a small place, and put for him there a bed and a table and a chair and a lampstand, and it shall be, when he enters to us, that he shall turn aside there.”

11 And a day came, and he entered there and turned aside to the upper chamber and lay down there. 12 And he said to Giezi, his lad, “Call to me this Somanite woman.” And he called her, and she stood before him. 13 And he said to him, “Do say to her, Behold, you amazed us with all this amazement; what must be done for you? Is it a word on your behalf to the king or to the commander of the force?” And she said, “I am—I live among my own people.” 14 And he said, “What must be done for her?” And Giezi, his lad, said, “Actually, she has no son, and her husband is old.” 15 And he called her, and she stood at the door. 16 And Eliseiah said to her, “At this season, as the time is ripe, you shall have embraced a son.” But she said, “No, my lord, do not deceive your slave.”

17 And the woman conceived and bore a son at this season, as the time was ripe, as Eliseiah said to her.

18 And the child matured, and it happened, when the child went out to his father to the reapers, 19 that he said to his father, “My head, my head!” And he said to his lad, “Carry him to his mother.” 20 And he carried him to his mother, and he lay down on her knees until noon, and he died. 21 And she carried him up and laid him on the bed of the man of God and closed upon him and went out. 22 And she called her husband and said, “Do send me one of the lads and one of the donkeys, and I shall go quickly to the man of God and come back.” 23 And he said, “Why is it that you go to him today? It is neither new moon nor sabbath.” And she said, “Peace.” 24 And she saddled the donkey and said to her lad, “Lead, go; do not hold back for me to mount, for if I tell you . . . !” 25 Come on, and you shall go and come to the man of God at the Carmelite mountain.

And it happened, as Eliseiah saw her coming, that he said to Giezi, his lad, “Look, indeed there is that Somanite woman; now run to meet her, and you shall say, Do you have peace? Does your husband have peace? Does the child have peace?” And she said, “Peace.” 27 And she came to Eliseiah at the mountain, and she caught hold of his feet. And Giezi approached to push her away. And Eliseiah said, “Let her alone, for her soul is painful to her, and the Lord hid it from me and did not tell me.”

Then she said, “Did I ask for a son from my lord?
Did I not say, You shall not go astray with me?" 29 And Elisaie said to Giezi, "Gird up your loins, and take my staff in your hand, and go, for if you meet a man, you shall not bless him, and if a man blesses you, you shall not answer him, and you shall lay my staff on the face of the child." 30 And the mother of the child said, "The Lord lives, and your soul lives, if I will abandon you!" And Elisaie rose up and went after her. 31 And Giezi went on ahead of her and laid the staff on the face of the child, but there was no sound, and there was no hearing. And he went back to meet him and told him, saying, "The child was not awakened."

32 And Elisaie entered into the house, and behold, the child was lying dead on his bed. 33 And Elisaie entered into the house and closed the door upon the two of them and prayed to the Lord. 34 And he went up and lay upon the child, and he put his mouth upon his mouth and his eyes upon his eyes and his hands upon his hands, and he bent over him, and the flesh of the child was warmed. 35 And he turned around and walked to and fro in the house and went up and bent over the child until seven times, and the child opened his eyes. 36 And Elisaie cried out to Giezi and said, "Call this Somanite woman." And he called, and she came in to him. And Elisaie said, "Take your son." 37 And the woman came in and fell at his feet and did obeisance on the ground, and she took her son and went out.

38 And Elisaie returned to Galgala, and the famine was in the land, and the sons of the prophets were sitting before him. And Elisaie said to his lad, "Put the large cauldron on, and boil boiled stuff for the sons of the prophets." 39 And one went out into the field to gather ariotha, and he found a wild gourd, his garment full, and he threw it into the cauldron of boiled stuff, for they knew it not. 40 And he poured it in for the men to eat. And it happened, while they were eating from the boiled stuff, that behold, they cried out and said, "O man of God, there is death in the cauldron!" And they could not eat it. 41 And he said, "Bring flour, and throw it into the cauldron." And Elisaie said to Giezi the lad, "Pour for the people, and let them eat." And there was no longer any harmful thing there in the cauldron.

42 And a man passed through from Baith-sarisa, and he brought to the man of God from the first products: twenty barley loaves and fruitcakes. 43 And Elisaie said, "Give it to the people, and let them eat." 44 And his attendant said, "Why should I set this before hundred men?" And he said, "Give it to the people, and let them eat, for this is what the Lord says, 'They shall eat and leave some behind.'" 45 And they ate and left some behind, according to the word of the Lord.

And Naiman, the commander of the force of Syria, was a great man before his master and was bmarried at in faceb, because by him the Lord gave deliverance to Syria. And the man was powerful in strength—leprous. 2 And as for Syria, they went out lightly armed and took captive from the land of Israel a little girl, and she was in the presence of the wife of Naiman. 3 And she said to her mistress, "Would that my lord were in the presence of the prophet of God who is in Samaria! Then he will recover him from his leprosy." 4 And she went in and told her own lord and said, "Thus and so said the girl from the land of Israel." 5 And the king of Syria said to Naiman, "Come here, enter, and I will send out a document to the king of Israel."

And he went and took in his hand ten talents of silver and six thousand gold pieces and ten changes of robes. 6 And he brought the document to the king of Israel, saying, "And now, as soon as this document comes to you, behold, I sent to you Naiman my slave, and you shall recover him from his leprosy." 7 And it happened, as the king of Israel read the document, that he tore his clothes and said, "Am I a god, to put to death and to make alive, that this man sends to me to recover a man from his leprosy? For only know now, and see, that this man is setting me up as an excuse."

8 And it happened, as Elisaie heard that the king of Israel had torn his own clothes, that he sent to the king of Israel, saying, "Why did you tear your clothes? Do let Naiman come to me, and let him know that there is a prophet in Israel." 9 And Naiman came in horse and chariot and stood at the door of the house of Elisaie. 10 And Elisaie sent a messenger to him, saying, "Going, wash seven times in the Jordan, and your flesh shall return to you, and you shall be cleansed." 11 And Naiman became angry and went away and said, "Behold now, I kept saying that he will come out to me and stand and call out in the name of his god and lay his hand on the place and recover the leprosy! 12 Are not Abana and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus, better than the Jordan and all the waters of Israel? Going, shall I not wash in them and be cleansed?"

And he turned and went away in a rage. 13 And his servants approached and said to him, "The prophet spoke a great word to you; shall you not do it?—even because he said to you, 'Wash, and be cleansed.'" 14 And Naiman went down and immersed himself in the Jordan seven times, according to the word of Elisaie, and his flesh returned like the flesh of a small child, and he was cleansed.

15 And he returned to Elisaie, he and all his camp, and he came and stood and said, "Behold, indeed I know that there is no god in all the earth but only in Israel, and now accept the blessing from your slave." 16 And Elisaie said, "The Lord lives, before whom I stand, if I will accept it!" And he urged him to accept, but he refused. 17 And Naiman said, "And if not, do let there be given to your slave a load of a pair of mules, and you shall give me from the red earth, for your slave will no longer make whole burnt offering and sacrifice to other gods except to the Lord alone. 18 And the Lord will have mercy on your slave when my mas-

And Naiman said, "Accept two talents of silver." And he accepted it in two bags, with two changes of robes, "23And Naiman said, "Accept two talents of silver." And he accepted it in two bags, with two changes of robes, and put them on two of his lads, and they carried them in front of him. 24And they came into the darkness, and he took from their hands and stored the things in a house, and he dismissed the men.

25 And he went in and stood near by his master, and Elisaie said to him, "Where have you come from, Giezi?" And Giezi said, "Your slave has not gone here or there." 26And Elisaie said to him, "Did my heart not go with you when the man turned around from the chariot to meet you? Even now you accepted the silver; even now you accepted the clothing, and shall you receive by him garments and olive orchards and vineyards and sheep and cattle and male servants and female servants? 27And the leprosy of Naiman shall cling to you and to your offspring forever." And he went out of his presence leprous, as if snow.

6 And the sons of the prophets said to Elisaie, "See now, the place where we live in your presence is too narrow for us. 2Do let us go to the Jordan, and let us take from there, one man, one beam, and build for ourselves there to live there." And he said, "Go." 3And the one said, "Kindly come with your slaves." And he said, "I will go." 4And he went with them. And they came to the Jordan and cut down trees. 5And behold, the one was felling the beam, and the iron fell into the water, and he cried out, "O master! And it was borrowed!" 6And the man of God said, "Where did it fall?" And he showed him the place. And he cut off a stick and threw it there, and the iron floated. 7And he said, "Raise it for yourself." And he did so.

8 And the king of Syria was at war with Israel, and he took counsel with his servants, saying, "I will encamp at this certain place, Elmoni." 9And Elisaie sent to the king of Israel, saying, "Take care not to pass by this place, because Syria is hidden there." 10And the king of Israel sent to the place which Elisaie told him. And he avoided it not once or twice.

11 And the mind of the king of Syria was perturbed about this matter, and he called his servants and said to them, "Will you not tell me who is betraying me to the king of Israel?" 12And one of his servants said, "No one, my lord O king, for Elisaie the prophet in Israel tells the king of Israel all the words that you might speak in the chamber of your bedroom." 13And he said, "Go, see where this man is, and after I send, I will seize him." And they reported to him, saying, "Behold, he is in Dothaim." 14And he sent there horse and chariot and a heavy force, and they came by night and surrounded the city.

15 And the attendant of Elisaie rose early in the morning and went out, and behold, a force was all around the city with horse and chariot. And the lad said to him, "O master! What shall we do?" 16And Elisaie said, "Do not be afraid, for those who are with us are more than those who are with them." 17And Elisaie prayed and said, "O Lord, open the eyes of the lad, and let him see." And the Lord opened his eyes, and he saw, and behold, the mountain was full of horses, and there was a chariot of fire all around Elisaie. 18And they came down against him. And Elisaie prayed to the Lord and said, "Do strike this nation with blindness." And he struck them with blindness according to the word of Elisaie. 19And Elisaie said to them, "This is not the city, and this is not the way; come after me, and I will lead you to the man whom you seek." And he led them to Samaria.

20 And it happened, as they entered into Samaria, that Elisaie said, "O Lord, do open their eyes, and let them see." And the Lord opened their eyes, and they saw, and behold, they were in the middle of Samaria. 21And the king of Israel said, when he saw them, "Father, striking shall I strike?" 22And he said, "You shall not strike; if you did not capture them with your sword and your bow, would you strike them? Serve up food and water before them, and let them eat and drink, and let them go to their master." 23And he served up before them a great serving, and they ate and drank, and he sent them, and they went to their master. And lightly armed men of Syria no longer continued to come into the land of Israel.

24 And it happened after this that the son of Hader, king of Syria, mustered all his camp and went up and besieged Samaria. 25And there was a great famine in Samaria, and behold, they besieged it until a donkey’s head was fifty shekels of silver, and ‘the fourth of a kab’ of dung was five shekels of silver. 26And the king of Israel was passing by on the city wall, and a woman cried out to him, saying, "Save, O lord king!" 27And he said to her, "No! May the Lord save you. How can I save you? Surely not from the threshing floor or from the wine press?" 28And the king said to her, "What is it with you?" And she said, "This woman said to me, 'Give up your son, and we will eat him today, and my son, we will also eat him tomorrow.'" 29And we boiled my son and ate him, and I said to her on the second day, ‘Give up your son, and let us eat him.’ But she hid her son.” 30And it happened, when the king of Israel heard the words of the woman, that he tore his clothes—and he was passing by on the city wall—and the people saw the sackcloth on his flesh underneath. 31And he said, “This is what God may do to me, and this is what he may add, if the head of Elisaie shall stand firm upon him today.”

32 And Elisaie was sitting in his house, and the elders were sitting with him. And he sent a man before his presence. Before the messenger came to him, he also said to the elders, “Are you aware that this son of the murderer sent someone to take off my head? Look, when the messenger comes, shut the door, and detain him at the door. Is not the sound of his master’s feet behind him?” 33He was still speaking with them, and behold, a messenger came down to him and said, “Behold, this trouble is from the Lord! Why should I wait for the Lord any longer?”

7 And Elisaie said, “Hear a word of the Lord; this is what the Lord says, About this time tomorrow a measure of fine flour for a shekel and a double measure of barley for a shekel, in the gates of Samaria.” 2And the number-three man, on whose hand the king rested on it, answered Elisaie and said, “Behold, the Lord will make cataracts in heaven; this thing will not be, will it?” And Elisaie said, “Behold, you shall see with your own eyes, but you shall not eat from there.”

3 And there were four leprous men by the gate of the city, and a man said to his neighbor, “Why should we sit here until we die? 4If we say, ‘Let us enter into the city,’ and the famine is in the city, and we shall die there, and if we sit here, we shall also die. And now come, and let us fall into the camp of Syria; if they keep us alive, we shall also live, and if they put us to death, we shall also die.” 5And they arose in the darkness, to enter into the camp of Syria, and they entered into a part of the camp, and they entered into another tent and took from there and went and hid it.

9 And a man said to his neighbor, “Not in this manner we are acting. This day is a day of good news, and we are silent and waiting until the morning light, and we will find lawlessness, and now come, and let us enter and report in the house of the king.” 10And they entered and called toward the gate of the city and reported to them, saying, “We entered into the camp of Syria, and behold, there is no man nor human voice there but only a tied horse and a donkey and their tents as they are.” 11And the gatekeepers called out and reported to the house of the king within. 12And the king got up at night and said to his servants, “I will now tell you what Syria did to us. They know that we are hungry, and they went out of the camp and hid in the field, saying, ‘They will come out of the city, and we shall take them alive and enter into the city.’” 13And one of his servants answered and said, “Do let them take five of the remaining horses, which were left here; behold, it is for all the departed multitude of Israel, and we shall send there and look.” 14And they took two mounted on horses, and the king of Israel sent them after the king of Syria, saying, “Go, and see.” 15And they went after them as far as the Jordan, and behold, all the way was full of garments and vessels which Syria had thrown away in their alarm. And the messengers returned and told the king.

16 And the people went out and plundered the camp of Syria. And there was a measure of fine flour for a shekel and a double measure of barley for a shekel, according to the word of the Lord. 17And the king appointed the number-three man, on whose hand the king rested on it, over the gate, and the people trampled him in the gate, and he died, just as the man of God had spoken, who spoke when the messenger came down to him. 18And it happened just as Elisaie had spoken to the king, saying, “A double measure of barley for a shekel and a measure of fine flour for a shekel, and it will be about this time tomorrow in the gate of Samaria.” 19And the number-three man answered Elisaie and said, “Behold, the Lord makes cataracts in heaven; this thing will not be, will it?” And Elisaie said, “Behold, you shall see with your own eyes, but you shall not eat from there.”

8 And Elisaie spoke to the woman whose son he sparkled to life, saying, “Get up, and go, you and your household, and sojourn wherever you may sojourn, for the Lord has called for a famine upon the land.” And indeed it came upon the land for seven years. 2And the woman got up and did according to the word of Elisaie, and she went, she and her household, and sojourned in the land of the allophyles seven years. 3And it happened after the end of the seven years that the woman returned from the land of the allophyles into the city, and she came to cry out to the king for her own house and for her own fields. 4And the king was speaking to Giezi, the lad of Elisaie the man of God, saying, “Do tell me all the great things that Elisaie did.” 5And it happened, while he was telling the king the fact that he sparkled to life a dead son, that behold the woman whose son Eli-saie sparked to life was crying out to the king for her own house and for her own fields. And Giezi said, “O lord king, this is the woman, and this is her son whom Elisaie sparked to life.” 6And the king inquired of the woman, and she told him. And the king appointed one eunuch for her, saying, “Return all that was hers and all the produce of her field from the day that she left the land until now.”

7 And Elisaie went to Damascus, and Hader’s son, king of Syria, was ill. And they reported to him, saying, “The man of God has come here.” 8And the king said to Hazael, “Take manaa in your hand, and go to meet the man of God, and inquire of the Lord through him, saying, ‘Shall I recover from this my illness?’” 9And Hazael went to meet him and took manaa in his hand and all the good things of Damascus, a load of forty camels. And he came and stood before him and said to Elisaie, “Your son, Hader’s son, king of Syria, sent me to you, saying, ‘Shall I recover from this my illness?’” 10And Elisaie said, “Go, say to him, ‘By life you shall live, but the Lord showed me that by death you shall die.’” 11And he stood before his face and fixed his gaze until shame, and the man of God wept. 12And Hazael said, “Why is it that my lord weeps?” And he said, “Because I know what evil you will do to the sons of Israel; you will dispatch their fortresses by fire and kill their choice men by sword and drive into their infants and rip open their pregnant women.” 13And Hazael said, “What is your slave, the dead dog, that he shall do this thing?” And Elisaie said, “The Lord showed me you reigning over Syria.” 14And he departed from Elisaie and went in to his master, and he said to him, “What did Elisaie say to you?” And he said, “He told me, ‘By life you shall live.’” 15And it happened the next day that he took the machma and dipped it in the water and put it on his face, and he died. And Hazael reigned in his stead.

16 In the fifth year of Ioram son of Achaab, king of Israel, Ioram son of Josaphat, king of Iouda, became king. 17He was a son of thirty-two years when he became king, and he reigned eight years in Ierousalem. 18And he walked in the way of the kings of Israel, as did the house of Achaab, and he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord. 19But the Lord did not want to destroy Iouda, for the sake of Daulid his slave, since he had said to give a lamp to him and to his sons all the days.

20 In his days Edom revolted from under the hand of Iouda, and they made a king over themselves. 21And Ioram went up to Sior, and all the chariots with him, and it happened, when he arose, that he struck Edom, who had surrounded him, and the commanders of the chariots, and the people fled to their coverts. 22And Edom revolted from under the hand of Iouda until this day. Then Lobena revolted at that time. 23And the rest of the days for the Kings of Iouda? 24And Ioram slept with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of Daulid his father, and Ochozias his son reigned in his stead.

25 In the twelfth year of Ioram son of Achaab king of Israel, Ochozias son of Ioram became king. 26Ochozias was a son of twenty-two years when he became king, and he reigned one year in Ierousalem. And his mother’s name was Gotholia, daughter of Ambri, king of Israel. 27And he walked in the way of the house of Achaab and did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, as did the house of Achaab.

28 And he went with Ioram son of Achaab into battle with Hazael, king of the alophyles, at Remmoth Galaad, and the Syrians struck Ioram. 29And King Ioram returned to be healed in Iezrael of the wounds with which they struck him at Remmoth, when he fought with Hazael, king of Syria. And Ochozias son of Ioram went down to see Ioram son of Achaab in Iezrael, because he was ill.

9 And the prophet Elisaie called one of the sons of the prophets and said to him, “Gird up your loins, and take the jug of this oil in your hand, and go to Remmoth Galaad. 2And you shall enter there and see there Iou son of Josaphat son of Namessi, and you shall enter and stand him up among his brothers and lead him into the chamber in the chamber. 3And you shall take the jug of oil and pour it on his head and say, ‘This is the anointing oil of God, and the Lord has anointed him ruler over Israel.’ And you shall open the door and flee and not linger.”

4 And the lad, the prophet, went to Remmoth Galaad. 5And he entered, and beheld, the commanders of the force were sitting, and he said, “I have a message for you, commander.” And Iou said, “For which one of all of us?” And he said, “For you, commander.” 6And he got up and entered into the house, and he poured the oil on his head and said to him, “This is what the Lord says: I have anointed you as king over Israel. And you shall open the door and flee and not linger.”

11 And Iou came out to the servants of his master, and they said to him, “Is it peace? Why is it that this epileptic entered to you?” And he said to them, “You know the man and his babble.” 12And they said, “Wrong! Do tell us!” And Iou said to them,
Thus and so he spoke to me, saying, 'This is what the Lord says: I have anointed you as king over Israel.' 13 And when they heard this, they hurried, and they took each man his garment and put it under him on garema of the steps, and they trumpeted with a horn and said, "Iou has become king."

14 And Iou son of losaphat son of Namessi conspired against Ioram. And Ioram, he was guarding at Remmoth Galaad, he and all Israel, from before Hazael, king of Syria, 15 and King Ioram returned to be healed in Iezrael of the wounds with which the Syrians struck him, when he fought with Hazael, king of Syria. And Iou said, "If your soul is with me, let no one go out of the city escaping to go and tell in Iezrael." 16 And Iou rode and proceeded and went down to Iezrael, because Ioram, king of Israel, was being healed in Iezrael from the arrows with which the Aramin shot him down in Rammath in the battle with Hazael, king of Syria, for he was powerful and a man of power. And Ochozias, king of Iouda, went down to see Ioram.

17 And the lookout went up on the tower in Iezrael and saw the cloud of dust of Iou as he drew near and said, "I see a cloud of dust." And Ioram said, "Take a rider, and send him before them, and let him say, 'Is it peace?'" 18 And a horse rider went to meet them, and he said, "This is what the king says, 'Is it peace?'" And Iou said, "What have you to do with peace? Fall in behind me." And the lookout reported, saying, "The messenger came to them, but he did not come back." 19 And he sent a second horse rider, and he came to him and said, "This is what the king says, 'Is it peace?'" And Iou said, "What have you to do with peace? Fall in behind me." 20 And the lookout reported, saying, "He came to them, but he did not come back. And he that was bringing was bringing Iou son of Namessias, for it happened in perturbation."

21 And Ioram said, "Get ready." And he got a chariot ready. And Ioram, king of Israel, went out, and Ochozias, king of Iouda, a man in his chariot, and they went out to meet Iou, and they found him in the portion of Nabouthai the Iezraelite. 22 And it happened, when Ioram saw Iou, that he said, "Is it peace, Iou?" And Iou said, "What peace? The whoredoms of Iezabel your mother and her sorceries are still many." 23 And Ioram turned his hands to flee and said to Ochozias, "Treachery, Ochozias!" 24 And Iou filled his hand with his bow and struck Ioram between his arms, and the arrow came out through his heart, and he bent on his knees. 25 And Iou said to Badekar his number-three man, "Throw him in the portion of field of Nabouthai the Iezraelite, for I remember, when I and you were mounted on teams behind Achaab his father, and the Lord took this issue against him, saying, "Surely with the blood of Nabouthai and the blood of his sons that I saw yesterday, says the Lord, I will also repay him in this portion, says the Lord.' And now, do lift him up, and throw him in the portion, in accordance with the word of the Lord." 26 And Ochozias, king of Iouda, saw and fled on Baithagagan road. And Iou pursued after him and said, "And indeed him!" And he struck him in the chariot at the ascent of Gai, which is Ieblaam. And he fled to Mageddon and died there. 28 And his servants put him on the chariot and brought him to Jerousalem and buried him in his tomb in the city of Dauid.

29 And in the eleventh year of Ioram, king of Israel, Ochozias became king over Iouda.

30 And Iou came to Iezrael, and Iezabel heard, and she painted her eyes black and adorned her head and peeked through the window. 31 And Iou entered into the city, and she said, "Is it peace, Zambri, the murderer of his master?" 32 And he lifted up his face toward the window and saw her and said, "Who are you? Come down with me!" And two eunuchs peered down towards him. 33 And he said, "Roll her." And they rolled her, and some of her blood was spattered to the wall and to the horses, and they trampled on her. 34 And Iou went in and ate and drank, and he said, "Do see to this cursed woman, and bury her, for she is a king's daughter." 35 And they went to bury her, and they found nothing in connection with her other than the skull and the feet and the palms of her hands. 36 And they went back and told him, and he said, "The word of the Lord, which he spoke by the hand of his slave Eliou the Thesbite, saying, 'In the portion of Iezrael the dogs shall devour the flesh of Iezabel, and the carcass of Iezabel shall be like dung on the surface of the field in the portion of Iezrael so that they shall not say, It is Iezabel.'"

10 And Achaab had seventy sons in Samaria. And Iou wrote a letter and sent it into Samaria, to the rulers of Samaria and to the elders and to the guardians of the sons of Achaab, saying, 2 And now, whenever this letter comes to you—with you are the sons of your master, and with you are the chariot and the horses and strong cities and the weapons—and you shall notice the good and the upright one among the sons of your master, and you shall set him on the throne of his father and fight for the house of your master." 4 And they were extremely afraid and said, "Look, the two kings did not stand before him, and how shall we stand?" 5 And those over the house and those over the city and the elders and the guardians sent to Iou, saying, "We are your servants, and whatever you say to us, we will do. We will not make a man king; we will do what is good in your sight." 6 And he wrote them a second letter, saying, "If you are for me and you listen to my voice, take the heads of the men of the sons of your master, and bring them to me around this time tomorrow in Iezrael."

And the sons of the king were seventy men. These as prominent men of the city were bringing them up. 7 And it happened, when the letter came to them, that they took the sons of the king and slaughtered them, seventy men, and they put their heads in baskets and sent them to him in Iezrael.

8And the messenger came and reported, saying, "They brought the heads of the sons of the king." And he said, "Lay them in two heaps at the entrance of the gate until morning." 9And it happened in the morning that he went out and stood in the gateway of the city and said to all the people, "You are righteous. Behold, I am—I conspired against my master and killed him, but who struck all these? 10Know aaphphoa that there shall fall to my master and killed him, but who struck against him that the Lord spoke concerning the house of Achaab, and the Lord did what he said by the hand of his slave Eliou." 11And lou struck all who were left in the house of Achaab in Iezrael, and all his prominent men and his acquaintances and his priests, so as not to leave a remnant of him.

12 And he set out and went to Samaria. He was in Baithakad of the shepherds, on the way, and lou found the brothers of Ochozias, king of louda, and said, "Who are you?" And they said, "We are the brothers of Ochozias, and we came down for the peace of the sons of the king and the sons of the woman who holds power." 13And he said, "Take them alive." And they took them alive and slaughtered them at Baithakad, forty-two men; he left not a man of them.

14 And he went from there and found Ionadab son of Rechab on the way to meet him, and he blessed him. And lou said to him, "Is your heart right with my heart as my heart is with your heart?" And Ionadab said, "It is." And lou said, "And if it is, give me your hand." And he gave him his hand, and he brought him up to him on the chariot. 15And he said to him, "Come with me, and see while I am zealous for the Lord Sabaoth." And he sat him down in his chariot. 16And he entered into Samaria and struck all who were left to Achaab in Samaria until he wiped them out, according to the word of the Lord that he spoke to Eliou.

17 And lou assembled all the people and said to them, "Achaab was subject to Baal a little, and with trickery in order to destroy the slaves of Baal. 18And lou said, "Sanctify a solemn festival for Baal." And they proclaimed it. 19And lou sent in all the sons of the king and the sons of the peace of the sons of the king, and of the sacred robes brought them out for them. 20And lou said to the man over the house of Baal, and he said to the slaves of Baal, "Search, and see if there is among you any of the slaves of the Lord, but only the slaves of Baal all alone." 21And he entered to make the sacrifices and the whole burnt offerings.

And lou arranged for himself eighty men outside and said, "A man, whoever is rescued from the men whom I bring into your hands—his life in place of his life." 22And it happened, as he finished making the whole burnt offering, that lou said to the runners and to the number-three men, "As you enter, strike them; let not a man come out from them." And they struck them with an edge of a sword. And the runners and the number-three men threw them out, and they proceeded to a city of a house of Baal. 23And they brought out the stele of Baal and burned it. 24And they pulled down the steles of Baal and tore down the house of Baal and arranged it into latrines to this day.

25 And lou wiped out Baal from Israel. 26Yet, from the sins of Ieroboam son of Nabat, who made Israel sin, lou did not depart from behind them—the golden heifers in Baithel and in Dan. And the Lord said to lou, "Because of what you did well in doing what is right in my sight, and all that was in my heart you did to the house of Achaab, fourth sons shall sit for you on the throne of Israel." 27But lou did not take care to walk in the law of the Lord God of Israel with his whole heart; he did not depart from upon the sins of Ieroboam son of Nabat, who made Israel sin.

31 And in those days the Lord began to cut off parts in Israel. And Hazael struck them within every boundary of Israel: 32from the Jordan to the rising of the sun, all the land of Galaad, of Gaddi and of Rouben and of Manasses from Aroer, which is by the bank of the wadi Arnon, and Galaad and Basan. 34And the rest of the histories of lou and all that he did and all his dominance and the collusions in which he colluded, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Israel? 35And lou slept with his fathers, and they buried him in Samaria, and Ioaichas his son reigned in his stead. 36And the days that lou reigned over Israel in Samaria were twenty-eight years.

11 And Gotholia, the mother of Ochozias, saw that her sons had died, she then destroyed all the seed of the kingdom. 2And losabee daughter of King Ioram, sister of Ochozias, took losa son of her brother and stole him from among the sons of the king who were being put to death, him and his nurse—in the chamber of the beds—and she hid him from before Gotholia, and he was not put to death. 3And he was with her in the Lord’s house, hidden for six years, and Gotholia was reigning over the land.

4 And in the seventh year Iodae the priest sent and took the commanders of hundreds, Chorri and Rasim, and brought them to him into the Lord’s house. And he made a covenant of the Lord with them and made them swear in the sight of the Lord, and Iodae showed them the son of the king. And he commanded them, saying, “This is the thing that you shall do: let one-third of you enter on the sabbath, and you shall keep watch of the king’s house in the gateway, 6 and one-third in the gate of the roads, and one-third at the gate behind the runners, and you shall keep watch of the house, 7 and two hands a are among you—every one who goes out on the sabbath—and they shall keep watch of the Lord’s house for the king. 8 and you, surround the king all round, a man and his weapon in his hand. And he who enters into the saderoth b shall die.” And he c was with the king in his going out and in his going in.

9 And the commanders of hundreds did all that Iodae the wise commanded, and a man took his men who were going in on the sabbath with those who were going out on the sabbath and entered to Iodae the priest. 10 And the priest gave to the officers of hundreds the barbed lances and the thirds d of King Dauid, which were in the Lord’s house, 11 and the runners stood, a man and his weapon in his hand, from the right shoulder of the house to the left shoulder of the house, by the altar and the house, near the king all round. 12 And he sent out the son of the king and put on him the nezer e and the testimony, and he made him king and anointed him, and they clapped with the hand and said, “Let the king live!”

13 And Gotholia heard the noise of the running of the people, and she entered into the Lord’s house to the people. 14 And she looked, and behold, the king stood near the pillar, according to the judgment, and the singers and the trumpets by the king, and all the people of the land rejoicing and trumpeting with trumpets. And Gotholia tore her own clothes and shouted, “Collusion! Collusion!” 15 And Iodae the priest commanded the officers of hundreds who watch over the force and said to them, “Bring her out from inside the saderoth b, and he who goes in behind her, by death he shall be put to death by sword.” For the priest said, “Indeed she should not die in the Lord’s house.” 16 And they laid hands on her, and she entered by way of the horses’ entrance of the king’s house, and she died there.

17 And Iodae made a covenant between the Lord and between the king and between the people, that they should be the Lord’s people, also between the king and between the people. 18 And all the people of the land entered into a house of Baal and pulled it down, and his altars and his images they smashed well, and they killed Matthan, the priest of Baal, in front of the altars. And the priests who guard the threshold gave all the money that was found in the Lord’s house. 19 And they said to them, “Why is it that you were not strengthening the bedek f of the house? And now, do not take money from your sales, because you shall donate it for the bedek f of the house.”

20(8) And the priests agreed not to take money from the people and not to strengthen the bedek f of the house.

21(9) And Iodae the priest took one chest and bored a hole on its lid and set it beside iamibing in the house of a man of the Lord’s house, and the priests who guard the threshold gave all the money that was found in the Lord’s house. 11(10) And it happened, when they saw that the money in the chest was much, that the secretary of the king went up, and the great priest and they bundled and counted the money that was found in the Lord’s house. 12(11) And they gave the money that had been prepared into the hands of those doing the work of the overseers of the Lord’s house, and they paid it out to the workers in wood and to the builders who were working in the Lord’s house. 13(12) And to the wall-builders and to the querriers of stone to buy wood and quarried stone to restrain the bedek f of the Lord’s house, for all that was paid on the house to strengthen it. 14(13) Yet, there shall not be made for the Lord’s house silver doors, nails, saucers and trumpets, any golden vessel and silver vessel, from the money that was brought into the Lord’s house. 15(14) Yet, there shall not be made for the Lord’s house silver doors, nails, saucers and trumpets, any golden vessel and silver vessel, from the money that was brought into the Lord’s house. 16(15) And they were not computing the men into whose hands they were giving the money to give to those doing the work, for they dealt honestly. 17(16) Money for sin and money for error, whatever was brought into the Lord’s house, belonged to the priests.

18(17) Then Hazael, king of Syria, went up and fought against Geth and seized it in advance for himself. And Hazael fixed his face to go up against Jerusalem. 19(18) And Ioas, king of Iouda, took all the holy things that Iosaphat and Ioram and Ochozias, his fathers and kings of Iouda, had dedicated, and his own holy things and all the gold that was found in the treasuries of the Lord’s house and of the king’s house and sent these to Hazael, king of Syria, and he went up from Jerusalem.

20(19) And the rest of the histories of Ioas and all that he did, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Iouda?

In a year, the twenty-third year of Ioas son of Iouda, Ioahas son of Ioas became king over Ierousalem. 21(20) And his slaves arose and bound an entire bond and struck Ioas in Mallo’s house in Gaalla.

22(21) And Iezichar son of Iemouath and Iezebouth, his son Somer, his slaves, struck him, and he died. And they buried him with his fathers in the city of Dauid and Amessias his son reigned in his stead.

13 In a year, the twenty-third year of Ioas son of Ochozias, king of Iouda, Ioahas son of Ioas became king in Samaria for seventeen years. 2And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord and went after the sins of Ieroboam son of Nabat, who made Israel sin; he did not depart from them. 3And the Lord grew angry with rage in Israel and gave them into the hand of Hazael, king of Syria, and into the hand of Hader’s son, son of Hazael, all the days. 4And Ioahas entreated the face of the Lord, and the Lord heeded him, for he saw the oppression of Israel, that Syria’s king oppressed them. 5And the Lord gave Israel deliverance, and they went out from under the hand of Syria, and the sons of Israel sat in their coverts as yesterday and the day before. 6Yet, they did not depart from the sins of the house of Ieroboam, who made Israel sin; they walked in them, and indeed the sacred grove stood in Samaria. 7For there was not left to the sons of Israel sat in their coverts as yesterday and the day before. 6Yet, they did not depart from the sins of the house of Ieroboam, who made Israel sin; they walked in them, and indeed the sacred grove stood in Samaria.

8And the rest of the histories of Ioas and all that he did and all his acts of dominance, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Israel? 13And Ioas slept with his fathers, and Ieroboam sat upon his throne in Samaria with the sons of Israel.

14 And Elisaie had become sick with his sickness by which he died. And Ioas, king of Israel, went down to him and wept on his face and said, “Father, Father! Chariot of Israel and its horseman!” 15And Elisaie said to him, “Take a bow and arrows,” and he took to himself a bow and arrows. 16And he said to the king, “Put your hand on the bow,” and Ioas put his hand on the bow. And Elisaie laid his hands on the hands of the king. 17And he said, “Open the window eastward,” and he opened it. And Elisaie said, “Shoot,” and he shot. And he said, “The Lord’s arrow of deliverance, and arrow of deliverance in Syria! And you shall strike Syria in Aphek until completion.” 18And Elisaie said to him, “Take bows,” and he took them. And he said to the king of Israel, “Strike the ground,” and the king struck three times and stopped.

19And the man of God was grieved at him and said, “If you had struck five times or six times, then you would have struck Syria until completion, but now you will strike Syria three times.”

20 And Elisaie died, and they buried him. And lightly armed men of Moab came in the land when the year came. 21And it happened, when they were burying the man, that behold, they saw the lightly armed man, and they threw the man in the grave of Elisaie, and he went and touched the bones of Elisaie, and he revived and stood up on his feet.

22 And Hazael oppressed Israel all the days of Ioas. 23But the Lord had mercy on them and had compassion on them and had regard for them, because of his covenant with Abraam and Isaak and Iakob, and the Lord did not want to destroy them, and he did not banish them from his face.

24 And Hazael, king of Syria, died, and Hader’s son, his son, reigned in his stead. 25And Ioas son of Ioahas returned and took from the hand of Hader’s son, son of Hazael, the towns that he had taken from the hand of Ioahas his father in the war. Three times Ioas struck him and returned the towns of Israel.

14 In the second year of Ioas son of Ioahas, king of Israel, Amessias son of Ioas, king of Iouda, also became king. 2He was a son of twenty-five years when he became king, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Ierousalem. And his mother’s name was Loadin of Ierousalem. 3And he did what was right in the sight of the Lord, yet not like Dauid his father; he did according to all things that Ioas his father had done. 4Yet, he did not remove the high places; the people were still sacrificing and making incense offerings on the high places. 5And it happened, when the royal power was firm in his hand, that he struck his slaves who had struck his father. 6And he did not put to death the sons of those who had struck, just as it is written in the book of the laws of Moyses, as the Lord commanded, saying, "Fathers shall not be put to death for sons, and sons shall not be put to death for fathers, but only each one shall be put to death by his own sins."

7 He struck Edom in Gaimele—ten thousand—and seized the Rock in the battle, and he called its name Kathoel—until this day.

8 Then Amessias sent messengers to Ioas son of Ioachas son of Iou, king of Israel, saying, "Come, let us be seen by faces." 9 And Ioas, king of Israel, sent to Amessias, king of Iouda, saying, "The akana that was in Lebanon sent to the cedar that was in Lebanon, saying, 'Give your daughter to my son for a wife,' and the wild animals of the field that were in Lebanon passed through and trampled down the akana. 10 Wounding you struck Idumea, and your heart lifted you up. Be glorified sitting in your house, and why do you strive in your wickedness? And you shall fall, you and Ioudab with you."

11 And Amessias did not listen. And the king of Israel went up, and he and Amessias, king of Iouda, were seen by faces in Baithsamys, which belonged to Iouda. 12 And Ioudab fell from before Isra-

14 And he took the gold and the silver and all the vessels that were found in the Lord’s house and in the treasuries of the king’s house, and the sons of the comminglings, and he returned to Samaria.

15 And the rest of the histories of Ioas, what he did in his dominance, which things he fought about with Amessias, king of Iouda, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Israel? 16 And Ioas slept with his fathers and was buried in Samaria with the kings of Israel, and Iero-boaam his son reigned in his stead.

17 And Amessias son of Ioas, king of Iouda, lived fifteen years after Ioas son of Ioachas, king of Israel, died. 18 And the rest of the histories of Amessias and all that he did, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Iouda? 19 And they conspired a conspiracy against him in Ierousalem, and he fled to Lachis. And they sent after him to Lachis and put him to death there. 20 And they took him up on horses, and he was buried in Ierousalem with his fathers in the city of Dauid. 21 And all the people of Iouda took Azarias—and he was a son of sixteen years—and made him king instead of his father Amessias.

22 He built Ailoth and returned it to Iouda, after the king slept with his fathers.

23 In the fifteenth year of Amessias son of Ioas, king of Iouda, Ieroboaam son of Ioas became king instead of his father Amessias. 24 And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord; he did not depart from any of the sins of Ieroboam son of Nabat, who made Israel sin. 25 He removed the border of Israel from the entrance of Haimath as far as the Sea of the Araba, according to the word of the Lord, God of Israel, which he spoke by the hand of his slave Ionas son of Amathi, the prophet who was from Gethchober. 26 For the Lord saw that the humiliation of Israel was very bitter and that they were few, bound and in want and abandoned, and there was no one to help Israel. 27 And the Lord had not said that he would wipe out the seed of Israel from under heaven, and he saved them by the hand of Ieroboaam son of Ioas.

28 And the rest of the histories of Ieroboam and all that he did and all his acts of dominance, what he fought about and how he turned against Damascus and Haimath belonging to Iouda in Israel, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Israel? 29 And Ieroboaam slept with his fathers, with the kings of Israel, and Azarias son of Amessias reigned in his father’s stead.

15 In the twenty-seventh year of Ieroboaam, king of Israel, Azarias son of Amessias, king of Iouda, became king. 2 He was a son of sixteen years when he became king, and he reigned fifty-two years in Ierousalem. And his mother’s name was Chalia of Ierousalem. 3 And he did what was right in the sight of the Lord, according to all things that Amessias his father had done. 4 Yet, he did not remove any of the high places; the people were still sacrificing and making incense offerings on the high places. 5 And the Lord touched the king, and he was leprous to the day of his death, and he reigned in a house aphemusothe. And Ioatham, the king’s son, was in charge of the house, judging the people of the land. 6 And the rest of the histories of Azarias and all that he did, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Iouda? 7 And Azarias slept with his fathers, and they buried him with his fathers in the city of Dauid, and Ioatham his son reigned in his stead.

8 In the thirty-eighth year of Azarias, king of Iouda, Zacharias son of Ieroboam became king over Israel in Samaria for six months. 9 And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, just as his fathers had done. He did not depart from the sins of Ieroboam son of Nabat, who made Israel sin. 10 And Selloam son of Iabis and Keblaam conspired against him, and they struck him and put him to death, and Selloam reigned in his stead. 11 And the rest of the histories of Zacharias, behold, they are written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Israel. 12 The word of the Lord it was, that he spoke to Iou, saying, “Fourth sons shall sit for you on the throne of Israel.” And so it happened.

13 And Selloam son of Iabis became king, and in the thirty-ninth year of Azarias, king of Iouda, Selloam reigned a month of days in Samaria. 14 And Manaem son of Gaddi went up from Tharsila and came to Samaria, and he struck Selloam son of Iabis in Samaria and put him to death.

In the thirty-ninth year of Azarias, king of Iouda, Manaem son of Gaddi also became king over Israel for ten years in Samaria. And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord; he did not depart from any of the sins of Ieroboam son of Nabat, who made Israel sin. In his days Phoul, king of the Assyrians, went up against the land, and Manaem gave Phoul a thousand talents of silver for his hand to be with him. And Manaem brought out the money against Israel, against every powerful man with strength, to give to the king of the Assyrians, fifty shekels for one man. And the Assyrians’ king turned back and did not stay there in the land. And the rest of the histories of Manaem and all that he did, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Israel? And Manaem slept with his fathers, and Phakeias his son reigned in his stead.

In the fiftieth year of Azarias, king of Iouda, Phakeias son of Manaem became king over Israel in Samaria for two years. And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord; he did not depart from the sins of Ieroboam son of Nabat, who made Israel sin. And Phakee son of Romelias, his number-three man, conspired against him and struck him in Samaria in front of the king’s house with Argob and with Aria, and with him were fifty men from the four hundred, and he put him to death and reigned in his stead. And the rest of the histories of Phakeias and all that he did, behold, they are written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Israel.

In the fifty-second year of Azarias, king of Iouda, Phakee son of Romelias became king over Israel in Samaria for twenty years. And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord; he did not depart from any of the sins of Ieroboam son of Nabat, who made Israel sin.

In the days of Phakee, king of Israel, Thaglathphellasar, king of the Assyrians, came and took Ain and Abelbaithamaacha and Ianoch and Kenez and Hasor and Galaad and Galilee, all the land of Nephthali, and he exiled them to the Assyrians. And Hosee son of Ela conspired a conspiracy against Phakee son of Romelias and struck him and put him to death, and he reigned in his stead in the twentieth year of Ioatham son of Azarias. And the rest of the histories of Phakee and all that he did, behold, they are written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Israel.

In the second year of Phakee son of Romelias, king of Iouda, Ioatham son of Azarias, king of Iouda, became king. He was a son of twenty-five years when he became king, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerousalem. And his mother’s name was Ierousa daughter of Zadok.

In the seventeenth year of Phakee son of Romelias, Achaz son of Ioatham, king of Iouda, became king. Achaz was a son of twenty years when he became king, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerousalem. And he did what was right in the sight of the Lord, according to all that Azariasb his father had done. Yet, he did not remove the high places; the people were still sacrificing and making incense offerings on the high places. He built the upper gate of the Lord’s house. And the rest of the histories of Ioatham and all that he did, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Iouda?

In those days the Lord began to send out in Iouda Raasson, king of Syria, and Phakee son of Romelias. And Ioatham slept with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of Dauid his father and Achaz his son reigned in his stead.

Then Raasson, king of Syria, went up, and Phakee son of Romelias, king of Israel, against Jerousalem to war, and they were laying siege against Achaz but could not wage war. At that time Raasson, king of Syria, returned Ailath to Syria and drove out the Judeans from Ailath, and the Idumeans came to Ailath and lived there to this day. And Achaz sent messengers to Thaglathphellasar, king of the Assyrians, saying, “I am your slave and your son. Come up, and rescue me from the hand of the king of Syria and from the hand of the king of Israel, who are rising up against me.” And Achaz took the silver and the gold that was found in the treasuries of the Lord’s house and the king’s house and sent presents to the king. And the Assyrians’ kingdom went up against Damascus and captured it and exiled it, and he put Raasson to death.

And King Achaz went to meet Thaglathphellasar, king of the Assyrians, in Damascus and saw the altar in Damascus. And King Achaz sent to Ourias the priest the likeness of the altar and its pattern for its entire construction. And Ourias the priest built the altar in accordance with all that King Achaz had sent from Damascus. And the king saw the altar and went up on it and burnt for smoke his whole burnt offering and his sacrifice and his libation and poured the blood of his peace items on the altar. And the bronze altar that was before the sons of Israel. And he was sacrificing and making incense offerings on the high places and on the hills and under every woodland tree.

And the Assyrians’ king listened to him, and the Assyrians’ king went up against the land of Nephthali, and he exiled it, and he put Raasson to death.

And the lid of the altar that was before the sons of Israel. And he was sacrificing and making incense offerings on the high places and on the hills and under every woodland tree.

17 And King Achaz cut off the borders of the mechonoth and removed the washbasin from them, and he took down the sea from the bronze oxen that were under it and put it on a stone pavement. 18 And he built the foundation of the seat in the Lord’s house, and he turned the outer entrance of the king in the Lord’s house from before the Assyrians’ king. 19 And the rest of the histories of Achaz, what he did, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Iouda? 20 And Achaz slept with his fathers and was buried in the city of Dauid, and Hezekias his son reigned in his stead.

17 In the twelfth year of Achaz, king of Iouda, Hosee son of Ela became king in Samaria over Israel for nine years. 2 And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, yet not like the kings of Israel who were before him. 3 Salamanasar, king of the Assyrians, went up against him, and Hosee became his slave and returned to him manaab. 4 And the Assyrians’ king found injustice in Hosee, for he had sent messengers to Segor, king of Egypt, and brought no manaab to the king of the Assyrians in that year, and the king of the Assyrians besieged him and bound him in a prison house. 5 And the king of the Assyrians went up in all the land and went up against Samaria and laid siege against it for three years. 6 In the ninth year of Hosee the Assyrians’ king captured Samaria, and he exiled Israel to the Assyrians and made them dwell in Halae and in Habor, at rivers of Gozan and Ored of Medes.

7 And it happened, because the sons of Israel had sinned against the Lord, their God, who had brought them up out of the land of Egypt from under the hand of Pharaoh, king of Egypt. And they feared other gods 8 and walked in the statutes of the nations whom the Lord drove out from before the sons of Israel, both the kings of Israel, as many as did it, 9 and the sons of Israel, as many as clothed themselves with words, not just against the Lord, their God. And they built for themselves high places in all their towns, from tower for watchers to strong city. 10 And they erected for themselves stelae and sacred groves on every high hill and under every woodland tree, 11 and there they made incense offerings on all high places, just as the nations whom the Lord exiled from before them. And they made partners and engraved to provoke the Lord to anger, 12 and they served the idols of which the Lord had said to them, “You shall not do this thing to the Lord.” 13 And the Lord testified in Israel and in Iouda by the hand of all his prophets, every seer, saying, “Turn away from your evil ways, and keep my commandments and my statutes and all the law that I commanded your fathers, which I sent to you by the hand of my slaves the prophets.” 14 But they did not listen, but hardened their back more than the back of their fathers. 15 And his testimonies that he testified to them they did not keep but went after the worthless things and were rendered worthless and after the nations that were around them of whom he had commanded them not to do in accordance with these. 16 They forsook the commandments of the Lord, their God, and made for themselves something cast, two heifers, and made sacred groves and did obeisance to all the host of heaven and served Baal. 17 And they conducted their sons and their daughters into fire, and they were divining and practicing ornithomancy, and they were sold to do what was evil in the sight of the Lord to provoke him to anger. 18 And the Lord became very angry with Israel and removed them from his face, and none was left except Iouda’s tribe alone.

19 And indeed Iouda did not keep the commandments of the Lord, their God, but walked in the statutes of Israel, which they practiced, 20 and they rejected the Lord among all the offspring of Israel, who were before him. 21 They did not keep but went after the worthless things and were rendered worthless and after the nations that were around them of whom he had commanded them not to do in accordance with these. 22 And they did not depart from it until the Lord removed Israel from his sight, just as the Lord had spoken by the hand of all his slaves the prophets. And Israel was exiled from upon its own land to the Assyrians until this day.

24 And the Assyrians’ king brought from Babylon the people from Chountha and from Aia and from Haimath and Sepharouain, and they were made to dwell in the cities of Samaria instead of the sons of Israel, and they took possession of Samaria and dwelt in its cities. 25 And it happened, at the beginning of their sitting, that they did not fear the Lord, and the Lord sent lions among them, and they were killing among them. 26 And they told the king of the Assyrians, saying, “The nations that you exiled and placed instead in the cities of Samaria did not know the judgment of the god of the land, and he sent lions against them, and behold, they are putting them to death, because they do not know the judgment of the god of the land.” 27 And the king of the Assyrians commanded, saying, “Bring from yonder, and let them go and dwell
there, and they shall enlighten them about the judgment of the god of the land." 28And they brought one of the priests whom they had exiled from Samaria, and he stayed in Baithel, and he was enlightening them how they should fear the Lord. 29 And nations by nations were making their own gods, and they put them in the house of the high places that the Samaritans had made, nations in their cities, them in which they dwelt. 30And the men of Babylon made Sokchothbainim, and the men of Chouth made Nerigel, and the men of Haimath made Asimath, 31And the Euites made Ebabler and Tharthak, and the Sepharouain burned up their sons in fire to Adramelech and Anemelech, gods of Sepharouain. 32And they were fearing the Lord, and they caused their abominations to dwell in the houses of the high places that they had made in Samaria, nation by nation in a city, that in which they dwelt, and they were fearing the Lord, and they made for themselves priests of the high places, and they acted for them in the house of the high places. 33They were fearing the Lord and serving their own gods according to the judgment of the nations, there where he had exiled them. 34To this day they were acting according to their judgment. They fear, and they act according to their statutes and according to their judgment and according to the law and according to the commandment that the Lord commanded the sons of Iakob, him whose name he made Israel. 35And the Lord had made a covenant with them and commanded them, saying, "You shall not fear other gods, and you shall not do obeisance to them, and you shall not serve them, and you shall not sacrifice to them, 36but only to the Lord, who brought you up out of the land of Egypt with great strength and with a high arm, him you shall fear, and to him you shall do obeisance, and to him you shall sacrifice. 37And the statutes and the judgments and the law and the commandments that he wrote for you, be careful to observe them all the days. And you shall not fear other gods, and the covenant that he made with you, you shall not forget. And you shall not fear other gods, but only the Lord, your God, you shall fear, and he will deliver you from all your enemies. 40And you shall not listen to their judgment that they practice." 41 But these nations were fearing the Lord, and they were subject to their carved images, and in deed the sons and the sons of their sons do to this day as their fathers did. 18And it happened in the third year of Hosee son of Ela, king of Israel, that Hezekias son of Achaz, king of Iouda, became king. 2He was a son of twenty-five years when he became king, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Ierousalem. And his mother's name was Abou daughter of Zacharias. 3And he did what was right in the sight of the Lord according to all that Daud his father had done. 4He removed the high places and smashed all the steles and utterly destroyed the sacred groves and the bronze snake that Moyses had made, for until those days the sons of Israel had been making incense offerings to it, and he called it Neesthan. 5He hoped in the Lord God of Israel, and there was no one like him among the kings of Iouda after him or among those who were before him. 6And he clung to the Lord; he did not depart from behind him but kept his commandments that he had commanded Moyses. 7And the Lord was with him; in all that he was doing he understood. And he rebelled against the king of the Assyrians and was not subject to him. 8He struck the allophyles as far as Gaza and as far as its territory, from a tower of watchers even to a strong city. 9And it happened in the fourth year of King Hezekias (it was the seventh year of Hosee son of Ela, king of Israel) that Salamanassar, king of the Assyrians, went up against Samaria and was laying siege against it, 10and he seized it at the end of three years, in the sixth year of Hezekias (it was the ninth year of Hosee, king of Israel), and Samaria was captured. 11And the Assyrians' king exiled Samaria to the Assyrians and put them in Halae and in Habor, at a river of Gozan and Ore of Medes, 12because they did not obey the voice of the Lord, their God, but transgressed his covenant—all that Moyses the slave of the Lord had commanded, and they did not listen and did not act. 13And in the fourteenth year of King Hezekias, Sennacherim, king of the Assyrians, went up against the strong cities of Iouda and captured them. 14And Hezekias, king of Iouda, sent messengers to the Assyrians' king to Lachis, saying, "I have done wrong; turn away from me; whatever you impose on me I will bear." And the king of the Assyrians imposed on Hezekias, king of Iouda, three hundred talents of silver and thirty talents of gold. 15And Hezekias gave him all the silver that was found in the Lord's house and in the treasures of the king's house. 16At that time Hezekias cut off the doors of the Lord's shrine and the doorposts that Hezekias, king of Iouda, had gilded and gave them to the Assyrians' king. 17And the Assyrians' king sent Tharthak and Raphis and Rapsakes from Lachis to King Hezekias with a heavy force against Ierousalem. And they went up and came to Ierousalem and stood by the conduit of the upper pool, which is by the way of the fuller's field. 18And they shouted to Hezekias, and there came out to him Eliakim son of Chelkias, the household manager, and Somnas, the secretary, and loas son of Asaph, the recorder. 19And Rapsakes said to them, "Do say to Hezekias: This is what the king, the great king of the Assyrians, says: What is this confidence on which you rely? 20You said, 'Mere words of lips are strategy and power for war.' Now then, on whom do you rely, that you rebelled against me? 21Now behold, you have entrusted yourself to this broken reed rod, to Egypt; whatever man is supported on it, it will also enter into his hand and pierce it. Thus is Pharaoh, king of Egypt, to all who rely on him. 22And since you said to me, ‘We rely on the Lord God,’ is not he this one whose high places and altars Hezekias removed, and he said to Iouda, and to lerousaleam, ‘You shall do obeisance before this altar in lerousaleam?’ 23And now, do be joined with my master, king of the Assyrians, and I will give you two thousand horses, if you will be able on your part to put riders on them. 24And how will you turn away the face of a single toparch of the least of the slaves of my master? And you hoped for yourself on Egypt for chariots and horsemen. 25And now, is it without the Lord that we came up against this place to destroy it? The Lord said to me, ‘Go up against this land, and destroy it.’ ”

26 And Eliakim son of Chelkias, and Somnas and Ioas, said to Rapsakes, “Do speak to your servants in the Syrian language, for we understand it, but you shall not speak with us in Judean, and why do you speak within the hearing of the people who are on the wall?” 27And Rapsakes said to them, “Did my master send me to speak these words to your master and to you, not to the men sitting on the wall, to eat their own dung and to drink their own urine together with you?”

28 And Rapsakes stood and called out in a loud voice in Judean and spoke and said, “Hear the words of the great king of the Assyrians! 29This is what the king says: ‘Do not let Hezekias stir you up with words, for he shall not be able to deliver you out of my hand. 30And do not let Hezekias buoy you up with hope in the Lord by saying: Delivering the Lord will deliver us, this city shall not be given in the hand of the Assyrians’ king. 31Do not listen to Hezekias, for this is what the king of the Assyrians says: ‘Make a blessing with me, and come out to me, and a man shall drink his own vine, and a man shall eat his own fig tree and drink water from his own cistern until I come and take you to a land like your own land, a land of grain and wine and bread and vineyards, a land of olive oil and honey, and you shall live and not die. And do not listen to Hezekias, for he misleads you by saying, The Lord will deliver us. 33Did the gods of the nations, each by delivering, deliver his own land out of the hand of the Assyrians’ king? 34Where is the god of Haimath and Arphad? Where is the god of Sepharouain? And is it that they delivered Samaria out of my hand? 35Who is there among all the gods of the lands who delivered their lands out of my hand, that the Lord shall deliver lerousaleam out of my hand? ”

36 And they were silent and answered him not a word, for there was the king’s command, saying, “You shall not answer him.” 37And Eliakim son of Chelkias, the household manager, and Somnas, the secretary, and Ioas son of Asaph, the recorder, entered to Hezekias with their clothes torn and reported to him the words of Rapsakes.

19 And it happened, when King Hezekias heard it, that he tore his own clothes and put on sackcloth and entered into the Lord’s house. 2And he sent Eliakim, the household manager, and Somnas, the secretary, and the elders of the priests, clothed in sackcloth, to Esaias the prophet son of Amos. 3And they said to him, “This is what Hezekias says, This day is a day of distress and of rebuke and of provocation, for sons came to the point of birth pains, but she who gives birth has no strength. 4If somehow the Lord, your God, will hear all the words of Rapsakes, whom his master, king of the Assyrians, sent to mock a living god and to blaspheme with words that the Lord, your God, heard, you shall also undertake prayer for the remnant that is found.” 5And the servants of King Hezekias came to Esaias, and Esaias said to them, “This is what you shall say to your master, This is what the Lord says: Do not be afraid because of the words that you heard, with which the lads of the Assyrians’ king blasphemed. 6Behold, I myself am putting a spirit in him, and he shall hear a message and return to his own land, and I will strike him down by a sword in his own land.’ ”

8 And Rapsakes returned and found the king of the Assyrians fighting against Lomna, for he had heard that he had departed from Lachis. 9And he heard concerning Tharaka, king of the Ethiopians, saying, “Behold, he went out to fight with you.” And he returned and sent messengers to Hezekias, saying, 10“Do not let your God, him on whom you rely upon, stir you up by saying, Jerousaleam shall not be given into the hands of the Assyrians’ king. 11Behold, you heard everything that the Assyrians’ kings did to all the lands to anathematize them. And shall you be rescued? 12Did the gods of the nations that my fathers destroyed deliver them: both Gozan and Charran and Raphes and Edem’s sons, who were in Thaesthen? 13Where is the king of Haimath and the king of Arphad, and where is Seppharouain, Hana and Aua?”

14 And Hezekias took the documents from the hand of the messengers and read them, and he went up to the Lord’s house, and Hezekias unrolled them before the Lord. 15And he said: “O Lord God of Israel, who sits on the cheroubin, you alone are God in all the kingdoms of the earth; you made heaven and earth. 16Incline your ear, O Lord, and hear: open your eyes, O Lord, and see, and hear the words of Sennacherim, which he sent to mock a living god. 17For truly, O Lord, the Assyrians’ kings laid waste the nations and gave their gods into the fire, for they were no gods but works of human hands—wood and stone—and they destroyed them. 18And now, O Lord, our God, save us from his hand, and all the kingdoms of the earth shall know that you are the Lord, God alone.”

20 And Esaias son of Amos sent to Hezekias, saying, “This is what the Lord, the God of hosts, the God of Israel, says: I heard what you prayed to me about Sennacherim, king of the Assyrians. 21This is the word that the Lord spoke against him: Virgin daughter Sion made nothing of you...”
22 Whom did you mock and revile? And against whom did you raise your voice and lift your eyes on high? Against the Holy One of Israel!

23 By the hand of your messengers you mocked the Lord and said, 'With the multitude of my chariots I shall ascend to a height of mountains, thighs of Lebanon, and I felled the greatness of its cedar, the choicest of its cypresses, and I came to a melon of its end, forest of his Carmel.

24 I sought the cool air and drank foreign waters, and I made desolate with the sole of my foot all the streams of enclosure.

25 I shaped it; now I brought it, and it turned into risings of warlike colonies, strong cities.

26 And the inhabitants in them were weak with the hand; they cowered and were put to shame; they became fodder of the field, or green pasture, grass on the housetops, and trodden opposite him who stands.'

27 And I knew your sitting and your exiting and your entering and your rage against me.

28 Because you grew angry against me and your wantonness came up in my ears, and I will put my hooks in your nostrils and a bit in your lips; I will turn you back in the way, in that by which you came.

29 "And this shall be the sign for you: You shall eat this year what grows of itself, and in the second year what springs up, and in the third year, sowing and reaping and planting of vineyards, and you shall eat their fruit. 30 And the saved remainder of Lourda's house shall add root downward and bear fruit upward; for from Jerusalem a remnant shall go out, and from Mount Sion he who is being returned safe. The zeal of the Lord of hosts shall do this.

30 In those days Hezekias became sick unto death. And Esaia son of Amos, the prophet, entered to him and said to him, "This is what the Lord says: Order your house, for you are dying; you shall not live." 2 And Hezekias turned his face to the wall and prayed to the Lord, saying: 3 "Do, O Lord, do remember how I walked before you in truth and with a full heart and did what is good in your sight." And Hezekias wept with a great weeping.

4 And Esaia was in the middle court, and a word of the Lord came to him, saying: 5 "Turn back, and you shall say to Hezekias, the leader of my people, This is what the Lord, the God of Daud your father says: I heard your prayer; I saw your tears; behold, I will heal you; on the third day you shall go up to the Lord's house. 6 And I will add to your days fifteen years. And I will save you and this city out of the hand of the Assyrians' king, and I will hold a shield over this city, for my own sake and for the sake of Daud my slave." 7 And he said, "Let them take a cake of figs and apply it on the festering sore, and it shall cure him." 8 And Hezekias said to Esaia, "What shall be the sign that the Lord will heal me, and I shall go up to the Lord's house on the third day?" 9 And Esaia said, "This is the sign from the Lord, that the Lord will do the thing that he spoke: Shall the shadow advance ten steps, if it turns ten steps?"

10 And Hezekias said, "It is easy for the shadow to lengthen ten steps; no, but let the shadow return ten steps backwards." 11 And Esaia the prophet cried to the Lord, and the shadow on the stairs returned backwards ten steps.

12 At that time Marodachbaladan son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent documents and manae to Hezekias, for he had heard that Hezekias was sick. 13 And Hezekias rejoiced over them, and he showed them the whole house of the neshoth, the silver and the gold, the spices and the precious oil and the house of the vessels and as much as was found in his storehouses; there was nothing that Hezekias did not show them in his house and in all his realm. 14 And Esaia the prophet entered to King Hezekias and said to him, "What did these men say? And from where did they come to you?" And Hezekias said, "They have come to me from a far country, from Babylon." 15 And he said, "What did they see in your house?" And he said, "They saw all that is in my house; there was nothing in my house that I did not show them, but also what is in my storehouses."

16 And indeed Manasses shed very much innocent blood until he had filled Jerusalemb mouth to mouthb, besides some of his sins that he made louda sin so that they did what was evil in the sight of the Lord.

17 And the rest of the histories of Manasses and all that he did and his sin that he sinned, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Iouda? 18 And Manasses slept with his fathers and was buried in the city of Daud, and Manasses his son reigned in his stead.

19 Amon was a son of twenty-two years when he became king, and he reigned two years in Jeruusalem. And his mother’s name was Hopsib-a. 2And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, according to the abominations of the nations whom the Lord drove out from before the sons of Israel. 3And he turned back and built the high places that Hezekias his father had pulled down, and he erected an altar to the goddess Baal and made sacred groves, just as Achaab, king of Israel,
and he erected an altar to the goddess Baal and
made sacred groves, just as Achaab, king of Israel, and he erected an altar to all the host of heaven in the two courts of the Lord’s house. 6And he conducted his sons into the sight of the Lord, to provoke him to anger.
7And he put the carved image of the sacred grove in the house of which the Lord had said to Daud and to Salomon his son, “In this house and in Jeruusalem, which I chose out of all the tribes of Israel, I will also put my name there forever. 8And I will not add to shake the foot of Israel from the land that I gave to their fathers—whoever will observe everything that I commanded, according to every commandment that my slave Moyses commanded them.” 9And they did not listen, and Manasses misled them to do what was evil in the sight of the Lord, more than the nations that the Lord had annihilated from before the sons of Israel.

10 And the Lord spoke by the hand of his slaves the prophets, saying, 11 Forasmuch as Manasses, the king of Iouda, committed these abominations, evil things froma all that the erstwhile Amorrite

did, and indeed made Iouda sin with their idols.
12Not so! This is what the Lord, the God of Israel, says, Behold, I am bringing evil upon Jerusalemb who hears, will echo. 13And I will stretch out over Jerusalem the measuring line of Samaria and the

And Chelkias the priest said to Saphphan the secretary, “I found a book of the law in the Lord’s house.” And Chelkias gave the book to Saphphan, and he read it. 9And he brought it in to King Josias and returned word to the king and said, “Your slaves tore down the house of the kadesim that were in the precincts of the sun with fire. 10And Saphphan the secretary spoke to the king, saying, “Chelkias the priest gave me a book.” And Saphphan read it aloud in the presence of the king.

11 And it happened, when the king heard the words of the book of the law, that he tore his own clothes. 12And the king commanded Chelkias the priest and Achikam son of Saphphan, and Achobor son of Michaias and Saphphan the secretary and Asaias the king’s slave, saying, 13 “Go, seek out the Lord for me and for all of the people and for all of Iouda, concerning the words of this book that was found, for great is the wrath of the Lord that is blazed out against us, because our fathers did not obey the words of this book, to do according to all that is written against us.”

14 And Chelkias the priest and Achikam and Achobor and Saphphan and Asaias went to Holda the prophetess, wife of Sellem son of Thekoue son of Haras, keeper of the wardrobe, and she was residing in Ierousalem in the masena, and they spoke to her. 15And she said to them, “This is what the Lord, the God of Israel, says: Tell the man who sent you to me, 16This is what the Lord says, Behold, I am bringing evil on this place and on those who dwell in it—all the words of the book that the king of Iouda read, because they abandoned me and were making incense offerings to other gods so that they provoked me to anger with the works of their hands, and my wrath will be blazed out against this place, and it will not be quenched. 18And to the king of Iouda, who sent you to seek after the Lord, this is what you shall say to him, This is what the Lord, the God of Israel, says: As for the words that you heard—19because your heart was softened and you felt shame from before the Lord, when you heard how I spoke against this place and against those who dwell in it, that they should become a desolation and a curse, and you tore your clothes and wept before me, and indeed I heard, says the Lord. 20Not so! Behold, I am adding you to your fathers, and you shall be gathered to your grave in peacê, and there shall not be seen by your eyes among all the evils that I am—I am bringing on this place.” And they returned the message to the king.

2And the king went up to the Lord’s house, and every man of Iouda and all those who dwelt in Ierousalem with him, and the priests and the prophets and all the people from small and to great, and he read in their hearing all the words of the book of the covenant that had been found in the Lord’s house. 3And the king stood by the pillar and made a covenant before the Lord, to walk behind the Lord and to keep his commandments and his testimonies and his statutes with all his heart and with all his soul, to uphold the words of this covenant that were written in this book. And all the people stood firm in the covenant.

4 And the king commanded Chelkias the great priest and the priests of the second order and those who guard the threshold to bring out of the Lord’s shrine all the vessels made for Baal and for the sacred grove and for all the host of heaven, and he burned them outside Ierousalem in sademoth of Kidron and took their dust to Baithel. 5And he put an end to the chomarime whom kings of Iouda had appointed—and they were making incense offerings in the high places and in the cities of Iouda and those around Ierousalem—and those who made incense offerings to Baal and to the sun and to the moon and to the mazourothf and to all the host of heaven. 6And he brought out the sacred grove from the Lord’s house, outside Ierousalem, to the Wadi Kedron, and burned it in the wadi and pulverized it into dust and threw the dust of it into the grave of the sons of the people. 7And he tore down the house of the kadesimg that were in the house of the Lord, there where the women were weaving chettiinh for the sacred grove. 8And he brought up all the priests out of the towns of Iouda and defiled the high places, where there the priests had made incense offerings from Gabaa and as far as Bersabee, and he tore down the house of the gates that was at the entrance of the gate of Iesous, governor of the city, which were from a man’s left in the gate of the city. 9Yet the priests of the high places did not go up to the altar of the Lord in Ierousalem but only ate unleavened bread in the midst of their brothers. 10And he defiled Tapheth, which is in the ravine of Son of Hennom, which was for a man to conduct his son and a man to conduct his daughter to Moloch in fire. 11And he put an end to the horses that the kings of Iouda had dedicated to the sun, in the entrance of the Lord’s house, by the treasury of Nathan, the king’s eunuch, in pharourimi, and he burned the chariot of the sun with fire. 12And the altars on the roof of the upper chamber of Achaz, which the kings of Iouda had made, and the altars that Manasses had made in the two courts of the Lord’s house the king also tore down and pulled down from there and threw their dust into the Wadi Kedron. 13And the king defiled the house that was in front of Ierousalem, on the rightj of the Mount of Mosoathk, which Salomon, king of Israel, had built for As-tarte, offense of the Sidonians, and for Chamos, offense of Moab, and for Molchol, abomination of the sons of Ammon. 14 And he smashed the steles and utterly destroyed the sacred groves and filled their sites with human bones.

15 And indeed the altar in Baithel, the high place that Ieroboam son of Nabat made, who made Israel sin—and indeed that altar and the high place he pulled down. And he smashed its stones and pulverized them into dust and burned the sacred grove. 16 And Iosias turned aside and saw the tombs that were there in the city, and he sent and took the bones out of the tombs and burned them on the altar and defiled it, according to the word of the Lord that the man of God spoke, when Ieroboam stood in the feast by the altar. And turning, he lifted his eyes on the tomb of the man of God who had spoken these words. 17 And he said, “What is that mound that I see?” And the men of the city said to him, “It is the man of God who came out from Iouda and invoked these words that you invoked against the altar of Baithel.” 18 And he said, “Leave it; let no man move his bones.” And they preserved his bones with the bones of the prophet who came out of Samaria.

19 And indeed regarding all the houses of the high places that were in the towns of Samaria, which kings of Israel had made to provoke the Lord to anger—losias removed them and did among them all the works that he had done in Baithel. 20 And he sacrificed all the priests of the high places who were there on the altars and burned the bones of human beings on them. And he returned to Ierousalem.

21 And the king commanded all the people, saying, “Keep the pascha b to the Lord, our God, just as it is written in the book of this covenant.”

22 For this pascha b had not taken place since the days of the judges who were judging Israel and all the days of the kings of Israel and of the kings of Iouda, 23 but only in the eighteenth year of King losias the pascha b to the Lord took place in Ierousalem.

24 And indeed King losias removed those that want and those that know and the theraphim c and the idols and all the offences that were made in the land of Iouda and in Ierousalem so that he established the words of the law that were written in the book that Chelkias the priest had found in the Lord’s house. 25 Before him there was no king like him, who turned to the Lord with his whole heart and with his whole soul and with his whole strength, according to all the law of Moyses, and after him none arose like him.

26 Yet the Lord did not turn away from the fierceness of his great wrath, by which his anger was kindled against Iouda, because of the provocations with which Manasses had provoked him. 27 And the Lord said, “And indeed I will remove Iouda d from my sight, just as I removed Israel, and I will reject this city that I chose, Ierousalem, and the house of which I said, My name shall be there.”

28 And the rest of the histories of losias and all that he did, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Iouda?

29 But in his days Pharao Nechao, king of Egypt, went up against the Assyrians’ king to the river Euphrates. And losias went to meet him, but Nechao put him to death in Mageddo when he saw him. 30 And his servants made him ride dead from Mageddo and brought him to Ierousalem and buried him in his own tomb in the city of Daud. And the people of the land took Ioaehas son of losias and anointed him and made him king instead of his father.

31 Ioahas was a son of twenty-three years when he became king, and he reigned three months in Ierousalem. And his mother’s name was Hamital daughter of Jeremias from Lemna. 32 And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, according to all that his fathers had done. 33 And Pharao Nechao made Eliakim son of losias, king of Iouda, king over them instead of losias his father, and he turned his name into Ioakim. And he took Ioachas and brought him into Egypt, and he died there. 34 And Ioakim gave the silver and the gold to Pharao; yet he taxed the land in order to give the money at the mouth of Pharao. They gave the silver and the gold, a man according to his assessment together with the people of the land, to give to Pharao Nechao.

36 Ioakim was a son of twenty-five years when he became king, and he reigned eleven years in Ierousalem. And his mother’s name was Ieldaph daughter of Pedeia from Rouma. 37 And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, according to all that his fathers had done.

24 In his days Nabouchodonosor, king of Babylon, went up, and Ioakim became his slave for three years, and he turned and rebelled against him. 2 And he sent against him the lightly armed men of the Chaldeans and the lightly armed men of Syria and the lightly armed men of Moab and the lightly armed men of the sons of Ammon, and he sent them out against the land of Iouda to prevail, according to the word of the Lord that he spoke by the hand of his slaves the prophets. 3 Only it was because of the Lord’s wrath against Iouda, to remove him from his sight, because of the sins of Manasses, according to all that he had committed, 4 and indeed he shed innocent blood and filled Ierousalem with innocent blood, and the Lord did not want to be conciliated. 5 And the rest of the histories of Ioakim and all that he did, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Iouda?

6 And Ioakim slept with his fathers, and Ioakim his son reigned in his stead. 7 And the king of Egypt did not continue further to come out of his land, for the king of Babylon had taken all that belonged to the king of Egypt from the Wadi of Egypt to the River Euphrates.

8 Ioakim was a son of eighteen years when he became king, and he reigned three months in Ierousalem. And his mother’s name was Nestha daughter of Ellanathan from Ierousalem. 9And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, according to all that his father had done.

10 At that time Nabouchodonosor, king of Babylon, went up to Ierousalem, and the city came under enclosure. 11And Nabouchodonosor, king of Babylon, entered into the city, and his servants were besieging it. 12And loakim, king of Iouda, came out against the king of Babylon, he and his servants and his mother and his commanders and his eunuchs, and the king of Babylon took him in the eighth year of his reign.

13 And he carried out from there all the treasures of the Lord’s house and the treasures of the king’s house, and he cut up all the golden vessels that Salomon, king of Israel, had made in the shrine of the Lord, according to the word of the Lord. 14And he exiled Ierousalem and all the commanders and those mighty in power, taking captive ten thousand captives, and every craftsman and he that encloses, and no one remained, except the poor of the land. 15And he exiled loakim to Babylon, and the mother of the king and the wives of the king and his eunuchs. And the strong men of the land he led away as a colony from Ierousalem to Babylon, 16and all the men of power, seven thousand, and the craftsman and he that encloses, one thousand. As for all mighty ones fit for war, the king of Babylon also led them away as a migration to Babylon. 17And the king of Babylon made Matththanias his son king in his stead and changed his name to Sedekias.

18 Sedekias was a son of twenty-one years when he became king, and he reigned eleven years in Ierousalem. And his mother’s name was Hamital daughter of Ieremias. 19And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, according to all that loakim had done, for it was on account of the anger of the Lord against Ierousalem and in Iouda until he drove them away from his presence.

And Sedekias rebelled against the king of Babylon.

25 And it happened in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, that Nabouchodonosor, king of Babylon, and all his force came against Ierousalem and encamped against it and built a surrounding wall against it all around. 2And the city came under enclosure until the eleventh year of King Sedekias. 3On the ninth of the month the famine also grew strong in the city, and there was no food for the people of the land. 4And the city was breached, and all the men of war went out by night by way of the gate between the walls; this is the one of the garden of the king, and the Chaldeans were at the city all around. And he went by way of the Araba. 5And the force of the Chaldeans pursued after the king, and they overtook him in Araboth Iericho, and all his force was scattered from about him. 6And they captured the king and brought him to the king of Babylon in Deblatha, and he spoke judgment with him. 7And he brought the king and his sons and his eunuchs, and the chief cook, and the officers of the king, and all kinds of the (kaige) 24-25 and Saraias son of Thanemath the Netophathite and Iezonias son of the Machathi. 24 And Godolias swore to them and to their men and said to them, "Fear not a passing of the Chaldeans; stay in the land, and be subject to the king of Babylon, and it shall be well with you." 25 And it happened in the seventh month that Ismael son of Nathanias son of Elisama of the offspring of the kings came, and ten men with him, and he struck Godolias, and he died, and the Judeans and the Chaldeans who were with him, in Massephath. 26 And all the people, from small even to great, and the commanders of the forces set out and entered into Egypt, for they were afraid from before the Chaldeans.

27 And it happened in the thirty-seventh year of the exile of Ioakim, king of Iouda, in the twelfth month, on the twenty-seventh of the month, that Eulimarodach, king of Babylon, in the year of his reign, lifted up the head of Ioakim, king of Iouda, and brought him out from his prison house, 28 and he spoke with him good things and put his throne above the thrones of the kings who were with him in Babylon. 29 And he changed his prison clothes and would eat food continually before him all the days of his life. 30 And his allowance, an allowance continually, was given to him from the king's house, by reckoning of a day in its day, all the days of his life.
Edition of the Greek Text

The NETS translation of 1 and 2 Supplements (a translation of the Greek Paraleipomena, the LXX title for the Hebrew books of 1 and 2 Chronicles) is based on Alfred Rahlfs, Septuaginta. Id est Vetus Testamentum graece iuxta LXX interpretes, 2 vols. (Stuttgart: Württembergische Bibelanstalt, 1935) 752–811. Although this is not a fully-fledged critical edition since its collation base comprises mainly the readings of only three early manuscripts, nevertheless it provides a better running text of the work for translation than does the diplomatic edition of the book in the Cambridge series, which prints the text of one manuscript, noting variants in the critical apparatus.

Translation Profile of the Greek

General Character

The Greek text of this book has been relatively well preserved and derives from a type of Hebrew text fairly close to that represented by the MT. Moreover, the translation technique adopted by the Greek translator was rather literal with the result that its overall profile is to offer a word-for-word representation of the syntactical and morphological structure of the underlying Hebrew for readers of Greek.

As a result, variations in genre of the component parts of the Hebrew text are well reflected in the translation, e.g., speeches, prayers, prophecies, psalms (1 Suppl 16.8–36 and 2 Suppl 6.41–42), etc. Similarly, long sections of 1 Supplements are given over to lists of various sorts (genealogies, city lists, census lists, officials, clerical orders, warriors, etc.) occupying 1 Supplements 1–9 and 23–27 in particular. Here, too, the Greek parallels the very staccato structure of the Hebrew, as in the following example from 6.46, where the verb of giving expressed in vv. 40 and 42 has been omitted in the interests of brevity.

καὶ τοῖς νεκροῖς Κακαθ . . . πόλεις δέκα.

NETS: And to the rest of Kaath’s sons . . . ten cities.

NRSV (= 6.61): To the rest of the Kohathites were given . . . ten towns.

Some less literal renderings suggest that the type of Hebrew with which the translators were most familiar was that of their own time. As a result, on occasion they reflect the later semantic range of a term rather than its earlier sense. Thus, the term דָּה (hand) in the prepositional phrase דָּה לְ, which in the past had frequently borne the metaphorical nuance of control and direction, is here mainly construed in terms of physical proximity, as in 1 Suppl 25.6:

MT:

LXX: εχομενα τοι βασιλεως

NETS: near the king

NRSV: under the order of the king

Another facet of the literalness of the Greek rendering is the incorporation of certain Hebrew lexemes as loanwords, often as technical terms, relating, for example, to the temple in Jerusalem (2 Suppl 3.4 aśšām “porch,” v. 16 serserōth “chains,” dabir “inner chamber,” “holy of holies”), as well as some of the musical instruments employed there liturgically (1 Suppl 13.8 kinnor “lyre” and nabla “harp”). Other examples involve genealogy. Thus, although the Greek renders the term פָּלְכָּר “Porcelain” as Αἴγυπτος (Egypt) in strictly geographical contexts, at 1 Suppl 1.8, when the same form is applied to the eponymous ancestor of that people, the name is simply transliterated as Μεστραίμ (NETS “Mestrain,” NRSV “Egypt”). Occasionally, however, the opposite phenomenon is found, as in 1 Suppl 4.12, where the Greek translates the first portion of the compound name פָּלְכָּר נַי to render πόλεως Ναας (NETS “the city of Naas”; NRSV “Ir-nahash”).
The translators’ literal translation technique is also reflected in their divergence from the accepted norms of Greek syntax in order to render characteristics of the Hebrew phraseology more distinctly, as in 1 Suppl 11.18:

MT: לֹא אַתָּה רוּדֵךְ לְשֹׁם
LXX: οὐκ ἐθέλησεν Δαούδ τοῦ πιεῖν αὐτό
NETS: David did not want it, in order to drink it.
NRSV: David would not drink of it.

Whereas normally the articulated infinitive is used to express the goal of motion, here it is employed unidiomatically to denote the object of David’s desire, which would generally be conveyed by the infinitive alone in order to parallel the use of the preposition -ל in Hebrew.

A more widespread form of the above tendency is the use of calques, i.e., the stereotyping of translation equivalents semantically appropriate in only part of their range and extending their usage to contexts where their equivalency standard is much less acceptable, as a means of foregrounding the Hebrew construction. A good example of this is the calquing of the Greek preposition εν (“in”) on its Hebrew counterpart -ב, as in 1 Suppl 13.8, where the simple use of the dative case would be more idiomatic:

MT: יִשְׂרָאֵל עַבְרֵיהוֹ
LXX: ἐν ψαλτώδεις καὶ ἐν κινύραις
NETS: with harp-singers and with cinyras
NRSV: with song and lyres

Hebrew idiom, unlike Greek and English, tends to repeat the prepositional phrase in compound expressions. Here, too, our translators represented this phenomenon faithfully in their text, as at 1 Suppl 20.8:

MT: בִּי רְחֵי יְשׁוֹעֵה
LXX: ἐν χειρί Δαούδ καὶ ἐν χειρί παίδων αὐτοῦ
NETS: by the hand of David and by the hand of his servants
NRSV: by the hand of David and his servants

Fidelity to the morphology of the Hebrew sometimes led the translators to avoid idiomatic technical terms in favor of periphrases closer to the precise formulation in their Vorlage, as at 1 Suppl 10.4, where an exchange between Saoul (Saul) and his armor-bearer takes place. The accepted Greek term for the latter office is σκευοφόρος; however, as the Hebrew form is made up of a compound expression formed by a present participle and accompanying noun, they adopted the same construction in Greek, as follows:

MT: מַשָּׂרֶה בְּסֶפֶר
LXX: τῷ σύντροπι τὰ σκεῦα αὐτοῦ
NETS: to the one bearing his arms
NRSV: to his armor-bearer

Nevertheless, the translation of Supplements is by no means slavish: there are several instances where the translators have opted for terms that both offer a reasonable representation of the Hebrew and also conform to the canons of Greek idiom. A number of these relate to technical contexts of various sorts.

At 1 Suppl 10.13 Saoul (Saul) is condemned for consulting a medium, referring to the episode of the witch of Endor (1 Rgns 28.8–25). The Greek equivalent ἐγγαστριμῦθος of the Hebrew term בְּרֵאשׁ is a culturally appropriate form, as it too mostly connotes a woman who delivered oracles by means of ventriloquism. Similarly, at 20.6 the Greek employs the term ἀπόγονος to render the Hebrew יְרָע (“descendant”), although in v. 4 the narrower term υἱός (“son”) is found in a parallel context. The setting at 5.24 is one of genealogical tables of leaders of the various tribes and the Hebrew term נְסָרָה has connotations both of primordiality and primacy. This dual semantic ground is well expressed by the equivalent Δρέχου- ηγοί the translators selected. However, when the same elastic Hebrew term appears at 11.6 with reference to bearing office and in parallel with military command, the translators realized the need for nuance and chose to render it by the form Δρέχων (“ruler,” “commander”). The same judgment applies to another reflex of that Hebrew root, נְשָר, at 18.17, referring to officials in the king’s immediate vicinity, which is rendered by the technical term διοδόχος, as, in addition to the widespread sense of “successor,” it also bears the meaning of “substitute,” “deputy.” Another very felicitous lexical choice is the employment of the classical compound adjective φιλογεωργός (“devoted to agriculture”) at 2 Suppl 26.10 to render the Hebrew phrase אָדָם נָחֲלָה. Encountered in the works of such Attic authors as Xenophon and Aristophanes, this place is its only occurrence in the Greek Bible. The term is extremely apposite in context, as the setting is not one of rugged natural beauty but of human endeavor in working the soil.

Where appropriate, one notes that the translators sought to express nuances implicit in the formulation of a Hebrew phrase. A good example of this trend is the clarification of the dispute between the commander Joab and David regarding the conduct of a census of Israel. At 1 Suppl 21.3 Joab remonstrates against his sovereign’s command. Yet in the following verse he is constrained to submit to the latter’s authority. This reversal, somewhat masked in Hebrew by the use of the simple copula, is idiomatically drawn out by the Greek particle δὲ, marking a contrast from the preceding. Similarly, at 1 Suppl 20.3 the translators found an elegant solution to render the Hebrew phrasal construction of definition with לְחָמ, which obviates the need for a verbal clause by utilizing the parallel Greek articular construction, as follows: LXX: τὸν λαὸν τὸν ἐν αὐτῷ; NETS: “the people who were in it”; NRSV: “the people who were in it.”

Despite its close affinities with the Hebrew, there are a number of cases where the Greek text diverges from its standard for various reasons. On occasion this relates to the context and connotations of a term, as at 1 Suppl 10.13, where the Hebrew text fundamentally indicts Saul for infidelity, being unfaithful in his relation to God in disobeying his commands. However, the framework in Greek is one of jurisprudence and the charge of breaking the divine law.

General Approach

The key principle guiding this translation has been to avoid overly interpreting the Greek, but to provide a close English rendering of the Greek’s representation of the original Hebrew. In consequence, it has sought not to smooth over problems, but to allow aporias to show through rather than trying to solve them by offering one particular sense, which would naturally exclude other possibilities.

In accordance with general NETS policy, I have attempted to maintain the vocabulary of the NRSV version, where the latter is compatible with the MT and the LXX does not diverge from that standard. Although well preserved, the Hebrew text of these books is not completely intact, and hence scholarly editors have proposed a variety of emendations to improve on what are regarded as its secondary readings.

1 Curtis and Madsen, 381, 419–420.
NRSV, in turn, has adopted some of these suggestions, and therefore rejects the MT reading at such points. A good example is afforded by the textual variation at 1 Suppl 20.3 in relating Dauid’s policy toward the Ammonite captive population. MT followed by LXX indicates that he exacted severe physical reprisals against them; however, the parallel passage at 2 Rgns 12.31 states that he set them to work with saws as hard labor, which seems more standard practice in such cases.

MT: רָשָׁר בַּמֵּרָה
LXX: διέτρισαν πρίσσιν
NETS: he sawed (them, i.e., the people) with saws
NRSV: (He) set them to work with saws

On rare occasions it appears that the NRSV translation does not do full duty to the MT reading. Thus at 1 Suppl 14.15 both the Hebrew and Greek terms relate more narrowly to a camp or encampment, while the NRSV version interprets this more broadly as referring to the army.

MT: לֹא חָפְתָה אֶת פַּחַת פִּלְאֵהֹים
LXX: τοῦ παταξαί τὴν παρεμπολὴν τῶν ἀλλοφύλων
NETS: to strike down the camp of the allophyles
NRSV: to strike down the army of the Philistines

At other junctures the NRSV rendering has recourse to explanatory additions to clarify particulars, which may not have been fully unpacked in the Hebrew. Thus at 1 Suppl 20.1 the reference is to the passing of winter and the opening up of communications in spring, creating conditions conducive to initiating the campaigning season, a regular phenomenon for ancient societies but not a given for the modern reader. Hence, NRSV spells out the passage’s implicit significance.

MT: יָשָׁר לֹא תֵּשְׁבַּת הָסִינָה לֹא תֵּאָמַר מָלָכָים
LXX: καὶ ἐγένετο οὖν τῷ ἐπίσταντι ἔτει ἐν τῇ ἔξοδῳ τῶν βασιλεῶν NETS: And it happened in the following year, at the marching out of the kings
NRSV: In the spring of the year, the time when kings go out to battle (interpretative addition/clarification)

Similarly, at 1 Suppl 21.1 the issue is one of instituting a national census, and so the term “Israel” relates to the population, not to the actual land, a point explicitly made by NRSV to remove any misunderstanding.

MT: לֹא חָפְתָה אֶת יִשְׂרָאֵל
LXX: τοῦ ἁριτιμῆσαι τὸν Ἰσραήλ
NETS: to count Israel
NRSV: to count the people of Israel

Ioab, as noted above, is to carry out the census and report back to the king on its completion. However, the form of the Hebrew here faithfully followed by the Greek is somewhat elliptical regarding what precisely Ioab is to bring, and so NRSV specifies this.

MT: יָרָא אֶל
LXX: καὶ ἔνεγκατε πρῶς με
NETS: and bring to me
NRSV: and bring me a report

On occasion, NRSV evinces the opposite tendency of condensing the formulation where MT may be guilty of tautology, as in the following example from 1 Suppl 20.1 where “force” and “army” refer to the same collective.

MT: יָרְא בִּלְאוֹב אֶל פָּרָשֶׁת הָסִינָה
LXX: καὶ ἐγένασαν Ιωάβ πᾶσαν τὴν δύναμιν τῆς στρατιᾶς NETS: and Joab led out the entire force of the army
NRSV: Joab led out the army
Selected words and phrases

The Hebrew term נֶגֶר closely followed by the Greek (υἱῶν, τέκνα), which literally refers to sons, is frequently translated as “descendants” by NSRV (e.g., 1 Suppl 1.5, 6, 7, 8, 9) with regard to more generic clan genealogy.

Problems of Grammar

In Hebrew syntax the norm is to construct narrative paratactically, linking all the events in a continuum by the simple copula rather than highlighting the particular relation between the actions by, for example, assigning those semantically less significant to subordinate clauses or directing the reader’s attention to important spatial, temporal or other features linking the stages in the evolving story. However, this procedure is highly unidiomatic in English usage, and hence the NRSV translators frequently vary their rendering both for stylistic variety and to render the above clausal relations more explicit. In contrast, NETS seeks to reflect for the English reader the full degree of the literalness of the Greek version.

In the protracted lists where the presence of the copula becomes highly repetitive, NRSV will periodically omit the connective to ease the flow in English, as in 1 Suppl 1.10

MT: בָּהָשׁ יִלֵּדָה נֶבֶרְדוֹ
LXX: καὶ Χοῦς ἐγέννησεν τὸν Νεβρῶδ NETS: And Cush became the father of Nebrod
NRSV: Cush became the father of Nimrod

NRSV also punctuates the ongoing discourse by signaling a new episode, the introduction of a new theme, etc. through a more colorful term, as at 1 Suppl 10.1, which marks the transition from the genealogical lists of temple personnel to the opening of the historical narrative.

MT: אֲלֵפַיִלּוּ לְהוֹמָלָה מִסְרַאֲלֶךְ
LXX: καὶ ἀλλόφυλοι ἐπολέμησαν πρὸς Ισραήλ
NETS: And allophyles fought against Israel
NRSV: Now the Philistines fought against Israel

Similarly, important temporal relationships between actions are underscored by appropriate language as at v. 4, where the severe conditions of battle prompt Saul’s exchange with his armor-bearer.

MT: בָּהָשׁ שָׁאוֹל כָּל בַּלְאִיר
LXX: καὶ εἶπεν Σαοῦλ τῷ σίροντι τὰ σκεῦα αὐτοῦ
NETS: And Saul said to the one bearing his arms
NRSV: Then Saul said to his armor-bearer

On other occasions the narrative focus requires a counterpoint between the reactions of two persons or groups, as at v. 11, where the Israelite response to the defeat at Mount Gilboa is contrasted with that of the jubilant Philistines:

MT: אֲלֵפַיִלּוּ בָּהָשׁ גֵּילָאָד
LXX: καὶ ἦκουσαν πάντες οἱ κατοικοῦντες Γαλαὰδ
NETS: And all those living in Galaad heard
NRSV: But when all Jabesh-gilead heard

Result is another key narrative link whereby an action is marked as the consequence of the preceding, as at v. 6 depicting Saul’s death from his wounds:

MT: רָמַת שָׁאוֹל
LXX: καὶ ἀπέθανεν Σαοῦλ
NETS: And Saul . . . died
NRSV: Thus Saul died

Purpose also forms a bond between actions, underlining how one is undertaken in order to facilitate another, as at 1 Suppl 21.2 regarding the rationale for conducting the census.
The NRSV translators also permit themselves a certain freedom in focusing their rendering on the semantic field rather than being constrained by issues of quantitative representation, as at 1 Suppl 10.4, where MT followed by LXX expresses terror by means of a simple verb of fearing modified by an adverb of intensity.

MT:
LXX:
NETS: he was very afraid
NRSV: he was terrified

Often this leads to employing a more technical term appropriate to context rather than to MT’s more general phraseology, as at 1 Suppl 10.10, where the religious context is explicated by reference to a temple:

MT:
LXX:
NETS: in the house of their god
NRSV: in the temple of their gods

Similarly, at v. 13 the reference to Saul’s infringing divine regulations leads the translators to select the more specific term “command” over the broader Hebrew lexeme דָּבָר “word.”

MT:
LXX:
NETS: (according to) the Lord’s word
NRSV: the command of the Lord

Likewise, in describing the prodigious attributes of a gigantic Philistine warrior at 1 Suppl 20.6, the translators expand on the rather laconic Hebrew version literally represented in Greek, differentiating extremities of the hands and feet according to the idiom of the target language as “fingers” and “toes.”

MT:
LXX:
NETS: and his digits were six and six
NRSV: six fingers on each hand, and six toes on each foot

Frequently, idiomatic expressions of time are employed more expansively than their literal sense would suggest, as, for example, in the phrase “yesterday and the third day” encountered at 1 Suppl 11.2, which clearly envisages a period of some years during which David led the Israelite army under Saul’s reign, a point that the NRSV translators duly highlight.

MT:
LXX:
NETS: yesterday and the third day
NRSV: for some time now

Very rarely do matters of theological exegesis loom large in a work like 1 and 2 Supplements. One of the few instances occurs at 1 Suppl 21.1, which, not surprisingly, is styled by Sara Japhet as “one of the most discussed and interpreted verses in Chronicles.” 2 The question at issue is the precise identification of the one who instigated David to conduct the census, Satan or some undefined slanderer. In the counterpart to this passage at 2 Rgns 24.1 the perpetrator is God himself in his wrath. This the Chronicler has mitigated according to his normal practice by refocusing the intervention. At the same time, there is no indication that the author believed in a self-existing principle of evil. Moreover, when the Hebrew term הָגוֹיָן denotes a proper noun, it is normally found with the article, whereas here it is unarticulated. Consequently, in sum, it appears that a human instigator is intended.

2 Japhet, 373.

MT: לְגָוִי הַגֵּאוֹן נָשֶׁהָ, יָדוֹ הַגָּדוֹלָה בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל
LXX: καὶ ἐστὶ διάβολος ἐν τῷ Ἰσραήλ
NETS: and a slanderer stood in Israel
NRSV: Satan stood up against Israel

Dauid and Samouel the seer appointed them to their positions of trust. 23And these and their sons were in charge of the gates in the house of the Lord, in the house of the tent, to guard it. 24The gates were according to the four winds: at east, sea, north, south. 25And their brothers in their courts were to come in every seven days, from time to time, along with them, 26because four mighty ones of the gates are in a position of trust. The Leuites had jurisdiction over the shrine-carriers’ chambers and over the treasuries of the house of God. 27And they will encamp round the house of God, for the watch fell on them, and they had charge of the keys to open the temple doors morning by morning.

10 And allophyles fought against Israel, and they fled from before allophyles, and casualties fell on Mount Gelboue. 2And allophyles pursued after Saoul and after his sons, and allophyles struck Ijonathan and Aminadab and Melchisoue, Saoul’s sons. 3And the war was heavy on Saoul, and the archers found him with their arrows and pains, and he was hurt by the arrows. 4And Saoul said to the one bearing his arms, “Draw your sword, and stab me with it so that these uncircumcised do not come and make sport of me.” But the one carrying his arms was not willing, because he was very afraid, and Saoul took his sword and fell on it. 5And the one carrying his arms saw that Saoul was dead, and he too fell on his sword and died. 6And Saoul and his three sons died that day, and all his house died together. 7And every man of Israel who was in the valley saw that Israel had fled and that Saoul and his sons had died, and they abandoned their cities and fled. And allophyles came and lived in them.

8 And it happened on the next day, and allophyles came to plunder the casualties, and they found Saoul and his sons fallen on Mount Gelboue. 9 And they stripped him and took his head and his equipment and sent them to the surrounding land of allophyles, to announce the good news to their idols and the people. 10 And they put his head in the house of their god, and they put his head in the house of Dagon.

11 And all those living in Galaad heard what allophyles had done to Saoul and Israel. 12 And every mighty man arose from Galaad and took Saoul’s body and the bodies of his sons and carried them to labis, and they buried their bones under the oak in labis, and they fasted seven days.

13 And Saoul died in his acts of lawlessness, which he had done lawlessly against the Lord, according to the Lord’s word, since he had not kept it, because Saoul had made inquiries at the ventriloquist to find out, and the prophet Samouel had answered him. 14 And he did not seek the Lord, and he killed him and transferred the kingdom to Dauid son of Iessai.

11 And all Israel came to Dauid in Chebron, saying, “See, we are your bones and your flesh. And yesterday and the third day when Saoul was king, you were the one to lead Israel out and in, and the Lord your God said to you, “You will shepherd my people Israel, and you will be a leader over Israel.” And all elders of Israel came to the king in Chebron, and King Dauid made a covenant with them at Chebron before the Lord. And they anointed Dauid as king over Israel according to the Lord’s word through the hand of Samouel.

4 And the king went, and men of Israel, to Jerusalem (that is Iebous), and there were the lebasouties who inhabited the land. 5 Now the inhabitants of Iebous said to Dauid, “You will not come in here.” And Dauid anticipated them by seizing the enclosing of Sion (that is the city of Dauid). 6 And Dauid said, “Anyone who first strikes a lebousite will be a commander and a general.” And loab son of Sarouia went up first and was made a commander. 7 And Dauid established himself in the enclosing. Therefore he called it the city of Dauid. 8 And he built the city all around, and he waged war and took the city. 9 And Dauid kept going as he went and became great, and the Lord Almighty was with him.

10 And these are the chiefs of the mighty men, who were with Dauid, those supporting him in his reign with all of Israel to reign according to the Lord’s word for Israel. 11 And this is the number of Dauid’s mighty men: Iesebaal son of Hachamani, first of the thirty. He drew his sword once against three hundred casualties at one time.

12 And after him was Eleazar son of Iessai. He was among the three mighty ones. 24 This Banaias, Iodae’s son, did, and by this he has a name among the three mighty ones. 25 He was more renowned than the thirty, but he did not gain the stature of the three. And Dauid appointed him over his paternal family.

26 And the mighty ones of the forces: Asael brother of loab, Eleanan son of Dodo from Baithlaem, 27 Sammoth the Hadi, Chelles the Pheloni, 28 Orai son of Ekkes the Thekoi, Abierez the Anathothi, 29 Sobochai the Hasothi, Eli the Achoi, 30 Moorai the Netophathi, Cholo son of Nooza the Netophathi, 31 Aithi son of Ribai from a hill of Benjamin, Banaias the Pharathoni, 32 Houri from Nachaligaas, Abiel the Garabeththi, 33 Azmoth the Beermi, Eliaba the Salaboni, 34 Bennaias, Hosom the Gennouni, Jonathan son of Sola the Harari, 35 Achim son of Sachar the Harari, Elphal son of Our, 36 Hophar the Mochorathi, Achia the Pheloni, 37 Heseri the Charmali, Naarai son of Azobai, 38 Joel brother of Nathan, Mebaar son of Hagari, 39 Selek the Ammoni, Nachor the Berthi, who bore the arms of loab son of Sarouia, 40 Ira the Ietheri, Careb the Ietheri, 41 Ourias the Chetti, Zabet son of Acliia, 42 Adina son of Saiza the one of Rouben, a commander and thirty with him. 43 Hanan son of 12 And these are the ones who came to Dauid at Soklag, while he was still constrained from before Saoul son of Kis, and these were among the mighty men helping him in war 2 and with bow, on the right and on the left. And there were slingers with stones and arrows. Of Saoul’s brothers from Benjamin: 3 the commander was Achiézer, and lios son of Asma the Gebothiite and Joel and Iofhalet sons of Asmoth and Berchia and leoul the Anathothi 4 and Samaías the Gabaonite, mighty among the thirty and over the thirty, 5 Iermaías and Iezziel and Ióan and Iozabad the Gadarathí, 6 Eliazi and Iarimouth and Baalia and Samaria and Saphatia the Charaiphi, 7 Elkaña and lesouni and Ozriel and Iozar and lesboam the Korites 8 and Elia and Zabodia sons of Iram, sons of Gedor.

17(16) And some of the sons of Benjamin and of Ioudas came to Dauid’s assistance. 18(17) And Dauid went out to meet them and said to them, “If you have come to me in peace, may my heart be like itself for you, but if in order to betray me to my enemies, not in a truth of hand, may the God of our fathers see and decide.” 19 And a spirit invested Amasai, commander of the thirty, and he said:

“Go forward—and your people, Dauid son of Iessai.
Peace, peace to you.
And peace to those who help you, because your God has helped you.”

And Dauid received them and appointed them officers of the forces.

20(19) And some of Manasses came over to Dauid when the alaphyoth came against Saoul for battle. And he did not help them, because he happened in council from the commanders of the alaphyoth, saying, “By means of the heads of those men he will return to his master Saoul.”

21(20) When he went to Soklag, some from Manasses approached him, Edna and Iozabeth and lodiel and Michael and Iosabeth and Elimouth and Se-lathi; chiefs of a thousand of Manasses they were. 22(21) And they fought with Dauid against Geddour, for they were all mighty in strength and leaders in the army, in the force, 23(22) because day by day they would come to Dauid, forming an immense force, like a divine force.

24(23) And these are the names of the commanders of the army who came to Dauid in Chebron, to turn the kingdom of Saoul over to him according to the word of the Lord. 25(24) Sons of loudas, six thousand shield bearers and spear bearers and eight hundred mighty in pitched battle. 26(25) Of the sons of Symeon, seven thousand and one hundred, mighty in strength in pitched battle.

27(26) Of the sons of Leui, four thousand six hundred, 28(27) and Ioadae was leader for Aaron and with him three thousand seven hundred, 29(28) and Sadok was a young man mighty in strength, and there were twenty-two rulers of his ancestral house.

30(29) And out of the sons of Benjamin, the brothers of Saoul, three thousand, even though the majority of them remained loyal to guarding Saoul’s house. 31(30) And from the sons of Ephraim, twenty thousand eight hundred, mighty in strength, men renowned in their paternal houses. 32(31) And from the half-tribe of Manasses, eighteen thousand, who were selected by name to make Dauid king. 33(32) And from the sons of Issachar, knowing understanding regarding the times, knowing what Israel should do regarding their magistracies, two hundred and all their brothers with them.

34(33) And from Zaboulon, proceeding to the battle of war with all their military equipment, fifty thousand to aid Dauid unwaveringly. 35(34) And a thousand rulers from Nephthali and thirty-seven thousand together with them with shields and spears. 36(35) And twenty-eight thousand eight hundred from the Danites, drawn up for war. 37(36) And forty thousand from Aser, coming out to assist in war. 38(37) And one hundred and twenty thousand from Rouben and Gaddi and from the half-tribe of Manasses from the other side of the Jordan with all their military equipment.

39(38) All these were warriors arrayed in battle order with ieric spirit, and they came to Chebron, to make Dauid king over all Israel. And the rest of Israel was of one mind to make Dauid king. 40(39) And they were there three days, eating and drinking, for their brothers made provision for them. 41(40) And their neighbors as far away as Issachar and Zaboulon and Nephthali brought them food, flour, fruitcakes, raisins, wine and oil, calves and sheep in abundance on camels and donkeys and mules and on oxen, as there was gladness in Israel.

13 And Dauid consulted with the officers of thousands and officers of hundreds, with every commander. 2 And Dauid said to the whole assembly of Israel, "If it seems good to you and it finds favor with the Lord, our God, let us send word to those of our brothers who are left all over the land of Israel, and with them are the priests, the Leuites in the cities of their possession, and they will come together to us. 3 and let us transfer the ark of our God to us, since they have not sought it since the days of Saul." 4 And all the assembly stated that this should be done, since the plan seemed right in the view of all the people.

5 And David assembled all Israel from the borders of Egypt and as far as the entrance of Hamath, to bring the ark of God from the city of Iarim. 6 And David brought it up, and all Israel went up to David’s city, which was in Ioudas, to bring up from there the ark of God the Lord, sitting on the cheroubin, of him by whose name it is called. 7 And they set the ark of God on a new cart from the house of Aminadab, and Oza and his brothers directed the cart. 8 And David and all Israel were playingb before God with all their might and with harp-singers and with cymbals and with nablasd, with drums and with cymbals and with trumpets.

9 And they came to the threshing floor, and Oza stretched out his hand to hold the ark, because the ox was tilting it. 10 And the Lord raged with anger against Oza and struck him down on the spot for stretching out his hand to the ark, and he died there before God. 11 And David was vexed, thinking that the Lord had struck a striking out at Oza, and called that place Oza’s Striking Out, to this day.

12 And David was afraid of God that day, saying, “How shall I bring the ark of God closer to me?” 13 And David did not transfer the ark closer to him to David’s city but diverted it to the house of Abedda, the Geththite. 14 And the ark of God sat in Abedda’s house for three months. And God blessed Abeddaram and all that he had.

15 And Chiram, king of Tyre, sent messengers to David and cedar wood and masons for walls and carpenters for Woodward, to build a house for him. 2 And David knew that God had established him over Israel, because his kingdom was increased in loftiness for the sake of his people Israel.

3 And David took more wives in Jerusalem, and again sons and daughters were born to David. 4 And these are the names of them that were born, whom he had in Jerusalem: Samaia, Isobaam, Nath, Salomon 5 and Ibara and Elisae and Eliphela 6 and Nage and Naphag and Janouou 7 and Elissame and Balegda and Elifphaet.

8 And all allophyles heard that David had been anointed king over all Israel, and all the allophyles went up to search out David. And David heard and went out to confront them. 9 And allophyles came and raided in the valley of the giants. 10 And David inquired of God, saying, “If I go up against the allophyles, will you also give them into my hands?” And the Lord said to him, “Go up, and I will give them into your hands.” 11 And he went up to Baalpharasin, and David struck them down there. And David said, “God has cut down my enemies by my hand like cutting through water.” Therefore he called the name of the place Cutting-through Pharasinec. 12 And they abandoned their gods there, and David said that they burn them with fire.

13 And allophyles added yet and again RAIDed in the valley of the giants. 14 And David again inquired by God, and God said to him, “You shall not go after them. Turn back from them, and confront them near the pear trees. 15 And it shall be when you hear the sound of the rustling of the tops of the pear trees, then you will go out to battle, for God has gone out before you to strike down the camp of the allophyles.” 16 And he did as God had commanded him and struck down the camp of the allophyles from Gabaon to Gazerac. 17 And David’s name was in all the land, and the Lord put the fear of him into all the nations.

18 And he made houses for himself in David’s city. And he prepared the place for the ark of God and made a tent for it. 2 Then David said, “It is not fit for anyone to lift the ark of God, save the Leuites, as the Lord has chosen them to lift the Lord’s ark and to minister to him forever. 3 And David assembled all Israel in Jerusalem, to bring up the ark of the Lord to the place he had prepared for it. 4 And David gathered the sons of Aaron and the Leuites. 5 Of the sons of Kaath: Ouriel the chief and his brothers, one hundred and twenty. 6 Of the sons of Merari: Asaia the chief and his brothers, two hundred and fifty. 7 Of the sons of Gersam: Ioel the chief and his brothers, one hundred and fifty. 8 Of the sons of Elissaphan: Samaia the chief and his brothers, two hundred. 9 Of the sons of Chebron: Eliel the chief and his brothers, eighty. 10 Of the sons of Oziel: Aminadam the chief and his brothers, one hundred and twelve.

11 And David summoned the priests Sadok and Abiathar and the Leuites Ouriel, Asaia, Joel, Samaia, Eliel, Aminadab. 12 And he said to them, “You are the rulers of the paternal families of the Leuites; be sanctified, you and your brothers, and bring up the ark of the God Israel to where I have prepared for it. 13 Because when you were not around earlier our God cut into us, as we did not see him by means of a ruler.” 14 And the priests and the Leuites were sanctified to bring up the ark of Israel’s God. 15 And the sons of the Leuites took the ark of God with carrying-poles on them, as Moyses commanded with a divine word according to prescription.

16 And David said to the rulers of the Leuites, “Install their brothers, the harp-singers, with instruments of songs, with nablasd and cinnarcs and cymbals, to articulate upward with a sound of gladness.” 17 And the Leuites appointed Joel’s son Haima; of his brothers there was asaph son of Barachia, and from the sons of Merari, his brothers, Aithan son of Kisaio. 18And with them were their brothers, the seconds, Zacharias and Oziel and Semiramoth and Ieli and Oni and Eliab and Banaia and Maasai and Mattathia and Eliphalia and Makenia and Abedom and Ieli and Oziyas, the gatekeepers, 19and the harp-singers, Haiman, Asaph and Aithan, to produce sound with bronze cymbals, 20Zacharias and Oziel, Semiramoth, Ieli, Oni, Eliab, Masaias and Banaia with nablasa on alaimothb, 21and Mattathias and Eliphlias and Makenias and Abedom and Ieli and Oziyas to support them with cinyrasc amasenithb, 22and Chonenias, chief of the Levites, chief of the singers, because he was intelligent. 23And Barachia and Elkana were gatekeepers of the ark, 24and Sobniah and Iosaphat and Nathanael and Amasai and Zacharia and Banai and Eliezer the priests were trumpeting with the trumpets before the ark of God. And Abdedom and Iia were gatekeepers of the ark of God.

25 And there was Dauid and the elders of Israel and the officers of thousands, who advanced to lead the ark of the Lord’s covenant up from Abde-dom’s house with gladness. 26And it happened, when God strengthened the Levites as they were carrying the ark of the Lord’s covenant, that they sacrificed seven calves and seven rams. 27And Dauid was girded with a linen garment, and all the Levites, as they carried the ark of the Lord’s covenant, that sing, and Dauid had on a linen garment. 28And all Israel brought up the ark of the Lord’s covenant with declamation and with the sound of sopherd and with trumpets and with cymbals, sounding with nablasa and with cinyrasc. 29 And the ark of the Lord’s covenant came, and it reached the city of Dauid, and Melchol, Saul’s daughter, peeped out of the window and saw King Dauid dancing and sporting, and she despised him in her heart.

16 And they brought in the ark of God and set it in the middle of the tent that Dauid had pitched for it, and they offered whole burnt offerings and of deliverance before God. 2And Dauid finished offering whole burnt offerings and of deliverance and blessed the people in the Lord’s name. 3And he distributed to every man in Israel—from man even to woman—one baker’s loaf of bread and a sweet cake.

4 And he appointed some of the Levites as ministers before the ark of the Lord’s covenant, proclaiming both to acknowledge and to praise the Lord, God of Israel; 5Asaph was the leader, and acting as his second was Zacharias, Ieli, Semiramoth, Ieli, Mattathias, Eliab and Banaia and Abedom and Ieli, with instruments, nablasa and cinyras and Asaph sounding with cymbals 6and the priests Banaia and Oziel with trumpets continually before the ark of God’s covenant.

7 On that day at that time Dauid at first stipu- lated that they praise the Lord, by the hand of Asaph and his brothers.

8 Acknowledge the Lord; call on him by his name; make known his practices among peoples.

9 Sing to him, and sing hymns to him; tell to all his wonderful things, which the Lord has done.

10 Praise in his holy name. When a heart seeks his good pleasure, it shall be glad.

11 Seek the Lord, and be strong; seek his face continually.

12 Be mindful of his wonderful things, which he did, miracles and judgments of his mouth.

13 O offspring of Israel, his servants, sons of Iakob, his chosen ones.

14 The Lord himself is our God; in all the earth are his judgments, since he is mindful of his covenant forever, his word that he commanded for a thousand generations, which he pledged to Abraam, and his oath to Isaak.

15 He established it for Iakob as an ordinance, for Israel as an everlasting covenant, saying, “To you I will give the land of Chanaan as a parcel for your inheritance.”

16 When they became very few in number, as they were diminished and lived as resident aliens in it, they also advanced from nation to nation and from kingdom to another people. He allowed no man to dominate them, and he rebuked kings for their sake:

17 “Do not touch my anointed ones, and among my prophets do no harm.”

18 Sing to the Lord, all the earth; declare his deliverance from day to day, because great is the Lord and highly praised; he is terrible to all the gods, because all the gods of the nations are idols, but our God made the sky.

19 Glory and commendation are before him, strength and boasting in his place.

20 Give to the Lord, O paternal families of the nations; give to the Lord glory and strength.

21 Give to the Lord the glory of his name; take gifts, and bring them before him. And do obeisance to the Lord in his holy courts.

22 Let all the earth fear from before him;

let the earth be firmly founded and not be shaken. 31 Let the sky be glad and the earth rejoice, and let them say among the nations that the Lord is king. 32 The sea shall roar together with its fullness, and the tree of the field and everything in it. 33 Then the wood of the forest will be glad before the Lord, because he came to judge the earth. 34 Acknowledge the Lord, for it is good, because his mercy is forever.

35 And say, “Save us, O God of our salvation, and deliver us from the nations, to praise your holy name and boast in your praises. 36 Blessed be the Lord God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting.” And all the people shall say, “Amen!” And they praised the Lord.

37 And they left there Asaph and his brothers before the ark of the Lord’s covenant to minister before the ark continually what was required from day to day. 38 And Abededom and his brothers were sixty-eight, and Abededom son of Idithon and Hossa became gatekeepers. 39 And they left a Sadok the priest and his brothers the priests before the Lord’s tent in Bama, which is in Gabaon, 40 to offer whole burnt offerings to the Lord on the altar of whole burnt offerings continually in the morning and evening and according to all that is written in the Lord’s law, which he commanded upon the sons of Israel by the hand of Moyses, God’s attendant. 41 And with him were Haiman and Idithon and the rest chosen by name to praise the Lord, for his mercy is forever. 42 And with them were trumpets and cymbals to sound and instruments for God’s songs; Idithon’s sons were for the gate.

43 And all the people went, each to his house, and David returned to bless his house.

17 And it happened, when David settled in his house, David also said to the prophet Nathan, “Look, I am living in a house of cedar, and the ark of the Lord’s covenant is under skins.” 2 And Nathan said to David, “Do all that you have in mind, because God is with you.” 3 And it happened in that night, and a word of the Lord came to Nathan, saying: 4 Go, and tell David my servant: Thus said the Lord, You shall not build me a house to live in it, 5 because I have not lived in a house since the day I brought up Is- rael until this day, and I was in a tent and in a lodg- ing. 6 In all the areas I traversed in all Israel, and I was in a tent and in a lodge.

7 In all the areas I traversed in all Israel, when speaking did I speak to one tribe of Israel to shepherd my people, saying, You have not built me a house of cedar? 8 And now thus you will say to my slave David: This is what the Lord Almighty says: I took you from the fold from behind the flocks to be a leader over my people Israel. 9 And I was with you in every place to which you went and utterly destroyed all your enemies from before you and made for you a name like the name of the great ones on the earth. 10 And I will appoint a place for my people Israel and will plant them, and they will encamp on their own and will no longer be con- cerned, and injustice will not add to humiliate them as at the outset. 11 And from the days I ap- pointed judges over my people Israel I also laid low all your enemies.

And I shall make you grow, and the Lord will build you a house. 12 And it shall be, when your days are fulfilled and you lie down with your fathers, also I will raise up your seed after you, he who shall be from your belly, and I will establish his kingdom. 13 It is he who shall build me a house, and I will set up his throne forever. 14 I will be a father to him, and he shall be a son to me. And I will not withdraw my mercy from him as I withdrew it from those before you. 15 And I will confirm him in my house and in his reign forever. And his throne shall be established forever. 16 In accordance with all these words and all that vision Nathan spoke to David,

16 And King David went and sat before the Lord and said, “Who am I, Lord God, and what is my house, that you have loved me forever? 17 And this was a small thing before you, God, and you have spoken about your servant’s house from afar, and you looked upon me as a vision of a human being and exalted me, Lord God. 18 What shall David add to you to glorify? And you know your slave. 19 And according to your heart you have done all this greatness. 20 Lord, no one is like you, and there is no one but you according to all that we have heard with our ears. 21 And there is no na- tion on the earth like your people Israel, as God di- rected it to redeem it as a people for himself, to place upon it his great and illustrious name to drive out nations from before your people whom you redeemed from Egypt. 22 And you gave your people Israel to yourself as a people forever, and you, Lord, became their God.

23 And now, Lord, let the word you spoke to your servant and concerning his house be confirmed forever. 24 When they say, ‘Lord, Lord Almighty, God of Israel, and the house of your serv- ant David established before you!’ 25 For you, Lord, have opened your servant’s ear to build him a house. Therefore your servant found it possible to pray in your presence. 26 And now, Lord, you are the selfsame God and have spoken these good things regarding your slave. 27 And now you have begun in order to bless your servant’s house for it to be before you forever, because you, Lord, have blessed it. And bless it forever!”

18 And it happened after these things that David struck the allophyles and put them to flight and seized Geth and its villages from the hand of allophyles.

2 And he struck Moab, and Moab were Dauid's servants, bearing gifts.
3 And Dauid struck Hadraazar, king of Soubha Hemath, when he was advancing to put his hand on the river Euphrates. 4And Dauid took in advance of them a thousand chariots and seven thousand horses and twenty thousand infantry men. And Dauid hamstrung all the chariot-horses but left one hundred chariot-horses of them. 5And the Syrian came from Damascus to help Hadraazar, king of Soubha. And Dauid struck down twenty-two thousand men of the Syrian. 6And Dauid put a garrison in Syria opposite Damascus, and they became Dauid's servants, bearing gifts. And the Lord kept saving Dauid in all he went through. 7And Dauid took the gold collars, which were on Hadraazar's servants, and brought them to Ierou-salem. 8And from the metabechea and from Hadraazar's select cities Dauid took very much bronze; with it Salomon made the bronze sea and the pillars and the bronze vessels.
9 And Thoa, king of Hemath, heard that Dauid had struck the whole force of Hadraazar, king of Soubha, 10and he sent his son Hidouram to King Dauid to ask him the terms for peace and to bless him for waging war on Hadraazar and striking him, because Thoa had been a man at war with Hadraazar, and bhe sent all the silver and gold vessels. 11And Dauid dedicated these to the Lord along with the silver and gold that he had taken from all the nations, from Idumea and Moab and from the sons of Ammon and from the allopylese and from Amalek.
12 And Abessa son of Sarouia struck down Id-umea in the Valley of Salt, eighteen thousand men. 13And he put garrisons in the valley, and all the Idumeans became Dauid's servants. And the Lord kept saving Dauid in all he went through.
14 And Dauid reigned over all Israel and was executing judgment and justice to all his people. 15And Ioab son of Sarouia was over the army, and Losaphat son of Achiloud was recorder. 16And Sadok son of Achitob and Achimelech son of Abithath were priests, and Sousa was scribe, 17and Banaias son of Iodae was over Chereththi and Pheleththi, and Dauid's sons were the king's foremost deputies.
19 And it happened after these things, Naas, king of Ammon's sons, died, and his son Hanan became king in his stead. 2And Dauid said, “I will do mercy with Naas' son Hanan as his father did mercy with me.” And Dauid sent messengers to console him concerning his father. And Dauid's servants came to the land of Ammon's sons to console him. 3And the rulers of Ammon said to Hanan, “Surely not to honor your father before you has Dauid sent to you men to console? Is it not in order to investigate the city to spy out the land that his servants have come to you?” 4And Hanan seized Dauid's servants and shaved them and removed half of their cloaks as far as the mantle and sent them away. 5And they came to report to Dauid concerning the men, and he sent to meet them, because they had been severely dishonored. And the king said, “Sit in Iericho until your beards regrow, and return.”
6 And the sons of Ammon saw that Dauid's people had been disgraced, and Hanan and the sons of Ammon sent a thousand silver talents to hire for themselves chariots and cavalry from Mesopotamian Syria and Syrian Moocha and from Soba. 7And they hired thirty-two thousand chariots and the king of Mocha and his people, and they came and encamped before Maidaba, and the sons of Ammon mustered from their cities and came to do battle. 8And Dauid heard and sent Ioab and all his army of mighty men. 9And the sons of Ammon came out and are taking up position for battle by the gateway of the city, and the kings who had come encamped by themselves in the plain.
10 And Ioab saw that they had lined up against him on both sides in the van and at the rear. And he selected from every youth of Israel, and they took up position against the Syrian. 11And he gave the rest of the people in the hand of his brother Abessa, and they formed up opposite the sons of Ammon. 12And he said, “If the Syrian is too strong for me, then you will be my relief, and if the sons of Ammon are too strong for you, then I will save you. 13Be manly, and let us show our strength for our people and for the cities of our God, and the Lord will do what is right in his eyes.” And Ioab and the people with him lined up for battle against the Syrians, and they fled before him. 15And the sons of Ammon saw that the Syrians had fled; then they too fled from before Ioab and from before Abessa his brother, and they came into the city. And Ioab came into Ierousalem.
16 And the Syrian saw that Israel had routed him, and he sent messengers, and they brought out the Syrian from the other side of the river, and Sophach, commander in chief of Hadraazar's force, was at their head. 17And it was reported to Dauid, and he gathered all Israel and crossed the Jordan and came against them and lined up against them. And the Syrian is in formation opposite Dauid and fought him. 18And the Syrian fled from before Dauid, and Dauid killed seven thousand chariotsc of the Syrian and forty thousand infantry, and he killed Sophach, the commander in chief of the force. 19And Hadraazar's servants saw that they had been defeated from before Israel, and they made terms with Dauid and were subject to him. And the Syrian no longer had the will in order to help the sons of Ammon.

his head, and its weight was found to be a gold talent, and in it was a precious stone, and it was on Daud’s head. And he brought out the booty of the city, a very great amount. 3And he led out the people who were in it, and he saw with saws and with iron adzes. And so Daud did to all the sons of Ammon. And Daud and all his people returned to Jerusalem.

4 And it happened after this, and there was again war in Gazer with the allophyles. Then Sobochai the Housathi struck down Saphou, one of the sons of the giants, and humbled him. 5And there was again war with the allophyles. And Elanan son of Iair struck down Leemi brother of Golith the Gethsite, and the wood of his spear was like part of a loom of weavers. 6And there was war again in Geth, and there was a massive man, and his digits were six and six, twenty-four, and he was a descendant of giants. 7And he defied Israel and Jonathan son of Samaa, Daud’s brother, struck him down. 8These were born to Rapha in Geth. All four were giants, and they fell by the hand of Daud and by the hand of his servants.

21 And a slanderer stood in Israel and incited Daud to count Israel. 2And King Daud said to Joab and to the commanders of the force, “Go, count Israel from Bersabee and as far as Dan, and bring to me, and I shall know their number.” 3And Joab said, “May the Lord add to his people as many as he has spoken in his word. Let me be the one who counts them.” 4But the king’s word prevailed against Joab, and Joab went out and went throughout the territory of Israel and came to Jerusalem. 5And Joab gave the count of the review of the people to Daud, and all Israel was one million one hundred thousand men having drawn a dagger, and loudas was four hundred and eighty thousand men having drawn a dagger. 6And he did not count Levi and Beniamin among them, because the king’s word overpowered Joab.

7 And it appeared wicked before God concerning this matter, and he struck Israel. 8And Daud said to God, “I have sinned greatly, because I did this deed. And now do take away your servant’s evil, for I have gone far astray.” 9And the Lord spoke to Gad, Daud’s seer, saying: 10“Go, and speak to Daud and say, ‘Thus says the Lord: Three things I am raising up against you. Choose one of them for yourself, and I will do it to you.’” 11And Gad came to Daud and said to him, “Thus says the Lord, ‘Choose for yourself: 12either three years of famine or that you flee three months from before your enemies and that your enemies’ dagger destroy utterly, or the Lord’s sword and death on the land for three days, while an angel of the Lord is standing between the earth and between the sky, and his sword drawn in his hand, stretched out over Jerusalem. And Daud and the elders, clothed in sackcloth, fell on their faces. 17And Daud said to God, ‘Was it not I who said that they count among the people? And it is I who was sinning: doing wrong I did wrong. And these sheep, what have they done? Lord God, let your hand be against me and against my father’s house and not against your people for destruction, Lord.’

18 And an angel of the Lord said to Gad to say to Daud to go up and erect an altar to the Lord on the threshing floor of Orna the Iebousite. 19And Daud went up according to the word of Gad, which he had spoken in the Lord’s name. 20And Orna turned and saw the king, and four of his sons were with him methachabin. And Orna was winnowing wheat. 21And Daud came to Ornan, and Orna left the threshing floor and did obedience to Daud with his face to the ground. 22And Daud said to Orna, “Give me your site of the threshing floor, and I will build on it an altar to the Lord. Give it to me for goodly silver, and the plague will abate from the people.” 23And Orna said to Daud, “Take it for yourself, and let my lord the king do what is good before him. See, I have given the oxen as a whole burnt offering and the plough and the carts for wood and the grain for a sacrifice. I have given it all.” 24And King Daud said to Orna, “No, because buying I am buying with goodly silver, because I will not take for the Lord what is yours, to offer a whole burnt offering to the Lord for nothing.” 25And Daud gave Orna six hundred shekels of gold by weight for his site. 26And Daud built there an altar to the Lord and offered whole burnt offerings and for deliverance. And he shouted to the Lord, and he heeded him with fire from the sky on the altar of the whole burnt offering, and it consumed the whole burnt offering. 27And the Lord spoke to the angel, and he put his sword back into its sheath.

28 At that time, when Daud saw that the Lord had heeded him on the threshing floor of Orna the lebousite, he also sacrificed there. 29And the Lord’s tent, which Moyses had made in the wilderness, and the altar of whole burnt offerings at that time were in Bama in Gabaon. 30And Daud was not able to go before it to inquire of God, because he made haste from before the sword of the angel of the Lord.

22 And Dauid said, "This is the house of the Lord God, and this is the altar for whole burnt offering for Israel." 2 And Dauid said to gather all the guests in the land of Israel, and he appointed them as quarrymen, to quarry dressed stones to build a house for God. 3 And Dauid prepared a lot of iron for the nails of the doorways and of the gates, and the clamps and bronze in abundance beyond weighing, 4 and cedar logs without number, for the Sidonians and Tyrians were bringing cedar logs to Dauid in abundance. 5 And Dauid said, "Salomon, my son, is a tender lad, and as for the house—in order that he may build it to the Lord unto lofty magnificence, unto fame and unto reputation throughout the earth, I shall make preparations for it." And Dauid prepared in abundance before his death.

6 And he called Salomon his son and commanded him that he should build the house for God of Israel. 7 And Dauid said to Salomon, "Child, I had it in mind to build a house for the name of the Lord God. 8 And a word of the Lord came to me, saying, 'You have shed blood in abundance and have waged great wars; you shall not build a house to my name, because you have shed much blood before me upon the earth. 9 Behold, a son is being born to you; he shall be a man of repose, and I will give him repose from all the enemies on every side, because his name shall be Salomon, and I will bestow peace and quiet on Israel in his days. 10 He shall build a house for my name, and he will be a son to me, and I will be a father to him, and I shall set right the throne of his kingdom in Israel forever. 11 And now, my son, the Lord will be with you and will make you prosper, and you will build a house for the Lord, your God, as he has spoken concerning you. 12 Only, may the Lord grant you wisdom and understanding and strengthen you over Israel both to watch over and to do the law of the Lord your God. 13 Then he will make you prosper, if you take care to do the ordinances and the judgments, which the Lord commanded Myoses for Israel. Be manly, and be strong; do not be afraid or terrified. 14 And behold, I, in accordance with my indigence, have prepared for the Lord's house one hundred thousand talents of gold and one million talents of silver and bronze and iron without measure, because there is in abundance, and timber and stones I prepared. And add to these! 15 And with you there will be a host of people doing tasks: craftsmen and stonemasons and workmen in wood and every person skilled in every kind of work. 16 In gold, in silver, in bronze and in iron—there is without number. Arise, and act, and the Lord be with you." 17 And Dauid commanded all the rulers of Israel to assist his son Salomon: 18 "Is not the Lord with you? And he has given you repose on every side, for he has given in your hands the inhabitants of the land, and the land has become subdued before the Lord and before his people. 19 Now give your hearts and your souls to seek for the Lord, your God, and rise and build a holy precinct for the Lord, your God, to bring the ark of the Lord's covenant and God's holy vessels into the house that is being built for the Lord's name."

23 And Dauid was an old man and full of days, and he made Salomon his son king over Israel in his stead.

2 And he gathered all the rulers of Israel and the priests and the Leuites. 3 And the Leuites, thirty years old and upward, were counted, and their number by their head came to thirty-eight thousand men. 4 Of these twenty-four thousand were taskmasters over the tasks of the Lord's house, and six thousand were scribes and judges, 5 and four thousand were gatekeepers, and four thousand praising the Lord with instruments that he made to praise the Lord. 6 And Dauid divided them in classes by the sons of Leui: Gedson, Kaath and Merari, 7 and by Parosom, by Edan and by Semei. 8 Edan's sons: ieli the chief and Zethom and Joel, three. 9 Semei's sons: Salomith and Hiil and Haidan, three. These were rulers of the paternal families of Edan. 10 And by the sons of Semei: Ieth and Ziza and Ioas and Beria: these were Semei's sons, four. 11 And Ieth was the chief and Ziza the second. And Ioas and Beria did not multiply sons, and they became a paternal house and one enrollment.

12 Kaath's sons: Ambram, Issaar, Chebron, Oziel, four. 13 Ambram's sons: Aaron and Myoses. And Aaron was set apart to consecrate the holy of holies, he and his sons forever to offer incense before the Lord, to minister and to pray to his name forever. 14 And Myoses was a man of God: his sons were called into the tribe of Leui. 15 Myoses' sons: Gersam and Eliezer. 16 Gersam's sons: Soubael the chief. 17 And Eliezer had sons: Raabia the chief. And Eliezer did not have other sons, but Raabia's sons were increased in height. 18 Issaar's sons: Salomith and Hiil and Haidan, three. These were rulers of the paternal families of Edan. 19 And the Leuites were not carrying the tent and all its articles for its ministration, 20 because Dauid said, "The Lord God of Israel has given his people repose and has made his abode in Jerusalem forever." 21 And the Leuites were not carrying the tent and all its articles for its ministration, 22 because in Dauid's last words was the number of Leui's sons from twenty years old and upward, 23 for he appointed them for the hand of Aaron to minister in the Lord's house over the courts and the shrine-carriers' chambers and over the purification of all the holy things and over the tasks of ministering to the house of God, 25 with regard to the loaves of presentation, with regard to the flour of the sacrifice and with regard to the unleavened cakes and with regard to the fying-pan and with regard to the mixed offering and with regard to every measure, 30 and to stand in the morning to praise to acknowledge the Lord, and likewise at evening. 31 And to be in charge of all the whole burnt offerings presented to the Lord on the sabbaths and on the new moons and on the feasts according to number, according to the judgment upon them, always to the Lord. 32 And they shall keep the watches of the tent of witness and the watches of the sons of Aaron, their brothers, to minister in the Lord's house.

24 And the sons of Aaron had divisions: Aaron's sons: Nadab and Abioud, Eleazar and Ithamar. 2 And Nadab and Abioud died before their father and had no sons. And Eleazar and Ithamar, Aaron's sons, officiated as priests. 3 And Daud and Sadok of the sons of Eleazar and Achimelech of the sons of Ithamar divided them according to their enrollment, according to their ministration, according to their paternal houses. 4 And Eleazar's sons were found to be more numerous as chiefs of the mighty ones than Ithamar's sons, and he divided them up: sixteen as rulers of paternal houses to the sons Eleazar and eight to the sons of Ithamar, according to their paternal houses. 5 And he divided them by lot, these with these, for they were officers of the holy things and officers of the Lord among the sons of Eleazar and among the sons of Ithamar. 6 And Samaia's sons of Nathanael, the scribe, one of Leui, recorded them in the presence of the king and of the officers. And there was Sadok the priest and Achimelech son of Abiathar and rulers of the paternal families of the priests and of the Leuites, a one by one as a paternal house for Eleazar and a one by one for Ithamar.

7 And the first lot came out for Iarib, and the second for Ideia, the third for Charem, the fourth for Seorim, the fifth for Melchia, the sixth for Mi-amin, the seventh for Kos, the eighth for Abia, the ninth for Iesou, the tenth for Sechenia, the eleventh for Eliasib, the twelfth for Iakim, the thirteenth for Hochchophpha, the fourteenth for Isbaal, the fifteenth for Belga, the sixteenth for Emmer, the seventeenth for Chezir, the eighteenth for Haphesse, the nineteenth for Phetaia, the twentieth for Ezekiel, the twenty-first for Iachin, the twenty-second for Gamoul, the twenty-third for Dalaiya, the twenty-fourth for Maasai. This is their enrollment according to their ministration to enter the house of the Lord according to their appointment through the hand of Aaron their father, as the Lord God of Israel had commanded.

20 And for the rest of the sons of Leui: for the sons of Ambram, Soubael; for the sons of Soubael, Iadia; for Raabia, the chief lesiias, and for Issari, Salomoth; for the sons of Salomoth, Iatham.

25 And Daud the king and the commanders of the force assigned the sons of Asaph and Haiman and Idithon to their tasks as those that make pronouncements with cinyrac and with nebel and with cymbals. And their number by head, as they worked at their tasks, was: 2 Asaph's sons: Zakkhou and Joseph and Nathanias and Isra. 3 And the sons of Asaph assigned to Asaph the sons of Jathub, the sons of Asaph next to Asaph the prophet, next to the king. 4 For Idithon, Idithon's sons: Godolia and Souri and Isai and Semei and Hasabia and Mattathias, six, striking up on the cinyrac after their father Idithon, acknowledgment and praise to the Lord. 4 For Haiman, Haiman's sons: Boukias and Manthanias and Azarael and Soubael and Ierimoth and Hananias and Hanani and Eliatha and Godallathi and Romemthi-od and lesbakas and Mallethi and Hotheri and Meazoth. All these were sons of Haiman, who struck up for the king with divine words to exalt his horn. And God gave Haiman fourteen sons and three daughters. All these sang hymns in the Lord's house with their father with cymbals and with nablas and with cinyrac—near the king and Asaph and Idithon and Haiman. 6 And their number was after their brothers, they having been trained to sing to the Lord, everyone intelligent: two hundred and eighty-eight. 8 And they too cast lots for classes, both small and great of masters and apprentices.

9 And the first lot of his sons and those of his brothers came out for Asaph, for Joseph: Godolia; the second was Enia, his brothers and his sons, twelve; the third was Zakkhou, his sons and his brothers, twelve; the fourth was Iediu, his sons and his brothers, twelve; the fifth was Nathanias, his sons and his brothers, twelve; the sixth was Boukias, his sons and his brothers, twelve; the seventh was Iseriel, his sons and his brothers, twelve; 15 the eighth was Iosia, his sons and his brothers, twelve; 16 the ninth was Manthanias, his sons and his brothers, twelve; 17 the tenth was Semei, his sons and his brothers, twelve; 18 the eleventh was Azaria, his sons and his brothers, twelve; 19 the twelfth was Hasibia, his sons and his brothers, twelve; 20 the thirteenth was Soubael, his sons and his brothers, twelve; 21 the fourteenth was Mattathias, his sons and his brothers, twelve; 22 the fifteenth was Jerimoth, his sons and his brothers, twelve; 23 the sixteenth was Hananias, his sons and his brothers, twelve; 24 the seventeenth was Lesbakasa, his sons and his brothers, twelve; 25 the eighteenth was Hanani, his sons and his brothers, twelve; 26 the nineteenth was Mellethi, because God blessed him. 6 And to his son Samaia were char the seventh, Phollathi the eighth, because Eliatha, his sons and his brothers, twelve; 27 the twentieth was Godollathi, his sons and his brothers, twelve; 28 the twenty-first was Hethir, his sons and his brothers, twelve; 29 the twenty-second was Hanani, his sons and his brothers, twelve; 30 the twenty-third was Meazoth, his sons and his brothers, twelve; 31 the twenty-fourth was Romemthiodi, his sons and his brothers, twelve.

26 In reference to the divisions of the gates: for Koreim's sons, Mosollamia son of Kore, of the sons of Abiasaph. 2 And Mosollamia had sons: Zacharias the firstborn, Idiel the second, Zabadias the third, Iethnouel the fourth. 3 Olam the fifth, Ioanan the sixth, Elioenai the seventh. 4 And Abdedom had sons: Samaia the firstborn, Iozabad the second, Ioaa the third, Sochar the fourth, Nathanael the fifth, Amiel the sixth, Issachar the seventh, Phollathi the eighth, because God blessed him. 6 And to his son Samaia were born sons of the firstborn Rosai into his father's house, because they were able. 7 Samaia's sons: Gothni and Raphael and Obed and Elzabad and Achiou, able sons, Eliou, Sabcbia and Isbakom. 8 All these were of the sons of Abdedom, they and their brothers and their sons, men working mightily at their activity, who were all together sixty-two from Abdedom. 9 Mosollamia also had sons and brothers, eighteen able men. 10 And Hosa of the sons of Merari had sons who kept office, because he was not the firstborn, but his father made him chief 11 of the second division. Tablai was the third; Zacharias was the fourth; all these, sons and brothers to Hosa, were thirteen.

12 For these were the divisions of the gates, for the chiefs of the mighty men, classes as their brethren, to minister in the house of the Lord. 13 And they cast lots, small and great alike, according to their paternal houses for "gateway and gateway." 14 And the lot for those on the east fell to Salamia and Zacharias; Ioas' sons threw lots for Melchia, and the lot came out for the north. 15 For Abdedom was on the south, opposite the house of esephin. 16 In reference to a second one: for Hosa was westward, after the gate of the shrine-carrier's chamber on the ascent, watch opposite watch. 17 On the east there were six during the day, on the north four in the day, on the south four in the day, and at the esephin two. 18 As deputies, and at the west there were four, and for the path two deputies. 19 These were the divisions of the gatekeepers for the sons of Kore and the sons of Merari.

20 And the Leuites, their brothers, had charge of the treasuries of the Lord's house and had charge of the treasuries of the dedicated things: 21 Ladan's sons, sons belonging to Ladan the Gersoni, rulers of the paternal families belonging to Ladan the Gersoni, Iiel.

22 And Iiel's son: the brothers Zethom and Joel were in charge of the treasuries of the Lord's house. 23 For Ambram and Issaar: Chebron and Oziel. 24 And Soubael the son of Gersam the son of Myses, leader in charge of the treasuries. 25 And his brother Eliezer had sons Raabias and Iosaias and Loram and Zechri and Salomoth. 26 Salomoth himself and his brothers were in charge of all the treasuries of the holy things, which King David and the rulers of the paternal families, the officers of thousands and the officers of hundreds and the commanders of the force, had sanctified. 27 He had taken them from the wars and from the spoils and dedicated some of them so as not to delay the construction of the house of God. 28 And over all the holy things of Samouel the prophet and of Saoul the son of Kis and of Abenner the son of Ner and of loab the son of Sarouia—everything they had dedicated was through the hand of Salomoth and his brothers.

29 For Issari: Chonenia and his sons were for external duty for Israel, to function as scribes and to judge. 30 For Chebroni: Hasias and his brothers, able-bodied sons, one thousand seven hundred in charge of the enrollment of Israel across the Jordan on the west with regard to every ministration of the Lord and work of the king. 31 Of Chebron: Ioudias the chief of those of Chebroni according to their generations by paternal families. In the fortieth year of his reign, they were inspected, and an able man was found among them in Lazer of Galaaditis, 32 and his brothers, able-bodied sons, two thousand seven hundred rulers of paternal families. And King David appointed them over Roubeni and Caddi and the half-tribe of Manasses with regard to every ordinance of the Lord and word of the king.

27 And as for Israel's sons according to their number, rulers of paternal families, officers of thousands and officers of hundreds and scribes, those ministering to the people and for every word of the king according to divisions, for every matter of the one entering and exiting, from month to month for all the months of the year—one division was twenty-four thousand.

2 And lesboam the son of Zabdiel was in charge of the first division of the first month, and in his division were twenty-four thousand. 3 He was from the sons of Phares, a commander of all the commanders of the force for the first month.
4 And Dodia the Echochi was in charge of the division of the second month, and twenty-four thousand were in his division, as commanders of the force. 5 The third for the third month was Banaiais the son of Iodae, the priest, the chief, and twenty-four thousand were in his division. 6 Banaiais himself was stronger than the thirty and in charge of the thirty. And his son Amizabath was in charge of his division. 7 The fourth for the fourth month was Assael brother of Ioab and his son Zabdias and his brothers, and there were twenty-four thousand in his division. 8 The fifth for the fifth month was the leader Samaoth the Iesrae, and there were twenty-four thousand in his division. 9 The sixth for the sixth month was Odouias the son of Ekkes the Thekoite, and there were twenty-four thousand in his division. 10 The seventh for the seventh month was Chelles of the ones from Phallous of the sons of Ephraim, and there were twenty-four thousand in his division. 11 The eighth for the eighth month was Sobochai the Hisathi, belonging to Zarai, and there were twenty-four thousand in his division. 12 The ninth for the ninth month was Abiezer, the one from Anathoth from the land of Benjamin, and there were twenty-four thousand in his division. 13 The tenth for the tenth month was Meera, the one from Netouphat belonging to Zarai, and there were twenty-four thousand in his division. 14 The eleventh for the eleventh month was Banaiais, the one from Pharathon of the sons of Ephraim, and there were twenty-four thousand in his division. 15 The twelfth for the twelfth month was Choldai the Netophati belonging to Gothoniel, and there were twenty-four thousand in his division.

16 And over the tribes of Israel: for Rouben the leader was Eliezer the son of Zechri; for Symeon, Saphatias the son of Maacha; 17 for Leui, Hasbias the son of Kamouel; for Aaron, Sadok; 18 for Ioudas, Eliaab of David's brothers; for Issachar, Ambri the son of Michael; 19 for Zabuoumon, Samaiais the son of Abdiou; for Nephthali, Ierimoth the son of Esriel; 20 for Ephraim, Hose the son of Oziou; for the half-tribe of Manasses, Ioel the son of Phadaia; 21 for the half-tribe of Manasses in Galaad, Iaddai the son of Zabdiou; for the sons of Benjamin, Asiel the son of Abenner; 22 for Dan, Azarael the son of Ioram. These were the patriarchs of the tribes of Israel. 23 And David did not take their number, from those twenty years old and below, because the Lord had said that Israel would multiply like the stars in the sky. 24 And loab the son of Sarouia began to number among the people, but he did not finish, and wrath occurred upon Israel meanwhile and the number was not entered in the Book of Histories of the Days of King David.

25 And over the king's treasuries was Asmoth the son of Oziou. And over the treasuries in the open country and in the villages and in the homesteads and in the towers was Ionathan the son of Oziou. 26 Now over the work on the land, tilling the soil, was Esdri the son of Choloub. 27 And over the estates was Semei the one from Rama, and over the stores that were in the estates for wine was Zachri the son of Sephni. 28 And over the olive groves and over the mulberry trees that were in the valley was Balanas the Gedorite, but over the stores of oil was Ioas. 29 And over the cattle in the pastures that were in Asidon was Safrais the Saronite, and over the cattle that were in the valleys was Sophat the son of Adli. 30 Now over the camels was Obil the Iesmaelite, but over the donkeys was Iadias the one from Merathon. 31 And over the sheep was Iaziz the Hagarite. All these were guardians over King David's possessions.

32 And Jonathan, David's uncle, was a counselor; a person of understanding and a scribe he was, and iel the son of Hachamani was with the king's sons. 33 And Achitophel was the king's counselor, and Chousi was a First Friend of the king. 34 And after this Achitophel, next was Iodae the son of Banaiais and Abiathar. And Ioab was the king's commander in chief.

28 And David assembled at Ierousalem all the rulers of Israel, rulers of the judges and the rulers of the classes, who watched over the king's person, and officers of the thousands and officers of the hundreds and the treasurers and those over his property and the men of substance and the warriors in the army. 2 And David stood in the midst of the assembly and said, 'Hear me, my brothers and people. It was in my heart to build a house of repose for the ark of the covenant of the Lord and a station for the feet of our Lord, and I prepared the materials for the encamping. 3 And God said, 'You shall not build me a house for my name to be called upon it, because you have been a person of war and have spilled blood.' 4 And the Lord God of Israel opted for me from all my father's house to be king over Israel forever. And in Ioudas he chose the royal palace and my father's house out of the house of Ioudas, and among my father's sons he wanted me, that I be king over all Israel. 5 And of all my sons (for the Lord has given me many sons) he opted for my son Salomon, that he should sit on the throne of the Lord's kingdom over Israel. 6 And God said to me, 'It is Salomon your son who shall build my house and my court, because I have opted for him to be a son to me and I will be a father to him. 7 And I will set right his kingdom forever, if he holds firm to keeping my commandments and my judgments, as this day.' 8 And now in front of all the Lord's assembly and in the ears of our God, keep and seek all the commandments of the Lord our God in order that you may inherit the good land and bequeath it to your sons after you forever.

9 "And now, Salomon, my son, know the God of your fathers, and be subject to him with complete heart and willing spirit, for the Lord searches all hearts and knows every notion. If you seek him, he will let you find him, but if you abandon him, he will abandon you completely. 10 See, though, that the Lord has chosen you to build him a house as a holy precinct. Be strong, and act.”

11 And David gave Solomon his son the plan of the shrine and of its houses and of its zakho and of the upper chambers and of the inner storerooms and of the house of atonement and the plan, which he had in his spirit, of the courts of the Lord’s house and of all the shrine-carriers’ chambers around that pertain to the stores of the Lord’s house and of the stores of the sacred things and of the lodgings of the classes of the priests and Levites pertaining to every work of ministration of the Lord’s house and of the stores of the liturgical vessels for service in the Lord’s house. 14 And he gave him the weight of their weight, both of the gold and the silver. 15 And he gave him the weight of the lampstands and of the lamps. 16 He likewise gave him the weight of the tables of presentation—of each gold table and likewise of those of silver—and of the meat hooks and libation bowls and of the gold saucers, and the weight of the gold and silver vessels, kephphoured of each weight. 18 And he showed him the weight of the altar of incense of refined gold and the plan of the chariot of the cherubim with their wings outstretched in flight and screening the ark of the Lord’s covenant.

19 David gave all these to Solomon in writing by the Lord’s hand, according to his surpassing understanding, to activate the plan.

20 And David said to Solomon his son, “Be strong, and be manly, and act; do not be afraid or terrified, because the Lord, my God, is with you and will not fail you nor will he desert you until you finish all the work of ministration of the house of the Lord. 21 And behold, the classes of the priests and the Levites for every ministry in the house of God, and with you in every activity is also every willing person with skill in every craft, and the rulers and all the people, for all your demands!”

29 And King David said to all the assembly, “Solomon, my son, one whom the Lord has chosen for him, is young and tender, and the task is great, for the construction is not for a human but for the Lord God. 2With all my might I have prepared, for a divine house, gold, silver, bronze, iron, wood, stones soon—and in plenitude—and precious and variegated stones and every costly stone and much marble. 3Moreover, since I was well pleased in the house of God, I have the gold and silver, which I have amassed for myself, and see, I have bestowed it on the house of my God for grandeur, apart from what I had made ready for the house of the holy things: 4 three thousand talents of gold that is from Souphir and seven thousand talents of fine silver, for the temple walls to be overlaid with them 5 through the hand of craftsmen. Now who is zealous to fill his hands today for the Lord?”

6 And the rulers of the paternal families and the rulers of the sons of Israel and the officers of thousands and the officers of hundreds and the overseers of the works and the king’s stewards showed zeal. 7 And they gave for the tasks connected with the Lord’s house five thousand talents of gold and ten thousand gold coins and ten thousand talents of silver and eighteen thousand talents of bronze and one thousand one hundred talents of iron. 8 And those with whom stone was found gave it for the stores of the house of the Lord through the hand of Iiel the Gersoni. 9 And the people were glad at the zeal that was shown, because they had shown zeal for the Lord with a full heart, and King David was gladdened greatly.

10 And King David blessed the Lord before the assembly, saying, “Blessed are you, Lord God of Israel, our father from age even unto age. 11 Yours, Lord, is the greatness and the power and the boast and the victory and the strength, because you have dominion over everything in the sky and on the earth. Every king and nation quakes from before you. 12 From you are riches and honor. You rule over all, Lord, the ruler of all rule, and in your hand are strength and dominance, and it is in your hand, Almighty one, to make all things great and strong. 13 And now, Lord, we acknowledge you and praise the name of your boasting.

14 “And who am I, and who are my people, that we have been able to show zeal for you like this? — because all things are yours and of your own have we given you. 15 Because we are resident aliens before you and live as resident aliens, like all our fathers. Our days on earth are like a shadow, and there is no endurance. 16 Lord, our God, all this abundance that I have made ready that a house to your holy name be built is from your hand, and all things belong to you. 17 And I knew, Lord, that you are the one who tests hearts, and you love righteousness. In simplicity of heart I have shown zeal for all these things, and now I have seen your people found here showing zeal for you with gladness. 18 Lord, God of our fathers Abraam and Isaak and Israel, keep these things forever in the thought of your people’s heart, and direct their hearts toward you. 19 And grant to Solomon my son a good heart to do your commandments and your testimonies and your ordinances and to bring to conclusion the construction of your house.”

20 And David said to all the assembly, “Bless the Lord, your God,” and all the assembly blessed the Lord, God of their fathers, and bowed their knees and did obeisance to the Lord and the king. 21 And on the 4tomorrow of the first day David sacrificed sacrifices to the Lord and offered whole burnt offerings to God, a thousand calves, a thousand rams, a thousand lambs and their libations and sacrifices in abundance for all Israel. 22 And they ate and drank before the Lord on that day with joy.

And they made David’s son Solomon king a second time and anointed him as king to the Lord and Sadok to the priesthood. 23 And Solomon sat on the throne of his father David and prospered, and all Israel obeyed him. 24 The rulers and the men of substance and all the sons of King David his father were subordinate to him. 25 And the Lord magnified Solomon over and above before all Israel and gave him royal majesty the like of which had never happened to any king before him.

26 And David son of Jesse reigned over Israel 27 for forty years, seven years in Hebron and thirty-three in Jerusalem. 28 And he passed away at a ripe old age, full of days, with wealth and honor, and Solomon his son became king in his stead. 29 Now the rest of the histories of King David, the earlier and the later, are written in the Histories of Samuel the Seer and in the Histories of Nathan the Prophet and in the Histories of Gad the Seer, 30 concerning all his reign and his prowess—and the times that befell him and Israel and all the kingdoms of the earth.
And Salomon son of Dauid prevailed over his kingdom, and the Lord his God was with him and magnified him highly.

And Salomon spoke to all Israel, to the officers of thousands and the officers of hundreds and the judges and all the rulers before Israel, to the rulers of the paternal families. And Salomon, and all the assembly with him, went to the high ground that is in Gabaon, there where God's tent of witness was, which Moyses, servant of the Lord, had made in the wilderness. But Dauid had carried God's ark up from the city of Kariathiarim, for he had prepared a tent for it in Jerusalem. And the bronze altar, which Besaleel son of Ourias son of Hor had made, was there before the Lord's tent, and Salomon and the assembly sought it out. And there Salomon offered on the bronze altar in the tent before the Lord and offered on it a thousand whole burnt offerings.

In that night God appeared to Salomon and said to him, "Ask what I should give you." And Salomon said to God, "You have done great mercy with Dauid my father and have made me king in his stead. And now, Lord God, let your name be confirmed over Dauid my father, because it is you who have made me king over a people as numerous as the dust of the earth. Now grant me wisdom and understanding, and I will go out and will go in before this people, because who will judge this great people of yours?"

And God said to Salomon, "Since this was in your heart and you have not asked for wealth of possessions nor glory, nor have you asked for the life of your opponents and for many days, and you have asked for wisdom and understanding for yourself in order to judge my people, those over whom I have made you king, I grant you wisdom and understanding, and I will give you both wealth and possessions and glory, as there has been none like you among the kings before you, and after you it shall not be so." And Salomon came from Bama in Gabaon to Jerusalem from before the tent of witness and ruled over Israel.

And Salomon gathered together chariots and horsemen, and he had one thousand four hundred chariots and twelve thousand horsemen. And he stationed them in the chariot cities, and the people were with the king in Jerusalem.

And the king placed gold and silver in Jerusalem like stones and the cedars in Judea, like mulberry trees that are in the plain in abundance.

And the export of Salomon's horses was from Egypt, and the price of the king's merchants; they would buy to trade. And they would go up and bring back from Egypt one chariot for six hundred shekels of silver and a horse for one hundred and fifty. And thus they would bring for all the kings of the Chettites and kings of Syria by their hands.

And Salomon said that he would build a house for the Lord's name and a house for his reign.

And Salomon gathered seventy thousand men and eighty thousand stonecutters in the hill country, and the supervisors over them were three thousand six hundred.

And Salomon sent to Chiram, king of Tyre, saying, "As you dealt with my father Dauid and dispatched to him cedars to build a house for him to dwell in, behold, I, his son, also am building a house for the name of the Lord, my God, to dedicate it to him to offer incense before him and presentation always and to present whole burnt offerings always, in the morning and evening and on sabbaths and on new moons and on the feasts of the Lord, our God; this is upon Israel forever. And the house, which I am building, is great, for great is our God compared with all the gods. And who will be able to build him a house?—because the sky and the sky of the sky cannot bear his glory. And who am I to build him a house?—except to offer incense before him. And now send me a skilled man and one who knows how to work in gold and in silver and in bronze and in iron and in purple and in scarlet and in blue, one who understands to engrave engraving, with the skilled men who are with me in Judas and in Jerusalem, whom my father Dauid provided. And send me cedar wood and juniper and pine from Lebanon, for I know how your slaves know about cutting wood from Lebanon. See, your servants will be with my servants. They will go to prepare me timber in abundance, for the house I am about to build will be great and glorious. And see, I have given the workmen, those cutting wood, grain as food in payment to your servants twenty thousand kors of barley and twenty thousand measures of wine and twenty thousand measures of oil."

And Chiram, king of Tyre, said in writing and dispatched to Salomon, "In his love for his people the Lord has granted you as king over them.” 11(12) And Chiram said, “Blessed be the Lord, God of Israel, who made the heaven and the earth, who gave King David a wise son and one who understands discretion and understanding, who will build a house to the Lord and a house for his reign. 12(13) “Now I have sent you a skilled man and one endowed with understanding. Chiram my father—13(14) his mother was of the daughters of Dan, and his father was a Tyrian man—since he knows how to work in gold and in silver and in bronze and in iron, in stone and wood and to weave in purple and in blue and in linen and in scarlet and to engrave engravings and to visualize any design, whatever you give him, together with your skilled men and the skilled men of David my lord, your father. 14(15) And now, let him send to his servants the grain and the barley and the oil and the wine of which my lord spoke. 15(16) And we on our part shall cut wood from Lebanon to meet your entire need and will transport it on rafts to the sea of Joppé, and you will transport it to Jerusalem.” 16(17) And Solomon gathered all the men, the guests, in the land of Israel after the census, which his father David had conducted of them, and they were found to be one hundred and fifty-three thousand and six hundred. 17(18) And of them he made seventy thousand into porters and eighty thousand into stonecutters and three thousand six hundred taskmasters over the people.

3 And Solomon began building the Lord’s house in Jerusalem, on the mountain of Moriah, where the Lord had appeared to David, his father, in the place that David had prepared in the threshing floor of Orna the Jebusite. And he began building in the second month of the fourth year of his reign. 3 And this is how Solomon began building the house of God. The length in cubits, the original measure, was sixty cubits and the width twenty cubits. 4 And there was an aillambb in front of the house, the length on face ofc the width of the house was twenty cubits, and its height was one hundred and twenty cubits. And he gilded it internally with pure gold. 5 And he lined the great house outside with cedar wood and gilded it with pure gold and engraved palms on it and chains. 6 And he made the house of the holy of holies: its length on face ofc width was twenty cubits, and the breadth was twenty cubits, and he gilded it with pure gold—onto of the cherubin—as much as six hundred talents of gold. 9 And the weight of the nails—the weight of one was fifty shekels of gold. And he gilded the upper chamber with gold. 10 And in the house of the holy of holies he fashioned a work of two cherubin out of wood, and he gilded them with gold. 11 And the cherubin’s wings were twenty cubits in length, and the one wing was five cubits, touching the wall of the house, and the other wing was five cubits, touching the wing of the other cherub. 12 And the wing of the onee cherub was five cubits, touching the wall of the house and the other wing was five cubits, touching the wing of the other cherub. 13 And the wings of the cherubin extended twenty cubits. And they stood on their feet, and their faces were toward the house. 14 And he made the veil out of blue and purple and scarlet and linen and wove cherubin into it. 15 And he made two pillars in front of the house, thirty-five cubits in height, and their tops five cubits. 16 And he made the molten sea, ten cubits in diameter, circular all round, and it was five cubits in height, and its circumference was thirty cubits. 3 And under it was a representation of bull calves. They encircled it on all sides, ten cubits; they surrounded the washbasin in a circle. They cast the bull calves of two kinds in their casting by which they made them, twelve bull calves, and three faced north, and three faced west, and three faced south, and three faced east, and the sea was on top of them, and their hind quarters were toward the inside. 5 And its thickness was a handbreadth, and its rim was like the rim of a cup, carved with lily buds; it held three thousand measures. And he completed it. 6 And he made ten washbasins and set five of them on the right and five on the left to rinse the utensils for the whole burnt offerings in them and wash them clean in them. And the sea was for the priests to wash in it.

4 And he made the bronze altar, twenty cubits in length and twenty cubits in width and ten cubits in height. 2 And he made the molten sea, ten cubits in diameter, circular all round, and it was five cubits in height, and its circumference was thirty cubits. 3 And under it was a representation of bull calves. They encircled it on all sides, ten cubits; they surrounded the washbasin in a circle. They cast the bull calves of two kinds in their casting by which they made them, twelve bull calves, and three faced north, and three faced west, and three faced south, and three faced east, and the sea was on top of them, and their hind quarters were toward the inside. 5 And its thickness was a handbreadth, and its rim was like the rim of a cup, carved with lily buds; it held three thousand measures. And he completed it. 6 And he made ten washbasins and set five of them on the right and five on the left to rinse the utensils for the whole burnt offerings in them and wash them clean in them. And the sea was for the priests to wash in it.

7 And he made the gold lampstands, ten according to their prescription, and placed them in the shrine, five on the right and five on the left. 8 And he made ten tables and placed them in the shrine, five on the right and five on the left. And he made one hundred saucers. 9 And he made the court of the priests and the great court and doors for the court and their doorways, overlaid with bronze. 10 And he placed the sea at the corner of the house on the right, facing eastward. 11 And Chiram made the meat hooks and the fire-pans and the hearth for the altar and all its utensils. And Chiram finished producing all the work which he did for Solomon the king in the house of God, two pillars and on them golath for the chothareth on the tops of the two pillars and two lattice works to cover the tops of the chothareth, which were on the tops of the pillars, and four hundred golden bells on the two lattice works and two sorts of pomegranates on one of the lattice works to cover the two golath of the chothareth, which were above the pillars. And he made the ten mechenoth, and he made the carrying-poles from above. And the poles projected from the city of Dauid (that is Sion). And they assembled—every man of Israel—before the king on the feast (it was the seventh month). And all the assembly of Israel and the leaders of the tribes, the leaders of the house of God, two pillars and on them golath, and the poles and cauldrons and meat hooks and all their utensils, which Chiram had made and brought to King Salomon in the house of the Lord, of pure bronze. The king cast them in the neighborhood of the Jordan in the ‘thickness of the land’ in the house of Sokchoth and between Sirdatha. And Salomon made all these utensils in great abundance, because the weight of bronze did not fail. And Salomon made all the utensils of the Lord’s house and the gold altar and the tables (and on them were loaves of presentation) and the lampstands and the lamps of light as prescribed and in front of the dabir, of pure gold—and there were their snuffers and their lamps—and the sauers and the censers and the fire-pan, of pure gold. And the inner door of the house toward the holy of holies, to the doors of the house of the shrine, of gold.

And all the activity was concluded, which Salomon had conducted in the house of the Lord. And Salomon brought in the holy things of his father Dauid, the silver and the gold, and he delivered the articles into the treasury of the Lord’s house.

Then Salomon said: “The Lord said that he would encamp in thick darkness. And I have built a house for your name, sacred to you and ready for you to encamp in forever.”

3 And the king turned his face and blessed all the assembly of Israel, and all the assembly of Israel stood by. And he said: “Blessed be the Lord, God of Israel, who spoke with his mouth to Dauid my father and has fulfilled it with his hands, saying: ‘From the day when I brought my people up out of Egypt, I did not choose for a city out of all the tribes of Israel to build a house that my name be there, and I did not choose for a man to be leader over my people Israel. And I have chosen for Jerousalem for my name to be there, and I have chosen for Dauid to be over my people Israel.’ And it was in my father Dauid’s heart to build a house for the name of the Lord, God of Israel, and the Lord said to my father Dauid, ‘Seeing that it was in your heart to build a house for my name, you have done well that it was in your heart. Nevertheless, it is not you who will build the house, because your son, who will come from your loins, it is he who will build the house for my name.’ And the Lord established his word, which he spoke, and I have taken the place of my father Dauid and sat down on the throne of Israel, as the Lord spoke, and I have built the house for the name of the Lord, God of Israel, and I have set there the ark in which is the Lord’s covenant, which he made with Israel.”

12 And he stood facing the Lord’s altar in the presence of all the assembly of Israel and spread out his hands—13 because Salomon had made a bronze platform and had set it in the midst of the temple court, its length five cubits and its width five cubits and its height three cubits, and he stood on it and fell to his knees before all the assembly of Israel—and he spread out his hands heavenward 14 and said, "Lord, God of Israel, there is no god like you in heaven or on the earth, who keeps covenant and mercy for your servants who walk before you wholeheartedly. 15 What you kept for your servant Dauid my father what you spoke to him when making utterance—you both spoke with your mouth and fulfilled it with your hands—it is as this very day. 16 And now, Lord, God of Israel, keep for your servant, for my father Dauid, what you said when you told him, ‘No man sitting on the throne of Israel will fail you from before me, if only your sons keep their way to walk in my law, as you have walked before me.’

17 “And now, Lord, God of Israel, let your utterance indeed be confirmed, which you spoke to your servant Dauid—18 because if a god will truly dwell with men on the earth, if the sky and the sky of the sky will not be enough for you, what then is this house, which I have built?

19 And look upon the prayer of your servant and on my petition, Lord God, to hear the petition and the prayer, which your servant prays before you today, 20 that your eyes be opened toward this house day and night, toward this place, which you said that your name would be called upon there, to hear the prayer, which your servant prays toward this place. 21 And you will hear the petition of your servant and your people Israel, whatever they pray toward this place, and as for you, you will hear in the place of your dwelling from the sky and will hear and be merciful.

22 “If a man sins against his fellow and takes upon himself an imprecation to imprecate him and he goes and imprecates before the altar in this house, 23 you shall also hear him from the sky and act and judge your slaves to repay the unjust and repay his ways on his head, to acquit the righteous in order to repay him according to his righteousness.

24 “And if your people Israel are shattered before the enemy, if they have sinned against you and repent and acknowledge your name and pray and petition before you in this house, 25 you will also hear them from the sky and be compassionate on the sins of your people Israel, because you will make clear to them the good way in which they will walk in it, and you will grant rain on your land, which you gave to your people as an inheritance.

27 “If there is famine on the land, if there is death, blight and jaundice, grasshopper and locust larva, if the enemy oppresses them against their cities in accordance with every blow and every suffering 29 and if every prayer and every petition arises from every person and all your people Israel, if a person knows his infection and his infirmity and spreads out his hands to this place, 30 you will also hear from the sky, from your ready habitation, and you will grant expiation and will give a man according to his ways, as you know his heart, for you alone know the heart of the sons of men, 31 that they should fear your ways all the days they are alive on the face of the land, which you gave our fathers.

32 “And every stranger, who is not of your people Israel and may come from a far off land because of your great name and your powerful hand and your arm held high, and they come and pray in this place—33 you will also hear them from the sky, from your ready habitation, and you will act according to all that the stranger calls to you so that all the peoples of the earth may know your name both to fear you, as your people Israel, and to know that your name has been called upon this house, which I have built.

34 “If your people go out to war against their enemies in the way you send them and pray to you according to the direction of this city, which you have chosen for it, and of the house, which I have built for your name, 35 you will also hear their petition and their prayer from the sky and act on their plea of right—36 because they will sin against you (for there is no person who will not sin), and you will strike them and hand them over before enemies, and their captors will take them captive into a land of enemies, to a land far or near, 37 and if they turn back their heart in their land, there where they have been transported, and if they do indeed repent and petition you in their captivity, saying, ‘We have sinned; we have done wrong; we have acted lawlessly,’ 38 and they turn back toward you with all their heart and soul in the land of their captors and pray in the direction of their land, which you gave to their fathers, and of the city, which you chose, and of the house, which I have built for your name, 39 you will also hear their prayer and their petition from the sky, from your ready habitation, and you will make judgments and be compassionate to your sinning people. 40 Now, Lord, do let your eyes stand open and your ears alert to the petition from this place. 41 Now:

42 “Arise, Lord God, to your repose, you and the ark of your strength.

May your priests, Lord God, clothe themselves in salvation, and let your sons be glad in good things.

42 Lord God, do not avert your face from your anointed; remember your mercies toward Dauid your slave.”

7 And when Salomon finished praying, the fire also descended from the sky and consumed the whole burnt offerings and the sacrifices, and the Lord’s glory filled the house. 2And the priests were unable to enter into the Lord’s house at that time, because the Lord’s glory filled the house. 3And all the sons of Israel saw the fire descend, and the glory of the Lord was on the house and they fell face down on the ground on the pavement and did obeisance and were praising the Lord.

“But it is good; because his mercy is forever.”

4And the king and all the people were sacrificing victims before the Lord. 5And Salomon sacrificed the sacrifice: twenty-two thousand calves and one hundred and twenty thousand fatlings. And the king and all the people dedicated the house of God. 6And the priests stood in their posts, and the Levites with instruments for songs to the Lord of the Lord’s glory filled the house. 2And the priests kept my ordinances and judgments, 18I will also keep my ordinances and judgments, which I have commanded you and according to all that I have commanded you and for Salomon and for Israel, his people.

11And Salomon completed the Lord’s house and the house of the king. And all that Salomon wanted in his soul to do in the Lord’s house and in his house was successful.

12And God appeared to Salomon by night and said to him, “I have heard your prayer and have chosen for this place for myself as a house of sacrifice. 13If I stop up the sky and there be no rain and if I command the grasshopper to consume the grasses of the land, and if I send death among my people 14and if I command the grasshopper to consume the grasses of the land and if I send death among my people 14and if I command the grasshopper to consume the grasses of the land and if I send death among my people 14and if I command the grasshopper to consume the grasses of the land and if I send death among my people 14and if I command the grasshopper to consume the grasses of the land and if I send death among my people, 15I will also remove you from the land that I gave them, and this house, which I consecrated for my name, I will turn it away from before me and render it an illustration and a tale among all the nations. 16And as for this lofty house—everyone who passes it by will be startled and say, ‘For what reason did the Lord do this to this land and this house?’ 22And they will say, ‘Because they abandoned the Lord, God of their fathers, who led them out of the land of Egypt and adopted other gods and did obeisance to them and were subject to them, therefore he has brought upon them all this harm.’ ”

8And it happened, after twenty years in which Salomon built the Lord’s house and his own house, 9also the cities that Chiram gave Salomon—Salomon built them and settled there the sons of Israel.

3And Salomon went to Haimath Soba and prevailed over it. 4And he built Thedmor in the wilderness and all the fortified cities, which he built in Hemath. 5And he built Upper Baithoron and Lower Baithoron, fortified cities—walls, gates and bolts there were—6and Baalath and all the fortified cities that belonged to Salomon and all the cities for his chariots and the cities for his horsemen, and all that Salomon desired according to his desire to build in Ierousalem and in Lebanon and in all his kingdom. 7All the people who were left from the Chettite and the Amorrite and the Pherezite and the Heuite and the Jebousite, who are not from Israel—8there were some of their sons who were left after them in the land, whom the sons of Israel had not utterly destroyed—and Salomon led them up for tribute until this day. 9And Salomon did not give any of the sons of Israel to be servants for his kingdom, because they were warriors and commanders and mighty men and commanders of chariots and horsemen. 10And these were rulers of King Salomon’s overseers, two hundred and fifty taskmasters among the people.

11And Salomon brought Pharaoh’s daughter up from the city of Daud to the house which he had built for her, because he said, “My wife shall not live in the city of Daud, king of Israel, because there where the Lord’s ark has entered is holy.”

12Then Salomon offered whole burnt offerings to the Lord on the altar, which he had built in front of the shrine. 13And according to the reckoning of day by day to make offering according to Moyses’ commandments on the sabbaths and on the months and on the feast days three times a year, on the feast of unleavened bread and on the feast of weeks and on the feast of tents. 14And he appointed the priests’ divisions according to Daud’s judgment with regard to their ministrations. And the Leuites were at their posts to praise and minister oppose the priests according to the reckoning of day by day and the door keepers according to their divisions at gate and gate, because thus were the commands of Daud, man of God. They did not transgress the king's commandments concerning the priests and Leuites in any matter and regarding the treasuries.

16 And all the work was accomplished from the day it was founded until Salomon completed the Lord's house.

17 Then Salomon went to Gasiongaber and Ailath, the maritime city in the land of Idumea.
18 And Chiram sent ships by the hand of his servants and servants familiar with the sea, and they gone to Sophira with Salomon's servants and brought from there four hundred and fifty talents of gold, and they came to King Salomon.

9 And the queen of Saba' heard Salomon's name and came to Jerusalem, to test Salonom and spoke to him all that she had in her mind. 2And Salomon proclaimed to her all her words, and there was no issue that eluded Salonom, which he did not proclaim to her. 3And
the queen of Saba' saw Salomon's wisdom and the house, which he had built, 4and the foodstuffs

the Lord's house. And she was beside herself.

10 (And Salomon's servants and the servants of Chiram brought Salomon gold from Souphir and pine wood and precious stone. 11 And the king Chiram brought Salomon gold from Souphir and precious stone, and he came to Sal-onom and spoke to him all that she had in her mind. 2And Salomon proclaimed to her all her words, and there was no issue that eluded Sa-
lonom, which he did not proclaim to her. 3And
the queen of Saba' saw Salomon's wisdom and the house, which he had built, 4and the foodstuffs on the tables and the seating of his servants and the standing of his ministers and their clothing and his wine stewards and their apparel and the whole burnt offerings, which he offered in the Lord's house. And she was beside herself.

5 And she said to the king, "The report that I heard in my land about your words and about your wisdom was true. 6 And I did not believe the reports until I came and my eyes saw, and behold, I had not been told the half of the abundance of your wisdom. You have added to the rumor I heard. 7 Happy are your men; happy are these, your servants, who stand beside you continually and hear your wisdom. 8 Let the Lord, your God, be blessed, who wanted you on his throne, to give you as king for the Lord, your God. When the Lord, your God, loved Israel to confirm it forever, he set you as king for the Lord, your God. When the Lord, set you as king to administer judgment and righteousness." 9 And she gave the king one hundred and twenty talents of gold and spices in very great quantity and precious stone. And there were no spices like those which the queen of Saba' gave King Salomon.

10 (And Salomon's servants and the servants of Chiram brought Salomon gold from Souphir and
pine wood and precious stone. 11 And the king made the pinewood into ascents for the Lord's house and the king's house and into lyres and nablas for the singers. And such things had not been seen before in the land of loudas).

12 And King Salomon gave the queen of Saba' all her wants which she requested, beyond everything she had brought King Salomon. And she returned to her land.

13 And the weight of gold that was brought to Salomon in one year was six hundred and sixty-six talents of gold, besides the men who were subordinates and merchants—what they would bring—and all the kings of Arabia and the satraps of the land—they would bring gold and silver to King Salomon. And King Salomon made two hundred oblong shields of beaten gold—six hundred of pure gold to one shield; six hundred of gold went into one shield—and three hundred round shields of beaten gold; he allotted three hundred of gold to each shield. And the king gave them in the house of the Forest of Lebanon. And the king made a large ivory throne of teeth and gilded it with certified gold. And the throne had six steps, attached with gold, and there were arms on either side of the throne for sitting, and two lions standing next to the arms and twelve lions standing there on the six steps at either side. Nothlike thing that had existed in any kingdom. And all King Salomon's vessels were of gold, and all the vessels of the house of the Forest of Lebanon were covered with gold. Nor was silver held in any account in the days of Salomon, because a ship for the king traveled to Tharsis with Chiram's servants.
Once every three years the boats would come from Tharsis to the king full of gold and silver and ivory teeth and apes.

22 And Salomon was magnified over all the kings both in wealth and in wisdom. And all the kings of the earth would seek out the face of Salonom to hear his wisdom, which God had given in his heart. And every one of them brought his gifts, silver vessels and gold vessels and clothing, myrrh and spices, horses and mules, year by year, and silver like stones in Jerusalem and cedars like the sycamores that are in the flat country in profusion. And the export of horses was from Egypt to Salomon and from all the earth.

29 And the rest of the histories of Salomon, the first and the last, behold, they are written in the Histories of Nathan the Prophet and in the Histories of Achai the Selonite and in the Visions of Ioel the Seer concerning Ieroboam son of Nabat. And King Salomon reigned over all Israel for forty years.
And Salomon slept, and they buried him in the city of Daud his father and Roboam his son reigned in his stead.

10 And Roboam went to Sychem, because all Israel was coming to Sychem to make him

king. 2And it happened, when Ieroboam son of Nabat heard—and he was in Egypt, as he had fled from before King Salomon, and Ieroboam had taken up residence in Egypt—then Ieroboam returned from Egypt. 3And they sent and called him, and Ieroboam and all the assembly of Israel came to Roboam, saying, 4"Your father made our yoke hard. And now lighten your father's harsh slavery and his heavy yoke that he placed upon us, and we will be subject to you." 5And he said to them, "Go forth about three days, and then come to me." And the people went away.

6 And King Roboam gathered the elders who had stood before Salomon his father during his lifetime, saying, "How do you advise that a word should be answered to this people?" 7And they spoke to him, saying, "If today you are well disposed to this people and you are well pleased with them and speak kind words to them, they will be your servants all your days." 8And he rejected the advice of the elders who had counseled him and took counsel with the youths who had been brought up with him, who stood before him. 9And he said to them, "What do you counsel and what word shall I reply to this people who have spoken to me, saying, 'Lighten the yoke your father imposed upon us?'" 10And the youths who had been brought up with him said to him, "Thus shall you speak to the people who spoke to you saying, 'Your father made our yoke hard. Now remove it from us.' Thus shall you speak, 'My little finger is thicker than my father's waist. 11And now my father trained you with a heavy yoke, but I will add to your yoke. My father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with scorpions.'"

12 And Ieroboam and all Israel came to Roboam on the third day, as the king had spoken, saying, "Return to me on the third day." 13And the king answered harshly and King Roboam abandoned the elders' counsel. 14And he spoke to them according to the youths' counsel, saying, "My father made your yoke heavy, but I will add to it. My father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with scorpions." 15And the king did not listen to the people, because it was a reversal from God, saying, "The Lord has established his word, which he spoke by the hand of Achia the Selonite concerning Ieroboam son of Nabat 16and all Israel," that the king did not listen to them. And the people replied to the king, saying, "What share do we have in Daud, and what inheritance in the son of Iessai? To your coverts, O Israel. Now look at your house, Dauid!"

And all Israel went to their coverts. 17And as for the men of Israel who were living in the cities of loudas—even Roboam ruled over them. 18And King Roboam sent Hadoniram, the one in charge of revenue, and the sons of Israel stoned him with stones, and he died. And King Roboam hastened to mount his chariot to flee to Ierousalem. 19And Israel has rejected the house of Daud to this day.

11 And Roboam went to Ierousalem and assembled loudas and Beniamin—one hundred and eighty thousand youths doing war—and he was mobilizing against Israel to return the kingdom to Roboam. 2And a word of the Lord came to Samaias, man of God, saying: 3Say to Roboam the son of Salomon and all Ioudas and Beniamin, saying, 4"This is what the Lord says: You shall not go up and wage war against your brothers. Return, each one to his own home, because this thing is from me." And they heeded the Lord’s word and turned back from advancing upon Ieroboam.

5 And Roboam resided in Ierousalem, and he built walled cities in Judea. 6And he built Baithlath and Ziza and Emmoth. 21And Roboam appointed Abia son of Maacha as ruler, as leader among his brothers, because he intended for him to become king. 23And heb was increased beyond all his sons in all the regions of Ioudas and Beniamin more than all his wives and his concubines, because he had ten wives and thirty concubines. And he fathered twenty-eight sons and sixty daughters. 22And Roboam appointed Abia son of Maacha as ruler, as leader among his brothers, because he intended for him to become king. 23And heb was increased beyond all his sons in all the regions of loudas and Beniamin and in the fortified cities and he gave them provisions in great abundance. And he claimed an abundance of women.

12 And it happened that, as Roboam's reign became established and as it became confirmed, he abandoned the Lord's commandments and all Israel with him. 2And it happened in the fifth year of Roboam’s reign that Sousakim, king of Egypt, came up against Jerousalem because they had sinned against the Lord, 3with one thousand two hundred chariots and sixty thousand horses, and the multitude which accompanied him out of Egypt—Libyans, Troglydites and Ethiopians—was innumerable. 4And they seized the fortified cities that were in Ioudas, and he came to Jerousalem. 5And Samaia the prophet came to Roboam and the rulers of Ioudas, who had gathered in Jerousalem from before Sousakim, and said to them, “Thus said the Lord. ‘You abandoned me, and I will abandon you to the hand of Sousakim.’” 6And the rulers of Israel and the king were ashamed and said, “The Lord is just.” 7And when the Lord saw the rulers of Israel and the king were ashamed and innumerable. 4And they seized the fortified cities Egypt—Libyans, Troglydites and Ethiopians—was two hundred chariots and sixty thousand horses, that Salomon had made. 10And Roboam made everything. He also took the gold oblong shields that were in Ioudas, and he came to Jerousalem. 11And Roboam appointed over him commanders of the guards would go in, and the runners who guard the king’s gate. 11And it happened that, when the king entered the Lord’s house, the guards would go in, and the runners and those returning to meet the runners. 12And when he felt compunction, the Lord’s wrath turned away from him and was not completely for destruction. Indeed matters were good in Ioudas. 13And Roboam became strong in Jerousalem, and he reigned. And Roboam was forty-one years old when he became king, and he reigned in Jerousalem for seventeen years in the city that the Lord had chosen out of all the tribes of the sons of Israel for his name to be called upon there. And his mother’s name was Noomma the Ammanite. 14And he did evil, because he did not direct his heart to seek out the Lord. 15And the histories of Roboam, the first and the last, behold, are they not written in the Histories of Samaia the Prophet and Addo the Seer, as well as his acts? And Roboam waged war against Ieroboam all his days. 16And Roboam died and was buried with his fathers and was buried in the city of Daud, and Abia his son became king in his stead. 13 In the eighteenth year of the reign of Ieroboam, Abia became king over Ioudas. 1And it happened in the fifth year of Roboam’s reign that Sousakim, king of Egypt, came up against Jerousalem because they had sinned against the Lord, 2with one thousand two hundred chariots and sixty thousand horses, and the multitude which accompanied him out of Egypt—Libyans, Troglydites and Ethiopians—was innumerable. 4And they seized the fortified cities that were in Ioudas, and he came to Jerousalem. 5And Samaia the prophet came to Roboam and the rulers of Ioudas, who had gathered in Jerousalem from before Sousakim, and said to them, “Thus said the Lord. ‘You abandoned me, and I will abandon you to the hand of Sousakim.’” 6And the rulers of Israel and the king were ashamed and said, “The Lord is just.” 7And when the Lord saw the rulers of Israel and the king were ashamed and innumerable. 4And they seized the fortified cities Egypt—Libyans, Troglydites and Ethiopians—was two hundred chariots and sixty thousand horses, that Salomon had made. 10And Roboam made everything. Indeed matters were good in Ioudas. 13And Roboam became strong in Jerousalem, and he reigned. And Roboam was forty-one years old when he became king, and he reigned in Jerousalem for seventeen years in the city that the Lord had chosen out of all the tribes of the sons of Israel for his name to be called upon there. And his mother’s name was Noomma the Ammanite. 14And he did evil, because he did not direct his heart to seek out the Lord. 15And the histories of Roboam, the first and the last, behold, are they not written in the Histories of Samaia the Prophet and Addo the Seer, as well as his acts? And Roboam waged war against Ieroboam all his days. 16And Roboam died and was buried with his fathers and was buried in the city of Daud, and Abia his son became king in his stead. 13 In the eighteenth year of the reign of Ieroboam, Abia became king over Ioudas. 2He reigned three years in Jerousalem, and his mother’s name was Maacha daughter of Ouriel from Gabaon. And there was war between Abia and between Ieroboam. 3And Abia prepared for war with a force: warriors of a force, four hundred thousand mighty men. And Ieroboam lined up against him a battle with eight hundred thousand; mighty warriors of power they were. 4And Abia got up from Mount Somoron, which is in Mount Ephraim, and said, “Listen, Ieroboam and all Israel! Is it not for you to know that the Lord, God of Israel, gave rule over Israel forever to Daud and his sons as a covenant of salt? 6And Ieroboam the son of Nabat, the servant of Salomon son of Daud, rose up and rebelled against his lord. 7And pestilent men, lawless sons, were gathered to him, and he rose up against Roboam the son of Salomon. Now Roboam was rather young and timid in heart and did not stand up to him.” 8 “And now you say that you stand in opposition to the Lord’s kingdom through the hand of Daud’s sons. And you are a large multitude, and with you are golden calves, which Ieroboam has made as gods for you. 9Have you not thrown out the Lord’s priests, the sons of Aaron and the Leuites, and made for yourselves priests from the people of the land? Anyone who approaches to fill the hands with a calf from cattle and seven rams also becomes priest to what is no god. 10And we have not abandoned the Lord, our God, and his priests, the sons of Aaron, and the Leuites in their daily divisions minister to the Lord. 11They fumigate to the Lord, in the morning and evening, whole burnt offerings and incense of integration and the presentation of loaves on the pure table. And there are the gold lampstand and the lamps for burning to ignite in the evening, because we keep the watches of the Lord, God of our fathers, and you have abandoned him. 12And, behold, to begin with, the Lord is with us and his priests and the signal trumpets to signal against you. You, the sons of Israel, are going to war against the Lord, God of your fathers—because it will not go well for you.” 13 And Ieroboam had turned their ambush to come from behind. And he was in front of Ioudas, and the ambush was behind. 14And Ioudas turned back, and, behold, the war loomed upon them in front and in the rear, and they called to the Lord, and the priests trumpeted with the trumpets. 15And the men of Ioudas shouted, and it happened that, when the men of Ioudas shouted, the Lord also struck Ieroboam and Israel before Abia and Ioudas. 16And the sons of Israel fled from before Iouda, and the Lord surrendered them into their hands. 17And Abia and his people struck a great blow in their midst, and five hundred thousand mighty men of Israel fell slain. 18And the sons of Israel were humbled on that day, and the sons of Ioudas prevailed, because they hoped in the Lord, God of their fathers. 19And Abia pursued after Ieroboam and seized some cities from him, Baitel and its villages and Isana and its villages and Ephron and its villages. 20And Ieroboam could not regain strength all the days of Abia, and the Lord struck him, and he died. 21And Abia grew strong and took to himself fourteen wives and fathered twenty-two sons and sixteen daughters. 22And the rest of the histories of Abia, both his acts and his words, are written in the Book of the Prophet Addo. 23(14.1) And Abia died with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of David, and Asa his son became king in his stead.

14 In the days of Asa the land of loudas was quiet for ten years. (2)And he did what was good and right before the Lord, his God. 2(3) And he removed the altars of the foreigners and the high places and smashed the steles and cut down the groves. 3(4) And he told loudas to seek out the Lord, God of their fathers, and to do the law and the commandments. 4(5) And he removed from all the cities of loudas the altars and the idols and enjoyed peace. 5(6) Cities were walled in the land of loudas, because the land enjoyed peace. And he endured no war during those years because the Lord granted him repose. 6(7) And he said to loudas, "Let us build these cities and make walls and towers and gates and bars, by which we will control the land, because as we sought the Lord, our God, he has sought us out and granted us repose on every side, and he has made us prosper." 7(8) And Asa had a force of three hundred thousand mighty warriors.

8(9) And Zare the Ethiopian came out against them with a force of a million and three hundred chariots and went as far as Marisa. 9(10) And Asa came out to meet him and drew up his battle line in the ravine to the north of Marisa. 10(11) And Asa called out to the Lord, his God, and said, "Lord, it is not impossible with you to save with many or with few. Strengthen us, Lord, our God, because we have put our trust in you, and in your name we have come against this vast multitude. Lord, our God, let no man prevail against you." 11(12) And the Lord struck the Ethiopians before loudas, and the Ethiopians took to flight. 12(13) And Asa and his people pursued as far as Gedor, and the Ethiopians fell so that there was no preservation among them, because they were crushed before the Lord and before his force. And they took much plunder. 13(14) And they eradicated their villages round Gedor, because terror of the Lord had come upon them, and they plundered all their cities, because much plunder accrued to them. 14(15) Indeed tents of possessions, the Amazons, they eradicated and seized many sheep and camels and returned to Jerusalem.

15 And Azarias son of Oded—a spirit of the Lord came upon him. 2And he went out to meet Asa and all loudas and Beniamin and said, "Hear me, Asa, and all loudas and Beniamin. The Lord is with you when you are with him, and if you seek him, he will be found to you, and if you abandon him, he will abandon you. 3And for many days it has been for Israel without a true god and without a teaching priest and without law. 4And he will return to the Lord, God of Israel, and he will be found to them. 5And at that time there is no peace for the one exiting and the one entering, because terror of the Lord is upon all the inhabitants of the land. 6And nation will war against nation and city against city, because God has founded them in every tribulation. 7And you, be strong, and let your hands not fail, for there is a reward for your work."

8 And when he heard these words and the prophecy of Adad the prophet, he was both encouraged and he removed the abominations from all the land of loudas and Beniamin and from the cities he had gained possession of in Mount Ephraim, and he renewed the Lord's altar that was in front of the Lord's shrine. 9And he assembled loudas and Beniamin and the guests who were sojourning with him from Ephraim and from Manasse and from Symeon, because many from Israel had joined him when they saw that the Lord, his God, was with him. 10And they were gathered in Jerusalem in the third month of the fifteenth year of Asa's reign. 11And he sacrificed to the Lord on that day from the plunder that they had brought, seven hundred calves and seven thousand sheep. 12And he entered in a covenant to seek the Lord, God of their fathers, from all his heart and from all his soul. 13And if any one would not seek the Lord, God of Israel, he would die, from youth to elder, from man to woman. 14And they swore by the Lord with a loud voice, both with trumpets and with horns. 15And all loudas was glad over the oath, because they had sworn from all their soul and had sought him with all their will, and the Lord was found to them and granted them rest all around.

16 And he removed his mother, so she would not be ministering to Astarte, and he cut down the idol and burned it in the Wadi Kedron. 17Yet, they did not take away the high places; they kept on existing in Israel. Nevertheless, Asa's heart was full all his days. 18And he brought in the holy things of David his father and the holy things of the house of the Lord God, silver and gold and utensils. 19And there was no war with him until the thirty-fifth year of Asa's reign.

16 And in the thirty-eighth year of Asa's reign, Baasa, king of Israel, went up against loudas and built Rama so as not to give to Asa, king of loudas, exit and entrance. 2And Asa took gold and silver from the treasures of the Lord's house and the king's house and sent them to the son of Hader, king of Syria, who resided in Damascus, saying, 3"Make a covenant between me and you and between my father and between your father. See, I have sent you gold and silver. Come, and shake off from me Baasa, king of Israel, and let him withdraw from me." 4And Hader's son heard

King Asa and dispatched the commanders of his force against the cities of Israel and struck Ion and Dan and Abelmain and all the environs of Nephthali. 5And it happened, when Baasa heard, he left off building Rama any longer, and his labor came to a standstill. 6And King Asa took all Ioudas and seized the stones of Rama and its timber, which Baasa was using for construction, and he built Gabae and Maspha with it.

7 And at that time Hanani the prophet came to Asa, king of Ioudas, and said to him, “When you trusted in the king of Syria and did not trust in the Lord, your God, the Syrian force was saved from your hands. 8Did not the Ethiopians and Libyans possess a force large in courage, in horsemen in great profusion? And when you trusted in the Lord, he handed them into your hands, 9because the Lord’s eyes range over all the earth, to put himself in the city of Dauid, and they laid him to a standstill. 6And King Asa took all Ioudas and

10 And Asa was furious with the prophet and cast him in prison, because he was so angry with him. And Asa inflicted indignities among the people at that time.

11 And see, the histories of Asa, the first and the last, are written in the Book of the Kings of Ioudas and Israel. 12And in the thirty-ninth year of his reign Asa grew infirm in his feet. He grew gravely infirm. And in his infirmity he did not seek the Lord, but physicians. 13And Asa slept with his fathers and died in the thirty-ninth year of his reign.

14 And they buried him in the tomb that he dug for himself in the city of Dauid, and they laid him to rest on the couch and filled it with spices and types of myrrh of the perfumer, and they made a very large funeral for him.

17 And Iosaphat his son became king in his stead, and Iosaphat became powerful against Israel. 2And he put a force in all the fortified cities of Ioudas and appointed leaders in all the cities of Ioudas and in the cities of Ephraim that Asa his father had seized before. 3And the Lord was with Iosaphat, because he walked in the commandments of his fathers and did not seek out the idols. 4But he sought out the Lord, God of his father, and walked in the commandments of his father and not like the deeds of Israel. 5And the Lord directed the kingdom by his hand, and all Iouda gave gifts to Iosaphat, and wealth accrued to him and much glory. 6And his heart was exalted in the way of the Lord, and he furthermore removed the high places and the groves from the land of Ioudas.

7 And in the third year of his reign he dispatched his leaders and the sons of the mighty, Abdias and Zacharias and Nathanael and Michaiah, to teach in the cities of Ioudas. 8And with them were the Levites, Samouias and Nathaniyas and Zabdiyas and Asiel and Semiramoth and Ionathan and Adonias and Tobias, the Levites, and with them the priests Elisama and Ioram. 9And they taught in Ioudas and with them was a book of the Lord’s law, and they passed through in the cities of Ioudas and taught the people.

10 And terror of the Lord came upon all the kingdoms of the earth, those around Ioudas, and they did not wage war against Iosaphat. 11And some of the allophyles brought Iosaphat gifts and silver and presents, and the Arabs brought him seven thousand seven hundred rams of sheep. 12And Iosaphat walked taller in stature and built dwellings and fortified cities in Judea.

13 And he had many works in Judea and men, mighty warriors, holding sway in Ierousalem. 14And this is their number according to their paternal houses: for Ioudas, officers of thousands: Ednas the commander and with him three hundred thousand mighty sons of power. 15And after him was Ioanan and with him two hundred and eighty thousand. 16And after him was Amasias the son of Zachri, who showed zeal for the Lord, and with him two hundred thousand mighty ones of power.

17 And from Beniamin: Eliada, a mighty one of power, and with him two hundred thousand archers and light troops. 18And after him was Iozabad and with him one hundred and eighty thousand mighty warriors. 19These were the ones who served the king, apart from those whom the king stationed in the fortified cities all over Judea.

18 And further wealth and much glory accrued to Iosaphat, and he married into the house of Achaab. 2And at the end of years he went down to Achaab in Samaria, and Achaab sacrificed sheep and many calves for him and for the people who were with him and deceived him to go up with him to Ramoth of Galaaditis. 3And Achaab, king of Israel, said to Iosaphat, king of Ioudas, “Will you go with me to Ramoth of Galaaditis?” And he said to him, “I am as you; your people, also my people, with you into war.”

4 And Iosaphat said to the king of Israel, “Do seek the Lord today.” 5And the king of Israel gathered the prophets, four hundred men, and said to them, “Should I go to Ramoth Galaad for war or hold back?” And they said. “Go up, and God will give it into the king’s hands.” 6And Iosaphat said, “Is there further no prophet of the Lord here, and we shall inquire from him?” 7And the king of Israel said to Iosaphat, “There is still one man by whom we can inquire of the Lord; I for my part hated him, because he is not prophesying anything good about me, because all his days are for evil. He is Michaia son of Iemla.” And Iosaphat said, “Let the king not speak like that.” 8And the king of Israel called one eunuch and said, “Quick. Michaia son of Iemla.” 9And the king of Israel and Iosaphat, king of Ioudas, each sitting on his throne and dressed in robes, sitting in the wide space at the door of the gate of Samaria, and all the prophets were prophesying before them. 10And Sedekias son of Chanana made for himself iron horns and said, “This is what the Lord says: With these you will gore Syria until it is finished off.” 11And all the prophets were prophesying like that, saying, “Go up to Ramoth Galaad, and you will be successful, and the Lord will give it into the king's hands.”

12 And the messenger who had gone to call Michaia spoke to him, saying, “Look, the prophets with one mouth have spoken good things concerning the king. And do let your words be as of one of them, and you shall speak good things.”

13 And Michaia said, “The Lord lives, because whatever God says to me, that will I speak.”

14 And he came to the king, and the king said to him, “Michaia, should I go to Ramoth Galaad for war or hold back?” And he said, “Go up, and you will be successful, and they shall be given into your hands.”

15 And the king said to him, “How many times have I made you swear to speak to me nothing but the truth in the name of the Lord?”

16 And he said, “I saw Israel scattered on the mountains, like sheep who have no shepherd, and the Lord said, 'They have no leader. Let them—each one—return to his home in peace.'”

17 And the king of Israel said to Iosaphat, “Did I not tell you that he does not prophesy good about me, but only bad?”

18 And he said, “Not so; hear a word of the Lord. I saw the Lord sitting on his throne and all the host of heaven standing to his right and to his left.

19 And the Lord said, ‘Who will deceive Achaab, king of Israel, and he will go up and fall at Ramoth Galaad?’ And this one said thus, and that one said so. 20 And the spirit went out and stood before the Lord and said, ‘I will deceive him.’ And the Lord said, ‘In what way?’ 21 And he said, ‘I will go and be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall deceive and prevail. Go, and do so.’ 22 And now, see, the Lord gave a lying spirit in the mouth of all these your prophets, and the Lord spoke bad concerning you.”

23 And Sedekias son of Chanana approached Michaia and struck him on the jaw and said, “By what way did the Lord's spirit pass from me to speak to you?” 24 And Michaia said, “Behold, you will see on that day when you enter an inner chamber from an inner chamber to hide.” 25 And the king of Israel said, “Take Michaia, and return him to Emer, ruler of the city, and to Ioas, a ruler, son of the king.”

26 And you will say, “Thus said the king. Put this man in a house of detention, and let him eat bread of affliction and water of affliction until I return in peace.”

27 And Michaia said, “If returning you return in peace, the Lord has not spoken by me. Listen, all peoples!”

28 And the king of Israel and Iosaphat, king of Ioudas, went up to Ramoth Galaad. 29 And the king of Israel said to Iosaphat, “I will disguise myself and enter into battle, but as for you, wear my clothes.” And the king of Israel disguised himself and entered into battle.

30 And the king of Syria had commanded the commanders of the chariots who were with him, saying: “Do not make war on small and great, but only on the king of Israel.”

31 And it happened, when the commanders of the chariots saw Iosaphat, they too said, “It is the king of Israel,” and they circled round him to fight him. And Iosaphat shouted out, and the Lord saved him, and God drove them back from him. 32 And it happened, when the commanders of the chariots saw that he was not the king of Israel, they also withdrew from him. 33 And a man drew a bow with a good aim and struck the king of Israel between the lungs and between his breastplate, and he said to his driver, “Turn your hand, and take me out of the battle, because I am in trouble.” 34 And the battle was turned that day, and the king of Israel remained standing on his chariot facing Syria until evening and died as the sun set.

19 And Iosaphat, king of Ioudas, returned in peace to his house in Ierousalem. 2 And the prophet lou the son of Hanani went out to meet him and said to him, “King Iosaphat, were you helping a sinner, or are you acting as friend to one hated by the Lord? Because of this, wrath has come against you from the Lord. 3 But good features were found in you, because you removed the groves from the land of Ioudas and directed your heart to seek out the Lord.”

4 And Iosaphat resided in Ierousalem and again went out among the people from Bersabee up to Mount Ephraim and brought them back to the Lord, God of their fathers. 5 And he appointed judges in all the fortified cities of Ioudas, in city and city. 6 And he told the judges, “See what you are doing, because you are judging not for man but for the Lord, and with you are words of discernment. 7 And now let the fear of the Lord be upon you, and watch, and act, because there is no injustice with the Lord, our God, nor respect of person, nor accepting of gifts.”

8 Moreover, Iosaphat appointed some priests and Leuites and leading men of Israel in Ierousalem to adjudicate for the Lord and to judge the inhabitants of Ierousalem. 9 And he commanded them, saying, “This is how you shall act in the fear of the Lord, in truth, and with a full heart.

10 Should there be any man of your brothers who dwell in their cities with a case that leads to you, involving shedding of blood and involving an ordinance or commandment or statutes and judgments, you will then make a pronouncement for them, and they will not sin against the Lord, and no wrath will come upon you or upon your brothers. Thus you shall act, and you will not sin. 11 And behold, Amarias the priest, a leader over you in every matter concerning the Lord, and Zabdias son of Ismael, the leader over you regarding the house of Ioudas in every matter concerning the king, and the scribes and the Leuites before you! Be strong, and act, and the Lord will be with the good.”

20 And after this the sons of Moab and the sons of Ammon and with them some of the Minites came against Iosaphat for battle. 2 And they came and told Iosaphat of this, saying, “A great multitude has come against you from beyond the sea and Syria. And, see, they are in Hasasan-thamar” (this is Engaddi). 3 And Iosaphat was afraid and set his face to seek out the Lord and proclaimed a fast in all Ioudas. 4 And Ioudas was gathered to seek out the Lord, and from all the cities—lou das—they came to seek out the Lord.

5 And Iosaphat got up in the assembly of louladas in Ierusalem in the house of the Lord in front of the new court. 6And he said, "Lord, God of our fathers, are you not God in heaven, and you govern all the kingdoms of the nations, and in your hand is the power of dominance, and there is no one able to withstand you? 7Are you not the Lord who utterly destroyed the inhabitants of this land from before your people Israel and gave it forever to the seed of Abraham, your beloved? 8And they lived in it and built in it a holy precinct to your name, saying, 9If harm comes upon you, sword, disaster, death or famine, we will stand before this house and before you, because your name is upon this house, and we will call out to you out of affliction, and you will hear and save. 10And now, see, sons of Ammon and Moab and Mount Seir, them through whom you did not grant Israel to pass when they came out of the land of Egypt—because they avoided them and did not utterly destroy them! 11Now, see, it is they who are undertaking to come out against us to cast us from our inheritance, which you gave us. 12Lord, our God, are you not come out against us to cast us from our inheritance, and we have no strength to withstand this great multitude that has come against us, and we do not know how to deal with them. Rather our eyes are on you."

13 And all louladas stood before the Lord and their children and wives. 14And with reference to Oziel the son of Zacharias of the sons of Banaiais of the sons of Eleel the son of Manthaniah the Leuite of the sons of Asaph—a spirit of the Lord came upon him in the assembly 15and he said, "Listen, all louladas and inhabitants of loulasem and King Iosaphat: This is what the Lord says to you yourselves, 'Do not be afraid of them or alarmed from before this vast throng, because the battle line is not for you but for God. 16Tomorrow descend upon them. See, they are ascending along the ascent of Hasas, and you will find them on the height of the river in the wilderness of leriel. 17It is not for you to make war. Understand that, and see the Lord's deliverance with you, louladas and loulasem.' Do not be afraid or alarmed tomorrow to go out to meet them, and the Lord will be with you."

18 And when Iosaphat bowed with his face down, all lou das also and the inhabitants of loulasem fell down before the Lord, to do obeisance to the Lord. 19And the Leuites of the sons of Kaath and of the sons of Kore stood up to praise the Lord, God of Israel, in a supremely loud voice.

20 And they rose next morning and went out into the wilderness of Thekoe, and when they went out, Iosaphat halted and called out and said, "Listen to me, louladas and inhabitants of loulasem! Trust in the Lord, your God, and you will be given credence. Put your faith in his prophet, and you shall succeed." 21And he took counsel with the people and stationed harp-singers and singers of praise to acknowledge and praise the holy things as they went out ahead of the army and said, 22"Acknowledge the Lord, because his mercy is forever."

23 And as they began the praise of his acknowledgment, the Lord granted that the sons of Ammon war against Moab and Mount Seir, who were coming out against Iouladas, and they were turned to flight. 24And the sons of Ammon and Moab rose up against the inhabitants of Mount Seir utterly to destroy and to crush. And when they finished off the inhabitants of Mount Seir, they turned to destroy each other utterly.

24 And Iouladas went to the lookout place over the wilderness and scanned it and saw the multitude. And behold, they were all corpses fallen upon the earth; there was no survivor. 25And Iosaphat and his people came to plunder their plunder, and they found many herds and baggage and plunder and desirable articles, and they plundered for themselves, and three days elapsed while they were plundering plunder, because there was much.

26 And on the fourth day they gathered together into the glen of the blessing, for there they blessed the Lord. That is why they called the name of that place is Valley of Blessing until today. 27And every man of Iouladas returned to loulasem in great gladness, and Iosaphat was their leader, because the Lord had made them glad due to their enemies. 28And they entered into loulasem with nabalab and with cinyras and with trumpets into the Lord's house. 29And terror of the Lord fell upon all the kingdoms of the earth when they heard that the Lord had fought against Israel's adversaries. 30And Iosaphat's kingdom remained peaceful, and his God gave him rest all around.

31 And Iosaphat reigned over louladas, being thirty-five years when he became king, and he reigned twenty-five years in loulasem. And his mother's name was Azouba daughter of Sali. 32And he walked in the ways of his father Asa and did not turn aside from doing what was right before the Lord. 33But the high places still existed, and the people had not yet directed their heart toward the Lord, God of their fathers.

34 And the rest of the histories of Iosaphat, both the first and the last, behold, they are written in the Histories of lou the Son of Hanani, who wrote a book on the kings of Israel.

35 And after that Iosaphat, king of Iouladas, made common cause with Ochozia, king of Israel, (and he was lawless) 36when he acted and went to him to make ships to go to Tharsis, and he made ships in Casiaongabar. 37And Eliezer the son of Dodia from Marisa prophesied against Iosaphat, saying, "Since you became friends with Ochozia, the Lord has dashed your enterprise, and your ships have been wrecked, and they were not able to go to Tharsis."

and his son Ioram became king in his stead. 2And he had six brothers, sons of Josaphat, Azarias and Jehiel and Zacharias and Azarias and Michael and Saphatias. All these were sons of Josaphat, king of Ioudas. 3And their father gave them many gifts, silver and gold and arms along with walled cities in Ioudas. And the kingdom he gave to Ioram, because he was the firstborn. 4And Ioram rose up over his kingdom and became strong and killed all his brothers by sword and some of the rulers of Israel. 5When Ioram was thirty-two years old he became established over his kingdom, and he reigned eight years in Jerousalem. 6And he walked in the way of the kings of Israel, as the house of Achaab had done, because Achaab's daughter was his wife, and he did what was evil before the Lord. 7And the Lord did not wish to destroy utterly the house of David on account of the covenant he had made with David and how he had said to him that he would give a lamp to him and his sons for all days.

8 In those days Edom revolted from Ioudas and crowned a king over themselves. 9And Ioram set out with his commanders, and all the cavalry with him. And it happened that Edom arose by night and struck Ioram, who was encircling him and the commanders of the chariots, and the people fled to their coverts. 10And Edom revolted from Ioudas until this day. Then Lomna revolted from his hand at that time, because he had abandoned the Lord, God of his fathers.

11 For indeed he made high places in the cities of Ioudas and prostituted the inhabitants of Jerousalem and perverted Ioudas. 12And a written note reached him from the prophet Elias, saying, "This is what the Lord, God of David your father, says: Because you have not walked in the way of your father Josaphat and in the ways of Asa, king of Ioudas, but have walked in the ways of the kings of Israel and have prostituted Ioudas and the inhabitants of Jerousalem, as the house of Achaab prostituted, and your brothers, your father's sons, who were nobler than you, you killed, behold, the Lord will strike you with a severe blow among the house of Ioudas and the inhabitants of Jerousalem, as the house of Achaab prostituted, and your brothers, your father's sons, who were nobler than you, you killed. 14When Ioram was thirty-two years old he became established over his kingdom, and he reigned eight years in Jerousalem. 15And he walked in grave infirmity with a sickness of the belly until your belly comes out with the infirmity from days to days. 16And the Lord aroused the allophyles and the Arabs and the neighbors of the Ethiopians against Ioram. 17And they came up against Ioudas, and they seized and removed all the belongings they found in the king's house, and his sons and his daughters, and no son was left to him except Ochozias, the youngest of his sons.

18 And after all this the Lord struck him with an infirmity in his belly, for which there was no cure. 19And it occurred from days to days. And when a time came during two days of the days, his belly came out with the illness, and he died in grave infirmity. And his people did not do a funeral like a funeral of his fathers. 20He was thirty-two years old when he became king and reigned eight years in Jerousalem. And he walked not in commendation and was buried in the city of David and not in the tombs of the kings.

22 And the inhabitants of Jerousalem made Ochozias, his little son, king in his stead, because the band of robbers, the Arabs and the Alamones, that fell on them had killed all the older ones. And Ochozias son of Ioram, king of Ioudas, became king. 2 Being twenty years old Ochozias became king and reigned in Jerousalem for one year. And his mother's name was Gotholia daughter of Ambri. 3And he walked in the way of the house of Achaab, because his mother was his counselor in sinning. 4And he did what was evil before the Lord, like the house of Achaab, because they were his counselors after his father's death in order to destroy him utterly. 5And he walked in their counsels. And he went with Ioram son of Achaab to war against Hazael, king of Syria, to Rama Galaad. And the archers struck Ioram. 6And Ioram retreated to be cured in Iezer of the wounds the Syrians had inflicted on him at Rama when he fought against Hazael, king of Syria. And Ochozias son of Ioram, king of Ioudas, went down to see Ioram son of Achaab in Iezer, because he was sick.

7 And from God came ruin to Ochozias that he came to Ioram. And when he arrived, Ioram went out with him against Iou son of Nameesi, the Lord's anointed, against the house of Achaab. 8And it happened, as Iou was taking vengeance on the house of Achaab, he also found the rulers of Ioudas and Ochozias' brothers ministering to Ochozias, and he killed them. 9And he gave orders to search for Ochozias, and they caught him as he was being cured in Samaria and led him to Iou, and he killed him. And they buried him, because they said, "He is Iosaphat's son, who sought the Lord with his whole heart." And there was no one in Ochozias' house to assert power over the kingdom.

10 And Gotholia, the mother of Ochozias, saw that her son was dead, and she was aroused and destroyed every offspring of the kingdom in the house of Ioudas. 11And Iosabith, the king's daughter, took Ioas, Ochozias' son, and stole him from among the king's sons about to be killed and consigned him and his nurse to the storeroom of the beds. And Iosabith daughter of King Ioram, sister of Ochozias, wife of Iodae the priest, hid him. And she hid him from before Gotholia, and she did not kill him. 12And he was hidden with her in the house of God for six years, and Gotholia reigned over the land.

23 And in the seventh year Iodae gained strength and took the officers of hundreds, Azarias son of Ioram and Ismael son of Ioanan and Azarias son of Obed and Maasaias son of Adaia and Elisaphas son of Zacharias, with him into a house. 2And they went round Ioudas and gathered the Leuites from all the cities of Ioudas and the rulers of the paternal families of Israel and came to Ierousalem. 3And all the assembly of Ioudas made a covenant with the king in the house of God, and he showed to them the king's son and said to them, "Behold, let the king's son be king, as the Lord has spoken concerning the house of Dauid. 4Now this is the plan you will do. Let one third of you, of the priests and the Leuites, proceed on the sabbath and to the gates of the entrances, 5and let one third be in the king's house, and let one third be at the middle gate, and all the people are in the courts of the Lord's house. 6And let no one enter the Lord's house except the priests and the Leuites and those of the Leuites who are ministering. They shall enter because they are holy, and let all the people keep the Lord's watches. 7And the Leuites shall surround the king on all sides, a man with an implement in his hand, and he who enters the house shall die. And they shall be with the king as he enters and exits."

8 And the Leuites and all Ioudas did according to all that Iodae the priest commanded, and each took his men from the beginning to the end of sabbath, because Iodae did not disband the daily divisions. 9And he distributed the daggers and the shields and the arms which had belonged to King Dauid in the house of God. 10And he appointed all the people, each with his arms, from the right angle of the house to the left angle of the altar, and the house, in a ring around the king. 11And he led out the king's son and bestowed the crown upon him, and the testimonies. And Iodae and his sons made him king and anointed him and said, "Let the king live!"

12 And Gotholia heard the sound of the people, those who ran and acknowledged and praised the king and approached the king in the house of the Lord. 13And she looked, and, behold, there was the king at his station and at the entrance the rulers and the trumpets around the king, and all the people were glad, and they trumpeted with the trumpets and the singers singing with their instruments and hymning a song of praise. And Gotholia tore her garment and exclaimed and said, "Attacking you are launching an attack." 14And Iodae the priest went out, and Iodae the priest commanded the officers of hundreds and commanders of the force and said to them, "Remove her from the house, and follow her, and let her die by dagger," because the priest said, "Let her not die in the house of the Lord." 15And they gave her leave, and she exited through the cavalry gate of the king's house, and there they put her to death.

16 And Iodae made a covenant between himself and the people and the king that they should be a people to the Lord. 17And all the people of the land entered into the house of Baal, and they tore it down and smashed to pieces its altars and idols, and they killed Matthan the priest of the she-Baal before his altars. 18And Iodae the priest put his hand to the works of the Lord's house through priests and Leuites and re-established the daily divisions of the priests and the Leuites, which Dauid had appointed for the house of the Lord and to offer whole burnt offerings to the Lord, as it is written in the law of Moyses, with gladness and with songs, through the hand of Dauid. 19And the gatekeepers stood at the gates of the Lord's house, and no one unclean shall enter on any account. 20And he took the patriarchs and the magnates and the rulers of the people and all the people of the land, and they brought up the king to the Lord's house, and he entered by the exterior gate to the king's house, and they sat the king on the throne of the kingdom. 21And all the people of the land were glad, and the city was quiet. And they put Gotholia to death by dagger.

24 Ioas was seven years old when he became king, and he reigned forty years in Ierousalem. And his mother's name was Sabia from Bersabee. 2And Ioas did what was right before the Lord all the days of Iodae the priest. 3And Iodae took for him two wives, and he fathered sons and daughters.

4 And it happened afterwards that it came into Ioas's heart to restore the house of the Lord. 5And he gathered the priests and Leuites and said to them, "Go out into the cities of Ioudas, and gather money from all Israel to restore the Lord's house, year by year, and hurry to spread the word." 6But the Leuites did not hurry. 6And King Ioas summoned Iodae the chief and said to him, "Why have you not exercised oversight concerning the Leuites, to bring in from Ioudas and Ierousalem what was determined by Moyses, man of God, when he assembled Israel into the tent of witness?"—7because Gotholia was the lawless one, and her sons laid waste the house of God and furthermore made over to the she-Baalim all the holy things of the Lord's house.

8 And the king said, "Let there be a chest, and let it stand outside the gate to the Lord's house." 9And they proclaimed in Ioudas and Ierousalem that people should bring an offering to the Lord, as Moyses servant of God had mentioned for Israel in the wilderness. 10And all the rulers and all the people gave and brought and dropped into the chest until it was full. 11And it happened, as they would bring the chest to the king's officials by means of the Leuites and as they saw that the money had increased, the king's scribe and the official of the great priest also came and emptied the chest and set it back in its place. This is how they acted day after day, and they collected much money. 12And the king and Iodae the priest gave it to those doing the work for the work of the Lord's house. And they hired masons and carpenters to restore the Lord's house and smiths of iron and copper to restore the Lord's house. 13And those doing the work kept on working, and the extent of their work expanded by their hands, and they raised up the Lord's house in its position and strengthened it.
14 And when they had finished, they brought the rest of the money to the king and Iodae, and they made utensils for the Lord’s house, liturgical utensils for whole burnt offerings and gold and silver censers. And they offered whole burnt offerings in the Lord’s house regularly all the days of Iodae.

15 And Iodae grew old and full of days and died at the age of one hundred and thirty years at his death. And they buried him in the city of Daud with the kings, because he had done goodness with Israel and with God and with his house.

17 And it happened after Iodae’s death that the rulers of Ioudas entered and did obeisance to the king. Then the king heeded them. And they bore witness against them, and they did not listen. And they bore witness against them, and they did not listen.

20 And a divine spirit entered Azarias the son of Iodae the priest, and he stood above the people and said, “This is what the Lord says: Why do you transgress the Lord’s commandments? And you will not prosper. Because you have abandoned the Lord, he will also abandon you.” And they plotted against him and stoned him by command of King Ioas in the court of the Lord’s house. And Ioas did not remember the mercy that Iodae his father had done with him, and he put his son to death. And as he was dying, he said, “May the Lord see, and let him judge.”

23 And it happened after the completion of the year, the Syrian force came up against him and came against Ioudas and against Ierousalem, and they destroyed all the rulers of the people among the people and sent all the plunder to the king of Damascus. Because the Syrian force arrived with few men, God also delivered into their hands a very large force, because they had abandoned the Lord, God of their fathers. And he executed many judgments against Ioa.

25 And after they had withdrawn from him, when they abandoned him in great infirmities, his servants also plotted against him because of the bloodshed of the son of Iodae the priest, and they put him to death on his bed. And he died. And they buried him in the city of Daud, and they did not bury him in the tomb of the kings. And those plotting against him were Zabed the son of So-maroth the Moabite. And all his sons, even the five, came against him. And the rest, behold, it is written in the document of the kings. And Amasias his son became king in his stead.

25 When he was twenty-five years old Amasias became king and reigned twenty-nine years in Ierousalem. And his mother’s name was Ioaden in Ierousalem. And his mother’s name was Ioaden from Ierousalem. And he did what was right before the Lord, but not with a full heart. And it happened, as his reign was confirmed in his hand, he also put to death his servants who had murdered the king, his father. And he did not kill their sons according to the covenant of the Lord’s law, as it is written, as the Lord had commanded, saying, “Fathers shall not die because of children, and sons shall not die because of fathers, but each shall die for his own sin.”

5 And Amasias gathered the house of Ioudas and appointed them as officers of thousands and officers of hundreds according to their paternal families in all Ioudas and Ierousalem. And he numbered them from the age of twenty and up and found them to be three hundred thousand men able-bodied to go to war grasping spear and shield. And he hired one hundred thousand powerful in strength from Israel for one hundred talents of silver. And a man of God went to him and said, “King, a force of Israel shall not advance with you, because the Lord is not with Israel, since all are the sons of Ephraim—because, if you presume to prevail with these, then the Lord will defeat you before your enemies, because to prevail and to be routed are from the Lord.” And Amasias said to the man of God, “And what shall I do about the hundred talents I gave to the force of Israel?” And the man of God said, “It is for the Lord to give you more than these.” And Amasias discharged the force that had come to him from Ephraim to return to their place. And they were very angry with Ioudas and returned to their place in fierce anger.

11 And Amasias became strong and brought his people along with him and advanced into the Valley of Salt and there struck ten thousand sons of Seir. And the sons of Ioudas took captive ten thousand and brought them to the cliff edge and tossed them over the cliff edge, and they were all rent asunder. And the sons of the force whom Amasias had turned so as not to advance with him to war also fell upon the cities of Ioudas from Samaria to Baithoron, and they struck three thousand among them and took much plunder.

14 And it happened, after Amasias went and struck Idumea, he also brought back to them the gods of the sons of Seir and established them as gods for himself and would do obeisance to them, and he himself would sacrifice to them. And the Lord’s wrath came upon Amasias, and he sent to him prophets, and they said to him, “Why did you seek the gods of the people, who did not deliver their people out of your hand?” And it happened, as he spoke to him, that he said to him, “Surely I have not engaged you as a counselor to the king! Take heed lest you are whipped.” And the prophet fell silent. And he said, “I know that he desired for you to destroy you, because you have done this and have not heeded my counsel.”

17 And Amasias took counsel and sent to Ioa Ioaos son of Iochaz son of Iou, king of Israel, saying, “Come, let us see face to face.” And Ioaos, king of Israel, sent to Amasias, king of Ioudas, saying, “The achochb in Lebanon sent a message to the cedar.

in Lebanon saying, ‘Give your daughter to my son for a wife. And behold, the wild beasts of the field in Lebanon will come out.’ And the wild beasts came and trampled down the acouch. 19 You said, ‘See, you have struck Idumea, and your heavy heart exalts you. Now sit in your house, and why are you planning harm, and you yourself will fall and Ioudas with you?’ ”

20 And Amasias did not listen, because it was from the Lord to hand him over into his hands, because he sought out the gods of the Idumeans. 21 And Ioas, king of Israel, went up, and they appeared to one another, he and Amasias, king of Ioudas, in Baithsamys, which belongs to Ioudas.

22 And Ioudas was turned back before Israel, and each fled to his covert. 23 And Ioas, king of Israel, captured Amasias, king of Ioudas, son of Ioas in Baithsamys and led him into Ierousalem, and he pulled down a portion of the wall of Ierousalem from the gate of Ephraim to the gate of the corner, four hundred cubits. 24 And he took all the gold and the silver and all the vessels that were found in the Lord’s house and with Abededom and the treasures of the king’s house and the sons of the mixed parentage and returned to Samaria.
